

CHARLTON WILL HAVE TO STAND TRIAL IN ITALY

Long Fight to Prevent the Extradition of the Confessed Young Murderer Ends Adversely When the Supreme Court of the United States Passes Upon the Case.

Washington's Decision to Surrender the New Yorker in Compliance with Rome's Demand Is Upheld—Man Now to Be Prosecuted for Crime of Killing Wife.

Washington, June 10.—Three years to a day after the discovery of the body of his wife in the waters of Lake Como, Italy, Porter Charlton today lost his last fight against being turned over by his native land to the Italian government for trial on a charge of murder.

Story of the Case. The killing of Mrs. Porter Charlton stirred Europe and America as have few murders of recent years. With the discovery of her crumpled body stuffed into a trunk and sunk in Lake Como, Italy, where she had been with her husband to spend her honeymoon, both continents turned to search for the murderer.

The first great problem to solve was the whereabouts of the twenty-one-year-old husband who, as a bank clerk in New York, had married the woman, eight years older than himself and the divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer. His father, Paul Charlton, law adviser of the bureau of insular affairs and former President Taft's classmate, was firm in the conviction that his son, too, had been murdered.

Buying by Investors Lifts Values Well Above the Low Points of the Session. New York, June 10.—The stock market passed through a troubled day today as a result of the decision by the supreme court yesterday of its decision in the Minnesota rate cases.

Diplomatic Problem Arises. With the acceptance of the confession as a solution of the crime, there arose almost at once the diplomatic problem of Charlton's extradition. It was admitted on all hands that Charlton could not be tried in the United States for a crime committed in Italy.

Judge John A. Blair, of the court of oyer and terminer in Hudson county, N. J., said in his opinion that the extradition of Charlton was not to be tried in the United States for a crime committed in Italy.

Father Appeals to Courts. Charlton's father then began the last fight to save his son from extradition. He applied to the circuit court of the United States for New Jersey for his release on habeas corpus proceedings, holding that the treaty did not justify the extradition and that evidence of sanity should have been received.

No Decisions in Other Cases. Washington, June 10.—The absence from today's session of the supreme court of Justice Hughes, who is understood to be preparing the decisions in most of the Missouri, Arkansas, Oregon, Kentucky and Nevada mining railroad rate cases, caused final action in these cases to go over until the last session day, June 16.

Hall's wages were garnished and later he went into bankruptcy, but the road withheld $81.87 of his pay on the ground that it might be held liable for his debts.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY WEDS.

Houghton County's Legal Adviser, Anthony Lucas, a Benedict.

Miss Wilhelmina Wilmers, daughter of Joseph Wilmers, Sr., of Red Jacket, became the bride yesterday morning of Anthony Lucas of Red Jacket, prosecuting attorney of Houghton county. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Bede at the Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock in the presence of only immediate members of the families of the bridal couple and a few friends. Miss Margaret Ryan and George Kemp were the attendants.

The bride was attired in a gown of white embroidered chiffon, over duchess satin, and wore a point lace veil, caught with lilies of the valley. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Ryan wore yellow crepe de chine and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses. The bride was given away by her father.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Wilmers home at Eighth and Pine streets, following which there was a quiet reception. The home was prettily decorated in yellow and white, flowers being used in profusion. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Light of Hancock, Miss Gertrude Schaefer of Janesville, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. August Clemens and Miss Viola Clemens of Mohawk.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucas left Calumet yesterday afternoon on a wedding tour that will take them through the Eastern states, particularly New York. They will be at home in about three weeks, residing on Locust street, Red Jacket.

Particular interest is attached in this wedding by the residents of the copper country, because both Mr. Lucas and his bride are very well known socially, while as an attorney and in politics Mr. Lucas has attained prominence. Mrs. Lucas, who is a graduate from the Calumet High school, is beautiful and accomplished and is popular. Mr. Lucas has served one term as representative from the Calumet or First district of Houghton county in the state legislature, and is now serving his first term as prosecuting attorney of the county. He has lived practically all his life in the Calumet community, while his bride was born and raised there.

TED SULLIVAN'S LECTURE.

Nestor of Baseball Will Talk at Michigan College of Mines.

Ted Sullivan, the Nestor of baseball, will tonight at the Michigan College of Mines gymnasium deliver his celebrated illustrated lecture on baseball. Mr. Sullivan can do it if anybody can. He is a man than whom none knows baseball better.

This lecture has the general title "Great Baseball Players of the Past and Present." There is a suspicion among people that know Ted that he will dwell largely on the glories of King Mike Kelly and Ed Walsh, the latter the great catcher and pitcher of the Chicago White Sox. It may be that if these two great players were named Schneider and Plotz, Ted would not rank them so big, but this is mere surmise.

The illustrations to be shown by Ted, through the medium of a stereopticon, will include some pictures never before shown on a screen till this lecturer discovered them.

Ted Sullivan is a man no longer young, but he is still actively interested in baseball as the scout of the White Sox and as manager of the territorial circumnavigating tour of the White Sox and the New York Giants of next winter. He was a baseball manager when some of the present stars were holding down the sacks in go-carts. He has known personally more great ball players than any man living and he combines with all this knowledge of the game a conversational versatility unexcelled by any man from Portland to the Polo grounds. Mr. Sullivan is an author of considerable repute among baseball experts. He is a man of scholarly attainments. His lecture should be "a splendid effort" in the language of the mere reporter, and a "hum-dinger" in the argot of the baseball writer.

LIBEL CASE IN CIRCUIT COURT.

Undertaker Sues Alleged Defamer—Quincy Company Loses a Suit.

The case of Jacob Kallio vs. August Hilden, trespass on the case, was on trial in the Houghton county circuit court yesterday before Judge O'Brien. It has some odd features.

Kallio is an undertaker at Calumet, where Hilden also resides, and on Dec. 20, 1911, there appeared in the Hancock Tyonies, the Finnish daily newspaper, a letter from Hilden, in which Kallio claims Hilden libeled him. The letter referred to an obituary performed on the body of an old man named Savela, who died about that time.

The Savela obituary was the cause of a previous suit, in which Savela's son was plaintiff and Drs. Lawbaugh of Calumet and Tucker of Mohawk were defendants. Savela sued because he alleged the physicians had desecrated his father's body by performing an autopsy against his express command. In the trial of the case the doctors were exonerated completely, as it was shown the autopsy was performed with young Savela's knowledge.

The letter evidently excited considerable discussion among the residents of Calumet, because Hilden wrote about it to Tyonies and the letter was published. In the letter no names were mentioned, neither that of the deceased nor of the undertaker, but Kallio contended the letter charged the undertaker had performed an illegal operation on an "old Finlander" and the undertaker later had paid the son of the deceased to leave the country, so the undertaker might avoid prosecution.

The case was on trial throughout the day.

QUINCY COMPANY LOSSES.

THE MAKING OF GOLDBLEAF.

The gold reaches the "beaters" first in wide bars or nuggets. It must be weighed, melted, and made into inch-wide ribbons before the "beating" begins. The ribbon is then cut into inch squares and beaten with a hammer wielded by a stalwart workman. When each leaf has been beaten thin it is transferred to a mould, where it is beaten on a scale for four hours. The beating is accomplished by means of a wooden hammer weighing from seven to eighteen pounds on a sheepskin cushion resting on a granite block. The gold beaten is usually twenty-two or twenty-three karats fine. A little alloy of copper or silver is added to make the beating accomplished by means of a wooden hammer weighing from seven to eighteen pounds on a sheepskin cushion resting on a granite block. "SWITCH LADY" HELD POST TWENTY YEARS

Milwaukee Girl Successor to Her Father in Important Railroad Duties.

Milwaukee, June 10.—The 1913 athletic girls, or any other exponent of feminine physical prowess, may well look to her laurels. A contender for honors has been found who, although now a matron well along in middle life and resting on her achievements, has a record which surpasses anything noted in later years. She is Mrs. Charles W. Green, now content with a good home and a devoted husband, but who was known years ago in railroad circles as "Switch Annie."

The slim, flaxen-haired German girl was for the first year in charge of the complicated system of switching of the St. Paul road in the Milwaukee stockyards. She fulfilled her duties with such regularity and unflinching accuracy that H. S. Teall, former yardmaster, since deceased, expressed the utmost confidence in the girl, who thus supported her widowed mother and elder sister for many years by her earnings as "switch lady."

Father Hurt on Road.

Her father, Joseph Grondner, had been crippled in a railroad accident shortly before Annie was born. He was guaranteed a position for life with the St. Paul road and was assigned to the stockyard switches. The place was an important one as the La Crosse and Prairie du Chien divisions diverged at that point. In addition, there was a confusing myriad of stockyard tracks and cut-outs, each with its separate switch. All passenger traffic passed this point on its way from the old depot on Reed street.

Annie's father was unable to get around without crutches, and the increasing volume of traffic gradually began to overtax his strength. So his little daughter began to help Mr. Grondner in his work, running and turning the signal wheels farthest from his homely brown switch shanty.

She gradually assumed more responsibility and soon became the mainstay of her crippled father. Then one day, while avoiding one train, he stepped in the path of another and was killed.

Applies for Job.

Annie wrote a terse note to the railroad officials, applying for the position left vacant by the death of her father. A few days of anxious waiting was rewarded by an affirmative reply, and Annie was enrolled as the official "switch lady" of the stockyards at a salary of $50 a month, enough to keep the family in modest comfort.

"Switch Annie," in her short skirts, high boots, cotton gloves, and broad-brimmed hat, soon became everyone by their first name, and they knew her. She preserved her dignity and kept the respect of them all.

While her father was still living Annie played the heroine role in preventing what might have been a disastrous wreck. A switch was set wrong and a clear track signal had been given to a fast passenger train. Annie arrived, took in the situation at a glance, and reached the switch before the fast approaching passenger train could swerve into the siding and crash into a long line of freight cars.

LONE SURVIVOR FOUND DYING IN DEAD TOWN

Carbon, Wyo., Pictured in the "Virginian," Is Deserted and Crumbling.

Medicine Bow, Wyo., June 10.—"The Virginian," which had its setting in and around Medicine Bow, relates no characteristically local incident, but rather habit the wide plains of Wyoming greater than that which came to light in the deserted camp of Carbon, a few miles from this place, when the sole survivor, Mrs. John West, seventy-two years old, was accidentally found in an old slacks where she had lain for nearly two weeks without a bite to eat or a drop of water, patiently awaiting death.

"I will not leave my home unless you promise to bury me here if I die," pleaded the old lady; "my husband is buried here and my son is buried here and here I want to rest—yes, rest out here where my dear ones are."

Mike Quigley, Sr., and old ranchman who, attracted by her groans as he passed the house, found the aged woman, gave her water and made her as comfortable as possible to them, took her to Medicine Bow for aid. She was brought to this place and later taken to the general hospital at Rawlins, where she is slowly dying.

Mrs. West came to Wyoming in 1850 with her husband. They lived on a ranch several years, and then moved into Carbon when that thriving young city was uninhabited by more than 3,000 people. It was there her husband died, and later their only son, who had been born on the frontier, fell down a coal shaft in a mine and was killed. They were buried side by side out in the little graveyard in the sand.

Often Mistaken for Mirage.

As one surmounts the last ridge which discloses Carbon to view the traveler cannot help but wonder at the large town which is visible in the distance at the bottom of the gulch. To the untrained eye it is often mistaken for a mirage. But upon approaching the city does not vanish, and yet it seems strange that no life is visible. No smoke comes from the chimneys of the many houses which once were filled with life and laughter.

The houses are falling to pieces. The chimneys are gradually succumbing to the weather, and the whole place is included a city of the dead. Here is still the big building which was formerly used as a gathering place for the cow punchers and miners from the gulch. In big weather worn letters one reads the legend "Carbon Hall," but no sound of music greets the weary wanderer, no proud cow puncher comes stalking out of the door over which remains the dim sign. Gone are the people who once gave life to this town where once is nothing but the silence of the grave.

SUCCESSOR TO CALVERLEY CUP.

Thomas F. Cole of Duluth Hangs Up New Golfing Trophy.

The pleasant relations between the Portage Lake Golf club and the Northland Country club of Duluth, promoted and continued through the donation of the silver cup trophy by William D. Calverley of Houghton some years ago, are to continue. Mr. Calverley's cup was won by Duluth last year and now Thomas F. Cole, president of the Northland Country club, as much a copper country man as he is a Duluth man, has announced the donation of another cup to continue the same friendly relations.

It has been known since early last winter that Mr. Cole would offer a cup, but no publicity was given the fact because the golfers and the press did not care to anticipate his generosity. His personal announcement was awaited, even though both clubs knew the trophy was to be given.

It is probable that in a short time a joint committee of the Northland and Portage Lake clubs will meet to announce a schedule for the Cole cup contests.

SUPERVISORS MEET TODAY.

The regular June meeting of the Houghton county board of supervisors will be held this morning in the county building. It is held a day later than usual, because all of the supervisors were engaged yesterday on their boards of review. As far as could be learned yesterday only routine business will come before the board this morning.

Markets

[From Geo. F. Rugg, Indianapolis.]
Boston, June 10.—The Minnesota rate decision was unfavorably received. Europe was a heavy seller here and this brought out much frightened liquidation. It was sharpest break we have had for weeks and the resulting rally was not very strong. The railroad stocks showed a sharp decline and the industrials were weak in sympathy. Local coppers came out freely but owing to the sold out condition and the lack of speculation they did better than the New York list. The level in the local market is very low and they have certainly discounted all the adverse features. The air is full of pessimism however, and it will take strong support from the banking interests to restore confidence. Closing prices were as follows:

Kelly, of Hancock, who for the last several months has been in Winnipeg, Man. Mr. Kelly is a newspaperman.

Entertained at Dinner—The Misses Mabel Menhennet and Theora Anderson were the hostesses at a party dinner party served to a number of intimate friends Monday evening at the Menhennet residence in honor of Miss Margaret Kern, a bride-to-be, and Miss Florence Manhard, who is soon to leave the city. The guests were seated at 7 o'clock. The house and table were prettily decorated, lavender and white being the color scheme, worked out with linens and linoleum. Pretty favors were distributed. All in attendance spent a highly enjoyable evening. Cards announcing the wedding of Miss Kern and Henry Nelson have been issued. The event will take place next Tuesday. Miss Kern is to be the guest of honor at two other informal functions to be given by intimate friends this week.

Preparing for Review—Officers of the state tax commission examined the Marquette assessment roll in the office of the city controller yesterday, in preparation for the review the commission is to hold in this city shortly. Notices setting the date will be sent out in a day or two. The public session will last but one day, but it will be broadly advertised. The general review of the county assessments will be made at later date, which is also indefinite, owing to the fact that much work in valuing township property at present is too incomplete. In Negaunee city the work is practically finished and five or six men are at work in Ishpeming. Owing to a provision in the Marquette charter, the Marquette assessment roll must be completed by July 1.

Charles Wright Resigns—Charles F. Wright, for the last thirty years an agent for the South Shore railway, and who has been in the service of the company longer than that, yesterday tendered his resignation as agent at the Marquette passenger station. He has been the ticket agent at Marquette since the new station was erected and his long service in the same capacity dates back years before the building was completed. He is succeeded by W. E. Fish, formerly night agent at Marquette but recently a relief man on the Houghton and western divisions of the railway. Attending Chicago Convention—J. F. Anderson, clerk of the park, cemetery and street commission, left last evening for Chicago to attend the annual convention of the Augustana Synod, comprising the Swedish Lutheran churches of the United States and Canada. Mr. Anderson is a member of a national committee of thirty-five members, representing nearly every state and some provinces in Canada, appointed to study colonization work. The plans for activity along this line are still in their preliminary stages, but important steps to carry them out will probably be taken at this meeting. It is proposed to carry on work in the Lutheran church similar to that of the Catholic church in colonizing agricultural areas with European farmers. Mr. Anderson attends the synod meeting as a representative of Superior conference, which comprises the upper peninsula and Northern Wisconsin. Rev. Oscar Sandahl, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, who left for Chicago last evening, will also attend the meeting as a delegate from Superior conference. Mr. Anderson will be absent from the city probably three days.

Tabloid Booked—Manager Jopling of the Marquette Opera House has booked the first musical comedy tabloid to be presented in this part of the state. It is "The Girl from Luxemburg," presented by the originator of this species of entertainments—Ned Alford, still the leading producer of tabloid musical comedies in the country today. The attraction is booked for a three-night stand, July 28, 29 and 30. There are twenty-five persons in the cast. "The Girl from Luxemburg" is a potpourri of the best music of several of the newest musical comedies now being presented in the larger cities. The production is strictly high class, although it is in reality but a miniature sketch. It will be worked into the regular motion picture program and will run from one and a half to two hours. The prices for this entertainment will be raised, probably to fifty cents, but the scale will not go above "popular" prices, despite the fact that it is equal in all respects, except as to size, to the best of the larger musical comedy productions that come here. If the tabloid is a success and the patronage warrants a repetition of the service, other entertainments of this character will be booked.

TERRAPIN CALLED BY BELL.

Four Thousand Stick Heads Above Water At Meal Time.

Baltimore, June 10.—The novel spectacle of 4,000 diamond back terrapin sticking their heads out of the soft mud all at one time at the call of the dinner bell was witnessed by Governor Goldsborough and his state road inspection party at Crisfield, the Eastern Shore town built on oyster shells, and from which more terrapin and crabs are shipped than from any other place in the country.

The pond is fed by tidewater, and is owned by a large packing firm. A watchman closely guards the valuable stock, for diamond backs sell at $60 a dozen. The watchman's wife greeted the governor and party.

"If my husband were here he would feed the terrapin for you," she said, "but just to show you how they act I will ring the dinner bell."

The woman picked up several sleigh bells on string and shook them. Then above the surface of the little pond appeared instantly the 4,000 little heads, making the pond look very much like a bed of asparagus. They were hungry, anxious for dinner, but for once they were fooled, as they had to wait until the watchman came.

AT THE PICTURE HOUSES.

Two-Reel Feature.

The Grand theater is today offering a two-reel Vitaphone feature, entitled "Deerslayer," from the tale of that name by J. Fenimore Cooper. It is a thrilling story of the early pioneers and the Indians in the days of the unsettled West. The picture is said to be as good or better than "The Strength of Men," recently presented. Two other reels will be presented.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Office of the Supervising Architect, Washington, D. C., May 26, 1913.—Sealed proposals will be received at this office until 3 o'clock p. m. on the 26th day of June, 1913, and then opened, for a conduit and wiring system, gas piping, lighting fixtures, etc., in the U. S. postoffice and court house, Marquette, Mich., in accordance with drawings and specifications, copies of which may be had at the office of the architect, Marquette, Mich., and the district office of the supervising architect, U. MOST CHILDREN HAVE WORMS

Many mothers think their children are suffering from indigestion, headache, nervousness, weakness, costiveness, when they are victims of that common of all children's ailments—worms. Peevish, ill-tempered, fretful children, who toss and grind their teeth, with bad breath and colicky pains, have all the symptoms of having worms, and should be given Kicksapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant, candy dosage, which expels worms, reg-

Mr. Anderson will be absent from the city probably three days.

Tabloid Booked—Manager Jopling of the Marquette Opera House has booked the first musical comedy tabloid to be presented in this part of the state. It is "The Girl from Luxemburg," presented by the originator of this species of entertainments—Ned Alford, still the leading producer of tabloid musical comedies in the country today. The attraction is booked for a three-night stand, July 28, 29 and 30. There are twenty-five persons in the cast. "The Girl from Luxemburg" is a potpourri of the best music of several of the newest musical comedies now being presented in the larger cities. The production is strictly high class, although it is in reality but a miniature sketch. It will be worked into the regular motion picture program and will run from one and a half to two hours. The prices for this entertainment will be raised, probably to fifty cents, but the scale will not go above "popular" prices, despite the fact that it is equal in all respects, except as to size, to the best of the larger musical comedy productions that come here. If the tabloid is a success and the patronage warrants a repetition of the service, other entertainments of this character will be booked.

TERRAPIN CALLED BY BELL.

Four Thousand Stick Heads Above Water At Meal Time.

Baltimore, June 10.—The novel spectacle of 4,000 diamond back terrapin sticking their heads out of the soft mud all at one time at the call of the dinner bell was witnessed by Governor Goldsborough and his state road inspection party at Crisfield, the Eastern Shore town built on oyster shells, and from which more terrapin and crabs are shipped than from any other place in the country.

The pond is fed by tidewater, and is owned by a large packing firm. A watchman closely guards the valuable stock, for diamond backs sell at $60 a dozen. The watchman's wife greeted the governor and party.

"If my husband were here he would feed the terrapin for you," she said, "but just to show you how they act I will ring the dinner bell."

The woman picked up several sleigh bells on string and shook them. Then above the surface of the little pond appeared instantly the 4,000 little heads, making the pond look very much like a bed of asparagus. They were hungry, anxious for dinner, but for once they were fooled, as they had to wait until the watchman came.

Two other reels will be presented.

OVERALL INDUSTRY SHOWS GOOD RETURNS

Labor of Convicts Already Bringing 25 per Cent. More Than Under Former System.

The state of Michigan is now engaged in the business of manufacturing overalls at the Marquette prison, an article in the Detroit Sunday News-Tribune relates.

During May just past 115 men worked in the production of pants and jumpers that will bear the state's imprint. The gross return from the month's output of manufacturer goods will be approximately $22,500. The workmen who have produced these goods, the foremen who have directly supervised the work, the men who hauled the raw material to the factory and carted the finished product back to the railroad for shipment again, all of the men directly connected with the manufacture, in fact, excepting two expert cutters, are the long term convicts of Marquette prison.

These facts will prove no more of a surprise to citizens of Detroit, several hundreds of miles removed from the upper peninsula prison, than to many people right here in Marquette. So quietly, in a manner so business-like, has the largest labor contract been moved out of Marquette and been succeeded by the most retentive state account prison industry so far established, that had they not been told in advance, it is doubtful if some of the inmates of the prison themselves would have known of the change.

Took Over Contractor's Business.

The state just took over the contractor's industry. An invoice was made of the machinery, raw material and general supplies on hand. The state paid the contractor considerably less than the total of his inventory, a new set of books headed, "State of Michigan Overall Factory" was opened, a jobber was found to purchase the finished product; two foremen, the expert cutters, were transferred from the contractor's payroll to that of the state. The transfer was made some time between the shutting down signal of April 30 and the 7 o'clock "going to work bell" of May 1.

Such were all the visible manifestations of change, but other results more potent are hidden in the prison books. Warden Russell declares that, whereas the state profited 45 cents per day for each of the convicts farmed out to the contractor, the first month of operation of the plant on state account will return to the state an average of at least 60 cents for each man employed. In addition to this an average of approximately 25 cents per day was paid as overtime wages to the convicts, to be used in adding to their own comfort or to be shipped to the wives and children back home. And there is a change to come, Warden Russell believes, even more important than the increase in financial return from the prison industry.

New System Helps Men.

"The greatest benefit from a state account industry, assuming that the law gives it the proper scope, is the use that can be made of it to upbuild character in the men," said the warden. "So far we are continuing the overtime system as it was in vogue under the contract, but it will be completely reorganized. The contractor's sole consideration in paying overtime was efficiency in production. The man who produced the most and the best work got the largest pay envelope for himself, regardless of the man's conduct in the prison. Another man, a model prisoner, willing and anxious to work, but crippled in such a way as to spoil his productive power, got nothing from the contractor because he could do no more than the task allotted to him."

"When the state took over the overall factory I called the men together. 'Three things will count in determining the overtime to be paid in future,' I told them. 'First of all will be conduct. The prison rules must be absolutely obeyed by every man who hopes to be rewarded for his work. Assuming that a man's conduct is good, he will be rewarded according to his production. Efficiency will count, just as it has in the past, but it will be considered as secondary to conduct. The third thing to be considered is the disposition of the men. There are some men here who can't do as much as others, no matter how hard they try. There will be special reward for trying. A minimum wage will be established, to be paid to men who do their best and behave their best, regardless of their accomplishment.'"

Overtime a Discipline Factor.

"The most potent factor in maintaining discipline at Marquette in years past has been the privileges accorded the men. I believe the men in this prison are accorded more privileges than in any prison in the country; this in spite of the fact that we have as large a percentage of murderers and other long-term men as any prison in the country. The men have been punished for infraction of the prison rules by taking these privileges away. The overtime paid in the state account factory will add to the same end of discipline. Pay can be withheld for infraction of the rules and in the same way specially meritorious conduct can be rewarded."

The legislature of 1911 appropriated $62,500 as a fund to provide an industry to replace the contract held by Shauer Bros. at Marquette. Warden Russell could discover no better plan than to take over the Shauer equipment and continue the men at the tasks at which many of them had become highly efficient. A superintendent of the Oliver Mining company was agreed upon between Shauer Bros. and the prison board as the man to make an inventory of the property on hand. This was the result of his inventory: Machinery, including a total of 274 power machines, $9,294.73; stock and materials, $27,430.36; total $36,725.11.

The inventory of machinery totaled not more than 50 per cent. of the list price of the machines purchased, if bought new, the warden declares, but even this price was clipped. After several days of dickering the price finally agreed upon for the machinery was $5,500 or a total of $32,930.36 for the entire existing equipment. During the first month of operation the plant has been stocked up with cotton cloth, buttons and other like supplies costing $28,295.19, making a total initial expense of $38,435.55, well within the appropriation of $62,500.

Sliding Scale in Effect.

"Of course that leaves practically nothing as a fund to do business on, but we need very little running capital," said the warden. "We have arranged to sell the goods on basis of the price paid for raw materials, thus insuring a definite margin of profit. For instance, if the price of cotton is so much the price of our output is fixed accordingly. If the cotton used drops two cents the price we get drops also. The Hamilton Overall company, of Chicago, has contracted to take our entire output on this basis. They pay us for goods at the end of the month in which they are delivered."

"When Shauer Bros. moved out we hired two expert cutters who had formerly worked for the contractor. These are the only free men connected with the institution, that is, outside of the prison guards. The foremen in the plant are all convicts. Convicts take the raw material and put it through all the stages to bring it out as manufactured goods. A trusty drives the truck which hauls the raw material from the depot and carts the finished goods back to the station for shipment. Convict clerks check off the goods that pass through the shipping room and keep the factory records."

The 115 men, from a total of 330 in the prison, engaged in the overall plant, by no means serve to work the factory to its capacity. The warden expects to increase the force from time to time, in three years the box factory contract, the last in the prison, expires and the warden plans to take over that industry also. Marquette will be the first prison in the state operated entirely under the state account system.

AN EEL THAT WAS TOO WISE.

The Sad Fate of a Precocious Fish Whose Learning Went to His Head With Fatal Results.

You take it from me, sir," said the old showman, to a writer in a London periodical, "that the higher education of animals is a mistake.

"I have trained all sorts of beasts from fleas to elephants. I've taught horses to dance on their hind legs, dogs to play the barrel organ and do all sorts of tricks; but not one of them showed such intelligence as my educated eel.

"I picked him out of the water one day, and was attracted by his cute, brown orbs. He looked at me in a sort of friendly, knowin' way, as if to say: 'Let's be friends, Guv'nor—real pals.'

"So I put him in my pocket. Then a bright idea struck me. I would train him with the other animals and let him take part in my show.

"Talk of the intelligence of animals! That eel simply beat the bunch. He guessed what I wanted him to do before I'd thought it out myself. He had the fine spirit of the artist, too, he 'ad. He performed because he loved to act.

"The first trick I taught him he took to as mere child's play. In a few days he could put his tail into his mouth and roll round the room, pretending to be a hoop. He would smile when I said 'Smile,' in the cutest way, and, what is more, he would often smile on his own account without being told as if tickled at the humors of this funny world.

"Then I taught him to wriggle himself into the shape of letters. Soon he could twist himself into every letter of the alphabet and spell words as easy as you please. 'This beats science,' thought I, when one day he actually spelled my name; so I formed the idea of inviting some of the greatest scientists in the country to witness the feats of my marvelous eel.

"As the day of the private view drew near I put him regularly through his tricks, and that marvelous animal seemed to guess exactly what was in store for him. He got nervous, excited, and wail, too.

"Then all of a sudden the excitement began to tell upon him, and he showed signs of a nervous breakdown. He took trembling fits, which nigh scared me to death. I dosed him with spirit, which seemed to do him good for a time, but he got weaker and weaker until at last one morning I found him stretched out stiff and stark upon the floor.

"If ever a human died of brain fever, that poor beast did. I never trained another eel again. He died about this time last year, and I would give anything to have him by me now, with his cute little smile and his 'We're-pals-Guv'nor' look."

ADVENTURE.

The Adventure Consolidated stockholders have authorized the management to cease all exploratory work and "await the outcome of neighbors' tests." It had come to a point where further assessments would have to be called, and this was deemed inadvisable. At the stockholders' annual meeting in New York Thursday, Director Dunstan suggested that development work be transferred from the present location to the Knowlton property. This did not meet with a cordial reception, however, for it appeared to be the consensus of opinion that for the present the company's limited financial resources should be conserved. It was stated that the company had $11,000 cash on hand and $1,835 due from unpaid assessments. W. R. Todd, an official, said the present would be an inopportune time for calling another assessment, and thought that operations of neighboring companies could be watched to advantage. Everything has been disappointing in connection with Adventure, he said. Money has been raised and spent on the property honestly and intelligently, but with discouraging results.

THE KING'S PREROGATIVES.

If it were customary or possible for the king of Great Britain and Ireland rigidly to exercise his royal prerogatives, he would, in the course of a few months, become the owner of many vehicles, especially motor-cars, that traverse the streets and roads of his kingdom, since he is entitled to all deadlands. A deadland is "an article which has proved the immediate and accidental occasion of the death of any reasonable creature." This right was for hundreds of years enforced as a means of swelling the royal exchequer and, legally speaking, could still be enforced. If a man were killed by being run over the vehicle and its contents, as well as the horse, became the king's property. The number of "reasonable creatures" (and dogs might be included by some within this category) run over by motors in England would keep the king in automobiles until he would be obliged to construct many garages.—Harper's Weekly.

Beer Exposed to Light for 5 Minutes Becomes Undrinkable

This is not our statement, but the deliberate opinion of one of the most renowned scientists in the world. Read the entire statement:

"We have tested beers repeatedly, placing the bottles in the direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure, found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable on account of the peculiar odor developed. The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles, and such bottles are, therefore, recommendable." — Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology.

It is not enough that beer be brewed pure, it must be kept pure.

Many Americans prefer beer in a light bottle. Most brewers follow the course of least resistance.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light. Schlitz is sold in Brown Bottles to protect its purity from the brewery to your glass.

RESIDENTS OF CAPITAL ARE EASILY HOAXED BY CURIOSITY.

Where two or three are gathered together in the name of curiosity, there others will come also. That is one of the laws of mankind. Let two or three people pause in the street and look at anything—or nothing—and a crowd will gather about them. Everybody, nearly, has tried the ancient box of suddenly passing in his course and looking up fixedly at some high building or at nothing. Within a minute everyone in the block will be craning his head upward as eagerly as if forewarned that the Angel Gabriel was due to make an unprecedented flight over the housetops. The thing works infallibly. And so it that intangible desire to be aware of that which others are cognizant persons will gather for the simple reason that others have done so. Washington is an extraordinarily good place in which to witness the operation of this peculiar inclination.

When congress is coming along in its most dismal fashion and the galleries are desolate, a man may turn hurriedly into one of them and take a seat. It may be that he has come from out West somewhere and never having seen congress in session, has hurried to the capitol on this particular morning to witness the proceedings.

Suppose some other person who has but a dreamy interest in congress sees him turn into the visitors' gallery and seat himself with satisfaction in the front row. He immediately thinks that something is up; that some member is going to make a speech on an unusual topic, or on an ordinary topic in an unusual manner. He also hurriedly secures a seat. Another follows and the vacant seats of the galleries begin to fill. Very soon there is a stream of people pouring into them and the doorkeepers wonder what it is all about.

And strangely enough, very often the expectations of the visitors are satisfied. Some member, observing that the galleries are full, will seize upon the opportunity to attack the government, or the opposition or a member or a policy or to advocate something new in a strong address. It is a matter of compound-doubling cause and effect. The people came because they thought something important was to be done. Something important was done because the people came.

There are many places in Washington where notable things have happened. Let a man go to one of these places as if he expected to witness another notable event, and the place will attract others by the score. One of the oddest hoaxes ever perpetrated in Washington victimized more than 10,000 people last summer, at the result of this ever-ready expectancy. It had been reported in the newspapers that a steeple jack and an all-around dare devil would scale the face of a hotel in the business section. When the notice appeared nobody paid much attention to it. Now it happened that the night before it had rained. It also is true that in the building of the sheer walls of the Washington monument some blocks of marble were incorporated, which have a greater power of absorption than others. Some of these blocks are set about 400 hundred feet up in the north wall of the monument. The rain referred to was absorbed by these blocks, while the others in the wall turned it, and after the downpour ceased, dried off. This left a spot 400 feet up on the wall of the monument toward the city which appeared to be about six feet long and two feet wide.

Somebody on Pennsylvania-av happened to see this spot, thought it looked like a man, and stopped to gaze at it. Seeing the first man attending so closely to the aspect of the monument, another stopped, then another and then more and more. Like a forest fire the word spread that the steeple jack was climbing the sheer wall of the Washington monument.

If the spot had borne any resemblance at all to the outlines of a man at first, it took on a more striking likeness as soon as it was held to be a human being. Few doubted. Everyone hurried to the monument grounds. Businessmen, men without business, clerks, uptown society men and women, all left their immediate employment and afoot, on horseback, and in automobiles and carriages rushed to the monument grounds. The roofs of buildings in the downtown section were fringed with humanity all gazing at the steeple jack.

Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh called the assistant secretaries and heads of the bureaus of his department into his private office to witness the wonderful feat. And everybody could see him move. Fingers were pointed every time the man's foot or hand ascended. It was agreed that he was making slow progress, but nobody declared he could not see the movements of the climber. Even those standing at the base of the monument declared they saw the man high above them, climbing up the wall like a fly. Police reserves were called in to handle the crowd on the monument grounds, and the denials that anyone was climbing the monument made by the watchman at the shaft were scoffed at. The crowd watched the climber for two hours before their vision was sufficiently cleared to realize the progress, but nobody declared he could not see the movements of the climber. Even those standing at the base of the monument declared they saw the man high above them, climbing up the wall like a fly. Police reserves were called in to handle the crowd on the monument grounds, and the denials that anyone was climbing the monument made by the watchman at the shaft were scoffed at. The crowd watched the climber for two hours before their vision was sufficiently cleared to realize the progress, but nobody declared he could not see the movements of the climber.

There are many similar instances of the effect of curiosity on the people to be found in the more intimate annals of Washington. The theory of these crowds who gather to see nothing is the same as that upon which the chemical formation of solids is based. It is a scientific fact that many solutions will remain in liquid form indefinitely if undisturbed. But if a grain of sand or a tiny splinter of wood or of any other solid substance is placed in the solution the liquid will crystallize and solidify upon it. Given time, the entire amount of liquid will become solid.

It is believed in Washington that the cause for the alleged rough treatment accorded the marchers of the votes-for-women-parade here on March 3 was due not to any feeling of antagonism toward the women, but to an overpowering curiosity to see. The parade was a small one, comparatively speaking—that is, its width was not great enough to fill the street. While it was the intention of the police and the desire of the marchers to have the crowd kept back to the curb line, the spectators wanted to step up close to see the procession.

In many sections of the parade the marchers walked only four or six abreast. So thin a parade was naturally crushed by the struggle to see of the hundreds of crowding people in the street. The big inaugural parade, of course, could have no such difficulty, as the companies of soldiers filled the street from curb to curb and, even should the crowd press against them, the mass of soldiery would be heavy enough to repel the spectators.

The power of curiosity is superlatively expressed in the old saying that curiosity once killed a cat. An element, or whatever it is, that can snuff out nine lives at one swoop, is no inconsiderable thing.

GIVES HAWAII CANE PLANTERS HARD RAP

Retiring Commissioner of Immigration Keefe Says They Import Undesirable Workers.

Washington, June 10.—The sugar industry of Hawaii, as conducted by the planters, stands in the way of Americanization of the islands. Native Hawaiians, like the natives of Michigan, largely refuse to work on the farms where the raw material of the sugar is produced. Just as sugar beet culture in Michigan has caused an influx of European labor, which is willing to work for low wages, live on a less than American plane and do work which Americans will not do, so the culture of the sugar cane in Hawaii has caused an influx of Japanese, Filipinos and southern Europeans.

For the labor conditions in the islands the Hawaiians are given a tremendous dressing by Daniel J. Keefe of Detroit, the retiring commissioner of immigration. He quotes the planters as expressing a desire to Americanize the islands and in the same breath he charges straight from the shoulder that their conduct is strangely at variance with their professed motives. He charges that their agents are scouring the Philippines, Russia and Portugal; that the planters maintain an organization to "accelerate" immigration from southern Europe and Asia; that immigration agents are paid so much per head for the immigrants they deliver and consequently have the greatest incentive for producing quantity rather than quality.

Report Suppressed by Nagel.

Mr. Keefe's attack upon the industry as conducted in Hawaii followed his visit to the islands. His report was so caustic and hit so many sore spots that its publication was utterly suppressed for former Secretary Nagel, Keefe's superior, Nagel never wasted any affection on Keefe and it is clear that he looked with some suspicion upon the wisdom displayed in Keefe's manner of statement, if not in the alleged facts which Keefe set forth. Indeed when a hint of the nature of Keefe's report got back to Hawaii the planters let out a shout of protest which was heard all the way to Washington.

The present publication of Keefe's report is due to a direct order of the house of representatives, made on the order of representative Baker of California. Baker is interested in the Democratic side of the sugar tariff and is also one of the most determined of the California statesmen in his opposition to Asiatic immigration.

Employ More Japanese.

Mr. Keefe gives detailed figures about the persons employed on Hawaiian sugar plantations. He says the figures came from the territorial immigration board, which is the official accelerator of immigration. The figures show that 651 Americans are employed on Hawaiian sugar plantations of a total of 42,044. The percentage of Americans is 1.5. Of Hawaiians there are 1,118, 2.7 per cent; of Porto Ricans, 1,328, 4.5 per cent; of Koreans, 1,588, 3.8 per cent; of Chinese, 2,486, 5.9 per cent; of Filipinos, 2,999, 7.1 per cent; of Japanese, 26,384, 63 per cent.

Mr. Keefe says that the planters ought not to be paid higher wages than their industry can bear, but he declares that they can afford more than they are now paying. At present rates of wages, Mr. Keefe declares, the native Hawaiians almost unanimously decline to have anything to do with the sugar industry, while Americans are equally indifferent. He says that orientals receive about $18 per month, while Europeans, Porto Ricans and Americans receive from $22 to $26 per month. Everybody on the plantations works ten hours a day.

High Prices on Store Goods.

Mr. Keefe says that planters catch the laborers coming and going. They maintain plantation stores, which are operated for a profit and for nothing else. The prices charged he considers too high, and he thinks that such stores ought not to be operated anyhow except as a protection from excessive profits charged by independent dealers. He declares that the living quarters furnished are far from up to American standards.

But Mr. Keefe's report is most vitriolic when it hits the accelerated immigration situation. He tells, for instance, about Filipinos being given $2.50 of American money upon leaving Manila and contracting to work upon the Hawaiian plantations.

But a man accompanied by a woman receives $7.50 in cash, besides supplies. Hence one young Filipino told Keefe that, upon learning the financial incentive, he provided himself with a woman who had separated herself from her husband.

He told Mr. Keefe he might perhaps marry the woman later. This situation, Mr. Keefe asserts, is not at all uncommon. Mr. Keefe asserts that a large percentage of the Filipinos are afflicted with the hookworm and filthy communicable diseases. He declares that the Japanese are bringing in their prospective wives at the rate of sixty or ninety per ship. They are married according to the American custom and then the man and wife work together in the cane fields.

Mr. Keefe charges that the accelerated immigration to Hawaii operates to flood the American mainland. The immigration regulations of Hawaii are most lax with no such restrictions as to financial standing and health as are applied on the mainland. Consequently the Russians and a large percentage of the other immigrants remain in the islands only long enough to make the money to take them to the Pacific coast of the United States. When they reach California, Mr. Keefe alleges, they are usually without money and are public charges.

The probability is that the Hawaiian planters will claim that Keefe's report is overdrawn and unfair.

In any event with the figures which he publishes as coming from the immigration board. These figures are sufficient to show that the sugar industry on the island is tending away from Americanization rather than toward it. It is a matter of common knowledge, outside of Mr. Keefe's report that the Japanese are overrunning Hawaii. The sugar industry whether in Hawaii, Colorado or Michigan is regarded as a factor adverse to restricted immigration and increased Americanization.

WEEDS OUT MANY MEDICAL SCHOOLS

Carnegie Foundation Forces Weak and Inefficient Institutions to Fall by the Wayside.

New York, June 10.—In its effort to standardize the medical colleges of the country the Carnegie foundation within the last ten years has forced twenty-four of the smaller colleges to the wall. Secretary Furst of the foundation said that the Carnegie managers had embarked upon the campaign in 1903 with the distinct aim of eliminating all schools that, in their opinion, seemed to be an obstacle to the progress of the standardization plan because of lack of funds, inefficiency or weakness in any other respect. In this the foundation was endorsed by many physicians.

The foundation embarked upon its campaign by making a critical investigation of all the medical colleges in the country and soon voluminous reports began piling in telling of the faults found by its investigators. In no instance, according to Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the foundation, did the sectarianism of a college enter into the decision as to its utility. Although the Sewanee university's medical school, which the foundation is endeavoring to force out of Nashville, Tenn., maintains the prejudice against it was primarily due to its being under control of the Episcopal church, the foundation officials insist that Sewanee fell under the ban only because, as with other medical schools, it was below the average.

At the foundation offices data was pointed out by Secretary Furst to show that, because of the foundation's insistent campaign against the weak medical colleges the field is being cleared up. Before the foundation started in, the American Medical association in 1905 counted 166 medical colleges the country over with a yearly attendance of 26,147 students and 6,900 graduates. The medical association pruned the list by forcing twenty-five colleges out. The foundation reinforced the work of obliteration by cutting down the list until today there are 117 colleges.

"The Carnegie foundation considers that thirty medical colleges with an average total graduation of 300 a year are sufficient to supply the country's demands for doctors.

SULTAN AGREES TO QUIET THE MOROS

Finley's Mission to the Caliph at Constantinople Is Reported Successful.

New York, June 10.—Advice from Constantinople, says Major John P. Finley, U. S. A., who came here from the Moro Islands in the Philippines to see if the sultan and the Sheikh-ul-Islam could not prevail upon their Mohammedan brethren there to cease their constant uprisings and settle down, has been highly honored by the sultan. He has been decorated with the order of Medjidieh in recognition of his services to the Mohammedans in the Philippines. The sultan also has bestowed upon Major Finley an imperial trade with an imperial league, recognizing him as a religious minister plenipotentiary of the Moros. Such a document is very rarely given and the government yielded to the wishes of the sultan in the matter only after repeated refusals. The sultan also sent to Major Finley at the American embassy a number of framed inscriptions and other decorations for the mosque at Taluk-Sangay, the chief Moslem building in the Philippines.

Major John P. Finley, U. S. A., has been for several years district governor of the Zamboanga district, Mindanao, Philippine islands. In February he was sent on one of the queerest missions in the history of American diplomacy. He was dispatched to Constantinople to induce the sultan of Turkey, as head of the Mohammedan religion, to send a letter to the Moros instructing them to accept the authority of the United States and assuring them that their religion will not be disturbed in any way thereby. Major Finley went with the approval of the then President-elect Wilson and represented not only the United States but the Moro native chiefs, who officially made him their envoy in the matter.

Some revolutionists in the Philippines set afloat among the Moros a report that the taxes now levied upon the natives were to be ended by the United States to put an end to Mohammedanism in the islands. When a great fear sprang up among the followers of Mohammed and there was danger of an uprising unless the Moros could be made to believe that their fear was groundless.

After his arrival at Constantinople Major Finley at once went to work on his mission. He had an audience with the Sheikh-ul-Islam, the chief under the caliph or sultan of the Mohammedans of the world. The reception was most cordial. The Sheikh-ul-Islam, who is a cabinet officer and through whom all religious matters must be negotiated with the sultan, then presented Major Finley's credentials and petition to the sultan.

"The petition which I bear to the sultan of Turkey," said Major Finley in an interview, "is the expression of the yearning of a whole race to engage in better things. And it is something very real to them, something for which there is no substitute, when they address the sultan and caliph, as they have done in this petition as follows: 'All our hopes are centered in you because we know of no other person so near to us, and moreover there is no other person who can help us to the accomplishment of our desires for a purer Mohammedan faith.'

"The right beginnings of our dealings with the Moros were laid here in Constantinople. Oscar Straus was minister to Turkey when we acquired the Philippines, and on learning that there were Moslems in our new possessions he went to see Abdul Hamid, at that time sultan. Mr. Straus had unearthed a treaty between the United States and Tripoli, signed in 1796, Article XI, of which is as follows: 'As the government of the United States of America is not in any sense based on the Christian religion; as it has in itself no character of enmity against the laws, religion or tranquility of Mussulman and as the said states never have entered into any war or act of hostility against any Mohammedan nation, it is declared by the parties that no pretext arising from religious opinions shall ever produce an interruption of the harmony existing between the two countries.'

"Abdul Hamid had never heard of the Moros, but wished to know whether they went to Mecca. A telegram was accordingly dispatched to the sacred city, and by good fortune two Moros were there present on a pilgrimage. Abdul Hamid sent word by them that the Moros should receive the people of the United States kindly. And that is why not a Moro yielded to the attractive promise of Aguinaldo's agents."

"Tuan Maas of the Moros, Major Finley wears a heavy ring of native workmanship presented to him by the people. It is a series of gold plates and precious stones set round a heavy gold band. The affection which the Moros have for him and the eagerness with which they are watching and praying for his return may be understood from the following orders given out to the faithful upon his departure: "On every Friday between the services of evening and night all functionaries of the mosque shall read the Yasim book each man three times. Those who cannot read shall repeat certain prayers 240 times, praying and asking the Almighty that Governor Finley, our Tuan Maas, shall be especially helped and blessed in the following manner: "First—That he may have a pleasant voyage and safe arrival in the United States, and may his power increase! "Second—That he may be enabled to meet his excellency the ambassador of the sultan. "Third—That his mission may be successful. "Fourth—That he may quickly return to us, bringing back with him the good news that our petition has been granted. "Ya Allah! Ya Allah! Ya Allah! Ya Allah! Alamin Amin!"

The petition is an elaborate piece of Arabic writing, encased in white card-board covers, decorated with ribbons of the brilliant green, yellow and red, which to the natives mean royalty.

'BEGGAR KING' MADE $12 A DAY.

New York, June 10.—As a result of his confession that he was the head of ten professional mendicants and had received 25 per cent of their collections, amounting to from $7 to $12 a day, Joseph Hoffman, 117 Broome street, known to the police as "the King of the Panhandlers," is serving six months in the workhouse. Hoffman told the court at length of the workings of the band. The conviction of Hoffman grew out of the arrest of seventeen-year-old Joseph Rosenbaum, a member of the band. Rosenbaum was seized in the lobby of the Martingue Hotel by Detective Clare, whom he asked for money.

PEROXIDE BLONDES BARRED BY MAN IN QUEST FOR WIFE.

New York, June 10.—Ernest W. Darrow, a contractor of Patchesque, Long Island, has asked the newspapers to help him find a wife. All he requires is that matrimonial candidates shall be between thirty and thirty-five years of age, intelligent and good looking, and not peroxide blondes.

Darrow also will require that his second spouse be kind to his four children at home, the oldest a boy of twelve. He has been obliged to attend to business by day and care for the children at night. "I don't want another winter to come along and catch me without a wife," said

Darrow yesterday. "No one knows what I've been through during the last year. I love pretty women, but I want one who is looking for a good home. I don't want to resort to publicity, but I haven't time to do much courting, and I want a wife right away. I will promise my wife a good home, a maid and $40 a week."

CHANGE FOR MRS. EMPSON.

After haggling for twenty minutes over the price, the dealer finally consented to let the vase go for $37.9. Mrs. Empson knew she was getting a bargain at that price, so she consideredly refrained from insisting upon a further reduction.

"Have you the money with you to pay for it?" she said to Mr. Empson.

"I've got $10," said Empson.

"That'll do," she replied. "The man can change it."

Somewhat reluctantly Mr. Empson produced the bill; with equal reluctance the dealer refused it.

"No gotta change," he said. "Saturday afternoon. Put alla mon in da bank."

But aren't there any other shops near where they will change it for you?" asked Mrs. Empson.

"No leava shop," the Italian explained. "Boy gonna home. Otha customer he wanta buy. Must stay here."

Mrs. Empson was disappointed, but not discouraged.

"I must say," she said, "that you don't seem very anxious to make a sale. However, I am bound to have that vase. Dear, suppose you get the bill changed. You'll only have to go down to the corner and buy a cigar."

Mr. Empson already had six cigars in his pockets, but he obediently made a trip to the nearest tobacconist's for another. He selected a strong, thick cigar worth 15 cents and offered the $10 bill in payment.

"I am very sorry," said the clerk. "I cannot change it. This is Saturday afternoon, and we put most of our money in the bank."

Mr. Empson returned the cigar and renewed his quest for small change.

The pursuit took him into two more cigar stores, two groceries, a drug store, and a saloon. In the latter place, by appealing to all the other customers present, the desired change was finally secured in dollars, halves, and quarters.

Mr. Empson then took his bearings. He computed that in his wanderings he had traversed a distance of fourteen blocks and had consumed half an hour's time. As a result of the calculation he was in a bad humor when he again entered the art store.

"Here's the change," he said, "and a confoundedly hard time I had to get it, too."

Mrs. Empson patted his hand sympathetically.

"Oh," she said, "I am so sorry. I shan't need it, after all. After you went out I saw several other little things I liked and I thought enough of them to come to the whole $10."—New York Times.

The pursuit took him into two more cigar stores, two groceries, a drug store, and a saloon. In the latter place, by appealing to all the other customers present, the desired change was finally secured in dollars, halves, and quarters.

Mr. Empson then took his bearings. He computed that in his wanderings he had traversed a distance of fourteen blocks and had consumed half an hour's time. As a result of the calculation he was in a bad humor when he again entered the art store.

"Here's the change," he said, "and a confoundedly hard time I had to get it, too."

Mrs. Empson patted his hand sympathetically.

"Oh," she said, "I am so sorry. I shan't need it, after all. After you went out I saw several other little things I liked and I thought enough of them to come to the whole $10."—New York Times.

SENIORS APPEAR IN GLASS NIGHT PROGRAM

W. J. HEBBARD TO OPEN BRANCH STORE

Ishpeming Business Man Will Expand by Entering Into Iron River, Mich., Field.

W. J. Hebbard, who conducts a five and ten-cent store in the Heineman block, Main street, will open a branch store at Iron River, on the Menominee range where he believes there is an excellent opening, as soon as he can secure a location. Mr. Hebbard drove to Iron River with August Suttinen in the latter's Oakland car Monday, they having made the trip in exceptionally fast time. They went from Ishpeming to Iron River in four hours and ten minutes, including stops of thirty-five minutes in Sagola and Humboldt. Returning, they left Iron River at 6 o'clock p. m., and they reached Ishpeming a few minutes after 10 o'clock.

The roads in Iron county are among the best in the upper peninsula. The highway between Crystal Falls and the Mansfield mine is an especially good one, and the road between Crystal Falls and Iron River, part of which was re-located three years ago, is also in excellent condition.

The Iron county commission is now repairing the highway between Mansfield and Sagola, now the poorest section of the road between the Marquette and Menominee range towns. The hilly portion of the road near Sagola is at present receiving attention, and it is expected that the entire stretch will be covered before the present season is over.

The Ishpeming men were favorably impressed with Iron River. Business is booming there and the population is growing rapidly. Many houses are now under course of erection in the mining locations, and several business blocks are being built. Among the latter is a new structure for the Miners bank, of which W. J. Walters and Rudolph Ericson, formerly of this city, now in charge of mining properties there, are members of the board of directors.

Mr. Hebbard will put a competent man in charge of his Iron River store and will continue to give his Ishpeming store his personal attention.

GRADUATING CLASS OF HIGH SCHOOL GAVE DELIGHTFUL ENTERTAINMENT LAST EVENING.

The class night exercises at the high school always fills the auditorium, and last evening was no exception. Every seat was taken and even standing room was difficult to obtain.

The program was of a high order and was enjoyed not only by the class but by the large audience that applauded the numbers with great enthusiasm.

At 8 o'clock the forty-eight young people who composed the senior class marched down the aisle, singing the high school song, and took their places upon the stage.

Miss Helen Braastad, the vice president, presided.

Reynold Aas, in his history, recalled the different events that have marked the progress of the class from kindergarten to graduation. His paper was entertaining and bright, and his many humorous references were received with appreciation particularly by the class.

The Gittitory, by Merle Trembath, who showed a technique unusual in a high school play. For two years Miss Trembath has been the high school accompanist, and on all occasions has done most excellent work.

The class will read by Lawrence Meyers, with the self possession and dignity befitting the document. He bequeathed to the juniors numerous possessions. The will was replete with good natured fun.

The president of the junior class, Archie Lemire, accepted for his class, these bequests, and, in closing, extended to the class of 1913 good wishes for a prosperous future.

The vocal solo, "Dreaming," by H. W. Petrie, was sung by Anna Guido in a pleasing manner and with rare sweetness of tone.

The faculty notes, given by Ruth Mitchell, presented the faculty as a course of study pursued by the class. Much amusing information was given concerning the teachers as seen through the eyes of the student.

Selma Olson was the class poet. Her production represented the class as seekers for the golden fleece, typifying knowledge. Industry was the charm given to each and the diploma the prize.

The future of each member of the class was foretold by Elsie Magnuson, Helmer Johnson and Mildred Grangrud, under the guise of three witches. After an incantation the destinies were revealed in flame and smoke. The class appreciated the roles which they were assumed and were sure to desire to play. The conception was unique and was well carried out by the three phoetists.

Helen Braastad and Maud Gustafson played the "Polka de Concerte," Bartlett, with a spirit that captivated the audience.

The class memorial, a beautiful original-size reproduction of the Venus de Milo, was presented to the school by Eino Skytta, who gave, in a pleasing way, a brief history of the statue and the theories regarding its original attitude.

The class song, composed by Ruth Bergman and Anna Guido, to the tune "Love Comes Like a Summer Sign," from the opera, the "Little Tycoon," was sung by the class with the feeling befitting their farewell to the high school.

This evening the class received much credit on all connected with it. On Thursday evening the commencement exercises are to be held at the Ishpeming theater.

DRANK CARBOLIC ACID.

Mrs. Robert Morris Committed Suicide at Home Monday Evening.

Despondent over the death of two children within a year, Mrs. Richard Morris, of Badger street, killed herself Monday evening by drinking a large amount of carboric acid. During the past two months she had at various times told members of the family and others that she intended to kill herself. Monday morning, as she was packing her youngest son's dinner pail, she told him that it would be the last dinner that he would prepare for him, but little attention was paid to her remark. She took the poison that evening and died about two hours later.

Her husband, who is employed at the Salisbury mine, and nine children survive her. Four of these are young men, who are employed about the city.

QUINCY.

The Quincy management, through President William R. Todd, has signed a lease on the stamp sands, on a royalty basis, under which Thomas E. Edison and his engineering associates will conduct a series of experiments with a view of working out a theory upon which the experiments in that sand can be handled at a commercial profit. Work will be undertaken in the immediate future. It is understood that the great Edison himself has given the subject his personal attention and that some of his chief engineers have been working on the experiments for a long period. Their process is of course, electrical. To date six different processes have been tried on the Quincy sands, with indifferent results. The assays show great opportunities, but in each instance the cost of handling the sands and the limited capacity for savings made the commercial success of the undertaking a problem yet to be satisfactorily solved. The Calumet & Hecla interests have, to be sure, worked out a reginding system by which they make a profit from the mill tailings and their results have been so satisfactory that additional mills are to be built, the second now nearing completion to be used for the purpose of handling old sands. Calumet & Hecla sands are now being treated by an electrical process in Butte.

Physical conditions at the Quincy mine are showing steady improvement, the general underground results to the north being particularly encouraging. It may not be generally known or realized that the Quincy has, in addition to the main Pewabic vein, any number of smaller and narrower veins running parallel to the Pewabic. In the new shafts, the Pontiac and the Mesnard, these veins have been opened in the upper levels and have been pronounced commercially profitable. There is no doubt that these same veins can be opened and worked at a profit at numerous places in the older shafts. The labor situation at the Quincy, which caused a good deal of trouble recently, owing to the scarcity of trammers, is now pretty generally improved and additions to the working force are being put on rapidly.

HARTNETT IN BIG DEAL.

Former Escanaba Man Now Controls Chicago Enterprise.

John M. Hartnett, formerly of Escanaba, and who has a number of friends in Marquette county, has purchased a controlling interest in the Portable Building company of Chicago, manufacturers of steel portable buildings.

Of his deal a Chicago paper says: "John M. Hartnett, formerly connected with the Bloodberry Gum company of this city, has purchased a controlling interest in the Portable Building company, with offices at 312 West Madison street and factory at Fifty-ninth street.

The company manufactures all kinds and sizes of steel portable buildings, but are now making a specialty of turning out portable garages. The factory at the present time is turning out five complete buildings per day, but the officers expect within a short time to double the output of the plant to serve a rapidly growing demand for their product.

The company's leader is an art steel garage 12x20 feet in dimensions, large enough to house a car of any size and in addition providing room for a tool bench, gasoline tank and other accessories.

The building is rapidly meeting favor with automobile owners who by adopting the portable garage idea are satisfied at all times that both their car and their equipment are constantly protected.

It is the only factory of its kind in the city and is offering a happy source of relief to automobile owners who live in rented flats and who formerly housed their cars at public garages.

SPINE NOT DISLOCATED.

Mrs. Peter Gunnerson yesterday received a letter from Leadville, Colo., informing her that the injuries sustained by her brother, Captain William Carson, some ten days ago, when both he and his son were injured in a runaway in the mine, will not prove fatal. It was at first thought that his spine was dislocated.

Mining News

CALUMET & ARIZONA.

J. B. Hardon, with Hayden, Stone & Co., who has recently visited the Calumet & Arizona property, writes as follows:

"An ore area a mile and a half long, one mile wide and underlain by bodies of limestone, and in places over forty feet wide, extends from above the 1,500 level to the 1,800. This is being mined by shrinkage stopes without the use of timber. Probably the direct cost of mining this particular body, not including dead work, is not over seventy-five cents per ton. Here is the ideal condition, high grade ore that can be mined cheaply. In all probability the copper won from this ore is at the lowest cost of any that is produced.

"In a few days Calumet & Arizona will blow in its new smelter. This will increase its capacity about 25 per cent. At least 60,000,000 pounds may safely be counted on. At present the company's cost is probably around seven cents a pound. Of course, the ore bodies as now developed cannot be expected to last a great many years, but as we have pointed out, there is a large unexplored area, and every indication of developing other large bodies, perhaps of equal value. So that, as far as one can see into the future, a cost of eight cents can quite safely be taken as a basis for estimating profits."

CALUMET & HECLA.

Two Calumet & Hecla subsidiary properties, Ambeck and Altonex, last month established new record outputs. Ambeck at 1,572,225 pounds and Altonex at 665,860 pounds. The previous record output for Ambeck was in June, 1911, at 1,599,455 pounds, and Altonex 663,965 pounds in April, 1912. Since the new No. 2 shaft at Altonex was placed in commission, the output has increased 275,653 pounds. The Osceola's May output at 1,729,815 pounds was the largest since February, 1910. Superior's output last month was the largest since March, 1912. On the other hand, 1st-Evans's production in May was the smallest since April, 1911, and 253,677 pounds under that of May, 1912. The combined output of the Calumet & Hecla and subsidiary companies last month at 10,765,428 pounds was the largest since August, 1912.

RASH SPREAD TO ARMS AND BACK

Eruptions on Face, Itched and Burned, Festered, Skin Dry and Scaly, Sleep Out of Question, Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

759 Roach Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.—"At first I noticed small eruptions on my face. The trouble began as a rash. It looked like red pimples. In a few days they spread to my arms and back. They itched and burned so badly that I scratched them and of course the result was blood and matter. The eruptions festered, broke, opened and dried up leaving the skin dry and scaly. I spent many sleepless nights, my back, arms and face burning and itching; sleep was purely and simply out of the question. The trouble also caused disfigurement. My clothing irritated the breaking out."

"By this time I had used several well known remedies without success. The trouble continued. Then I began to use the sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Within seven or eight days I noticed gratifying results. After receiving the excellent return I purchased a full-sized cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in about eighteen or twenty days my cure was complete. I truthfully recommend Cuticura Soap and Ointment to any sufferer of skin diseases." (Signed) Miss Katherine McCallister, Apr. 12, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. A single set is often sufficient. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Shaver-faced men should use Cuticura Soap shaving stick, 25c. Sample free.

TOSS BOUQUETS AT CITY BOARDS

Departmental Bodies Receive Much Flattering Comment from Charter Commissioners at Second Meeting Last Evening—Council Is Unhit by Nosesays.

Method of Procedure Is Getting Into Better Form—Appointment of Arrangement Committee Will Systematize Mode of Study—Many Interesting Facts.

Bouquets for the municipal boards and a lack of comment touching the common council featured the discussions at last evening's session of the charter commission. The office of mayor centered the debate, but no hint whatsoever of criticism of the persons who have served the city in it, either by the commissioners or any of the ten or twelve men who attended the meeting on invitation or out of curiosity. A stenographic report was taken of the answers given by those who had been asked to speak and the commission will have this to study.

A. T. Roberts, R. C. Young and H. W. Nobel, representing the board of fire and water commissioners; J. E. Sherman and H. R. Harris, representing the light and power commission; George P. Brown, city attorney; Mayor Fassbender, Alderman Madigan, Charles R. Tallic, superintendent of the light and power commission; S. D. Magers, a member of the Northern State Normal faculty; R. C. Love, representing the Commercial club, and newspapermen connected with those who attended the meeting, out of the commissioners. J. E. Tobin, Jr., acted as clerk.

Opportunity to Become Pested.

The session was held in the common council chamber of the city hall and although there was much discussion of an interesting nature and some enlightening talks both by the invited speakers and the commissioners, the balcony was unadorned by the presence of any voters, despite the fact the public nature of the meetings gives the electors who soon will have to pass upon the result of the work an excellent opportunity to become pested regarding the attitude of well-informed individuals toward the many proposed changes in municipal government.

An effort was made by the commissioners as well as the invited speakers last evening to confine their discussion to the subject matter at hand and to avoid wasting time over irrelevant details. This restraint met with success. The commissioners realize that their study must be systematic and scientific and to accomplish this end the chairman, Commissioner J. C. Cannon, appointed a committee, whose duties will be to prepare a program for the future. This will consist of an orderly arrangement of the subjects to be discussed at each meeting, with the end in view of covering the ground with great thoroughness, fairness and resourcefulness. Commissioners Lautner, Clark and Godwin were appointed to serve on this committee. Commissioners McKereghan, Small and Brown were appointed to act as a committee on the study of the home rule act of Michigan for the purpose of digesting it and reporting back to the whole commission in comprehensive and concise form the interesting facts they may gather. Chairman Cannon took up on himself the duty of getting into correspondence with officials in other cities of the state that have adopted different charters of late and to procure annual statements, reports and copies of the charter for future reference.

Expressions Show Sentiment.

While the commissioners have not announced their attitudes relative to the many proposed changes, it is possible to define their sentiments toward the present order of government from their expressions, and especially by the kind of questions they ask. Only three of the members last evening had little or nothing to say. The attitude of the other five appears favorable to some change in the present governmental system. But two of this number can be said to favor a radical change. The other three seem to be about what defects may exist in the existing charter before deciding that any drastic change is necessary. The atmosphere of the meeting place, however, is surcharged each session with a sentiment favoring something new. The commission form of government, it is prevalent, although the commissioners repress any direct admission of their leaning toward it. In the words of Commissioner H. A. Clark, who appears to have made a careful analysis of the situation, the commission should not put commission form of government on one side of the free and council government under a charter unchanged on the other and then pit one against the other, armed with missiles of oratory. The purpose of the study is to determine what changes would improve the government of Marquette, to make it meet all the requirements of the municipality. From observation and by drawing inferences from the utterances of the heard in the question asked, the following digest is made:

Interesting Facts.

The commissioners will give serious consideration to long-term office under any conditions and will favor less frequent elections.

The recall as applied to all public officers, especially if government by a smaller council or commission is decided upon, will be an important issue in the final report of the commission.

The abolishing of wards as election precincts and the election of city commissioners or aldermen-at-large as a step toward procuring the best men for office and toward putting an end to the sacrifice of larger for smaller issues will receive favorable consideration, if the present council is abolished. There is strong sentiment favoring this. It is believed that men elected to serve the city at large will have the interests of the whole city at heart, and not any particular ward.

The commission will ponder long and keenly before taking any action that will abolish the five municipal boards. The concentration of responsibility and the distribution of management are two problems which promise to furnish food for much thought. The question of whether a commission of five men or thereabouts could attend to the administration of the city with the same success and expediency that thirty-five men do today, and whether one man could take up the executive duties in any one department with the same success that five can now, were question upon which a large portion of last night's discussion was based.

The commissioners generally conceded that the mayor should have more power. Mayor Fassbender surprised many of those who had believed that he chronically said little but observed much by entering into and taking a lively interest in several of the important discussions.

Much Was Accomplished.

There was scarcely an idle moment during last evening's session, which lasted from 7:30 to 10:30 o'clock. The commission is a leaving no subject connected with their work untouched and are making a broad beginning. In addition to hearing from the board members at last evening's session, the commissioners listened to City Attorney Brown. Mr. Brown reviewed briefly some of the weak points in the charter and the laws under which the boards operated, also the lack of authority invested in the mayor, and pointed to several small matters in the charter which must be corrected when the work of the commission reaches the stages of final codification.

The other commissioners were keenly interested in the remarks of Commissioner Lautner, who spoke briefly upon the system of municipal government in German cities. In these cities the office of city manager or "burgmeister" is followed as a profession. Every city, large or small, has a council with legislative and administrative powers. The membership is larger per hundred population, in most cases than in the United States. After the council first meets, it advises through the newspapers for a city manager. High salaries are paid, but the man seeking the office must be thoroughly qualified. The profession is learned in the smallest villages and the men who follow it devote their lives to it. After several years of successful experience in smaller cities a man's service are demanded in the larger ones and each manager has the opportunity to rise to the highest city management in the land, if he has the ability. He may be retained by successive councils in one city for years, even for a lifetime. He has the power to appoint, subject to civil service requirements, subordinates for each and every office in the city government. Municipal government in Germany is entirely divorced from politics as a game.

Meeting Hours Determined.

After the last invited speaker had been heard, business matters were taken up. It was decided that hereafter the commission shall meet at 7:30 and for the first half hour business is to be transacted. The men who are to be asked to speak will be requested to appear at 8 o'clock. Any business that may be left to complete after 8 o'clock will be taken up after the visitors finish their addresses. It was decided to make 10 o'clock the hour of adjournment. Last night and at the preceding meeting the session continued until 10:30.

A Formal Invitation was last evening extended to Alderman Hennessey, until this spring chairman of the finance committee, to be the speaker and to Robert Peters, former alderman and member of the finance committee, both being well posted on the municipal finance and taxation problem, to attend the meeting Friday evening. Controller Peter Prieman and City Treasurer R. P. Byrne also will speak on that occasion.

THREE TENT SHOWS.

Circuses Will Start Coming Early This Year—Many Are Expected.

Three tent shows have already looked Marquette and before the month is passed at least as many more are expected to bill the city. This is considered a particularly good year for this class of show business. Yesterday an advertising car driven for the Sparks' show, in Christian's saloon, and the other that he allowed Wilmer Harkin, another minor, to remain in the same place. The cases grew out of the trial during the present term of circuit court of Charles Christian, who was acquitted of a charge of selling liquor to minors, and they are based on testimony taken during the trial, which went to show that the young men were in the saloon from after 6 to after 8 o'clock the evening of Feb. 24. Bernard is described as a member of the jury.

BARTENDER ARRESTED TWICE.

Edward J. Bernard Will Be Examined This Morning on Two Charges.

Edward J. Bernard, bartender for Charles L. Christian at his Front street saloon, was yesterday arrested upon complaints signed by Sheriff Moloney for two offenses alleged to have been committed Feb. 24. One warrant charged that he allowed William Gregory Cayva, a minor, in Christian's saloon, and the other that he allowed Wilmer Harkin, another minor, to remain in the same place. The cases grew out of the trial during the present term of circuit court of Charles Christian, who was acquitted of a charge of selling liquor to minors, and they are based on testimony taken during the trial, which went to show that the young men were in the saloon from after 6 to after 8 o'clock the evening of Feb. 24. Bernard is described as a member of the jury.

SUPPER FOR THE ELKS.

Discussion of Temple Plans Will Be Heard at Meeting Tomorrow.

Following the regular meeting of Marquette lodge, No. 405, Benevolent & Protective Order of Elks, to be held tomorrow evening in Fraternity Hall, the members will adjourn to the club rooms in the Opera House block, where a lunch prepared by two mysterious persons, "Percy" and "Joe," will await them. The menu will consist of the following dishes:

Cold Ham Cold Tongue
Cold Veal Escalloped Potatoes
Macaroni and Cheese
Sliced Tomatoes
Green Onions
Bread and Butter Cheese Wafers
Coffee Cigars

A short program of speaking will follow the luncheon. Tromby's orchestra will furnish music during the evening. All visiting members are invited to attend. The purpose of the meeting is to talk over plans for the proposed Elks temple to be erected in the near future on the Washington street property recently purchased by the Marquette lodge. Plans that have already been prepared will be exhibited and discussed. Much concerning the materialization of the building project will depend upon the attitude of the Elks at this meeting and a large attendance is urged.

SENTENCE PRONOUNCED ON TEN DEFENDANTS

Criminal Matters of May Term of Circuit Court Concluded Yesterday Afternoon.

Yesterday was sentence day in circuit court. Judge Flannigan meted out justice to ten convicted persons. Six of the defendants were young, some of them scarcely more than boys, who were held on charges of burglary to which they had pleaded guilty. In these cases the judge decreed no prison terms, but placed the culprits under strict parole. Judge Flannigan's mode of procedure was characteristically brief. Charles A. Jensen, who is classed by the Marquette county officers as a "persistent" offender and who was convicted but was liberated on probation at the last term of court in this city and who since had broken his parole and had been awaiting sentence in jail, was one of the first men arraigned. His last offense was destruction of property, while previously he was convicted of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. The judge asked Jensen how much cash he had. When a correct account had been made the judge counted it and found it was just enough to take Jensen to Milwaukee. He thereupon ordered him to board the 5:30 o'clock train bound south and to leave it only when he had traveled beyond the boundaries of Michigan. Jensen was warned not to return to this state until after five years had elapsed, upon penalty of a long term in prison. He was thereupon turned over to the custody of the sheriff until train time. Sheriff Moloney escorted him to court and bid him good-bye. Jensen had been a member of the sheriff's "household" so long he had come to be considered one of the "family."

$500 Fine for Rasmussen.

When Peter Rasmussen, who confessed to keeping a house of ill-fame, appeared before Judge Flannigan, a prison sentence was threatened. On the strength of a statement by Dr. A. W. Hornbogen, the man's physician, however, to the effect that the condition of his health would make even a brief confinement in prison serious, Judge Flannigan fined the defendant $500. The money was paid later in the day.

Upon the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney that their punishment be made as light as possible, inasmuch as their conduct in selling liquor had in no wise contributed to the crimes of four young men charged with burglary, Judge Flannigan imposed fines of $150 and costs upon Edgar Lobb and Archie LaCosse, saloonmen who pleaded guilty to selling liquor to minors. Mr. Lobb was given time to answer the bill, because he is out of work and has no money. Mr. LaCosse settled.

The cases of Algot Anderson, Howard Carlson, Stanley School, Edmund Patenaude, Wilmer Harkin and William Gregor Cayva, all minors, the two first named being boys, were disposed of in brief manner. All were paroled. The terms upon which the sextette have their freedom are strict and no breach will be tolerated under any circumstance. For two years the young men are to be practically in the custody of the sheriff and must report to him as frequently as he deems necessary. They must abstain from intoxicants in all forms. They must attend the church in which they were raised, at least one each Sunday. They must keep off the streets at night. They must in all other ways conduct themselves in accordance with any or all rules laid down by the sheriff. After the statement, the young men filed out of the court room and into the office of the sheriff, where they received more explicit and detailed instructions as to their future behavior. If any are found guilty of misconduct or a party to any disgraceful affair, they will be summarily apprehended and held for sentence at the mercy of Judge Flannigan.

City Case Is Involved.

The trial of the case of Wanless & King vs. the board of fire and water commissioners of the city of Marquette dragged on all day yesterday. Court convened a half hour earlier in the morning in order that some headway might be made before adjournment last evening. The entire day was devoted to the business, except for the few minutes necessary to sentence those convicted of criminal offenses. These cases were taken up as soon as court convened in the afternoon.

Very little progress with the suit was made. The case has developed into an attorneys' battle of which legal points are made the issue. But two witnesses for the plaintiff were examined yesterday. These were William Johnston, superintendent of the water board and secretary to the commissioners, and R. C. Young, who was president of the board at the time the Duluth contractors were employed on the intake work. Their testimony dealt with the validity of the contract, over which the attorneys had many lively tilts.
