MONTH'S COPPER EXPORTS.

Value Exceeds the Imports by Over Four Million Dollars. According to the government's foreign trade figures for April, exports of copper ingots, bars and plates amounted to $4,598,463 in value, an increase of $274,020, and imports amounting to $2,581,282 in value, a decrease of $57,116.

Big Surplus Disappears.

It is concluded to be somewhat remarkable that the 250,000,000 pounds of surplus copper of last winter should suddenly take wings and fly away, so to speak, but leading copper authorities assert positively that there is hardly any spot copper to be bought, that the United Metal Selling Co. has sold its output three months ahead and has absolutely no stock of copper to sell.

HEINZE AND ROGERS.

The statement that the Lake copper producers have refused to go into any consolidation of companies with the Amalgamated people until the Montana litigation is settled is correct, said one of the best informed copper men in Butte. "There are only two men standing in the way of a perfect understanding and union of copper interests, and they are H. H. Rogers and F. Augustus Heinze. Both are stubborn men, and the only difference in their attitudes is that Heinze is right and knows it and Rogers is wrong and knows it. There will be

AT THE OSCEOLA.

Mine Will Soon Secure Increased Product from Kearsarge Lode.

The effort to depress Osceola stock because the company passed its semi-annual dividend, appears ridiculous to those familiar with the merits of the property. It would appear as though those who attempted the raid could find other copper stocks that would better serve their purpose.

For the remainder of the current year it would seem as though Osceola and Quincy would produce nearly equal amounts of refined copper. The Osceola today is stamping about 3,500 tons of rock daily, which is 300 tons in excess of the Quincy daily output.

The cutting down of the old No. 1 shaft will be completed in about thirty days, after which the Kearsarge openings will be in position to supply 1,800 tons of rock daily. This tonnage represents about one-half of the company's output, and will be conducted with the No. 3 shaft at the various levels to the twenty-second or bottom of the shaft.

The building of a skip road is well under way. The surface equipment of the shaft is in readiness, and as the openings are ready to supply an increased output, the starting of the Kearsarge lode will mark an important epoch in the affairs of the company.

A gentleman conversant with the ability of the mine predicts the following daily rock outputs from the three branches, after No. 1 shaft goes into commission, in July: Kearsarge branch, 1,800 tons, yielding 27 tons of mineral; Osceola branch, 1,350 tons, yielding 12 tons of mineral; and Tamarack Junior branch, 350 tons, yielding seven tons of mineral, making a total daily mineral yield of forty-six tons or about 1,200 tons monthly.

TAMARACK-OSCEOLA.

The directors of the Osceola and Tamarack companies held their regular dividend meetings Wednesday morning, but took no action on dividends on either stock. Treasurer Ladd, when seen, would not state whether the dividends were passed, or temporarily deferred.

AN EVENTFUL DAY.

HOW HAPPINESS CAME INTO A CLOUDED LIFE.

After Months and Years of Suffering, This Woman is Now Able to Tell An Interesting Story.

"It was an eventful day for me," said Mrs. Mamie McLean of No. 206 E. Congress street, Detroit, Mich. "I looked into the future and saw health and happiness in store for me."

"I had had a gloomy life," she continued. My entire girlhood was saddened by ill health, the result of a cold contracted at a critical time in my thirteenth year. Months and years of suffering followed and doctors did not help me.

"I was so weak that I could not walk across the room, I had not the slightest appetite, my feet and hands were always cold and I was miserable and unhappy. I wasted away to a mere shadow; I looked frightful and no medicine that I took did me any good. I tried to be resigned to my fate, but it was hard."

"Then came the eventful day. An old friend of our family came in and told me so confidently that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People would cure me that I began to hope and life looked brighter. I started taking the pills and I soon could see that they were doing me good. My flesh began to feel warm, my color to come back and I felt stronger. Improvement was gradual but sure. I continued faithfully with the medicine and soon my functions became normal and health came back.

"I am now, as you can see, a sound, healthy woman. I cannot express my gratitude to him who can only say that I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." "No discovery of modern times has proved such a blessing to women as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, invigorating the body, regulating the functions, they restore the strength and health of the exhausted patient when every effort of the physician proves unavailing. These pills are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had at all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y."

HONORED THE DEAD

years patiently and uncomplainingly championed the American cause in the Philippine Islands, are your younger brothers, your sons. They have shown themselves not unworthy of you, and they are entitled to the support of all men who are proud of what you did.

"The younger comrades of yours have fought under terrible difficulties and have received terrible provocation from a very cruel and very treacherous enemy. Under the strain of these provocations I deeply deplore to say that some among them have so far forgotten themselves as to counsel and commit, in retaliation, acts of cruelty. The fact that for every guilty act committed by one of our troops a hundred acts of far greater atrocity have been committed by the hostile natives upon our troops, or upon the peaceable and law-abiding natives who are friendly to us, can not be held to excuse any terrible difficulties and have received terrible provocation from a very cruel and very treacherous enemy.

Severity Is Necessary. "The rules of warfare which have been promulgated by the war department and accepted as the basis of conduct by our troops in the field are the rules laid down by Abraham Lincoln when you, my hearers, were fighting for the Union. These rules provide, of course, for the just severity necessary in war. The most destructive of all forms of cruelty would be to show weakness where sternness is demanded by iron need. But all cruelty is forbidden, and all harshness beyond what is called for by need. Our enemies in the Philippines have not merely violated every rule of war, but have made of these violations their only method of carrying on the war.

To Flinch Would Be Weak. "It behooves us to keep a vigilant watch to prevent these abuses and to punish those who commit them; but if because of them we flinch from finishing the task on which we have entered, we show ourselves craven and weaklings, unworthy of the sires from whose loins we sprang. There were abuses and to spare in the civil war. Your false friends betrayed Grant, a butcher and spoke of you who are listening to me as mercenaries, as Lincoln hirelings! Your open foes—as in the resolution passed by the Confederate congress in October, 1862—accused you, at great length, and with much particularity, of "contumacious disregard of the usages of civilized war; of subjecting women and children to banishment, imprisonment, and death; of 'murder,' of 'rapine,' of 'outrages on women,' of 'lawless cruelty,' of 'perpetrating atrocities,' and of 'treasonable and traitorous conduct.'" Peace and Freedom. "Peace and freedom are these two better objects for which a soldier can fight? Well, these are precisely the objects for which our soldiers are fighting in the Philippines. When there is talk of the cruelties committed in the Philippines, remember always that by far the greater proportion of these cruelties have been committed by the insurgents against their own people—as well as against our soldiers—and that not only the surest but the only effectual way of stopping them is by the progress of the American arms. The victories of the American army have been complete—and these victories have been complete—and such is now the case throughout the greater part of the islands—all cruelties have ceased, and the native is secure in his life, his liberty, and his pursuit of happiness. Where the insurrection still smolders there is always a chance for cruelty to show itself.

Will Establish Civil Government. "Our soldiers conquer; and what is the object for which they conquer? To establish a military government? No. The laws we are now endeavoring to enact for the government of the Philippines are to increase the power and domain of the civil at the expense of the military authorities, and to render even more difficult than in the past the chance of oppression. The military power is used to secure peace, so that it may itself be supplanted by the civil government. The progress of the American arms means the abolition of cruelty, the bringing of peace, and the rule of law and order under the civil government. Other nations have conquered to create irresponsible military rule. We conquer to bring just and responsible civil government to the conquered. Wherever in the Philippines the insurrection has been definitely and finally put down, there the individual Filipino already enjoys such freedom, such personal liberty, under our rule, as he could never even dream of under the rule of an 'independent' Aguinaldo oligarchy.

of self-government, an art which our people have taught themselves by the labor of a thousand years, can not be grasped in a day by a people only just emerging from conditions of life which dim years before history dawned. We believe that we can rapidly teach the people of the Philippine Islands not only how to enjoy but how to make good use of their freedom; and with their growing knowledge their growth in self-government shall keep steady pace. When they have thus shown their capacity for freedom by their power of self-government, then, and not till then, will it be possible to decide whether they are to exist independently of us or be knit to us by ties of common friendship and interest. When that day will come it is not in human wisdom now to foretell. All that we can say with certainty is that it would be put back an immeasurable distance if we should yield to the counsels of unmanly weakness and turn loose the islands, to see our victorious foes butcher with revolting cruelty our betrayed friends, and shed the blood of the most humane, the most enlightened, the most peaceful, the wisest and the best of their own number—for these are the classes who have already learned to welcome our rule.

SAME OLD STORY.

Ishpeming and Negaunee Fans Came to Blows Yesterday Over Ball Game.

Much noise, a few blows, no one hurt, threats against the umpire and poor ball, was the result of the game between the Ishpeming and Negaunee teams yesterday afternoon at Union Park. The score at the end of the ninth inning was 19 to 4 in favor of Ishpeming.

When it comes to baseball, or athletic contests of any kind, it is doubtful if any of the rival cities in the state can furnish more real excitement than is provided when contesting teams of the Twin Cities come together.

Fun and excitement was predicted, and to some what transpired was exciting and amusing. There was a large crowd out, the gate receipts being the largest obtained at a ball game in several seasons. All expected fun, even if the contest might be one-sided.

The game started with two umpires, Tom Cooney of this city and a commercial traveler from Milwaukee named Drake. Each team scored two runs in the first two innings and it looked as though the contest might be played well and without wrangling. In the third inning with three men on bases an Ishpeming man came up and lined a ball out in right field, close to the line, bringing home all the men on the bases. Cries of "foul" went up from the fans on the Negaunee side of the line, but Cooney, who was unlucky enough to be umpiring the hits that inning, could not see it that way. A Negaunee man who had some money on the game went out into the diamond to argue with Cooney and the umpire just passed him one. It was one of those teasers, which did not carry sufficient weight to hurt the recipient. The rumpus was brief as the outsider was hustled off the field and the game proceeded.

Wanted to Whip a Copper.

A young man from Ishpeming who has had some muscular exercise in his time got into a jangle with another chap, and Patrick Scanlon, a Negaunee police officer, separated them. This aroused the Ishpeming lad's temper and of course he wanted to whip Scanlon. The latter is not of the fighting kind and he advised the youngster to go back and sit down. The crowd congregated but Scanlon soon put an end to the scene.

Lynn was in the box and a Negaunee man had reached first. An objection was made to his delivery, the Negaunee boys claiming he made a balk. About thirty minutes was lost trying to straighten out this dispute between the players. Finally the Ishpeming team yielded and the runner was allowed to walk to second. Then the Negaunees wanted Empire Cooney "fired." This was done and the game was about to proceed when a couple more young fellows came to blows near the home plate and it took ten or fifteen minutes more to teach them that they were not good fighters.

Game Finished in Peace.

By this time the Negaunee boys wanted to quit the game. Some of them thought they had not been treated fairly by Cooney. The latter was pleased to quit umpiring, so finally Drake tackled the job alone, and without gloves or gun to protect himself. His umpiring was impartial and he showed before the game ended that he had umpired before. Aside from the line ball which resulted in bringing three Ishpeming men over the plate the Negaunees did not have much grounds for finding fault with the decisions. Ishpeming men who stood in line with the bases claimed that the ball was a foul and should have been so declared. Cooney was on the line between the home plate and first and he really thought it struck inside the fair lines.

The Negaunee team went to pieces immediately after the playing was resumed. They seemed to lose their "ginger," though they started out well. The Ishpeming hit the ball freely and managed to bring in several runs on errors of their opponents. In the sixth inning Pitcher Craus left the box and George Reichel finished the game for Negaunee.

Ruez pitched the first two innings for Ishpeming, but his arm was in bad shape and he had to retire. Tom Lynn twirled for the remainder of the game. The features of the contest were the field work and batting of John Cooney and J. J. Kerr, and the batting of Mike Navins, for the Ishpeming, and the catching and throwing to bases of Smith for Negaunee. The next time these two teams come together there should be ropes along

A CREDITABLE TURNOUT.

Many Ishpeming People Attended the Memorial Exercises Yesterday.

Yesterday's weather was perfect for the memorial exercises, which were conducted under direction of Charles H. Towne post of the Grand Army. The attendance of members of the societies which came out was fairly large. The parade was an imposing one and thousands lined the principal streets of the city while it was on.

The exercises at the stand near the Ishpeming Co-operative society's store were carried out according to the program printed early in the week. The platform was occupied by the members of the Grand Army, the mayor, members of the city council, the speakers, the members of the city band and the wives and daughters of the veterans.

The addresses delivered by Rev. H. H. Allen of Washington, D. C., and Rev. Father Kehoe, pastor of St. John's church, were eloquent and every word uttered by both speakers was attentively listened to.

Mr. Allen's address was excellent. He referred to the many acts of bravery performed by the soldiers of the war of the rebellion. He related some of the things that he remembers about the conflict and his discourse was of particular interest at that account. He is a very fluent speaker and although quite an old man his voice was strong and his utterance distinct.

Rev. Kehoe's discourse was brief but to the point and extremely patriotic. He referred with force to the duty of every American citizen to his flag and his country. He spoke of the love and devotion of the veterans to their country. All should be such citizens as were the men who made up the American forces during the great struggle.

A large number of persons followed the procession to the cemetery and the graves of many a soldier from the soldiers who fought in either of the late wars were decorated with flowers. The Ishpeming City band rendered fine music at the stand as well as in the parade.

J. MAURICE FINN WINS FAME.

He Was Victorious in Defending an Alleged Murderer at Cripple Creek.

The Denver Post of last Sunday devoted the greater part of a page to a write-up of a murder case in which J. Maurice Finn defended the man accused of the crime. Finn's defense was so strong that the jury acquitted his client. The skull of the dead man was used in evidence and it is said that J. Maurice completely outwitted the attorneys on the other side. The Post also printed pictures of Finn and others prominent in the case. The following, taken from one of the published reports of the case, gives an idea of Finn's clever work, which will be of particular interest to The Mining Journal readers because of the fact that the attorney is so well known in this section:

"By sawing off a dead man's skull and using it in defending his client, charged with murder, J. Maurice Finn, a Cripple Creek lawyer, outwitted a corps of district attorneys and even fooled himself by securing an absolute acquittal for the man he represented. The story of this unique legal ruse has just been revealed by the attorney.

It was on Christmas eve, 1901, that William Brooks killed James Roberts after a drunken brawl in the Dawson club, at that time one of the most frequented resorts in Cripple Creek. Brooks struck Roberts a blow on the head with a heavy Colt revolver, and the latter fell to the floor dead. Brooks, who was proprietor of the place, gave himself up to the authorities to escape the vengeance of a mob organized to lynch him, and immediately sent for Attorney Finn.

"It was immediately afterward that the lawyer made the unique discovery which ultimately resulted in freeing his client.

"While examining Roberts' body at the morgue, Finn noticed that the bony covering of the skull was of a thin, porous nature, an unusual condition among human beings, and he immediately made up his mind that the one single thread which might be relied upon to save his client from the gallows rested in his possession of the skull. But how to get it, he did not know. Another fact that presented itself was that he himself could not exhibit the murdered man's skull, for to be material evidence the state must introduce it. Finn thought for an instant, secretly knowing which way to turn, until an idea struck him and he hastened to put it into execution. He hurried to the office of Dr. J. W. Sanders and explained the case sufficiently to excite the professional curiosity of the surgeon.

"Then the two set out together, the doctor with his scalp knife and operating saw concealed under his coat. They went at once to the morgue, where the body of Roberts was held, and found the place in charge of a boy, who was easily persuaded to busy himself away from the death chamber. Finn pointed to the body and stepped outside.

"Soon the surgeon called him, and going back to the morgue he beheld a sight that shook his iron nerve. Standing before him was the doctor with the skull of the dead man resting in his hands. It had been skillfully separated from the scalp, which lay limply over the dead man's face. The lawyer recoiled and turned sick with faintness, but he thought of the fate of his client and braced himself for the final test of nerve.

"Here, Finn, help me fix up this scalp in a decent way so the skull will look natural," the doctor said in a business-like tone. "Get something quick."

"Here are some old papers," weakly responded the unwilling assistant.

"They won't do, because they will absorb the moisture and cause the scalp to settle," retorted the physician.

"How will this do?" asked the lawyer, holding up a dirty towel.

"Just the thing to make the head assume a natural contour," and the two men proceeded to stuff the towel into the scalp, which had been a human head. The scalp was then pulled over the cloth and shaped as a normal head, after sewing up the incisions. Then Dr. Sanders put the skull under his coat with his instruments and the two men hurried back to the physician's office. The skull was then washed and put away for the important part it was to play in the trial of William Brooks.

"A few days before the case came up Dr. Sanders walked into the office of the district attorney with the skull of the murdered man.

A BIG LINE OF...

is a rare, I may say almost unheard of, specimen. The state can use it in the prosecution of the person charged with the crime.

"The district attorney, not suspecting the trap, did produce it against the defendant. Just as he did, the brother of the murdered man jumped over the railing and made a desperate effort to strangle Brooks. Behind him were fifty friends ready to drag the accused from the court room and swing him up to a telegraph pole. Their plans were frustrated by a quick adjournment by Judge Seeds and the clearing of the court room by Sheriff Robertson and his deputies. Brooks was a sight to behold. The craven fear depicted on his face seemed to plainly say—guilty.

"The trial was of a tragic character and the testimony sensational. For eight hours Mr. Finn pleaded with the jury. He exhibited the thinness of the skull and dwelt on this point with such convincing fitness that the lawyers who listened were unanimous in saying: 'He will get off with a manslaughter verdict.' If Roberts had had an ordinarily thick skull he would not have been killed, was the gist of his contention. Brooks did not intend to kill him, the element of intent was lacking. This was the slender thread by which the life of this man, charged with murder, hung.

"The jury was out two days and two nights, ten for acquittal and two for first degree murder. Late in the night of the second day a verdict of acquittal was brought in by the jury.

"Miners all over the district were appalled at the coming trial. A vigilance committee was quickly formed and 200 men said they were ready to avenge outraged justice. The news of their intention, however, preceded them, and Brooks, quaking with fear, was escorted to the Millard depot under the protection of twenty-five deputy sheriffs, was hidden away and taken out of camp. As fast as the train could take him he made for the Pacific coast and it now at Seattle, Wash."
