Patrick Collins was elected by the vote of 20 to 1. Marshal Lehman, City Attorney Belden and Poundmaster Mike Tasson each received twelve votes, thus retaining their positions, and the others on the Citizens' slate to whom there was opposition went in by eleven votes, a majority of one.

Aside from Policeman Collins, the only new appointees are William Olds, who takes the place formerly held by William Drew on the police force, and Dr. Barnett, who succeeds D. J. Siney as president of the council.

equal opportunity; abolishing special privileges, that produce monopoly; and delegating to oblivion, political ring-rule, which has gambled with the sacred ballot as if it were a playing card.

"Our school system is the greatest safe-guard for our future liberty and progress; we cannot do too much to aid them in their struggles against ignorance and superstition. Our school system has scarcely started on its mission of light, and yet it won't be difficult to measure the great good it has already accomplished; so far we have only taught in our schools the intellectual side; there are numerous other branches waiting; the school children of today will be the citizens of our country tomorrow, and it will be cheap indeed to build schools than prisons. It is also of great importance that we should see that none of our public instructors should so forget the dignity of their position, and impose upon the credulity of our children, their own small sectarian views. What we want is the broad truth in the daylight.

"Our charter has been changed and amended from time to time by a subtle set of ring politicians granting to certain individuals and boards powers which should be under the direct vote of the people. As the result of such legislation certain individuals hold public office, and almost get married to it, who could not get a respectable vote direct from the people.

"I think it is fitting and proper that such important positions as the assessor, city attorney, marshal, deputy marshal, members of the board of public works and similar boards should be elected by the direct vote of the people.

"After the power has been brought back into the hands of the people where they rightfully belong, our charter should be re-printed, properly indexed and made a fit instrument to meet the demands of our city. The excuse offered for these civil commissions and boards is to take these matters out of politics; when, in reality they become centers of ring rule, and are intended to defeat the ends of popular government.

"I still think as I did last year regarding our street labor; I believe their day's work should be nine hours and the wages of those doing the heaviest work, such as digging drains, etc., where they are often working in water should be raised equal to the wages paid to carpenters or $2 per day, and that other work on the streets should be paid $1.00 a day.

"Inasmuch as the highway department has overdrawn its account from year to year until this year there is only left $6,000 to the credit of this fund and as the charter provides it shall not exceed in excess of the annual appropriation only $5,000 it would be proper to limit highway construction work to $11,000 this year. This will even matters up where they should be, and then next year they will have the full appropriation at their command.

"One of the chief aims of good government should be equal taxation; every individual or corporation should pay taxes in exact ratio, in proportion to their holdings. There should be no discrimination in favor of either the large or small property holder. If a small property holder owns a house that would sell in the open market for $1,000 and he is assessed for $750 that would be three-fourths of its value, or at the ratio of 75 per cent of its value. If a large property owner owns a mine, which would sell in the open market for $4,000,000 and he is assessed for $1,000,000 that would be one-fourth of its value or a ratio of 25 per cent. In the above example it is shown that there would be discrimination against the small taxpayer and in favor of the large taxpayer to the extent of 50 per cent. In such a case it would be the duty of good government to remedy such defects in taxation, by adjusting the differences until both the large and small property holders are taxed in exact ratio to their holdings, in other words, if the small property holder pays taxes at the ratio of 25 per cent of its holdings, the small property holder should also pay at the ratio of 25 per cent of its holdings and vice versa. Similar defects as depicted above do exist in Ishpeming and it is entirely the province and the duty of, this council to remedy them. What is wanted is equal justice to all and special privileges to none. Special privileges produce monopoly and monopoly is an awful good thing—for monopoly; but serious misdeeds to public good; and it should further be remembered that if anybody has any kick coming on this proposition, it is the toiling millions who produce all wealth, and who indirectly pay all bills.

"If I lost my watch and another man found it, the fact that he had it in his possession would not prove his ownership to it. The possession of property does not always carry with it the ethical right to its possession. Property obtained by unjust methods can always be retrieved by its rightful owner.

"Society at large has produced all wealth, and the rights of corporations cannot be greater than is granted by a majority of society or a country's citizens. Corporations are simply trustees of public wealth, until we become of age, and get wise enough to run our own affairs for public good, instead of allowing some one else to run it for private gain.

"How would we like to go back to the old system of allowing someone to run our public roads, public schools, water system, sewer system for private gain? Not now; since we have had a taste of the good that can be derived from public ownership; what we want is some more of the same thing. A lighting plant next would be a splendid thing for public good. Our sewer system and the building of cement sidewalks should be judiciously encouraged.

"When the tax question is properly adjusted, a new line engine house might be publicly discussed to the public advantage; if you have any doubts about it, take a walk around there and ask to see things.

"And now lets have men on the police force who are not subject to the orders of any boss or party men who will look out for the public good; men who are sensible enough to evade trouble, instead of trying to manufacture it, and who won't need regulating every twenty-four hours.

"In conclusion I wish to thank some of the members of the old council for their kindly assistance and good will, and those who so strenuously opposed me I suppose the right thing to do is to forgive them.

"In the year we are just about to enter as servants of the people, in dismissing the various matters of public interest, let us be frank with each other, and freely express what we honestly think regarding the measures which will come up for our deliberations; let us respect the honest opinion of every member of the council no matter how different from our own.

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as we see it, let us push forward to finish the work we are in.

An Exposition and Explanation.

"It is often repeated by enemies of the People's party that we are opposed to the corporations. This is not true; we believe that corporations are necessary at this stage of industrial evolution; we believe in expanding these industrial institutions to give a wider range of employment; we regard them, however, as industrial institutions and not political machines.

"The superintendents who direct these institutions are really wage workers inasmuch as they receive wages in the shape of salaries paid them for directing these industries; these men are not the mining companies; they are simply hired directors; and when they assume the authority of instructing citizens how to vote, they have stepped beyond their rights and jurisdiction. When they go so far as to intimidate and coerce those working under their industrial direction, to the extent of compelling them to vote as they dictate or lose their bread and butter, then highway robbery is honorable compared to such treason to freedom.

"It is very unjust to so misconstrue the truth that because we believe in American freedom, and insist on using our franchise in the light of our own reason that, we should be charged in so doing as opposing the industries by which we are surrounded.

"We believe in fair play and simple justice; we will do no injustice our-

STREET CARS TIED UP.

Workmen Forc'd to Give Up Yesterday, After Laboring Several Hours.

Yesterday was the first time of the winter that the employees of the street car line gave up in despair. At no time this winter have the cars been tied up for a whole day, but they came very near breaking the record yesterday. They were out for a short time in the morning, making a few round trips, but the men could not keep the line open. The snow blew back into the track as fast as it was shoveled out.

More than a foot of snow fell yesterday, while in places the drifts were several feet deep. The snow was unusually heavy and difficult to handle. The street commissioner had plows and men out all day, and in some parts of the city the walks and streets were in fairly good condition. The street car line will be opened today if the storm abates, and the roads to the locations will be plowed out again.

All the trains on both the South Shore and Northwestern were belated. The Northwestern train from the south was less than one hour behind time in the morning and the afternoon train was less than fifty minutes late. The telegraph lines were reported down in many places, though a few wires were in working order.

MAYOR ROBERTS' ADDRESS.

City Executive Talked to the Councilmen at Last Night's Meeting.

The organization meeting of the new city council was held last evening. Mayor Roberts' address was as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Council:—It gives me great pleasure to mingle with you, in behalf of a People's government.

"As men evolved from primitive conditions and banded themselves together in combinations for the purpose of more effectively protecting themselves from their foes, from invasion, famine and inclemencies of the weather, experience taught them that organization was necessary in order to be successful; and they have grown, and today we are here as representatives of government for the city of Ishpeming. In behalf of the people of Ishpeming we have accepted the duties of caring for those institutions which society has brought into existence, and it is the duty of humanity, and to find better methods of making them more effective for public good.

"Like the mighty river which follows the lines of least resistance, starting with a tiny spring, flows down the mountainside and grows larger and larger as its millions of little tributaries flow into it, until it becomes one resistless mass of energy; now bending gracefully around some mountain slope, now gently watering the meadows and fields from which we gather our harvest, now with deafening roar leaping over some lofty precipice to the valleys below and on, and on, to join the mighty ocean; so the stream of humanity moves on along the line of least resistance; finding now from some bitter experiences they have not employed the proper methods, then changing tactics and taking up the new method that offers hope of better results.

"We are here as the servants of the people, and the measure of our usefulness to society and ourselves, can only be ascertained by what we accomplish for public good.

"Some may be here for personal aggrandizement, some to further private interest, but one thing we all should remember is, that society will not long tolerate or endure any kind of institution except that which works the greatest good for the greatest number; anything short of this has the flimsiest excuse for its existence, and is bound to totter.

"Whisky and wealth, coercion and intimidation, armies and navies, will be found to be institutions of past ignorance, and useless to keep back the resistless conscience of mankind in its onward sweep to the highest good, the ocean of love which gave it birth.

"The people are the only fit source of power; history attests the fact that the few never were fit to rule; in their jealousies, pride, ambitions, and selfishness, they have kept humanity ever at war; no real happiness or progress can be attained until humanity refuses to fight the battles of the rich, and turn their attention to matters of their own welfare. Instead of acting on the advice of the pretending good man who while living in luxury himself, tells us to put up with poverty, and hope for better things beyond the tomb, let us roll up our sleeves, and with united good cheer, proceed to banish poverty from this side of the tomb; by government based of social justice; giving every individual

COUNTY PHONE CO. IMPROVEMENTS

WILL SPEND $35,000 OR MORE ON THE BETTERMENT AND UP-BUILDING OF ITS SYSTEM.

PROGRAM FOR MARQUETTE

Over $18,000 Will Be Expended Here—Is Management's Intention to Thoroughly Modernize the Service.

At a meeting of the directors of the Marquette County Telephone company this week it was decided to proceed with the improvement of the company's system planned some months ago, but work on which was interrupted on account of the death of the company's general manager, the late Donald McViehl of Ishpeming.

The expenditures will aggregate not less than $35,000 and in Marquette alone not less than $18,000, so it will be seen that this city will get the largest proportion of the proposed improvements.

The contractors have agreed to begin work as soon as the material can be furnished, which is expected to be in about three or four weeks.

The new facilities will greatly increase the company's phone capacity, as well as improve the service. The directors believe that they will make the service the equal of any in the north country.

The Marquette County Telephone company was organized about twelve years ago, for the purpose of furnishing cheap phones to the public. At that time the Bell company had a monopoly, and acted the part, the schedule being $29 for phones in business houses and $39 for phones in residences.

which schedule it has maintained since, regardless of the Bell schedule. The County company has its strongest hold in the western end of the county, while the Bell company has gotten the biggest end of the business in Marquette, where it was strongly entrenched. With the proposed improvements completed it is probable that the County company will make a stiff fight to largely increase its Marquette business.

KNIGHTS OF GRIP HONOR TERPSICHORE

ANNUAL DANCE OF UNITED COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS AT FRATERNITY HALL LAST EVENING A MARKED SUCCESS.

The annual dancing party of U. P. council No. 186, United Commercial Travelers at Fraternity Hall last evening long lingered as a happy memory with those who had the good fortune to be in attendance. The hall was elaborately decorated in yellow, white and blue, the colors of the order.

The program was unique in that they were modeled after mileage books. The gentlemen signed his name on a strip, handed it to the lady, and on the arrival of the dance designated, claimed his partner.

The program provided for fifteen dances, all waltzes and two-steps, but the musicians good-naturedly responded to a number of extras and it was not until after 2 o'clock that the strains of the last waltz died away.

Thoroughly renovated, newly decorated and newly equipped. We have taken over this stand and solicit your patronage. The best of service guaranteed.

MARQUETTE AGAIN SWEEP BY STORM

AFTER CESSATION OF THIRTY-SIX HOURS SNOW FALLS IN QUANTITIES AND HAMPERS TRAFFIC GREATLY.

Its unexpected that happens in love, war and the weather. The storm which began Sunday, the 7th, and continued almost without cessation until the morning of Wednesday, the 10th, resumed hostilities at 8:45 Thursday evening, after a lay-off of not quite thirty-six hours.

A fall in temperature is predicted and should it take place, traffic from the south as well as from the north will be seriously interfered with. The local street car management had taken time for the forelock and thoroughly cleared its tracks prior to the resumption of the storm.
