SENATE SENDS TARIFF BILL TO SECRET CAUCUS

Republican Amendment Directing the Finance Committee to Conduct Public Hearings on the Underwood Measure Is Bowled Over—It Loses by Five Votes.

Feature of the Day's Debate Is a Speech by Ollie James of Kentucky—Blue Grass Statesman Vigorously Defends Stand of the President for Free Sugar.

Washington, May 16.—The Democratic leaders in the senate were intorsed late today in their determination to refer the Underwood tariff bill to the finance committee for consideration without public hearings.

Two Democrats—Senators Ransfield and Thornton, of Louisiana—voted for the Republican amendment.

The closing day of the debate on the issue of hearings was enlivened with a discussion of the Democratic platform and its bearing on free sugar by Senator James, of Kentucky, who vigorously defended the stand taken by President Wilson for free sugar.

Senators Smoot, LaFollette and Clark wound up the debate on behalf of the public hearings amendment.

"The edict has gone forth," said Senator Clark. "The real vote on this tariff bill will be taken here as in the house, where it was taken in secret caucus."

New Haven, Conn., May 16.—State-wide primaries are "extreme measures for political reform" and a national primary for the election of a president and other national officers is "almost beyond thought" to former President William Howard Taft.

STILL THE DANCE.

Discussing the question of the "merry dance," the editor of the Escanaba Journal, whose views do not coincide with those of The Mining Journal as outlined in its recent comment on the attitude of Rev. Adams of Calumet, reaches this conclusion:

After all is said and done, the dance is a moral and religious question. And where a question is so debatable the law should compel the schools to let it alone.

The Mining Journal can hardly agree with this conclusion. The dance may be a moral question, but obviously it is not always such a question. The dance is just what the dancers make it. Many dances are no more phases of a moral question than a game of checkers between the editor of the Journal and one of his friends would be. On the other hand, many dances are unquestionably moral questions, and moral problems, too, of great seriousness. And that is just why so many clergymen who believe in fighting the devil constructively advocate public dances in wholesome environments—including the environment of the school—that public dancing may, at least in that degree, lose its aspect as a moral problem.

And is the dance a religious question? Which is the great religious denunciation that so pronounces it? The Mining Journal is aware that one denomination still places on the dance a formal embargo. But it is also aware that it is honored about as much in the breach as in the observance, and that no attempt is made to discipline those members who violate it. It is also aware that the denunciation in question, at its last great national conference, seriously considered raising this movement had considerable strength, although the issue was finally evaded.

Religion is much like politics. Majorities determine issues, and also the decisions reached with regard to them, once they are outlined. Dancing can hardly be regarded as a religious question because the number of persons concerned over it from the religious viewpoint is far too few, and public sentiment with regard to it is much too liberal. We have dancing in connection with the public schools because the persons who are opposed to dancing there are too few in number to impress their opposition on the men who are conducting the schools.

Whether or not there is dancing for students in connection with the public schools is a matter of little consequence to most persons, and they would, no doubt, cheerfully abide by any decision any particular board was pleased to reach in connection with the subject. One thing is of consequence, however, to all persons, and that is constructive effort to supply alternative amusement that shall at the same time be safe and attractive to take the place of the character-breaking amusements modern society is now seeking to combat. In that sense dancing in the schools—not so much for the students as for persons who would otherwise frequent undesirable dance halls—as part of a constructive scheme of social center work doubtless will in time, particularly in the large cities, become an established institution of great value.

TWO OF 'EM.

It will be pleasing news for the upper peninsula counties in the new Eleventh congressional district that from the lower state counties in that district there will be entered two candidates for the Republican nomination as representative. The candidacy of Senator Scott has been taken for granted for several weeks past, and now it is announced that Representative Hinkley will also seek Republican endorsement for the seat.

This is of interest for the upper peninsula counties for the reason that if the lower state end of the district united on one Republican candidate there would be little likelihood that an upper peninsula aspirant would secure the plunk, the legislature having so laid out the district that the lower peninsula end has something the better of the voting strength. With two lower Michigan candidates, however, the upper peninsula counties will have a chance to land a Republican nomination, even if they have more than one aspirant.

Of the two lower state legislators who, it is said, will seek to represent the Eleventh district, the Lansing State Journal evidences an unmistakable preference for Hinkley, saying:

Before the legislature becomes past history it may be well to call to attention the records of these men. Hinkley, a member of the lower house, served his second year and was entrusted with the important appointment of chairman of the ways and means committee. He was a tireless worker and a close student and consequently was one of the men whose advice was most frequently sought.

Senator Scott, on the other hand, did not rise to a shining place in the council of the chamber where he held his seat. It is true Mr. Scott did make a record. He is said to have waddled about more or more than any member of the senate. It is even intimated that he surpassed the record of one of our well-are getting somewhere in our efforts to reform convicts in Michigan," he is quoted as saying. "The progress made shows that this class of men can be reached and helped. A first term here gets to a place where he can be saved to the citizenship of the country and returned to society a clean, right thinking man. Hundreds of them come to me and acknowledge that they are down and out. Invariably they tell me they can see where they got started wrong. Then is the time that they can be reached. Put the record of the parole and pardon board of this state and this institution during the past year up against that of the other so-called successfully handled prisons. They hold up a record of 75 per cent of paroles successful. We can show a record of 85 per cent. Our new penology commission is one of the moves that will make for better government, better conditions and for the best interests of the inmates of the state penal institutions."

After that the hapless Scott never dared to assail a fellow member on the floor of the senate, for just as surely as he did he was twitted about his lightning change of mind in the case of the contested seat.

When this news gets back home to the new district, Mr. Scott may have a hard time explaining matters to the people he hopes to make his constituents and it is to be sincerely hoped that he will.

The state of Michigan has had enough experience with waddlers in congress.

Senator Townsend, who, while approving of the "get together" movement in the G. O. P., expressed the opinion that the Chicago conference was too factional, is modest enough to deny the suggestion that he is a presidential possibility. "Before it is time to think about the man for the presidential nomination, the party must pull itself together and present itself to the country as a sane progressive unit," he says. "We ought to have conferences participated in by Republicans generally. We ought to make plans now for the next campaign and vigorously assert the fact that the Republican party stands for something distinctive and essential to the nation's progress. We are confronted by two serious obstacles. On the one hand are the ultra-radicals, some of whom have personal ambitions. They are pulling strongly and they are not pulling together. They have been unable to unify themselves, to say nothing of unifying the party. Then there are the stand-patters, who want to hold off in the hope that a reaction may swing the pendulum away back and put them in power again. We ought to reorganize and make our plans now, before there is opportunity for reaction and before the progressive impetus has been spent."

After the state tax commission visited the city of Saginaw and placed an additional $80,000,000 on the tax rolls, the board of review assembled and whittled $800,000 off the commission's figures. Just to show that it means business, the tax commission responded this week with a visit to Saginaw to determine whether it should not slap the $800,000 back on again. The tax commission, if it expects to get anywhere, may as well prove beyond any question of doubt that when it increases a tax roll the increase has to stand until the commission agrees that it can be changed. If local assessors and boards of review can begin tearing down the commission's work as soon as its back is turned the members may as well close their books, resign their jobs and return to private life, for all the good they will be able to do the state.

The tax commission has, as a result of the work of the recent session of the legislature, more power than it ever had before. For instance, it has supervisory power over the assessing officers. If they don't track straight, the commission is abundantly able to make life miserable for them. This increased power, and a disposition to get a real move on, may be the means of making the tax commission a body of enhanced value to the state. Heretofore it has been hampered by the fact that it could be set at naught by too many officials, and the other fact that at its rate of progress the ascertainment of the true cash value of the property of the state appeared to be unlikely before the arrival of the millennium.

Lieutenant Governor Ross has denied the authenticity of the interview in which he was recently quoted as asserting that he would not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor next year. He asserts that it is far too early for him to say a final word on this subject. He agrees with Representative Kelley that the Republicans should by all means seek to avoid a primary contest next year by hitting upon a candidate upon whom all factions of the party will be able to agree. In confidential moments, however, the lieutenant governor would, no doubt, be willing to admit that this will be some job.

The records of the poor commissioner of Kalamazoo county show that but one family in the entire county, with a population of nearly 75,000, is receiving aid, and the commissioner believes that relatives of this particular family can be induced to look after its members. This showing is believed to be unique in the state.

That Michigan is way up in front in its system of handling prisoners is the statement of Chaplain Louger, of the Jackson penitentiary, who is leaving on a three months' tour of prisons in the western and middle western states. "We Horsy.

Their Only Claim.
Discussing a rather bohemian set in Chicago, a writer has never said I Chicago Athletic club:
"These poor girls need't think themselves literary just because they use a pencil to darken their eyebrows."

A Morgan Mot.
A Pierpont Morgan note, or epigram, on the subject of energy was repeated the other night at the Metropolitan club in New York, where Mr. Morgan once said:
"The satisfied, unambitious man, the man without energy, can seldom afford to take that famous and popular room at the top."

She Knew the Count.
Mayor Whitlock, of Toledo was talking about a Toledo heiress who had married a count.
"Well, at any rate," said he, "the girl seemed convinced that the count had no unworthy motives."
"Don't you know," a friend said to her, some months before the wedding, "do you know that the count is simply marrying you for your money, so that he can pay his bills?"
"Nonsense!" she replied. "The count never thinks of paying his bills."

Not Always True.
Miss Inez Millholland, the suffrage leader, said at a tea at the Colony club in New York:
"The new woman—the woman who's going to vote—has larger interests than the woman of the past. The new woman's broad future contains all possibilities. The future of the woman of the past, on the other hand, contained but one possibility—matrimony. It's no longer true," Miss Millholland ended with a laugh, "that, as the saying goes,"
"Man proposes—and woman accepts."

Reminder.
August Belmont, apropos of the revival of horse racing in New York, said the other day:
"There's a good deal of cant and nonsense talked against horse racing. It all makes me think of a little Hempstead lad.
"This little lad's teacher set him the following problem:
"If you horse can run two miles in three minutes and ten seconds, and another can run two miles in four minutes and eight seconds, by how much would the first horse beat the second in a six-mile race?"
"The little boy returned this problem, unsolved, with the following explanatory note:
"Pa says that I must never have nothing to do with horse racing."

What Is This?
Earl Morley, at a luncheon in New York, said of the American woman:
"The American woman, as she glides in her motor car down Fifth avenue, or as she hurries from her jeweler's to 'Sherry's,' is perhaps the most elegant woman in the world."
"Fifth avenue is perhaps the most elegant street in the world. Broad and straight, bordered with splendid shops and hotels of pale stone, drenched with sunshine and roofed with a luminous blue sky, it is perhaps the most magnificent to America's beautiful women."
"But these women dress, perhaps, a little too boldly for the street. Take, for example, their tight gowns with a slit at the side—a slit through which advances and retreats a slim foot in a patent leather shoe and a supple ankle in a gossamer stocking. This is perhaps too overwhelming a costume for street wear."
"Yet in such a costume the American woman is undoubtedly chic. And this raises the question, What is chic?"
"Chic, I would reply, is the art of wearing a lold gown modestly."

LOWER STATE NOTES
LANSING—Auditor General Fuller said in the tax levy for 1913 and 1914 would be $14,593,397.61. However, there is a possibility that $10,000 will have to be added for each year in order to meet certain minor expenses not included in the general list.

KALAMAZOO—It has been known that Miss Freda H. Meier, a vaudeville artist of this city, secretly married Dallas Bondeman Jr., son of Dallas Bondeman, one of the most prominent attorneys in the state, at Paw Paw, last week. The Bondeman family is one of the oldest and most prominent socially in this city.

SAGINAW—Thomas E. Kearney, a member of the state tax commission, and F. R. Metcalf, expert appraiser, arrived in Saginaw, hot on the results of the big rise in valuations which the board of review made Tuesday. It is the general expectation that the reductions will be restored, as Commissioner Kearney gave out a statement in which he emphasized the importance of having the state assessed equitably on a cash value basis.

GRAND RAPIDS—United States Marshal Nicholas Whelan destroyed 240 bottles of adulterated hydrogen peroxide in Kalamazoo. The process used in the destruction of the bottles was novel. He wanted to empty the liquid out in a drain but was unable to get anyone to take the bottles off his hands, so he was forced to break every one. He went to a junk yard, found a large stone, stood off 10 paces and smashed each bottle against it.

PORT HURON—Though he has been an aviator for five years and an automobile driver about as long, William Ainsworth experienced his first accident this week. Accompanied by Miss Nettie Bolio, to whom he is to be married, Ainsworth was driving north on Grand avenue. The girl was sitting at the wheel, while Ainsworth, by her side, was instructing her how to drive the car. As they approached a wagon, he told her to slow down, but she became confused and forced the machine forward at a greater speed. The wheels skidded and she collided head-on with a telephone pole. Ainsworth was catapulted through two sheets of glass of the folded windshield and thrown against the pole head foremost. He was wearing a heavy cap and this lessened the impact. The girl was hurled from the car and landed in a vacant lot several feet distant. Both escaped with minor injuries. Ainsworth was gashed on the left side and wounded in three or four places. Miss Bolio was cut on the face and injured on the knee.

LANSING—Lient. Gov. John Q. Ross says he never authorized the alleged interview which recently came out of Minskogin, in which he was quoted as saying he would not be a candidate for the Republican party in 1916, nor would he not be a candidate for governor," said Mr. Ross. The time is too far off to make any announcement as to whether I will make the run or not. One thing I am sure of, and that is the Republican party in Michigan does not want to indulge in any battles during the primary campaign. I personally favor the party settling on a candidate who can satisfy all factions and cut away from the primary fight. Whoever that may be, I will support him."

LANSING—Thus far Governor Ferris has not vetoed power sparingly, but several bills were decapitated by the chief executive this week. One bill that did not meet favor with the governor was Senator Weadock's measure authorizing boards of supervisors to raise money for the purchase of sites for the building and bridging of Senator Amberson's bill making it lawful to kill wild water fowl one-half hour before sun rise and one-half hour after sunset on each day of the open season for hunting such fowl, was also vetoed. Representative McClain's bill authorizing boards of supervisors to provide for the payment of good roads bonds 15 years from the date of issuance was vetoed, and Representative McLaughlin's bill amending the liquor laws was also killed.

LANSING—Letters from widows throughout the state are daily piling up on the governor's desk, and the "widows' pension" law enacted by the state legislature and signed a week ago by the governor. The measure has caused more questions than any other piece of legislation brought forth by the 1913 lawmakers. One woman sought information, but also made application for her first pension. Another wrote that she has eight children. "What must I do to get the pension?" she asked. The machinery provided for by the measure will not go into operation before 15 to 30 days after the date of the final adjournment. In the meanwhile the secretary to the governor is daily compelled to write sympathetic missives to widows throughout the state, explaining the pension program.

Insulting the President.
The kind of appeal that is being made to President Wilson to induce him to veto the sundry civil bill is highly insulting to him. His petitioners obviously have a low opinion of both the intelligence and the morals of the president.
If they had respect for his intelligence they would have no hope of deceiving him into thinking that to authorize men to forbid the prosecution of organizations formed to raise wages, shorten hours of labor, and to better conditions of labor, would be the commission of crime. They would assume that he can be induced to accept so preposterous and so nonsensical a proposition.
If there was respect for the morals of the president there would be no need to point out to him the necessity of vetoing legislation authorizing the commission of crime. He would do it of his own accord. He would not need to be instructed concerning his manifest duty. He would run to its performance gleefully.

The attack that is being made on the exemption clause of the sundry civil bill is based on silly and stupid misrepresentation. All that is recognized is the right of labor unions and cooperative societies of farmers to exist. They exist now with general approval—at least of the lip. No attorney general has thus far brought suits to "dissolve" labor unions or farmers' granges. It is altogether logical to say on the one hand that such organizations should be permitted to exist and then in the next breath denounce legislation that says they may exist. Nothing in the mis-represented exemption clause in any way authorizes illegal conduct on the part of labor unions or cooperative societies. The unions may not boycott more than now, or intimidate, or enter into conspiracy to injure. As to the farmers' societies, it is generally agreed that it was never intended that the Sherman law should prohibit a group of farmers from arranging to sell their products cooperatively, thus getting rid of the burden of middlemen, to their own benefit and the benefit of consumers. The effort to confuse the public and to arouse prejudices concerning this matter is demagogical and outrageous.—New York Globe.

Human Eyesight Not to Be Compared With It.
Compared with our human eyesight, the vision of birds of prey is marvelous. The bird stunner is often amazed at the immense distance at which hawks, eagles and vultures can distinguish objects. It is a well authenticated fact that vultures do not find their food by the sense of smell.
Many years ago Charles Darwin experimented with the carrier birds of South America, and found that so long as the food was concealed from sight, no matter how putrid and ill-smelling it was, the birds failed to detect it. Other observers have reached the same conclusion. A friend of the author's Companion writes:
"I was detailed for service with some troops that were moving along the Mexican border. One evening we were camped near a small stream on the western slope of the hills east of San Diego. During the night one of the wagon mules died. We took the body a short distance from camp and partly concealed it in a clump of willows. The next morning, after the column had resumed its march, I rode to the point of the highest hill, some three miles from our camping ground, and swept the country through a pair of powerful binoculars.
"As the glasses moved along the horizon a vulture, a mere speck in the distance, came into their field. He was sailing in great circles in the blue heavens, miles away, far beyond the ken of the unaided eye. Suddenly he passed in his night, turned sharply, and headed directly for our abandoned camp ground. I watched him until I was convinced that he had discovered the dead mule."
Then I recollected that years ago I had read in one of Captain Mayne Reid's books something of the habits of vultures, and I began to look for other, in a few minutes another appeared, a black speck in the sky, speeding in the wake of the first; then another and another came, from different points of the compass; then more and more, all hurrying toward their loathsome feast.
"While I watched the gathering vultures I made a little calculation. When the first vulture discovered the carcass, he was not visible to the naked eye, and was but a speck through the binoculars. That is, adding the three miles I had ridden from camp to eighteen, the range of the binoculars, the bird must have been nearly twenty-one miles from the carcass."
The carcass itself was partly concealed and was invisible from my position except through the glasses. That the vulture depended upon his vision alone is evident, as enough time had not passed for any putrefactive changes to taint the air.
"Another interesting thing was the promptness with which the other vultures took the hint when the first made the discovery. There was only one in sight to begin with; in ten minutes there were fifty."

EDITORIAL OPINION

Stolen or Borrowed?
Civilians can scarcely share in the full anxiety said to exist in the navy department as a result of the discovery that some body has been stealing battleship plans of greater or less importance and value. The only incentive to meanness is the intimation that the department may conclude to make alterations in the Pennsylvania and her sister ship, entailing material additions to their original cost.
What are a few battleship plans more or less? It seems only the other day that, for the good of the American battleship building industry, the government cheerfully loaned the use of its very best set of plans to the Argentine republic, under the condition that the American country might have a duplicate or two of our latest model built in privately-owned shipyards of the United States.
It may be that the drawings or blue prints so mysteriously missing have merely been borrowed informally and will be brought back in good condition when some good neighbor is through with them. To be sure, it seems a bit forward to come right in without knocking and help oneself without asking permission, but how do we know that the borrower is not one of our most intimate friends and perfectly welcome? We must not seem fussy about things we are quite willing to lend.
Navy building is a matter of money, not plans. An nation can buy, borrow or steal plans, but only the nation that can spend the most money can hope for naval supremacy. The more uniform the plans the better. Indeed, a Geneva convention to prescribe a one-design battleship, by mutual adoption by all nations would help a lot. The naval strength could be figured with something like accuracy and the power having the deepest purse and the most diligent taxpayers could rule the waves without subjecting any country to the disagreeable necessity of fighting.—Cleveland Leader.

Fun or Ignorance?
In a lengthy editorial on the resignation of Congressman Young, the Chicago Inter Ocean on Monday, among other things, said:
"Apparently Mr. MacDonald was not well known throughout the district. In some ways the Michigan upper peninsula is a peculiar district. Its five or six centers of industry and population have only small business and social relations with one another. The beneficiary of political convulsion might easily be little known outside his own community."
It would be decidedly interesting to the people of these "five or six centers of industry and population" to learn the Inter Ocean's source of "misinformation" regarding this Cleveland of ours. For the better information of the Inter Ocean's editorial jokers, The Journal is pleased to say that there is no congressional district in Michigan, with the possible exception of the two districts in which Detroit and Wayne county are included, in which the politicians and business and professional men are better acquainted with each other than right here in Cleveland district. We have our political conventions, meetings of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, Educational associations, Medical associations, Dental associations, Press associations, church convention, society conventions, etc. All of these keep our people in touch with each other and with all parts of the district. We have a population of nearly 400,000; the mineral wealth of the peninsula is the wonder of the world and the delight of those who are reaping the harvest of wealth; our mills and factories and other industrial enterprises are innumerable; the agricultural industry is growing amazingly and lands have quadrupled in value in the past five years.
In fact, our "five or six centers of industry and population" are rapidly being merged into one, and the world outside the office of the Inter Ocean's editorial joker, is becoming wise to the fact that this upper peninsula is an emerald of natural wealth and that we have a live population that is being rapidly increased by immigration from parts of the country which are not so favorably situated.

We don't have cyclones and tornadoes; we don't have floods and pestilence. We have the real goods for home-builders and homeowners. The hatch string is always out. Come and see us.

We have an intensely loyal people who know the peninsula and who believe in it. Our population isn't as large as Cook county, Illinois, but what we lack in numbers we make up in feelings.
But, getting down to the congressional imbroglio: The people know Mr. MacDonald pretty well. It is safe to say that he personally knows and shook hands with most people several times over during the campaign last fall, that both his opponents put together, the people knew what they wanted, and it made them mad when they found out that an effort was being made to beat them out of what they had won. But all is well that ends and even Mr. Young now says that Mr. MacDonald was fairly elected.—Escanaba Journal.

Insulting the President.
The kind of appeal that is being made to President Wilson to induce him to veto the sundry civil bill is highly insulting to him. His petitioners obviously have a low opinion of both the intelligence and the morals of the president.
If they had respect for his intelligence they would have no hope of deceiving him into thinking that to authorize men to forbid the prosecution of organizations formed to raise wages, shorten hours of labor, and to better conditions of labor, would be the commission of crime. They would assume that he can be induced to accept so preposterous and so nonsensical a proposition.
If there was respect for the morals of the president there would be no need to point out to him the necessity of vetoing legislation authorizing the commission of crime. He would do it of his own accord. He would not need to be instructed concerning his manifest duty. He would run to its performance gleefully.

The attack that is being made on the exemption clause of the sundry civil bill is based on silly and stupid misrepresentation. All that is recognized is the right of labor unions and cooperative societies of farmers to exist. They exist now with general approval—at least of the lip. No attorney general has thus far brought suits to "dissolve" labor unions or farmers' granges. It is altogether logical to say on the one hand that such organizations should be permitted to exist and then in the next breath denounce legislation that says they may exist. Nothing in the mis-represented exemption clause in any way authorizes illegal conduct on the part of labor unions or cooperative societies. The unions may not boycott more than now, or intimidate, or enter into conspiracy to injure. As to the farmers' societies, it is generally agreed that it was never intended that the Sherman law should prohibit a group of farmers from arranging to sell their products cooperatively, thus getting rid of the burden of middlemen, to their own benefit and the benefit of consumers. The effort to confuse the public and to arouse prejudices concerning this matter is demagogical and outrageous.—New York Globe.

Human Eyesight Not to Be Compared With It.
Compared with our human eyesight, the vision of birds of prey is marvelous. The bird stunner is often amazed at the immense distance at which hawks, eagles and vultures can distinguish objects. It is a well authenticated fact that vultures do not find their food by the sense of smell.
Many years ago Charles Darwin experimented with the carrier birds of South America, and found that so long as the food was concealed from sight, no matter how putrid and ill-smelling it was, the birds failed to detect it. Other observers have reached the same conclusion. A friend of the author's Companion writes:

POSSIBLE FINE IS MORE THAN MILLION

Rebating Is Charged Against Four Railroad Lines and One Coal Company.

East St. Louis, Ill., May 16.—Five indictments charging rebating and discriminating in sixty-three counts were returned late today against four railroads and a coal company by a federal grand jury here. The indictments set forth instances wherein it is alleged the laws were violated by the Yazoo, the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis (the Big Four), the Chicago, Indiana & Southern, and the Grand Trunk railroads and the O'Gara Coal company.

The railroads are charged with rebating and giving discriminatory rates to the coal company. The coal company is charged with receiving concessions in violation of the Elkins law of 1903. Should the government procure convictions on all the sixty-three counts and the maximum penalties be imposed, the defendant companies would be obliged to pay a collective fine of $1,350,000.

One of the most startling facts the government hopes to establish is that the O'Gara Coal company, a New York corporation, is virtually owned by the Big Four, or by the New York Central, which in turn owns the Big Four.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN SCOTT TOO TERRIBLE TO DESCRIBE.

San Francisco, May 16.—Additional details of Captain Robert F. Scott's ill-fated expedition to the south pole were related here when Charles S. Wright and Frank De Benham, both scientists, arrived from Sydney. Wright was one of the party of eleven which found the body of Scott.

"The last chapter in the story of Captain Scott and his heroic comrades will never be written," said Wright. "Their death was too terrible for description. We decided to bury them where they died, because it would have been impossible to carry the bodies back to civilization. We folded up the tent which had served to protect them and buried the bodies under a pile of ice that will never melt. A cross was erected overlooking the icy barrier. The place is accessible to another expedition should it be formed to bring back the remains."

Wright and De Benham brought with them a pair of Siberian dogs which helped to draw Scott's sleds over the ice and snow fields.

WALL STREET STOCKS.

Paine, Webber & Co. wired from New York yesterday as follows: The trading in the market was without special features, the buying market being for the purpose of covering short commitments. Much attention is given to the money market and this feature will be watched closely as it will have a decided bearing on the position to be taken by both investors and those making purchases for a speculative movement. With the limitations being placed on many railroad and industrial stocks, we are of the opinion that R. R. T. will prove an attractive trading stock and may be the market will commence to discriminate an increase in its dividend. A better demand for high class bonds has been in evidence and many who are hopeful, are expecting a permanent benefit through this source. The day's closing prices were as follows:

Boston Coppers.

Of the market of Boston Paine, Webber & Co. wired yesterday as follows: Serious consideration should be given to the facts which we outlined yesterday that many of the things which have been dreamed and discounted in the past year are now actual facts. The fact that a bill is practically framed and without doubt will soon be in operation. Labor demands have become insistent and strikes and lockouts are common occurrences. Retail business has fallen off considerably on account of the large number of unemployed. Money is tighter than ever and the Balkan troubles are still unsettled. Stocks have steadily declined for six months with everybody frightened and selling to save what they could. In the face of all these facts, a glance at the active stocks on the New York list will show that prices are no lower than they were three and four weeks ago. Every day thousands of Amalgamated, Steel, Union and Reading are sold at practically stationary prices as if the stocks as if the banking interests were accumulating all the stocks they can without advancing prices. The local coppers are in the same position, selling considerably below their intrinsic worth and I believe that before long they will be made and that the long expected rally will come much sooner than anyone thinks. The closing prices follow:

Markets

WALL STREET STOCKS.

Paine, Webber & Co. wired from New York yesterday as follows: The trading in the market was without special features, the buying market being for the purpose of covering short commitments. Much attention is given to the money market and this feature will be watched closely as it will have a decided bearing on the position to be taken by both investors and those making purchases for a speculative movement. With the limitations being placed on many railroad and industrial stocks, we are of the opinion that R. R. T. will prove an attractive trading stock and may be the market will commence to discriminate an increase in its dividend. A better demand for high class bonds has been in evidence and many who are hopeful, are expecting a permanent benefit through this source. The day's closing prices were as follows:

|          |         |         |

Boston Coppers.

Of the market of Boston Paine, Webber & Co. wired yesterday as follows: Serious consideration should be given to the facts which we outlined yesterday that many of the things which have been dreamed and discounted in the past year are now actual facts. The fact that a bill is practically framed and without doubt will soon be in operation. Labor demands have become insistent and strikes and lockouts are common occurrences. Retail business has fallen off considerably on account of the large number of unemployed. Money is tighter than ever and the Balkan troubles are still unsettled. Stocks have steadily declined for six months with everybody frightened and selling to save what they could. In the face of all these facts, a glance at the active stocks on the New York list will show that prices are no lower than they were three and four weeks ago. Every day thousands of Amalgamated, Steel, Union and Reading are sold at practically stationary prices as if the stocks as if the banking interests were accumulating all the stocks they can without advancing prices. The local coppers are in the same position, selling considerably below their intrinsic worth and I believe that before long they will be made and that the long expected rally will come much sooner than anyone thinks. The closing prices follow:

|          |         |         |
|----------|---------|---------|
| A. Gold  | 109 1/2 | 109 3/4 |

NEGROES OF THE CANAL ZONE.

In Most Respects They Have Advanced During Recent Years.

In giving his impressions of social and economic conditions at the canal zone, Dr. Edward T. Devine tells, in the Survey, of the good work which is being done by the negroes. He says: "The negroes on the zone are all well paid and well treated. They respond as might be expected. The negroes especially, whether because of the superior education at home on the islands, or because of the discipline, the abundant food and favorable health conditions on the isthmus have amply justified their selection."

GET INTO THE GAME.

Stop and calmly sum up yourself. Plot your progress curve and find out if you are doing the thing you want most to do, advises Robert Carlton Brown, in Everybody's Magazine.

That which is progress for me may be stagnation for you. Figure it out personally and see if you are keeping pace with your measure of life. Within each of us is a simple, durable metronome regularly ticking off the measure of a man. Each of us is unconsciously conscious of the fact that he sometimes lags behind the beat, that he often endeavors to rush or confuse it; but the instrument ticks on accurately, always a ready guide to consult.

Ego, soul, conscience, whatever the trade name of that metronome, it offers each man a fixed mental, spiritual and physical standard which he ought constantly to approach.

Have you taken time to study butterfly? Have you helped send that deserving young fellow through college, as you've always wanted to do? Have you built that model boat you've had in the back of your brain so long? Are you going to take that trip to California this year? Have you bought that phonograph for your family? Have you taken up the study of tulip culture, as you've hoped to do by this year? Are you really going to make that wish for garden this spring? Have you helped lighten the burden of that cripple who lives across the way? Have you started reading the History of England or gone in for the study of African javelin? The years are stealing bases on you. Get into the game!

AN INDIAN PRINCESS.

Even India grows modern. Princess Indira, daughter of the Gaekwar of Baroda, who is to be married to the oldest son of the Maharajah of Cochin Behar, has jilted a royal lover and a match that would have united two of the richest of the "native states" is off.

SCIENCE BEATS DISEASE.

The cruiser Colorado, down on the west coast of Mexico, discovered an outbreak of meningitis among her crew, and soon there was a record of two deaths and fifteen members of the crew ill.

AN OLD GREEK VASE.

Lost from sight for more than half a century, a rare Greek vase dating back to the Sixth century before Christ has been discovered among the relics of the Anthropological museum of the University of California.

BOON FOR HUNGER STRICKERS.

A French scientist has brought out the fact that the electric current can serve to some extent in the place of nourishment for the human body.

QUIT CALOMEL!

Thousands Are Turning from This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute Is Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio has discovered a new laxative and liver toner in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects of calomel.

PASSING OF THE BIG HAT.

The big hat, with its weeping willow and gigantic proportions, has passed on. It is dead, with its hat-maker, and now the immense hat, with its halo, is seen no more in respectable Paris society. The small creations for the head were not welcomed when they appeared last autumn, for people found them insignificant and unbecoming, no matter if graceful and dainty. They were above and around the absence of brim. However, women soon discovered dignity and elegance in the small hat's very ugliness and lack of garishness.

MRS. POTTER PALMER IN PARIS.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, one of America's foremost hostesses, has brought her household goods to Paris and is repeating her success in Chicago. She has been giving some social functions and the success which attends these proves her to be in the first rank of hostesses regardless of nationality.

The newlyweds left here on the afternoon train for Marquette, where the groom has a furnished home awaiting his bride. Mr. Rauer, who is agent for the Ford automobiles in Marquette, is a successful young business man. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Miller, who reside on a farm."

Six New Flag Stops—Conforming with the plan of an accommodating Sunday camera and fishermen adopted last year, C. E. Lytle, general superintendent of the South Shore railway, has ordered that, on Sundays only, trains Nos. 7 and 8, the former arriving at Marquette from the East at 11:15 p. m., daily, and the latter leaving here at 5:15 from the West, shall make flag stops at Sand River, Deerton, Oota, Rock River, Au Train and Creighton. This schedule will be in effect until further notice.

Dog Bites Small Boy—George Homeier, the little son of Colonel E. E. Homeier, was attacked and bitten by a dog while at play near the corner of Third and Marquet streets yesterday. The animal's teeth lacerated the child on the face and the hand. They are to be arranged somewhat like circus seats and will give all visiting Knights an opportunity to view the degree work that will be exemplified in this auditorium. The Pythian Sisters will hold their convention at the same time in the gymnasium of Guild Hall.

To Cut Down Running Time—The South Shore railway operating department is planning to cut down the running time of Trains No. 7 and 8, between the Soo and Duluth, to conform to a new schedule of the Canadian Pacific railway. The reduction, it is said, will be one hour, to be made up largely between the Soo and Marquette. The plans for the change in time are yet tentative, pending the action of the Canadian Pacific operating department. Brotherton's orchestra, of Negaunee, furnished the music. A delightful luncheon of sandwiches, coffee, cakes and fruit was served shortly after 7 o'clock. The party was highly enjoyed by everyone. A number of Escanaba and up-the-road persons were in attendance.

Jury Disagrees—A jury in the case of Louis Riedinger vs. the Union Clothing company, a suit to recover a small sum of money, which was tried before Justice Marks yesterday afternoon, disagreed, and the case will be retried next week. Riedinger is suing to recover money he claims is still owed him for rent of his building on the corner of Front street and Baraga avenue, which up to a short time ago was occupied by the clothing concern. The defendants claim that Mr. Riedinger is indebted to them for storage of goods, which he refused to pay for and which they allege was held out of the rent money. The debt is denied by the plaintiff, and he is suing for the full amount of rent which he claims is due him.

Class Meet Today—The annual class field and track meet for possession of the Peter White athletic trophy will be held this afternoon at the fair grounds. The events will start at 1:30. The cup, which was won last year and is now held by the present Senior class, will be inscribed with the name of the team victorious in today's events. The meet, in addition, will be an elimination test to select representatives of the team which the Marquette high school will enter in the upper peninsula track and field meet on May 31.

A mason would not attempt to erect a structure without stones or bricks—would he? And he makes a careful selection of the material that is needed. He uses outside bricks for outside work and inside bricks for inside work. How many young men and women are trying today right here in Marquette to erect the edifice of success without using a bank account? And do you realize that the selection of a Bank for YOU and YOUR needs to build YOUR edifice of success is just as important as the selection of bricks by a mason when he puts up a building. We are a Bank of Personal Service. We can serve you individually whatever may be your business. For whatever you do that is your business.

Marquette, Michigan.

The end of the 2d week finds us well advanced in our remodeling work. Two heavy beams weighing nearly two tons each have been placed over our shoe store and the iron columns removed. The coming week will carry the same operation to our clothing store, when the full opening for the large arcade and windows will be defined --- in the meantime the beautiful panel work for the windows and the arcade are arriving daily --- when all in the work of placing our show windows will be begun.

Our customers will find entrance through our shoe store door free and unhampered, our former windows safely fenced in and while to all appearances our shoe store looks physically disabled it does not lack in activity on the inside --- nor in good merchandise rightly priced.

KILL HERE IS SMALL. Large Profit on Beavers in Dickinson County—Season Should Be Shortened.

John Wickman, a trapper of Dickinson county, with his partner, took sixty beavers during the season which closed Thursday, and the skins netted $10 apiece. Deputy Game Warden Andrews, of Iron Mountain, estimates that fully 600 beavers were trapped in the streams of that district during the season, and he, also, places the average value of a pelt at $10, giving a total value of $6,000 for the season's catch.

Mr. Wickman is of the opinion that the beaver season should close fully a month earlier than it does. Unless the change is made, he asserts that the animals will be exterminated within a few years. An argument in favor of the change, and one that the trapper considers unanswerable, is the fact that the animals breed in March and April. Mr. Wickman says he trapped three females, two of which had four rats each and one five. Other trappers, he says, have had the same experience.

TO SAVE MONEY

The young man who starts his business career and his savings account at the same time, starts right. He undoubtedly has hopes of being "his own boss" some day: and to do this he has two things to do—he must learn his business thoroughly and save up his capital at the same time. If he will commence his account early in life and deposit regularly thereafter, his money will be increasing of itself and at the same time take none of his time to look after it; and when he is ready to start for himself his own savings account will furnish the capital.

The difficulty is not so much in getting a start as in resolving to START and ADHERE MANFULLY to the resolution. Too many young men have not the patience—the self denial—the disposition to sow and wait for the harvest. They lack the courage to make the start—to come down to hard-pan—to live within their means. Let every young man remember that for every dollar he saves now he will have $30.00 in his pocket when he has reached seventy-five years.

Upper Peninsula

Fine New Hotel for Rexton. John Anglin of Trout Lake says that his new hotel at Rexton, when completed, will cost in excess of $10,000. It will be three stories in height, containing twenty-four sleeping apartments and will be steam-heated and modern in every respect.

Woods Labor Hard to Get. W. E. Mitchell has returned to St. Ignace from an extended "man-hunting" trip through the upper peninsula and a portion of Wisconsin. Mr. Mitchell, who is the employment agent for the Bay de Noc Lumber company, operating at Nahma, says that laboring men are even harder to obtain in Wisconsin than in Michigan, nearly everyone who cares to work being employed at good wages. He thinks that the labor situation is a menace to operations in the lumber districts all over the country and says that many operators have been obliged to close down on account of lack of help.

Engadine a Thrifty Town. According to the St. Ignace Enterprise, Engadine is the most pretentious town on the Soo Line between Marquette and the Soo. The principal industry is the heading mill owned by the Edwin Bell company. The company is now turning out 5,000 sets of headings every day and a new mill just installed will enable it to double its capacity, beginning next week. The machinery is all new and modern. The company owns sufficient timber to keep the plant in operation for the next seven years and is continually adding to its holdings. Employment is given to thirty-five men in the mill, besides those engaged in the woods operating department. The Freeman Lumber company's mill also gives employment to a considerable number of men and has a large run ahead of it. The creamery will start operations shortly. This is an industry that is constantly growing in favor with the farming community. The Bently Realty company of Minneapolis recently purchased the holdings of the B. W. Bayless company, consisting of 35,000 acres, which it will colonize. It is expected that large additions will be made to the population of the district during the summer and it is the intention of the concern to eventually have every acre of this land under cultivation. The country around Engadine is unexcelled for agriculture.

horticulture, fruit or stock raising. The lower Millecoquins lakes offer as fine a summer resort as any inland spot in the region and the summer population there is being augmented by new comers every year. It is a beautiful spot with good fishing and with opportunities for bathing and all-out-of-door sports. There is some talk of utilizing the waterpower in the vicinity and business interests believe that it will be developed in a short while.

SHIMONDE-LAUZON NUPTIALS

Bride of Ishpeming Man Is Popular Gogebic County Girl.

A press dispatch from Ironwood give the following account of the marriage of Emil Shimonde of this city, to Miss Eva Lauzon of Ironwood, which was solemnized Wednesday morning at the Catholic church of that city.

"Miss Eva Lauzon, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lapzon, Vaughn street, and Emil Shimonde of Ishpeming, were married yesterday morning at 6 o'clock at St. Ambrose Catholic church. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Father Morairity, in the presence of a few close friends.

"The bride wore a traveling suit of navy blue whipcord, and hat to match. Miss Alice Lauzon, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Bud Shea acted as best man. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, and the newlyweds left on the 8 o'clock train for Grand Bay and Chicago, for their honeymoon.

"The bride was employed as chief operator for the Michigan State Telephone company at the local office and is an especial favorite with all her friends in this city. The groom was employed for many years in the Ironwood branch office for Cudahy Packing company, but was promoted to Ishpeming, where with Mrs. Shimonde he will make his future home."

TAKES ISSUE WITH REV. ADAMS. Copper Country Man Does Not Agree With Pastor About Dancing.

The following letter to the Calumet News from a resident of that town, which takes issue with Rev. C. L. Adams who last Sunday preached a sermon against dancing, will be read with interest:

"Kindly allow me the use of space in your valuable paper to express my views regarding the dance, on which Rev. C. L. Adams presented an able discourse at the Calumet Methodist church last Sunday evening. While I am in agreement with much in the sermon, I fail to see how Rev. Adams can honestly criticize a high school dance. A promenade conducted by students is on a par, morally, with any function conducted in our county and I am sure that the students are gentlemen and ladies.

"So far as the dance tending toward immorality is concerned, I cannot believe any man or woman, young or old, views the art of dancing from any such light. While it may be true, the modern dances are inclined to be immoral, such dances as now cause a wave of resentment to sweep through the country, are yet to be introduced in this district, therefore they have but little bearing locally.

"The art of dancing appeals to everyone—the application of rhythmic music to graceful movement is fascinating in itself without a thought of the dancer deviating to immorality. To be possessed of such knowledge is the result of observing of and participating in dancing."

HAS STRONG PART.

Blanche Bates Displays Great Ability in Mason Drama to Be Seen Here.

In "The Witness for the Defense," the A. E. W. Mason drama which will be seen here at the Ishpeming theatre next Friday evening, under the direction of Charles Frohman, Blanche Bates has an unusual opportunity for intellectual, as well as emotional acting. She is called upon to reveal the soul of a woman as it labors under the stress of sharply contrasting conditions, a soul crushed by the brutality of a drunken husband, a soul made desperate to the verge of suicide by memory of the past and the hopelessness of the future, a soul buoyant and joyous again under the spell of a new love promising happiness in a fresh beginning of life, a soul fighting for its love and its chance, a soul yielding to the demands of duty and finally receiving the rewards of doing what is right.

HAVE YOU A FRIEND AFFLICTED WITH ASTHMA?

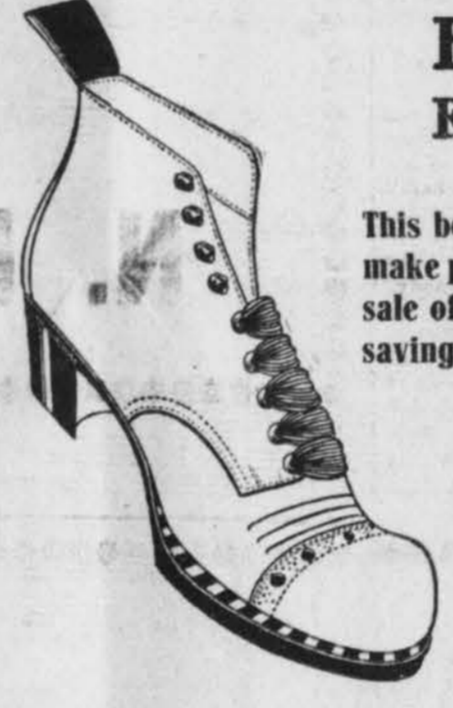

Frank S. Archibald, of West Swansey, N. H., writes:—For the past five years I have suffered with Asthma almost constantly. I was so nervous at times, I could hardly remain in my school. This disease coupled with the nervous strain to which teachers are always subjected made life almost unbearable. During a visit to my home in Hillsdale, Mr. Mann, a local druggist, called my attention to your White Wine of Tar Syrup. At first I was skeptical as I had tried almost everything with no permanent help. Finally I took home a bottle and the cure it effected seems almost miraculous to me after my former repeated disappointments.

I want to recommend your remedy to everyone who has been afflicted as I was for five years and I shall be glad to reply to enquiries regarding my case. The most interesting piece of work superior has done for a long period will soon be undertaken. A drift will be driven from the eighteenth level of No. 2 shaft to connect with No. 1, and will follow the West lode all the way. Little is known of the quality of this lode in the vicinity of No. 2 shaft. As yet there has been no announcement of the finding of commercial rock there. A station has been cut at the seventeenth level and sinking is proceeding. Shipments lately have been increased somewhat and are averaging close to 100 tons daily, both the West and Superior veins contributing. It is understood that an effort will be made to bring shipments up to

ISHPEMING FANS ARE INDIFFERENT

Baseball Enthusiasm Apparent Here a Few Weeks Ago Seems to Have Died Out.

Apparently none of the Ishpeming baseball fans can be induced to take an interest in the plan to launch a county league and the prospects for organized baseball in Ishpeming are poor.

It is reported that Negamun, Marquette and Gwinn favor a county league, but Ishpeming is indifferent and it is a question if anything will be done here. Before the baseball season opened, Ishpeming men seemed enthusiastically in favor of organizing a professional team, but this interest has all petered out.

There seems to be no reason why a county league should not be formed, as there are a number of good players available.

There has been some talk here of the organization of a mining league, with representation in Ishpeming, Negamun and Marquette, the Marquette team to be known as the South Shore nine. This plan seemed to meet with considerable favor in Ishpeming. It was suggested that two teams be organized here, one to represent the Oliver company and the other the Cleveland-CHEs. In case such a league was formed there would perhaps be no restrictions on players not employed by the companies represented in the league.

Con Mahoney, who twirled for Negamun last year, and "Pop" Geelan, the star slugger of the Ishpeming team, it is understood, would work as a battery for one of the Ishpeming mining teams. There are many fans in this end of the county who would like to see Gwinn included in a league, as there is better material for a team there than in either of the other three cities. It is thought that the Swanzy range nine would give the other nines a hard run for first place.

Delta County League.

The Delta county baseball league was formally organized at Gladstone Thursday night for the season of 1913 to include teams representing Gladstone, Rapid River and two teams from the city of Escanaba. The Escanaba Press says, "Moses Buchman of Rapid River was elected as president of the league with Isaac Seram of Escanaba as vice president, and Otto Halerman of Gladstone, secretary."

The league schedule will be opened Sunday, June 1, when Joe Hoffman's Escanaba squad will meet the Rapid River players in this city and Fred Munsted's local squad will clash with Gladstone at Gladstone.

The schedule of games for the season was partially perfected last evening and all details in the league arrangement were completed and signed up by the officers.

*Frank Gravelle of Rapid River and

R. Doulette of Gladstone will serve as the official umpires of the league.

"By mutual agreement all disputes that may develop between the teams during the season will be settled by the officers of the league, it being the plan of the promoters to conduct the organization along lines as near to those that have been followed in semi-professional ball in this district for the past several years.

"The new league is launched under the most favorable circumstances possible and under the arrangement should give to fans of this district some real baseball sport. All of the players on each team will be home lads, thus bringing into each game a great personal interest for many people, a feature that has been lacking in baseball teams of this city for the past few years.

"The teams in the league will stage practice games on Sunday, May 18 and Sunday, May 25, and on Saturday, May 21, the day before the opening of the league schedule, the lineups of the four aggregations will be announced.

Still Need Pack Trains

The Mules and Packers Are a Picturesque Lot.

Among the troops moving forward to the Mexican border the army mule pack train has its place of honor, for in Mexico the mule pack train would be of immeasurable service. With the Thirteenth United States Infantry is a pack train, of about seventy-five mules, many of them veterans. The army mule pack is a wise, crafty animal. He has customs and manners and peculiarities of his own that present problems in psychology. During the recent military maneuvers in Kansas the Fort Riley pack train was in the field, Kansas farmers are still swearing at the acquired and inborn crossness of those mules. If the term descriptive of the equipment of the automobile and airplane are French, from the Spanish come the words that tell of the gear of the pack train. In weight the typical pack mule runs from 600 to 700 pounds and his color may be anywhere from soft navy to robin blue. The Fort Riley pack train is managed by a master packer and seven or eight assistants. These packers are civilians, mostly from the plains and mountain country and are the most picturesque individuals in the army service. They have a profound knowledge of mule character. They are strong, muscular men, with broad backs and a viselike grip. They are chosen by a process of elimination, as the weaker recruits soon drop out. The packers have a garb of their own and are a fearless, independent lot of men. They wear the broad brimmed white hat of the cowboy, varicolored shirts, high heeled boots and spurs with Mexican rowels as big as saucers. No man ever saw a packer smoking a pipe. The packers chew vast quantities of tobacco and smoke many cigarettes. On the march a pipe is a bother to the packer in his frequently getting on and off his mule to tighten a pack that has slipped off. The cigarette rests lightly between the teeth and may be quickly cast aside. The expert packer knows many strange oaths, some of them so cutting that the most hardened mule has been seen to shut his eyes and slither at the sound. A pack must be accurately balanced and so tightly fastened on a mule that as a mule with a sore back is about as tractable as a lobo wolf with a possum whacked tail. The expert packer can balance a pack by the touch of his finger on the under side. By a kind of mental telepathy the packer is able merely at a glance to know that his mule is having trouble with his pack and at once he applies the remedy. Led by a loose animal wearing a bell, the pack train goes swaying along the road, the mules in single file at one moment and then by twos or threes or all together, sometimes at a walk and again at a brisk trot. The packers' mules is the best in the army; if there is anything to eat the packers find it. In his Indian campaigns General Crook preferred to eat with his packers, knowing that their table was the best.

Many of the mules are called bell sharks. A bell shark is a mule hopelessly enamored of the bell leader. For the latter a freakish pony or horse is chosen one that has been looted or is too vicious and untractable for other use. He moves ahead with the bell jingling, and the mules follow. They would follow him to the muzzle of a cannon. The moment he stops they crowd around him as closely as possible, each trying to get nearest, and so long as the bell jingled round his neck they would remain refusing to graze or go to water. For this reason when the bell horse and the mules are turned out to graze at night the bell is muffled or removed.

A pack train is an expensive mode of transportation, taking much feed and water and many packers, but it has been demonstrated that despite the expenses the army cannot get along without its pack mules. Nowadays on good roads an army auto truck can haul at one load as much as a whole mule pack train can carry. So could two or three of the early army wagons. But when the roads are boggy, bridges gone and the mud knee deep, when wagons can no longer be pulled up mountain sides and the trail grows dimmer and narrower and is lost among the rocks of the desert, all that has been developed in the way of rapid transportation gives way to the pack mule, whose bones whiten the routes of the armies of the world.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve is known everywhere as the best remedy made for all diseases of the skin, and also for burns, bruises, and boils. Relieves inflammation and is soothing and healing. J. F. ### SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

The racial characteristics which mark the Russian, the Italian, the German, the Japanese and the negro are dying out in the United States. They must die out. Nothing is stranger than to note the effect of changed conditions of life upon the immigrants who have come to America and to find the reasons for such changes. The immigrant must either change or else give up his place, for the conditions in his native land which have made him what he is have caused disadvantages in new conditions.

Originally migrations were very slow, and when the earth was first populated the types of men had time to alter and evolve with each new field the best characters to fit their needs. In cold climates the nostrils narrowed and became hairy, in warm, moist countries the nostrils broadened, needing no protection from the cold. Tall men survive in one set of circumstances, small men in another, and the size of brain and character of mind vary with the demands made on a population, for foresight, ingenuity, and craftsmanship. Thus in a general climate where food is plentiful, industry and frugality soon wane, while in a rigorous climate and where stern competition reigns every faculty is brought into play by grim necessity. Fair-haired stocks soon die off in city conditions and the blond Teuton finds no permanent home in southern climes. The negro and the Indian die of tuberculosis in northern climates. The Russian Hebrew thrives under conditions of congested life which soon cripple any other race, yet is himself unable to endure the conditions. It must never be forgotten to other stocks is the only one whereby they can be suited. In every condition where two races are brought side by side one must suffer as the other thrives, for one or the other must be better fitted to the conditions. It must never be forgotten that it is not the largest number of an immigrating race that will determine the future character of the nation, but only that race which has the greatest power to adapt itself to its environment that can succeed. Herein, for example, lies the secret of the success of the quickwitted Irish; they adjust themselves to new conditions almost without realizing that they have done so; herein lies the reason of the gradual extinction of the Indian; though fully acclimated, he cannot adjust himself to changes of condition brought on by civilization. One of the most interesting problems the United States must face is this very question of determining the right environment for the varied and different races that have landed on its shores. It is far wiser to distribute races in conditions that will suit them than to try to fit the race to an alien kind of life. The easiest basis of success for either an individual or a nation is to determine the place and the work for which there is fitness, not to try to accustom oneself to work that is disliked in a climate that is injurious. It is not the weakest fitted to the task, though they be physically the strongest of them all.

A SINGULAR FISH.

A singular little fish, which, instead of being 225 or 300, gives birth to fully developed young, is found along the California coast, says the Technical World. Specimens collected by members of the United States fish commission were stuffed with little fish apparently almost to the bursting point. In some instances the young have begun to escape from the mother, the little ones being found in the water, and in nearly all cases they could be easily pressed from the body of the mother, in which event they were able to maintain themselves in an upright position in the water and swim about. The adult fish are a silvery white color, from 3 1/2 to 8 inches long, and the newly-born fish were from 1 to 1 1/4 inches in length. "Surf fish" is the name it goes by.

SOME LINGUIST.

Caleb Cushing, one of the American counsel at Geneva when the Alabama claims were arbitrated, was, according to a recent magazine article, a remarkable linguist. He made his argument before the tribunal in fluent French; he replied in Italian to a question asked in that language, and when Lord Cockburn objected to this, Cushing replied that while French was the official language of the tribunal, he was using that the argument should be continued in any language that Lord Cockburn might select, not excepting Chinese.

DEPUTY PERROW IS UNDER FIRE

Escanaba Journal Makes Serious Charges Against Member of Sheriff Moloney's Official Family, Asking Inquiry, Which Sheriff Says Will Be Forthcoming.

Official at Northland Is Said to Have Brutally Assailed Isaac Pepin and Is Further Charged by Newspaper With Running Lawless and Disorderly Saloon.

As a result of serious charges in the Escanaba Journal, Sheriff James Moloney will investigate the alleged misconduct of one of his deputies, Joseph Perrow, of Northland, a remote town in Marquette county, close to the border line of Delta. It is charged that Perrow committed a brutal assault on one Isaac Pepin, a lumberman, with the result that Pepin had to be taken to the Delta County hospital, where it is said he is likely to lose an eye.

The Escanaba Journal has the following story relative to the affair:

"In an Escanaba daily newspaper last Friday there appeared the following new story:

"ISAAC PEPIN INJURED BY A ROLLING LOG.

"Lumberman May Lose Sight of Eye as Result of Accident in Camp Near Northland.

"Isaac Pepin, a lumberman employed in the Perrow camp near Northland, was brought to the Delta County hospital last night. The man is suffering from severe bruises and a wound directly over the right eye that will doubtless destroy the sight of that orb. "Pepin was rolling logs when he fell and a large log rolled on top of him. In just what manner he sustained the injury to his eye is not known. His body is badly bruised and lacerated, but he is resting easily today and it is not believed that he is internally injured."

The Real Story.

"The above is a true story, so far as it reports Mr. Perrow's injuries. But the cause of the injuries is another story—a story when Pepin got pounded up. Perrow, who was former proprietor of the saloon at Northland, but who lost all his property because of his dissipation, was on one of his regular drunks. He was in the saloon, which is now owned by Joseph Perrow, and in a quarrel with some of the patrons. Perrow for the alleged unfair way in which Perrow had got possession of his property. He kept taunting Perrow and repeating his story. There was quite a crowd in the saloon, and finally Perrow became so angry that he could no longer control himself and he struck Pepin a vicious blow in the eye. Perrow had a large seal ring on his finger, and it was the ring that caused the serious injury to the eye. After knocking Pepin down Perrow jumped on him with both feet and tried to tramp the life out of him, and probably would have succeeded if some of the other men had not stopped him."

Should Be Investigated.

"The Marquette county authorities should investigate the case, and, if the story is true, Perrow should not go unpunished. Perrow is deputy sheriff at Northland, and he is finding the saloon business in a lumber-jack town very rich picking is proved by the beautiful brick residence which he had built last year on Wells avenue in this city. "The Journal is informed that Northland is a lumber-jack's graveyard. It is asserted that some six or eight have committed suicide there within the same number of years, to say nothing about the many who have killed themselves drinking the kind of booze that is sold there."

The Journal is further informed that the saloon makes no pretense at ob-servicing the law, but it is run night and day, seven days in the week. If this is true it supplies additional cause for a searching investigation by the Marquette county authorities. "It is a fact that Northland is a lawless, half-civilized community in which there is little regard for laws of either god or man. "Joe Perrow's saloon is a curse to the poor lumber-jacks who spend their money for his booze. The authorities should put him out of business. And, above all, the sheriff of Marquette county should no longer have the disgrace of having Perrow as a member of his official family." Sheriff Will Investigate.

When shown the clipping from the Journal yesterday Sheriff Moloney expressed both surprise and concern, and asserted that he would at once undertake an investigation into the charges against Perrow, and if he finds that they are warranted will take away his commission as deputy. The sheriff said that he was not personally acquainted with Perrow, but that he had learned of him in the past. He was a proper man to commission as deputy. He served in that capacity under former Sheriff Lehman, and as he was on the staff of deputies when Sheriff Moloney took office he was continued as a matter of course.

Normal Notes

A number of changes have been made in the training school this year. Manual training and free text books have been introduced. Material for drawing and writing is also furnished the pupils. Manual training, cooking and sewing, physical training, music and art are each taught by a supervisor. This gives expert teaching in all these subjects all the time. During the summer the teaching in the training department will be done by the rifle teachers and supervisors. There will be one session a day only. Any pupil is eligible for membership in the training school and places are given in the order in which they are asked for. Any one wishing to attend during the summer session and during next year should notify President James H. Kaye.

Thursday and Friday President James H. Kaye conducted an eighth grade examination for rural schools. The examinations are held at several places in different parts of the county, so as to make it convenient for pupils. Commissioner A. E. Sterne of Ishpeming has general charge of the examinations. The questions come from the department of public instruction at Lansing.

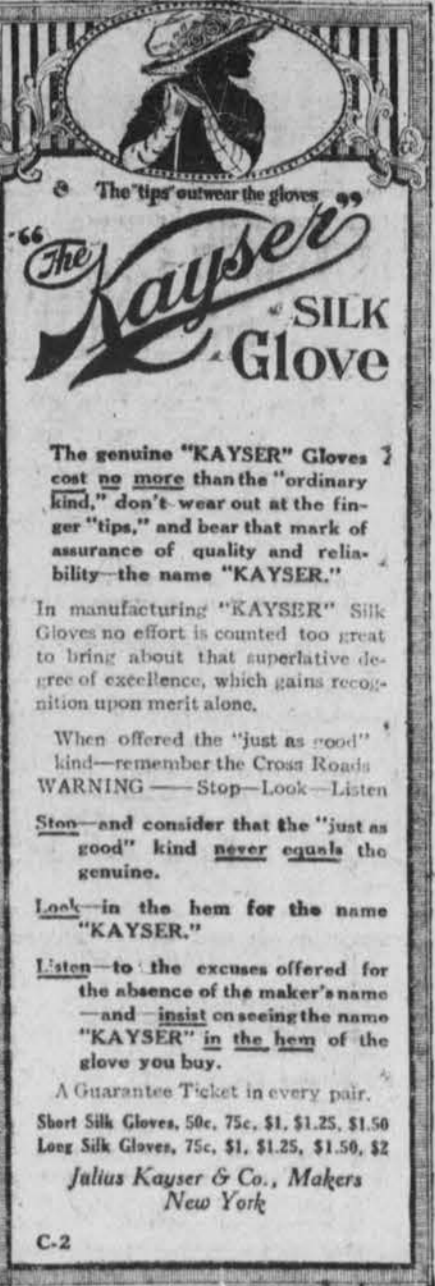

Superintendent J. V. Brennan of Ironwood, visited the school on Saturday last and interviewed several of the students in regard to positions in his schools for the coming year.

Arrangements are being made for the junior reception and party, which will be given in the gymnasium the latter part of May or the first of June. This is an annual event and is always given during the spring term.

The assembly address Thursday morning was given by Professor Gilbert L. Brown. He spoke on the subject, "The Social Mind." Mr. Brown pointed out and discussed the leading factors in the social mind as exemplified by the enthusiasm at the ball game, the political rally, or in the mob. He suggested several precautions for this mental condition when there is danger of its developing in an undesirable direction. Prior to the address, the Girls' chorus, directed by Miss Linton, sang "The Bridal Chorus."

Rev. W. J. Smith, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, will deliver the baccalaureate address at the Normal school the afternoon of Sunday, June 22nd. The commencement address will be delivered by Dr. Nathaniel Butler, of the University of Chicago, at the Marquette Opera House the morning of June 24th.

Work is progressing steadily on the senior play, "In College Days." By the time of presentation the production will have taken on a professional air. The date of the play has been set for June 23rd. Owing to the small number of feminine roles, Miss Mossler has introduced a chorus of sixteen girls, which will present singing and dancing numbers. Normal songs will be sung and these young women will tell the glories of their Alma Mater. Those who will take part in the play proper are the Misses Mae Barlow, Jessica Bond, Angeline Theriault, Beulah Couture, Elizabeth Berryman, Ellevia McGraw, Margaret Diamond, Mabel Wright and Austin Cutlin, Roy

U. P. IS COMING DAIRY COUNTRY

W. F. Raven of Agricultural College Makes Prediction Northern Michigan Will Be the Center of American Milk-Producing Zone in Twenty-five Years.

Organization of Community Breeding Associations Assures Purity and Superior Grade of Cattle—Possibilities for Hog and Sheep Raising Are Excellent.

That Upper Michigan has a much brighter future as a dairy region than as a grain-growing country and that it will take the lead within twenty-five years and constitute the center of the dairy zone of the United States is the prediction of W. F. Raven, of East Lansing, field agent for the Michigan Agricultural college, who is in the peninsula establishing, with the co-operation of farmers, community breeding associations.

Mr. Raven, in private life, is and has been for the last thirty years a dairyman, conducting an extensive business in Jackson county, and is well qualified to express an opinion. He is thoroughly acquainted with the dairying possibilities of Northern Michigan, having traveled through the entire peninsula during the last two years, inspecting and studying conditions and watching the progress of dairying. Mr. Raven is strongly of the belief that the peninsula has great advantages over other regions as an agricultural country, but he speaks guardedly of any promises it may hold out as a grain-growing region.

Mr. Raven has been in the peninsula for the last two weeks, interesting the farmers in various localities in the advantages of raising one breed of cattle. He has helped to organize five community breeding associations in Menominee, Houghton and Ontonagon counties, has several in the stage of formation in Iron and Marquette counties and is about to establish others in Delta and Luce. Mr. Raven arrived in Marquette last evening from a day's visit at the state experimental station at Chatham and will leave this morning for the districts about Escanaba and Iron River.

The purpose of the community breeding associations is to elevate the standard of dairy and beef cattle by the introduction of thoroughbreds of the one variety sought to be propagated. This is brought about by farmers in the various townships or counties co-operating in the purchase of registered sires and cows of the breed selected. The idea, Mr. Raven says, is meeting with enthusiasm throughout the peninsula, particularly since last October, when the demonstration train toured the region from the Soo to Trout Creek under the direction of the state agricultural college.

Mr. Raven was asked to elaborate on the advantages to be gained in the introduction of one breed of cattle, other than that of raising the standard of the dairy herds. "A great advantage, disregarding from preventing cross-breeding and a consequent and corresponding increase in grade, is to be seen in a market sense," he said. "A certain community has set out with the view of raising but a single breed of cattle. In a short time there will be a surplus of cattle, of which the farmers will have little difficulty in disposing, because the market is broad. One community may raise Holsteins, exclusively, another may select Guernseys as a particular breed, and a third might choose Jerseys. If efforts are made to exclude cattle not of the one breed from each district, that district shortly will come to be known as a Holstein, a Guernsey or Jersey center and little difficulty will be obtained in selling off what surplus it is desired to dispose of."

In answer to a query, Mr. Raven said that Holsteins appear to be the favorite breed of cattle in the northern part of the peninsula. The associations established in Houghton and Ontonagon counties have selected these cattle, while Guernseys and Jerseys are the favorites in Menominee and Delta counties. While on his Southern Michigan dairy farm Mr. Raven has a herd of thirty Jerseys, he is willing to concede many advantages in the selection of Holsteins. He characterizes them as good rustlers, capable of foraging to advantage where others would be unable to find sustenance, while they produce in large quantities milk with a good percentage of butter fat and as a rule are of goodly weight. "The cows," Mr. Raven said, "often weigh from twelve to eighteen hundred pounds, and this is another reason for their selection."

"Upper Peninsula farmers still cling to cattle raising with a view to final disposition as beef after a number of years. When the farmer can be taught to consider the dairy feature first and the beef side of the question as secondary, then breeds other than Holsteins will be chosen, but so long as the farmer argues for beef as strongly as he does for milk, the Holstein will continue his favorite."

Mr. Raven would choose as the most economical cow, the Jersey. The Jersey is of lesser weight, but has a qualitative milk that fits her premier as a dairy cow, and costs less than other breeds for upkeep. "The Guernsey, while larger than the Jersey, is less rich in milk, but this milk is of first quality and contains a large per cent. of butter fat," said Mr. Raven.

Mr. Raven remarked that since the demonstration was passed through last October he has kept note of the cattle purchases and from this has gathered that the demonstration has not been without results. The farmers have in nearly every instance purchased cattle of excellent breed, and are always willing to join in community breeding propositions. Lack of necessary funds has been the deterrent in every instance of hesitation, but where it was possible to purchase sires of high grade and of the breed desired, the farmers have done so, realizing that the returns on this investment will be manifold in a number of years.

The field agent's prediction that the upper peninsula will be the greatest dairy center in years to come was based on the interest the farmers are taking, and the possibilities of economical but excellent pasturage. He cited the peninsula's adaptability for alfalfa raising and the productiveness of various kinds of fodder to illustrate the quality of the forage. "It might be surprising to know," Mr. Raven said, "that but two states, New York and Pennsylvania, exceed Michigan in the average purchasing cost of a dairy cow, showing to what high standard dairy cattle in Michigan have been brought, and with the industry yet in its development."

Mr. Raven spoke highly of the future of hog, horse and sheep raising. So far, little has been done in these lines; but what promises are held out he illustrated by the experiments at Chatham. A year ago 200 sheep, averaging in weight about sixty-eight pounds, were imported to destroy the brush and breakable growth. Three months afterward these sheep were shipped back to Chicago, averaging in weight about 105 pounds, a gain of forty-one pounds. They were purchased at $4.47 a hundred weight and were sold for $5.25. The sheep cleared the land so thoroughly that no work at all was necessary before seeding was begun. Mr. Raven says that the same cheap forage will make hog raising profitable and on the thousands of acres of upper peninsula land covered with brush and briars the breeding of these animals would be an industry of great possibilities.

Mr. Raven spoke highly of the tract on the Escanaba river owned by R. P. Bronson of Ishpeming. Last fall he inspected the land and had so much faith in it that he suggested the engagement of an expert agriculturist. Mr. Bronson has acted on his suggestion and has engaged a Mr. Smoker, who will graduate from the Michigan Agricultural college this spring. Mr. Bronson possesses about five thousand acres, but only between 150 and 200 acres have been broken.

The owner has under cultivation twelve acres devoted to potatoes and this summer is raising large crops of other vegetables. That this farm will prove one of the best in the peninsula is the belief of Mr. Raven.

The field agent spoke highly of the work being done by the Chatham experimental station and the Michigan Agricultural college to increase the standard of breeding and agriculture in the peninsula. He also paid a tribute to Leo M. Geismar, field agent of the agricultural college in the upper peninsula, and praised the work of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau.

Mining News

BUTTE & SUPERIOR.

The depths of depression to which some of Boston's erstwhile favorite mining stocks have fallen is nowhere better illustrated than in the continued heaviness in Butte & Superior shares, which sold at 51 1/2 last June. This, in face of the fact that the property is doing vastly better, in point of milling results, than at any previous time. In the month of April the mill is now producing an average of 84 per cent of the metal value of the ore treated, and for the last nine days the average was 92 per cent. The official expectation is that during the current month the average will be fully 90 per cent, and that an average of 95 per cent before the summer is over is well within the realm of possibility. It is figured that on the present treatment of 600 to 700 tons of ore daily, and with spelter at only five cents a pound, Butte & Superior is earning $6 a share; on the actual market price of spelter the company is earning nearer $4 a share.

CERRO DE PASCO.

Having completed three years as general manager of the Cerro de Pasco Copper property in Peru, A. B. W. Hodges has been succeeded by W. J. Hamilton, who has been in charge of the smelter operations. It was early in 1910 that Mr. Hodges resigned from the Granby for a $50,000 salary in Peru. He filled the vacancy caused by R. H. Channing's resignation. The latter prior and subsequent to his Peruvian service was and has been with Utah Consolidated. Cerro de Pasco last year produced 45,100,000 pounds of copper. The high prices for the metal permitted the payment of a 1 per cent dividend on its $60,000,000 capital. This is understood to be the first and only disbursement to date. Conducted as a large corporation with its shares held by the Morgan-Heard-Frick-Haggin interests, no statement of earnings or operations has ever been made public. The Cerro de Pasco Investment company, capitalized for $10,000,000, is credited with owning the $60,000,000 capital of the Cerro de Pasco Copper company, which took over the railway and allied interests in Peru.

SHANNON.

Disappointment is expressed by some Shannon stockholders that no report for the March 31 quarter made no mention as to the likelihood of another dividend. As four months elapsed between the two payments made since dividends were resumed on Oct. 1 last, these stockholders had built up the hope that another fifty-cent payment would be made on or about June 1, or four months after the last disbursement. The Shannon directors have not, however, adopted any fixed schedule for dividends—they will be paid when and if it is deemed advisable. It is certain that no payment will be made until the end of the year. This means sure that even the first July will be the date of the third disbursement, although it is obviously a bit early to say this is definitely settled. Shannon's last two interim statements make it apparent that so long as copper stays around sixteen cents a pound, the company should not expect a return of much more than $1 per share per annum, unless, of course, there should be a very material increase in output or reduction in cost. Shannon's copper during the seven months ended March 31 last cost, slightly more than 15 1/2 cents per pound to produce, so that, at 16-cent copper, earnings per annum would be about $1.40 per share. Another factor, which has a bearing on dividends, is the retirement of more of the Shannon-Arizona railway bonds, of which $208,000 of the original $600,000 have been purchased in the open market. Some of the directors feel that at least a portion of Shannon's earnings should continue to be used for this purpose—the bonds carry no sinking fund—the idea being to have the property ultimately owned entirely by the stockholders and, therefore, with no fixed charges to meet.

NOTES OF MINING NEWS.

Inspiration's underground development work for April amounted to 2,510 feet, a decrease of 1,900 feet, compared with March. Seventeen thousand tons of ore were mined, of which 11,000 tons were hoisted at the Joe Bush shaft and 6,000 at the Live Oak. This brings the Inspiration's stockpile close to 200,000 tons of commercial ore. The shortage of labor is operating to restrict Quinay's production. The mine has an advantage in procuring labor through its situation a half mile from the city of Hancock, but recently it has suffered a common with mines more remote from large settlements. Two stamp mill heads were shut down a week ago as a result. The decrease in production is principally in No. 6 and No. 8 shafts.

It is reported that Wyandot's exploratory openings on the No. 8 amygdaloid continue to bring highly gratifying results. The drifts at the bottom of the openings are being extended and both are in an excellent character of ground. Each is a little over sixty feet.

One hundred cars of Miami concentrates, which were tied up on the railroad for several weeks between Miami and Cananea, have finally reached their destination and will be rushed through the Greene-Cananea smelter. Not until the Mexican troubles have been cleared up, however, will Miami ship across the border, but will have its concentrates treated at the Toole plant of the International Smelting & Refining company. Greene-Cananea has commenced to increase its operations.

D. C. Jackling has returned to the West following a month's trip to New York. With general supervision, as heretofore, Mr. Jackling will become managing director of the Utah Ray Consolidated and China copper properties, as well of Butte & Superior and Alaska Gold. He will be succeeded at each property by a general manager, the title heretofore held by him. Up to this time Mr. Jackling has directed the affairs of these companies from Salt Lake, but in the near future he will make his headquarters and residence in San Francisco.

Testimony brought out in the United States district court at Salt Lake, Utah, shows that as general manager of the Utah Copper, D. C. Jackling received $30,000 a year; that R. C. Gemmill, now general manager, as assistant general manager received $14,000 a year, and John M. Hayes, assistant secretary and

A Car of Character—Beauty that is Rare

IN the Cross Country the public finds an expression of your own good taste. There is in this car a certain something which gives it character beyond outward grace.

To the eye it presents a pleasing picture of straight flowing lines and graceful curves. Rarely does it pass without remark. Long, low and balanced perfectly, its silent dignity of movement, so much admired on the boulevard, may be attributed to those same qualities which make possible its sturdy performance on the road.

Like a fine horse, it inspires the owner's pride and gives him rank in his neighborhood as a man whose taste is to be admired.

The radiator is high and distinctive in design. The large electric front and flush electric dash lamps make it a car easily distinguished among many. Trimmed in nickel, with body, fenders and fillers of black enamel, its appearance is striking.

The Cross Country, $1,875

The fenders are broad, strong and sturdy. The doors are wide and the compartments large enough to accommodate the family. Long and low hung, you can whip this car around the corner in a jiffy and the rear wheels hug the road.

It's a car to delight a woman's eye. To her rare good taste will appeal its perfect proportions and its superb finish. To this we may attribute the greatest pleasure in its ownership.

A beautiful four-color reproduction of the Cross Country, from an oil painting by R. Philip Brainard, is ready for mailing. See the Cross Country by all means, at any Jeffery branch or dealer's display room, but send for the picture anyway.

BULLY HAYES, PIRATE BOLD.

An Outlaw in Almost Every Civilization Port, This Clever Knave Perpetrated All Sorts of Daring Robberies and Frauds.

Bully Hayes, the South Pacific pirate, as he was called, was a frequenter of San Francisco harbor, and became the most notorious character in the whole Pacific. Over six feet three inches in height, he was possessed of immense physical strength, and of this he was extremely proud. He was also a handsome man, with bright blue eyes, a strong nose, well-cut mouth, large mustache and long chestnut hair. The most marked feature in his character was his temper, which, when once roused, says T. P.'s Weekly, passed entirely out of his control. In these moments of ungovernable rage he became little short of a madman. His smiling face would assume the look of a demon, his eyes became almost black, and his face flushed to a deep purple. At such times he would do deeds of the greatest cruelty, not scrupling to take the life of those who offended him. Possessed of considerable culture, speaking German, French and Spanish fluently, his scandalous performances had made him an outlaw in almost every civilized port.

Sharp lookout was kept for him at Melbourne in consequence of an unscrupulous fraud he played there on the occasion of a previous visit. He had shipped 200 Chinese at Hongkong for Melbourne. At that time a port tax of $10 each was paid by every Chinese landing at that port. Before going on board the Chinese had each paid Hayes their $10, as well as the charges for his voyage; but the knavish captain had no thought or intention of paying over to the Australian government the large amount he had received as port tax, amounting in all to something like $3,000. When the port was within sight he contrived, with the assistance of his car-enter, almost to scuttle the vessel by making a large hole in the side. In an apparently water-logged and sinking condition the vessel slowly entered the harbor. Hayes then had a flag of distress hoisted. Immediately the pilot and a number of tugboats' pulled out to their assistance. When they came alongside the captain shouted, telling them of his sinking and hopeless condition. "For mercy's sake," said he, "don't stop to tow us to the shore, but save these hundreds of poor, distracted creatures by getting them on shore at once in your boats. I care nothing about my own life, if you will only save these poor fellows. Then, when they are on shore, come immediately for us. In the meantime we will work away at the pumps and try to keep the ship afloat." Accordingly, the 200 Chinese were transhipped into the tugboats and conveyed to the nearest landing place, which was several miles away. While this was being done the hole in the side of the ship was closed, and all hands were put to work at the pumps. Then, when the last lot of Chinese had been taken off, the hole of the vessel was turned seaward and away went the ship with Captain Hayes and his crew. He had managed to land 300 Chinese and yet keep the $3,000 port tax for himself. It was a cruel business for the pilot company, who had to pay the port tax themselves, and were nearly ruined thereby.

AMERICAN MINE'S NEW CONCENTRATING PLANT

Engineer Employed on Its Construction Contributes Article to Trade Journal.

The Engineering & Mining World contains an interesting article on the new concentrating plant at the M. A. Hanna company's American mine. It was written by Frank E. Sherman, a mining engineer of Denver, Colo., who assisted in the construction of the plant.

The article is as follows: "The American-Boston Mining company, one of the important interests of the M. A. Hanna & Co., Cleveland, O., has recently erected a concentrating mill for the treatment of low-grade iron ores from the mine situated at Diorite, Mich.

"J. R. Thompson, local manager of the company, and James D. Ireland, general manager of the M. A. Hanna & Co., appreciated the possibility of concentrating the low-grade iron ores, and after a number of preliminary tests, a mill having a rated capacity of 500 tons in 24 hours, was designed and erected near the shaft.

"Before the installation of the mill it was necessary to select ore with a sufficient percentage of iron contents to bear shipment to the market. Along with the high-grade ore deposits occurred those of lower grade, requiring assays and mining methods to determine the shipping ores, also the waste to be left in the mine. With the mill in operation, the necessity for careful sorting underground is overcome, and the bodies of low-grade ores are made available for the ore market. This not only reduces considerably the costs of underground mining, but converts a former waste into a profitable product.

"The company had erected and in operation a coarse-crushing plant consisting of gyratory crushers and revolving screens used in connection with the loading bins located at the railroad tracks. From this coarse-crushing plant the low-grade ores are crushed and elevated to the concentrating mill by a belt conveyor delivering the feed to the mill ore bin. The ore, after being crushed through the rolls, is delivered to two trains of revolving screens which separate the ore into four sizes as follows: 10 to 7 mms.; 7 to 4; 4 to 2; 2 to 1 mm.

Treating the Ore.

"Each grade of ore is treated on a separate group of Richards pulsator jigs, a total of 15 jigs in the mill system, 9 being on the upper floor and 6 on the lower floor. The jigs on the upper and lower floors deliver coarse concentrates from the side gates above the screens and fine concentrates from open spigots in the hutches. The tailings from the jigs on the upper floor are dewatered and returned in jigs located on the lower floor, thus giving double concentration. The tailings from the 2-mm. jigs on the upper floor are dewatered and the thickened pulp delivered to 20-inch Duplex Callow screen with 24-mesh screen cloth. It is found that the overflow from this screen is sufficiently low in iron contents to deliver directly to the tailings.

"The 20-mesh pulp after passing through the screen is elevated to a Richards pulsator classifier of the lamellar type, the bottom spigot of which delivers coarse pulp to one To. 4 Deister concentrating table, while the overflow is thickened in an 8-foot diameter pulp thickening cone and the fine thickened pulp delivered to the second concentrating table.

"The concentrates from the jigs and concentrating tables are dewatered by means of suitable dewatering boxes and an Avoca spiral dewaterer, which delivers the concentrates to the concentrating elevator with about 15 per cent. moisture. The concentrates in discharging to the storage bin are sampled by an automatic bucket sampler operating continuously throughout the 24 hours. The bottom of the concentrator bin is provided with a filter consisting of a board grating and coarse matting which allows the surplus water to filter through the bottom of the bin and leave the concentrates well dewatered for shipment. The concentrates bin is located at a height sufficient to discharge by gravity into an electric larry which runs on a track 20 feet above the ground, allowing the delivery of the concentrates to the railroad loading bins or to the stock piles.

"The principal point of interest in this mill system is the use of the Richards pulsator jigs for the concentration of low-grade ores. The American-Boston mine ships a large tonnage of high-grade ore directly to the market. The mine has also areas of low-grade iron ores comprising both hard and soft varieties. The mineral hematite occurs in the form of thin bands imbedded in the gangue material, the mineral bands alternating with the layers of the gangue material. In crushing this ore the mineral breaks into thin, flat crystals, making a difficult jiggling operation.

Capacity of Mill.

"While the mill is designed for a rated capacity of 500 tons during 24 hours, there is sufficient space left for additional capacity. The mill operates daily throughout 24 hours except Sundays. But four men are required on each shift, showing the automatic features of the mill system. An important point in reference to the jigs is the large proportion of hutch concentrates produced with this iron ore. Previously it had been supposed that these jigs were not adapted for hutch work, but this mill shows the greatest amount of concentrates to be produced from the hutch spigots.

"To meet the additional power requirements in the mine and mill, the company installed a large Curtis steam turbine with general electric generators for supplying power to air compressors, mill motors and motors driving the centrifugal pumps. The water for the mill is taken from a small lake near the mill, one pumping station located at the lake delivers water to a flume which carries the water by gravity to a pump station adjacent to the mill. A second centrifugal pump raises the water from the sump of the water storage tank inside the mill building. A large proportion of the water used in the mill is discharged to a settling pond near the mill, which settles out the solids and the surplus water flows by gravity to the sump of the pumping plant adjacent to the mill for use again in the mill system.

"After a few days of preliminary adjustments, which are necessary in a new mill for the practical working of launders and minor details, the mill ran steadily and within two weeks from the start was shipping 60 per cent. iron concentrates at the rate of seven standard gauge ore cars per day.

"The mill was designed with surplus space for increasing the capacity and the management expects with a few additional jigs to increase the capacity to 800 tons in 24 hours."

Upper Peninsula

Is Thankful to Be Alive.

N. H. Hazlett of Marquette, a South Shore brakeman in northern Michigan, received last Sunday near St. Ignace. He was lying in motion when his head came in contact with a pile of ties along the track. He managed to hang on and climb back to the caboose.

Logger Had a Good Season.

Neil Docherty of St. Ignace has a crew of men at Hendrie for the purpose of loading his winter cut, which work had been delayed on account of high water. Mr. Docherty had a good season, taking out 5,000 poles, 40,000 posts and 12,000 ties, besides a large amount of pulpwood and timber. He will continue his operations during the summer.

Farming on a Large Scale.

An illustration of what can be done in farming on an extensive scale in the peninsula is now being offered by Ewert Bros. at Wilson, Delta county. The owners of the farm are engaged in planting this spring sixty acres of potatoes, ten acres of navy beans and five acres of cabbage, in addition to grain and corn for feed. The plowing for the crops has been done with two large gang plows, which it had previously been claimed could not be used in that territory. The farm has installed the most modern farm machinery.

Charter Revision at Escanaba.

The chairman of the three non-partisan parties at Escanaba have issued calls for primary elections and conventions for the nomination of candidates for charter commissioners to be voted for at a special election of May 26. C. C. Stephenson of the Citizens party, R. I. Cantlin of the Independent Progressive party and Chairman T. J. Riley of the Taxpayers party have each issued formal calls to comply with the provisions of the law. The primaries of all of the parties will be held in the several wards of the city from 4 to 8 o'clock Monday afternoon of next week. The convention of the Taxpayers will be held at the city hall at 8 o'clock Monday evening, while the conventions of the Independent Progressives and the Citizens parties will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the city hall.

Mackinac County Colonization Project.

While the Hudson Lumber company is still doing business at Garnet, it has sold its lands, consisting of some six thousand acres, which are being placed on the market by the Manual Brothers company of Minneapolis. This company has recently issued an attractive folder. The maps presented show the location of their lands and give a description of the lands being offered on terms favorable to the purchaser. The removal of the Hudson Lumber company from active operations is regretted by a large number of people. For years the concern had been an important factor in the affairs of Mackinac county, paying out hundreds of thousands of dollars and always dealing honestly by its employees. Garnet will always be an important town owing to its location. It is surrounded by hardwood lands especially adapted to dairy, fruit and agriculture, and always a ready market for a rich farming community.

How Much for Gowns

London is debating the question of how much it should cost a woman in fashionable society to dress. The discussion was started by cable dispatches from New York which were printed in London papers and in which Mrs. Taft was quoted as saying that she had found that the wife of the president of the United States could not dress properly on less than $7,000 a year, while Mrs. Wilson has declared that she had never spent anything like $1,000 a year on clothes.

The controversy has been going on since then. It is now possible to arrive at some more definite figures than the somewhat vague generalities at first put forward. At about that time the prominent women in society were ordering their gowns for the coming season and the courts. Discreet inquiries have produced some interesting information.

On the whole the great London modistes and the London representatives of the most famous Parisian houses are complaining this season of the unworldly smallness of the orders of their best clients. Many of the best known women in Norfolk are both avowedly indifferent to the importance of appearing modestly attired. Lady Shaftesbury was the least smartly and probably the most economically attired lady in Queen Mary's household.

Her expenditure on dresses was said not to exceed $1,000 a year and her whole expenditure for clothing, including all articles of attire from hats to boots, was probably far more than covered by the $2,500 a year paid her as a lady in waiting, which is supposed to be the minimum sum upon which a lady of the court can dress.

The duchess of Norfolk's dress bills have been tending downward for several years. Her expenditure for gowns now rarely exceeds $1,000 a year and except for her court gowns and an occasional afternoon gown she never patronizes a first rate modiste. None of the salons of the great Parisian modistes has seen her for the last four years.

The duchess of Devonshire, Queen Mary's mistress of the robes, is certainly the most economically attired lady who has held that distinguished office in the royal household for many years.

The late duchess of Buccleuch, Queen Alexandra's mistress of the robes, was said never to have spent less than $5,000 a year on dresses.

The duchess of Devonshire's dress bills do not exceed $2,000 a year. She contrives, however, to be singularly little at court for one holding her office, and at many important functions lately, when Queen Mary would in the ordinary course be attended by the mistress of robes, her chief lady-in-waiting, was either Lady Eva Dugdale or Lady Bertha Duns. "The duchess of Devonshire, the mistress of the robes, being unavoidably absent," as the court circular has put it.

If the great London modistes and the London representatives of the most famous Paris houses had to depend now for their custom on the duchesses and ladies of the court their trade would be gone. But there are Sassoons, Rothschilds, Meyers and many others whose women folk spend thousands on dress and so the great modistes are able not merely to survive, but also to flourish greatly.

HOW TO PUT AWAY FURS.

Always avoid crushing furs and arrange to have them hang if possible. Sprinkle them generously with flakes or moth balls and place them in a bag made as follows:

Take four full-sized sheets of a printed newspaper, sew around three sides on the sewing machine, with a long stitch, making a double bag. Place furs in thoroughly brushed and aired furs. Turn a deep fold of the paper at the top, sew with machine, and catch at top with two large safety pins by which to suspend bag from hook. Care must be taken to have the bag perfectly tight and unbroken. Or they may be put away in a box as follows:

After thoroughly cleaning and airing place furs in the smallest box that will hold them without crowding. The box should be lined with a piece of printed newspaper and a piece should be put over them and tucked in at the sides and ends. Seal the box securely by gumming two-inch strips of newspaper to the box and cover where they meet. Printers' ink is one of the best of moth preventives.

Dress skirts should be carefully cleaned, brushed until every particle of dust is out, and also hung in long slender bags. If this is not possible, try to fold

BABY IN GREAT MISERY WITH RASH

On Face, Spread Until Nearly All Over Body, Crust on Head, Hair Fell Out, Itch Terrible, Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Monroe, Wis.—"When my baby was six weeks old there came a rash on his face which finally spread until it got nearly all over his body. It formed a crust on his head, hair fell out and the itch was terrible. When he would scratch the crust the water would ooze out in big drops. On face and body it was in a dry form and would scale off. He was in great misery and at night I would lay awake holding his hands so that he could not scratch and distress himself. I tried simple remedies at first, then got medicine, but it did no good. Finally a friend suggested Cuticura Remedies, so I sent for a sample to see what they would do, when to my surprise after a few applications I could see an improvement, and he would rest better. I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap and before I had them half used my baby was cured. His head is now covered with a luxuriant growth of hair and his complexion is admired by everybody and has no disfigurements. I hope other mothers will profit by my experience and not be worn out with poor babies who are tortured with skin and scalp afflictions." (Signed) Mrs. Annie Saunders, Sept. 29, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold by dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-page book on the skin and scalp. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

For tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR ATHLETIC MEET

Negaunee High School Will Be Represented in Marquette Event by Strong Team.

Posters have just been received at the Negaunee high school for distribution in the city to advertise the upper peninsula high school track and field meet, to be held at Marquette on May 31, under the auspices of the Northern State Normal school.

More than a hundred athletes from the leading high school of upper Michigan will be entered. Negaunee has some fine material for both the track and field events, and will send a full-sized delegation to represent the school.

For the past two weeks Professor Faulkerson, director of physical training in the Negaunee public schools, has been training the candidates, and he is confident of turning out a strong and fast track and field squad.

The following is the program of events as announced: Starting time, 1 p. m.—Track, 50-yard dash (final); field, shot put.

Starting time, 1:20 p. m.—Track, 40-yard run; field, discus throw.

The Negaunee high school students are now showing more enthusiasm than heretofore in track and field athletic work.

The following conditions will prevail at the meet: The Normal school will pay transportation charges for four contestants from each school, although the number of contestants is unlimited.

Each contestant must be a bona fide member of his school as certified to by the principal.

Any one contestant may participate in only four events, exclusive of the three relays; each school may enter three men in any one event but only two may participate.

In each event first place shall count five points, second place three points, third place two points and fourth place one point.

Rules of the amateur union will prevail.

WELLKNOWN HERE.

Miss Margaret Corcoran Is Married In Escanaba to Charles Lefebvre, Jr.

Thursday morning at St. Patrick's church, Escanaba, Miss Margaret Corcoran, wellknown in Negaunee, was united in marriage to Charles Lefebvre, Jr., of that city.

Rev. Father Bucholtz, of Negaunee, assisted at the ceremony. Of the wedding the Escanaba Morning Press said:

"In the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives Miss Margaret Corcoran, daughter of Mrs. Anna Corcoran, was married at 7 o'clock Thursday morning at St. Patrick's church, to Mr. Charles Lefebvre, Jr., Rev. Father Corcoran of Iron Mountain, brother of the bride, officiated at the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Father Bucholtz, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's church."

"The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Rosetta Corcoran, as honor attendant, while Mr. John McDonald attended the groom. The bride appeared in a gown of white serge, wearing a hat of white and with a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid's gown was of white embroidered silk, and she wore a corsage bouquet of lavender sweet peas.

"Following the high mass service at the church all the members of the party went to the home of the mother of the bride, where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. At 11 o'clock the happy couple left for an extended wedding trip through the east after which they will return to Escanaba to make their home."

"Both the bride and the groom are immensely popular with a great circle of friends, many of whom appeared yesterday to offer congratulations."

In addition to Rev. Father Corcoran of Iron Mountain others from outside points in the city to attend the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hogan and son, Amery, Wis.; Miss Margaret Carpenter of Marquette; Lawrence Corcoran of Marquette; and Miss Louise Rossen of Iron Mountain."

DEBATE AT HOUGHTON.

Edmund McDonald, Frederick Townsend and Kenneth Doyle, members of a debating team representing the Negaunee high school, left yesterday morning for Houghton, where they debated with a team from the Houghton high school last evening. They were accompanied by Professor Douglas, science teacher. The subject was, "Resolved, That all appointive and elective officials should be subject to the recall."

Miss Gibson will be at the Breitung House Monday and Tuesday with a line of Irish peasant embroidery and crochet, suitable for graduation and wedding gifts, layettes, etc. Miss Gibson invites the ladies of Negaunee and Ishpeming to see the display. 5-17-2d

SUMMERSCHOOL OPENS JUNE 30

Northern State Normal Preparing for Thirteenth Annual Six-Weeks' Session, During Which the Usual Courses and Many Special Subjects Will Be Taught

Large Attendance Is Anticipated—Lecture Series Will Be One of the Most Attractive Features—New York City Educator and Librarian Will Be Here.

The Northern State Normal school will issue in a few days a prospectus advertising its thirteenth annual summer session, which will open Monday, June 30, and continue for six weeks, closing Friday noon, Aug. 8.

The work of the summer term has been especially arranged to meet the requirements of students pursuing regular courses and for teachers who may wish to take postgraduate and special work.

One excellent advantage offered special students is the formation of classes in special subjects upon request, as it is the desire of the school to meet the needs of the teachers and to co-operate with them in their preparation for the particular work they desire to follow.

A number of eminent educators have been engaged to give series of lectures during the summer session. Leading the list is Professor Arthur D. Dean, chief of the division of trade schools, New York state department of education, of Albany.

Professor Rollo W. Brown, head of the department of rhetoric of Washash college, will lecture during the week beginning July 7 on comparative views of the schools, studies and methods of the French and American educative systems.

Miss Marian P. Green, of the New York Public Library, will be among the other noted lecturers to visit the Normal this summer. Her lectures will be on the subject of children's reading, books and literature.

The special instructors include Fred A. Jeffers, M. P., superintendent of schools of Adams township, who will teach library, and O. Clinton, superintendent of schools at Baraga, an instructor in mathematics; John Brennan, A. E., superintendent of schools at Ironwood, who will conduct institute classes; Clarence L. Holtzman, M. S., professor of science at the Western High school, Chicago, a special instructor in science; Miss V. Winnifred Lacy, M. P., principal of the Cleveland school, Ishpeming, who will instruct in primary methods; Miss Alice Roche, a public school teacher in Ironwood, conducting institute courses; and Miss Marie A. Newberry, instructor in library methods.

The department of geography will offer three courses during the coming summer, with many special features, one of which is the excellent equipment of the laboratory. A number of field excursions will be made. There are intended for scientific work, but will be open for the enjoyment of those interested in nature.

Among the many other special courses, that in the department of German entitled "A Trip Through Germany" promises to be highly interesting. The course will introduce the student of the land and people of Germany by means of an imaginary tour or some of its chief features of interest. The recitations will be carried on mainly in German. The course is intended primarily for high school German teachers who desire to gain greater fluency of speech in German and to broaden their knowledge of the land and its people. Professor J. E. Lautner, head of the department of German, will teach this course, and he is equipped with a thoroughly sufficient education and knowledge of affairs, having spent several years there at odd intervals in study and travel.

POWER OFF SUNDAY.

Extensive Repairs Will Be Made to High Tension Transmission Line.

In order to expedite the making of extensive repairs on the high tension transmission line between the light and power station and the Washington street sub-station, the electric current will be shut off between 7 and 10:45 a. m. and 12:30 and 6 p. m. Sunday. The entire crew of linemen will be put at work replacing eight of the large insulators, which have been broken. It is a particular piece of work, as it will have to be done without straining the wires or cutting them.

At the same time, four cut-off switches will be put in south of the point of connection with the transmission line to the city pumping station. By use of these switches it is hoped to obviate any necessity for shutting down the pumping motors which are soon to be installed at the water works in case of a mishap in the city's electric distributing plant, which connects at the east-station on Washington street. The generators at Dead river will be operated continuously, except when there is a break on the high transmission line on the other side of the water works connecting point.

The water works transmission line is complete as far as the corner Lake Shore boulevard and Hewitt avenue. As soon as the pumping equipment is received work will again be started on this line.

WILL GET SEAT IN THIRTY DAYS

Detroit Newspaper Says Democrats Are Strongly in Favor of Installing MacDonald.

The Detroit News asserts that W. J. MacDonald will be seated, within thirty days, as member of congress from the Twelfth Michigan district. The Democrats, the News says, are friendly disposed to MacDonald and are impatient of the suggestion that any technicalities should be raised in an effort to keep him longer out of the seat.

Another dispatch dealing with the subject says that before the committee on elections reports on the case the Progressive party leaders will seek to have a test vote on the proposal to seat MacDonald and will introduce a resolution providing for at once making him a M. C. It is claimed that a precedent exists in the case of Representative John F. Shafroth, which justifies the house in taking this action. Judge Shafroth, who is now a senator from Colorado, held an election certificate to a seat in the house and had been seated. While the evidence was being taken in a contest for his seat, Senator Shafroth became convinced that his election had been accomplished by gross frauds and arose, like Mr. Young did Saturday, and tendered his resignation. Without further formality, the house passed a resolution sending his opponent to the speaker's table.

A Unique Situation. In connection with the discussion of the MacDonald case, there has been reference to the unique situation that would present itself, by any chance, congress should refuse to seat the copper country man. In that event it would become the duty of Governor Ferris to call a special election. But, in all probability, before a special election could be held the old Twelfth district, in which Mr. MacDonald, H. O. Young and John Power of Escanaba fought out their battle of the ballots, would have lost its identity through the operation of the reapportionment bill which Governor Ferris signed this week.

In this connection John Fitzgibbon, writing in the Detroit News, says: "The Twelfth district, as constituted when Young and MacDonald made their contest in November last, comprised the entire fifteen counties of the upper peninsula. The legislature at this year's session abolished the old Twelfth district, as it were, and created a new district, designated by the same number. The new Twelfth comprises but eight of the fifteen counties, namely, Marquette, Houghton, Gogebic, Ontonagon, Iron, Baraga, Keweenaw and Dickinson. The other seven counties—Menominee, Alger, Delta, Luce, Schoolcraft, Mackinac and Chippewa—were transferred to the new Eleventh district.

The question that would have to be met is whether these seven counties could participate in a special election to fill a vacancy in what is now the Twelfth. If not, then would they not be without representation until the next regular election, which will be in November, 1914, except insofar as Congressmen at Large Patrick H. Kelley, now is a member for the entire state. It is true the congressional redistricting act will not become operative until Aug. 15, this year, but nothing except the constitutional requirement that ninety days must elapse after final adjournment of the legislature before any act goes into effect, stands even technically in the way of the redistricting act applying at the present time. That is, all acts except appropriation acts, and acts necessary for the public health, peace and safety.

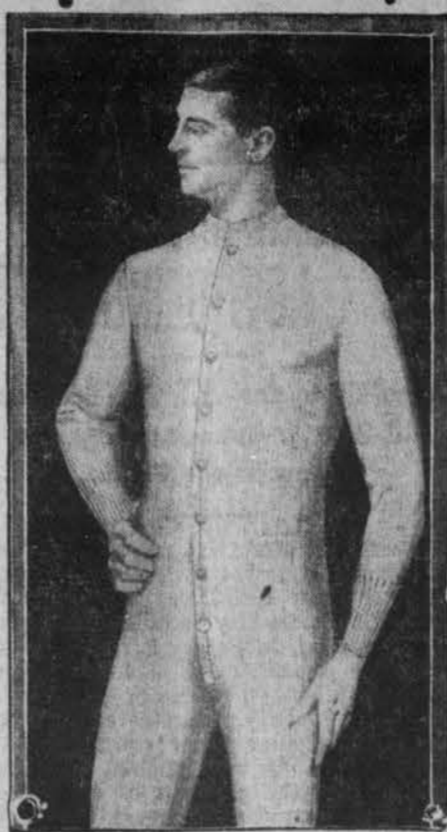

It might be that a special election could legally be held before Aug. 15, but lawyers who have looked into the question say it surely would be different after that date. A special election in the old Twelfth would mean one day's primaries in every voting district of the entire fifteen counties, and another convening all of the boards on election day. The expense would be several thousand dollars or more.

KINEMACOLOR FILMS TO BE INTRODUCED

Wonderful New Picture Service to Take Place of Vaudeville at Opera House.

Manager Jopling of the Marquette Opera House has closed a contract with the Urban company, of London, for a full service of its famous kinemacolor films, to start June 2. Beginning on that date, two reels of the wonderful colored motion pictures will take the place of vaudeville. The vaudeville will be discontinued permanently, unless the public demands it. The popularity of the kinemacolor films is shown by the fact that theaters in all of the larger cities are adopting the service in place of vaudeville and, in the case of the Colonial and McVicker's theaters, Chicago, of legitimate drama.

The Marquette Opera House will offer the entire product of the company, six reels a week, with a change every two nights. As the regular licensed film service will be retained, the program will consist of two reels of kinemacolor film and three reels of the black and white film. The subjects will include everything that is now included in black and white pictures. The American pictures are produced at Los Angeles, where the Urban concern has a company of 110 persons. The imported pictures will be the product of a single European company. The London firm formerly produced special features and presented them by its own operating companies exclusively until a few months ago, when the demand for the service became so large as to warrant the manufacture of the films for general use.

The company's former well-known special films were those of the Indian Durbur, the coronation of the English monarch as emperor of India and those of the recent coronation. The pictures are in natural colors, actually photographed, and are especially fine in detail. The new photographic processes, by which glass plates can be sensitized to reproduce natural colors when exposed in a camera has been applied to motion picture film with the greatest success. The process is the highest development of the motion picture and is even superior to the "talking pictures" and is replacing them in many houses. The Marquette Opera House will be the first and only upper peninsula house to present them. The films are to be had only at the greatest expense.

The reels of kinemacolor film are twice as long as the ordinary film and have to be run through a machine just twice as fast. Therefore a motor is used to operate the projecting machine, which is of special design and a much more complicated piece of machinery than that of producing ordinary pictures. The introduction of the service will require extensive improvements at the Marquette Opera House, among which will be the installation of a fifty-ampere mercury arc rectifier. The kinemacolor pictures must be projected with a more intense light than is necessary with the old pictures and direct current gives a more steady light. With alternating current the spark is not continuous and it comes actually sixty times a minute, while with direct current it is practically continuous. The equipment is rather complicated and its handling as well as the handling of the pictures requires great skill on the part of the operators. As there is much in connection with producing the pictures which is secret, the operators must be licensed. An expert will be sent here to install the needed equipment and to remain until the house operators have learned just how to control the pictures, after which they will be eligible for a license.

WILL MAKE IMPROVEMENTS.

Handsome Office Fixtures Ordered for Hotel Marquette.

J. H. Lewis, proprietor of Hotel Marquette, has appropriated about $1,500 for improvements to be made within a few weeks, including the provision of hot and cold running water on both floors, the redecoration of the dining room and fixtures for the main office. The dining room woodwork will be painted white, and the wall finish below the china rail will be leather-like paneling. In the main office, Mr. Lewis hopes to make it the handsomest dining room in the upper peninsula. Modern electric light fixtures have been ordered. Five chandeliers suspended from the ceiling. The first coat of paint has already been given the dining room woodwork.

In the main office a handsome modern hardwood desk fixture, ordered of the Brinswick-Balke Colander company, will be installed. It will be slightly larger than the present fixtures, and will include a cigar case.

The addition of running water to ten of the more desirable rooms will modernize all but a few of the guest rooms in the house and will be a step toward the ultimate remodeling of the entire building.

MAY SIGN ANY PETITIONS.

In This Respect Special Election Law Differs from Primary Law.

George P. Brown, city attorney, said yesterday that there has been considerable misunderstanding as to whether a person may sign more than one of the petitions of candidates for charter commissioner. There is, he asserts, nothing in the law to prevent a person from signing any number of petitions, also, with a small population in the wards, it would be impossible for any above a limited number of candidates to receive the legal number of signatures. A person may sign any or all of the petitions, if he wants to see the candidates who approach him enter the race.

The latest candidate for the charter commission is Eusebe W. Bertrand, who took out blanks yesterday to get names that will nominate him to run as a candidate at large. All petitions must be filed with the city recorder not later than May 19, Monday.
