MARQUETTE, MICH., JULY 6.

Entered as mail matter of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

And now let's enjoy comparatively quiet fourths for a few years.

Back to Australia, Bill. You're not even pleased. You're just lead with a silver finish.

The Fourth passed in the county without serious accident. A few fingers were lacerated and many hands burned, but there were no injuries that will not be forgotten in a few days.

The Soo canals are having a great year. As reported in this paper yesterday the June traffic reached the stupendous figure of 8,656,442 tons.

It augurs well for the success of State Game and Fire Warden Pierce's administration of the department which he has been chosen to head that he is retaining such men as J. B. Eddy of the Soo, who has been a deputy under Mr. Chapman, the retiring warden.

Regarding the order to officials of the Harriman roads to give clear and succinct statements of accidents, their causes and results, to newspaper men, the Grand Rapids Herald says: "Railroading has its hazards. Accidents will happen, both those due to somebody's carelessness and those that cannot be foreseen."

The decision of the park, cemetery and street commission to put in a launder at the corner of Baraga avenue and Front street, to take care of the flow of surface water during unusual rains, is a wise one.

The toll of death and list of injuries attending the celebration of the Fourth of July throughout the country is a large one, and still, considering the amount of powder burned to commemorate the day of the nation's birth, it is no larger than might be expected.

sufficient to supply two great armies in a protracted engagement. That the burning of all this powder should be attended by many accidents and too numerous deaths is only to be expected, particularly in view of the recklessness of thousands of celebrants and the tender years of many thousands of others.

The butchers and grocers of Grand Rapids have again this year decided to put in effect the practice of observing Thursday half holidays during the months of July and August, closing their stores at noon and keeping them closed until the next morning, thus giving both proprietors and employes a full half holiday.

Willie Burt, the sixteen-year-old son of John Burt of South Ashmun street, at the Soo, is missing. He was seen at 6 o'clock June 22 after saying he was going swimming and has not been seen since.

Mike Bourlaski, an Ironwood miner, will lose an eye and is very fortunate that he did not lose his entire jaw blown off as the result of a loaded cigar which a friend gave him and watched to see what the result would be.

A Soo boy named Herbert Nye had a narrow escape from a painful accident while standing on the south wall of the Poe lock. The G. G. Gould was in the lock up-bound and the gates were being closed.

Another Alger county boy has "made good." Graduate of the Marquette High school in 1900, Rupert Bell, son of Walter Bell, entered the United States Life Saving service and served two years.

Prompt, vigorous and capable work by the fire department prevented great destruction of property at Ironwood. As was the loss was an ample sufficiency, Thomas Brown being the heaviest loser.

Seriously speaking, this is an excellent report, and we cannot but feel gratified that our countrymen in Mexico are making so good an impression.

Clements of Baraga, manager for the Nester estate, which lost its big Baraga mill by fire last week, was in the city yesterday making arrangements to have some lumber which will be cut at a mill at Baraga, handled on the docks here as it will be shipped from this port. Mr. Clements was not in a position to say definitely whether the Baraga mill will be rebuilt. Two of the Nesters are expected at Baraga today.

Concerning the failure of the life saving crew to give a practice drill on the Fourth, as announced in the published program, there was an apparent oversight in arranging for the exhibition with Acting Captain John Anderson, who in the absence of Captain Cleary, now at the Jamestown exposition, has charge of the station here. It was not Captain Anderson's understanding that an exhibition was to be given; at least no request had been made upon him that he turn out with his crew.

Market Had Big Day—The city market had one of the biggest days since it was opened on the Fourth, as nearly all the farmers came to town. The market stalls were filled all day and far into the night, and many applicants for room had to be turned away.

Mrs. Leslie Carter Tonight—The much heralded engagement of Mrs. Leslie Carter, the greatest emotional actress on the American stage, occurs at the opera house this evening, when she will appear in a stupendous production of "The Barretts of Bleby." There has been one previous engagement at the Marquette Opera House to compare with this one—that being the appearance of Richard Mansfield there in "Monsieur Beaucaire" a few seasons ago. There was a big demand for seats yesterday morning, and Mrs. Carter will be greeted by a good house.

Lost a Leg—Endeavoring to make his way across the track by climbing between the cars of South Shore freight train No. 24 at Shingleton yesterday noon, Kenneth McClellan, a lower Michigan man, aged about thirty-eight, fell under the wheels and sustained such serious injury to his leg below the knee that the limb was amputated here last evening at St. Mary's hospital. The train had stopped at Shingleton, and it was while it was pulling out of that station that McClellan met with the mishap. As soon as possible the man was brought to this city for surgical attention, and following the operation last night he was reported as resting easy. McClellan has been employed as a bark peeler at a wood camp of the Munising Tannery company.

Hail Did Damage—The hail that accompanied the rain storm Wednesday afternoon is reported by the farmers to have done considerable damage. Robert Blenbauer says that his tomato plants, which he had just set out, were beaten down, and that the strawberry plants were also damaged. The farmers in Sands township also had their crops somewhat injured. The hail was very heavy in some of the country districts. Out beyond Forestville it had not entirely melted away twenty-four hours after the storm, it fell in such large quantities.

4th of July Business Light—Men connected with the passenger department of the South Shore say that the railroad business in this county was rarely lighter on the Fourth of July than it was this year. Rival celebrations killed it off. There were special trains in this county, but few people traveled on them. The Marquette crowds remained at home, while the people of Negaunee and Ishpeming took in the Ishpeming celebration. The issue proved that the regular trains would have been amply sufficient to handle all the extra business between the towns.

WANT TO RETAIN HIM.

Rev. E. A. Elliott Has Now Been Four Years in Saginaw.

The friends of Rev. E. A. Elliott, formerly pastor of the Marquette M. E. church for a number of years, will be interested in the following, from the Saginaw Evening News:

"It has been known for some time that efforts were being put forth to induce the Rev. E. A. Elliott, the well known and popular pastor of Jefferson avenue M. E. church, to leave this city and take up another charge, but the reverend gentleman is likely now to stay for at least another conference year, this request having been made by his people in the shape of a formal resolution. This important business was transacted at a prolonged session of the local church conference, being what is termed the Third Quarterly, and attended by all members of the church in the city. There was an interesting discussion, and the church members could scarcely realize the fact that their pastor had been in Saginaw practically four years, the conference year ending in September. During that time he has achieved a standing in the community for which his sterling worth as a man is largely responsible. He is known as a man of pleasing personality, as a born leader, and a citizen who has been exceedingly useful in his field not only as a pastor but as an individual accepting his full work in the community.

"In this work, pastoral and otherwise, Rev. Mr. Elliott has had the graceful assistance at all times of his wife, a lady of superior attainments, and a woman who bears part of the reputation of being in every way a true, honest helpmeet to her husband in his labors. Together Mr. and Mrs. Elliott have accomplished a great work for their church, and they have also successfully remodeled the handsome parsonage attached until it is today one of the finest residences in the Detroit conference. All this work has been accomplished without unduly burdening the congregation, and at the same time the church itself has broadened and strengthened under the ministrations of Mr. Elliott, who has been termed by an admiring member of his flock a prophetic preacher. The growth of the church has been steady and uniform, and its power of spirituality has developed in keeping.

Incidentally the mortgage of the church property has been wiped out during Mr. Elliott's incumbency.

"During the approaching vacation time Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will go to Boston, where Mr. Elliott will take up a special course of lectures in the divinity school of Harvard university, the course being denominated, "Relation of the Ministry to Social Ethics."

"At Monday night's meeting the election of a delegate and alternate to the Detroit conference took place, the choice falling upon Mr. S. Johnson as delegate and C. C. Macomber as alternate. At the Detroit conference the delegates will be called upon to vote for the delegates to the general conference at Baltimore next May.

"Following is the resolution calling upon Mr. Elliott to remain in Saginaw:

"Whereas, the services of Rev. E. A. Elliott, both as pastor and preacher and in the general work and the uplifting of our church in this community have been so satisfactory and acceptable to our people, and

"Whereas, We believe that his retention as our pastor for a longer period will result in a still more efficacious work and advancement of the interests of our church, therefore,

"Resolved, That the board does hereby request of the next annual conference the return of Rev. Mr. Elliott as our pastor for the ensuing year, and that the presiding elder is urged to use his best efforts to bring about such result."

ADVERTISE

One day not long ago we asked twenty-two of our regular customers how they liked our ad in that morning's paper. Only four of them had seen it. That looked pretty bad. Next we sent a Western Union messenger all around Washington and Front streets; out of eighty-eight people seen fourteen had read it. Then we sent several messengers through our largest manufacturing plants, up through the old fourth and fifth wards, down back of the railroad shops, etc., etc., and we were glad to find that out of two hundred eighteen men approached, ninety-six had seen and read our advertisement. No matter how busy you are it might pay you to glance over the advertisements in the paper. There are some that do.

There was little news bearing on the movement beyond estimates of large gains in each of the week's ten days. The loan changes are problematical owing to the transactions in connection with the July 1st settlements. Money on call was sensibly easier today. Speculation was inclined evidently to assume the prospect of more abundant funds in the money market. The admission to the trading at the stock exchange of warrants for the new Atchison convertible bonds calls attention to the fact that $7,500,000 is payable as the first installment of the subscriptions to these bonds by July 16, in addition to the coming subscriptions for installment payments of the new Atchison convertible bonds and the Union Pacific preferred stock. These threatened offsets to the improvement of the week in the banking position were not taken much account of in active circles of the stock movement, although opinions based on them were heard in banking quarters of suspicion over the capacity of the money supplies to finance any considerable speculative movement in stocks.

The gains were reduced to some extent by the day's profit taking, but were not obliterated.

Paine, Webber & Co. telegraphed the following from New York yesterday:

"The stock market was steady today, with prices generally higher than Wednesday. Although the trading was not so large as earlier there was a noticeable absence of pressure. The small public interest in the market has discouraged the bears to a very great extent, as it reduces the probability of long stock being liquidated. There was not much news of importance, but the easier tone to the grain markets and the lower rates for call money encouraged commitments on the long side of stocks to a limited extent. Gold exports during July should not be considered unusual, as the same has occurred in four out of the last six years. A good bank statement is expected tomorrow, but the trading is likely to be within narrow ranges, in view of the holiday."

Wheat Summary.

Paine, Webber & Co. had the following advices on the wheat market yesterday:

"Wheat started off like a race horse this morning and sold up to 100% for September, 103 1/2 for December. This sell in the price followed a three days' previous advance. The fourth day of the bull market made the price look tempting to people who were long on it. Sales by holders began to appear the opening top prices and several million bushels were put on the market before the price was forced back in the session a report came from Altam, Ill., about bottom lands yielding thirty to thirty-five bushels per acre, and a report of better yields also came from

DEMAND BRITON'S RELEASE.

English Government Tells Moors Raisuli Must Set Free.

London, July 5.—The British government in a communication to the Moors government has demanded that prompt steps be taken to secure the release of Sir Harry Meunier, commander of the British body guard, who was captured by the bandit Raisuli, and is now being held pending the granting of the Moors terms of release.

DEATH OF CONNIE MCGREEHAN.

Hazleton, Pa., July 5.—Connie McGreehan, a former Holy Cross pitcher, died here yesterday of tuberculosis. Mc-

Geelan pitched for the Philadelphia American league team. His sister, Miss Margaret McGeehan, died two hours after his death from the same ailment.

GIRL BITTEN BY A LION.

Essie Fay, Milwaukee Animal Trainer, Rescued from Savage Beast.

Milwaukee, July 5.—Essie Fay, a Milwaukee girl, living on Blue Mound road, and an animal trainer of wide repute, had a narrow escape from a horrible death during a performance of "Big Otto's" wild animal show at Riverview Park, Chicago, and was only saved by the heroic efforts of "Big Otto" and several other trainers and keepers. Miss Fay, in addition to her performance with the leopards, appears in front of the stockade where the show is held and one of her duties is to place her hand in the mouth of a big African lion, named "Cesar." It was while performing this feat in the presence of more than 5,000 people that the brave little animal queen nearly lost her life.

Miss Fay entered the cage and "Cesar" at once made what the trainer thought was a playful bound at her, jamming her against the bars. She beat him off with her whip and the help of two assistants. The lecturer then descended to the crowd the great danger that Miss Fay assumed, and said that despite the ugly disposition of "Cesar" she would proceed with the performance. Satisfied that the jungle king had been subdued Miss Fay snapped the whip, which drove the lion to the center of the cage, and he roared and snarled as she and a thunderous roar from the lion.

"Cesar" had closed his jaws on the girl's head and with glaring eyes he turned to the corner of the cage, dragging the unconscious body of the girl toward him. "Big Otto" saw the danger and the case at the time, gave the danger signal and every employe and trainer of the show rallied to Miss Fay's rescue. "Big Otto" was the first to enter the cage. He was followed by others and amid the shrieks of the crowd, he emerged from the cage. "Cesar" was forced to release Miss Fay's head. Covered with blood from the wounds of the beast's teeth, Miss Fay was carried out of the ring unconscious by two attendants. "Cesar" was then put in a cage and the lion for the life of Miss Fay was being waged. It was one of the most exciting episodes in "Big Otto's" long association with animals, and he and his assistants were outside the enclosure, the sensation net was continued today. "Big Otto" taking Miss Fay's place in the performance. "Big Otto" as he is known in the circus world, when at home at his animal training camp on the Blue Mound road, is Otis Bretherton and he is a holder of the world's record for the height of a lion, eight feet eight inches, and his lack of fear of wild animals. "Big Otto" has been breaking and training lions, tigers and leopards for ten years, just back of Calumet, Ill. He is well known in Milwaukee because of the demand for his shows in New York and Chicago and with several of the big circuses.

OUTLOOK FOR THE FUTURE IMPROVES AS THE CROP DEVELOPMENT PROGRESSES.

New York, July 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Trade Review will tomorrow say: Despite the interruption of a holiday and the usual inventories and mid-summer stoppage of machinery for repairs, a vast amount of business was transacted during the past week, and the outlook improved still further. The activity has continued at most iron furnaces and steel plants except where repairs were imperative, and the tone of the leading markets is firm. The inventories at the steel mills show no surplus stocks, but the specifications are in excess of the capacity. Some mills making railway equipment report that orders are being over-taken because transportation companies have not been able to raise funds. This financial problem will probably postpone new work, but the extensions and improvements now under way will be completed.

The quiet conditions in the primary markets for cotton goods are more largely due to the indifference of manufacturers than the holiday season or stock-market. The woolen and cotton goods now well opened, but there is little activity outside of staple lines.

Bradstreet's Summary.

Continued favorable weather conditions have made for further crop development, expansion of retail light summer goods and a notable stimulation of the leather to lagging re-order business. One of the most favorable developments of the week has been the improvement noted in collections at many markets. The usual measures of business, such as the clearing and the demand for leather, are in better conditions. The future outlook as to prices of goods is now having the attention of manufacturers and wholesalers.

Holiday quiet rules in the shoe trade. Considerable more activity is reported at the leading markets, and all staple wools have sold well at Boston and at the leading interior markets. The iron continues quiet, and the prices are easier at some markets. Premiums for spot iron have practically disappeared. The new business in finished lines is not large, but the specifications are heavy. The demand for deliveries on old orders is so urgent that the annual summer shutdown of the mills will be short. While buyers of copper are still holding off in the hope of obtaining lower prices, the quotations are unchanged from last week, but some reports indicate that existing grades are weaker in price.

The wheat (including flour) exports this week were 2,669,000 bushels, against 1,745,000 bushels in this week last year. The corn exports were 1,461,000 bushels, against 692,000 bushels in the same week a year ago.

Bank Clearings.

The total bank clearings compiled by Bradstreet for the principal cities of the United States the past week were $2,768,673,000, against $2,861,720,000 of the corresponding week of last year.

ROAD TO BE COMPLETED.

John R. Walsh's Chicago Southern to Be Finished as Planned.

Chicago, July 5.—The managers of the Chicago Southern Railway syndicate, John R. Walsh, John N. Faithorn and Orville E. Babcock, announce that orders have been given to commence the completion of the road to Chicago July 8. It is expected by the syndicate that the road will be running trains into Chicago Oct. 1. The northern terminus of the road is now Chicago Heights, thirty-one miles from Chicago.

DEMAND BRITON'S RELEASE.

English Government Tells Moors Raisuli Must Set Free.

London, July 5.—The British government in a communication to the Moors government has demanded that prompt steps be taken to secure the release of Sir Harry Meunier, commander of the British body guard, who was captured by the bandit Raisuli, and is now being held pending the granting of the Moors terms of release.

DEATH OF CONNIE MCGREEHAN.

Hazleton, Pa., July 5.—Connie McGreehan, a former Holy Cross pitcher, died here yesterday of tuberculosis. Mc-

in the President's next annual message to congress and in stronger terms than he used last year. By the advocates of the bill the President's message last year was not considered sufficiently specific as to the kind of assistance needed to accomplish much in behalf of a cause in which he is really deeply interested. Care will be taken this year not to belabor the issue by mere generalities. During the summer the President will acquaint himself with the details of the most practicable legislation that can be enacted and he will probably recommend in detail the shipping law which he desires passed.

MANCHURIA NOT FOR THE JAPANESE.

UNCLE SAM NOT TO RELINQUISH THE SUPREMACY OF THE PACIFIC.

Washington, July 5.—Inauguration of a new naval policy which involves concentration in the Pacific is expected to cause determined opposition from industrial interests on the Atlantic coast; further it is fully anticipated that anti-imperialist opposition will become active and will be aimed against what will be distorted as a policy calculated at once to embroil us with Japan, and also to make the navy vastly larger and more expensive.

Notwithstanding these difficulties, as announced in these despatches, the policy has been determined, and as also predicted, was denied. The supremacy of the Pacific is not to be relinquished to Japan. America's interest in Oriental trade, possessions in the East, and its traditional policy of insistence on the open door to China will be sustained. This country remained quiet, although we had a treaty of friendship with that empire in which we practically agreed to use our influence to protect the integrity of the realm. Japan was allowed to work out her plans there, but there will be effort hereafter to prevent consummation of the same. Japanese policy as to Manchuria is a subject of great concern to the United States. Recent events indicate that the Japanese are determined to absorb Manchuria and to monopolize the trade of China. The United States is not prepared lightly to surrender its pretensions as a Pacific power, nor its position as the original defender of Chinese integrity. All the United States are committed to the policy of the open door.

Secretary Hay used to have a cheerful fashion of starting a note on the subject to the powers about once a year by way of getting renewals of assurances that the powers are committed to the policy of the open door. The chancellors never did it just what it meant, but it served its purpose, and ultimately came to have a real meaning.

It need be no surprise if very shortly Secretary Root starts a note on this same subject. It is time, in the opinion of some authorities on international relations, to feel out once more the sentiment of the powers on this subject, and a note addressed to them, following official announcement of America's purpose not to be overshadowed by any power in the Pacific, might be expected to receive distinguished consideration. The United States is especially well situated at present to renew its concern about that empire of the big indemnity which was owing to us. The claim of America to leadership, then, in behalf of China's preservation is stronger than ever before, based on traditional friendship, on recent substantial benefits, on our right to claim to recognize as a Pacific power and finally on the policy of maintaining a show of sufficient force to maintain that position.

The voice of China must soon be raised against Japanese absorption of that empire, or else be forever silenced. With an overwhelming naval force in the Pacific, the United States could make the joint protest of itself and China effective. The next friendly act of the United States to China will probably be a negotiation of a treaty by which Peking will require all Chinese subjects to be armed with passports on leaving the empire, and will refuse to grant passports to laborers desiring to go to the United States. China will adopt the policy in short of preventing her laborers going to the United States instead of leaving to the United States the burden of excluding them from this country. The result will be the relief of this country in main part from the administrative problem of enforcing an exclusion law, which seemed to have been the result of the humiliation of proscriptive as an excluded people.

NATIONAL FINE ARTS BUREAU.

Leading Architects of the Country Are Behind the Movement.

New York, July 5.—The development of art culture in the United States is forecast in a movement which has begun throughout the country for the establishment of a national department of fine arts, the head of which shall be a member of the cabinet. Plans for the national department of fine arts, which have just become public, include the establishment of an ethnological museum, which shall have control over a school of arts and a conservatory of music, and the erection of art galleries by the government in many cities throughout the country. Five leading colleges are behind the movement, which is being directed by several leading architects in the United States. Senator Newlands of Nevada, it is said, will likely bring up a bill for the establishment of a national art department at the next session of Congress, and those who are fostering the fine arts movement believe that the time is ripe for seeking congressional action.

The project contemplates that the national department of fine arts shall have complete control over art schools and galleries and the music conservatories. The project, which is being fostered by the leading cities of the United States, other art galleries would be built where painting and sculpture would be exhibited. The scheme for numerous art galleries follows the French system, which is directed by a department of fine arts, and the project is being fostered by the leading cities of the United States. It is planned that the national art school shall provide a complete course of instruction, so that students may not find it necessary to round out their education in Europe. The national conservatory of music, the plans of which are not fully developed, is designed to give a complete course in all branches of music to advanced scholars. The creation of a national orchestra is also proposed, which shall be sent on annual tours throughout the United States, giving concerts whose programs shall be made up of the great composers and explained by competent lecturers.

The committee intends to ask for an appropriation of $5,000,000 for the erection of a national art gallery.

FUN IN NEW DIRECTORY.

Many Oddities in Nomenclature Disclosed in Boston's Population.

Boston, Mass., July 5.—Perhaps the $3,692 former Bostonians who moved out of town during the canvass for the new city directory of 1907 departed on an account of Boston's bad streets; or perhaps they intend to ring in an Old Home week, and come back to be feted and given from banquets and elaborate "feels" on the city. At any rate, that number has gone. The total number of names in the new directory is 280,743. The publishers have erased 57,572 old names and added 64,990 new ones. There are 6,918 more names in this year's book than in that for 1906. The "Sims" are thriving; there are 2,468 of them now, but the Sullivans are pressing hard with 2,056.

Several of the annual oddities which one may discover and make jest of in looking through the 2,800 pages of the directory are these: While the Duke of Abruzzi has come and gone, he has left behind him six Abruzzese and one one Abruzzi. While in actual fact our old friends Buntth and Ruld of the old world have been separated by the passing of Ruld, in the directory Buntth has gone and Ruld remains. While there is Warr, with big Gums and little Gums, there also are Peace and Makepeace.

The old composers are represented by Mozart, Mendelssohn, Gluck (Isaac is a shoe laster), Rubinstein, Handel and Hadden, with the "e", and Wagner. There are for those who thirst eighteen Beers, but no ale; then there is Port and Porter, Hoek, Sherry and Stout, several brands of Champagne, and Cognac, with a M. J. or two to help out. There is no Rogers, but two are Jagzey, and there is one Jagwith, which is the German way of putting it anyway.

It is fitting that three restaurant keepers should be named Munch. There are more Days than Knights this year, the figures being 184 of the former and 29 of the latter. There are 81 Goods, three Biggys and no Busier in Boston. There are several Lemons, the B. & A. is suggested by 13 Delays, one Linger and any amounts of Waits, Waiters and Waites. There are more Brays than Brages. There is no Teddy Bear, but we have Louis.

Napoleon Bonaparte is now in the insurance business. Charles Dickens drives a wagon. John Paul Jones is in medicine. Henry W. Longfellow has a grocery store. Bobb Burns is a horseman, a junior, John Hancock is a baker, Cicero a laborer, and Keats has taken to clerking. Atlas did not get that bend in his shoulders by supporting the world on his back; he is a tailor. Omar has abandoned his trade for a clerk's stool; John Gilpin, famous as a horseman, is a tannery. The indictment clerk would better let John Doe alone after this. He actually exists in the person of a Boston salesman. The whole damn family now consists of Augustus, musician; Christy, painter; Peter, brewer; Jacob H. laborer; Frederick A. musician; Fritz G. musician; George G. electrician; H. William, shipper; Isabella, widow; Martin F. musician, and William F. musician.

There is a distinctly pious tone to the 1907 book. There are two Bibles, several Priests, many Pastors, and Sextons, Wardens and Pews enough to establish a hundred churches. There is only one Alderman and one Councilman; but with one Mayor besides our own John F., we need not need all. For Flowers there are Pinks, Roses, Primroses and Jilys; in the Woods the Trees are chief; Pine, Ash, Maple and Birch, Oak, Wood, Peat and Oak are there to Burn, and the man with a gun can find the Fox, the Lion, the Bear, the Wolfe, the Badger, Robin, Parrot, the Crow, the Redger, Swallows, Plover and Bulfinches, with passports on leaving the empire, and will refuse to grant passports to laborers desiring to go to the United States. China will adopt the policy in short of preventing her laborers going to the United States instead of leaving to the United States the burden of excluding them from this country. The result will be the relief of this country in main part from the administrative problem of enforcing an exclusion law, which seemed to have been the result of the humiliation of proscriptive as an excluded people.

UPPER PENINSULA BRIEFS.

Gladstone has 1,130 children of school age, one hundred more than a year ago. The Methodist congregation at Newberry is to build a parsonage for the pastor of the church. Bids are now being asked from contractors.

Max Schoeneman of the Soo has entered the ranks of the claimants to the fishing championship. His feat has been the capture of an eleven-pound lake trout with ordinary tackle.

C. O. Bridges of Manistiquie has gone to Sand Point, Idaho, where he will operate a camp for H. C. Culver, whose firm has decided to engage extensively in lumbering operations in addition to its old business. Mr. Bridges, who is an old and experienced foreman, receives $100 per month and board in his new position.

It is apparent that more valves should have been put in when the water system was installed at Manistiquie. Whenever the water commissioner makes a tap a number of householders are inconvenienced. The residents of three blocks were without water the greater portion of one day recently owing to the installation of the water service at one residence.

There was a free show Saturday and Monday evenings, which should really have been reserved as a Fourth of July attraction, says the Gladstone Delta. J. F. Johnston, a high-air construction specialist from Saginaw, painted the municipal flag pole with a new coat of aluminum paint, and put up a new half-yard block. Large crowds watched each piece of work, and while many thought he made his money easily, none volunteered to do the work. He also painted the cross on the Catholic church.

All manufacturers and mine owners contemplating doing any roof-work either gravel or felt, or repairing and coating the old metal or felt roofs, will do well to write to the Enamel Roof Paint and Roofing Co., 169 Denning St., Kenosha, Wis. They will be in the copper country this spring.

Northern Normal Notes.

Some time during next week the faculty will give a reception to the students attending the summer school.

Edward Brunton, of Indianapolis, Ind., arrived yesterday morning on a visit to his mother, Mrs. Frances Kelsey. He was accompanied by his grandmother, Mrs. Martin, who will remain here for a short visit.

Miss Bertha Winn, principal of one of the larger ward schools of Ironwood, has for the past two weeks been a guest of Miss H. Susan Bates, head of the kindergarten department. Miss Winn left last evening for her home in Kalamazoo.

Mrs. A. C. Yoder, of Goshen, Ind., was expected to arrive last evening on the Juniata, for a visit of several weeks with her sister, Mrs. J. B. Faught. Mrs. Yoder is accompanied by her husband, Dr. Yoder, who will remain for a few days only.

The enrollment of students this term has reached 381, and will probably be somewhat increased next week. Every summer a few students have entered during the third week. Some cannot come earlier, on account of school duties, and others remain at home until after the Fourth. The total enrollment last summer was 298. The gain this year has been the largest in the history of the school.

Yesterday morning at assembly hour Miss Spaulding gave a delightful account of some of her experiences during her recent sojourn in Italy. She told of the difficulties experienced by a traveler who finds herself in a town where she is unable to make any one person understand her needs. She described also her visit to Assisi, the home of St. Francis, with its beautiful churches and its many monuments to that most interesting figure in the early Renaissance movement.

During the first three days of the week we had the pleasure of listening to a series of addresses by Dr. Winship of Boston. Dr. Winship is the editor of the well known paper "The New England Journal of Education," and is a man of wide experience in teaching, writing and lecturing. Few lecturers appearing before the Normal school audience have succeeded in holding its attention so closely as did Dr. Winship. Every lecture was good, but the last

BIDS FOR WATER PIPE.

City of Ishpeiming Will Let a Big Contract.

The board of public works gives notice in this issue that bids are wanted for 14,500 feet, more or less, of 14-inch wood water pipe, also a number of castings and valves, for the water works system. The material is to be used to replace the pipe that passes through sections 9 and 16, where the surface is being undermined. The pipe will have to stand a pressure of 175 pounds to the square inch.

Bids are also wanted for the work, including the digging and filling of trenches, laying of pipe, etc. The distance to be covered will be nearly three miles, from the south end of Douglas street west to a point near the new piece of road constructed last spring, to Washington street, then to Division, to the intersection of Pine. The work of laying the pipe will be under the supervision of the board of public works, or its superintendent, and all work is to be completed on or before Oct. 1, this year. Proposals must be filed with the board on or before the 20th, inst. The successful bidder must furnish a bond of $5,000, as a guarantee that the work will be done according to contract and that the surface will be left in proper condition. The board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

CONTROL OF BAXTER.

Marquette County Men Have Majority Interest in Famous Mine.

Mayor Joseph H. Winter of Negaunee, and R. P. Bronson of Ishpeiming, have secured control of the Baxter mine, one of the biggest of the Wisconsin lead and zinc properties, and its management will pass to them next Monday. The Baxter comprises mine and mill, the eight-acre tract on which the property is located, and also the Carr eighty, adjoining on the east. The latter has been proved up with drills and found to contain a continuation of the Baxter ore deposit. It has one shaft down seventy-five feet, or within fifteen feet of the ore body.

Messrs Winter and Bronson organized a pool a week ago, and the deal has since been closed. Mr. Bronson said yesterday that there will be no stock for sale, nor will a new organization be perfected at this time.

The deal is one of the most important that has ever taken place in connection with a Wisconsin lead and zinc property. It will be a good thing for the Wisconsin people, particularly those interested in the territory near where the properties are located, as it will mean energetic prosecution of the mining work. Betterments will be made in the way of mining and milling machinery. A number of the successful mining men of the two cities are financially interested in the deal.

The Baxter will be operated on a larger scale than formerly, and the development of the Carr property will be started without delay. It is believed that the ore bodies on the latter will be found as large, with as high a percentage of mineral, as those of the Baxter. The Pine Tree, also under control of Ishpeiming and Negaunee men, is located near the Baxter and Carr, and it is believed that its ore bodies are also a continuation of the Baxter deposit.

DID A BIG BUSINESS.

Both the Grand and Majestic theatres did an unusually big business on the Fourth. Large crowds attended the evening performances, and the houses were well filled at all of the afternoon performances. Each gave four performances in the afternoon and seven in the evening, remaining open until nearly 12 o'clock. The Grand will change its program this afternoon, giving in moving pictures "The Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight," "House Furnishing Made Easy" and "The Stolen Bride." Harry Gluckstine of Milwaukee is now singing illustrated songs at the Grand and he will be heard tonight in "The Holy City." Miss Emily Collick will sing "Clover Blossoms."

BASKET PICNIC TODAY.

Court Widows' Friend, Ancient Order of Foresters, will conduct its annual basket picnic at Cleveland park today. The members of Court Pride and their families have been invited, and it is expected that the attendance will be large. Special street car service has been secured, and the first of the cars will leave at 10 o'clock. Trombly's orchestra will furnish music for dancing this evening.

ACCIDENTS ON THE FOURTH.

Boy Residing on Excelsior Street Shot in the Abdomen With Toy Pistol.

There were four or five minor accidents on the Fourth. One might have proved fatal had the parents of the victim delayed in getting him to the hospital. Adolore Nault, son of Senic Nault, residing on Excelsior street, was firing a toy pistol and one of the shots did not explode. While he was tampering with it, the charge exploded, passing through his clothing and flesh, the wad lodging in his intestines. It was removed and yesterday the boy was reported as feeling well. He is twelve years of age.

The two-year-old daughter of Con Murphy, assistant master mechanic of the Iron Mining company, fell while pushing her doll buggy and fractured her arm.

The seven-year-old son of Thomas Kirby, North Third street, had two fingers badly lacerated, as a result of a cracker exploding in his hand. Two or three others came to the hospital for repairs, but their injuries were not serious.

ATHLETIC CONTESTS.

List of Prizes for Events Pulled Off on the Fourth.

The prize winners in the several athletic events on the Fourth were as follows:

100-yard dash for boys—William Rose, first; Stephen Paul, second.
Flag race—Ishpeiming team, first; Negaunee team, second.

Wheelbarrow and frog race—Stephen Paul, first; John Small, Jr., second.
Sack race—John Martin, first; William Harris, second.
Greased pole—Richard Guy and Wilfred Cole, firsts; seconds, Len Moody, J. Martin, Ray Griffin and John Small, Jr.

Pie eating contest—J. Racine, first; Frank Greenfield, second.
Bun race—John Small, Jr., first; Raymond Griffin, second.
Tag of War—East End Lake Angeline team, first; Scandinavian team, second.
Greased pig—Stephen Grouse.
J. Racine, the lad who won the pie eating contest, had a broken arm in slung, but in spite of this he proved a "cracker-jack" at the business and he made a hit later in picking up pennies with his mouth from a dish filled with flour. In one mouthful the lad is said to have taken up fifteen pennies.

In the chase for the pig an Italian, dressed in his Sunday best, destroyed his clothes and boiled shirt, he furnishing much amusement for the spectators.

"DU BARRY" A GREAT DRAMA.

Title Role Played by Mrs. Carter in Most Convincing Style.

Ishpeiming theater-goers experienced a memorable treat last evening. Mrs. Leslie Carter flamed royally through Helasso's "Du Barry," and departing in the fatal car left her audience lushed for a moment before the final storm of applause.

The role of Du Barry is a long and trying one. To conduct it from the beginning of the play to its ending is an ordeal before which any actress might quail. The star works all through the performance, but she leaves with memory a tangible Du Barry. Mrs. Carter talks with the delightful elp of the French woman, and presents a fair picture of a charming type of the most delectable Parisienne. As Jeanette, the milliner, full of the exultation of youth and beauty; "the joy of living," she is bewitching. As the Du Barry who intoxicates Louis XV, she was obvious his to physical attractions and handsomely insolent as to manners. The woman depicted by Mrs. Carter is a wanton as a wanton. Mrs. Carter dresses her, and then compels the audience to recognize the good woman through all.

The tests made of it in the role, her control is wonderful.
Richard Thornton has kingly grace and ability sufficient to present an idealization of Louis, and George W. Howard as Cosse is highly satisfying. Hodgson Taylor, as the papal nuncio, gives a finished interpretation of his role. Frank Roberts, as Jean Du Barry, brother-in-law of the king's favorite, makes that rascal exceedingly true to life, a degenerate of a type that can be recognized as natural. The women of the company are effective.

"Du Barry" is splendidly mounted and faithfully presented as to the last detail. A drama entailing the presence on the stage of such characters as Marie Antoinette, Louis XV., Du Barry and other historical personages of one of the most interesting episodes in the history of Europe's most interesting nation, is bound to be rich in material. Handled by the master Belasco and interpreted as to its principal role by an artist, it is small wonder that the theatergoers flock to a performance of the play, which was the case here last evening.

FIRE WORKS DISPLAY.

The fireworks display the evening of the Fourth from the bluff north of Lake Hancock, was a good one, but an accident occurred shortly after the display was started. The big piece representing the volcanic eruption, which was to be reserved for the last, accidentally took fire. The piece was not in position for action, so only a portion of it was seen. All of the fuses for the ground display were turned bottom side up and did not go off, and portions of the main section did not burn. The man in charge of the work attempted to extinguish the fire, but without success. It was started by sparks falling from the Mosiac Rockette, which was the fourth number on the program. The display lasted for nearly two hours, during which a number of beautiful set pieces, including a mammoth American flag, were set off. Thousands of people watched the fireworks from the shores of the lake.

WANT BILLS AT ONCE.

The arrangement committee for the Fourth of July celebration want all bills presented at once to John S. Olson, treasurer. The committee wishes to wind up its business as soon as possible. Len Johnson, chairman of the parade committee, desires through The Mining Journal to acknowledge himself indebted to Arson Perrault, Thomas Sullivan, B. J. Goodman, Jr., Thomas Clancey, and others, for the very able assistance given him in working out the details for the parade features, as well as for aiding with the general work.

CELEBRATE HERE NEXT YEAR.

Sentiment in Favor of Demonstration in Negaunee is Strong.

The success of Ishpeming's celebration and the spirit manifested by the people of the city had much to do with creating a desire on the part of the leading citizens and business men of Negaunee for a celebration next year. It has already been practically decided that Negaunee will celebrate next year and it is hoped that both Marquette and Ishpeming will join in helping to make the affair a big success.

The Mining Journal can assure the Negaunee people that Ishpeming will not celebrate next year, and a number of those prominent in making this year's demonstration the big success it proved to be have already volunteered to aid Negaunee in preparing the plans and conducting the celebration next Fourth. Mayor Winter and E. C. Anthony, chairman of the board of public works, yesterday said that they were heartily in favor of a celebration and they expressed the opinion that preparations for it should be started early. They have already secured Braastad's locomotive, which made such a big hit in the Ishpeming parade, also the calliope, made by the Oliver Iron Mining company's machinists.

A Negaunee man said yesterday that he hoped the people of the three cities of the county would come to an understanding relative to future celebrations. He thought that Negaunee should celebrate next year, Marquette the year following, and Ishpeming the third year. He said he believed that this arrangement would be satisfactory to the Ishpeming people, and could see no reason why the Marquette business men should not fall in line. It is already certain that Negaunee's celebration next year will surpass any previously held here, as the aid of the Ishpeming men who have offered their services will be accepted.

Mayor Winter yesterday suggested the idea of conducting a homecoming celebration in connection with the Fourth of July demonstration. This feature has never been tried in this county, but it has proved a big success in many of the larger cities, as well as some of the smaller cities, during the past few years. The mayor's idea is to make a canvass to every family in the city to ascertain the names and addresses of relatives and friends residing at other points. This information will be gathered six or eight weeks in advance of the celebration. Letters giving an idea of what is to be expected will then be sent to every person on the list and an extra effort should be made to secure the best possible railroad rates from points where former residents are located, as an inducement to get them to return. It is believed that this feature would be a winner and would result in bringing together a greater number of former Negauneeites than have ever before assembled here.

ITALIAN PICNIC.

Society Had an Excellent Turnout Yesterday Morning—Big Crowd at Grove.

The Italian society of Negaunee was fortunate in having an ideal day for its second annual picnic at Cleveland Park. A large percentage of the members participated in the parade and spent the day at the park. There were over 300 men in line, the procession moving through the principal business and residence streets before the members took the street cars for the grove. It was headed by the Negaunee City band. At the park the Negaunee society was joined by many of the members of the Ishpeming Italian society, who had a special invitation to be present.

The Negaunee society is one of the strongest Italian organizations in the upper peninsula, and its membership is growing rapidly. The picnic yesterday was the largest gathering of Italians ever held in Marquette county. The band rendered a program of overtures during the afternoon and early in the evening, and there was dancing all evening and part of the afternoon. Meals and refreshments were served on the grounds.

As there was little work at the mines in either city many aside from the members of the society and their relatives attended the picnic.

PRESENTED WITH CANE.

Hon. E. C. Anthony was recently presented with a gold-headed cane by Charles H. Towne post of the Grand Army, composed of Ishpeming and Negaunee war veterans. Mr. Anthony is a member of Albert Jackson post of Marquette, but he has always shown just as much interest in Charles H. Towne post as he has in his own post, and has many times aided its members. The committee presenting the token told Mr. Anthony that the members of the post most highly appreciated the valuable help he has from time to time given them. The committee was composed of Captain James Scott and John Welsh of Ishpeming, and Peter Trudell of this city. Mr. Anthony highly appreciates the gift.

TURNOUT WAS LARGE.

Thousands of Negaunee People Attended Celebration at Ishpeming.

Negaunee people who attended the celebration at Ishpeming the Fourth were much pleased with the entertainment provided, particularly the parade and balloon ascension. It is said that 90 per cent of the Negaunee people who spent the Fourth out of town were at Ishpeming. At times during the morning it was thought that the street car system would not be able to handle all who desired to go to the Hemetite city, but the service was excellent. Cars left this city on a ten and twenty minute schedule for nearly three hours before the parade started. None of the extra cars were run further than the Iron street crossing in Ishpeming, but the regulars made the trip to both terminals. At times during the morning, particularly between 9 and 10 o'clock, there were hundreds on the streets waiting for the cars. Both of the South Shore trains leaving here before 9 o'clock were also crowded. The street car service was excellent, there being no mishap of any kind during the day. Each of the new cars had a trailer attached to it.

The Negaunee people were delighted with the parade, many here having yesterday declared that it was by far the finest they had ever seen anywhere. It was evident that a great deal of work was done in advance. Some of the floats were costly and represented many days of hard labor.

The members of the Negaunee council and other officials in decorated carriages made an excellent appearance. As the parade came to Main street the members of the councils were taken from the carriages and given places on the grand stand, from which point they reviewed the entire procession. Both councils were the guests of the arrangement committee. Negaunee's automobile representation in the parade was excellent, much time and labor being spent in decorating the machines. The one driven by Al Maitland, which captured first prize, was a beauty, having been entirely covered with natural flowers. On the rear of the auto the flowers were arranged in the shape of a flag, red, white and blue being the colors used. A large number of ladies worked from daylight until just before the time for the parade to start on the decorations. The entire auto was covered with canvas and each flower was pinned on separately.

ONE MORE ACCIDENT.

Negaunee had three accidents from fire crackers, including the two boys mentioned in yesterday's issue of The Mining Journal. Dave Grant, a well known resident of the city, had his right hand badly shattered the evening of the Fourth. He and others were setting off cannon crackers on one of the residence streets. A cracker was thrown in to the street and it appeared to have missed fire. After waiting a short time Grant picked it up, it exploding in his hand.

MILL PLANS RECEIVED.

Plans and specifications for the mill to be erected at the Vandeventer Lead & Zinc property at Cuba City, Wis., were received yesterday. They were prepared by A. W. Grannis of the Joplin Mill company, and call for a fifty-ton concentrator. A meeting of the board of directors will be held soon, when the plans will doubtless be approved and the order placed. The management will ask Mr. Grannis to rush the work as speedily as possible, and it is hoped to get the mill in operation within eighty or ninety days.

Leon Freshaire, one of the civil engineers of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, was taken seriously ill Wednesday, and will be confined to his home for some days.

Michael Navins was one of the quartet of rules capturing the prizes in the parade on the Fourth. His name should have been mentioned in place of Austin Goodman.

Tom Hooper, who has been in Chicago and Cincinnati for the past few years, has arrived in Ishpeming from the latter place, and will likely remain permanently.

The golf tea this afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock will be served by Mrs. E. R. Nelson and Mrs. George E. Ruez. There will be dancing in the evening from 8 to 11 o'clock.

Judge and Mrs. E. A. Burlingame and Mrs. William P. Belden and family of Ishpeming, Mich., have taken Dr. A. S. Luton's house on the corner of Wealthy and Morris avenues for several weeks. Mr. Belden is spending a few days here with them.—Grand Rapids Herald.

The services at the Evangelical church tomorrow will be at 10:30 a. m.; Sunday School at 3, and evening at 7:30. The week day services will be: Young People's society Wednesday at 8 o'clock; regular services Thursday evening at 7:30, and choir rehearsal Friday evening.

ning. Rev. Samuel Hogander, the assistant pastor, will conduct the services tomorrow.

C. T. Hampton and family came over from Iron Mountain to spend the Fourth, remaining over to take in the production of "Du Barry" by Mrs. Leslie-Carter and her company. Mr. Hampton says the parade was the finest that he has seen in the upper peninsula, and that it compared favorably with the best he had ever seen in the larger cities.

The employees of the Chicago & North-western railway company, who are preparing the foundation for a spur between Pine and Lake streets, were rather reckless in their blasting of boulders yesterday. Some of the rocks and timber were sent hurtling through the air for a distance of 200 or 300 feet, until finally the officers requested them to reduce the charge.

Joseph Bettors will give $10 to any one informing him of the party guilty of calling him out of bed at midnight recently, advising him that his brother had been seriously injured on a railroad. Mr. Bettors spent the greater part of the night trying to get information concerning his brother, finally discovering that some one had fooled him. The alleged fake did not appeal to Mr. Bettors, who has had trouble enough, having lost his mother and father during the past few months.

FROM HOPKINS' CURB LETTER.

"Lawson's frenzied ads appearing in this morning's papers seem to be having a good effect in the market, or at least are not operating against prices. Coppers showed a substantial gain over Wednesday's closing, and the trade has been excellent. The strength in Green-Can area is accompanied by reports of an early quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share or at the rate of $1.20 per annum. Such action is generally expected and earnings are such that they would have no trouble in maintaining the above rate. Superior & Pittsburg has been the strong feature among the unlisted coppers, selling up to 1 1/4 this forenoon."

NAVAL OFFICERS TO HELP SECRETARY METCALF ASK THEIR CO-OPERATION.

Requests Suggestions Which Will Tend to Promote Efficiency in the Service—Those Should Relate to Things and Methods; Criticisms of Persons Not Desired—Many Knotty Problems Pressing for Solution—Army and Navy Both Strong in Team Work—Navy Topheavy With Age—A Reply to Recent Criticism of Battleships.

Washington, July 5.—"The necessity for mutual effort toward improvement being greater than ever before, the department invites officers to submit suggestions which in their judgment would tend to promote the efficiency of the naval service. The suggestions should be concerning things or methods and not a criticism of persons, and should in all cases be accompanied by a well-digested scheme for improvement."

Such is the language of a general order issued by the secretary of the navy. Officers throughout the service will do well to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest the same. At no time in the history of the navy has the necessity been greater for absolute co-operation among the commissioned personnel. For at no time in the past have more or knottier questions pressed for solution. The country has done well by the navy during the last six years. Throughout his first term President Roosevelt emphasized the paramount necessity of upbuilding the navy until the right arm of the nation's defense should prove adequate to meet the needs of the world power which the United States became after the war with Spain. The result is that the country possesses the nucleus of an adequate navy today. Ship for ship, the American navy compares favorably with those of foreign powers. It is misleading to talk about the tonnage of our navy as compared with that of Great Britain, France, Germany or Japan. It is efficiency, not tonnage, that counts. And there is no more potent factor in the efficiency of a great organization like the navy than good teamwork.

At no period in its history has the army been more united, and the result is a high state of efficiency. For in excess of past records. An example of this was during the last session of congress, when the entire army line and staff, engineers, artillery, cavalry and infantry pay department, medical department, inspector's department and the office of the military secretary turned out to work hard for the reorganization of the artillery. Congress was impressed with the undivided request because of the recommendations of this score. What was the result? Congress enacted a law, reorganizing the artillery, separating the field and coast and increasing the latter by some five thousand officers and men.

Many Reforms Needed. Equally urgent reforms in the administration of the navy are needed today. For example the navy is top-heavy with age and at the next session of congress a bill will be introduced with an excellent prospect of becoming a law. The effect of which will enable our officers to attain command rank in the prime of life thus giving them an opportunity to become efficient in the duties of the command grades. Congress has been far too indifferent to the necessary upbuilding of the navy and it will require not only the urgent recommendation of the president but the united effort of the navy, line and staff, to obtain this legislation.

At the last session of congress the construction of two new battleships was authorized and for the first time their tonnage displacement was not limited. For the first time their designs were passed upon by a specially appointed board of design at whose head was the assistant secretary of the navy and the chief of the staff. Three of them being members of the general board. In addition, the plans submitted for these two new ships, each of which were to have twenty thousand tons of displacement, were thoroughly studied and subsequently approved by the board of construction, a board which has been in existence for many years, whose personnel in the past has consisted of the chiefs of the bureaus of ordnance, steam engineering and equipment—all sea-going officers—and the chief of the bureau of construction and repair, who is the chief constructor of the navy and the head of the construction corps.

The construction corps of the navy, incidentally, is a specially selected corps made up of men who are the best of the army, of the men who stand among the first in their respective classes, graduated at Annapolis. The board of construction today commands additional respect, wields additional influence and possesses additional strength by reason of a recent order of the president assigning as its head the officer generally recognized throughout the service as the ablest, all-round officer, the most brilliant mind and the most versatile man in the navy today. A note taken in the service would undoubtedly result in according by large majority these distinctions, one and all, to Rear Admiral George A. Converse, whom the president assigned several months ago as president of the board of construction. Admiral Converse retired for age a year ago, after having served successively as chief of the bureaus of ordnance, of equipment and of navigation, having remained as chief of the last named bureau one year after his retirement for age, the first time in the history of the service when a retired officer has been so honored. It was not for the purpose of honoring Admiral Converse that the president broke this precedent, but because the navy was in need of the admiral's services.

Avalanche of Criticism.

It is of interest to bear in mind the personnel of the board of construction at the present time in order to rate at its proper value the avalanche of criticism which a group of officers in Washington has precipitated during the last few weeks upon the construction corps of the navy, the chief constructor, the naval constructor, whose distinction it is to design the plans for the new battleship which were accepted in preference to all other plans submitted by the board of construction, with Admiral Converse at its head, and the secretary of the navy. The president has thus far escaped arraignment at the hands of these aggressive critics. But he may be the object of a vitriolic attack before long from this same source unless he carries out in detail the plans of the critics. He may be severely criticized for having Mr. Metcalf in his cabinet; for assigning Admiral Converse to the board of construction; for reappointing Rear Admiral

OPPORTUNITY STILL KNOCKS. PLENTY OF CHANCES FOR BRIGHT YOUNG MEN.

Taft's Class Peered Into the Future with Some Doubt; but He, at Least, Has Shown What Can Be Done—He Sees Far Greater Progress in the Last Generation Than in the One Preceding It—Expects Further Advance in the Next Decade—He Believes Journalism Offers a Promising Career—Both He and Fairbanks Have Done Some Newspaper Work.

Washington, July 5.—When the class of which William Howard Taft was a member graduated at Yale in 1878 there was a serious doubt in the minds of his classmates as to whether they had not come to manhood at a time when their active lives would cover a period much less interesting, and offering much less opportunity for individual distinction and success than the thirty years preceding. Doubtless there is such a doubt in the minds of many college graduates who, at this time of the year, are starting out from the sheltering arm of their Alma Mater to their final work—the world. To these it will be encouraging to know that one member of the class of '78 at Yale has lived to see the error of his belief that with the passing of the Civil war and its resultant period of activity, "everything would then come down to a dead level of life, and that a humdrum existence with small results would be the fate" of those who graduated a generation ago.

In discussing this possible view the other day with some college graduates, Secretary Taft pointed out how far wrong he and his classmates were in their sizing up of the period ahead of them. "As we look now," he said, "upon the generation which has passed, we see far greater progress than any that had taken place in the previous generation. Indeed, the last decade has been one of such territorial and national expansion that no one in his wildest imagination could have anticipated it when my classmates and I were looking out eagerly to know how the world would treat us, and whether we could justify our world-wide travels. It has been taken to give us an adequate education. It was because he remembered the unnecessary discouragement at the seemingly uninteresting period ahead of them that Secretary Taft took occasion not long ago to call the attention of a group of college graduates to the generation which lies before, and to point out the professional and business opportunities that will be open to them as individuals.

Real, Substantial Progress. Although a professional man, Mr. Taft first took up the business situation. He believes that it is impossible to expect that the enormous growth in trade will continue in the next generation which it has expanded during the last ten years. "I believe," he said, "it is reasonable to suppose that within the next decade there will be some reaction, some financial stringency, perhaps a financial panic, but I believe the progress that has been made is real and substantial. There may be a halt; there may be a scaling of values, these we have had from time to time, followed by a recovery which indicated only a momentary lapse. It is true that the conditions of business have changed very materially, and that the combination of instrumentalities for the reduction in the cost of producing and selling things has never been equaled in the history of the world, and the opportunity for individual, independent effort in business does not seem so great now as it was a few years ago. Statistics show a vast number of mercantile and manufacturing firms, independent of combinations, indicating that we are not all one individual effort. That is the great desideratum in all business enterprises, large or small is the men who carry them to success."

It is the conviction of this man, who has had much to do in handling men, that "successful business, whether governmental or otherwise, is done on a large, dependable chiefly on the character of the men by whom this business is to be done, and that the promotion which men secure is not that which comes by favor, but by the logic of the circumstances and for the benefit of the enterprise; that there is today as much room for fit men as there ever was and that the kind of success that comes from intelligent fidelity and industry in the cause to which a man devotes himself, and the work which he does, speaks far louder to the general public than all the good will of his employer or

"An Error in Strategy" "It is difficult to explain, with any credit to the authors, the reason or advantage of the sensational disclosures regarding six United States battleships published in the daily papers and credited to the navy, the monthly organ of the navy, the president of the two is General Horatio Porter and the two honorary members of which are the President of the United States and the Secretary of the Navy, the special sponsor of the magazine being the admiral of the navy. The statements made are partly true and partly exaggerated, and in any event, dealt with a type of vessel designed some fifteen years ago and comparing most favorably with anything of the class of that period. "That, however, is not the question which must impress conservative naval officers. The assertions were such as might have been eagerly printed by the editors of the sensational journals, and it is amazing to find them in the pages of periodical which claims semi-official sanction and where the publication may be counted upon to exert an influence upon public sentiment most detrimental to the service. A contrasting situation was afforded by Secretary Metcalf during the last session of congress when he favored secrecy and suppression of news, lest such publicity would injure the chances of obtaining appropriations for the navy. The present parade of ancient history must be nothing short of an embarrassment to the department and its head, since it furnishes to congressional opponents of the navy and other critics of the service the information which aids them in arguing that too much money is devoted to naval uses and that the expenditure of public funds for ships of war is worse than folly.

"The purpose of the article in the navy is evidently to find fault with Mr. Metcalf and to put into operation the machinery of reform conceived by his predecessor. If this circulation of antiquated service gossip is a part of the tactics of the clique which is seeking to galvanize the naval general board into a useless naval general staff, a grave mistake has been committed in the initial strategy. Such proceedings, invite disaster to the service and are certain to block legislation of all kinds, whether it contemplates the allotment of public funds for the construction of ships or the remedy of the defects in the personnel laws or the increase of service pay."

LONG LIVE THE KING!

Is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the cry of the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery, King of Throat and Lung Remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Ryder Paine, Turro, Mass., says: "It never fails to give immediate relief and to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throat after all other remedies have failed; and for coughs and colds it's the best remedy known. THE INFLUENCE THAT KIND FRIENDS MAY SEEK TO BRING TO BEAR IN HIS BEHALF.

In discussing the professions Secretary Taft took occasion to make a plea for the entry of the college man into journalism. "The increase in the intelligence and discrimination of the people," he said, "has in one way very largely modified the power of the press. Editorial writers have by no means such influence as they had in days gone by. The newspapers are taken more for the news than for advice as to the lessons which should be drawn from it. People make most allowance now for the bias of a paper than they ever did before. The reputation of a paper for accuracy and veracity is generally as well known as the reputation of a member of the community. It is impossible to suppose that the amount of matter in the most common newspaper furnished for one, two or five cents is likely to increase in the future. The business of furnishing news to people is a business like the business of furnishing entertainment from the stage, and an editor is unable to understand the currents of the mind of the reading public except as he may study the columns, the subjects and the methods of treating them that he finds in the modern successful newspaper. Very few newspaper proprietors have such a patience to enable them to make their own newspaper that which they think a newspaper ought to be; and while the editor occupies the position of an instructor of public taste, and ought to exercise the functions as such with more care than he usually does, the limitations that they are upon him by reason of the public demand of those of us who would criticize the press know little of it.

"Certainly journalism is a profession in which men of discriminating intelligence and courage, of accurate judgment, of a love of truth and real patriotism, can find a sphere of usefulness not excelled in any other; and if the standards of truth, of taste, of refinement and of moral tone set by some of the best of the newspapers shall not improve in the next generation, they will vindicate pessimists of today. In the change which has taken place in the increased importance in the statement of news, the influence of the college-bred journalist must continue to be of the greatest weight. It needs a trained mind, a judicial temperament, quick perceptions and a high standard of integrity and self-respect, together with a nice and graphic literary touch, to make a group of college graduates of the newspaper, which is in many respects one of its most influential parts, what it should be. It is a field well worth the ambition of any man to succeed in. It has many temptations. It has rewards which may be permanent and solid, or, as the case may be, meretricious and temporary."

Candidates in Newspaper Work. It is an interesting fact that two of the presidential candidates now in the field have at one time in their lives done newspaper work. Vice President Fairbanks was a correspondent of the Associated Press at Pittsburgh for a short time, and Secretary Taft, soon after he left college, was for a time court reporter for one of the Cincinnati papers. Most of the presidential candidates will probably do so in the future. Secretary Taft has accepted an invitation of long standing to make an address that day at Mount-ville, West Virginia. Vice President Fairbanks will speak in Minnesota, Senator Balliet in Iowa, and it is understood that Senator Cramer has an engagement for the Fourth in Pennsylvania.

DRUNK TERRORIZES WITH SNAKE.

Makes Los Angeles Women Scream, Men Show Retiring Disposition. Los Angeles, July 5.—Drunk, dressed up and flourishing in one hand a serpent four and one-half feet long, Lew Caspar, who thought he was a loose circus, yesterday afternoon, "in a whole circus," asserted Caspar, pausing in pursuit of a frantic crowd. "Put that snake up," ordered Policeman Lewis, "this is no place for snake shows." "It's my snake, and it's nobody's business to butt in," mumbled Caspar, fobbing the reptile and stuffing it, his forked tongue and all into his coat pocket. Spectators who few minutes before when suddenly snatched with shrieks and screams, were wrapped around their necks with tongue close to their faces, breathed freely when they saw the stray "circus" rattle away in the patrol.

Caspar was charged with being drunk and causing a disturbance. On his slink, evidence is marked "one snake." The jailer and assistants were in a quandary over searching him. All declined the job. They feared a jail break, if they placed the prisoner ad serpent in the cell, where a weird acquaintance with snakes is more or less common to prisoners. They roused Caspar from slumber, and he placed the serpent in a basket. The serpent, known as a "king" is harmless except when angry, but with the same cunning as a rattlesnake, he found it a day or two ago in the mountains. Last night a policeman discovered a serpent of the same variety caged in a Market street commission house. The reptile prisoner was relieved of the count of jail life by being caged with the other one.

BETTER CUSTOMS SERVICE. Secretary Cortvelou to Issue a New Set of Regulations.

Washington, July 5.—Secretary of the Treasury Cortvelou has learned a great deal about the complicated machinery for the collection of customs duties, and he thinks he sees opportunities for improvement in several directions. Within a few weeks a new set of customs regulations will be issued, the revised rules being intended to bring the service thoroughly up to date.

"Make the customs service less unpopular" is one of the policies of Secretary Cortvelou, and this consideration is given no little weight in the revision of the regulations now going on, and especially in the baggage regulations. It means to be used for accomplishing this end, Secretary Cortvelou is trying to make the force of customs employes at New York so thoroughly disciplined a body of men as to be semi-military in character. Care-taking methods in administering the customs are not to be tolerated under Mr. Cortvelou, and while the secretary insists that the government shall collect from importers every honest dollar which is its due, he does not believe in the collection of every technicality of law or regulation in the case of the well-intentioned citizen returning from travels abroad who may have a few articles of foreign manufacture in his trunk intended for his own use. The new rules about to be promulgated have been in preparation almost ever since Mr. Cortvelou's induction into office last March, some of the ablest experts in the customs service being engaged in the work.

The regulations governing the character of merchandise which an American traveler may bring into the United States as baggage without payment of duty have already been broadened so that little remains to be done in that direction. The law allows the free entry of $100 worth of personal effects, and according to the latest treasury regulations the customs officers are not particular as to what sort of articles are included in such effects. It is conceivable that a man might bring in $100 worth of gloves or any other single article if he was a reputable citizen and there was no suspicion that they were for sale. Although Secretary Cortvelou does not see much room for radical improvement in the personal baggage regulations he will see to it that these rules are enforced with the least possible friction and with the greatest consideration for the traveling public. So far as possible matters will be so systematized at the custom house and on the docks that the various delays which have heretofore been an exasperation to returning American travelers will be done away with.

Every officer of the customs service who comes in contact with passengers landing from steamships at New York will be required to wear a uniform, and it is likely that there will in the near future be some change in the uniform prescribed for customs inspectors and others. Officers will be required to present a neat appearance on all occasions and courtesy will be required invariably, even under trying conditions. These requirements are not new, but they have not always been effective, and Secretary Cortvelou is determined to bring the force of customs employes up to a high state of efficiency in these regards. Among the improvements proposed for the near future is a uniform badge for all customs employes on the docks. A design has been submitted to Secretary Cortvelou and approved by him and the new badge will soon be ready. It will be of gilt and consist of a shield surmounted by an eagle with wings spread. Above the eagle and the shield will appear the words "U. S. Customs" and across the bars of the shield will appear in raised letters the word "Inspector" or "Examiner" as the case may be.

BLIND SINCE EARLY YOUTH.

Gore Named for the Senate by the Democrats of Oklahoma. Washington, July 5.—Totally blind since his early youth, yet able to discern the political situation and to win the Democratic nomination for United States senator in the recent Oklahoma primaries, R. Gore of Lawton, looked upon as one of the most remarkable men in the southwest. Gore was opposed for the nomination by two men of wealth, each of whom spent a small fortune in advertising and organization work. Pitman of Enid, a constitutional delegate, who was re-elected to the same household with Gore back in old Mississippi, says of his lifelong friend: "In the fall of '87, when we were sixteen, a normal school was opened up at Waltham, where he then lived. I entered the school and boarded at his home. For three years we studied the same books, recited the same lessons, debated the same subjects, played the same pranks and courted the same girls. I read for him during the three years. His father tried to induce him to attend the institute for the blind, but he declined to do so, preferring to take his chances with the rest of us, and he always stood in the forefront of our classes. Whatever success Gore has had as a speaker has been due to close application and unceasing effort. Every Monday night for three years we debated as regularly as we recited mathematics.

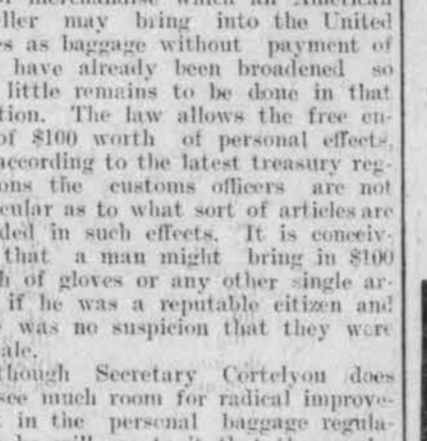

"Each spring our debating club was converted into a United States senate and was conducted according to the rules of that body. Here we studied parliamentary usage and practiced impromptu debating. The debate were sometimes filled with fire and fury and senatorial dignity was sometimes rudely shocked. On one occasion a speech of Gore's precipitated a discussion of parliament, a month or two after entering school we found an old copy of the daily Congressional Record which contained a list of the senators. We learned their names and Gore has kept up with every change in the makeup of the United States senate since that time. From crossbow, at last he has aspired to the United States senate."

Gore lost the sight of one eye when eight years old. It was accidentally struck out by a playmate with a stick. At the age of eleven he lost his right eye by an arrow from a crossbow. At that time he was page in the state senate of Mississippi and boarding at the home of Senator George. Listening to the debates in the legislature, and his association with the United States senators inspired in him a love of oratory which is the secret of his remarkable success. A remarkable fact is that Gore completed every branch of mathematics and including spherical geometry, and never in his course did he put down a figure or place a demonstration on the board. Gore taught school from 1890 to 1891 and his inability did not prevent him from making a success. In the latter year he was nominated in his county for the legislature, but was compelled to retire from the race, not being of legal age. He obtained his majority a short time before Cleveland's last nomination and took the stump against him. After Cleveland's election Gore became a Populist and sat as delegate from Texas in the National Populist convention at St. Louis in 1896. In 1896 he was nominated by the people's party for congress from the sixth district of Texas. He was defeated by a Democrat. Gore transferred his allegiance to the Democratic party in 1896. A year later he campaigned for the state of South Dakota in behalf of Mr. Bryan, and in 1904 he was called in service by the national committee and spoke in the states of Illinois, Ohio and New York and campaigned a large part of Indiana in company with Mr. Bryan. Gore came to Oklahoma in 1901 and lectured at Lawton. During his career he has held 140 joint discussions and he has debated with more than fifty different speakers, including several governors, attorney generals, congressmen and United States senators.

HUDSON TERCENTENNIAL. Plans and Program Arranged for New York Celebration. New York, July 5.—Plans and a tentative program for the Hudson-Fulton celebration were submitted at a meeting of the board of trustees of the commission in charge of the affair today. The celebration, which will mark the three hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson river by Hendrick Hudson and the one hundredth anniversary of the invention of the steamboat by Robert Fulton, is to take place Sept. 19 to 25, 1909. Giving up Saturday and Sunday to religious services in the churches, Monday will be observed as a reception day. After the American and foreign naval vessels have assembled in the river, the "Half Moon" will enter the Hudson and be formally received, and the "Clermont" will start from her original ship as she did a hundred years ago. It has been recommended that the dedication of the Fulton Memorial Water gate in Riverside park take place on that day. Tuesday will be historical day, when exercises will be held in all the universities and institutions of learning throughout the state. Wednesday will be given over to an immense land parade to be participated in by the army, navy, marine corps, National Guard and naval militia, as well as numerous civic organizations, with labor and manufacturing floats. Friday is to be Hudson River day. Two naval parades will start from New York and Albany, meeting at Newburg, where exercises will be held. Saturday being illumination day, will be given over to children's festivals in the afternoon. In the evening almost the entire river will be illuminated. THE CHARMING WOMAN. It is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires: meanness, clear eyes, a clean smooth skin and that springiness of step and action that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. BIG FLEET FOR PACIFIC.

THIS THE ULTIMATE PLAN OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Greater Strength Lies in the Policy of Concentration—Will Be No Haste in the New Manoeuvre in Effort to Avoid Offense to the Japanese.

Washington, July 5.—Concentration of battleship strength in the Pacific is the settled but unannounced policy of the United States. It has been settled recently by international events over which this country had no control; it will be executed as soon as the conditions required will permit; it will never be formally announced save in the sailing of sixteen battleships from the Atlantic on a "visit to the Pacific seaboard."

Since the war with Spain the paramount object of American naval policy has been the assembling in the Atlantic of a fleet of sixteen battleships. Germany has been the power until now with which trouble seems most likely. Our experience with the German admiral at Manila at the outbreak of the Spanish war did not leave a pleasant taste in the American mouth, and the bombardment of Venezuelan ports by German men-of-war some five years ago was "deplored" by American public opinion. It was then that Emperor William realized the immediate necessity of strengthening friendly relations between Germany and the United States, and he sent as ambassador at Washington a long-time personal friend of President Roosevelt.

Soon there followed an announcement by the new emperor, Baron von Sternberg, that his country recognized the Monroe doctrine, and that German immigration to South America was not to be regarded as hostile to its tenets. To this President Roosevelt replied that the United States would welcome the introduction into South America of so stable a population as the German colonists had shown themselves to be.

Relations with Germany have been on the upswing ever since, and Berlin and Washington stand shoulder to shoulder in arranging the Portsmouth peace conference. Recently a tariff war with Germany has been averted and today our relations with Germany are certainly as cordial as with any European power. Friendship between the new countries has been strengthened by the realization of the European powers in the effort to isolate Germany, leaving that country and the United States outside of their alliances. Preparation for war with Germany is no longer a necessity of the immediate future. The probable theater of activity has been transferred from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Until the Panama canal is completed American naval policy will tend toward the concentration in the Pacific of a fleet adequate to the protection of our interests in that section of the world.

Two obstacles toward the transfer of our base from the Atlantic to Honolulu are presented: (1) Danger of offending Japan, and (2) inadequate facilities for the docking and repair of battleships on the Pacific.

It was both of these which caused President Roosevelt, last winter, to veto the proposition to send the fleet immediately to the Pacific. There is no desire to offend Japan or any other Eastern power, and it is hoped that our relations with Japan will have substantially improved in a year's time to permit the department of our battleships for the Pacific without causing offense to the Japanese. But that fact alone will not be allowed to stand in the way of the execution of a policy which has been carefully framed and which is believed to serve the best interests of this country.

It is the lack of docking and repair facilities on the Pacific which also delays the sending of our fleet there. At the present time one dock at Puget Sound is practically our only reliance. There is a dock at Mare Island, but it has yet to be christened, and there is a private dock at San Francisco, but its rental is high. To wait until Congress can be persuaded to the necessity of applying this need is to wait a long time. Congress is slow to realize a necessity until its existence is demonstrated. The plan is to devote a greater part of the next twelve months to the thorough overhauling and repair of our battleships, that they may be in condition to make the long cruise around the Horn, and require comparatively little repairs for the next few years. It will require considerably more than 100,000 tons of coal to get the fleet around, and this will be hard to get.

That a squadron of battleships be despatched to the Pacific at this time is looked upon as a suggestion too guerlike to be seriously considered. The supreme lesson of the Russo-Japanese war for the navy was "Keep your fleet together." To send eight battleships to the Pacific when Japanese battleship strength numbers eleven would be a tempting invitation to immediate hostilities. It is evident a case of all or none.

It is to be expected that an announcement of the government's ultimate intention to concentrate its naval strength in the Pacific will be vigorously denied until the manoeuvre can be executed. When the fleet arrives in the Pacific it is hoped that Congress will be sufficiently impressed with the lack of docking facilities on that coast to supply the need promptly. Meantime the president will renew his recommendation for additional docks on that coast at the next session of Congress. San Francisco is pointed out, and the Pacific coast, can greatly assist the government's preparation to defend its interests in the Pacific and make its support of the "open door" in the Far East something more than a mere diplomatic appeal by ceasing their attitude on Japanese subjects in this country and by co-operating with the Washington government in an effort to maintain and strengthen the friendship between the two countries.

To the jingo abroad the decision ultimately made to concentrate in the Pacific holds only this warning: "Only the nation whose intentions are sinister need have the slightest cause for apprehension at the arrival of an American fleet of battleships in the Pacific." It is not believed that it will be possible to get the fleet ready in less than a year unless events should demand its immediate despatch on other than a peaceful mission.

According to Mareum's story he was fishing in the Missouri with a seventy-five-foot three-line, and when he had cast it out into deep water for the seventh time he felt a mighty pull and began drawing his catch in toward the bank.

After he had drawn the fish to shallow water near shore the line broke. He promptly leaped into the pool and grasped the fish's fins. The "cat" couldn't swim with ease in that depth, but it struggled and threw Mareum down, submerging him. He arose undaunted and renewed the battle with bleeding hands. After fifteen minutes of fierce struggling he was victor. He dragged the fish to the bank, rested half an hour and then took it to West Alton.

NAVY SHORT OF MEN.

One Thousand Five Hundred Officers and 4,000 More Sailors Required.

Washington, July 5.—In order to outfit and man half a dozen new battleships and cruisers that are being put in commission at the present time the navy department has found it necessary to resort to the unusual plan of stripping the men from a number of the older warships and either putting those ships out of commission or holding them in reserve. Looking to this end orders have been issued for the battleships Indiana and Iowa to be detached from the Atlantic fleet and placed in reserve July 1, the Indiana being assigned to the League Island navy yard at Philadelphia, and the Iowa to the Norfolk navy yard. Orders are now being prepared for the detachment of practically four-fifths of the officers and men of both vessels, assigning them to the Nebraska, California, South Dakota, Kansas, Minnesota, and Vermont. The first assignment of officers and men will be to the new battleship Nebraska, which will be placed in commission today at the Puget Sound navy yard. This ship, which has been eight years under construction, could have been made ready for commission by June 1, but it was impossible to get enough officers and men for her without taking them from the Atlantic fleet, and it was not desired to break into the number of that organization until after the entertaining at the Jamestown exposition was over.

The new battleships Minnesota, Vermont and Kansas, which have been placed in commission to join the Atlantic fleet within the last six weeks, were delayed from four to eight weeks each by the necessity of procuring the necessary officers and men aboard them. Months ago it was planned to have all three lined up in Hampton Roads at the opening of the exposition, April 26, to be proudly reviewed by the president. Later it was found that they would have to be put in reserve and the department decided to let them take their course. Each is yet short its regular complement, and owing to the fact that the Nebraska is going into service July 3 and the two new cruisers, California and South Dakota, will be commissioned at Mare Island within the next two months these big battleships will have to wait a while longer. The Milwaukee has just been commissioned after a delay of several weeks, notwithstanding that two weeks ago a state department indicated its desire to have a first-class cruiser sent down to Central America as soon as possible. It appears to be the desire of the department to take care of the Pacific coast ships first, and ships to be sent to the Hawaiian Islands in Eastern waters will be held back, if necessary, until the three ships on the Pacific are sent out to sea.

At present there are less than 2,500 officers of all grades on the active list of the navy, and it is necessary to be required to make the complement of each ship in the navy complete. But this number will be largely increased in another year by the present system of admission and graduation at Annapolis. Fully 4,000 more enlisted men are needed to make up the required complement of the ships that are already in service, and it is estimated that twice that number are needed to fill the wants of all the ships now in service or that will be commissioned by the first of September.

COBALT GOSSIP.

Two days after our arrival at Halleybury we visited the town of Cobalt, which is the mining center of this district, writes a correspondent. This town has grown practically in a night. It has hundreds of clapboard and tar-papered shanties, which, at a casual glance, convey the impression of a hasty and haphazardly laid out town; the roads are miserable, the stumps have never been cleared out of the streets and the sanitary conditions are at their worst.

The LaLose mine is the oldest in the camp and the first one to be discovered. In this mine we saw a vein of silver which extended some forty feet on the surface and was from three to fifteen inches, carrying an assay of 75 per cent pure silver, the balance 25 per cent being copper and lead. The mine is owned by the McMartin Bros., for whom the blacksmith, LaLose, worked, claimed that all persons employed two-thirds of the property he staked out, now the LaLose mine. The balance one-third, which he owned, he sold to the McMartin Bros. for $25,000 some time ago. The property has been capitalized for $6,000,000 and is practically a private corporation, but we understand an option has been taken on the mine by an English syndicate at $30,000,000. This mine has a shaft down 400 feet, and has proven values with the diamond drill for 800 feet. This company has explored the theory that silver in Cobalt would not last more than a few feet on the surface.

South of the LaLose is the Nipissing, the largest mine in the camp. This company recently introduced the Nipissing, of 846 acres, of which about forty acres have been worked. Now that it has been found that silver was not only on the surface, they have started about twelve shafts and have got to develop the property on entirely different lines, through shafts and tunnel work, from a legitimate mining basis and not as a stone quarry.

In building the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario railroad, the government took a strip of land ninety-nine feet wide as an Encroachment. A strip of land thirty-three feet on each side of the road for a distance of about three miles the government sold to the Right of Way Mining company for $1,200,000. At the time of its purchase no development work had been done on the property. They are now however, putting Plans of the Pan-American Railroad for Extension to Mexican Border.

Mexico City, Mex., July 5.—It is authoritatively announced that the Pan-American railroad, which is being built through far southeastern Mexico by a syndicate of St. Louis, Mo., men, will form a connection with the Guatemalan Northern railroad within the next six months, unless present plans miscarry. The Pan-American was recently opened for regular traffic to a point within forty-five miles of the Guatemala border. It is stated that the Guatemala Northern is within forty miles of the Mexico border. This gap of eighty miles can be quickly filled, it being the intention for both roads to be built toward each other until they form a connection. The Guatemala Northern is owned by William Van Horn of New York and associates. By building this connecting link of eighty miles it will be possible for an all-rail trip to be made from the United States and Mexico to the city of Guatemala and interior points of that country. The Pan-American runs from San Gerónimo, on the National Telemante line, to Huixtla, a distance of about 250 miles.

An unconfirmed report is in circulation here that the Mexican government will assume control of the Pan-American soon after its completion. This will be accomplished, it is said, through the purchase of a majority interest in the road by the government. The new line is of the greatest strategic importance to the government from a military standpoint. The government system of railroads already extends all the way from the United States border to the Isthmus of Panama. It is the Nova Scotia, Lunenburg, which spans the isthmus. By acquiring the Pan-American the government system would extend all the way to the Guatemala border. The builders of the road will have been paid $7,000,000 Mexican money, which is equivalent to $3,500,000. The Mexican government to the government for its construction when it is finished. The government has already paid $5,000,000 of the amount. The cost of construction is very light on account of the level character of country through which the road is being built. The government was anxious that the road should be built and was willing to pay handsomely for it.

At present there are less than 2,500 officers of all grades on the active list of the navy, and it is necessary to be required to make the complement of each ship in the navy complete. But this number will be largely increased in another year by the present system of admission and graduation at Annapolis. Fully 4,000 more enlisted men are needed to make up the required complement of the ships that are already in service, and it is estimated that twice that number are needed to fill the wants of all the ships now in service or that will be commissioned by the first of September.

VOICE FROM GRAVE.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 5.—One of the strangest cases in medical records is that of Frank Powell, member of a firm of manufacturing chemists in this city, whose blood is turning to ink, changing the color of his urine, and is largely composed of a substance called aniline. The charge is that Johnson attended a negro funeral near Denton, and it is charged, just as the corpse was being lowered into the grave, ventriloquized the words: "Let me down easy." The pall-bearers, who believed the dead was speaking from the casket, dropped their burden like it was poison, and a panic ensued among the assembled crowd.

JEWISH COLONY FOR AUSTRALIA.

Western Australia seems not to be approved by leading members of the race in Berlin. The idea is, indeed, a Western Australian government to erect a million acres of land in the coast district extending as far as the mouth of the Meelpu. The organization would then people it with Jewish peasants and artisans brought from Roumania and Russia.

The Vossische Zeitung, which represents wide and important Jewish interests, prophesies that this plan will be as unsuccessful as have been all projects for the foundation of a "New Palestine" in various parts of the world. Professor Warburg, private lecturer in the Oriental seminary, is, however, more hopeful in the matter. He points out in a letter to the Vossische Zeitung that no organization has contemplated the foundation of a "New Palestine," the only object having been to provide a refuge for Jews fleeing from persecution in Russia and Roumania.

The difficulties in the way of this laudable object are great, for of the five or six millions of Jews in question but few are accorded the right to agricultural work. He states that the colonies founded by Baron Hirsch in the Argentine are nevertheless developing, the population having increased during the year 1905 from 9,126 to 11,422. He differs from the Vossische Zeitung in concluding that the Jewish population of the larger towns, such as Jerusalem, Jaffa and Haifa, is increasing at such a rapid rate that new houses cannot be built fast enough. Some industries are being established, and several large factories have been erected by refugees from Russia; great success has already been achieved with the export of oranges and other agricultural products, and the colonies have apparently an excellent future.

Professor Warburg is doubtful whether Jews would remain cultivators of the soil in Australia, but concludes: "Whether an autonomous canton be developed or not, only advantage can accrue to Australia and the oppressed Russian Jews from such a Jewish organization. German trade could also benefit by it, for at the commencement, so long as the colonists speak only their German-Jewish dialect and understand no English, there would be an excellent opportunity for the introduction of German industrial products into the territory."

At the time of its purchase no development work had been done on the property. They are now however, putting Iron Notes.

The favorable showing at the Shagawa company's section 30 property near Ely, and the recent important developments in the Steel Corporation's Soudan mines at Tower, have caused renewed interest in the Vermilion range and its possibilities. The district has been the scene of many failures in the past, and a great amount of money has been spent in futile efforts to locate the ore. In many cases the prospecting has been prosecuted at ridiculously shallow depth, and carried on with absolute disregard to plain geological warnings. Many well located properties have been condemned without a fair test, and the development of the district has fallen far behind the progress made in each of the other four ranges at the Lake Superior region. That there are ore deposits still waiting discovery on the Vermilion is unquestioned. There is expectation of important results following the revival of interest in the Vermilion, with exploratory operations more intelligently directed.

Better leadways is making at the property of the White Iron Lake Iron company since the equipment of the shaft with an air compressor, new hoist and greater steam-power capacity, and it will not be long now before a depth of three hundred feet will have been attained. Ore has already been located there by a number of shafts. More than a third of the distance has been made. The property of the White Iron Lake Iron company is well located in section 2, 02-12, and it has been the scene of extensive exploratory work. Duluth men are the principal stockholders.

In the Tower district, an important investigation is to be made by the Steel Corporation for the purpose of ascertaining the probable dimensions of the ore deposit located recently in the five-foot level, 1,400 feet below the surface. The old number eight shaft, which is numbered seven shaft, abandoned some years ago, will be re-entailed and repaired and will be sunk to a sufficient depth to determine whether it, also, has this new discovery ore body. Number seven is six hundred feet down, and is sunk at a point four hundred feet east of number eight. There is every indication that the ore body will be found to be of large proportions. The ore is of the same high grade as has long been mined in the Tower district.

The Steel Corporation is preparing for still greater things at its big Bart mine at the edge of town at Hibbing, Mesaba range. The huge pit is being enlarged to the extent of more than one-sixth its present area. Fourteen hundred thousand tons measured the output from this mine last season. At the company's shaft in the same field, the No. 1 shafts are engaged in stripping the overburden, which averages sixty feet. Similar work has recently been started at the Steel Corporation's new Gilbert mine, near Suptera. Two shafts are down and will be extended to greater depth, the No. 1 to the 250-foot mark, the No. 2 to the 200-foot mark. Crosscuts have been run to the ore body, and a stockpile accumulated in the course of the development of the property is being shipped.

A new venture on the Mesaba is that of the Soudan Iron company, a recently organized Duluth concern, which proposes to operate some four miles northeast of Bull, on the line of the Great Northern railroad. A tract has been acquired in 28-19, near the Yates-Kinney and other mines, and a new town will be established. Explorations for iron also will be undertaken. An interesting report current at Hibbing runs to the effect that the Buffalo & Susquehanna mine intend to convert their underground mine at that point into an open-pit proposition.

Northwest of Halleybury, about seven miles across Lake Temiskaming on Sutton Bay, in the northeastern corner, one of the best discoveries outside of the Cobalt region has been made, the Casey Mining company selling on the London curb at about $10 per share, and is one of the largest mines in the district. It is also one of the best developed and most thoroughly equipped mines in the country, being under the same management as the Toronto and is largely owned by the Mitchell-Rose syndicate.

East of this mine and southeast of the Casey is the Sutton Bay Mining company. This mine is not yet on a shipping basis but development work is being pushed to the utmost. Four hundred feet of heavily mineralized calcite vein has been discovered, and the engineers are of the opinion that this is a continuation of the same vein from which the Casey is taking very rich ore. Northwest of Cobalt, about fifty miles, is the famous Tomagami district. This is reached from the railroad station of Latchford, below Cobalt, on the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario railroad, by a steamboat, then in canoes. Prospectors have been very successful in finding indications of rich silver-bearing underlying. Continuing up the Montreal river some forty miles, traces of very rich silver are found all over the country. This district can only be reached with Indian guides and canoes, as the country has never been opened up. At the present time terrific forest fires are raging throughout the entire district. Between now and the fall there will undoubtedly be a stampede of prospectors up this river on getting news of the valuable strikes which are sure to be found, after the district has been thoroughly prospected.

RAILROAD ACCOUNTS ARE TO BE UNIFORM

A. E. DELF, SOUTH SHORE AUDITOR, TALKS REGARDING PROVISION OF NEW LAW.

BIG PULL COMES IN AUGUST

Changes Will Involve Much Additional Work and Will Cause Company Extra Expense—New Books Have to Be Put in.

July 1 there went into effect that provision of the Hepburn rate law passed by the federal congress providing for uniform accounting on American railroads, and they are now all in the throes of preparations for observing it to the last letter. The South Shore being an American railroad, though it is owned in Canada, the law applies to it as much as to any other road, and its accounting officers have been giving careful study to the statute. A. E. Delf, the company's auditor, talked interestingly to a Mining Journal man yesterday regarding the measure and its practical workings.

"We only received our instructions in regard to the new system last week," said Mr. Delf, "and there is additional information we are yet to get, so that I cannot go into the matter as fully as I can at a later date. The new accounting system, however, concerns principally operating expenses and income. In our accounting for operating expenses it is going to greatly increase the work. Where we have now approximately forty-eight items of operating expense into which the total expense is subdivided we will have under the new law about 104. There will be a closer analysis of operating expenses. For instance, an item that we may have been lumping under one head under the new system will be divided under three. It needs only the mention of these facts to indicate that there will be much additional bookkeeping.

Pull Will Come in August.
"The railroads' auditing departments work about a month behind," Mr. Delf went on. "This is not due to sloth, but to peculiar circumstances surrounding the business. The accounts are handled primarily by the agents. After the first of each month the agents require the latter part of a week to prepare and turn in their reports. Thus we don't get them until about the 6th of the new month. Then we have to check them up and otherwise prepare them for final statement in our books of record. With dozens of stations on the line, sending in all sorts of complex business, you can readily appreciate that we have a large task on our hands. It is usually about the 20th of the month before we are ready to make final entries of the summarization of our rail's business.

"The point of this is that we are now engaged on June's business, and that, while the new law went into effect July 1, it will be really August before we are able to face with the problems it carries with it, and it will be the end of August before the first entries are made on the new books. Some business that is now coming in is handled in accordance with the requirements of the new law, but for all practical purposes we will have little concern with it until next month. It will necessitate a complete new set of books, entailing considerable expense for the company, and in the beginning I rather expect that it will require the employing of additional help, as the amount of extra labor created is large, and it is always a big undertaking to make far-reaching changes in any accounting business on as large a scale as that of a railroad company."

Railways Had Made Progress.
The new system, Mr. Delf said, follows in large measure the recommendations of the association of railway accounting officers. The representative of the interstate commerce commission in the task of evolving it was Professor Adams, of the University of Michigan, a railroad expert whose name is now a byword of the nation. As a matter of fact, Mr. Delf asserted, the association of railway accountants had made considerable progress along the line of uniform accounting before the law stepped in and made its rigid requirements. Old conditions in the railroad world were intolerable. If a bill of goods was sent by freight from Marquette to San Francisco the road last handling the shipment made the collection and assumed the duty of dividing the money pro rata among the different roads that shared in the haul. But under the old system the roads wanted settlements on different bases, and some had snarls ensued. So bad were the results that the railway accounting departments were compelled, in self defense, to evolve a uniform system of accounting for freights, which was done, with the result that settlements are now made without trouble.

The new system for operating and income accounts is expected to go into operation on the South Shore without trouble or friction, as Mr. Delf and his assistants have plenty of time in which to familiarize their clerks with it. The primary purpose of the system is to enable comparisons between roads, and to give the interstate commerce commission accurate data on which to base its judgments in cases that come before it for disposition.

FIRST VOTING SEPTEMBER 17.

In This District Constitutional Delegates Will Be Named by Convention.
County Clerk Jenks has received a copy of the law relating to the holding of the constitutional convention. It is provided that there shall be a direct primary to nominate delegates on August 13 only in those senatorial districts in which one party at the last election nominated its candidate for state senator by direct vote. As all nominations in this district were made by convention, nominations for delegates will be by the same method. This has a local application, as it means that the special election to fill the office of recorder cannot be held August 13 except at a very considerable expense. It is taken for granted that this election will be postponed until September 17, when it can be held without extra expense. Recorder Tr. Tempore Siegel serving up to that date.

CLOSED SUCCESSFUL ENGAGEMENT

Mack-Leone Stock Company Did Record Breaking Business.
The Mack-Leone Stock company closed an eleven-night's engagement at the opera house last evening with a presentation of "When We Were Twenty One," a play first made famous by Nat Goodwin. It had been presented by the Mack-Leone company before, and was one of their most popular offerings, and last night it drew a packed house. The engagement of the company just closed was the most successful popular-priced engagement since the Marquette house was opened. Capacity houses have been the rule, and this has been the best testimony that could be offered to the fact that the company has been giving good satisfaction. The presentations given by it are the best popular priced plays ever seen here, and are well worth the schedule of prices charged. The principals have retained all their old friends, and made some new ones, and will again be well received on the occasion of their next engagement.

CROPS DOING WELL

Farmers Off in Very Fair Shape.
Good Growing Weather Will Let the Farmers Off in Very Fair Shape.
Inquiries at the city market show that the farmers out from Marquette report that their crops have been doing very well since the protracted dry spell was broken two weeks ago. This, however, does not apply to the hay crop, of which they are not very hopeful, it having been hard hit by the lack of rain for three weeks of more. The old meadows will produce practically no hay worth cutting. New meadows are doing better, but at the best the hay crop will not run much better than half its usual size. With the other crops the outlook is better, and if the weather during the remainder of the season continues favorable for growing they will be close up to average. Altogether the outlook for the farmers is reported to be much better than it seemed possible a few weeks ago it could be at this time.

U. S. S. WOLVERINE TO BE IN THIS PORT

WILL SPEND SEVERAL DAYS IN HARBOR ON RECRUITING DUTY —IS THE FORMER U. S. S. MICHIGAN, WELL-KNOWN HERE.

Marquette is about to be visited by an old friend under a new name and in a somewhat new guise. It is the U. S. S. Wolverine, sometimes dignified with the term "warship," which will be in this port July 8-13, on recruiting duty. The Wolverine is the rejuvenated Michigan, a federal vessel with which Marquette people have been familiar these many years past. While in port the Wolverine will be open for inspection by visitors, and accommodating officers at 4 jacksies will tell the curious landmen all about life on the bounding billows, and receive enlistments for the naval service. At the same time details of recruiting officers will visit neighboring towns to interest the young men in the service.

The commissioned officers aboard the Wolverine are Captain Horace W. Harrison in command; Lieutenant Commander John R. Y. Blakely, executive officer; Surgeon Alfred G. Gunwell, medical examiner; Assistant Paymaster James P. Helm, pay officer; and Chief Boatswain Charles P. Chase, recruiting officer. Young men between the ages of seventeen and thirty-five, and mechanics under thirty-five, can apply to join the navy.

The U. S. S. Michigan was built in 1843 and is one of the first iron vessels ever built. Her plates were pounded out by hand at Pittsburg before rollers came into vogue and were carted overland by ox cart and canal to Erie, Pa., where she was put together and launched. It is chronicled that thousands of people came to see the "iron pot," as they called it, launched—thinking she would sink to the bottom like any other heavy piece of iron would naturally be when thrown into the water—but much to their disappointment the "iron pot" slid down the ways out to the low surface of Presque Isle Bay, where she rode the waters gracefully.

Her name was recently changed from Michigan to Wolverine, to make way for the great battleship Michigan, now building, and which will fittingly bear the name of the state.

During the war of the rebellion the old gunboat guarded confederate prisoners confined on Johnson's island in Sandusky harbor and while there came very near being captured by a band of confederate spies, who crossed over from Canada to carry out the plot, but were foiled by an alert petty officer, who was on watch. She also helped to quell the Fenian raid, which took place right at the war of the rebellion.

Chief Yeoman Down, now attached to the Wolverine, says: "To the young men of full life, energy and desire to see and take part in the world's great events, and visit places of interest, a term of service in the navy is a period of romance and excitement in his life that he never regrets. One standing on shore and looking at one of Uncle Sam's men of war anchored in the harbor is surprised and pleased at the sounds of joyous laughter and movements on the brilliantly lighted ship. Even the placid old gentlemen with water in his veins suddenly become animated when a special man on board a ship at time of recreation. His eyes snap, his cheeks become flushed with memories of his youth, as he views the various amusements and sports that are taking place. Even a young woman who is not impressed with the spectacle inclined to linger on, and would experience a breath of the romance that seems to infuse the atmosphere about. The rural born young boy a term of naval service awakens and jacks up. It teaches him how to be neat and tidy and to obey his superiors, makes a man of him, in short."
