MARQUETTE, MICH., NOVEMBER 18, 1909.

Entered as mail matter of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

At the last report both Uncle Joe and Editor Ridder were standing pat.

Sensors Burrows and Smith might put all the offices in a bag, shake 'em up, and then draw blindly for 'em. But they won't.

We are informed that the sugar frauds have angered President Taft. Some of the rest of us also feel hot under the collar about them.

We have heard less about our gubernatorial candidates the past few days. Do we understand that they have stepped aside until after the holidays?

There seems to be a little difference of opinion as to who disclosed the sugar frauds. Wherever the credit belongs, the country holds that it was a mighty good job.

Judging from the number of reports of fatalities and accidents that have been received, the present hunting season is going to prove harder on the hunters than any other in recent years.

The seventeen Belvidere, Ill., soft drink dealers, who handled the stuff that cheers on the side, knew that the court was displeased with them, when it imposed fines aggregating $11,425.

The Gophers are confident that they will win Saturday's game. If the Wolverines are traveling at their true gait, the Gophers will have a big job on their hands to do it. Last time the teams met on the gridiron the count was 6 to 6. And on the games they have played this year they now appear to be equally well matched.

As bearing on the suggestion that the renaissance of former President Roosevelt was in any way responsible for a delay in the prosecution of the sugar trust for customs frauds, we have the statement of William Loeb, Jr., collector of customs at New York, that it was through the determination and influence of Roosevelt that the investigation of the frauds and the prosecutions were undertaken.

According to Loeb, he talked the matter over with Roosevelt before he took charge of the customs office, and had a well mapped out policy before he began to work. Roosevelt, in fact, had much to do with framing it. The intimation that he in any way hampered the investigation is preposterous.

The first fruit of the work of the prohibitionists appeared in this city yesterday when the list of signers of the local option petitions in the Second ward was posted. There were eighteen names on the list, which is far below the average to a precinct that must be obtained to secure the submission of the question.

However, the Second, the downtown ward where nearly all the saloon business is centered, is not particularly promising ground for prohibition workers, and in other precincts in the city a better showing will doubtless be made. It is understood that the local option petitions will be presented to the board of supervisors at its December meeting, and the statute requires that they be posted in the wards and precincts where they have been obtained at least ten days before their presentation.

The prohibition workers assert that the petitions will be sufficient, that they will carry enough names in excess of the number required to leave the necessary percentage even when the names that cannot properly be counted are culled out. In any event the county will soon know whether it is to be required to go through the throes of a local option election next spring.

Signs at Detroit point to an amicable settlement between the city and the D. U. R. of the terms on which the latter company will have the use of the streets for the operation of its railway lines.

This week the D. U. R. began paying the $300 daily license for the occupation of the streets, in accordance with the ordinance recently passed by the council. It has done this without any attempt to quibble over legal technicalities that might have been brought up, or without showing its teeth by curtailing or interfering with the service that has been given in been held in Great Britain for many decades, and will be contested with a heat and bitterness that has rarely been approached in the kingdom. Their issue is generally held by the most studious observers of British politics to be in doubt. The Liberal budget has appeared to be popular. Its principle of land taxes that will reach the undertaxed domains of the great nobles has apparently met with a wide approval among the masses.

But there will be arrayed against it the mighty power of the great land owners, supported by many conservative peers who are not land owners and by the liquor interests of the kingdom, also singled out by the budget for additional taxes. What they will be able to accomplish with a population that in all great crises has been shown to have an underlying strata of conservatism, even at times when it has appeared to be radical, remains to be determined. The fight will not be an unequal one.

The situation is one that directly concerns the entire world. The Liberal budget, with its many departures from the accepted order of taxation in the Kingdom, was framed to bring the increased income necessary to meet a deficit caused by the increasing scope of governmental expenditures. If the additional income is not provided by the budget, it must, it is generally admitted, be provided by a protective tariff. The budget would ultimately place much of the burden of raising the increased taxes directly on the rich. The effect of a tariff would be found burdensome to the middle class, and poor, through increasing the cost of living. And in the present state of industrial organization in the Kingdom it is doubtful whether there would be any general increase in wage rates, to correspond with this increased cost.

In the elections it appears that the elements opposed to the budget must urge a protective tariff as an alternative measure. It needs no argument to show that when Great Britain adopts the principle of a protective tariff there will have to be a complete overhauling of present trade relations between the nations. A defeat of the Liberals in the elections would, therefore, have a world-wide significance.

STRANGE OMISSION. "Here is another curious thing," said the sub-editor. "Well," the chief replied, after waiting for him to proceed, "I'm listening. What is it?"

"A tourist who is writing about his travels in Europe refers to the Germans without calling them phlegmatic."—Chicago Record-Herald.

COUNTRY TO DECIDE. Lord Lansdowne's announcement of the resolution that he will present in the house of lords settles in advance the fate that the Liberal budget will meet with when it is considered by that body. The Liberal peers are only about forty in number and they will be outvoted probably eight to one on the balloting on Lord Lansdowne's resolution not to consent to the bill until it has been accepted by the country.

The adoption of this resolution will, it is conceded, force a general election early next year, probably in January. Though the Liberal majority in the house will pronounce the effort of the Lords to force a dissolution as unconstitutional, there is no way in which the Liberals will in regard to the budget can be obtained except by the confirmation of their fiscal plans by the country, in returning another Liberal majority to the house of commons. If that is done the country will have pronounced favorably on the budget, and the house of lords will have to accept it or invite a struggle for the drastic curtailment of the power it has now arrogated to itself to interfere with a financial bill. And if a fight is made on the house of lords, it will not stop at this, but will, in the end, doubtless embrace a demand for the practical emancipation of that body.

The coming elections, it will be seen, will be the most momentous that have

MICHIGAN POLITICS

Collector John B. Whelan faces the political ax because of the promise made by Senator Smith that Philip McMillan should dictate the Detroit federal appointments for the assistance the McMillan forces gave Senator Smith in his election, writes J. E. Worthington in the Grand Rapids Press. Had it not been for the arrival of the McMillan forces Senator Smith might not have been nominated.

Messrs. E. D. Stair and McMillan are after Mr. Whelan because they don't believe he played fair with William C. McMillan in that same political squabble. They believe that while ostensibly for William C. McMillan, Whelan was in reality knitting him and claim to have evidence to support their belief.

So though Collector Whelan has served but one term and is traditionally entitled to a second, he faces the ax. Senator Smith has promised his support to H. P. Hetherington, managing editor of the Journal, and there remains but the consent of Senator Burrows to complete Mr. Whelan's downfall.

It is certain Senator Burrows feels it is unjust and impolitic to drop Whelan in this way, but whether he will go so far as to stand for his retention is doubtful. In the first place Whelan was not his appointee, but one of the late Senator Alger's and it is doubtful if Senator Burrows will want to jeopardize his friendly relations with Mr. Stair and Mr. McMillan for the sake of an abstract principle. But it is equally certain he does not feel the kindest toward Senator Smith for putting him in the same awkward position in regard to this matter that he is in with regard to the appointment of Tad Smith's successor at Marquette.

Editor-Representative L. C. Cramton of Lapeer, who was never accused of being too friendly with William E. Brown, the lawyer-manager of the Montgomery gubernatorial campaign, prints a story in the Lapeer Clarion to the effect that Mr. Brown will manage the gubernatorial campaign in return for aid in the state convention after the primaries for his own nomination as attorney general. It is easy to imagine the reaction of Montgomery and the other members of the executive committee of the Montgomery gubernatorial campaign, which this announcement will be met by Rogers and Wykes of Grand Rapids, William C. Smith of St. Johns, Grant Fellows of Hudson and the other gentlemen who have been suspected of yearnings to become attorney general themselves.

A LITTLE BIT ABOUT EVERYTHING. Mexican Railways. Mexico is learning to run her own railways, which are lessening the number of foreign employes. There are now six railroads in the city of Mexico and other cities of the country, all being established for the purpose of teaching the natives how to railroad.

The schools are maintained by the Mexican government and the students are taught the art of bookkeeping, running a locomotive and managing trains as conductors. The term of school for one student is one year, and by that time the man learning by their method is expected to qualify himself for any one of the three positions named.

Practical experience counts for naught, and the only real training is that the student has undergone training of one year in school for the position he assumes. The foreign dispatchers were the first to go from the country, and they will be followed by engineers and conductors.

Biggest School for Nurses. The Philadelphia School for Nurses is said to be the largest of the kind in the world. In the last year nearly 11,000 patients were supplied with nurses. Fully four-fifths of this service is said to have been gratuitous. At present a large number of two-year scholarships are available to young women throughout the country, the preference being given to applicants from small towns and rural districts. These scholarships include room, board, laundry work, uniforms, all necessary instruction and railroad fare paid to the student's home town on the completion of the course.

Michigan's Oldest Woman. Mrs. Edward Jones, who has just lost her son at the age of eighty years, makes her home with the Sisters of Mercy at the hospital in Big Rapids, Mich. She is now nearly 105 years old, and is still in good health and remarkably vigorous. She has the mother of eleven children, four of whom are living. Her descendants number 108 persons, and include five generations. Her maiden name was Catherine Duffy and she is of Irish descent and a devout Catholic.

Mrs. Jones will see and hear well, despite her advanced age and has a good memory. She remembers when the city of Detroit was a village of a few scattering log cabins, and vividly recalls that as a girl she saw Indians there armed with tomahawks, often with roasting spears dangling at their belts, at which she would see the terror-stricken to the cover of the nearest bed.

A LAUGH OR TWO. The Swiftest Yet. William H. Hibbs, the Washington broker, has a big country place just outside of Leesburg, Va. He put a large searchlight on top of his stone water tower, and from time to time, at night, amuses himself by throwing the light around the country.

One night the summer Hibbs was on the tower playing with the searchlight. A Virginian, driving a skittish team, hitched to a surrey in which there were two ladies, was coming along a road leading to Leesburg and was about four miles from the village.

Hibbs threw the searchlight down the road. "Gosh darn it!" exclaimed the Virginian, "here comes one of those pesky automobiles." He jumped out and took the horses by the heads. The light continued on the road for half a minute and then switched away. The Virginian stood stupefied. Then he turned to the ladies and said, in an awed voice: "Jeerusalem! That automobile must be going fast. It's gone by, and I didn't even see it."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

The Open Minded Bell Boy. John Drew deposited his elegant length in a faded orchard at the Players' club the other night. A new bellboy was on duty in the hall. By and by some one telephoned a message for Frank Daniels.

"Here's there, somewhere," said the man at the other end of the wire impatiently. "Go find him. I know he isn't want to come to rehearsal tonight, but he must. Don't let him stand you off."

The new bell boy looked about, and determined that John Drew, slender and elegant, was Frank Daniels, short and puffy. So he approached Mr. Drew with the message. Mr. Drew waved him impatiently away. "That message is not for me," said he.

"Aw, rats!" said the new bell boy. "I know it is for you. What's your name, anyhow?"

"I am John Drew," said the actor, kindly.

"Truffles," said the bell boy. "I believe your name is Frank Daniels."

"My boy," said Mr. Drew, gazing compassionately down upon the arch, "a boy who would believe that would believe anything."—New York Press.

Generous—Very. "Once upon a time there lived a good man who was soliciting contributions for the erection of an orphan asylum," said the story teller. "He had been to many rich people and received liberal contributions which were entered in a book he had for that purpose. Among these many names that appeared Mrs. Rupert Smythe. The good man went to Mrs. Smythe's office an showing him the contribution entered by Mrs. Smythe, asked if he would not give a like sum. And what do you suppose he did?"

"Well, I suppose he doubled it," remarked the listener.

"Doubled it? Not Rupert," exclaimed the teller of the story. "Why, he simply took his pen and wrote 'Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Smythe' and handed the book back."—Answers.

A Premeditated Insult. An exceedingly unpopular man once contrived to secure his election to a very well known London club, but soon managed to make himself generally disagreeable to his fellow members by continually posing and swaggering on the entrance steps.

One morning, shortly after he had taken up his customary position, a prominent member of the club, Major Dash, came up to him and said, with quiet sarcasm: "Look here, K—, I could get up a subscription of five hundred pounds for you if you'd only take your name off the books."

K—rushed off to a friend with the story. "What do you think?" he shouted. "I have just been outrageously insulted by that Major Dash. He said that if I'd take my name off the club books, he'd get me up a £500 subscription for me!"

"Well," replied the friend, "don't take it. Hold out a bit and you'll get a thousand."—Punch & Dietrich.

PRIMITIVE. A Washington diplomat was laughing the other day over a letter from Ernest Lyon, the American consul to Liberia. "Lyon," said the diplomat, "had been making a trip from Monrovia into the interior. He described in his letter the very primitive people he met with on his journey. He got off rather a neat thing about women. The young women of these regions," he wrote, "suggest the prophet to you—she has so little on her in her own country."

MENOMINEE CHALLENGES.

Houghton Football Honor Not Conceded by the Sawmill Team.

The following is from the Menominee Herald-Leader: "By defeating Ishpeming, Houghton claims the championship of the peninsula. We dispute it. The Menominee High school, through its athletic authorities and faculty, formally challenge Houghton to a return game to decide the supremacy of northern Michigan. The game between them two weeks ago was won by Houghton, a fluke, on which no clear decision was rendered and which has created a good deal of dissatisfaction. The local players do not want to be considered a crowd of squealers, but they do feel that they are entitled to a fair contest with the Houghton boys, and are just asking to get it. This offer is made because the athletic authorities here believe that the victory—so-called—which Houghton gained over Menominee was no victory, and they hope that the copper country authorities and team will see it the same way and give them a chance to demonstrate it by taking them on. Failing to have their challenge accepted, Menominee refuses to recognize Houghton's championship claims, except that what title they possess was won unfairly."

Principal Kelley of the Houghton High school was yesterday. He said there is no possibility of the challenge being accepted, because Houghton won a clean victory and there is no necessity for it. School and college athletics are conducted that way. Menominee was beaten fairly, and should be satisfied.

BEGINS CIVIL CALENDAR.

Houghton County Circuit Court Disposes of Criminal Business.

Following the conclusion of the Victor Borich case yesterday morning the circuit court took up the first civil case on the calendar. This case is that of Daniel T. McDonald of Laurium vs. the Houghton County Traction company and it is a suit for killing a dog, charged from a lower court by the defendant. Mr. McDonald says the dog was a valuable animal; the company contends that it was lame and blind in one eye.

The Borich case was a prosecution on a charge of abandonment. Borich left Calumet two years ago for Chicago, Minn., and left his wife and family in Calumet. The wife sold her furniture and followed him. He was working in a mine and on Aug. 23 last year he left presumably to go to work in Hibbing. She never saw him again until he turned up last September in Calumet, according to her testimony. In the meantime the great Chisholm fire occurred and Mrs. Borich lost everything. She and the children were destitute and were taken to Duluth, whence she was sent to Calumet with four passages and $15 in money given by the Duluth relief committee. At Calumet Mrs. Borich at once became a county charge, has been so for over a year. She swears that in all that time she had not heard from Borich or received any message from him until he turned up in Calumet again. The case went to the jury yesterday morning and a verdict of guilty was returned.

NOTES OF COPPER NEWS.

The October product of the Calumet-Arizona was 1,180 tons of blister copper; that of the Superior & Pittsburg was 1,042 tons.

The Arizona Commercial Copper company is making substantial progress in its development as an active producer of copper. It is not rushing production, but it is now outputting ten tons of copper a day, which is at the rate of $100,000 pounds a month. Its plant is in a position to produce 1,000,000 pounds a month at a nine-cent cost whenever it is considered desirable to increase beyond the present scale of operations.

Robert H. Gross, president of the East Butte, says: "The East Butte has the greatest independent copper mining plant in Butte today and is a greater producer in the copper industry of Montana than most people realize. Its shipments are increasing every month. It will put a second furnace in commission to handle custom ore, of which a considerable quantity is now being offered. The company will be able to make profit on it and plans are being made to further enlarge the smelter."

At the annual meeting of the stockholders, held yesterday, President Amster, of the Shannon company, outlined the operations for the year ended Aug. 30. The total output was 17,682,000 pounds of copper, a slight increase over last year. The net profits were about $4,650 less, due to the fact that the management did not care to increase profits at the expense of the mine. On the present copper market there is no possible chance for a dividend on Shannon, but President Amster thinks that with copper selling at 15 cents a pound a small dividend would be possible.

The American Metal Market says that the copper market was flooded Tuesday with inquiries from buyers all over the country and, as one dealer says, the buyers seem to have had their nerves shaken by the daily advance in prices and by the consolidation racket. Monday afternoon some of the producers raised their prices to 13 1/2 cents for electro, and Tuesday there was no sellers below that figure. So far as we can find, Lake copper has advanced from 13 1/2 to 13 3/4 and producers for the most part are asking 13 1/2 and will not look for orders for delivery later than January.

Some entirely new and important ore bodies are now being developed at the Calumet & Arizona which promise a large increase in the ore reserves. The discovery was made in the Gibraltar

ANNUAL HOCKEY MEETING.

Houghton Club Will Be Represented by Manager Coze and C. Harg.

The annual meeting of the Copper Country Amateur Hockey League will be held tonight in the Hotel Saginaw, Houghton, and it will be attended by four Houghton delegates—W. E. Fairbairn, vice-president of the league; John T. McNamara, as manager of the Amphidrome, and Manager John Coze and Charles Harg, as delegates from the club. The Houghton club goes to the meeting with no demands and few suggestions. It will put on the ice this winter the same team as last, including Harg in goal, Trathen point, Shea cover point, Bourbonnais center, Giette rover and Heinz and Mahan wings.

The hockey season opens in Cleveland December 4. It is probable that on the teams in the Ohio city at least three players will be again from Duluth. Al Cummings, who plays hockey at that place last winter, is lined up with the Salmons. Eddie Winters will play with the Cleveland and George McLaughlin is lined up with the same team.

Cleveland managers are hot after Duluth hockey players, and Roy Deetz and Ed. Furni are the men most desired. However, an injury while playing the same some two years ago, it is probable that Deetz will not play for some time to come. Furni is as yet undecided as to whether or not he will accept. The teams will all be stronger this year than last, and the biggest season ever experienced in Cleveland is being looked for.

NATIONAL GUARD MATTERS.

Colonel J. N. Cox Arrives—Light Infantry Inspection Tonight.

Colonel J. N. Cox, assistant adjutant general of the Michigan National Guard, was in Houghton yesterday morning, arriving from Lansing at Calumet. The previous night, Colonel Cox stated that National Guard matters were very quiet; there had been less doing in the last three months than he had ever known. In regard to politics, in lower Michigan, Colonel Cox said that he did not believe sentiment had overshadowed any one gubernatorial candidate as yet.

Colonel Cox will probably be present tonight at the monthly inspection of the Houghton Light Infantry which will be conducted by Major Reckel. The prizes offered for efficiency are a rifle donated by J. E. Swift company, a hat from Joseph Seidenthal and a box of cigars from W. H. Dee Gagar company. Captain Foley said yesterday that he believed the monthly contests are having a good effect on the company, which is a healthy company and is steadily recruiting good new material.

FUNERAL OF JAMES NORTON.

Ewen Lumberman Laid at Rest—A Tribute to His Memory.

The remains of James Norton, the Ewen lumberman who died Sunday, were laid at rest in the Ewen cemetery yesterday morning, after services at the Catholic church. The obsequies were held by a large number of people from every part of Ontonagon county, a delegation of forty going from Ontonagon village. W. R. Adams, prosecuting attorney of Ontonagon, and Fred Hall of that place, came through Houghton en route to the funeral. Mr. Adams spoke of his dead friend. "He was a man among men and would give anyone anything he had. To the poor of Ontonagon county he was one of the best friends, and his charity was never talked of by himself."

This drift passes through a portion of the Senator claim and enters the Senator No. 2 and Buckeye claims, a short distance of something less than 1,000 feet before entering the Gibraltar claim. The Calumet & Arizona's new find is regarded as the most important event in the company's development in several years.

The New Arcadian has decided to thoroughly explore that part of its property known as the Highland, which extends from the eastern sandstone to the Quincy mine and from the shore of Porajie lake fully a mile north. This property formerly comprised that of the Highland Mining company and was acquired by the Arcadian some eight or nine years ago, but nothing in the way of exploratory work has been done. The Baltic, Kearsarge, and other wellknown ores traverse this portion of the New Arcadian lands, and a cross-section of the entire property will be made by diamond drill. Its low price, however, given the contract yesterday and will not a drill to work immediately. The other drill at work on the Arcadian property has attained a depth of some 875 feet. This drill hole will be completed to a depth of 1,300 feet, to intersect the Baltic lode.

The Boston Financial News had the following to say in its issue yesterday: "In the past few days there has been a veritable copper boom in the Boston market, the trading each day being larger than at any time for months, about two-thirds, or 80,000 shares, of the one trading yesterday was in the stocks which have been prominently mentioned as likely to be taken into the copper consolidation, Greene Cananea alone furnished over 25,000 shares of the day's trading and was easily the most active issue for a year past. Its low price, however, is a favorite with the small trader as well as with the professional operator. In the midst of the excitement there is here and there a note of conservatism sounded. There have been so many wild statements made regarding the consolidation that perhaps the realization of the fact may not bring about all that was expected."

The following was sent out from Boston yesterday: During the past fortnight there have been sales of copper exceeding 125,000,000 pounds, and there continues a good demand from consumers on both sides of the Atlantic. The consumers are carrying no stocks to speak of, neither are they likely to build January. In summing up conditions, an independent seller of upwards of 100,000,000 pounds of copper a year says: "There are some facts which should be remembered when discussing the copper situation. One fact is that consumers' yards are practically bare of supplies. Specifications which we are receiving are calling for shipment as quickly as possible. We have not been approached regarding any merger, and there is no reason why we should. The trade should benefit from a combination, and we should not probably see higher prices for the metal."

It now appears that the swain who sends bouquets to the girl whose heart he wants to touch is acting strictly in accordance with scientific principles, though he may not know it. Sugar makes people effeminate. Professor Alankiewicz, of Vienna, says so. At the eighty-first German Natural Science and Medical congress, held a short time ago at Salzburg, the professor declared that the beating of the heart depended upon the amount of sugar in the food, and not at all, as commonly supposed, upon anatomical arrangements. The more sugar, the more beats, and consequently the more love.

NEW NATIONAL MUSEUM.

It Will Cost When Complete Three Million Five Hundred Thousand. Not a Government Building; It Belongs to the People—The Two Old Buildings Will Be Used for Arts and Industries; The New One Is for the Nature Side—A Million Visitors Every Year.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The new building for the National Museum will be completed shortly. It covers more space than any government building in Washington except the Capitol. Ten acres of floor space are within its walls. It will have cost when completed about $3,500,000.

It is not called a government building, said Richard Rathbun, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, in charge of the National Museum. "It belongs to the people of the United States."

The two old buildings on the Mall now occupied by the Smithsonian Institution and the National Museum will not be abandoned when the new building is occupied. They will be devoted to the arts and industries. The new structure is for the nature side; for man in his (biological and archaeological) aspects. In time, congress willing, another great building will be devoted to the arts and industries exclusively will be erected on the Mall.

The contents of the new building will eventually be of more importance than the building itself, but the structure alone will draw attention, another great building of the tourist. The new building is situated on the Mall directly in front of the Smithsonian Building, which it faces. It is a massive and dignified granite structure, four stories high, with a frontage of 361 feet, a depth of 365 feet and a height of 54 feet. It is reached from Pennsylvania avenue through Tenth street.

Description of the Building. The principal external feature of the building is a large square pavilion at the middle of the south side, terminating in four pediments, one on each face, at some distance above the main roof. Enclosed by the pavilion is a rotunda eighty feet in diameter, with four massive ornamental piers supporting a curved ceiling reaching a height of 127 feet 7 inches. The south pavilion contains the main entrance, sheltered by a portico supported by heavy Corinthian columns, of which there are six in the outer row.

Aside from the south pavilion, the exterior of the building is practically without ornamentation, and the same is true in a general way of the interior. The purpose of the building is evident from the outside. The window openings predominate, being everywhere, except in the upper story, much wider than the intervening piers. Indiana limestone constitutes the principal finish for the rotunda.

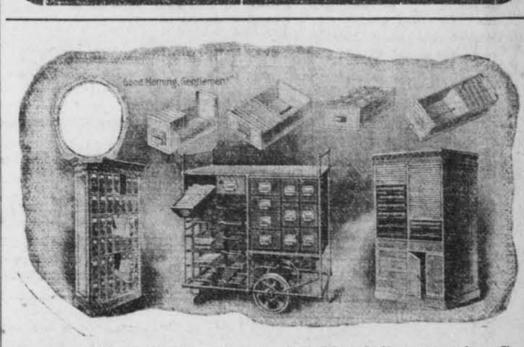

The ground plan of the building has a general rectangular outline, but fundamentally it consists of three main wings joined to the south pavilion in the shape of the letter T. The main story presents a continuous floor space, and in order to light it in the middle part of each wing a ceiling light is placed beneath a roof skylight. The open construction is the main feature of the wings, and furnishes three exceptionally large halls well adapted to the exhibition of collections for the public. By means of screens the lateral sections can be partly cut off from the skylighted area, and divided into apartments so as to meet the varying requirements of installation without destroying the architectural effect of the hall as a whole. The second floor, like the first floor, will be utilized for public exhibition. The third story is divided into rooms for laboratories, for the storage of collections, and for the general administrative offices.

Almost a Million Visitors. That the people of the United States are interested in the National Museum is indicated by the fact that nearly one million people visit it annually. The museum originated through the act of Congress of 1846 founding the Smithsonian Institution. That act made the formation of a museum one of the principal functions of the Smithsonian Institution. The nucleus for such a museum was furnished by the collection of minerals, which was made in 1840, whose collections, derived from both official and private sources, were given accommodation in the Patent Office Building. The Centennial Exhibition of 1876 at Philadelphia was the means of bringing together a very large amount of material to be preserved and exhibited permanently. Fortunately for the museum the greater part of this material was donated to the government. Upon the arrival of these collections in Washington there being no space available for their display, it was necessary to store them in boxes in which they were shipped. This condition stimulated early action by congress, which authorized the old museum building on the mall at an outlay of $250,000. That building was completed in 1881. It is less than five miles from the National Institute, and remained unoccupied. From that time to the present the storage of reserve collections has gone on. All of the large shops and many of the large laboratories also had to be provided for in rented buildings. This condition of things existing in 1881, it is that the new building as well as the two old buildings will be fully stocked from the day the new building is opened. Indeed, with the floor space taken in these three buildings there will still be a reserve collection which would go far toward stocking a second new building of the size of the one soon to be thrown open to the public.

Scope of the Museum. The scope of the National Museum as defined by law practically comprises all branches of science and the arts which admit of museum treatment. The subjects best represented by the collections now displayed or to be displayed after the new building is occupied are American ethnology and archaeology, geology, zoology and botany. Assistant Secretary Rathbun says that a fair beginning has been made in the exceeding important branches of the industrial arts and American history, and that all that is required to place these two departments on a fine basis is room to display the collections. Some valuable art collections have been presented to the museum, and there are promised for importation the Indian collection of 1903 Charles L. Freer of Detroit, bequeathed his entire collection of paintings to the Smithsonian Institution. He

Miss Regina Smith, of Milwaukee, a member of the National Association of Masters of Dancing, and of the Professional Teachers of Dancing of America, will be in Marquette next week to undertake the organization of dancing classes.

A card party was given at the home of Mrs. Tom Shan, Washington street, Tuesday evening. First prize was won by Mrs. Katherine McPartland and the second by Miss Agnes Rivers. Lunch was served and an enjoyable evening was spent.

A special meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the residence of Mrs. I. O. Bell, 518 Oak street, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The gathering will be addressed by Miss Maggie Walz, who wishes to outline her plan for utilizing the Hotel Superior.

Walter Dodds, the mysterious stranger who told Tuesday night of his father and two brothers having been killed in the woods near Channing, seems to have disappeared and his tale is generally believed to have been a fake. A dispatch to The Mining Journal from Watertown, N. Y., last night said: "No Walter Dodd is known here."

Miss Walz's Lecture—A crowd of fair size turned out last evening to listen to the lecture given by Miss Maggie Walz in the Methodist church. Miss Walz outlined in a general way her work among the Finnish people and told some of the things that have been done at the Drummond Island settlement. Her talk was of great interest, especially to W. C. T. U. workers.

First Basketball Game—The basketball season will be inaugurated in Marquette Friday evening with a game at Legion Hall between the Ferguson Business college and the Michigan College of Mines. Nearly a hundred of the M. C. M. students are expected in the city Friday to visit the Pioneer furnace, which assures that the visiting team will have its full share of supporters. Dancing will follow the game.

Died of Apoplexy—Robert McCombie, aged twenty, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McCombie, Norwood street, passed away yesterday afternoon, following an apoplexy stroke. The boy was taken sick while working at Gwin last week and was brought home Friday evening, since which time he has steadily declined. Besides his parents, he leaves two brothers and two sisters. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Fine Supper for Firemen—The arrangement committee for the annual banquet of the firemen's association, to be given at Fraternity Hall Wednesday evening, has decided to have the Lady Victory court, C. O. F., serve the supper. The ladies of this organization have a reputation for fine suppers for occasions of the kind. The guests will be served in the third story of the Fraternity block, so that the guests will not have to leave the hall. The firemen are planning new and elaborate decorations for the event, and promise to make the hall unusually attractive. The grand march, which is made one of the features of the firemen's program, will be held at 10:30.

Likes Marquette-Negaunee Road—Ben J. Willesen, of the Michigan Auto company, who has been in the iron country and Marquette for the last two weeks demonstrating the Chalmers-Detroit car, speaks very favorably of the Marquette county highways. He broke into rhapsodies over the road between Marquette and Negaunee and said that there was nothing in this part of the country to compare with it. He suggested that spots in the road between Ishpeming and Gwin might well be improved. Mr. Willesen says that there are not as many automobiles in the iron as in the copper country, but expects that quite a number of cars will be purchased locally for the coming spring.

Many Boats Seek Refuge—The harbor was well filled with lake vessels yesterday, which had sought a haven of safety from the snow and gale blowing on Lake Superior. So far as has been learned, there have been no accidents or loss of life from the storm in this immediate vicinity, though the crews of the vessels in the harbor tell of thrilling experiences. The vessel which was sighted near the Choccolay shore Tuesday afternoon was the Samuel Mather, an yesterday morning she entered the harbor. Other vessels that made this port after considerable difficulty are the Grammar, Centurion, England and Luzon. Owing to the continuance of the rough weather, no boats were loaded at either of the docks yesterday.

"The Alaskan" Coming—H. P. Hill was in Marquette yesterday, arranging for the appearance of "The Alaskan" at the Marquette Opera House the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 23. "The Alaskan" will play but three dates in the upper peninsula, appearing, besides in Marquette, in Ishpeming on the 24th and in Houghton on the 25th and going from the latter city to Duluth for three nights. "The Alaskan" was presented here last spring, and shortly after that engagement started in on a five months run as one of the summer shows in Chicago. It was largely rewritten for Chicago. The comedy element in it being given more prominence. Gus Weinberg and Richard Carroll are the principal humorists this season, and they are supported by a large company.

INSURE WITH PETER WHITE & CO.

DEER IN LITTLE VERMONT.

Stated That Nearly 5,000 Were Killed in Six Days in That State.

To those of us who are accustomed to think of Vermont as a stony and mountainous farming country, where only parsimonious Yankee farmers would be able to eke out a living, the statement that between 4,000 and 5,000 deer were shot in that state during the first six days of November comes as quite a surprise. In that state the season lasts but six days and the following concerning deer and the deer laws in Vermont should be of some local interest:

"The snook of the deer season has cleared away and it is estimated that between 4,000 and 5,000 deer were killed in the state during the six days for hunting them. About 60 per cent of these were does. Last year the number of bucks reported killed was 2,200. Washington county takes the lead for the largest number slain with over 1,000 already reported, while Danbury surpasses other towns with 113 reported. Many people are speculating on whether more than a year's normal increase had been slaughtered. A year ago Commissioner H. G. Thomas of Stowe estimated that there were between 30,000 and 40,000 deer in the state while President Maxwell Everts of the Vermont Fish and Game League placed his conjecture as high as 50,000. If we take a conservative estimate of 30,000, largely does, it is quite probable that from 10,000 to 15,000 fawns have been raised during the past year. Thus the killing of 5,000 will not curtail the supply for next year. The sportsmen of the mountain districts estimate that less than 5 per cent of the deer in their sections have succumbed to the hunter. The forests have been full of tracks and traces of deer since the open season closed. It is thought that the damage to crops will be greatly reduced next year as a large number of the half-toned deer have either been shot or frightened so that they will be more timid in the farming districts. Thus on the whole the new deer law seems to be a success for this year."

The slaughter in the upper peninsula during the twenty days' season has been variously estimated at from 5,000 to 10,000 annually.

UNCLE SAM'S TITLE TO THE POLE INVALID. Not at All Likely Nation Will Assert Sovereignty.

State Department Not Seriously Considering the Matter of Commander Peary's Formal Taking Possession of Icy Region.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Although the officials of the state department studiously avoid committing themselves on the subject, it is an open secret that they have given no serious consideration to Commander Peary's telegraphic report that he formally took possession of the entire region adjacent to the north pole April 6, "in the name of the president of the United States."

That report was received at the state department Sept. 11. So far as known it has not been the subject of any official action.

In repeating his claim, Commander Peary added that he had left a record and a United States flag in possession of the pole. According to international usage title to newly discovered territory can only be legally established by occupation.

Regardless of the rights in the matter, it is hardly likely that any nation will attempt to establish settlements with the usual paraphernalia of government in the polar region. Officials agree that it would be foolish, if not futile, to wrangle over national title to a region ever to have visited and which may never be visited by another. If the pole be in an open sea, beyond the ordinary territorial distance from the nearest land, even though it be on a field of ice which might be grounded upon the bottom of that sea, it is held that no power can claim title to it, for it is a part of the high seas. But if it be within three miles of the shore, or even, if it be on dry land, practically the same is to be said, because no power could confirm the inchoate title of discovery by actual occupation.

Such confirmation by occupation is held to be necessary for the establishment of title. Possession and occupation must be effected by an authoritative expedition sent thither for that purpose. Of course, the very nature of the case precludes the possibility that such occupation will ever be made.

Other Arctic Titles. Title has, indeed, been established to some arctic lands, such as Greenland, Iceland, Lapland, and some of the lands north of the Hudson bay. But actual possession has been taken of them and they have been occupied and utilized.

On the other hand Spitzbergen, though various nationalities have vied in discovering and exploring it, remains to this day a no man's land. Sweden and Norway, before their separation, attempted to claim it, but were opposed by Russia, and withdrew their pretension. Now Norway, whose actual interest in it is probably greatest, has called for an international conference which shall establish its permanent status.

HAD CLOSE CALL.
Man Recently Injured at Cleveland Lake to Leave Sunday for Old Country.

Harry Trenoweth, who came nearly losing his life at the Cleveland Lake mine a week ago Monday, as a result of a fall of ground, was able to be out yesterday for the first time since he was injured. He was working in a drift when some dirt came down and crushed in the timbers under which he was employed. He was thrown to one side, otherwise his life would have been crushed out, as enough dirt came down to bury him completely. He was held fast for over an hour, while his fellow workmen were getting him out. He received several painful injuries, including a dislocation of a knee and a badly bruised foot.

Mr. Trenoweth will leave Sunday night for his native place in England, where his family resides. This will be the twelfth time that he has crossed the ocean in the past seventeen years, his last trip having been made nine months ago.

LAURIER'S NAVY PLANS.

Canadian Premier Proposes Seven Warships for Coast Defense.

These to Be Useful in Fisheries, but Ready at a Moment for Offense and Defense—Sir Wilfrid's Difficult Position from Which He Rescues Himself by His Straightforward Insistence Upon His Position as a True Father to All the People.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The correspondent in Ottawa has had five talks with Sir Wilfrid Laurier within the past ten days on the projected Canadian navy. To explain the premier's intention and attitude on the subject, without reporting him, or committing any breach of confidence, is the purpose of this article.

Sir Wilfrid does not approach the question from the point of view of any of the disputants who are now billing Canadian air with assertions that this plan of navy-creation, or that plan, or no plan should be resorted to. He looks at the thing solely as a high political question of Canadian interest, arising from an agitation that has naturally sprung from the competition between Great Britain and Germany, an agitation disturbing to Canadian harmony, and one to be met by him in a way to increase Canadian harmony, which is the prime ambition of his heart, his life.

He is a French and Catholic premier. A large and important element, one amounting, in his opinion, to a clear majority of the English-speaking people of Canada, wish his government to propose a plan which shall at least relieve Great Britain of responsibility for its destruction by Canada's wars or in military operations. Another large element, possibly a majority of French Canadians, wish his government to either do nothing, or to go very slowly, to take care that Canadian autonomy be absolutely guarded, to deal so that Canada shall not be newly implicated in Britain's wars or in military operations. The reconciliation of these apparently but not really irreconcilable attitudes in his business.

Public accord is his care. He may himself believe that there is not any real danger that need be feared from any coast defense. But he finds many worthy Canadians who think there is need for that, and more. If he were an English-Protestant premier, he might, and probably would, address himself to the British element, with endeavor to persuade these people that Canada is in no danger, nor Great Britain either. But he, being more or less distrustful by a considerable part of the British element, cannot so address that element without bringing not only his loyalty to British ideas, but also the like loyalty of French Canadians under new imputation, and this at a time of some excitement, wherefrom dangerous dissensions might arise to the body politic. Hence, to maintain harmony, not for his own sake, nor for his party's sake, but for the country's sake, an expense not so truly incurred for a navy as for "Canada first" for Canada's internal peace, for union of Canadian hearts. Laurier feels and will act in this business as Pater Patrie. It is as if the loving father of a family in danger of quarrel should say, "Children, agree for love's sake, for the sake of peace in our own household. Do so, because this shall we create a new bond between ourselves." For that purpose a few millions is as nothing. To such a temper be sure that the French and British will alike respond, as in the past. In comparison with Laurier's spirit the clamorers for this or that or nothing, those ready to sink if their own plan or fail be not followed, the flippant, the fearful, the various advisers assailed by some theory of what details should be pursued, appear small, narrow, stupid, given to petty views.

It may be said that the Laurier attitude does not promise anything useful in coast defense or navy. But the premier is, with all his humane and truly Christian disposition at the same time, a first rate man of business. He is not going to be guided by amateurs as to what shall be done in accordance with British-Canadian urgings. The amount to be expended soon, and for which Canada shall stand engaged later, will be expended on the advice of high British experts. The money, in all some twelve millions, will be put into vessels useful to fisheries service, yet capable of fighting anything of their size; three second-class cruisers and four destroyers, all good scouts for coast defense, all capable of aiding in the laying of floating mines or torpedoes, all trained of Canadian or Asiatic defensive services. The little fleet, should war occur, would be capable of quickly laying such explosives as would stand off raiders from salient coast cities, and prevent them being laid under contribution. A motion that any European or Asiatic power lacking bases of supplies on this side of the Atlantic or Pacific could invade Canada in force is mere bosh. The expression of Americans at Santiago, and of Japanese at Port Arthur, show that assailants dare not venture their ships where floating mines or even obsolete shore guns are to be encountered.

As for the scare raised by the New York Herald, viz., that Canada, by setting up this small fleet, will be involved in European militarism—the truth is that Laurier has decidedly rejected every iota of counsel from England to Canada, which seemed to come of a desire to involve the Dominion. Canada's fleet will be Canada's most emphatically an under sole control of Ottawa. Cannot be ordered anywhere by the admiralty. It is obvious that, in case of war, Canadians would probably require the little fleet to stay at home. Remember the United States popular voice in the Spanish war, which required United States defense by the United States fleet. Great Britain will be ready to acknowledge the benefit she must derive from Canada's taking up her own coast defense, and so ridding the admiralty of care, distraction, responsibility. Again, the New York Herald affects to imagine that Canada, by effecting her defense, will be some source of incitement to the republic. For instance, it is gravely alleged that Canada might aid Japan in the Pacific ocean. Absurd! The people of this country will rule their navy, and they are more likely to aid the United States in the Pacific, than to aid Japan.

Washington, Nov. 16.—President Taft does not intend that his administration shall lose the services of either Richard Ballinger, secretary of the interior, or Gifford Pinchot, forester, if he can help it. Even the members of his cabinet are in the dark as to what his plans are, but they have every reason to believe that he still hopes to be able to settle the so-called Ballinger-Pinchot quarrel, now more acute than ever before, without any break in his administration forces. Outsiders are as a rule coming more and more to the belief that Mr. Taft has an impossible task on his hands.

There is no confirmation to be had of the story that Mr. Ballinger has served notice on the president that unless Mr. Pinchot is removed from the public service he will get out. It is plain that Mr. Ballinger is in an unhappy frame of mind. As the situation stands today the chief of a bureau in a co-ordinate branch of the government service is practically defying him. The quarrel has numerous ramifications and presents many possibilities. Secretary Wilson, of the department of agriculture, who is Mr. Pinchot's superior officer, has not said a word to this time, but it is well understood that he is standing by the forester. As already pointed out in these despatches, other members of the cabinet are in sympathy with the Pinchot side of the controversy.

Persons who ought to know said today that if the cabinet were polled the result would probably show five members supporting Ballinger and three inclined to be in sympathy with Pinchot. Of course, there is the possibility of Secretary Wilson going out of the cabinet if Mr. Ballinger succeeds in getting Mr. Pinchot's scalp. Within the last twenty-four hours sentiment in administrative circles has undergone something of a change, and is now in favor of the president settling the nasty quarrel at once, and for all time. This, of course, brings the chief executive face to face with the problem of negotiating a settlement under which everybody mixed up in the quarrel can be retained in office. Mr. Pinchot's friends said today that he is entirely unconcerned as to the outcome. They represent his holding the view that the present administration cannot well afford to offend the friends of the conservation movement throughout the country by chopping off his head.

"THE ALASKAN."

William P. Cullen's Big Success to Play Return Date Here.

A strong attraction has been booked for next week in the big musical show, "The Alaskan," now controlled by Wm. P. Cullen. "The Alaskan" comes here from a phenomenal run in Chicago, where the press agreed that it was, in its broadest sense, one of the greatest, brightest and funniest productions seen there in years. A prodigal hand has given it beautiful new costumes and also many novel effects in staging. The Eskimo dog team and the "snowballing" scene all lend an unusual atmosphere. The principal members of the company are Richard F. Carroll, Gus Weingrub, Detmar Popen, John R. Phillips, Sidney Algiers, John Lawton, Walter Anderson, Jack Rose, Jessie Stoner, Alice Keen, Marion Hall and Etta Lockhart. The Alaskan has the strongest chorus that has ever been brought this way with a musical comedy production.

FROM MORGAN'S CURB LETTER.

The New York market again opened strong and held firm. The activity was centered on the copper and smelting stocks, with some attention given Road and Western Union. The remainder of the list was quiet. Wall street looks for higher prices, especially on copper and smelting stocks.

In Boston, the bullish activity in the leading copper stocks continues, the prices of the same being notably high. In most cases advancing, under a heavy volume of selling. The stocks are readily taken by Eastern interests, and there seems no limit to the quantity wanted at these prices. Favorable news on the leading copper properties is plentiful. South Que to profit taking may occur. There is nothing new on the proposed copper combination.

The trading in the curbs is comparatively light. Advances were made in Indiana, Corbin Copper, Shattuck and Black Mountain. The latter being the best of the lot. The advance in the better curb stocks can't be far off now, and large profits await those who purchase the good ones on this level.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF.

W. G. Matler, president of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company, is in the city.

Mrs. George Bennett and Miss Nellie Huber of Champion were Ishpeming visitors yesterday.

The Ishpeming fire department's equipment was transferred from wheels to runners yesterday.

Captain Thomas Walters and others, who have spent the rest week or so at Charles Knave's camp hunting deer, came in last night.

A monthly meeting of the Marquette County Medical society was held at the Ishpeming hospital Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance of physicians of the county.

F. Branstad & Co. will have a special exhibit of ladies' suits, coats, trimmed hats, etc., tomorrow and Saturday. The firm announces that the display will be the largest that it has ever had.

Should the snow that came on Tuesday and yesterday remain, it is probable that it will be very thick skating on the lakes this fall. Many of the children brought out their skis and sleds yesterday.

J. Silverstein, manager of the Ishpeming Cloak, Suit and Fur company, which this week opened a store in the Mortley block, left last night for Duluth on a business mission. He will be back tomorrow.

mer in the mercantile store at Bessemer, are with him at the hospital.

Marry Mack, with the Marquette County Telephone company, has just completed installing a telephone system in the Young Men's Christian association building. Five phones have been put in there, being one on each floor, one in the general office and one in Secretary W. J. Wiles's office. All of the phones will have connection with the county central.

Dr. Lawrence Ryan, a well-known surgeon of Chicago, operated upon E. E. Jeffrey, soldier of the Lake Argonne line, yesterday afternoon, at his home on the corner of Fourth and North streets. Mr. Jeffrey had been suffering from appendicitis ever since a week ago last Sunday night. While his condition had been precarious for a few days, the operation was a complete success, and his physician now believes that he will improve rapidly.

Upper Peninsula

St. Ignace Man Drowned—

Alexander Vallier, of St. Ignace, a watchman on the steamer H. E. Rimmels, was lost overboard in Lake Michigan during a thick fog of Cedar point. He was at work at the bow when he disappeared.

Hopkins' Trial Monday—

"If the witnesses knew Wallace H. Hopkins was running a bucket shop it will show that they went there to be bucketed," said Judge Landis in the United States district court at Chicago. Then he instructed counsel representing the government to furnish a list of witnesses demanded by the defense. The trial of Hopkins on a charge of operating a bucket shop was set for next Monday.

Poor Fisherman Fined—

Because David A. Hebert, a fisherman of Nalma, Delta county, neglected to secure the necessary license from the secretary of state to operate a gasoline boat in connection with his business, he was fined $10 and costs in Judge Emil Glaser's court at Escanaba and in addition was forced to deposit $10 with the court to secure a license. The arrest was made by Deputy State Game Warden W. H. Harrington of Ishpeming, who has been making a quiet investigation among the fishermen of the district lately. The new law requires that a license shall be secured for each boat operated by a fisherman and Hebert had neglected to secure such a document.

Dogs Must Be Muzzled—

To prevent a spread of hydrophobia, an outbreak of which was reported, the board of health of Stephenson town, Manitowish county, has passed a resolution providing that all dogs running at large must be properly muzzled or shot. The constables have received strict orders to shoot any and all dogs so running at large, and will receive one dollar for each canine killed and buried. The resolution provides that the dogs must be muzzled for a period of six months, by which time it is supposed that the epidemic will have run its course. Two dogs afflicted with the rabies were found at Duquet and it is expected that others will show the symptoms soon.

Marched With Sherman—

H. H. Wyatt, a well-known resident of Chippewa county, is dead at Rudyard. He was born in Ohio, Nov. 19, 1840. He enlisted as a private at the beginning of the war between the North and South and served with distinction through the memorable conflict, being with Sheridan on his raid. He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. Mr. Wyatt returned to Rudyard with his family fifteen years ago and was agent for the Michigan Land company. He died as usual of old age.

$90,000 for Bank Creditors—

It is expected that the first dividend to the depositors and other creditors of the defunct First National bank of Ironwood will be paid this week. As has already been stated in these columns, the disbursement will be at the rate of 15 per cent. It is learned from a reliable source that the liabilities amount to a few hundred dollars less than $900,000, hence the first disbursement amounts to approximately $90,000. The condition of the bank's affairs when the receiver took hold is responsible for the delay in payment of the first dividend, and it is reasonable to expect that the second dividend will be paid in less than one-half the time that it has been necessary to take to prepare for this week's distribution. The value of the assets is not yet known. More than fifty suits have been started by the receiver to enforce collection of credits that he believes are due

Stolen Ride Is Fatal—

Falling from an Escanaba & Lake Superior train on which he was stealing a ride, Joseph Taylor, a coalman, thirty-five years of age, met death. According to those who visited the scene of the accident soon after it occurred it is believed that the unfortunate man, after lying in a stupor at the side of the track for some time, rolled into a ditch at the edge of the right of way and was drowned. It is believed by some that the excruciating pain suffered caused him to deliberately throw himself into the ditch, after awakening from the stupor, and lying in the shallow water, face downward, drowned himself. Strength is given to that theory by the fact that his shoe had been removed from the right foot, the foot having been crushed at the ankle, and it appeared that he had obtained relief from pain. The fatality took place in Dickinson county.

Had License to Get Drunk—

For the first time in the history of the Escanaba police court a prisoner who was arraigned this week declared that he had a license to get drunk if he chose and furthermore produced the credentials. When William O'Malley was taken before Judge Linden on a charge of celebrating too loudly upon the public thoroughfares of the city, he graciously produced a grimy paper, and handed it over to the court. When he looked at the text of the slip the court forgot for the time being the gravity of the moment and actually laughed. O'Malley had a license all right, but it was a license which the court could not acknowledge. Over the signature of some Chicago saloon keeper there appeared the statement that William O'Malley was a good boxer fighter; that he was in fact an artist in this line and that he was therefore free to go and come as he pleased, through as many swinging doors as he chose to push open in the course of a day or night. O'Malley declared that he was working at the present time and that if he was sent to jail he would lose his job. The court therefore assessed costs only and these were paid.

The See's Saloon Ordinance—

The passage of the new saloon ordinance by the common council will meet with universal approval throughout the city, comments the See News. The ultra-radicals among the temperance forces will rejoice because of the diminution of what they deem as an unqualified evil, while the balance of the city, believing that the cause of real temperance is best advanced by careful regulation and restriction of the saloon.

Thought It a Mail Box—

An alarm of fire sent in from box 21 at the corner of Magazine and Ridge streets sent the Sault Ste. Marie department on a wild goose chase. There was no fire anywhere in the neighborhood when the boys arrived on the scene, the box was closed, and the alarm shortly thereafter found who had seen anyone tampering with it. Chief Campbell began a little detective work and ascertained that a woman had shortly before purchased a stamp in Metzger's store. He followed the clue, which proved to be the correct one, and found that the alarm had been turned in by Mrs. Archie Mitchell, resident of Ridge street, who mistook the alarm box for the letter box. The chief informed her of the gravity of her offense and the cost of her action to the city. She was told to appear before the city attorney, which she did shortly before noon. When questioned by Mr. Handy she said that she had recently come to this city from Webwood, Canada; that she could neither read or write, and that this was her first attempt to make a letter—she arriving in the states. Her husband had shortly before woods to seek work and her only means of support for the past few weeks was that given her by her two sons, aged eleven and thirteen years. It costs the city $200 to $25 every time an alarm is turned in, and these have been five or six false ones this summer. Chief Campbell had determined to push the next case. In view of the circumstances, it is not believed anything could be gained by a prosecution in the present instance.

THE PRINCESS CAME.

The first instance of the kaiser's revolt against the stringent rules of court etiquette began on the occasion of his last visit to Vienna, when all the exalted and distinguished guests invited to a state banquet in the imperial palace there were assembled preparatory to going to table. Glancing around the brilliant assembly the kaiser missed the Princess Hohenberg. Walking up to the Austro-Hungarian host, presumptive (speaking in the second person), he said, "Where is thy wife?" Thearchduke was somewhat embarrassed by the question and replied, "Surely thou knowest that my wife is regarded here as a lady of inferior rank." Then around the kaiser's rejection of court etiquette. "He exclaimed impulsively, "But no, thy wife must be here!" In accordance with the Emperor William's express desire and after his host, the Emperor Francis Joseph, had given his assent, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand left the royal palace and drove to his own residence to fetch his wife. The whole company waited until he returned, bringing his wife with him.

Reader, behold as you pass by, As you are now so once was I; As I am now so you must be, Prepare for death and follow me.

But besides the repetition of various favorite epitaphs there are many original outbursts in these Pennsylvania cemeteries. For instance, in the pretty churchyard at Whitmarsh, where members of many wealthy suburban families of modern times repose, the grave of John Bager, who died in 1755, is marked by a stone which bears this stanza:

Life is a cheat
And always shows its
I thought so once,
And now I know it.

A few miles further west, in the cemetery of St. John's Lutheran church, Center Square, is this epitaph, the third line of which doubtless was gratifying to those he dealt with:

Farewell, my wife and children dear,
I am not dead but sleeping here;
My debts are paid, my grave you see,
Wait but your time and follow me.

South of the Schuykill river the Vincent Baptist burying ground contains a stone on which in raised letters appears this legend, probably dictated by a family of loving children:

"OUR PAPP"

Bucks county's graveyards supply several unusual epitaphs. A stone in the cemetery at Morrisville is inscribed thus:

In memory of Samuel McCracken,
Who died April 19, 1862.

If leading politicians and priests
All go to Heaven, then I am bound
To stop at some other station.

McCracken made an agreement with the cemetery association for the erection of this monument and then committed suicide by cutting his throat. Beside McCracken rests his wife, and the inscription on the stone at her grave, in contrast with that on the adjoining marker, reads thus:

Phoebe, wife of Samuel McCracken, who died March 30, 1860. She died a firm believer in Christ her Saviour.

A crude picture of a horse kicking a boy is the principal feature of a tombstone in a cemetery near Doylestown, and beneath the carving are these words:

Born June 27th, 1831,
Henry Harris and Jane, his wife. Died on the 4th of May, 1837, by the kick of a colt in his bowels which was incurable and bleeding to death.

A friend to his Father and Mother and respected by all who knew him and went to the world where horses can't kick and where sorrow and weeping
is no more.

Taylor & Shuck.

In the burial ground at the old Hilltown church, Bucks county, are five tombstones in a row, and the successive inscriptions begin thus:

Anna, wife of Tobias Brown.
Born by Tobias Brown.
Jane, wife of Tobias Brown.
Sarah, wife of Tobias Brown.
Tobias Brown—At Rest.

Even the solemn and serene cemetery of the Moravians in Bethlehem supplies an interesting addition to the list of queer epitaphs in the following, which is inscribed on a stone at an Indian's grave:

In memory of my dearest son,
James McDonald Ross, eldest son of John Ross, principal chief of the Cherokee Nation, died in St. Louis, Nov. 18th, 1861. His corps transported by Adams Express to Bethlehem and interred at this sacred spot Nov. 22nd, 1864, aged 50 years, 29 days.

At historic Trinity church, in the northern suburb of Philadelphia, a tombstone inscription recalls the early strife between the Quakers and the Episcopalians over the control of that place of worship. It was founded as a Quaker meeting house, but early in the eighteenth century it passed into the possession of the Episcopalians. The epitaph, dated 1768, reads thus:

No Quaker was when she dy'd;
No far was she from Quakerism.
That she desired to have baptism
For her own babes and children dear
For these lines true witness bear.

The efforts of an eighteenth century punster are apparent in a German epitaph in Hanoi's cemetery, Germantown. Those not conversant with German of course need an explanation that the German word "Frei" is equivalent to "free." The epitaph is at the grave of Johannes Frey and concludes with this stanza:

Ich war der Frey, doch bin
Ich nicht mehr der Frey worden.
Lebt Sueden Frey, so kommt
Du auch in meinen Orden.

Translated the stanza would read: "I was called Frey, but here for the first time I am really free. If you will live free from sin you shall be as free as I am."

MUNISING BUSINESS MEN.

Held an Interesting and Enthusiastic Meeting This Week.

At the meeting of the Munising Business Men's association, held Tuesday evening in the Beach Inn parlors, an enthusiastic gathering was present. The meeting was opened by the president, Bertie Anderson. Mr. Anderson announced as the topic, legislation and taxation. W. F. Hopkins reported for the transportation committee. He spoke of what the committee has already done for Munising. One of the boats on the Soo run stops at Munising at least once a week. Mr. Hopkins' address was very much enjoyed, and gave every indication the transportation committee is a live one. M. A. Doty gave an address from the manufacturer's standpoint.

Among those heard in the regular course of business was George J. Forester, who spoke in his usual forcible manner on the topic of the evening. Mr. Forester's talk was exceptionally well enjoyed. Mr. Bissell spoke on the necessity of all the association members, and those interested in the civic progress of the town, putting their shoulders to the wheel to boost. Mr. Wyman spoke on the taxation of timber lands and clearly showed that he knew whereof he spoke.

The speaker of the evening was Wm. G. Mather, president of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company. Mr. Mather dwelt mainly on what the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company had done for Munising and what he had reason to think was in store for the future. Mr. Mather spoke of the grandeur and beauty of Grand Island and laid emphasis upon the fact that to advertise the beauties of Grand Island was to advertise Munising.

Mr. Mather then took up the possibility of a larger Munising and spoke of the many improvements that have taken place in the last few years. He said he saw no reason why Munising should not grow to a large extent during the next ten years.

H. A. Holden then offered the following resolution:

"Whereas, During the past six or seven years Munising has been a very materially increased, desirable home multiplied, practically all of her hands some public buildings erected, the number of substantial business blocks considerably augmented, the volume of business much enlarged and greater opportunities afforded her citizens to obtain remunerative labor without leaving their homes at any time during the year; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of this association, do hereby acknowledge and affirm that for the present prosperity and well being of the people of this city we are chiefly indebted to the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, and particularly to its president, William G. Mather, who has ever stood our staunch friend in time of need and who never seems to grow weary in well doing for us; therefore be it

Resolved, further, That we gratefully acknowledge and thankfully accept the trust imposed upon us by Mr. Mather's latest gift of his greatest Munising benefaction, the splendid hospital which he has announced he will soon turn over completely equipped to a board which is selected very largely from the business men of this city; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to Mr. Mather and a copy spread upon the records of this association.

At a dinner party given on Grand Island recently Mr. Mather made the announcement that before sailing for Europe he would turn the splendid new hospital, costing thousands of dollars, over to a board composed very largely of Munising's business men. He appointed the following men to act as the board of control: Messrs. D. W. MacDougall, Frank Housler, Sam Marks, T. E. Bissell, H. B. Freeman, Geo. J. Forester, L. B. Steward, F. J. Eaton, M. A. Doty, G. A. Leiphart, Bertie Anderson, C. V. R. Townsend, T. H. Noble, W. A. Lennox, T. B. Wyman, Nathaniel Lobb, H. A. Holden; executive council, Geo. J. Forester, L. B. Steward, M. A. Doty, T. E. Bissell, H. B. Freeman, T. N. Noble and C. V. R. Townsend.

EWEN SECURING NEW INDUSTRIES

TOWN ON THE SOUTH SHORE LINE WEST OF HERE IS HAVING A SUBSTANTIAL GROWTH.

A Negaunee man, who recently visited Ewen, yesterday said that the little town is rapidly growing. He was favorably impressed with the place, and he commended the leading citizens on their enterprise. Some time ago they decided to do what they could to secure new industries, and they have met with much encouragement. A planing mill was recently finished and is now in operation, and a saw mill will soon be completed. The creamery, established a short time ago, is proving the biggest kind of a success. There is a greater demand for butter than can be supplied. An upper peninsula produce concern recently offered to buy up all the butter that the creamery can turn out. An especially fine grade of butter is being made, and the product is being shipped to many points outside of the upper peninsula.

A new town hall, also a new bank building, are being erected and will soon be ready for use. Poles have been put up for a telephone system, and there is talk of establishing an electric lighting plant. Much farming land has been taken up near the town during the past year or so, and within a few years there will be a number of fine farms nearby. The value of the land has increased 200 per cent during the last five years. Eastern parties who have in view the establishment of a stock farm recently purchased a large acreage. A stock farm, comprising about 1,000 acres, is being developed seven miles from Ewen, and it is expected that within a year or two there will be several hundred head of cattle on the place.

ORE MOVEMENT CURTAILED.

Several of the Mines Stopped Shipping, Because of the Storm.

There was perhaps a lighter movement of ore from the mines of this range yesterday than on any previous day since the season began. The tracks leading to the mines were in such poor condition that shipments could not be made to advantage, and many of the boats were tied up, so that there was no urgent demand for ore at the docks. The South Shore crews here and at Ishpeming, who have had an exceptionally busy season, were idle yesterday, as there was no loading to speak of, either from the pockets or the stockpiles. The tracks will probably be opened up, and it is expected that the ore movement will be resumed tomorrow. The shipments began to slacken Tuesday afternoon when the storm was at its height. It was reported from some of the mines yesterday that there is from one to three feet of snow on the tracks in many places and it will take several hours to open them up.

Because of the storm it is possible that some of the mines may not put their steam shovels to work again this season, though shipments will be continued from the pockets as long as the boats keep running. The stockpiles at several of the mines in both cities are smaller than they have been in many years. The piles at the Mary Charlotte have been completely cleaned out, and there is only a few thousand tons left in the Regent piles. One of the two big piles at the Maus has been shipped and it would not take many days to clean up the other one. The Canada piles have disappeared, but there is a fair tonnage of ore still remaining at the Little mine. At the Hartford there is perhaps less than 20,000 tons, and it is possible that all of this will be shipped before the season closes.

A train of ore that was brought in from the Empire mine, on the Cascade range, Tuesday, was tied up in the Northwestern yards here, on account of the storm.

Neither the freight or passenger trains on the South Shore or Northwestern systems were running, but most of the early trains yesterday last time. The Chicago & Northwestern passenger was an hour and fifteen minutes late. The South Shore train for the copper country waited to make connections and as a result it started out an hour and thirty minutes behind time. The storm extended to a point below Green Bay.

ONE COIL BURNED OUT.

The expert who came here Tuesday from the Westinghouse Electric company's plant to repair the electric generator at the municipal lighting station left the city last night. He found that only one of the sixteen electric coils used was burned out. The turbine was put in operation again yesterday and it is thought that it will be able to carry the load until a new coil is made.

Mrs. Lonie Hite, 428 Outlen St., Danville, Ill., writes, October 1st: "Feby's Kidney Pills started me on the road to health. I was treated by four doctors and took other kidney remedies but grew worse, and was unable to do my housework, and the doctor told me I could live from two to six months. I am now so much better that I do all my own work, and I shall be very glad to tell any one afflicted with kidney or bladder trouble the good results I received from taking Feby's Kidney Pills." Commence today and be well. Do not risk having Bright's disease or diabetes. Sold by all druggists.

THANKSGIVING FOWL.

Turkeys Will Sell Cheaper Here Than In Either Milwaukee Or Chicago.

It is expected that Thanksgiving poultry, turkeys, chickens, ducks and geese, will be sold several cents per pound cheaper here than in either Chicago or Milwaukee. A Milwaukee paper yesterday said that Thanksgiving turkeys will probably bring twenty-eight cents per pound, retail. The commission merchants report that they are having difficulty getting a supply. Most of the dealers here have already placed their orders, and unless the wholesale concerns fail to fill them their prices will be reasonable. A Negaunee dealer expressed the opinion that he will be able to sell turkeys at perhaps one or two cents per pound less than he was charged last year.

Milwaukee ducks are now selling at from seventeen to eighteen cents per pound retail and it is expected that they will bring twenty cents. Thanksgiving Geese are also selling at sixteen cents, with indications that they will sell at twenty cents. Celery and cranberries, which go to make up the Thanksgiving dinner, are also to be higher than usual at this time of the year. Celery will retail at thirty cents per dozen and cranberries at not less than ten cents per quart.

My Thanksgiving hat sale is now on. Hats worth $8 and $9, at $5.75 and $5; also as low as $1.75 for $4 and $4.50 values. Fur turbans, $1.25 and up. Mrs. M. E. Arland. (11-18-09)

Superintendent Willman of the board of public works had the snow plows and several men at work at an early hour yesterday morning. The walks in the principal parts of the city, also all of those leading to the school buildings, were opened before 9 o'clock.

Mr. McMaster, who has been employed in the South Shore's local office as second track operator, has given up the position, and C. E. Ford of Nestoria succeeds him.

The snow plow on the street car line was brought out yesterday morning at 5 o'clock, and the road was opened within an hour. The cars moved on schedule time yesterday. They will not run to the eastern end of Iron street for the present, but it is expected that the line will be opened from the railroad crossing within a few days.

DRIFTS IN ROADS KEPT CROWD DOWN

OWING TO SMALL ATTENDANCE, FIRST REGULAR INSTITUTE SESSION WAS LAST NIGHT.

STRONG SPEAKERS ON HAND

Addresses Last Evening Contained Much of Interest and Value—Many Good Things for Today.

Owing to the roads leading into Marquette being practically impassable yesterday on account of snowdrifts, the attendance at the day sessions of the county farmers' institute were so thinly attended that the scheduled program was not carried out. Those present, however, gained much from informal talk with the institute speakers, and in the afternoon were favored with several splendidly rendered selections by the Peerless orchestra. At the evening session, the program was carried out as planned, addresses being given by Mrs. Louise Peterson and W. F. Taylor, while Our Boys' band and Miss Norma Ross entertained with musical numbers. Secretary Vandenberg stated last evening that he understood that most of the country roads were now open and that he was confident there would be a large attendance of farmers at the sessions today, the first of which will open at 9:45 this morning. There was considerable interest yesterday in the exhibit of vegetables, fruits and grains, especially in a bushel of ripe corn and several mammoth potatoes, each of which weighed over a pound. More exhibits are expected today. The management again wishes to state that the institute is not exclusively for farmers, but everyone, whatever his vocation, is urged to attend and to value the evening sessions, especially, are of general interest, and tonight there will be a discussion of the public school problem as well as other live matters.

Ms. Peterson's Address. Mrs. Peterson, who is a practical farmer's wife from Menominee county, spoke last evening on "The Wife and Her Work." Her talk was full of good things for every woman in charge of a home and was attentively listened to. She pleaded for wives who could sympathize and counsel with their husbands and to be really helpmates, not mere household drudges. She urged that women should find time to read and keep posted on public and business affairs, both for the sake of their general health and well being and in order to be the intellectual equal of the men. She dwelt on the importance of a good and well ordered home as a necessity to complete happiness in married life. The talk was of interest and value to all women.

"Our Boys and Girls." The principal address of the evening was given by W. F. Taylor of Shelby, a prominent farmer of the lower peninsula and a worker in the state grange. He spoke on "Our Boys and Girls" in a forceful and entertaining manner that carried conviction with his words. Mr. Taylor is a fine speaker and his talk last night assures that the addresses he is to give today will be well worth hearing.

Mr. Taylor opened by stating that he enjoyed working in the upper peninsula, because here, as in all places where people were at the beginning of things, there was a spirit of push and determination to do things that was not evident in older communities. He spoke of the mistake that had been made in his county in not providing windbreaks when the timber was cleared off, and hoped that this country would not fall into the same error. As the result of this county suffered more with wind and cold than they do here, in spite of our northerly latitude. When the timber is taken off, he said our winters will be much more severe than they are now, unless provision is made to break the cold winds.

Importance of Good Homes. "The first thing with which we should provide our boys and girls," said Mr. Taylor, "is good homes. The house and surroundings should be the best that we can afford, and no better. The children should be brought up to have trust and confidence in their parents and to counsel with their parents, rather than with some one else, in time of doubt and trouble." The greater part of the address was devoted to the public school problem, his aim being that the school should primarily be so conducted as to instill ambition and dreams for future success in the pupils. "Our schools should not be only fact-gathering institutions," he said, "they must fit the boys and girls for useful lives. They in the rural districts, should instill a love for the country and a realization of the important mission of the farmer. As a way to accomplish this, elementary agriculture should be taught in the rural schools.

Constructive Education. "Boys and girls go wrong because they have nothing to do. Instruct them to do something and awaken new interests and their success is assured. Teach them in such a way that they will have ambitions and ideals. Too much of our work with the youth is 'don't' rather than 'do'—destructive rather than constructive. Educate toward, not away from labor. One excellent way of doing this is by competitive tests along practical lines. In a lower peninsula county, 271 boys were furnished corn seed for planting last spring by the congressman, with notice from the county commissioner of schools that the product raised from this seed would be exhibited in Muskegon in the fall. All but two of the whole number sowed samples of the result of their culture of that seed. Such work as this is what inspires the boys and girls to do things and gives them ambitions for successful careers. Let us do everything we can to develop the constructive forces of our youth and then it will not be necessary to sermonize and put a 'don't' sign at every turn in the road. The primary object of life is service and until this fact is more fully realized in our public school system, there is room for improvement."

DEATH OF CHARLES SHARLAND.

Wellknown Railroad Conductor Passed Away Yesterday Afternoon.

Charles Sharland, a life long resident of this city and a wellknown railroad conductor, passed away at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his residence, 237 West Bluff street, after an illness of three months from Bright's disease. Shortly after being taken ill, Mr. Sharland went West in hope that a change of climate would benefit his health, but to no avail, and since his return, he has steadily failed. For several days the family had realized that it was only a question of hours until the end came. Mr. Sharland had been in the employ of the Marquette & Southeastern railway since it was built, in 1896, and was one of the oldest conductors, in length of service, on the road. He was forty-three years of age and was well liked and highly respected by his wide acquaintance, both on the road and in private life. He was a member of the Order of Railway Conductors, the Knights of Columbus and the St. Jean Baptiste society. There are left to mourn his death, a wife and three minor children, his father Zepher Sharland, a brother, Fred, and a sister, who is in a convent in St. Louis.

HUNTER HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

KALAMAZOO MAN, IN THE WOODS NEAR BIG BAY, HAD TROUSERS POCKET CUT BY A BULLET AIMED AT HIM.

The zest for the chase of a Kalamazoo hunter was perceptibly diminished the other day when a bullet aimed at him by another hunter, who thought he was a deer, cut through his trousers pocket. Though the man was not even scratched by the bullet, his nerve was shaken, and he made his way as quickly as he could to camp.

This report of one of the narrowest escapes from a serious accident that has been recorded this season was brought to town by Arthur Sayles, an officer at the Marquette prison, who returned with Tom Marshall from a several days hunt near Big Bay. The Kalamazoo man who had the hair-raising experience was hunting with a friend. He sighted and brought down a deer. He and his companion went forward and as they were stooping over it a shot was heard. The Kalamazoo man felt a twitch at his trousers, and looking down, saw that a bullet had cut cleanly through the pocket.

The men struck out for camp, keeping an eye open for the careless hunter. They approached Sayles within a few minutes, and yelled lustily. He asked them what was wrong, and they told him they didn't propose to take any more chances of being fired on that day, relating their experience. Another hunter in the neighborhood reported that he saw in the camp I refer to some of the venison had spoiled, because it would not keep through the mild weather.

PETITIONS FOR COUNTY LOCAL OPTION POSTED

IN THIS CITY, 422 SIGNERS HAVE BEEN SECURED, AND IN THE COUNTY ABOUT 2,700. IT IS SAID.

The few people who ventured out on the street in the stormy weather of yesterday were considerably interested in the petitions that had been posted throughout the city the night before, requesting the board of supervisors to set apart a day for a local option election. To each of the petitions, was affixed a typewritten copy of the signers in that particular ward. This action was taken by the local option committee, in compliance with the law, which requires that the names of all signers shall be posted in at least three conspicuous places in the respective wards for at least ten days before the petitions from all the precincts in the county are presented to the county clerk. It is the intention to submit the request for a local option election, with the necessary signatures of 30 per cent of the voters of the county attached, before the supervisors at their next meeting, to be held December 1.

In the city of Marquette, 422 signatures to the petitions have been secured, which is slightly more than 23 per cent of the vote on secretary of state in 1908. The number of signatures obtained in the five wards is as follows: First ward, 89; Second ward, 140; Third ward, 39; Fourth ward, 150; Fifth ward, 338. The leaders of the local option movement state that, although they have fallen slightly below the 30 per cent requirement in Marquette, that the signatures in other parts of the county have exceeded that percentage, the total number of signers secured being about 2,700, which is 150 more than 30 per cent of the vote of the county. In response for instance, it is said, with a total vote of 2,200, has furnished 969 signers to the petitions, or a little more than 42 per cent. Total figures for Negaunee had not been compiled last evening, but with the exception of one ward in that city, it is said that lists have now been posted in every voting precinct in the county.

LIQUOR MEN GETTING BUSY.

Hastening to Take Out Citizenship Papers All Over the State.

Merton Sturgis, naturalization examiner for this district, was in Marquette a few hours yesterday investigating the credentials of some of those who have made application for citizenship for hearing at the December term of court. There are forty-one aliens whose applications will be passed upon at the coming term, which is a less number than were examined at the last term. As a rule, there are more who apply for final citizenship in the spring and fall than during the winter months. Mr. Sturgis states that alien saloon keepers all over the state are getting busy with their final papers, owing to the Warner-Cranston law, which will put them out of business, unless they have become citizens before the first of next May. In order to comply with the law, Marquette county saloon keepers must be admitted to citizenship not later than the February term of court. In order to be admitted to citizenship at the February term, applicants must file their applications with the county clerk ninety days before the date of final hearing, that is to say, before Nov. 29.

AN INTERESTING COLLECTION.

Many Valuable Relics and Heirlooms to Be Seen at D. A. R. Exhibit.

An exhibit to delight the eye and heart of any collector has been gathered together by the Marquette Daughters of the Revolution for the Loan exhibition that opened yesterday on the second floor of the opera house. Owing to the bad weather, the attendance yesterday was not large, but all who did attend were astonished at the magnificent collection of old treasures that has been assembled. The exhibition will continue today and tomorrow. The exhibits consist of ancient and modern art, tapestries, samplers, spreads, china, brass and silver wares, and many other interesting oddities. A large part of the display has been handed down in Marquette families from colonial or Revolutionary days and not a few articles are more than 225 years old. Dishes that came over in the Mayflower, the silver that great-grandmother used, great-great grandfather's chair, the painting that has been the family heirloom for a century or more, ancestral relics of the eighteenth century—these all are there and besides hundreds of equally interesting things, alike valuable for their age and their intrinsic art. The exhibit is deserving of inspection by young and old, and no lover of rarities and antiques should fail to view the collection today or tomorrow.
