TRUST SURRENDERS LEASE

President Oloit, of the Oliver Iron company, has confirmed the report that the U. S. Steel corporation will cancel the lease that it holds on the Great Northern ore lands.

The statement credited to President Oloit is not particularly illuminating as to the reasons why the Steel corporation directors decided to cancel the lease.

Again it has been asserted that the cancellation of the lease is a step in which business considerations alone had weight.

Whatever the reason for the cancellation of the lease may be, it appears that the Steel corporation is voluntarily giving up exclusive rights in some 300,000,000 tons of ore.

Far-reaching consequences are likely to follow on the surrender of the lease.

Announcement is made at Duluth that within the next thirty or forty days the iron ore rates on the Steel corporation's railroads will be cut to sixty cents a gross ton.

Whatever harsh things may be said of Edward Hines it is probably safe to believe that he is not as black as he is painted.

Evidently, in the interests of industrial peace, the Steel corporation is planning to disarm these critics and perhaps to lessen the likelihood that the government will move to attack the corporate organization of the so-called trust.

DECLARES FATHER ABUSED MOTHER.

Some of Elaine's testimony was dramatic, as the following will show.

Cross examination by Mr. Leclandre, for the defense.

Q—Do you remember moving into the house where your father died?

A—Yes, sir, three or four years ago.

Q—Was your mother keeping boarders constantly?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—When she was drunk?

A—Ever quarrel when he was sober?

A—No, sir.

Q—How did they get along when he was sober?

A—Very, very nice.

Q—Did your father ever strike your mother?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you remember any particular time?

A—Sometimes he would whip mamma, strike her in the face, or somemother. I had my ear rings hit by his hand.

Q—Did he have a gun in the house?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you remember anything particular about this gun?

A—Yes, sir, he was cleaning the gun and said there wouldn't be any mamma when I came home from school.

Q—Did your father ever take any tablets after drinking?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—How did he take them?

A—He would put them on his tongue and take a swallow of water.

Q—Did he ever say anything about dying?

A—Yes, sir, he said he would put himself out of this world of misery.

Q—Elaine told of how her father used to hunt for her mother's money that she had in safe places about the house. Sometimes he would find it and take some of it for himself. Did you ever see a bottle of whiskey in the house and her mother hid it under the bath tub. Her father found it, took it down stairs and drank all but a tiny little bit in the bottom of the bottle.

Q—Elaine testified that on the morning of her father's death he threw a chair at her.

Boys Corroborates Girl's Testimony.

Alvah, the seventeen-year-old son of Mrs. Stannard, testified to going to the doctor at his father's request.

Q—Did he not go till his father had asked it the second time, because he had gone to a doctor before for his father and had been told by the doctor that it was the after effects of drinking that was the father's ailment?

The boy testified that his father said the coffee tasted bitter, but this testimony was stricken out for the time being, because it was a statement not made in the presence of the defendant.

The witness testified that his mother said that the taste in his father's mouth after drinking was what ailed the coffee.

On cross-examination, Alvah said that while he was getting ready to go for the doctor that fatal morning his mother had gone up stairs, during which time Stannard had another convulsion. Mrs. Stannard ran out in the yard and called to Alvah in excited tones: "For mercy's sake, get the doctor. Your father has gone black in the face."

Alvah also testified that all the abuse that Elaine had described, corroborating her testimony that his father was abusive and cruel when he was drunk. He also testified to the tablets his father was in the habit of faking after drinking.

It is evident from Alvah's testimony that he and his father were chums. They went hunting together and seemed to be better in sympathy than the other members of the family.

That fatal morning when Stannard came home he called at Alvah's room and said, "Hello, boy, where's your mother?" When Alvah uttered that "Hello, boy," it seemed to recall to him this comradeship and the many youngsters broke into tears for the first time since he had taken the stand.

Dr. Vaughan an Interesting Witness.

Dr. Victor C. Vaughan of Ann Arbor, expert witness for the prosecution, gave testimony that while largely technical, was highly interesting.

Thomas W. Gibson, deputy commissioner of mines of the Dominion of Canada, said that the reciprocity agreement was rejected by Canada, not for any technical reason, but because of local conditions.

Walter L. Fisher, secretary of the Interior, and John Hays Hammond are scheduled to speak on Friday, while on Saturday, the closing day of the congress, President Taft will deliver an address on the relations of the government to the mining industry.

WHY THE ORE LEASE IS TO BE CANCELLED. A New York View of the Steel Corporation's Action—More Such Steps Predicted. New York, Oct. 24.—In the discussion which has been aroused by the decision of the United States Steel corporation to relinquish its lease of the Great Northern ore lands and to reduce the freight rate on ore, the point of possible greatest interest is the inference which some are drawing from the action already taken by the Steel corporation that this is but the beginning of several steps to which the corporation is likely to resort to free itself entirely of the danger of a suit instituted under the Sherman law for the dissolution of the corporation or of some of its important subsidiary companies.

pected reduction by other lines is already being pointed to by the independent steel makers to obtain a reduction of freight rates on raw and finished materials in the Pittsburgh district proves successful. The success of this movement would further reduce the cost of iron and at the same time effect the cost of delivery of finished materials. So far as these reductions affect the railroads owned by the Steel corporation it would be but a nominal loss; for what the corporation thus lost in freight revenue it would gain in lowered manufacturing costs, but to the independents who have no railroads of their own the reduction in freight rates would amount to an actual saving. This freight reduction by other moves by the Steel corporation therefore is an important concession to public demand which will more directly to the advantage of the Steel corporation's rivals.
