The die is cast; the order to strip the Hope mine has been received and the workmen are busy pulling up the stuff from underground. For two years the Oliver Iron Mining company has been at work on this property and the plant of machinery that they put in was sufficient to run a fair-sized mine in good shape. The St. Paul road extended its tracks to the property and for a time matters looked very promising. Recently, however, matters took a turn for the worse and the mine has been on a downhill
