BLUE SKY LAW LAME IS REVISED VERDICT

Will Not Prevent the Sale in State of Stocks of Doubtful Value, It Is Asserted.

Lansing, Mich., May 15.—The blue sky law enacted at the late legislative session to outlaw wild cat schemes and to regulate the sale of all kinds of bonds, stocks and other investment paper with the idea of prohibiting the sale of issues of doubtful value, is declared by bankers and some others to be entirely inadequate for the purposes for which it is intended.

The new blue sky act says that no issue of bonds or other securities can be put upon the market in Michigan, until approved by the state securities commission, composed of the late banking commissioner, the state treasurer and the attorney general and brokers must pay an annual license fee of $50, and must comply with some other conditions.

Big Loophole Discovered. So far as ascertained bond and security dealers whose standing and responsibility are unquestioned do not object to any of the conditions. What they do criticize are the omission which leave the door still wide open for another class of dealers to continue doing business without legal let or hindrance, specific things which the framers of the act contemplated should be suppressed by it.

For instance, bankers who have examined the new act say there is nothing in it to prevent the selling by correspondence through the mails, from outside Michigan, of a brand of securities which the Michigan securities commission might reject. Suppose the commission disapproves a particular brand. This will mean that for a Michigan salesman to sell outside of Michigan, the disapproved brand will render him liable to the penalties of the law. The brand in question may have a speculative value only. That is, perhaps it will in time prove to have a tangible value, and then again perhaps not.

Being barred from selling his brand through a Michigan office, or by salesman in Michigan, the owner of the brand can open an office in an adjoining state and proceed to do business in Michigan on the mail order plan. All he needs to do is to secure a list of "prospects" and then by letter and circular exploit his prescribed goods with all sorts of alluring representations of what the prospective dividends are going to be, so long as he does not infringe on the postoffice regulations. A brand that the securities commission might disapprove wouldn't, perhaps, be of a character to justify the owner of the privilege of trying to sell it by using the mails.

May Use Mails Exclusively. An officer of one of the largest banks of the state says that he has heard some brokers talk of withdrawing all of the salesmen from Michigan and continuing to do business here, but from headquarters in another state, using the mails exclusively. Unless the postoffice department will agree to co-operate with Michigan in this matter, it is apparent, say bankers, that more or less securities will continue to be sold in Michigan to unformed investors.

Another omission but one of lesser importance that bankers say they note in the new act is this: An investor owns bonds of a foreign corporation which he bought before the law was enacted. He is the owner of a few years he desires to sell these bonds. Financial conditions may impel him to do so. Perhaps the corporation, if it is an industrial one, is incorporated in another state, and is not in a good financial position when the bonds were issued. For this or some other reason the corporation declines to give the Michigan securities commission the information which the commission must have to sanction the resale of the bonds. The owner of the bonds asks a broker to try to sell them for him. The broker must reply: "Sorry, but I can't do it without laying myself liable. You see, the foreign corporation that issued the bonds won't give the securities commission information it asks for, though personally I know they are O. K."

The blue sky law was passed by both houses with but little discussion; only a comparative few members showed an active interest in it. Several bankers while discussing it a few days since agreed that the legislature presumably did the best it could when it framed the law, but that it was lacking in correct information as to what a thoroughly effective blue sky act should contain.

NO, HE WON'T TALK FREELY AFTER THIS

Kansan's Listener on Train Is Secretary Houston, Who Remembers What He Hears.

Washington, May 15.—Henderson Martin, chairman of the Democratic state committee of Kansas, who came to Washington to arrange with President Wilson for the distribution of federal patronage in Kansas, made a solemn resolution before he started back home. It was that in the future he would be a silent Democrat.

On a Pullman were three men, strangers to one another, on their way to Washington. One of them, State Chairman Martin, was full of his mission. He made no effort to conceal his identity or the importance of his visit to Washington. He spoke feelingly of the years of waiting for federal appointments which had saddened the lives of Kansas Democrats and he referred happily to the immediate future, when President Wilson would turn loose the jobs on the earnest party workers. He outlined with complacency his own intentions when he reached Washington and what she should say to the president and confided in his fellow travelers that he would speak plainly and explain to Mr. Wilson that there must be no more foolishness at the White House. Chairman Martin had the floor and he spoke freely.

Later the conversation turned to the Philippines, and on that subject, also, Mr. Martin talked with the utmost frankness. Then he went back to his original theme of the Kansas patronage and the errors of the president.

The next morning the train stopped at Pittsburg and Chairman Martin and one of his fellow travelers went out to stretch their legs. This man proved to be an army officer. He said to Martin: "Say, do you know who that fellow was with us last night who was asking me questions about the Philippines?" "Never saw him before," replied Martin.

"Well, he's a member of President Wilson's cabinet, Secretary Houston," remarked the army officer, offhand. Chairman Martin's call at the White House lasted less than five minutes. He made no arrangements with President Wilson for appointments for Kansas Democrats. He even went back to Kansas without assurances from the president that he would be appointed United States district attorney.

previously to her demise and that afternoon finished her duties at the Herald office as usual, leaving with a clergy of parting for the other girls who worked there. "Mrs. Stacy had been the editor of the Herald since the death of her husband in December 1907. Although the loss of her husband was a crushing blow to her, she bore up bravely and took charge of his work, showing marked ability in business activity. She was also interested in the H. Brewer foundry. Socially she was a favorite although she has gone out but little since the death of her husband.

Theatrical

Blanche Bates, in her new play, "The Witness for the Defense," scored a great success in London, where the drama was presented at the St. James theater on the twelfth anniversary of Sir George Alexander's management of that famous old house.

A. E. W. Mason, the author of "The Witness for the Defense," is known widely on this side of the ocean as the author of the novel, "The Broken Road." Only two other plays written by him have been presented in this country. These are "Miranda of the Balcony," as a vehicle for the versatile Mrs. Fiske, and "Green Stockings," in which Margaret Anglin interpreted the leading role. There have been numerous plays with themes similar to that of "The Witness for the Defense," which is described as a "highly probable human episode," but never one in which the heroine's mental struggle has been a self-imposed torture in the hiding of a hideous secret, the telling of which threatens the end of the only happiness she has ever known. The heroine, Stella Ballantyne, is not put on the rack in one of those melodramatic scenes of cross-examination in "The Witness for the Defense," such as those scenes which have formed the "big" situations of many modern plays, from "Mrs. Dane's Defense" to "The Woman" of more recent years. Her story is rather that of a woman tortured and badgered until finally she finds relief in the confession which forms the climax of the play.

In just such roles as this Miss Bates has been at her best in her past successes and her new play is said to surpass anything she has yet undertaken. It tells the story of a woman who killed her husband in self-defense, is acquitted of murder and later seeks consolation in the love of a young English soldier. As she is about to be married to him, she forces herself to tell him of her hidden past, long since forgotten by any but herself.

GEO. RUEZ BUYS EXCHANGE SEAT

Ishpeming Broker Invests $18,000 in Membership in Boston Stock Mart.

A message was received over Paine-Webber & Co's. private wire yesterday from the Boston News Bureau announcing that George F. Ruez of this city, who has been correspondent of Paine-Webber & company for some few years past, had purchased the Boston stock exchange seat of Charles E. Miller, who has been a member since 1880, and that it is understood that price paid was $18,000, an advance of $3,000 from previous sales. The announcement was confirmed by Mr. Ruez.

Mr. Ruez has been highly successful in the conduct of his brokerage business, which he established here in July, 1902. He has conducted his office in accordance with conservative business principles, and has built up a strong clientele, extending over a large territory. He has been specializing in curb stocks, and was prominent in trading in Boston circle issues before the Babcock stocks merged into the Calumet & Arizona. He was for some time prominently identified with the Live Oak Development company, of Miami, Arizona, which proved a great success, having finally been taken over by Inspiration Consolidated Copper company. He has been president of the South Western Development company since the organization. This corporation has for more than a year past been developing a promising tract adjoining the Live Oak company's holdings.

The fact that Mr. Ruez has purchased a membership on the Boston exchange is evidence that he has very considerably expanded his business. Seats on the exchange are held by a limited number and most of the members are residents of Boston, and are active on the floor. Mr. Ruez, however, will continue to be a resident of Ishpeming. He will go to Boston within ten days to make the final arrangements for his membership in the exchange.

WORK TO BE COMMENCED.

Building of New Warehouse for Cudahy Packing Company Starts Today.

Work will be commenced this morning on the warehouse for the Cudahy Packing company, which is to be located between the tracks of the Chicago & Northwestern and South Shore railways east of Second street. J. R. Robertson, of Chicago, head of the branch housing department of the company, and E. C. Cook, also of Chicago, the inspector of this division, visited the Ishpeming branch yesterday and looked over the plans. The warehouse will be a frame structure, with either brick or iron veneer, and will be one of the largest and most modern in the city. The contract for its erection has been awarded to John Beck, of Ashland, Wis., who will start a force of men today excavating for the foundation.

The building will be irregular in shape, fifty feet long on the north side and seventy feet on the south side, the end being approximately thirty-two feet. On the south side of the structure there will be a loading platform, ninety-five feet in length, which will accommodate three freight cars. In the interior of the building will be a large cooler, twenty by thirty feet in dimensions, with an overhead chamber. The walls of the cooler will be built of concrete, two feet in thickness. The foundation of the building will also be constructed of concrete. The front of the warehouse will be twenty-five feet from Second street, and the ground between the building and the street will be used as a park.

Work on the building will be rushed with all possible speed, and the officials of the company hope to have it completed by August 1, so that it may be used during the warm weather of the late summer. The warehouse now used by the Cudahy company is owned by F. Braastad. It will be vacated upon the completion of the new warehouse.

MARRIED AT IRONWOOD.

Emil C. Shimondle, of this city, cashier for the Cudahy Packing company at its Ishpeming branch, and Miss Eva O. Lanson, of Ironwood, were married at Ironwood on Wednesday. The ceremony was performed by Father Moriarty, of Ironwood. Mr. Shimondle was formerly a resident of Ironwood, coming to Ishpeming less than a year ago to work for the Cudahy Packing company. The young couple are well known in Ironwood. They will be at home in Ishpeming after June 1st, at 907 North Main street, where they will reside temporarily.

Schliebner of New York, a youth seventeen years of age, give a demonstration of the Remington typewriter Monday morning. Mr. Schliebner will be accompanied by W. O. Davis, of the educational department of the Remington company.

Mr. Schliebner, who is a wizard with the machine, will give demonstrations in writing and taking dictation. He can, it is said, write 115 words a minute, without error, in English, and eighty words a minute from dictation in French, at the same time carrying on a conversation in English and German.

Mr. Davis will give a brief review of young Schliebner's experiences with typewriting, and will outline the purpose of the visit. Mr. Schliebner, after completing a six months' course in business school, had attained a speed of about forty-five words a minute with five or six errors. He then spent two months practicing continuously, but made no progress. This was said to have been due to the young man's attempt to gain speed at the expense of accuracy. After a single month's practice for accuracy alone, he showed a gain of nearly fifty words a minute, and an increase of nearly 500 per cent. in his accuracy.

It is said that young Schliebner makes 700 efforts, or finger movements, a minute, or at the rate of thirteen strokes a second. He demonstrates that the machine responds perfectly to his high speed test. Without knowledge of French, he copies a paragraph from a French book to illustrate the possibility of the touch method of typewriting and in addition carries on a conversation with one of his pupils in German. The boy is said to be very modest about his unusual ability.

Young Schliebner will give the students a short talk about work.

Mr. Clancey is putting a business office in the west end of his school room, for the use of the students. It is provided with several wickets, through which the banking and other business transactions will be carried on.

JOE, THE TURK, COMING.

Noted Salvation Army Worker Will Be Here Next Week.

Joe, the Turk, known in the official circles of the Salvation Army as Staff Captain Joe Garabed, will be in Ishpeming the last three days of next week, when special praise meetings will be held. Joe was converted thirty years ago, and since then he has been under arrest fifty-one times for holding open air meetings. One evening during his stay here he will give a monophonic and saxophone concert for the benefit of the Ishpeming corps. He carries a number of stick pins and trinkets of various sorts which he will sell during his stay in the city.

A STRONG PLAY.

A strong play, faultlessly acted, may be anticipated when Blanche Bates appears at the Ishpeming theater a week from tonight, the 23rd, in a new drama, "The Witness for the Defense," from the pen of A. E. W. Mason, the English novelist.

The story is novel and full of sustained interest. The opening scene takes place at night in a red-draped tent in India where the heavy humid mystery of the jungle is being pervaded. A young English woman, wedded to a drunken brute, is forced to kill him in self defense. It is a bit of tense, compressed tragedy such as is seldom seen but it is a human episode, poignant with truth and reality. After a lapse of two years, the scene changes to a village in Sussex, England. Here the woman, who has won the love of a gallant young British officer, is confronted by the problem as to whether or not she shall confess the truth and reveal the secret of her past to the man she loves before he marries her. She dares not take the risk of a revelation of feeling on his part, and her fine instincts make her realize that this is the only safe course toward ultimate happiness.

Blanche Bates, whose name is inseparably linked with some of the finest stage creations of modern time, will, of course, give a notable characterization of the heroine in "The Witness for the Defense." She will have the support of as fine a company of players as Charles Frohman could bring together for the interpretation of the work.

BAD EGG DIET.

Six boys at the university of Kansas have joined the "rotten egg squad." That is, they are being fed three daily on superannuated hen fruit by a professor who is trying to prove to the world that eggs are good food for five years' old storage, and that the government was in error in declaring ineligible a cargo of eggs shipped from Kansas to New Jersey recently. The six have been on their precarious diet for a month and are in the best of health. One has even gained three pounds. We may now look for an "aged egg cult" as a serious rival to Fletcherism.

GLASGOW IS CLEAN.

The city of Glasgow, which now has a population of more than one million, is undoubtedly, all things considered, one of the best cleansed cities in any country. It has an excellent up-to-date sewage system and an abundant supply of pure water, and its municipal government is of high order, reflecting great credit on the efficiency and ability of the officials in charge of the various departments.

BUSY SEASON AT CAMP.

Expected That Many Members of Y. M. C. A. Will Visit Wisgaming.

The members of the camp committee of the Young Men's Christian association are preparing for a busy summer at Camp Wisgaming, on Lake Michigan. A fire place will be built in the bungalow and a large dock will be constructed in front of the camp. The tents will be provided with floors.

A conference and institute of the young people of the several churches of the upper peninsula will be held at the camp from Aug. 10 to 16, inclusive, when it is expected that there will be fully one hundred boys in attendance. The junior and intermediate boys of the organization will likely have their outing at the camp in July. The Y. M. C. A. orchestra will spend some time there and will give a concert in Michigan while on the trip. A number of family parties also plan on spending their vacation at the camp.

During the summer months a special rate of seventy-five cents for the round trip from Ishpeming to Michigan will be granted by the management of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway company for the "Y" campers. This rate will go into effect today and will continue for the entire camping season. Excursion tickets will be good only on train No. 11, leaving Ishpeming at 6:20

The New Unifold Davenport

Finally solves the problem of making a davenport as comfortable for sleeping purposes as a regular open bed and at the same time retaining no features suggestive of the ordinary bed davenport.

We justly claim many points of superiority for our new bed davenport over any style heretofore in use, a few of which are as follows:

First: The back is stationary. It does not have to be moved from the wall when being converted into a bed.

Second: Unlike other bed davenports, when not in use as a bed, it possesses the style and outlines of the ordinary straight davenport.

Third: While in use as a bed the occupant sleeps on a real mattress, not on hard upholstered tufts, as is the case with other bed davenports.

Fourth: It is the only davenport bed that equally divides the merits of the bed and the davenport, in as much as it is a comfortable and real bed when used for that purpose, and at other times a stylish davenport not even faintly suggesting its double purpose. The springs and mattresses of the bed have nothing to do with the upholstering of the seat and back.

Step in and let us demonstrate the utility of the davenports and view the various patterns in the different grades of upholstering, all marked at Gately's Reasonable Prices.

SABOTAGE.

Among the new words coming into present use are some not as yet to be found in the dictionary. Sabotage is one of them. The Socialist party has made sabotage an offense against its canons, and the penalty of its practice is expulsion from the party. And yet thousands are unacquainted with the word and its meaning.

Sabotage, according to Emile Pouget, a French writer, is "Any conscious and willful act on the part of one or more workers intended to slacken and reduce the output of production in the industrial field, or to restrict trade and reduce the profits in the commercial field, in order to secure from their employers better conditions or to enforce those already promised or maintain those already prevailing, when no other way of redress is open."

It is also "Any skillful operation on the machinery of production not intended to destroy it or permanently render it defective, but only to temporarily disable it and put it out of running condition in order to make impossible the work of scabs and thus secure the complete stoppage of work during a strike."

"Sabotage," according to M. Pouget, "is not destructive; it is nothing more nor less than the chloroforming of the organism of production, the 'knock-out drops' intended to put to sleep the fire and steel that watch and multiply the treasures of Capital." Sabotage was first practiced to any considerable extent in this country during the Lawrence strike, though it seems to have become an acknowledged force against capital in France as early as 1895. M. Pouget claims it has been known for centuries as an instrument in the hands of the individual who desired to resent a personal injustice or deprivation.

NECESSARY, BUT NOT ENVIED.

There are people among us who fit this characterization, a bit of literary floss and jargon found uncredited to anybody, but voicing a truth just the same.

"There are in every generation a certain number of individuals born into the world with no power to dream, with no yearning to gossip, with no desire for thrills, with no capacity for romance, with no thirst for beer, with no power to be aggressively polite, or with so great a desire for power that they learn to do their good and natural deeds in secret, and are outwardly serious and smug. They naturally grow into captains of industry, into bank managers, into statesmen, into labor members, into nonconformist divines, into what are called 'leaders of men.' They live respected, and they die and are buried with befitting pomp. They are useful and necessary. But though we (the majority) respect them we certainly do not envy them."

SOME CHERISHED ILLUSIONS.

Mrs. Atherton combats a favorite fiction of both men and women. She says: "There is no reason to believe that women are fundamentally more moral than men; that is to say, that they are guided by an instinct unknown to the great body of virile, careless-living men. Certainly they are not born impeccable, if the little girls of poor parents in swarming districts display the normal instincts of their sex. The vicious tendencies of poor children are appalling to anyone that has cherished illusions about the natural purity of the child mind." Let those who harbor this illusion spend a few days with the juvenile courts of our large cities and the detention homes connected with them. "I thought I knew the world, but it was the world of men and women. This was the world of children, and infinitely worse."

STREET MACADAM WORK STARTS SOON

City Officials and Telephone Company Representatives Reached Agreement Yesterday.

The work preparatory to macadamizing Cleveland avenue, from the intersection of Main to Third street, and Main street, from the railroad crossing to the intersection of Barnum, at the corner of the Carnegie public library, will be started next week, as satisfactory arrangements for the removal of the poles on the two streets have been made with the Michigan State Bell Telephone company and the Marquette County Gas & Electric company.

Mayor Barnett and City Attorney A. W. Jurnea, to whom this matter was referred by the council, invited K. S. Baker, district manager, and Frank Sullivan, superintendent of construction for the Michigan Bell Telephone company, to visit Ishpeming yesterday. Mr. Baker explained that because of the extensive construction during the coming summer, it would be impossible to start immediately on a permanent job on the two streets referred to, but he agreed to do certain temporary work, so that the city crew can proceed with the improvement.

City Protected by Bond.

The poles in the way of the gutter work will be set back temporarily, and Mr. Baker agreed to give a bond as a guarantee that the permanent work will be completed by Sept. 15. This bond will protect the city and individual property owners from property damages and individuals from personal injury.

The temporary work, especially on Cleveland avenue, can be done in a few days, as there are less than a dozen poles on the north side of that thoroughfare in the three blocks that are to be macadamized, and most of these set back in the walks, away from the gutters.

The Marquette County Gas & Electric company has removed all but two of its poles from Cleveland avenue and those now standing can be taken down on short notice. A. L. Brownell, who has charge of the company's construction work, will secure poles for a new line through North Pine street to take the place of those on Main, between the railway crossing and the top of Strawberry hill.

Will Push Work.

It is the desire of the city officials, as well as of the business men, that the improvements shall be completed by the Fourth of July, and a strong effort will be made to finish the job by that time. The board of public works will not lose any time in getting the work started, and as soon as the weather will permit the construction of the gutters and removal of the gravel from the street surface work will be begun.

The city officials are to be commended for their promptness in getting at this much desired improvement, and those expected that there will be any delay in securing the asphalt, the lamp posts or conduits, as the city officials have been commending the manufacturers of these materials that they can be delivered on comparatively short notice. The lamp posts and lamps will be of the same design as those in use on Main street.

The Michigan State Telephone company will bring a crew in from the copper country within the next few days to start the work here.

WYANDOT.

At the annual meeting of the Wyandot Copper company, Joseph Durr, Ashley Watson, Frank L. Van Orden, Frederick Hoyt and Charles E. Adams were elected directors. Ashley Watson and F. Hoyt succeeded John C. Watson and M. A. O'Neil resigned. A spirited controversy arose when an inquiring stockholder desired an explanation of the item of $51,950 "cash and accounts receivable" in the last annual report. The explanation at first forthcoming was that it represented cash and a collateral note. A demand for further details brought out that the collateral note was for $27,000 to the Boston Stock exchange house, T. H. Perkins & Co., of which M. A. O'Neil, previously a Wyandot director, is a member. The balance of the item represented cash. The usual motion was put to approve the action of the directors the past year, but one stockholder, representing 1,200 shares by proxy, threatened to make trouble if the motion was put through, after an attempt had been made to put the motion to a stock vote. The resolution was later withdrawn, and a second motion was passed.

Stockholders of Wyandot have reason to feel gratified at the development at this property, for the present showing on No. 8 lode is the most encouraging since the organization of the company in 1896, say J. H. Munnear & Co. This No. 8 lode showed the most promise out of thirteen amygdaloids that were cut in crosscutting the property and was encountered about 1,100 feet east of the shaft on the seventh level. Drifts were extended about 200 feet each way, and while the vein showed mineralization it was by no means as good as the showing in the drifts which are being run from the bottom of the winze, which is 115 feet below the seventh level. The latter drifts are in about sixty feet each way, the northern one of which is irregularly mineralized ground for the entire distance. According to the annual statement for the year ending March 31, 1913, Wyandot had in the treasury at that time $53,704, and, besides this, there was due on unpaid assessment $35,044. During the past year, there was received from unpaid assessments about $13,000 which together with the decrease in cash brought the total expenditures for the year up to about $31,000.

SHATTUCK-ARIZONA.

Crosscut No. 10 on the 300 level of the Shattuck mine at Bisbee has encountered a large cave of surpassing beauty. It is pronounced by Superintendent Houle one of the finest things of that kind ever encountered in the West. Many parts of the cave are studded with beautiful crystals, and, most important of all, there are five places in the great underground cavern where indications of copper are found. The dimensions of the cave are 340 feet long and 173 feet in height. The opening inclines upward at an angle of thirty-five degrees. Samples of the copper ore discovered in the cave were taken and one of these assayed better than 10 per cent. This particular sample was taken from a point corresponding to the 200 level, and a drift will at once be begun to explore the territory. The showing is such that it is believed that the 200 level will be shown to be as profitable as any in the mine. General conditions at the Shattuck mine continue satisfactory. Superintendent Houle has obtained from the railroad a concession of twenty cents a ton on all lead ore, which on the basis of 100 tons a day would represent about $7,000 a year. The desired reduction of smelter charges has not yet been obtained, but faith is felt that the smelter people at El Paso will grant it. As soon as Calumet & Arizona is prepared to receive the increased shipments, and as soon as a permanent contract is made with the El Paso smelter, Shattuck will be shipping 300 tons of copper and 100 tons of lead ore per day. The annual meeting of the company has been adjourned to Sept. 15.

NEW ARCADIAN.

The annual report of the New Arcadian Copper company for the fiscal year ending May 1st, shows cash on hand of $824, comparing with $927,375 a year ago. The receipts from various sources during the year were $18,017. Labor and explorations at the mine resulted in an expenditure of $25,521; construction, $5,701; taxes, $2,614; supplies, $2,125, while other expenses amounted to $1,804. There are bills and accounts payable of $13,850. The supplies on hand aggregate $5,900. President Robt. H. Shields says: "The result of the exploratory work at the New Arcadian during the past is very satisfactory and fully justifies the belief that, in the territory adjacent to the new shaft now sinking, there are three veins of probable commercial value. With the completion of drill hole No. 26, all exploration work by diamond drilling was suspended, which will reduce expenses considerably. All work is now being confined to the shaft, which has already been sunk to a depth of over 500 feet. It is the present intention of the management to make extensive lateral openings at the 750-level, and to install a larger hoist for deeper sinking. No other additions to the present equipment is necessary. In regard to the financial condition of the company, it was thought possible that favorable developments at the New Arcadian would enable this company to realize on a portion of its holdings in the stock of that company and thus avoid an assessment. Recent developments at that mine are of the most encouraging nature. The directors, however, deemed it prudent, for the time being, to negotiate loans to a limited amount, which has been done." The company's mining engineer, H. W. Fesling, submits a detailed report on the shaft, which is accompanied by a map. He says, in closing: "Briefly summarizing, I would say that the present outlook at the New Arcadian is such as to warrant great hope for the future. The shaft is located in what has been proved to be a highly mineralized territory, comprising a large area; railroad facilities are ideal, and there is an ample supply of water. Any one who will make himself familiar with conditions at the New Arcadian cannot but be favorably impressed, and I feel confident that the developments from the new shaft will be highly gratifying to the stockholders."

Putte advises say: Tuolumne has opened a fine body of ore on the new 2200-foot level.

FRENCH POLITENESS PASSING.

Nowadays One Must Show a Little American Bluff to Command Attention in Paris Shops.

Frenchmen speak or "la galanterie française" much as Americans speak of the "old fashioned gentleman"—a pleasant thing which was once known, but exists no more. Modern observers in Paris note that politeness is declining, and is almost unknown among the masses.

To be sure, if you neglect to leave the money for the gas collector after you have received notice, you get a courteous letter inviting you to call and settle, else, "to our deep and lasting regret we shall be compelled to cease the furnishing of gas." But when you call you are sent into a special room, painted gray like the police stations, and there sit other culprits for half an hour while they look you up. You read the signs against smoking, gaze on the imposing looking grill at the end of the room and decide to reform. The passing of French politeness has thus had its salutary effect.

The French gravely assure you that if you go into a department store in Paris with the ordinarily courteous French manner you will not be waited on properly. You must, they say, start in with the traditional American bluff in order to command respect. The experience of Americans who have leanings toward courtesy seems to carry out the statement of the Parisians—one cannot prevail unless one struts over the whole establishment as if one might, but probably will not, buy out the place.

But outside of the clerks the primitive methods of politeness prevail. You can order anything you see, have $50 worth of lace cut off the piece and sent to your house. The delivery man is supposed to collect the bill, but if you like he will leave the package with the mere assurance of your signature, and will not come back for a fortnight. Your husband is out, for you have not the money when he comes again. Another fortnight, and so on, probably for years, at the end of which time, if you wish, you send the lace back. The courtesy of the delivery system in Paris is inimitable. Show yourself half worthy and you can have anything.

The rule of the Paris tramcars and omnibuses, allowing only those for whom there is place to get aboard, largely obviates the usual American standard of politeness. Yet the subway is not unlike the New York subway, and as many as can be pushed aboard may ride. Here the real decline of French politeness is seen. In the second class cars no woman gets a seat except on rare occasions. In the first class cars no women ever stand as long as there are men in seats adjacent to the aisle.

Politeness is a matter of class. The politest Frenchman the higher his caste. An American's experience on the subway is a case in point.

A discussion arose between him and a workman who had penetrated to the first class car. The workman's side remarks to the whole car after the incident was closed became unbearable. The American made a pass at his insulting neighbor. Immediately half a dozen Frenchmen and a woman interfered. The workman was talked into submission with the most eloquent flow of language that could be conceived. He was told he was a dog for taking advantage of a foreigner's inability to talk back; he was told that his impoliteness, no matter what had been said to him, was a

A BEAVER WAS HIS CHUM.

Enos A. Mills Tells of an Unusual Experience With a Tiny Dam-builder While Camping in the West.

One autumn, while following the Lewis and Clark trail with a pack horse in western Montana, I made camp one evening with a trapper who gave me a young beaver, writes Enos A. Mills in his delightful book, "The Beaver World." He was about one month old, and ate twigs and bark as naturally as though he had long eaten them. I named him "Diver," and in a short time he was as clumsy as a young puppy. Of an evening he played about the camp and often swam in the nearby water. At times he played at dam-building, and frequently displayed his accomplishment of feeling wonderful trees that were about the size of a lead pencil. He never failed to come promptly when I whistled for him. At night he crouches near my camp, usually packing himself under the edge of the canvas on which I spread my bedding. Atop the pack on the horse's back, or traveled—a ride which he evidently enjoyed. He was never in a hurry to be taken off, and at moving time he was always waiting eagerly to be lifted on.

As soon as he noticed me arranging the pack, he came close, and before I was quite ready for him, he rose up, extending his hands in rapid succession, begging, and with a whining sort of muttering pleaded to be lifted at once to his seat on the pack.

He had a bad fright one evening. About one hour before sundown we had encamped as usual alongside a stream. He entered the water and after swimming about for a time taking a dozen or so merry dives, he crossed to the opposite side. In plain view, only fifty feet away, I watched him as he busied himself with the roots of the region grape and then stopped leisurely to eat them. While he was thus engaged, a coyote made a dash for him from behind a boulder. Diver dodged, and the coyote missed. Giving a wall like a frightened child, my youngster rolled into the stream and dived. Presently he scrambled out of the water near me and made haste to crawl under my cottail behind the log on which I sat.

The nearest beaver pond was a quarter of a mile up stream, yet less than five minutes had elapsed from the time Diver's cry when two beaver appeared, swimming low and cautiously in the stream before me. A minute later another came in sight downstream. All circled about, swimming cautiously with heads held low in the water. One scented the place where the coyote had attacked Diver, and waddled out and made a sniffing examination. Another came ashore at the spot where Diver came out. Apparently his eyes told him I was a part of the log, but his nose proclaimed

MODERN WAYS OF SIAM.

"Siam did not appear so far away from home today," says an American, writing from Bangkok, "when we rode on the Menam river in a motor boat of American build, and later in the day, when we witnessed a review of several regiments of Siamese infantry by the king, we realized that we were in a wide awake country. The troops, in modern service uniform, paraded with the precision of West Pointers, the mounted staff officers who accompanied the king sat in their saddles with ease and grace, the band played a march well known in Europe and America, and as an offset to the peculiar style of architecture of the buildings which stood near the parade ground, reminders of the antique, was the up-to-date victoria, with four horses and mounted grooms, from which the women of the palace watched the show."

GOD IN THE NEWSPAPERS.

The daily press is as full of spiritual teaching of a kind as the Bible, says the Christian Endeavor World. It does not preach sermons, it is true, or tag on morals to its news, but the lessons are so plain that he who runs may read. Shining behind the tragic facts of the multitudes of front page articles one may read such terrible texts as "What-soever a man soweth that shall he also reap;" "He that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption;" "The wages of sin is death."

God is speaking loudly in every newspaper in the country. The bush is aflame, yet men pass by unseeing.

MICA AN IMPORTANT MINERAL.

United States Has Large and Valuable Deposits—The Details.

Washington, May 14.—The mineral mica has become an important article in the industrial world, and large manufacturing companies, chiefly manufacturers of electrical apparatus and machinery, wall papers, and stoves, are dependent on a regular supply of it. Properties which render mica valuable in these trades are its perfect cleavage into tough, flexible, and elastic sheets, transparency, non-conductivity of electricity, and the brilliancy of the small scales of ground material. Mica is sometimes called insulating mica because of its properties which render it valuable in these trades are its perfect cleavage into tough, flexible, and elastic sheets, transparency, non-conductivity of electricity, and the brilliancy of the small scales of ground material.

Eight States Produce Mica.

The total value of mica produced in the United States in 1912, according to Mr. Sterrett, was $311,896, a decrease of $23,008 compared with 1911. The production came from eight states—North Carolina, New Hampshire, Idaho, New Mexico, South Carolina, Colorado, South Dakota and New York, named in the order of the value of their output. The production of sheet mica amounted to $15,483 pounds, valued at $282,823, compared with 1,887,291 pounds, valued at $310,254, in 1911. The total output of rough-trimmed sheet mica amounted to over 2,000,000 pounds in 1912.

Mica is a mineral of widespread occurrence in the rock of the earth's crust, according to Douglas B. Sterrett, of the United States geological survey. The mica suitable for industrial uses is found in coarse-grained rocks. Deposits of commercial or possible commercial value are known in many countries, but the principal sources of supply at present are India, United States, and Canada. The only variety mined, but small quantities of biotite have been obtained as a by-product.

Cost of Production Abroad Is Cheaper.

The cost of producing mica in the United States is considerably greater than in some other countries, especially India, but it is probable that this difference in cost could be lessened by more extensive operation of the larger and better deposits with improved methods. In size and quantity the mica obtained from the large mines generally averages better than that from many small deposits.

A copy of the report on mica may be obtained free on application to the Director of the Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

BACKACHE IS A WARNING.

Marquette People Should Not Neglect Their Kidneys.

Backache is often nature's most frequent signal of weakened kidneys. To cure the pains and aches, to remove the lameness when it rises from weakened kidneys, you must reach the cause—the kidneys. If you have pain through the small of your back, urinary disorders, headaches, dizzy spells, or are nervous and depressed, start treating the kidneys with a tested kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills have been proved good and are especially for weak kidneys. Doan's have been used in kidney trouble for over fifty years. Read Marquette testimony.

Mrs. J. J. Cleary, 322 Rock St., Marquette, Mich., says: "Although I never used Doan's Kidney Pills, I can recommend them highly, as they have been used in our household with good results. A member of the family suffered from weak kidneys and had severe backaches. Doan's Kidney Pills restored the person who was a bed to good health."

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

FRANCE SUFFERING BY COST OF FUEL

People Turning to Fireless Cookers as Measure of Economy, U. S. Consul Reports.

Washington, May 15.—The high cost of living, particularly the high cost of fuel, has become such in France, writes United States Consul John Ball Osborne, from Havre, that a most promising market for American fireless cookers of all kinds is opening up throughout that republic.

Though the fireless cooker, a Norwegian invention, Mr. Osborne thinks, was first brought to public attention at the Paris exposition of 1887, it was not until very recently that the practical value of the cooker dawned on the French housewife. Mr. Osborne thinks that the cooker, with the innovations and practical features which have been added to the original design by the keen American manufacturer, is almost certain to find favor generally in France, if attractively and tactfully offered.

"The possibilities of the fireless cooker," writes Mr. Osborne, "were brought to the attention of the American public in 1905 through the medium of a series of reports by Consul Clerk Murphy of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany (now consul general at large), who described the propaganda that was being carried on in Berlin, Frankfurt and other German cities for the general adoption of this method of cooking. As the direct result of these consular reports the manufacture of fireless cook stoves, or 'self-cookers,' was undertaken in the United States and has practically become an industry, as fireless cookers are on sale in almost every American city.

"The introduction of fireless cookers in Havre is of very recent date. It was not until the latter part of 1912 that the attention of the public at a large department store in the city made an effective display in one of its principal show windows of a fireless cooker of French manufacture. Reading advertisements appeared in the columns of the local newspapers describing the advantages of the cooker, and stating that on certain days at specified hours a celebrated French chef would give at the store practical demonstrations of its merits. These exhibitions were well attended, and the sale of the cookers, as well as the number of cookers, artistically prepared catalogues and illustrated price lists, as well as a pamphlet containing cooking recipes and showing all the dishes that could be prepared, were widely distributed. I am informed that the lectures and public demonstrations will be repeated from time to time, and that the same energetic methods of introducing this article are being employed throughout France.

"Three sizes of this cooker are offered for sale, viz: Model A for 4 persons, price $11.19; Model B for 5 to 10 persons, price $14.47; Model C for 10 to 20 persons, price $17.37. I am informed that these prices, which seem high to the economical housekeeper, were an obstacle to the extensive sale of the cooker in this community."

Mr. Osborne intimates that retailers are trying to persuade the manufacturers of this cooker to put a cheaper commodity on the market. Before this can be done, Mr. Osborne believes, the American dealer or manufacturer can step in and capture a good foothold not only in Havre, but in all France.

"It would seem," he says in this connection, "that if American manufacturers of this cooker are so disposed as to meet the demand, they may be able to capture a good foothold not only in Havre, but in all France."

MISLEADING BOOK TITLES. The titles of books sometimes lead to singular misstatements. Maria Edgeworth's "Essays on Irish Bulls" was bought by English and Irish farmers under the supposition that the treatise was on an agricultural subject. Ruskin in 1851 wrote a pamphlet on the text, "There shall be one fold and one shepherd," which appeared under the title "Notes on the construction of sheep-folds," and misled several members of the agricultural community.

"My sister's husband had an attack of rheumatism in his arm," writes a well known resident of Newton, Iowa. "I gave him a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and he was cured in a few days. The next morning the rheumatism was gone." For chronic muscular rheumatism you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by All Dealers.

LINDQUIST BILL READY FOR HOUSE

Proposes That All Clothing Shall Bear Labels Accurately Describing Its Makeup.

Washington, May 15.—Congressman Lindquist has produced the pure fabric bill which was his chief argument for coming to Washington. He brings it forward as the solution for the shoe and clothing question. It is to protect the poor man from paper shoes and shoddy clothing. It is to save the housewife from the cotton sheeting whose weight consists chiefly of starch and sand.

Mr. Lindquist's bill follows closely the pure food law in many particulars. Therein it closely resembles even in verbiage the pure fabric bill which Victor Murdock introduced in congress during Mr. Lindquist's primary campaign and with copies of which Mr. Lindquist's district was then flooded. The execution of the proposed law is entrusted to a board consisting of the secretaries of agriculture, commerce and the treasury. The investigations are to be made by the bureaus of chemistry, department of agriculture. Prosecutions would be brought upon the bureau's recommendations.

Differs from Murdock Bill.

The Lindquist bill differs from the Murdock and other similar measures in two particulars. It provides only for stating the contents of mixed goods, without indicating the percentage of each constituent. It provides also that all goods entering into interstate commerce shall be marked, unless the goods are of such nature that marking would injure them. Mr. Lindquist says that the Murdock plan of indicating the percentage of the various constituents, of mixed goods isn't workable. He says that the chief harm done to the poor man is by working reclaimed wool into his garments. This reclaimed wool is the kind that has been worn by two or three persons formerly and has been handled by several rag men. It is weaker than new wool. It won't hang together. So the manufacturers use enough new wool to make the goods look like new.

Now the method of determining how much wool there is in a piece of cloth is to weigh the whole piece, dip it into a vat containing a chemical which will dissolve the wool, take out the residue, dry it and finally weigh the residue. This method furnishes a satisfactory method of determining the production when cotton or silk is used in a mixture with wool. But the test works indifferently upon old and new wool. One is dissolved as quickly as the other. So it is not possible, Mr. Lindquist says, to tell the proportions of the new and old wool.

How Cloth Is Adulterated.

Mr. Lindquist is advised, however, that it is possible by a microscopic test to tell whether reclaimed wool is present. The appearance of the reclaimed wool fiber is different from that of the pure wool fiber. But a microscope is impossible to tell with any exactness the amount of the second-hand wool. The relative amounts of cotton and silk can be determined, but Mr. Lindquist thinks that such a degree of refinement is unnecessary for practical purposes. What the consumer wants to know, he says, is whether the goods he is considering are pure. If a tag indicates that they are not pure but contain an indeterminate amount of cotton or shoddy he is put on his guard.

Mr. Lindquist's bill makes various requirements about the weight of cotton cloth. It provides that the label shall indicate the net weight of the cotton goods as they came from the loom. This net weight shows all the real cotton there is in the piece. It is customary, however, in many factories to add much weight by means of starch. Sometimes metal is added, too, in such a way as to defy the detection of the average housewife. These additions go in the trade by the name of "sizing." When a piece of cloth when it is torn, the "sizing" goes up in a little cloud.

Expects Laundrymen to Aid.

It is at this point that Mr. Lindquist's bill is expected to make its chief appeal to the laundry interests. The National Laundrymen and Dry Cleaners' association has long been trying to secure legislation which will lessen its troubles. Sized cotton goods which looked fine and strong when new become flimsy and light after the "sizing" is washed out. The housewife blames the laundryman and it is not easy for him to deliver a lecture on "sizing" every time a customer protests. So it is the hope of Mr. Lindquist that the laundrymen's association will boost his bill. He is also encouraged to believe that some 6,000 women's clubs will be behind him.

Tanners use a kind of "sizing" too. This is Espoon tannin. This chemical doubles the weight of leather. Leather is sold by weight. Consequently tanners have their incentive. Some of them claim that this chemical helps make the leather waterproof. Dr. Wiley has been quoted as claiming that it reduces the wearing qualities of leather by one-half. Mr. Lindquist says that 63 per cent sole leather carries this added weight. Its presence would be known to every purchaser under the provisions of the Lindquist bill.

Shoe manufacturers use paper to a considerable extent, especially in the cheap shoes worn by the postoffice clerks. The paper lacks wearing quality, and the cheap shoe becomes the most expensive. Mr. Lindquist has in his office a pair of cheap shoes the heel of which is all paper except the outer layer. In that same shoe the stiffening around the heel is paper, and the sole consists largely of paper, too.

Mr. Lindquist now plans to prepare traveling exhibits illustrating the adulteration of fabrics and leather. He hopes to arrange to have the exhibits prominently displayed in the windows of large department stores all over the country. The exhibit will contain all kinds of shoes cut up in such a way as to exhibit the paper. The methods of adulterating cloth will be shown. Placards will explain it all so clearly that the man of modest education may understand. The most of the argument will be that adulteration is common in the cheap articles used by the poor, while effort is seldom made to impose upon the well-to-do.

A Useful Compound

Use of Celluloid in Manufacturing Is Widely Employed.

Excepting glass and possibly rubber, more articles in the lines of druggists' sundries are made from celluloid than from any other materials, says a writer. From the sheet celluloid any variety of articles may be made by a number of processes. The thin sheets are cut, stamped, pressed and welded into innumerable shapes. Hollow articles are made either by stamping, blowing or moulding. Stamping consists in working a sheet of material in a matrix by means of a corresponding stamp, at a temperature, of course, being kept sufficiently high. Moulding proper is carried out in a mould made of two or more parts, a core sometimes being introduced. Blowing is a special case of moulding in which the material is forced into the interior. The process is exactly similar to glass bottle blowing. It would not be of interest to describe in detail the many operations used in making hollow ware. After stamping out certain forms these may require to be fitted to others on a core and the edges may be cemented or welded. The nature of celluloid permits of the application of many operations to it and the substance has been worked up into almost all conceivable shapes.

Solid rings are made in several ways. One method consists in winding a rod of proper diameter around a mandrel, forming a spiral. The coils of the spiral are then cut through obliquely, leaving a number of rings with a beveled joint. The ends are welded together in a press. For making mirrors, hand glasses, backs of brushes and combs, etc., the sheets are stamped out, softened, applied to the wooden core and the edges cemented together. This applies to the cheaper grades of goods. The better class of articles of this kind is made entirely of solid celluloid, containing no core. This prevents all unsealing of seams at the edges, a defect which is often found in the poorer grades.

One of the most interesting branches of manufacture is comb-making. Combs may be made by moulding, stamping or sawing. No particular interest attaches to the moulding process, and the combs produced by it are likely to be brittle and often warp. Other cheap combs are made by stamping out from thick sheet celluloid. The best combs are sawed from sheets. The first operation cuts the plates into the general shape and size of the comb. This may be done by saws or stamps. Next, the teeth are sawed out, using a small circular saw, and regulating the teeth by machinery. This produces rough and rectangular

Ferry's Establishment Assured.

Due to stock subscriptions by business of Gladstone and Escanaba, the success of the movement to establish a ferry between Gladstone and Gladstone is assured. Of the $1,800 required more than $1,500 has already been pledged. O. L. Mertz, a member of the Gladstone Commercial club's special committee, visited Escanaba this week and procured a number of generous subscriptions. It is planned to purchase the launch Jennie W., owned by George English of Escanaba, and place that craft in service. A large scow on which teams and wagons may be carried will also be procured and will be towed back and forth across the bay, thus making it possible for a farmer residing in the Bay de Noc peninsula to load his produce on a wagon at his farm, drive to Maywood, drive on the ferry, cross to Gladstone and drive from the dock to the place where he will market his products.

Race Course Is Being Laid Out.

Work has been started at the Delta county fair grounds to provide the race track, the construction of which was decided upon at the annual meeting of the Delta County Agricultural society in March. Surveyors have been engaged to lay out a course which will nicely fit inside the board fence. The track is to be moderately constructed in every way, giving to Escanaba one of the best race courses in the Northwest. The track will be a half mile in length.

Workings Must Be Fenced.

W. H. Jolie, inspector of mines in Iron county, issues the following notice: "All property owners, mining companies and explorers who have upon their premises test pits, shafts or open pits are hereby notified that unless the law which provides for the fencing of such pits or shafts is complied with, the undersigned will take steps to enforce the law. The safety of human life, as well as that of dumb animals, depends upon the enforcing of this law and I propose to protect life and property so far as it lies in my power so to do."

County Must Pay $4,000.

When the Seney-Grand Marais road bill was passed Schoolcraft county was delegated to pay $4,000 before the appropriation would become effective. The legislature decided that the county should be compelled to make a contribution to show its good faith in the proposition. Wm. Leighton of Grand Marais, who worked so unremittently for the bill, was in Manistique last week for the purpose of ascertaining if the money in question is available, as the state highway commissioner desires to have the work of surveying done at once and the work pushed to completion this year. It appears that all of the funds in the Schoolcraft county road commissioners' hands will be exhausted when existing contracts are completed and paid. It therefore looks as though the only plan now available will be for the board of supervisors to hold a special meeting for the purpose of appropriating the money from the general fund.

Big Crop of Wheat Assured.

The Cleveland Milling company, of Gladstone, which undertook to supply seed wheat to all comers, found that it had underestimated the demand. It has sent out two carloads of seed instead of one, enough to sow seven hundred acres. Fourteen thousand bushels of the best hard wheat may be expected from this fall. The falling off of the demand for peas, and the unfavorable potato crop of last year, together with the feeling among farmers that rotation and diversity of crops must be practiced if agriculture in this region is to be bettered, have helped. The company has purchased an excellent concrete warehouse at Engadine for use as a buying center this fall.

DROPS DEAD WHILE ON WAY TO WORK

William Read, an Old Resident, Succumbed to Heart Disease Yesterday.

While on his way to work yesterday morning at 6:30 o'clock, William Read, a resident of the Teal lake location, dropped dead in front of the Negaunee hospital, on Teal lake avenue. He had been ailing for several months past and during the past few days his condition had become worse. Death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Read was seen by several nearby residents walking north on Teal lake avenue about 6:30 o'clock. When in front of the hospital he stopped suddenly and placed his dinner pail on the sidewalk. A second later he staggered and fell to the work. Those who saw him fall carried him to the hospital, but he died before the door was reached. The deceased man was sixty years of age and had been working at the Negaunee cemetery, on the new system of water pipes. While at work last week he injured himself, and this is thought by many to have brought on an attack of heart trouble. He had been ill through the winter. For more than forty years he was a resident of Negaunee, being well-known both here and in Ishpeming. He lived at the home of his brother-in-law, John Blomster, who resides at the Teal lake location. He was born in Marquette.

Surviving relatives are the mother, Mrs. Mary St. Cyr, of the Teal lake location; three sisters, Mrs. John Blomster, of Negaunee; Mrs. Ed Mack, of Marquette; and Mrs. Joseph Campeau, of Seattle, Wash.; and two brothers, Charles Read and Fred St. Cyr, both of Milwaukee.

Godfrey, who is well-known here, had resigned his position as general superintendent of the Oliver Iron Mining company's operations in the western Mesaba field, is denied by Mr. Godfrey. It was asserted that A. V. Peterson, superintendent of the Oliver company's interests in the Chisholm district, was to succeed Mr. Godfrey, but the latter says there is no foundation for the statement.

CAPT. JOHN DEACON HAS ANSWERED CALL

Veteran Negaunee Mining Man Passed Away at Early Hour Yesterday Morning.

Captain John Deacon, one of the veteran mining men of Marquette county, and superintendent of the Republic Iron and Steel company's mines in Negaunee, died yesterday morning at 4 o'clock at his home at 204 Cyr street, following an illness of more than a year. Captain Deacon, who was fifty-three years of age, was regarded in mining circles as one of the most efficient and able mining men in the upper peninsula. He is survived by his wife and three sons, all of whom reside in Negaunee.

Captain Deacon came to Negaunee twenty-seven years ago this month, and started work at the Cambria and Lily mines as a miner. He gradually advanced from this position until, in 1906, he was made superintendent of the company's three mines in the Teal Lake district, the Cambria, Hartford and Lily. From his position as miner at the Cambria he was first advanced to be timber boss and later to shift boss. About 1890 he was promoted to be captain of the Cambria and Lily mines, under Alexander Matland, of Negaunee, who was general manager of the company at the time. In 1906 C. F. Fairbairn received the office of general manager, and he gave Captain Deacon the office of superintendent of the company's mines in the Teal Lake district, a position he held at the time of his death, although his illness during the past several months prevented him from taking an active part in the management of the mines.

Before coming to Negaunee Capt. Deacon was employed for a short time at Republic, where he went directly from his home in Cornwall, England, where he was born in 1860. He also spent a few months in the western states before coming to this city. He first resided at the mine location and later moved to the Jackson location. Five years ago he erected a residence on Cyr street. More than a year ago his health failed him and his condition became gradually worse. In January he decided to go south, and spent three months in Florida and Texas, coming back about April 1.

The condition of his health had, however, not been improved any. His death was due to heart trouble, bronchitis and asthma. During the past two weeks he had gradually weakened and he was seldom seen out of doors. Capt. Deacon was an active member of the Negaunee lodge, No. 202, F. & A. M., and also of the Negaunee chapter, No. 108, R. A. M. He had served as worshipful master of the lodge for two years and had filled every office in the lodge. He was also high priest of the Negaunee lodge of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Besides his wife and three sons, Capt. Deacon is survived by a sister, residing in New York city, and also relatives in Chicago. No funeral arrangements will be made until word is received from his sister. The funeral will be in charge of the Negaunee lodge of Masons on Wednesday night. For many years Capt. Deacon took an active interest in Negaunee politics, serving in the position of alderman from the first ward for many years.

Mining News

DAVIS-DALY.

The reports given out as to the development work in the Colorado mine of the Davis-Daly company are of encouraging character. For a long time it looked as if the property would never again be a producer, says Butte reviews, but a few months ago an ore body was opened up and the company was put in a position to ship about fifty tons a day, just about sufficient to meet operating expenses. Within the past six weeks or two months development work has been prosecuted on a more extensive scale, with the result that rich ore bodies have been opened on the 1,200, 1,400 and 1,700-foot levels and today the company is shipping all the way from 140 to 170 tons of ore a day averaging in the neighborhood of 8 per cent copper. In the course of a few weeks the management expects to be in a position to bring the shipments up to 200 tons a day. A year or more ago a contract was entered into with the Anaconda company to crosscut from the 2,000-foot level of the Gagnon mine into the Silver King ground, owned by the Davis-Daly company, for the purpose of exploring the mine at depth and ascertaining if the rich vein which the leasers opened on the 300-foot level extends to depth. This work has stopped after a distance of 1200 feet has been gone, but it is stated that in time the work will again be resumed. For the present the management deemed it more advisable to put all the money available into the development of the ore bodies in the Colorado.

NOTES OF MINING NEWS.

The Shannon statement for the March 31 quarter makes no reference to a dividend. The last payment was made Jan. 30, previous to which a fifty-cent disbursement was made Oct. 1, 1912, an interim of four months.

The East Butte company earned in excess of $70,000 in April, figuring on the basis of a net copper cost of 10 1/2 cents and a production of 1,400,000 pounds. The present high cost is due to heavy development work being done, for the management is going down to the 1800-foot level; in fact, it is already down to the 1500-foot level, and a winze has been sunk from the twelfth level. This extra development work is all charged against the cost of copper.

The issuance of quarterly reports by the Shannon Copper company is an innovation greatly appreciated by the shareholders, although unfortunately the statement for the three months ended March 31st makes a rather unfavorable exhibit. For this period the profits, including the net earnings of the railroad, were $75,000, or at the rate of $1 per share per annum on Shannon's 300,000 shares. The cost per pound of copper, after crediting gold and silver and railroad profits, was 13 1/2 cents.

PLAYGROUNDS AT BARAGA SCHOOL

Committees and Board of Education, in Session Last Evening, Decided That Property to Be Central Point for the Majority of South Marquette Children.

At Another Meeting Monday Plans and Specifications for the Improvement Will Be Placed in Hands of Mayor Fassbender—Appropriation Proposed.

A resolution favoring the installation of playgrounds at the Baraga school, provided that St. Peter's parish has no objection, was adopted last evening by members of the Commercial club playgrounds committee, the common council special committee chosen to investigate the merits of the plan and members of the board of education, in session at the city hall.

The committees by no means consider that this step has closed their period of usefulness, but, instead, the greatest interest in the schemes proposed, they will continue to plan economical and efficient means of giving the children of Marquette more opportunity for clean, healthful amusement.

The matter of playgrounds was discussed pro and con at last evening's meeting, the school trustees entering into the discussion with enthusiasm. So far there appears to be little opposition to the idea of establishing public playgrounds, and that which has come up has been prompted only by a natural reluctance to fall in line with any scheme requiring for its materialization an expenditure of public money.

The table arranged by the committees and the school trustees gathered was literally strewn with pamphlets, catalogs of playground apparatus, books of suggestions and advice and other literature dealing with modern ideas on the playground subject. The desire to learn more about playgrounds, the movement has met with almost unlooked-for success and those who are promoting it are highly gratified.

To Set Up Old Apparatus. It was decided last night to use every effort to have the playgrounds apparatus at the corner of Front and Bluff streets put into commission for the season as soon as possible.

The committees and the school trustees were practically of one adverse mind last evening regarding the project to make a recreation center of the neck of Presque Isle. They believe the plan is not feasible, because to prepare playgrounds there would be too expensive and the time consumed in going and coming would be too great and the care would place it beyond the reach of those very children it is hoped to benefit the most.

The public baths idea, which was given considerable attention at a meeting of the Commercial club and council committees held a week ago, has been dropped for the time being, it being considered that to push this plan in connection with the playgrounds project would require a large expenditure, and, above all, the services of an attendant. The committees are, however, making no concealment of the fact that they favor the plan and are waiting only for an opportunity when this project, too, will be ready for submission.

Some three years ago, following the organization of a local art club that had a brief existence, Mr. Griffith was invited to Marquette to lecture, and he addressed a large audience at the opera house, making an admirable impression. At that time he spent two or three days in Marquette and made many acquaintances here, by whom he is well remembered.

PROGRAM READY.

Conference of Corrections and Charities Will Be Held in Ann Arbor.

M. W. Jopling, a member of the state board of corrections and charities, James Russell and the members of the board of control of the Marquette prison have received notices and the official program of the spring meeting of the Michigan State Conference of Corrections and Charities, to be held at Ann Arbor from Monday, May 26, to Thursday, May 29, and it is expected that several upper peninsula men will be in attendance.

Brand Whitlock, of Toledo, a student of penological subjects and an author, will be one of the outside speakers in whose presence much interest will be taken. Another speaker will be Andrew H. Green, of Detroit, of Solvay Process fame, who will discuss the subject "Ideal Housing for Workingmen."

On account of the general nature of the program and the excellence of the speakers who have been secured, the meeting will attract a considerable attendance outside the official delegates.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT DOES EXCELLENT WORK

Marquette Man Praises Results Obtained at Iron Mountain by Dr. S. E. Cruse.

A Marquette man who returned this week from a visit to Iron Mountain highly praises the excellent results obtained in the protection of the public health in that city through the co-operation between the officials of the schools and the city health department.

The system developed at Iron Mountain is largely to be ascribed to the initiative of Dr. S. E. Cruse, the health officer, and is due to the keen interest he is taking in his work. He asserts: "Each case of sickness in the schools is reported to the superintendent by the teacher in whose room it is noted, and the superintendent makes immediate return to the health officer. Where there is any doubt as to the nature of the disease with which the child is suffering, an investigation is made, and if it is found to be communicable, or contagious, in its nature the necessary steps for quarantine are at once taken."

Another feature of the administration of the health officer's work at Iron Mountain is the liberal use of the pamphlets dealing with the public health issued by the state board of health. Generous quantities of these pamphlets, dealing with all sorts of subjects and printed in several languages, are secured and distributed to the schools.

It is planned to leave only the offices of the commission at the city hall. The change will benefit both the employees of the commission and the public, as the new quarters will be much more convenient than the city hall. The commission has been looking for a store for several months. Commissioner Lewis has been persistently urging the board to move to more convenient quarters, where a handsome storeroom could be provided.

The room in the Basez block is ninety-six feet deep, and the rear portion of the first floor will be partitioned off for a shop and testing laboratory. The basement will be used for storage. At present there is more material on hand than there is storage room for at the city hall and consequently some of it has been exposed to the weather back of the building. All transformer boxes and the heavier equipment which has formerly been left exposed can be stored in the basement of the Bacon building.

TRAPPED BEAVER WITHOUT A LICENSE

Joseph Smith, Native of Ohio, Arrested by E. D. Mosher and Fined $15 and Costs.

Joseph Smith, a professional trapper of Ohio, who, with a companion, has been operating in the vicinity of the Yellow Dog river since February, was brought to Marquette yesterday by E. D. Mosher, deputy game warden, and arraigned before Justice Byrne on a charge of trapping beaver without a license. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $15 and costs.

Deputy Mosher went to Big Bay Wednesday for the purpose of checking up the trappers. Upon arriving there he sought out J. B. Deutsch, who is at the head of the Lake Independence Lumber company's operations in Powell township, and from him learned that but two permits to trap beaver on the company's land had been given. One of these went to a trapper named Hennigan, living at Hennigan's crossing, and another to Clyde Reddick, the partner of Smith. Before taking to the woods, Deputy Mosher learned that Reddick had not been working alone and, further, that Reddick, himself, had been away from camp for some considerable time. He straightway sought out the camp, which he found near Hill's dam. The men had erected a tent within an ancient and ruined log barn.

Smith, it appears is a taxidermist. As Deputy Mosher walked into the tent he found Smith stuffing a beaver hide. They exchanged the usual greeting and proceeded to talk. Smith told all about beaver trapping and described the manner in which he kills the animal on the side of which he was working, telling the game warden that he had drowned it before he took it out of the trap a few days previous. The usual method of killing is by hitting the animal over the head with an axe. The deputy disclosed his identity. He asked Smith to show his license, whereupon Smith produced Reddick's license. Smith protested that he had made application for a license of his own, but the deputy knew better, since without a permit from the landowner it would have been impossible for Smith even to take the first steps toward procuring a state permit to trap beaver.

COMMISSION WILL OCCUPY NEW STORE

Electric Fixtures No Longer to Be Sold in City Hall, But on Front Street.

The light and power commission yesterday decided to rent the first floor and basement of the store on the north end of the new Bacon building, front street, for salesroom and storeroom purposes. An agreement as to rental was reached Wednesday with Mrs. Ellen J. Clark, who owns the building.

The stock of fixtures now kept in the city hall will be transferred to the Bacon building at once, and they will be displayed in a handsomely furnished sales room to be set apart in the front of the store. Fixtures for this room will be ordered at once. The stock will be in charge of the commission's present storekeeper, Charles Krieg, and it will be largely increased.

It is planned to leave only the offices of the commission at the city hall. The change will benefit both the employees of the commission and the public, as the new quarters will be much more convenient than the city hall.
