WHITE OWL RINGS FIRE ALARM.

Clinton, N. J., Aug. 15.-Clang! Clang! ounded the bell of the Methodist church early this morning. Instantly the village sprang from its profound sleep, for the church bell is its fire alarm. Clinton has no fire department or water system, but every man here is a volunteer fireman, and when the church bell calls him helps to form a bucket brigale which draws from a well. So every man umped into his clothes and ran toward the church.

No one could find the fire, but the bell kept on ringing spasmodically. Now it would peal half a dozen times rapidly. hen remain silent for an interval, then foll slowly and mournfully. The "old oaken bucket" is still one of the prime necessities of life in our northernmost suburb.

The supreme court doesn't appear to have found question enough about the binder twine plant bill to have warranted all the fol-de-rol about it.

Our friend Roberts of Ishpeming isn't the first mayor in Marquette county who has rattled around in a comparatively small-sized job. There have been other examples of exactly the same thing.

No matter how cheap they are nobody wants to buy 'em unless he feels pretty sure he can sell 'em to some other fellow for more money, runs a market opinion. Just so.

Gas Addicks at one time had $20,000, 000 but is now being driven deaf with the clang of the sheriff's gong. His troubles began when he entered politics. Moral: If you have $20,000,000 keep out of politics.

The original investigation was based on the allegation that a number of army officers stationed in the Philippines had caused expensive furniture to be manufactured for their use and as souvenirs to be sent to friends in the states, for which no proper return was made to the government.

Much conflicting testimony was taken, the result of which was to leave in doubt the question whether or not any of the officers had been culpable to a degrothat reflecto their integrity or whether they in the simply careless. The names of several officers of high rank were brought into the case, arousing their indignation, as they declared they had settled in full at the highest market price for the furniture produced by the army quartermaster's mechanics.

It appeared that the method of keepng accounts in the quartemaster's shops was the cause of the conflicting statements to the investigators, and in some cases it was established that an amount of labor utterly out of proportion to their value was charged against certain articles. So Gen. Garlington was instructed by Secretary Taft to go Manila and endeavor to get at the bottom of the trouble. Upon his report will
