IRON TRADE SITUATION.

Cleveland Paper Discusses It, With an Eye on 1903. The Iron Trade Review in its current issue reviews the iron ore situation as follows: The winding up of another season of Lake Superior ore shipments brings before iron manufacturers anew the questions of supply, demand and price in connection with this foundation industry.

It is well known that an increase of 7,000,000 tons in the shipments of Lake Superior ores in 1902 over 1901 is not called for by the increase in the use of these ores in the furnaces depending upon the iron mines of the lake district.

It is plain, even with such increase in output of Northern furnaces as may come in the next four months, that the opening of the season of navigation in 1903 will see far the largest amount of ore on Lake Erie docks and in furnace yards that have ever been known.

LOST A CLOSE GAME

VISITING TRAVELING MEN DEFEATED LOCALS SATURDAY.

FINAL SCORE WAS 12 TO 10

BOTH TEAMS PLAYED EXCELLENT ARTICLE OF BASEBALL.

Negaunee-Ishpeming Delegation Was Entertained at Luncheon After the Contest—Return Game to Be Arranged.

The colors of the Marquette traveling men were lowered to their Negaunee-Ishpeming brethren Saturday night at the Casino rink, when the visitors walked off with a victory in the first indoor baseball game of the winter series by a score of 12 to 10. However, the Marquette travelers have the satisfaction of knowing that they gave their opponents a run for their money and that it was anybody's game up to the very end of the contest.

The spectators who assembled at the Casino, and they included a goodly number of ladies, saw a much better article of indoor baseball than they expected to witness. It is probable that most of the onlookers went to the rink expecting a burlesque on the game, but in this they were disappointed. Both sides played high grade ball, there being a notable absence of yellow errors.

The Marquette players appeared in neat gray uniforms, with red trimmings and the letters "U. C. T." across the bosoms of the shirts.

The respective line-ups were as follows:

The umpires were Walter Yeazel of the Hotel Marquette and "Sib" Larson of Ishpeming, and, while the customary amount of kicking was not missing, they did good work.

Evening Contest Game.

The game was evenly contested throughout, and at no time was either team confident of victory. At the conclusion of the second half of the second inning, when the score was 5 to 2 in Ishpeming-Negaunee's favor, it looked rather dark for the locals, but they scored twice in both of the succeeding innings, meanwhile blanking the visitors, and turned the tables, making the score 6 to 5 in their favor. At the end of the sixth the tallies stood nine all. Ishpeming scored in its half of the seventh, making it 10 to 9, and Marquette again succeeded in tying the score in the first of the eighth. However, in its half, Ishpeming added two more. Marquette had a final chance to win the game, or at least, tie the score in the first of the ninth, but the local batters were all easy "outs", and the visitors, with a howl of triumph, scurried from the diamond.

The battery work of both teams was very good. Burtless, who made his first appearance in the box for Marquette, pitched an excellent game. He has unusually good control, as is evidenced by the fact that he gave no passes to first, and had several strike-outs to his credit. But eight safe hits were made off his delivery, he throwing a ball that knocked into the infield where it could be handled to first. Burtless was ably backed up by Shelton.

Graham and Butler, for the visitors, likewise put up good battery work. The former's ball was swifter than Burtless', but his control was not so good. He was credited with eight strike-outs and passed two men to first. Nine hits were made off his delivery.

Good Infield. For Marquette, the infield, particularly Johnson and Pohlman, put up an excellent game, there being a notable paucity of serious errors. In the outfield Wheeler and MacKenzie gambled around like a pair of two-year-olds. They looked very formidable, but they didn't appear to connect with the ball very often. MacKenzie, it is true, claimed to be incapacitated by a sore finger, and Wheeler said he was busy "keeping cool".

The Ishpeming men were also good in the infield, and their outfield was a little better than that of their opponents. Their victory was fairly earned, but the margin was so small that the Marquette travelers are very hopeful of the outcome of the next contest.

Negaunee had the benefit of much prior experience Saturday night, while the locals were playing their first regular game. Under the circumstances they pride themselves that they did very well.

The score by innings was as follows: Marquette . . . . . 2 0 2 2 0 3 0 1 0—12 Ish-Neg. . . . . 1 4 0 0 2 2 1 2 *—12

Following the game the members of the two teams adjourned to Prince's restaurant, where the visitors were entertained at a luncheon by the Marquette players until the time for the departure of the westbound train. The proceedings were enlivened by stories, remarks on the game, quips, jokes and a couple of vocal selections from Fred Bennett. L. M. Van Buren set up the "smokes," a box of his famous "J. Bs."

A return game will be played up-the-road at an early date.

OWLS KILL RABBIT

THESE BIRDS ARE DECIMATING THE SMALL GAME RAPIDLY.

BOUNTY ON THEM IS SUGGESTED

WOULD HAVE EFFECT OF ASSURING HUNTERS BETTER SPORT.

Little Value Is Attached by Marquette Sportsmen to Suggestion That All Snaring of Rabbits Be Stopped.

A well known hunter and landlooker, commenting on Deputy Game Warden Case Downing's remarks in connection with the preservation of rabbits, says that he considers that the rabbits would be more benefitted and the interests of the hunters better conserved if, instead of bothering about the small amount of snaring that is done, the hunters and the game wardens would take up an agitation in favor of putting a bounty on owls. These birds, he asserts, are the worst foes that camp on the trail of the rabbits, and he also claims that they are persistent in their attacks on partridge.

Inquiry among other woodsmen, hunters and landlookers confirms these statements. The owls, it appears, kill hundreds and hundreds of rabbits each season, while they also make considerable ravages among the partridge. The owls rule the roost. There is no bounty on them, and while hunters make it a point to knock them over whenever they have the opportunity, still, as a general rule, they are undisturbed. As is well known they are nocturnal rovers, they begin to live when other people begin to sleep and in the daytime they are but rarely encountered. This accounts for their immunity from successful attack. So seldom are they seen that many people who frequently visit the woods will probably hesitate to believe that they are capable of doing much damage among rabbits and partridge, but men who are on to all the crooks and turns of the forest assert positively that this is the case.

There has been no little discussion among Marquette hunters of Game Warden Downing's suggestion that snaring of rabbits be stopped by legal enactment, and it is the general opinion here that there is not much virtue in it. Such enactment would have for its main effect the deprivation of the boy and youth of one of their most cherished pleasures, and the rabbit would not benefit greatly. It is the opinion of most local hunters that the amount of game killed by snaring is not very great. Furthermore they think that snaring furnishes the boys a healthy, safe sport and that it tests their patience and ingenuity, preparing them for the years in which they will be able to shoulder a gun and go out in search of bigger game. A movement to stop snaring, it appears, would get but little support here, but there are a number of hunters who would do all they could to have a bounty put on the slaughter of owls, being convinced that these birds are the greatest enemies of the small game.

Rabbits are plentiful this year, according to report, and some good bags of this toothsome game are being made. It is said that they are more easy to kill, on account of their increased numbers, than they have been at any time within the past two or three years.

FAVORS PRESENT LAW.

W. Story Is Opposed to Again Allowing the Sale of Game.

To The Mining Journal—In regard to the article that appeared in a recent issue of The Mining Journal, quoting Mr. Gilman of Detroit, I would say that I think when he calls that meeting of sportsmen to revise the game laws he will find that 90 per cent of them will turn him down on his proposition to again open the markets to the small remnant of game and fish that is left in the country. It is a foregone conclusion that the moment you make a law that allows the sale of game, the doom of the deer is sealed, for that makes a fence for the market shooter and pot hunter to hide behind. They would not only kill and sell their three head that the law allows, but would keep on killing and selling as long as the open season lasts. His plea for the poor invalid and taxpayer are very dimmy. I have never yet heard of a man, woman or child dying for the want of a piece of venison or wild duck when there are so many delicacies to be obtained from our well-stocked markets.

Neither have I ever heard of a taxpayer going broke on account of the few extra cents he has to pay toward restocking our depleted trout streams. In regard to other states allowing the sale of game, I would say that there are very few allowing it now, and they are getting into line as fast as possible. I was very much surprised to learn that any one, in this enlightened age of the world, would advocate the selling of game again. I supposed that that class of men had disappeared along with those who helped to exterminate the buffalo and wild pigeon. If I were to make an assertion like that of Mr. Gilman, and put it in print, I should be ashamed to look a deer in the face.
