Mrs. Devine and her mother were the recipients of numerous handsome gifts before their departure.
House Night Monday—The members of the Marquette club will hold another of their popular "house nights" Monday evening.
Working Overtime—Owing to increased orders and rush of business the Consolidated Fuel & Lumber company began working overtime last night. The machinery is now being run until 9:30 at night making a twelve and a half hour day.
Juniors Won—The High school seniors were defeated by the juniors in a game of basketball played at Legion Hall last evening. The score was a tie, 22 to 22, at the close of the regular period of play, following which Catlin won the victory for the juniors by a pretty throw made from the center of the ball. Dancing was enjoyed after the game. The high school orchestra furnished the music.
O'Meara Resigns—William O'Meara, who was appointed to membership on the park, cemetery and street commission by Mayor Vaughan, and who was confirmed by the council Monday evening, has presented a resignation to the mayor, and it will be necessary to name another man in his place. Mr. O'Meara was not an aspirant for the office and did not care at this time to take up its duties. The status of the situation in regard to the city attorneyship is unchanged, with two claimants for the office.
Elks Elect Delegates—At a meeting of the Marquette lodge of Elks held Thursday night the following delegates were elected to attend the state convention at Calumet, June 15, 16 and 17: D. S. Donovan, John J. Boyle, T. J. Maney, E. H. Buss, alternate, Wm. Johnston, Guy Freese, J. F. Neidhart, J. H. Primeau. It is altogether likely that the Ishpeming, Negaunee and Marquette lodges will attend the convention together as the Marquette county herd and T. H. Primeau, James J. Donovan and Guy Freese were appointed members of a committee to confer with the up-the-road lodges on that subject.
Death of Mrs. McIntosh—At her home, 332 West Bluff street, after a lingering illness, in the sixty-second year of her age, Mrs. Catherine McIntosh, wife of William McIntosh, passed away at 11:15 last evening. Mrs. McIntosh was for many years a resident of Marquette, having come here in 1888, and a large circle of devoted friends will long mourn her loss, for her earnestness and activity in church work and her kindly ministrations to all with whom she came in contact made for her a place that cannot be filled. The bereaved husband and three daughters, Mrs. D. S. Donaldson of Calumet, Mrs. Chas. Brahaney of Ishpeming and Miss Jessie, of this city, survive her.
Try-Out Ball Game—There will be a game of baseball at the fair grounds tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting, between the Marquette league team, and the Marquette Yannisians. The game is to be played primarily for the purpose of trying out new recruits and all ball players in the city will be given an opportunity to show what they can do. Manager Fox wishes it understood that no man on the regular team has his position "cinched" and that the new men will have an equal chance to get on the regular list with those who played last year. There are several new prospectives ball players whose work tomorrow will be watched with interest.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT REACHES A CLIMAX

LARGE CROWDS ARE PRESENT AND THE SIX ALLEYS ARE IN CONSTANT USE.

The bowling tournament was well attended yesterday, and the six alleys were in constant use. During the day the advance guard of the Houghton, Calumet and Lake Linden delegations arrived, and the rest of the out-of-town bowlers will be on hand this morning. All of the visitors are enthusiastic over the Marquette alleys and it is clear that the newly organized upper peninsula association will contain a lot of good bowlers and good fellows.

The first deposit is almost always the hardest to make. There are a number of reasons for this. Many people do not realize that a bank means what it says when it says:

"We Welcome Small Depositors."

A great many think that a bank only does business with rich people. This is not the case with the Marquette National Bank. We have hundreds of accounts that started very humbly. The same courtesies are extended to the depositor with a small amount as to the larger depositor.

Northern Normal Notes.

Mrs. John B. Faught spent the first three days of the week in Chicago.

Mrs. Koob of Negaunee, whose daughter, Miss Elsie, is a student, visited the Normal yesterday.

Superintendent F. S. Monical of Champion was a visitor Thursday; he was seeking recruits for his teaching staff for next year.

Miss Kathryn Libby left for Chicago last evening. She will spend today and tomorrow in that city, returning home in time to attend school Monday morning.

During the past week the seniors have been measured for caps and gowns, to be worn at commencement. The class is nearly twice as large as ever before, seventy-five will graduate in June, and several more in August.

The rehearsals for the commencement play, Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," are well under way. One of the dances to be given is the ever beautiful minuet. The students taking part in this are being trained by Mrs. Pettee and Miss Jessie Palmer.

At assembly on Tuesday morning, Dr. Faught read a short story illustrating the fact that had boys, or girls, for that matter, are bad because they fall into the hands of teachers or parents who do not find the vulnerable parts of their nature, the traits of character through which they can be influenced.

Next week Friday evening will occur the final contest in the upper peninsula district of the State Oratorical association. There will be six contestants, and the winners will meet those from the lower peninsula to decide the winner for the state. The event will occur at the Normal auditorium and will be one of particular interest.

Monday afternoon Miss Jessie Palmer, formerly a student at the Normal school, entertained in honor of her cousin, Miss Jean Rankin. During the afternoon the announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Rankin to Berwick Stuart Miller, in the employ of the Du Pont Powder mills near this city.

President Kaye left Wednesday afternoon for Lansing, to be gone the remainder of the week. The state association of school superintendents has been in session there, and besides attending the important sessions of that body Mr. Kaye expected to meet the state board of education, in session Thursday evening, and to interview those members of the legislature having in charge the bill for the appropriation for the Normal.

Wednesday evening the senior class had another gathering at the school, chaperoned by the Misses Libby and Gable, at which they had a "spread" with the refreshments which the juniors had stolen the evening before, but which had been discovered by the eagle-eyed owners, only the cream having to be replaced, as an extra day had not improved its quality. The exultant party gathered in the basement, in casual style, ate their refreshments, told stories and forced everyone present to do something for the amusement of the rest. They finally put everything in place and left for home at about 10 o'clock.

During the past week the following members of the graduating class have been elected to positions: "Evadne" Park, Hildegarde Gack, Lillian Spurr and Virginia Fraser, to Atlantic Mine; Alice Pearce, Mary Templeton, Mattilda Starline and Belle Vogtin, to Ironwood; Edith Dolf, to Iron Mountain; Carrie Bacon, Margaret Fitzsimmons and Elizabeth Girard, to Escanaba; Florence Smith, Gertrude Trevinton, to Calumet; Gertrude Kerschweg has received an offer from her home school at Lake Linden, Olga Grund from Ishpeming and Alice Kennedy from Houghton. Theodora McEwen goes to California, and Avis Elstrom will teach at Pueblo, Colo. At least twelve others are considering offers from various superintendents. Miss Cora Lee Wells will continue her studies at some university, probably at Chicago. Theo. Johnston will go to Billmore college, North Carolina, to study forestry.

Thursday morning was the time when the Senior class was to take charge of the Assembly exercises. Before President James H. Kaye left for Lansing, representatives of the class went to him and gained his consent to their reproducing the ceremonial of Tuesday evening. Though the juniors made strenuous efforts to kidnap the principals, and failing in this, to intimidate the participants by taking possession of the Assembly room that morning, nevertheless by the kindly interference of Dr. Faught and several other members of the faculty the ceremonial was carried out with little variation from the original plans. One of the bridesmaids was, however, kept a prisoner at her room for half an hour, but she managed to escape by an exit from the house unknown to her guards, to arrive at the assembly room while the ceremony was in progress and march up the aisle to her place in the wedding party, amid the cheers of her friends and the astonished looks of her enemies.

Ygdrasil Literary society held the preliminary for the N. M. Kaufman oratorical prize last evening. The judges were the Reverend Ames Maywood, Miss Maria Templeton and the Reverend J. M. Rogers. The following was the program of the evening:

- Piano solo - Margaret Kennelly.
- "Pride" - Emelda Deshaies.
- Piano solo - Miriam V. Matthews.
- "Women's Part in the World's History" - Adele Dorothy Hessel.
- Vocal solo - Elsie Libby.
- "The Cry of the Children" - Emma Sanders.
- Piano solo - Marguerite Barnes.
- Wendell Phillips - Ernest Roberts.

The judges decided in favor of Ernest Roberts for first honor and Miss Emma Sanders for second. Last year N. M. Kaufman of this city offered a prize of fifty dollars for the two best orations to be delivered by students of the Normal school, thirty dollars to be the first prize and twenty the second. The faculty decided to restrict the contest to members of the two literary societies. Monday evening, last, occurred the preliminary for Osis. The judges selected were: Miss Edith Barnard of the high school, M. J. Sherwood and the Rev. Bates G. Burt, who were to decide on all matters pertaining to thought, composition and delivery. All members of the society concerned were present, as were a large number of the faculty. The program for the evening was as follows:

- Piano solo, "The Last Hope" - Gottschalk
- "American Ideals" - Helma Paulino.
- Vocal quartet - Elma Nelson.
- "Steadfastness of Purpose" - Carmign Misses Agnes Berg, Edna Rutan, Olga Grund, Klara Kjesboe.
- Hayden R. Stuart.
- Piano solo, "La Corsicana" - Hulst Ramona Rupp.
- "The American Pioneer" - Olga Grund.

The judges decided that the first place in the honors of the evening belonged to Miss Grund and the second to Miss Nelson. These young ladies will at some future date meet the winners of the honors at the Ygdrasil contest, held last evening, and the prizes will be awarded to the victors at this final meeting. The book of Dr. Lewis Flint Anderson, head of the department of pedagogy and psychology, is a work of unusual merit. It was published by Henry Holt & Co., and is entitled, "A History of Common School Education." The work is designed for use in a three-months' course in the subject, and in its small compass of three hundred pages it traces the development of education in the common people from Greek times to the present. According to the preface, the book "aims to give as clearly, concisely and concretely as possible such information regarding the history and development of the common or non-professional school as will assist the teacher and others to an intelligent understanding of the common school of today; its nature and functions, and its relations to other institutions, educational and otherwise." The writer believes that an adequate professional preparation of the teacher involves a knowledge of the history and development of the school. Other writers on this subject have emphasized educational theory, while this work puts the emphasis upon the history of the evolution of the school as an institution. Another even a general knowledge of the history

NO SECRET OR MYSTERY

KODOL IS COMPOSED OF THE NATURAL ACIDS OF THE HEALTHY STOMACH ONLY—IT MAKES WEAK STOMACHS STRONG.

Kodol contains, in liquid form, all of Nature's natural ferments, and juices, such as pepsin, pancreatin, hydrochloric acid and aromatic tonics—thus enabling it at once to digest every particle of food with which it comes in contact. A tablespoonful of Kodol digests 2 1/2 pounds of food. A bottle of Kodol digests forty pounds of food—and it makes no difference what kind of food it may be—Kodol will digest it; and where there is perfect digestion in the stomach, there is necessarily a perfect and healthy stomach. A good, healthy digestive process can always be assured to one's stomach by merely keeping a bottle of Kodol handy, and taking a little of it now and then. You do not have to take Kodol all the time. You only have to take it occasionally, just at the times when you need it. Buy your Kodol—get it from the drug store. If you are not benefited—the druggist will at once return your money. end purposed by the author is to give an account of conditions geographical, political, and social, which have affected the development. The schools of Greece, Rome and Alexandria illustrate the effects of geographical conditions, as shown on pages 2 to 4, 33 and 38. Pages 70, 77 and 152 show the effects of political and social conditions in the Middle Ages. Another aim has been to place within the reach of the American student some of the more important results of the investigations of such modern scholars as the Englishmen, Leach and De Montmorency; the French, Boissier and Girard, and Specht, of Germany. Another characteristic of the work important for clear understanding by the student is the faithful adherence to chronological order; for instance, instead of completing the survey of the schools of Europe before taking up the account of education in America, Chapter XVIII, concerning "Bacon and the New Era in Science" in England, is preceded by a chapter on "Early Colonial Schools in America." Chapter XXI concerns England; the next two are on the progress of French education, and XXIV discusses the "Development of Public Schools in America." Throughout the work contemporaneous steps in the evolution of the schools in the various countries are treated as nearly as possible in that order. For use in American schools, special attention has been given to the history of education in America and to its development out of the English idea rather than the German. One of the most valuable points in the work to immature students is the abundant use of quotations carefully selected and arranged to make each of the great educational writers, such as Montaigne, Bacon, Pestalozzi and others, give an account in his own words of the nature of his contribution to educational theory. In many such ways as this, Dr. Anderson has succeeded in making his subject one of living interest to his readers, and to one having of European civilization the work in many places reads quite like a story. During the past week much rivalry and class spirit has been shown between the seniors and juniors. Tuesday evening occurred the annual senior ceremonial of putting on the Normal alumni pin. This year it took the form of a marriage of the Senior class to Learning. Simon Anderson, president of the class, was the bride and Ernest Roberts the groom. Carrie Bacon was best man, Virginia Fraser and Florence Spelman were flower girls, Florence Markham the ring bearer, the Misses Gladys Zane, Dolphine Mayer, Anna Copeland, Gertrude Kerschweg and Estla Klittig were the bridesmaids, Ted Johnston the father of the bride and Miss Hill, of the faculty, the clergyman. The ceremony took place in the society room. To the strains of the wedding march played by Kenneth Pellow on the violin, accompanied with piano by Miss Elizabeth Byers, the wedding procession entered the room. The clergyman, in cap and gown, at an altar appropriate for the occasion received the groom and his attendant, also clad in the scholar's robes, with white gloves. The flower girls, in white gowns and picture hats of crepe paper, preceded the bride, scattering variegated papers, advortisements, etc., in their path. The bride, Miss Pelagoga, appeared, leaning on the arm of her father. Mr. Anderson's six-foot form was elaborately gowned in a white crepe paper creation in Empire style, with short sleeves and long train. His blushing face was partly concealed by a full flowing veil of delicate mosquito netting and held in place by a wreath of exquisite paper orange blossoms. About his throat was clasped an elaborate dog collar, very strong and studded with genuine brass spikes; this was the gift of the groom. He carried an immense bouquet of pussy willows. The gown was the work of the Misses Kathryn Libby and Margaret Gable. The father, Mr. Johnston, in Prince Albert coat, gray spats, white beard and hair and black skull-cap, looked the picture of sorrowful resignation. The bridesmaids were dressed to represent various courses of study, Arithmetic appearing in full mourning costume, decorated with rulers and various mystic symbols of the mathematician's art, and Geography clad in the flags of many nations. The others represented psychology, biology and music. The ceremony consisted in pledging the groom to fill the mind of his bride with wisdom, her life with long words, her eyes with lightning and her voice with terror, to cause trembling to the hearts of all children and superintendents; the bride to speak sagely, look wise and wear spectacles. When asked to give away his daughter, the father stepped forward, threw a halter over her head and gave it into the hands of the groom. The pin, in place of the ring, was then placed upon the gown of the bride, with appropriate pledges, and the ceremony closed with a fervent kiss from the groom on the lips of his lovely bride. The bride's bouquet was caught by Gertrude Kerschweg. After the ceremony refreshments, including a great bride's cake, were served, the cake being cut by the bride. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. When the seniors arrived at the school early in the evening, they found that the juniors had preceded them and removed the decorations and a large part of the refreshments, not, however, the cake. Coffee was procured a second time, only to be again destroyed by the uninvited guests, who worked through a window. By rapid work on the part of the early arrivals the decorations were again put in place, even to the wedding bell, a huge creation of crepe paper under which the party stood. The whole evening was planned for by Miss Doris King, one of the most prominent members of the senior class.
