MARQUETTE, MICH., DEC. 3. Entered as 2nd class matter in the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

There is trouble between Mrs. Parkhurst, the suffragist, and Dr. Parkhurst, the reformer. Did two of a trade ever agree?

What is needed now is an exploring expedition to locate Dr. Cook. How about having Peary undertake finding him?

The switchmen's strike on the roads between the head of the lake and the Pacific coast has already seriously affected northwest traffic and the trouble has only just begun.

Since the Wells-Fargo Express company has recently declared a dividend of 300 per cent will it permit the suggestion that the state should possess the same legal right to regulate express rates that they have for regulation of railway freight and passenger rates?

All the sentiment is taken out of the case of the Chicago burglar whom a spinster, whose home he had entered for the purpose of looting it, first captured, then fed till he could eat no more because he told her he had been driven to crime by hunger, and finally allowed to go his way, instead of turning him over to a police officer.

Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin addressed the students of the state university at Ann Arbor on the subject of "representative government" Monday evening, and talked for over three hours. After that infliction the young men and women who listened to him must be able to sympathize with the Wisconsin senator's colleagues, whom he sometimes talks to, or at, for days at a stretch.

Mayor Rose of Milwaukee has issued an order requiring that all unusual sheds and shacks in that city where tramps or criminals may find hiding places be torn down. This is a novel plan abating the tramp nuisances, but whether it does much in that way or not it is a good move from an aesthetic standpoint.

Mr. Chase S. Osborn is a delegate by appointment to the Civic Federation congress which will meet in New York on the 6th inst. and will be in session to and including the 11th.

According to the decision of an Omaha justice, barbers are "common laborers" and not members of a "profession."

ARE ONLY OBSTRUCTIONS. A magazine published in Chicago bearing the name of Town Development in its December number an article scoring those organizations which charge themselves with the work of advancing the growth of their home towns or cities, but do nothing of value to that end.

5% DEBENTURES. Running one to five years secured by first mortgages on improved real estate worth more than double outstanding debentures.

justice held otherwise, thus striking a cruel blow at the dignity of the tonorial art. Doubtless the Omaha Dogberry shaves himself. After such a ruling it would hardly be safe for him to trust his chin to a barber.

Although President Gomez of Cuba has been in office less than a year a movement is on foot in the island to secure his retirement and have him replaced as chief executive by the vice president, Zayas. They have become so accustomed to changes of rulers in Cuba that a year under any president tries their patience to the breaking point.

Dr. William J. Dawson, a noted English preacher who is now in this country delivering a series of lectures, is amazed at the indifference to politics manifested by the people of the United States generally. He was in this country during the last presidential election, he says, and did much traveling on the trains, where it would be expected that some discussion of political questions would be heard.

The Detroit News says that Wm. T. Dust may seek a place on the delegation that will represent Detroit in the legislature next year. He was a member from that city in the legislature of 1907, being elected by the largest vote given any of the candidates who were chosen at that time.

When I was appointed a member of the state tax commission I was supposed to be favorable to the railroads. I think I looked me up whether I did or not has no bearing on what I desire to go on record right now as saying. It is this: The work of preparing the assessment roll of the railroads of the state was to begin in November.

Mr. Chase S. Osborn is a delegate by appointment to the Civic Federation congress which will meet in New York on the 6th inst. and will be in session to and including the 11th. His associates as delegates representing Michigan will be Dr. L. J. Hudson and Bishop Williams of Detroit.

English Stage Favorites Who Have a Sure Thing Until Death. The death of Pony Moore, the aged minstrel, marks the removal of another of the conservative mid-Victorian institutions which so fitly represented the British character in conservatism and undying taste.

THE "DOWN-AND-OUTS." In the course of a somewhat remarkable sermon preached Sunday night in Pilgrim Congregational church, Boston, Rev. George Luther Gady, a Congregational clergyman, spoke forcefully of the inefficiency of the churches nowadays for the purpose of uplifting the "down-and-out" class—the weak and lowly, the poor, ignorant and erring.

There is a case in point of an ancient Dutchman named Van Biene, a cellist, who was starving in London many, many years ago. He got an opportunity of playing one night a tune called "The Broken Melody."

TEA IN A MOORISH HAREM. Richly Dressed Hostesses—Punishment for Quarrelsomeness. I have just returned from a long visit to Morocco in a large but barbarous seaport at which my brother trades.

City Brevities

Today's weather: Probably snow and colder.
Yesterday's temperatures: Seven a. m., 39 degrees; noon, 41; 7 p. m., 42; Maximum, 44 degrees; Minimum, 36.

Wm. Leighton of Grand Marais spent yesterday in the city.
President Kaye of the Normal went to Chicago last night.
The second of the series of Masonic parties will be held this evening.
Kenny Richardson has gone to Iron Mountain to visit for two weeks.
Mrs. J. E. Jopling and Miss Fanny Jopling went to Chicago last evening.
Mrs. Ransom returned to Minneapolis last night, after visiting at the home of G. L. Burtis.
L. M. Geismar, superintendent of the state experiment farm at Chatham, was in the city yesterday.
Mrs. Charles Sharland, whose husband died a short time ago, is very sick at her home, 233 West Bluff street.
The Baptist Ladies' Aid society will meet this afternoon with the Misses Leeman, 327 High street, at 3 o'clock.
The Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Borreen, 302 Pine street.
The Woman's society of the Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. J. H. Kaye, 629 High street, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.
The Skandia Aid society will hold its annual meeting and election this evening. After the business meeting there will be a smoker.
The Young Woman's guild of St. Paul's church are making extensive preparations for their annual sale which will be held on Thursday, Dec. 9. Watch for further announcements.
Winthrop Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Allen, who has been on his father's farm in Minnesota for several months, has returned to the city for an indefinite stay.
The friends of Clarence B. Brown are pleased to learn that he has been promoted and transferred from Fosteria, O., to a more responsible position with the same company at Peoria, Ill.
The Woman's and Young Woman's guilds of St. Paul's church will meet together in the Guild Hall this afternoon at 2 o'clock. All members of the Young Woman's guild who have factory work at home are requested to be prepared to report on same. A full attendance of both guilds is desired.

Largest Photograph—What is supposed to be the largest photograph ever taken in Marquette is an exhibition in the window of M. M. Stueler's studio on North Front street. The photograph measures forty by thirty inches and represents the Normal football team in action at the Normal-Escanaba game, played Oct. 30. The work is eminently artistic and shows the line-up in good shape. Only two of this large size were made.

Freight Car Broke Down—The South Shore wrecking train was called to Wintthrop Junction yesterday afternoon by the trucks on a freight car breaking down on the main track at that station. The mishap blocked the main track for several hours but traffic soon resumed on the car on a side track with but little delay. The track was cleared early last evening.

Firemen Will Affiliate—At a meeting of the Fire company held last evening it was decided to accept the invitation to join the Michigan State Firemen's association. The association will hold convention at Gay City next June and it is likely that the local company will send a delegate. This affiliation does not conflict with membership in the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association.

Party for Miss Archambeau—Miss Viola Primeau entertained a number of friends at her home on South Jennie street Monday evening in honor of Miss Florence Archambeau, of Marquette, who is her guest. The home was prettily decorated for the occasion. All of the guests invited thoroughly enjoyed the evening. Music and games furnished the program of the evening after which refreshments were served.—Escanaba Press.

Elks Memorial Sunday—A large delegation of Marquette Elks is planning to go to Negaunee Sunday afternoon to attend the annual memorial service of the Ishpeming, Negaunee and Marquette lodges, which will be held in McDonald's Opera House. An interesting program has been arranged, the principal addresses to be given by Mr. Oates, a Calumet attorney, and Superintendent E. J. Scribner of Ishpeming. The special train from Marquette will leave at 1:30 sharp, instead of at 1:45, as at first announced.

New Telegraph Rule—The new rule regarding the sending of non-dictionary code messages by telegraph went into effect Wednesday. Hereafter all combinations of letters not forming any word will be charged for at the rate of one word for every five letters. The rule was made because of the difficulty of the operators to transmit such combinations. The rule will necessitate many of the large business firms revising their codes. It is said that only one firm in this city will be seriously affected by the new order.

Warm and Wet Month—According to the report of the Marquette weather station for November, the month was warmer than the average, and there was more precipitation than usual. The highest temperature recorded was 62 degrees on the 7th, and the lowest, 13 degrees on the 19th. The mean temperature for the month was 38 degrees, one degree higher than for November, 1908, and somewhat higher than the average November for the last thirty-nine years. During the month 13.7 inches of snow fell and the total precipitation was 4.1 inches. This is 1.24 inches more precipitation than usually falls in November and nearly three inches more than the record for the same month last year. During the month there were two clear days, nine cloudy days and nineteen partly cloudy.

The local option petitions require the signatures of one-third of the voters of the county, as shown by the poll lists of last fall's election, instead of 30 per cent, as was stated yesterday. Early next week, the committee will hold another meeting at which the attorneys representing the "drys" and the "wets" will present arguments favoring and opposing the granting of the petitions by the county board.

Season Nearing End—The season of navigation is rapidly nearing its close for this year. The last boat on the L. S. & L. dock, the Presque Isle, is due today and she may be loaded in time to clear before night. The Winnipeg, which brought up a cargo of steel rails, is now loading pig iron and will clear today or tomorrow. At the South Shore docks, three or four boats are to be loaded and the work may not be closed up until some time next week. Three boats are yet to arrive at the Pickands coal dock, the Warriner, the Pathfinder and the Yuma. The first two named are now on the way here but no word of the clearance of the Yuma has been received. Several days ago it was reported that the Yuma would be loaded with ore and make another trip down the lake. The last package freighter will arrive Saturday.

TOY SEASON IS HERE; SO ARE THE TOYS

SANTA CLAUS SHOULD BE ABLE TO SATISFY HIMSELF IN THE LARGE VARIETY ON DISPLAY.

Who is not buying toys at this time or thinking of it? The dealer who has not this department of his Christmas stock all polished up and on display is a dead one.

Most of the toys that are bought and sold every year come from foreign countries, says an authority.

The toys imported into this country were valued at $7,000,000. Added to this, the toys manufactured in the United States cost $3,000,000, or $10,000,000 worth of toys all told.

Some New Ones. Even so and despite the fact that thousands of the toys that will be bought in Marquette this Christmas are amplifications of this idea, particularly so as to the miniature footballs.

NEW LIABILITY BILL.

New York May Follow the Law of Great Britain.

Proposed Workmen's Compensation Act Has Many Desirable Features—Mr. Gompers and His Organization Favor the Plan and It Remains Now to Ascertain the Attitude of Employers.

New York, Dec. 2.—The indications are becoming strong that out of the investigation of the employer's liability problem by the commission that is now conducting hearings in this city there will come a scheme that will compare favorably with the British workmen's compensation law in force in Great Britain. Representatives of English labor organizations have at hearings held during the last week voiced their confidence in this plan of liability procedure. Samuel Gompers has placed upon it as a general proposition, the support of the organization that he represents. It remains now to be seen what the large employing interests will do, and from several sources come intimations that they will not be adverse to a liability law in this state drafted along the lines of the British statute.

There are many employing interests who would like to have matters stand about as they are in this state. Records that have been obtained from the state bureau of labor statistics show that in only about 25 per cent of the accidents in industrial pursuits reported to that bureau has there been recovery for the workmen. But it is recognized at the same time that the trend of sentiment in the country at large and in many states in particular is strongly in favor of giving to the workmen protection that runs far beyond what is granted in this state under the common law and under statutes like that which is now in force in the state of New York, based upon the common law decisions and limited to the principles therein laid down.

The passage of the employer's liability act for the employees of interstate corporations by congress last winter, was a good deal of a shock to many interests that had felt security under state enactments like those of New York, which operate largely on the side of the employer. With the opposition to the national employer's liability act not encountered, it was not believed that it could pass congress; but the passage of that statute and its subsequent reenactment after it had been modified so as to meet points raised by the United States supreme court, opened the eyes of many large employers of labor to the use of doing something to meet the popular view.

tion of this factor to the assessment of damages after a verdict, as do the laws of several states. Both of these defenses are eliminated in the national statute applying to the employees of interstate corporations, as is the "contributory negligence" defense, involving the negligence of the employe in all cases save those of intentional injury. With this law as a pattern, the labor people would have strong ground for their contention at Albany that New York state is revising its liability law should not take a less advanced position than the United States has taken, and inasmuch as a Republican national administration has stood sponsor for the federal enactment, even to the extent of pressing for its adoption after the supreme court had passed upon it, a state administration in which the Republicans have an undisputed control of both branches of the legislature would hardly be disposed of the labor men, particularly with a gubernatorial campaign coming on next fall in which the Republicans feel none too sure of their ground.

Therefore from the point of view of what the other side will stand for short of the enactment here of the substance of the federal requirements, Joseph Cotton, Jr., the counsel for the investigating commission, is known to have sounded several large interests on these lines, presenting to them the results of the exhaustive personal examination that he has made of the matter. Mr. Cotton will not discuss this phase of his task, but there is some reason to believe that certain of the employing interests will be disposed to accept a law drawn somewhat along the lines of the British workmen's compensation act, which makes it possible for an employe and employer to make a contract at the beginning of employment whereby the employe shall receive in case of any injury and without regard for legal considerations, a certain stated part of his wage during disability.

The support that this method of dealing with the situation has received from the representatives of organized labor suggests the possibility that both labor and capital will be brought together under it eventually. From many points of view the compensation plan offers benefits to both sides which they do not enjoy under the present system. At least it does away with a vast amount of expensive and cumbersome litigation and while the corporations have to a large extent in recent years passed such litigation along to the insurance companies making a specialty of this kind of business, nevertheless the rates that they have paid for the insurance have included the cost of conducting the litigation. The enormous loss to both employer and employed under these conditions was brought out by Mr. Cotton in his personal examination of the matter.

Statistics show that less than 10 per cent of the premium income of companies doing employers' liability insurance business has been over a term of years, paid out in damages; many of these companies have not been over prosperous in fact, only about half of those doing business hereabouts are now on a dividend-paying basis. The remainder of their income has gone into the cost of doing the business—the agent who has written it at undue expense and to the lawyer who has presented appeals through court after court until the plaintiff was worn out physically and financially; and was willing to settle for a small sum. The elimination of this undue expense of litigation, indeed the elimination of the litigation itself, has been one of the chief benefits of the compensation system mentioned by the witnesses from across the water who have been examined here. It is obvious that it applies to the insurance company quite as much as to the employer and the employe, for with the costs and uncertainties of litigation removed, the insurance company could determine its premium rates far more accurately with respect to the actual experience in the matter of accidents in whatever industry it undertook to insure.

There remains, of course, the constitutional prohibition in this state against any contract which will limit the right of recovery in advance. This difficulty, however, will not prove an insuperable one, for a law might be framed which would allow a workman to make a contract on the compensation theory and then leave him the right, before or after settlement of the amount due on any accident, to reject such a sum and take his chances at the common law with all its perils of "fellow servant" and "hazardous occupation" provisions. Thereby no constitutional infringement would be committed yet it is perhaps a fair prediction that the average employe, knowing what part of his recovery, even from successful suits, would be eaten up by costs and lawyer's fees, would take his stated compensation and leave the courts to other litigants.

LIVES IN ONE HOUSE EIGHTY-FOUR YEARS

Benjamin C. Gladding of Providence R. I., Hale and Hearty, Is Good for Many More Birthdays—He Is of Tough Mariner Stock—His Dwelling Stored With Trophies from Afar.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 2.—On Wednesday of this week Benjamin C. Gladding rounded out eighty-four years as an inmate of the house at 20 Arnold street, this city. Mr. Gladding was born there and passed his boyhood and early manhood under its hospitable roof. To the old homestead he took his youthful bride, who still remains with him, and there he expects to live even to a ripe age, as he comes from a long-lived family. His father was John C. Gladding, one of the sturdy sea captains who were prominent in the maritime history of the port of Providence when the harbor was filled with ships which made voyages to distant ports, bringing the rich wares destined for the markets of New York and Boston.

Benjamin C. Gladding, whose mother was Mary Fillingham, was born Nov. 17, 1825. His education was acquired in the local schools. As a young man he was employed by James Hale, who ran a post business in opposition to the government, having agents in the principal New England cities and in New York. The government post rate was ten cents for a single letter from Boston to Providence and 18 1/2 cents from Providence to New York. Mr. Hale's rates for the same services were five and ten cents, respectively. A land office business was done by the agents, who made collections in Boston, brought the mail here and, exchanging horses and vehicles, went on to New York to make deliveries. The opposition to the government became so strong that the federal authorities made wholesale reductions, cutting under Mr. Hale's rates so much that there ceased to be any profit from following the old post road. Subsequently Mr. Gladding became bookkeeper for Thurston & Greene, one of the noted engineering concerns of the country, remaining with that firm eleven years, when he became bookkeeper, then assistant treasurer and finally treasurer of the Phoenix Iron foundry, retiring from active business in 1887.

Mr. Gladding is the only active charter member of the Squantum association, the select shore club of Providence, at whose private grounds near Kettle point on the east side of the bay President Arthur and other dignitaries of this and other countries have been guests. Governor William Spangue, the "war governor," is a charter member, but rarely visits the clubhouse. Mr. Gladding never fails to attend the weekly feasts, and invariably gives personal attention to firing salutes with the old cannons when distinguished guests are to be entertained. He is a delightful raconteur and has splendid memories of old Providence and its foremost people. He was an active participant in the Dorr war, when Thomas W. Dorr led the civil insurrection, the purport of which was to overthrow the state government. Mr. Gladding was but seventeen years old when this almost bloodless insurrection broke out. He cast his fortunes with the loyal supporters of the government and went to Pawtucket the morning after the day when, in conflict with the mob, the Kenish artillery of East Greenwich killed a man. His narrative of the service he performed in Pawtucket is laughable in the extreme, including his being bombarded while on guard with potatoes, cabbages and turnips.

Mr. Gladding has been affiliated with no secret organization, but since arriving at his majority he has been a member of the Providence Marine society, formed by ship masters over a century ago. His father was a member and took him to one of the dinners when he was four years old, and from that time on he was a regular guest. This organization is unique. It has its annual banquet on July 4 and 5. That is the first dinner is served at noon July 4. Every kind of meat in the market, fish and salads galore, and every known variety of liquors are on the board, enough to feed a multitude and float a ship. All hands are piped down to mess after an old-fashioned punch is served, and hours are used up in feasting. Then all hands turn in at their respective homes, never until dusk, to be piped to the second mess at 12 o'clock noon the next day, when another big feast, with roast sucking pigs as the main feature, but with a prodigality of comestibles, is partaken of, with frequent sippings of the main brand and a farewell noggin of punch of amazing quality and potency as "Star Spangled Banner" and "America" are warbled, not sung, for the old sea dogs are no great shakes on melody, although they count heavily in volume of sound.

Although Mr. Gladding has just passed the eighty-fourth milestone, he looks nearly twenty years younger, and is made a specialty of caring for the speedy needs of "runaway" couples, losing a really considerable portion of their yearly income. The several cities and towns will lose, through the lessening in registrar's fees, in this city about $500, it is estimated. The cab men who have for years made a specialty of hustling the young couples from the train to the registrar's office and from thence to the minister will also lose a desirable patronage. Hotels, too, will miss the couples somewhat, but as a rule their visits were light, stays seldom being made here over night. During the last fiscal year 681 couples from places in states other than Rhode Island were married in Providence. Of this number, 529 were from Massachusetts. Most, if not all, were elopements or hasty marriages. In addition there were performed in this city 106 marriages in which one of the parties was from Massachusetts. These may, or may not, have been runaway matches. At Woonsocket forty couples from places outside of Rhode Island were married. In other places throughout the state probably one hundred more such marriages were performed.

THE MODERN WOODMEN SANATORIUM FOR TUBERCULOSIS, COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO.

The Modern Woodmen of America claims the distinction of being the first of the big life insurance organizations practical or old line, to engage in a practical way in the world-wide campaign being waged against tuberculosis. The society's sanatorium, located near Colorado Springs, Colo., will consist when completed, of six colonies of sixty tent cottages each, or 360 tent cottages in all, with suitable administration buildings, medical and nurses' headquarters, dining halls, etc. The site for the Modern Woodmen sanatorium was acquired about two years ago and consists of 1,380 acres of land at the foot of Cedar mountain, about nine miles north of Colorado Springs and four and one-half miles north of the world-famed garden of the Gods, at an altitude of about 7,000 feet. At present, two colonies of sixty tent cottages each are completed, occupied by 120 patients. These patients are being given treatment by the society free of all charges. Only curable cases are accepted. The sanatorium is conducted under the supervision of the executive committee of the Modern Woodmen society, and Dr. J. E. White, of Colorado Springs, is the medical director and superintendent. The permanent income for the maintenance of the sanatorium is derived from a tax of ten cents per member per year from the 1,100,000 members of the society. In addition, the members have voluntarily contributed to the sanatorium during the last year over $125,000. The water supply is piped from intakes several miles up in the mountains. The society has been given the privilege of fencing in the United States forest reserve on

Cedar mountain and draws an unpolluted water supply from that source. A dairy of tuberculin-tested Holstein cows furnishes the milk supply for the sanatorium. The society also has its own farm of 300 acres. Two additional colonies of sixty tent cottages each are now in course of construction. In connection with the maintenance of a free sanatorium for its members, the Modern Woodmen society is conducting an educational campaign against tuberculosis. Millions of pieces of literature are being distributed, with the end in view of educating the members of the society and their families out of those habits of life and environments that encourage the spread of the disease. Its educational pamphlet, entitled "War Against Tuberculosis," is being given a wide distribution, not only to the members of the society, but among the masses of the people of various health resorts and anti-tuberculosis associations. The policy of the society in its fight on tuberculosis is briefly set forth in its educational literature as follows: "Prevention is in any case better than cure; to keep well, to avoid contracting the disease, is better than to get well after the disease has been contracted. To enable the members of the society and their families to live intelligently, with their eyes wide open at all times to the dangers of infection, to enable them to close the doors on this disease, is infinitely better than to permit them to continue to live with doors wide open, ignorantly or unwittingly extending an invitation to the germs of tuberculosis to enter in and begin their deadly work."

The society in fighting tuberculosis has led several other fraternal organizations to take up the work. Also, the leading old line companies contemplate the establishment of similar institutions for their policy holders. The Metropolitan Life of New York is the first of the big companies to follow the lead of the Woodmen. It has adopted the visiting nurse plan of educational work, not being permitted under its charter to operate a sanatorium.

OBJECT OF CORONER AND AN INQUEST

SOME INTERESTING INFORMATION REGARDING PROCEDURE IN CASE OF VIOLENT DEATH.

POPULAR FALLACIES EXPLODED

No Law to Prevent Anyone Removing a Dead Body to Place of Safety or for Humanitarian Reasons.

In an informal conversation yesterday, Coroner L. P. Cray gave out some interesting information concerning the duties of a coroner and the purposes of an inquest, incidentally exploding several common fallacies regarding a citizen's duty in case of a violent or mysterious death.

"An inquest is simply held for the purpose of determining the identity of the deceased, how, by what means and in what manner he met his death," said the coroner. "When these facts have been determined, it becomes the duty of the coroner to do everything in his power to locate the deceased's relatives and notify them of his death. When all these facts can be determined from the surrounding circumstances without any apparent difference of opinion, there is no particular need for an inquest."

"In locating the relatives of several victims of accidents in this community within the last two years, I have had great difficulty and in some cases I am still searching. In the case of the Finn who was killed near Lawson a little more than a year ago, the only clue to possible relatives was a few letters written in Finnish found on his person. Through correspondence with the writers of these letters I finally learned that the deceased had a wife in Finland. By writing the police of several cities in that country, his wife was located a few weeks ago and I am now in correspondence with her relative to the disposition of his watch and other articles found in his pockets. I am still trying to find some relative of the Thomas Nolan, who was found dead under Spear's dock last summer, but have thus far been unsuccessful in getting any definite information. Several people have written, stating that they had a relative of that name, but when ferreted out, I have found that this Nolan was not the man they wanted."

"Many people believe that an inquest is held for the purpose of determining the blame or negligence which caused death, but a failure to so place blame in case of accident or even in a case of murder by a coroner's jury would not prevent the bringing of a suit for damages in the one instance or the arrest of a man for murder in the other."

"Another popular fallacy was exploded in a conversation between a lawyer and another person a few days ago. The lawyer said: 'I made a bet the other day that a person has no right to touch a dead body until the coroner arrived, and I won.' "Who decided the question for you?" asked the lawyer with a smile. "Well," said the man sheepishly, "it was a bartender, but he's an educated fellow and a good judge of law." "You speak of the law as if it were judged like cattle at a fat stock show," replied the attorney. "There is no law on any statute book in any state in the United States which says one may not touch a body before the arrival of the coroner; there never has been and, furthermore, as the people are growing more sensible every day, there never will be. If done with a humane motive, a body may be removed any distance."

"In case of murder the old English common law used to require that the body of one murdered be left just as it lay until viewed by one in authority. That was done, it can be plainly seen for the purpose of preserving the surroundings intact, so that whatever evidence might be there would not be disturbed. In case of murder today, especially if any mystery is connected with it, common sense would tell a person to leave everything intact, not alone for the coroner, but for the police officials as well. But, should the body of a murdered man be moved, there is no law covering it, unless it can be proved that the person moving the body did it with the intention to destroy evidence. In cases of suicide or death by accident, there could be no objection to moving the body anywhere, if done with a humane or other proper motive. In fact, any person who finds a dead body should remove it to a place of safety if possible, before notifying the coroner."

START GIFTS EARLY.

Postmaster Calls Attention to Desirability of Promptness.

"It is time that the people be reminded of the desirability of starting registered packages, intended for Christmas gifts, long enough beforehand so that they will be sure to reach their destination on time," said Postmaster John D. Mangum yesterday. "Registered mail is slower than letter mail and especially during the holiday season, when the postoffice business is taxed to its capacity, ample time should be allowed for the transmission of packages to distant points. There are always some people who come into the office with packages for California or some other faraway place three or four days before Christmas. Such packages are practically certain not to reach their destination until several days after Christmas. A gift that arrives a few days early is more appreciated than one that arrives a day late, but the public apparently can't see that fact, except as it applies to themselves."

"This year it costs ten cents in addition to the regular postage to register a package and in case of loss it is insured for $50 instead of $25, as heretofore. Registered mail is the safest way to send Christmas gifts, as they are checked up at every point and the sender knows by the return card that the gift has been received. It is surprising how many people, nevertheless, send valuable packages without registering them and then complain if they are lost in transit."
