

ROOSEVELT RETURNS TO OYSTER BAY

Sagamore Hill Once More Shelters the Former President and His Family—Sunday the Colonel's First Real Day of Rest in a Number of Months.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 19.—This was Theodore Roosevelt's first day of rest in months. His return to privacy is a delight to him, and he has made it known that it is his desire to drop as far out of sight as possible.

Attends Son's Wedding Today. The colonel will go to New York tomorrow to attend the wedding of his son, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Alexander, Wednesday.

Hopes to Have a True Rest. The former president passed to survey the expanses of grassy slopes about his home. Not a sound could be heard except the laughter of his children on the veranda.

In spite of his long, hard day Saturday, Mr. Roosevelt was up early this morning. After breakfast he went to the veranda with Senator Lodge and Congressman Longworth.

Rousing Welcome Home. At New York yesterday, Colonel Roosevelt set foot on home shores for the first time in nearly fifteen months and received a rousing welcome.

Throughout the day, Mr. Roosevelt had an expansive smile for everybody—a cheery word for "the boys"; his old friends, the newspaper men; a pat anecdote for the politicians, an especial greeting of affection for his old command, the rough riders, and a quick eye for absolutely everything.

His Reception National. Within a generation, the nation remembers three great welcomes before this of Saturday—to General Grant in San Francisco, after his triumphal tour of the world, following the expiration of his two terms as president.

Grant, on his return, was still a political possibility, but as events proved, foredoomed to defeat. Dewey was a hero, not a national leader. Bryan, prominent as his part had been before the people, had never been entrusted by them with executive responsibility.

With the first zest of public curiosity satisfied, speculation now turns on what share Mr. Roosevelt will take in the acute political situation within his own party, of which he has already been advised abroad by old associates who carried him the tidings.

Brings Home a Fawn—Deputy Game Warden T. J. Many returned from Powell last night with a very young fawn which he found in possession of a bark peeler in that vicinity. The fawn came to the place about a week ago and has become quite tame in that time. The keeper promptly turned the animal over to some of the public parks in this vicinity. Knowledge Was Limited—H. O. Bell tells a good story illustrating the ignorance of some of the sailors employed on the Great Lakes this season. A young man from one of the boats landed at Presque Isle called at Mr. Bell's boat house on the island one afternoon recently, and with a manner indicating self-importance, engaged in conversation. "How's the barometer today?" The self-satisfied seaman promptly replied, "Oh, she's all right; she locked through the Soo just after we did."

Injured on the Dock—John Laarima suffered a fracture of several ribs and was otherwise bruised while working on the South Shore dock Sunday forenoon. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where it was stated last evening that his injuries were not considered serious. The accident was caused by the breaking of a cable by which the spouts from the dock to the boats are raised and lowered. When the cable and unground spout were severed, the handle struck him in the side. Noted Catholic Lecturer—Arrangements have been completed for the appearance here next Friday evening at Baraga auditorium of Professor J. C. Monaghan, the noted Catholic orator and educator. Professor Monaghan will speak here under the auspices of Marquette council, Knights of Columbus, on the subject "How the Other Half Lives." Put Out in Nick of Time—Prompt action by the fire department averted what had all the appearance of a serious fire in the Red, White and Blue block shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night. The blaze started in Dr. Deak's man's office and is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of an alcohol lamp, though no one was in the office at the time. It had gained considerable headway before being noticed and when the firemen reached the scene clouds of smoke were pouring through the doors and windows and the roof. In a short time the fire was gotten under control, but the damage by smoke and water was considerable. Dr. Deakman suffered the greatest loss, but the restaurant adjoining was also considerably damaged.

College Men on Boats—Although perhaps not generally known, the lake men note the approach of the college commencement season with great interest, for it brings to them sounds of considerable headway in their work for the summer on boats. The advance guard of these young men has already appeared at the shipping offices, and many others are expected to follow. The lake men welcome the coming of the students, as they, as a rule, prove reliable and faithful workmen. Every year about this time there are a large number of men quitting the lakes for various reasons, and it is the college men who are counted on to fill up the quotas on the pro boats and who annually appear ready to take up the jobs. HERMAN DIETRICH THE ONLY WITNESS Assistant Bookkeeper of Defunct Ironwood Bank on Stand in Federal Court Saturday.

Only a short session of United States court was held Saturday, adjournment being taken at noon to permit the jurors and others to spend Sunday at home. Representatives of the government, who are familiar with the amount of evidence to be presented, are of the opinion that the Bedlow case will not go to the jury for a week yet. But one witness was on the stand Saturday, Herman Dietrich, who was sworn Friday afternoon. Mr. Dietrich had charge of the customers ledger and did the collecting for the First National bank during the period in which Bedlow is alleged to have made his various defalcations. Dietrich was used by the government to identify the many false entries made in the bank books from April, 1908, to June, 1909, and to testify to the person's handwriting in which the various entries were made. From his direct testimony it appeared that Bedlow made many of these entries, the unquestioned purpose of some in making which or having them made was to conceal shortages in the cash and other accounts of the bank. Mr. Dietrich evidently had a comprehensive knowledge of the books of the bank and the method of conducting business, and made a clear and positive witness. It is the government's theory of the case that Bedlow worked independently of Larson in many of the transactions whereby the banking association was defrauded, and that in others he and Larson worked together. It is not the belief of the government employees that Larson and Bedlow actually were in partnership in such a scheme, but rather that it was a case of "you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours." The defense, on their part, admit that many of the transactions produced in evidence by the prosecution were consummated, but declare that Bedlow only made such entries as he was ordered to make by his superior officers and that he made them without any knowledge or intent of doing wrong. They further deny that Bedlow ever misappropriated a dollar of bank money to his own use or purposes. Mr. Dietrich was put through a grilling cross-examination by Attorney O'Neill, which was not concluded when court adjourned at 12:30 for the day. Mr. Dietrich was again asked to refer to the bank's books and point out the various crooked entries put in evidence by the government during his direct cross-examination. The witness stated that these entries had been made from typewritten slips, which in the ordinary course of business would have been placed on Bedlow's desk to be entered by him as head bookkeeper. Mr. Larson had a peculiar custom of combining a comma and a period when writing with a typewriter, and as this peculiarity appeared on each of the typewritten slips shown the witness, he stated that the slips appeared to have been prepared by Larson. The defense considers this a strong point, claiming that it bears out their theory that Bedlow was assistant cashier only in name, knowing nothing of the operations being carried on by Larson and John, and that he was in reality only a bookkeeper. In this connection, Dietrich admitted that he continually made entries that would affect the cash balances of the bank, making such entries as the memorandum placed on his desk required him to make. Several of the false entries were made by Mr. Dietrich, who testified that he had no suspicion that in making them he was covered up fraudulent transactions of his superiors. The government admits that Dietrich was innocent of any wrongdoing in this respect. Manifestly, it is the contention of the defense that Bedlow is equally innocent, even though many of Dietrich's entries were made at Bedlow's direction. AUTOMOBILE GARAGE. Pioneer Motor Company Purchases Pendill Block on Baraga Avenue. Announcement was made Saturday of the purchase of the Pendill block on the south side of Baraga avenue, between Front and Third streets, by the Pioneer Motor company. Repairs are already under way by the purchasers by which the building is to be made into an automobile garage and repair shop. It is hoped that the building will be ready for occupancy by July 1. For the past year, the Pioneer Motor company has had a garage in the north end of the old Lake Shore foundry building on Lake street, but this is not considered a good location for the business and there is not sufficient room to expand as the company desires. For some time, the company has been considering plans for a garage of its own, and they have been consummated in the purchase of the Pendill block. The Baraga avenue building will be fitted out with a complete equipment for the repair of automobiles and motor machinery, including lathes and an apparatus for vulcanizing tires. An expert machinist in this line will be employed and the company will shortly be able to handle anything in the way of automobile repairs that may come along. Another year, the company plans to fit out one part of the building as a motor vehicle sales room, in which a large stock of cars will constantly be kept on hand, but it is not likely that any considerable stock can be secured this summer. The company, however, is agent for the E-M-F and Flanders automobiles and expects shortly to take the agency for Studebaker cars. BIDS WANTED. Sealed bids will be received by Dr. E. H. Campbell, secretary of the hospital board of trustees at Newberry, Mich., up to 12 o'clock noon, June 28th 1910, for additions to the dining room building at Newberry, Mich. Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the secretary at Newberry, Mich., or at the office of the architect, 411 Adams building, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. A certified check for 5 per cent must accompany each bid, made payable to the secretary. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids. Yesterday's ball game between the Ishpeming and Marquette teams went thirteen innings, the visitors winning by a score of 3 to 2. It was the most exciting exhibition of the season on the local grounds and several times during the wild periods the nearly 4,000 fans present were up on their toes.

The features of the game outside of the work of both batteries was Mack's playing at third and Young at short for Marquette and Larson's Kaiser's and Seccore's work on the sacks for Ishpeming.

Marquette scored two runs in the sixth and one in the thirteenth, in both of which innings timely hitting figured in the run-getting.

Ishpeming's next and final run was made in the seventh. Simpson touched the ball for two bases and he reached third on Dixon's single over the first sack.

CHANGES IN THE POSTAL SERVICE

Bill Passed by Congress Eliminates Practice of Sending Money Order Advices and of Returning Post Card Registry Receipt, Unless Especially Requested.

Postmaster General Hitchcock Believes Expenses of His Department Will Thereby Be Greatly Reduced—Several Other Amendments Are Recommended.

It is the opinion of employees of the United States postal department that Postmaster General Hitchcock is making a conscientious effort to do away with some of the useless "red tape," which is now drawn about the method of conducting certain departments of the postoffice business. Two important changes of this kind have already been sanctioned by congress and others have been advised by the postmaster general.

One of these changes does away with the sending of money order advices from the issuing to the paying office. By a change in the form of the postal money order and the elimination of the mail advice to postmasters of the issuance of money orders, Postmaster General Hitchcock expects to save to the government approximately $500,000 a year. The new money order form is two and one-half inches longer than the one now in use. It consists of a stub, order with marginal check, coupon to be retained by the postmaster who makes the payment and a receipt for the remitter. The order and coupon both are to be mailed by the remitter to the person in whose favor the order is drawn. The new form will be put into use as soon as the supply printer can obtain the necessary supply of "safety" paper.

When the section of the law was enacted requiring money order advices to be sent by the issuing postmaster to the paying office, the money order was not protected by the safeguards now employed to prevent raising the amount, nor did it contain the names of the remitter and payee. These particulars were stated in the advice, which served to identify the person presenting the order for payment and to insure the correctness of the amount claimed.

Since the passage of the law requiring the advices, it has been found preferable to insert the names of the remitter and payee in the money order itself, and that is now the practice. It is also the practice to require personal identification of the payee, to print the forms on water-marked and tinted safety paper in order to prevent erasures, and to use marginal indentions showing in round numbers the amount for which the order is drawn.

Thus the advice is no longer of any value for the purpose originally intended.

Registry Return Receipt.

On the recommendation of the postal department, congress has also passed the following: "Whenever the sender shall so request, a receipt shall be taken on the delivery of any registered mail matter, showing to whom and when the same was delivered, which receipt shall be returned to the sender, and be received by the courts as prima facie evidence of its delivery."

The effect of this amendment will be to permit the department to do away with the receipt when it is not desired by the sender of registered mail, continuing its use, however, in all cases where the sender so requests. It is estimated that the passage of this bill will enable the department, by abandoning the use of the receipt when it is not desired, to save about $100,000 annually in the cost of conducting the registered mail service.

The present law necessitates the return to the sender in every instance whether he desires it or not, of a receipt from the person receiving registered mail. The practice is to obtain such a receipt on a post card and return it to the sender. The postmaster at the office of delivery obtains a separate receipt for his own records, which constitutes sufficient evidence of delivery. The sender's post card receipt, therefore, is unnecessary for that purpose. As a matter of fact, the sender in many cases does not desire such a receipt, and to that extent an unwarranted expense is now imposed on the postal service.

Deficit Less Than Expected.

It is interesting to note that the condition of the postal revenues were never better than at present. Whereas it was estimated last September that the deficit for the fiscal year ending June 30 would be $19,000,000 it is now conceded that the deficit will not be more than $9,000,000 and that for the first time in the history of the department, the postmaster general has been able to turn back a part of his appropriation into the United States treasury. The over-estimating of the deficit for the present fiscal year was due to under-estimating the increase of business, compared with the previous year. In basing the estimate in September, it was considered that the revenue would show an increase of 4 per cent. As a matter of fact, this increase has been just three times as much, 12 per cent. That is, the department has done more business without any perceptible increase in expense.

Return of Undelivered Letters.

Other changes in the postal laws which Postmaster General Hitchcock desires, but which have not yet been adopted are the following: When a letter is mailed on which appears the name and address of the sender, but without specifying the time such letter shall be returned to the sender in case it can not be delivered, under the present law, the postmaster must hold such a letter for thirty days, no matter what the circumstances may be. In his recommendation to congress, Mr. Hitchcock says: "This provision of law, enacted before the general introduction of delivery by carrier, was evidently intended to meet conditions in postoffices where mail is called for at the window. Now that the principal part of the mail is delivered at the residences or offices of the addressees, who rarely or never call at the postoffice, the operation of the statute is detrimental to the postal service and to the public.

"When a letter addressed to a street and number is received at a city delivery office, delivery is first attempted by carrier at the address given. In the case of failure to find the addressee, the records of the office are searched for forwarding orders that may have been overlooked, the city directory is examined, inquiries are made of persons of the same or similar names at other addresses, postmasters at offices commonly confused with the one receiving the letter are consulted, and, in short, every possible method is tried to effect delivery. After the usual efforts to accomplish this have failed, a letter may safely be regarded as undeliverable, and thereupon it should be promptly returned to the sender.

"Although the sender has the right under the present law of specifying the period during which a letter shall be held if undelivered, he usually fails to do so, in which event it should be possible to return the letter in a much briefer time than is now prescribed by the statute.

"Not only does the storing of undelivered letters for thirty days require in the aggregate thousands of feet of valuable space in postoffices, but the daily work of examining the files for the purpose of withdrawing letters ready for return consumes the time of many employees. A modification of the statute by which the period for holding undelivered letters could be reduced would therefore make possible a material saving, estimated at fully $50,000 a year, in the cost of handling such mail and would, at the same time, result in a prompter delivery."

House Mail Boxes.

Mr. Hitchcock also recommends the following: "That after Dec. 31, 1910, delivery of mail by city letter carriers shall be made only at such residences and places of business as provide at the door or entrance suitable receptacles for its deposit."

"This bill, the passage of which is earnestly recommended by the department, will not only make possible an important saving in the cost of the city delivery service, but will render that service more efficient by accomplishing a speedier delivery of the mail. Carriers are now greatly delayed on their routes by the necessity of waiting for door bells to be answered and by the time lost in entering places of business. According to a recent estimate the average amount of time consumed at stops is fully fifteen seconds. As a carrier averages 200 stops in the course of his daily trips, the amount of time he thus loses amounts to at least an hour and a half daily. There are at present over 20,000 city letter carriers, and their compensation averages close to $1,000 a year.

"It is therefore apparent that the saving of time made possible by the proposed bill in the delivery of mail will enable the department to reduce the annual cost of city delivery by several million dollars."

"BOHEMIAN GIRL" TONIGHT.

Members of Cast Excellent Prepared to Present Well-known Opera.

The dress rehearsal of the "Bohemian Girl" to be given tonight, was held at the opera house Saturday evening, and lasted well into the night. The bright choruses, the dramatic scenes, the dances and groupings were gone over again and again, for the executive directors, Miss Linton and Mrs. Rushmore, were not satisfied with merely good effects, they wanted perfection. A scene, to the uninitiated spectator, would move with speed and dramatic truth, only to be broken off and recommenced for some new point to be emphasized and accentuated. Yet in spite of the evident rehearsal, the story of the opera was intensely interesting, and the young actors threw themselves into the work with whole-hearted enthusiasm and energy.

The performance tonight should be a great artistic pleasure, for the singing, especially the work of Miss Rotalie and Mr. McKereghan, and the large chorus, is excellent; the dances are well planned and prettily executed; the costumes bright and appropriate; the music gay, tuneful and full of familiar melodies.

Miss Linton deserves great praise for the musical work she does, the way the chorus is drilled and the singing of the various principals showing unremitting labor and fervent musical conviction. Mrs. H. C. Davis, at the piano, has had no small share in making the opera possible, and in bringing out the desired perfection. Mrs. Rushmore has had charge of the dramatic side, and it was noticeable even in the rehearsal, how seriously each member of the cast and chorus regarded his individual work, and how sincerely they felt the scenes and situations. It has been a great undertaking to produce such an opera as the "Bohemian Girl," and difficulties were increased by the limited time at the disposal of the Normal students. That no apology for their work is necessary, and that so much unstinted praise can be given, is a matter of personal congratulation to every one concerned. Too often in amateur performances, unlimited indulgence is supposed to excuse careless and inadequate preparation, and applause is given to friends eager to encourage, there is no reason why actors and singers should not do the best that has been demanded of them, which means that it will be a delightful performance.

The cast of characters follows: Count Arnelheim, Gov. of Presburg, Com. Arnheim, Will Muldaly, Thaddeus, a proscribed Pole, George Belding, Florestin, nephew of the count, Gordon Tucker, Devlahof, chief of the gypsies, Howard McKereghan, Arline, daughter of the count, Flora Rotalie, Buda, her attendant, Edna Rutan, Queen of the gypsies, Christina Craer, An officer, Clair Drake, Captain of the guard, Lewellyn Drake, Chorus of Gypsies, Huntsmen, Guests, etc.
