

POWERS WILL SEE WAR DOESN'T OCCUR

Cretan Dispute Between Turkey and Greece Is Acute, However, and Is Causing Anxiety at the European Capitals.

That Germany Is Supporting England, France, Russia and Italy in Insisting Upon a Peaceful Solution Gives Great Satisfaction—Meanwhile Spain Is Threatened With Another Bloody Outbreak, and the Strike Situation in Sweden Grows in Gravity.

London, Aug. 8.—The acute stage of the dispute between Turkey and Greece over Crete is causing anxiety at European capitals, but Europe will see that no mischievous effects result, and a satisfactory settlement is therefore expected.

Paris, Aug. 8.—There is great satisfaction here over the action of Germany in supporting the representations of the protective powers upon Turkey for the necessity of a peaceful solution of the Thuro-Greek dispute.

Stockholm, Aug. 8.—The tie-up of the country's business as a result of the general strike is so serious that the king today has endeavored to induce the parties to come to an agreement, his majesty advised arbitration.

SLAPS KING ON BACK; PREVENTS HIS CHOKING.

While Everyone Else Stands Absolutely Helpless, the Presence of Mind of Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester, American, Averts a Possible Tragedy at Cowes.

London, Aug. 8.—The name of Consuelo, duchess of Manchester, is on everyone's lips in court circles. She is the heroine of an incident that occurred at Cowes and which throws an interesting light on the true state of the king's health.

The king's throat is worrying not only himself, but his physicians considerably. Although there is no malignant growth of any kind, there is an obstruction in the throat which brings about serious choking fits.

Consuelo Shows Quick Wit.

During a dinner at which the king's usual intimate friends and suite were present on board the royal yacht previous to the arrival of the czar, the king suddenly choked and grew purple in the face while his eyes seemed to start out of his head.

Then it was the American duchess rose quickly from the table and thumped the king violently three times on the back.

HARRY THAW'S WIFE FARES ILL IN COURT

Making Their Arguments at the Sanity Hearing, Both Mr. Jerome and Lawyer Morschauer Assail the Former Chorus Girl.

District Attorney Speaks of Her Bitterly, While Prisoner's Counsel Declares That the Judge Will Not Be Fooled by Her—They Each Take a Fling at the Medical Experts, Also—Case Is Closed and the Decision Is Looked for Thursday.

New York, Aug. 8.—Harry K. Thaw's fate now rests with Justice Sessel N. Mills, and the outcome will be shown Thursday.

No time was wasted by Jerome; his was clear-cut argument and reason. Attorney Morschauer was dramatic in his closing, and it was the plea of the mother for her boy.

Each lawyer took a fling at alienists. Mr. Jerome vented his wrath on Dr. Evans, one of Thaw's alienists, of whom he said: "I am not impressed with the truthfulness or integrity of Dr. Evans, and I think his testimony should be corroborated."

Morschauer also made the statement that if Mr. Jerome had been half as active in suppressing the dems of vice maintained by Stanton White as he had been in presenting Thaw, the murder would never have happened.

Declarer Thaw's Mind Diseased.

Mr. Jerome passed to the question of Thaw's sanity. He summed up Thaw's family history with the declaration that when a member "broke, he or she broke in their weak spot—the mind."

JUDGE CLARKSON TELLS HIS STORY

Kenosha Lawyer Found at Work in an Iowa Factory, After a Month's Mysterious Absence, Recounts Strange Experience.

That He Went to Chicago, Shaved His Mustache and Beard and, Donning Old Clothing, Started on a Long Tramp Across the Country as a Day Laborer, He Attributes to a Severe Electrical Storm Which Temporarily Dethroned His Reason.

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 8.—According to his own story, Judge Clarkson, who was temporarily dethroned the reason of Joseph S. Clarkson, former circuit judge of Omaha and for many years a prominent local attorney, and sent him tramping across the country as a day laborer is as strange an escapade as ever was painted by the brush of Edgar Allan Poe.

The judge has not yet fully recovered his memory and he is still hazy on some points of his remarkable story. While seemingly in perfect physical condition and with a rapidly strengthening mentality, a complete restoration of all his faculties is believed to be but a question of time.

Left Early for a Walk. Judge Clarkson left his office the night of July 14, with the intention of going to his home and taking a night's rest in preparation for a busy day's work on the following day.

At the time Judge Clarkson left Kenosha he had no idea other than to take a long walk and get back to the city in time to be at his office, where he would be met by the men of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company, and then south to the state line.

Worked for Farmers. The judge suffered neither from hunger or thirst, though he went for days without eating. He had a vague memory of short stops in Rock Island, Davenport, Moline, Lyons and Clinton, before he came to the neighborhood of Sabula.

MR. TAFT SPENDS A LAZY SUNDAY

Attending Church in the Morning, He Devotes the Afternoon to Reading, and at Sunset Goes for a Long Motor Ride.

He Will Transact Considerable Business This Week, and Included in the Program Will Be the Designation of the Census Supervisors—Where States Are Solidly Democratic, the Two Big Political Parties Will Share the Appointments, It Is Decided.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 8.—Beverly was almost a hotbed of Washington, but President Taft spent a lazy Sunday. This morning, with his daughter, he attended the Unitarian church, and this afternoon he sat on the veranda overlooking the ocean and read "The Greatness and the Decline of Rome," by Historian Ferrero.

Places for Southern Democrats. The president has decided upon his policy in the matter of the census appointments in the South. In the states which are solidly Democratic, he will divide the appointments equally among Democrats and Republicans and will insist that the appointees shall not be active partisans, but capable men.

The president has decided to make no appointments of judges of the newly authorized customs court, congress having failed to make an appropriation for the judges and other officials.

Having tried the Myopia gold links, the president tomorrow will play eight holes over the course of the Essex Country club. John Hays Hammond will have a hand in the game.

His Welcome Enthusiastic. President Taft reached his home at Woodberry Point from Washington at 8:30 a. m. yesterday. The president was accompanied by his private secretaries and Captain Archibald Butt, his military aid.

IS CANDIDATE FOR REELECTION. Miners' President Lewis Denies Reported Disposition in the Union. Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 8.—President Lewis of the United Mine Workers, 60-ly issued a statement through the Associated Press, which says: "I am a candidate for reelection. The report that the organization has discussion in its ranks is incorrect. There are less disputes growing out of our contracts than there have been for several years. My work since I have been president speaks for itself."

G. A. R. VETERANS GATHER. Salt Lake, Aug. 8.—The advance guard of the army of G. A. R. veterans was reinforced today by thousands. The department headquarters were opened, and tents for the various delegations were pitched. The city is gaily decorated to-night. On every side are displayed pictures of heroes of the Civil war in settings of electric lights.

There are several horns in Harry Thaw's dilemma.

The grain crop of the Northwest is estimated to be worth $400,000,000. That will help appreciably to keep the business ball a-rolling.

However, the new primary law still permits the Michigan candidate to pass around the cigars, and they can be as bad as he wants to offer.

The strike breaking gentlemen who have been quoted at Chicago as predicting that there would be no traction strike evidently had the situation sized up accurately.

"As good as they can be," is the laconic manner in which Ambassador O'Brien describes the sentiments held by the Japanese in regard to the United States. They could not well be any better than that.

If the Cleveland-Cliffs railroads actually carry out all the ambitious schemes attributed to them at Manistique they will presently have one of the big trunk lines of the northwest.

Minority Leader Champ Clark says that the newspapers have misrepresented the Democrats, and that, really, they have come out of the tariff fight in first class order. No one has suspected it.

If Minority Leader Clark can get away with his contention that the Democrats made a good record on the tariff he will show that the Democrats have the right man at the helm in the house.

If that man Johnson continues to waste his newly won money in paying fines for automobile speeding he will presently be forced to come to agreement for an immediate meeting with Jeffries, in order to be able to fill his empty coffers.

Tom Johnson is most persistent in his desire to serve as mayor of the ungrateful city of Cleveland. It is suspected that much of his persistence finds its basis in his wish to thwart many good citizens of the city who would like to see him down and out.

Victor D. Brenner, the designer of the new Lincoln cent, proposes to fight the plan to remove his initials from the coin. No use fighting, Mr. Brenner. Secretary MacVeagh has said the initials must go, and his word will come pretty near being law in the matter.

The new tariff law is reported to be working as smoothly as anyone could ask. The confusion that frequently attends the enactment of a new tariff law has been conspicuous by its absence. Its passage is already reflected in a noticeably improved tone in business and industrial circles. Things are shaping themselves for a forward movement all along the line.

Senator LaFollette says that he will have his say on the tariff before the regular session convenes. This means that he has prepared a bran new Chattanooga speech, which he will presently exploit. It will show why he didn't vote for the Payne-Aldrich bill and go into a minute analysis of that measure. No doubt it will make interesting reading, both for the general public and the men who made the tariff.

Relative to the automobile industry, it is stated that there will be built in this country in 1910, 200,000 machines, with a value of $240,000,000, whereas in 1895 there were built but seventy machines valued at $157,500. Today privately owned cars are said to approximate in number 270,000, valued at $405,000,000. By August 1, 1910, it is estimated that this number will be 470,000, valued at $640,000,000, or one car for every 150 of population. There is no less than $200,000,000 of capital invested in the industry in the United States, there are over 100,000 men on the pay rolls of the factories and the annual disbursement in wages is over $90,000,000. Furthermore, the industry has not reached the high stage of its development. The boom of its greatest expansion is even now under way.

The Mining Journal agrees with the baseball fan quoted in its columns Saturday in protest against the suggestion that it might be well to play off the baseball games in the county fair series in the forenoon, leaving the afternoon free for the horse racing. There is keener interest in baseball in this county at this time than in horse racing, or any other form of sport, and we believe that while some may hold that the baseball interrupts and interferes with the horse races, the great majority hold that the horse racing interferes with the baseball, and, of the two attractions, would prefer to see the latter given the right of way. The procedure last year, when horse racing and baseball were sandwiched together, ought to be followed again. Without desiring to be intrusive, The Mining Journal ventures the suggestion that a miners' drilling contest would be an unusual attraction for the fair, and one that would arouse much interest in the western end of the county.

John Wilde, a state deputy of the Michigan grange, has reached Marquette county in the course of his organization tour of upper peninsula, and has already organized two local granges, and more are to be formed. Mr. Wilde has been busy with this work north of the straits for several months and the number of granges he has organized, together with their considerable aggregate membership, carries its own refutation of the assumption that the upper peninsula has no agricultural development to speak of. As a matter of fact, the farming industry in this region, despite the fact that it has received very little organized encouragement, is not one to be sneered at, but represents the employment of thousands of people and a large investment of capital. Properly developed, it will become a big factor in the wealth of the counties north of the straits. The organization of local granges should give it an impetus, for the farmers gain much benefit from co-operating in these societies, which in lower Michigan play an important part in the social, political and business activities of the communities where they are found.

Expert testimony has been still further discredited by the course of the inquiry into the sanity of Harry Thaw. Some of the same alienists whose services were secured by Thaw's lawyers to prove his insanity at the time of his trial for the murder of Stanford White, in order that he might escape conviction, have been retained in the present proceedings to testify to his sanity, in an endeavor to secure his release from Matteawan. Naturally it has been possible for as sharp a cross-examiner as District Attorney Jerome to put them in an equivocal light, and to bring up their testimony at the trials, to their great confusion. The public was long ago forced to believe that it is possible to hire experts, and men of first rate ability, too, who see things as the people who hire them desire that they shall see. These experts may not, perhaps, sell out their actual opinions, but the fact that it is possible for the opposing interests in any given case to match expert with expert in conflicting statements destroys the value of this sort of testimony as it is now received in court. The time is arrived when the existing court practice should be materially changed. A suggestion has been made, and it is apparently a good one, that for it should be substituted the practice of having the court name a small body of disinterested experts to consider and report on all expert questions, such as insanity or the identity of handwriting, their finding to be final. This, it would appear, would be an infinitely preferable practice to having opposing experts swearing their heads off on the sides on which their fees lie, and leaving the jurymen in an absolutely befogged condition and, perforce, compelled to rely on their own judgment. Expert testimony in American courts, in any case of great importance, is now nothing more than a screaming farce.

ALASKA AND ITS RESOURCES.

Twice the size of Texas and ten-fold that of Michigan—equal in extent to France, Germany, Holland, Denmark and Japan combined—Alaska and its resources have rightly been emphasized at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, now in progress at Seattle. When, for political, rather than economic or commercial reasons, Secretary Seward in 1867 negotiated the purchase of this territory from Russia for something more than seven million dollars, its acquisition was largely scouted as an act of folly, not a few newspapers dubbing it "Walrusia," "Iceberg" or some other term indicative of frigid barrenness. And yet, according to General Greeley, in the Geographic Magazine, the total exports from that territory have already reached 327 million dollars, or a yearly average of a million dollars in excess of the total purchase price—and these exports are increasing in a ratio approaching the geometric. Up to 1885, when gold was discovered, furs constituted nine-tenths of Alaskan exports; since that date the mineral exports have totaled thirteen and the fishery exports seven times the fur values. The annual gold product, 2 1/2 million dollars in 1898, reached nearly double that in 1901, has greatly increased since, and the available gold yet unmined is estimated at half a billion dollars. Coal, copper, iron, silver and various other valuable minerals are among Alaska's known resources.

The most surprising statement in regard to Alaska's resources is that in regard to agricultural possibilities. "Almost anything," it is said, "that will grow in New York will grow in Alaska."

NO TARIFF COMMISSION.

Senator Hale's statement in the senate last week concerning the meaning of what is called the tariff commission paragraph of the tariff bill has the virtues of frankness and lucidity. "The language is explicit," said Senator Cummings, "that the president shall have no powers other than those needed for the enforcement of the maximum and minimum clause. This is no tariff commission, and I think we ought to keep that fact clear in our minds." Absolutely "replied Senator Hale, who is credited with having no small hand in the surreptitious and unexpected emasculation of the section.

So there is to be no tariff commission, nor anything resembling it. The president is authorized to appoint, but not to remove, members of the tariff commission. The tariff commission is to be a commission, not a committee. It is to be a commission, not a committee. It is to be a commission, not a committee.

According to Moody's Magazine, Mr. Carnegie says that a Boston store has gone furthest of all in the direction of making its employees shareholders.

Such success as this has turned the heads of many of the old pioneers in the movement. Co-operation bulks almost too large in their views.

But with all their complacency, the co-operative trading societies in Great Britain remain a highly useful institution.

The greatest of American fortunes created chiefly by almost excessive economy as well as large operations in finance, was that of Russel Sage.

Only one county—Gogebic—has a lower percentage of insanity per 1,000 population than Dickinson, according to a table issued by the authorities at the St. Mary's asylum.

But the most striking benefactors are those of J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, and John D. Rockefeller. Each of these has been amassed since 1870.

The estimate of those who have means for relatively accurate information fixes Mr. Rockefeller's return at $200,000,000.

Marble is entirely out of date. Granite soon gets moss-grown, discolored, requires constant expense and care, and eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides, it is very expensive. WHITE BRONZE is strictly everlasting. It cannot crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. The who not investigate it? It has been adopted for over a hundred public monuments, and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. It has been on the market over 25 years and is an established success. Many granite dealers have bought White Bronze for their own burial plots. I have hundreds of beautiful designs of all grades of work, and want to have you see them if you are interested in a monument, headstone, marker or grave cover. On receipt of a postal card will be pleased to call with designs and samples of White Bronze.

WAS GOOD MONTH.

Earnings of Light and Power Commission Show Healthy Increase.
The gross earnings of the city light and power commission for the month of June were nearly $200 more than the earnings for the same month last year, and the net income for the month exceeded that of June 1908 by about $150. The gross earnings show an increase in the amount of power and residence light used, but a slight decrease in the amount of business light used, compared with a year ago. This decrease is probably due to the installation of tungsten lamps, which produce more light with less current. During the year the number of customers has increased from 1,449 to 1,656. The commission now has outstanding bonds to the amount of $23,500 and its investment is valued at $21,159.23. The earnings and expenditures were as follows:

DEATH SENTENCE ON HOUSE FLY PRONOUNCED

DAYS OF PEST SEEM NUMBERED IF PRESENT FIGHT FOR ITS EXTERMINATION IS KEPT UP.
Sentiment regarding the house fly is dead. If the war that is now being waged against the nuisance is kept up the pest of the flies will soon be dead. Led by the government officials and urged to attack by insistent bulletins from Washington, health boards the country over have bestirred themselves to systematic attacks on the fly pest, and households have enthusiastically entered in the fight until it really seems possible that the nuisance will be swept away before another summer comes around.
To supplement the familiar fly paper an immense variety of implements for the killing of flies has been put on the market, and with these as implements of destruction the war goes on. But the most important part of the crusade is the attack on the breeding places of the pest. The housewife has been educated to a knowledge of the fact that the fly that she formerly reproved for polluting her kitchen is a germ disseminator of the most active kind. He thrives in filth, and on his disgusting path through life contrives to carry with him an appalling number of disease-bearing germs. To the door of this pest have been laid the responsibilities of innumerable deaths from typhoid, cholera, infantum and similar diseases.
Breeding in stables and garbage pails, the flies carry with them the filth they revel in, and this filth they track across the sugar, the butter and the best steak. The hairy feet of the nuisance, gunned with the vilest rotting matter, paddle in the milk of the crowing baby, and the baby is taken ill and ceases to grow. Screens and disinfectants are unable to keep the house free from the terror. Therefore the attack, declare the health authorities, must be systematically carried on in the breeding places.
One old feature of the literature of the campaign against the fly is the indictment of our old friends the horses as responsible for a great deal of the trouble, and incidentally a card of recommendation for the much-abused automobile as a great helper in the war of extermination. It is pointed out that since the motor car came into fashion the horse has been relegated to the back ground, and with the closing of many establishments formerly the abiding place of Pegasus there has been a decrease in the number of breeding places for flies. This has been so unmistakable that many voices have been heard calling for the banishment of stables from the heart of cities, and ordinances to prohibit these establishments from being kept open contiguous to dwelling places have been called for by some of the citizens.
While the forces of the health armies all over the country are being concentrated on the cleaning up of the breeding places, the housewives themselves are urged to do their part. It has been found that the female fly will lay behind her during an average life 120 eggs, and the reproduction of the pest reaches an all-incredible figure. A good deal of this can be prevented by systematic house cleaning. It is strongly recommended that fly specks be eliminated from window sills and walls. Woodwork should be washed frequently, and the trace of the nuisance removed as often as the work can be done. If every housewife will attend to this, say the health authorities, and owners of fly breeding centers submit to the systematic cleaning up of their places, the fly crop will noticeably decrease, and in time the pest will be relegated to the limbo of nuisances that belong to bygone ages.

Upper Peninsula

Convention of Italians—It has been decided definitely to hold the meeting for the purpose of federating the Italian societies of the upper peninsula in Iron Mountain instead of at Negaunee. It is probable that the convention will take place Oct. 12-14, Columbus Day, which is now a legal holiday. A hundred or more delegates will be present.

New Inter-State Bridge—

At a joint meeting of the Dickinson county board of road commissioners and the bridge committee of the Florence county (Wis.) board the contract for a new inter-state bridge at Twin Falls was let to the Central State Bridge company, of Indianapolis, for $5,016. The bridge will be built in accordance with plans and specifications prepared by the Wisconsin State Geological survey. It will be a one-span bridge, constructed of steel and concrete entirely. The length of the steel trusses will be 140 feet. The floor will be concrete and it will be provided with windguards. The abutments are of concrete.

Rags 300-Pound Bear—

Feed Green, a merchant at Pickford, Chippewa county, and who occasionally shoulders the rifle for a little sport, was out on the plains a few miles northwest of the village the other day when he ran across a big brown nose bear. Mr. Green is a good shot and the first bullet hit the spot aimed at, and to make the matter sure he fired a second time. The carcass was taken to town and together with some of the local sportsmen was photographed. The animal was very gaunt, but poor as he was he weighed 300 pounds, and is said to be the largest one ever seen in those parts. Had he been fat he would easily have tipped the scales at 400 pounds.

Building Will Be a B—One—

The way in which the work is being pushed on the National Greener company's new building at Escanaba indicates that Manager J. V. Moran intends to make good the statement that it will be ready to be occupied in ninety days. The immense size of the building—80x140 feet, four stories high, including basement—makes it a pretty big job to do within that time. The brick which will be used is a dark red with a black mottled effect. The building will also be very pretty architecturally. The others will all be finished in dark oak. The officers have an eye for the beautiful in surroundings, as well as in the building, and the grounds will be sodded, flower beds will be arranged and shade trees will be planted. The building will be in full view of passengers on the Northwestern road.

Ends His Life With Poison—

Henry Schotter, an aged resident of Marquette after several weeks of despondency, became irrational and swallowed a large quantity of Paris green, from the effects of which he died before medical aid could be summoned. The deceased had made numerous threats to end his life and on the day previous had taken chloroform. It appears that he had bought the Paris green to use in his potato field. He drank the poison in a glass of beer and was dead before the doctor arrived. The deceased had lived at Marquette for twenty years. He was president of the Sons of Herman lodge. He was a peculiar character in a way and for some years had fits of temporary dementia which caused much uneasiness and discomfort to his family and immediate friends. He leaves an aged wife and eight adult children.
