When Ought I Begin Saving

The question in the first person. Let it make direct appeal to you reader. "When ought I begin saving?"

Andrew Carnegie began at twelve years. He was earning $1.20 per week and out of that he saved $1.00 per month.

You ought to begin saving whenever there sweeps over you an earnest desire to be something more, to have something more, and to do something more, than the common brood, regardless of your age, earning power, or family status.

The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company will offer places to 200 men next Monday at its Lake mine, where a night shift crew is to be added. Applications will be received at once at the Lake office, and the men will be given instructions as to when to start in, etc., as soon as they are hired.

The Lake went on a single shift a year ago last December, at the time the panic hit the country. Nearly 200 men were thrown out of employment at that time, and as many more were laid off at the company's Cliffs shafts property, which has also been operated on one shift ever since. More than 75 per cent of the men let out at the Lake mine were foreigners, who immediately departed for their native homes. Many of these have since returned and are again working at the mines, as the forces have been increased this year at most of the properties. With the additional 200 hands, the Lake will be working a combined force of nearly 450.

Interest in baseball, which is this summer receiving more attention from the general public than at any previous time, is now indicated by the fact that after the outdoor season closes, as many indoor nines will then be ready to play the inside game.

There is still a considerable tonnage of ore in stock at the Lake, but judging from the heavy movement the past few weeks there will not be a great deal of it left by the close of navigation. It will not matter much if there is a good stockpile on hand, as a considerable tonnage of the output will be dumped at the Presque Isle docks the coming winter. There is more stocking room at the mine than there was a few years ago, and with the additional grounds at the port a larger output than has ever been produced in any previous winter season can be handled the coming winter.

The announcement of the increase in the working force at the Lake will be received with much satisfaction by people generally, and particularly by the business men. As there are not many men here, it is possible that the full number desired may be secured right away. As the Lake is a good mine to work in, it is quite probable that there will be not a few leaving their properties to take places there. This occurs every time there is an increase in the working force at any of the mines here, as there are always some men who will leave one job and accept another in the hope of bettering their condition.

MANAGER'S LIFE NOT A BED OF ROSES

THEATRICAL MAN DISCUSSES DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED IN BUSINESS THAT THE GENERAL PUBLIC HEARS LITTLE ABOUT.

FROM MORGAN'S CURB LETTER.

The metal in London experienced a sharp advance this morning, opening at 138, 1/2 higher. Later the price receded to 141, leaving a net gain for the day of 1/2. Our market did not respond in proportion, but electrolytic zinc was quoted 1/2 higher in the bid price, and producers are reluctant to sell in any large quantity at such high prices. The best judges of the situation look to see the metal sell five cents higher, and in any event a considerable advance from present prices is now under way. The market for the shares was strong throughout, with trading active and pretty well distributed. The principal gains were again in Amalgamated, Hancock and Copper, Utah Consolidated, North Butte, United States Mining and Lake Atlantic sold at 11. On the curb, Ohio Copper was up 1/2, and showed better tone than it has for some time past. San Antonio was more active and up a small fraction. Live Oak was in good request at 8 1/2, with no offerings of consequence in evidence. Cactus and Ohio Consolidated were steady but unchanged. We think this market will broaden out considerably before the week ends, and expect to see much higher prices. Buy them now. We like Atlantic, Butte Conditon, Groux, Greene Canaan, Shannon, Superior & Pittsburgh, Cactus, Ohio Consolidated, San Antonio and Cumberland Ely.

STORY OF "QUEEN ESTHER."

Production to Be Given by Local Talent Has Interesting Plot.

The story of "Queen Esther" which is to be produced at Ishpeming theater on the evenings of Friday and Monday, the 20th and 22nd, under the auspices of the First Episcopal church society and directed by Mr. and Mrs. George Hoves, is dramatic and beautifully told. Esther was a Jewish girl, thought that she was not generally known, educated and given in marriage to the king, Mordecai. She was finally chosen as queen by King Ahasuerus. When Haman, the king's favorite, became angered at Mordecai and all the Jews, he is persuaded by Mordecai to attempt their salvation through her. She is reluctant at first, as no one is allowed to go before the king unbidden, the penalty being death, unless the king decides to pardon the transgression. Esther finally decides to go before the king. He receives her graciously and she saves her husband and his plots and saves the Jewish people from slaughter.

This makes the average cost of our transportation about $1,000 a week, or $64,500 on a season of forty weeks. The transfer bills for hauling the scenery and equipment from the railway cars to the theater and return will average nearly $70 a day, or $19,600 for the season, to say nothing of the bills for printing, newspaper advertising, salaries, and other expenses.

"Actors are also under some expense, and things that seem to cost but a trifle run into large sums in a season. Each acting member of a company will use about five pounds of cold cream a week at a cost of $1 for each five-pound box. In a season the people of our company will spend $1,600 for cold cream alone, while it will take considerably in excess of this sum to supply them with grease paint and other articles used in their make-up."

"All things considered, there is very little money to be made in the show business. I venture the assertion that there is more money lost every year than there is made, because there are too failures for every success. First, a show has got to play New York to get a reputation. The average cost of a large musical show playing the first class theaters of New York is $5,000 a week, while many of them do not get out under $6,000. This means that they must play to big business at every performance to make a reasonable percentage on their investment. The life of a showman, or a showman, for that matter, is not a bed of roses, while many of the producers take chances that would fairly stagger many of the so-called big men in other lines of business. The 'Three Twins' company will play only a few of the one-night stands this season. It is in such request in the cities that Mr. Gaites would not be able to supply the demand for it with three or four road companies."

A TRIBUTE TO FATHER KEUL.

Rev. Father Keul of Ishpeming, formerly of St. Ignace's church in this city, has been spending a few days here as the guest of Rev. Father Mockler, also in visiting the Chambers family and other old friends, says the St. Ignace Enterprise. Father Keul is now in charge of the parish of St. John the Evangelist, at Ishpeming, large and important in its size and foremost in its activities, having five parochial schools for all grades. This gifted priest is known as one of the very best speakers among the clergy of the Marquette diocese; both in the pulpit and as a lecturer he is thoroughly at home. A charming manner readily makes him friends in all classes and denominations; even after a separation of several years it is doubtful if any man in the United States has been in regular operation near here for more than fifty years and is still in serviceable condition. This invention is in a class by itself and is the product of the ingenuity of a Mexican ranchman. This pump is situated upon the mountain of Charles, who uses it to lift the water for irrigating a large patch of ground. The water supply is obtained from a surface well over which the pumping apparatus is placed. The water is lifted into a wooden trough, which is elevated a few feet above the surface by means of a rotating water wheel of the crudest type. Attached to the ponderous wheel are tin cans at regular intervals. When the wheel revolves these cans are dipped into the water and, becoming filled, are lifted to the surface, and as they turn downward again the water is dumped into the trough. The spokes of the wheel are placed on one side so that the trough may get underneath the upper elevation of the rim. An iron pipe leads from the trough to the irrigating ditch, which conveys the water for distribution over the ground. A pair of small spoked wheels are used in this connection for turning the wheel. They are hitched to a long pole, which they pull around and around the well. Every part of the irrigating machine is handmade. It has withstood many years of almost constant use. This ancient method of irrigating the land has enabled many farmers to take up this locality. No small amount of inventive genius and skill is shown in its arrangement and construction.

MEXICAN WATER WHEEL STILL GRINDS IN TEXAS.

Alice, Texas, Aug. 11.—One of the most primitive and least improved irrigation systems in the United States has been in regular operation near here for more than fifty years and is still in serviceable condition. This invention is in a class by itself and is the product of the ingenuity of a Mexican ranchman. This pump is situated upon the mountain of Charles, who uses it to lift the water for irrigating a large patch of ground. The water supply is obtained from a surface well over which the pumping apparatus is placed. The water is lifted into a wooden trough, which is elevated a few feet above the surface by means of a rotating water wheel of the crudest type. The members of Joseph Atwell tent No. 937, Independent Order of Rechabites, will hold their annual picnic next Saturday at the Cleveland Park. Members will go down on special cars at 10 o'clock. It will be a basket picnic and in the afternoon the usual sports will be held, with appropriate prizes to the winners. Refreshments will also be served on the grounds. The members of the Negaunee tent have been invited and a large number are expected from there. The members will be pleased to have their Ishpeming friends join them.

PHILADELPHIA'S BOAST.

Chicago and New York doubtless have their uses. We must have pork and beef, and we must have a commercial metropolis, but it is hard to believe that anyone would willingly live in New York unless possessed of an income of a million or so a year.

In this city we live with comfort and a due sense of proportion. There are a few flats in the city, and they are not a people who don't need homes to fill them, but the average Philadelphian is wedded to his hearthstone. He owns his house and lives in it with pride and comfort, without ostentation.

Our advice to people in Chicago and New York is to come to Philadelphia to live, where habits may be born without the fear of the landlord, and where they may be nurtured in comfortable homes and brought up to be respected citizens.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

It is not strange that men lose the faculty of reverence when they do all their worshipping before a mirror.

SAFETY AT SEA.

Last year a thousand ships or more were lost; the year before the sea took nearly the same toll. To the tourist his assurance of safety lies in the fact that it is the sailing vessel, with its dependence on the fickle wind, that largely makes up the tremendous loss. Freight-lifting steamers, voyaging on unfamiliar coasts, nearly complete the disaster roll; but to the great liners, with their familiar routes, where well known lines of travel, their guard and well lighted harbors, and all their appliances for safety, the manifold dangers of the ocean are only the remote possibilities that give a touch of adventure to their passage from land to land. Every morning brings us some story of death or accident on land, while the great passenger ships come and go in pompous regularity, bringing no reports more stirring than those of high seas that have kept them from making new records. With the present mad rush for speed and fast attendant recklessness, our streets demand constant alertness if you would cross them with safety. Speed at sea has come through larger and more stoutly constructed ships. So the familiar old story of the sailorman at sea in a storm who, secure in his consciousness, to the sea room, plausibly ejaculates: "God help the poor folks ashore tonight!" is not wholly fantastic.—Century.

Negaunee Department

POOR MAN BACKED BY UNTOLD WEALTH

CAPTAIN THOMAS SHEA, WHO LIVED IN NEGAUNEE FOR A TIME WHEN A BOY, HAS A RECORD TO BE PROUD OF.

A recent issue of the Providence Sunday Journal of Providence, R. I., contained nearly a page story about Captain Thomas Shea telling how he received the appointment to the office of harbor master at Newport, R. I., together with his picture and illustrations of his boat, the "Carrie," which he has had in service in the harbor for nearly forty years. Captain Shea is a cousin of John and Alderman Daniel Shea of Negaunee. When he was a boy he and his father, in the fifties, spent a short time in Negaunee, shortly after their arrival from Ireland. Captain Shea's father died some years ago at Newport.

He and his family came to this country with his brothers, Patrick, John, Michael and Stephen Shea. The two former died in Negaunee within the past few years. Michael is still living here and Stephen is a resident of Ironwood.

Captain Shea was supported in his candidacy for the office of harbor master by men of great wealth. He was referred to as a skilful mariner, who has taught two generations to sail, shoot and fish. He guarded the rivers in that vicinity during the Civil war. The story relates some of his interesting experiences during storms, and recites a number of valiant deeds performed at the risk of his own life. It is asserted that perhaps no candidate for such an honorable position has ever had such strong endorsement from so many millionaires.

The following references to Mr. Shea are of interest:
"If from a consideration of the foregoing facts you arrive at the conclusion that Captain Tom is something of a personality in the fascinating little city at the mouth of the bay you will have made a close guess. Not being a resident of Newport, you may conceivably be excused for not knowing the doughty seaman. If you lived in Newport and did not know him, you would argue yourself distinctly out of touch with Newport life."
"For in Newport everybody knows him. This state of affairs was emphasized with unnecessary accent when the other day a visitor to the city, spying an old salt standing on the esplanade of Long wharf as he gazed persistently out across the waters, asked who was Newport's harbor master. It was a real old salt in spite of the freshness of his retort. "Huh, guess you're a stranger around here." The seaker after knowledge pleaded guilty, whereupon, in the presence of such unexpected meekness and ignorance, the old salt granted:

"Captain Tom Shea's harbor master. Hain't you never heard of him?"
"A few minutes later the question was repeated to a waiter in a restaurant, not this time for the purpose of acquiring knowledge as to identity, but merely to test a suspicion that Tom Shea was the real thing in Newport. This time the response came without any trimmings: "Captain Tom Shea, sir. If you want him you'll find him on Kingsley's wharf."
"Captain Tom Shea is today a man of between sixty and seventy. At just what point between does not matter. A native of Ireland, he arrived in Newport at a tender age in the care of his father, who rounded out his life as a gardener in a city where gardening has been elevated to the science of a fine art.
"But gardening was not to the lad's liking. The water world its spell on him, and as early as the time of what he calls 'the North and South war' he had begun his life work in a boat and was in the confidence of the admiral of that day, who became the admiral of a later period, and have mostly passed from the stage now.
"Presently Tom Shea became the owner of his ship, which he named the Carrie, and ever since that time the Carrie has been prominent in the Newport fleet. Perhaps a twenty-eight foot catboat does not deserve the name of ship, nevertheless in Captain Tom's hands the Carrie has done work of which far larger craft would not be ashamed, and the word may consequently be allowed to stand.
"Night and day, summer and winter since the late '60s or early '70s, the Carrie has been ready for any sort of adventure, frolic or fight, in which Tom Shea's patrons cared to engage. It has seen both.
"Since the news of his success in landing the position of harbor master was published, Captain Tom has been in receipt of letters of congratulation from all over the world. A young millionaire connected with the American embassy to Great Britain wrote to him in memory of the good days they had spent together shooting, fishing and drifting idly over the broad expanse of the bay. Another young millionaire sent his kindest regards to his friend Tom Shea and told of the sport he was having shooting snipe off the back of a camel in Egypt. A little boy of nine, heir to a great fortune, drove down to the humble Shea house on Kingsley's wharf in a respectful carriage to tell Tom he was glad he got the position and hoped it would not interfere with the boating lessons next summer.
"Nor should it be understood that all of his congratulations came from social exalted circles. The appointment was received along the water front and in the business places with as great satisfaction. The captain himself expressed the belief that were the office the gift of the electorate he would be assured of keeping it as long as he wanted to, but with the representative council electing there is little telling what turn he would make. To which John Giffin, Newport's veteran newspaper reporter, replied:
"I want to say to say that as long as Tom Shea lives there will never be another candidate for harbor master in Newport."

LINDQUIST GETS CONTRACT.

Negaunee Contractor Will Erect Scandinavian Society's Block.

The building committee for the Negaunee Scandinavian society has awarded Andrew Lindquist the contract for its new block, to be erected on the lot on Gold street purchased a few weeks ago from Charles Johnson. Four bids were received, the other three being from L. E. Chaussee of Negaunee and Wahlman & Sen and Albin Johnson of Ishpeming. There was less than $100 difference in the bids of the four contractors. Work on the excavating for the foundation will be started this morning, if the weather is favorable.
The society has adopted a unique plan for the payment of the property. Bonds are being issued to members and others desiring them, bearing interest at 5 per cent per annum, payable duty 1 of each year. The bonds are being issued in denominations of $10, $50 and $100, to the amount of $7,500. The lodge reserves the right to take up the bonds at any time it sees fit prior to July 1, 1919, when they will mature.
Oliver Johnson, chairman of the building committee, yesterday said that a number of applications have been received for the bonds, and that the committee will have no difficulty disposing of all of them. Most of the applicants want the $50 or $100 bonds.
The net earnings of the building will be placed in the building fund, to be used for the redemption of the bonds, and the officers of the society believe that they will be able to take up the last of the bonds long before their maturity, as the society is to pay a good rental for the hall on the second floor, and it is expected that the two stores on the first floor will also bring good rents. The extra money for rentals of the hall for socials, dances, or to other societies, will go to the building fund and not to the society, until such time as the last of the bonds are taken up. An application for one of the two store rooms has already been received.

OLSON'S PRIZE BAT.

Admirers of Ishpeming Ball Player Victims of Many Jibes.

Two of Negaunee's enthusiastic baseball fans, are strange to relate, great admirers of the Ishpeming team, and particularly of Len Olson, whom they contend is the greatest "slugger" in the league. Few will deny Olson's right to this distinction, as he has a greater number of two and three base hits to his credit than any other player in either of the four teams.
One of the fans, a countryman of Olsons, had a bat made specially for him with his name inscribed on it. The other fan was to present the bat at his Sunday's game, provided Olson distinguished himself with a big hit, but Len fell down, and the trophy was kept in the dark. Some of the Negaunee fans caught a glimpse of the fine stick, concealed under the seat of the man who had the presentation speech annexed, and they have since had no end of fun at his expense.

CREDITORS' SALE.

B. B. Frost, representing the Creditors' Association, arrived in the city Tuesday to take charge of a "creditors' sale," to be conducted at Peter Rasmussen's store for twelve days, commencing next Saturday morning. The object of the sale is fully explained in an advertisement in this issue. Mr. Frost has been instructed to raise $12,000, if possible, in order to satisfy Mr. Rasmussen's creditors, and he expressed the belief that he will have no difficulty reaching this figure in the specified time, as the stock is new. The store will be closed today and tomorrow, to permit of remarking the entire stock.

HEARD CARRIE NATION.

Henry Rasmussen, who arrived here Tuesday from a two weeks' visit with relatives near Mason City, Ia., heard Carrie Nation deliver a temperance lecture at Clear Lake, Ia. He drove ten miles to be present and many traveled even greater distances. The audience numbered over 2,000 people, each in whom paid fifty cents admission. Her talk was largely a review of her experiences, her story of how she decided to go into the "saloon smashing" business being particularly interesting.
