Various state delegations have declared in his favor, and it is freely predicted that when the matter of choosing Speaker Henderson's successor comes up his strength will be sufficient to over-a good speaker, and as his selection will give this important office to the middle west there will be much satisfaction with it in this and neighboring states.

Assistant Postmaster General Madden's recommendations in regard to pos tal rate reforms are deserving of attention. Two things are obvious in connec tion with the postal service; one, that there are flagrant abuses; the other, that there is an annual deficit. The deficit should be removed at any cost. This government has no manner of business giving the public any service at less than its cost price, and it is usually a sign of Tribes Ready to Rebel.

Apache Kid could not have returned civilization at a more critical time some druggists have forgotten than the present. It is but two weeks since there was serious excitement among the Apaches and Mohaves owing to the distress and discontent among them. These two warlike tribes came so losely together owing to their common sufferings that it was believed they had formed an alliance hostile to the whites. The white inhabitants of central Arizona went so far as to prepare themselves for a struggle with the redskins. Apache Kid, the most dreaded of Apaches, arrived at Fort MeDowell, where Mohaves and Apaches came more closely in contact than anywhere else, just when his appearance served to confirm the reports of the alliance of the great Ariona tribes against the whites.
