The kind of hypocrisy that parades and advertises its own pleasure and says it is for the benefit of those who have no pleasure, is particularly objectionable to me. that is our notion of the flower of charitable giving, it is time we stopped boasting of being civilized. I discount this thing from every point of view-practical, ethical, and as a matter of taste. Practically, it is wasteful. For every $10 that is spent not more than $5 gets to the poor. It is equally wasteful of the time and efforts of those who promote it. The Jews of this city gave up charity balls some years ago. When we dance we dance, and when we give we give. Charity balls don't Boston is in the throes of a novel municipal election, with "no party" candidates for the mayoralty and other offices, the result of which will be awaited with great interest.

They want to shine and By vote of the people it was decided this is their ready made opportunity. to try this plan of electing a city gov-Every one can get in who can buy a ticket and every one has a chance. Those on the outside have an opportunity to rub shoulders with the inner circle for once, while the inner circle basks in the glow of adulation. There is a splendid outpouring of nominations for city officers, and there rich, warm, human charitable feeling in the vulgar scramble! As a matter of taste the charity ball is an inharmonious mixture. The ingredients are all well in their place, but they don't mix well. A man once found some strands of hair in a pot of butter in a restaurant and called the waiter to remonstrate with him. "This is pretty hair," he said, "I like to authorize the candidacy of an aspirit. It also seems like good butter, but I don't want them both on the same plate." That's the way a great, expensive, barbaric public dance As might be anticipated, the campaign strikes me when they call it a charis being conducted almost wholly on per-ity ball. Why drag the word "charity" into such an affair. A person in need couldn't get near enough to hear the orchestra play. And, as for the effect on the minds of those who took part, the best way to find out is to go the next day to persons who have danced and try to get money out of them for a charitable purpose. Furthermore, it doesn't pay financially or morally. The Jews found that out long ago. The luxury of it is not to be condemned in itself. Luxury is an economic factor. gives employment to many. But it is my experience of life that people who want to dance are going to dance and that plenty of balls will always be given. Such work as they furnish will always be furnished up to the limit of society's means. They don't have to be called charity balls to obtain that result.

In the forty years 1868 to 1908 Japan's hope that her effort to escape from the yearly foreign trade, increased from thralldom of bad municipal government $13,000,000 to $407,000,000.
