Ishpeming Department

WILL SOON FINISH WORK.

Representatives of Tax Commission Are Appraising Residence Properties.

The four representatives of the state tax commission who have been working in Ishpeming for the past seven or eight weeks expect to complete their appraisals of real estate in about three weeks. They have not yet been notified where they will go from this city, but they do not expect to spend any more time in Marquette county.

The compiling of the figures for the tax commission's roll will be done by the clerical force. The men who are working here are doing a thorough job and no business block or dwelling in the city will escape them. They are in possession of copies of the tax roll containing all of the descriptions, and they are making a personal visit to every house in Ishpeming, but they do not enter all of them. They have been doing the work so long that they can estimate the value of the average house without looking at the interior.

In most cases where improvements have been made, or where properties have changed hands in recent years, the owners are interviewed, and the sum for which the property sold is ascertained. The tax commission's appraisal is based on these figures, in a majority of cases.

It is understood that the Ishpeming roll will be completely revised by the state commission prior to the October meeting of the county board of review. It has not yet been announced when the meeting will be held, but it is understood that the commission will meet in Neegaunee.

U.S. ARMY STAFF REFIGHTS BATTLES

Eastern Civil War Campaigns Studied by Officers in a 800-Mile Ride.

Washington, June 27.—Every foot of the 800-mile ride over the battlefields of Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, from Washington to Gettysburg, was a tactical fight for the Army War college cavalcade. The horsemen set out May 1, arriving back at the engineers' barracks a few days ago, after forty-five days in the saddle. The veterans of the ride returned bronzed and hard as nails. The results of the trip are regarded as fully justifying the undertaking. The Army War college takes pride in the fact that these historical and staff rides are like nothing undertaken by any of the armies of Europe. Major General Colin Campbell of the British army, adjutant general of the Canadian military forces, who took part in the ride, was wonderfully impressive with its importance and instructive value.

A third guest of the cavalcade was a retired army officer, Brigadier General Frank D. Baldwin, who completed the ride. General Baldwin is seventy-seven years. The cavalcade consisting of thirty-six officers, including the two British soldiers, the retired army officer, a naval officer, two surgeons and the War college staff and student officers—and of a detachment of enlisted men from Fort Myer, nearly as many men again—set forth from Fredericksburg, Va., May 2. Brigadier General William Crozier, president of the college, headed the horsemen. Brigadier General Lippett and Major Benjamin A. Poore of the instructors' corps, directed the march, which was known as the "History and staff ride of 1913." Majors W. W. Harts, corps of engineers, and William D. Connor of the general staff, were along as assistant instructors.

The routes of Southern and Northern armies were followed by the cavalcade. The student officers were instructed in the tactics that guided those armies, and a contrast was made with military conditions today, with the developments of the art of war which would modify the procedure of Federal and Confederate forces were they in the field at this time. Every battle was fought over. The little cavalcade was divided into red and blue armies, which opposed each other and went through the incidents of the former contest—this time without bloodshed or ill will.

The trip was divided into three "staff rides." The campaigns of Fredericks-Chancellorsville and Gettysburg was the general subject undertaken. The first staff ride was based on Lee's campaign against Pope, in 1862, and proceeded from Gordonsville, Va., to the line of the Rappahannock River. The withdrawal of Pope's army from the Rappahannock, in 1862, was considered in the second staff ride. The third staff ride concerned itself with McClellan's advance from Washington to Antietam, in 1862, and was begun in the vicinity of Clarksburg, Md., to the scene of the battle of South Mountain and Keokville, where the battle of Antietam was fought. The cavalcade then proceeded to Gettysburg, where several days were spent in observation of that grilling conflict.

To Widen Scope of Naval College.

Secretary Daniels, who has returned from a tour of inspection of New England navy yards and stations, said he was deeply impressed with the possibilities of the Naval War college at Newport, R. I. As a result of his conference with naval officers there he hopes to devise a plan whereby the college will be useful to a larger number of officers. He has not yet determined a policy, but hopes to arrange so that every naval officer will receive instruction there. One recommendation put forward at the conference was that every officer pursue the long course at the Naval college as a qualification to become a commander of a battleship. The secretary also is considering a suggestion to hold the longer course of eight months at Washington during the winter and to conduct the shorter course at Newport during the summer months. He found a prejudice against Newport as a place of winter residence.

European Cruise Starts in November.

The Atlantic fleet will start on this Mediterranean cruise now being planned earlier than had been expected as a result of Secretary Daniels' decision not to have a mobilization at New York in October. No date has been set but the secretary said that the cruise probably will begin not later than November. This would give the ships ample time to make the European trip and return to Guantanamo, Cuba, for the usual winter exercises. The United States battleship Illinois with 250 naval cadets aboard, is at Antwerp. She will remain at Antwerp for two weeks, and the cadets will have an opportunity to do considerable sight-seeing.

Army Short 1,000 Horses.

The army is now short at least one thousand horses, a greater shortage than has ever before existed. The war department already has expended $100,000 allowed by congress March 4 last, and while another appropriation of $175,000 will be available July 1, at present prices not nearly enough horses can be had to meet the need. Fortunately, however, prices are somewhat lower than last year. Most of the horses purchased are from the Missouri markets, although efforts are being made to gather some horses at Winchester, Va., for the cavalry camp to be established there next month. The quartermaster corps is trying to meet this need for horseflesh by establishing breeding stations on Indian reservations, and Major R. G. Paxton has just organized the first of these at the Cheyenne agency in South Dakota.

German Bid for Borer the Lowest.

That a German concern had been able to pay the custom duties on a great boring machine for the New York navy yard and yet underbid the American toolmakers came as a surprise to navy department officials who are engaged in enlarging the capacity of the New York yard. Experts, however, have decided that the German design for this tool, which weighs more than 600,000 pounds, is not so good as that submitted by some of the American toolmakers, one of whom consequently will receive the award.

GROUNDWORK IS OUTLINED

Charter Commissioners Last Evening Decided on Elective Officers, Their Terms and the Division of the City's Activities Into Five Distinct Departments.

City Attorney Asserts That Present Status of the Library Board Can Be Changed Only by Legislative Enactment—Is Now Expected Work Will Move Rapidly

The charter commission last evening made provision for the nomination of all elective officers for Marquette by petition and primary. For the election of a mayor, four commissioners, justices of the peace, constables and five supervisors, and for the division of the conduct of the city's business into five departments.

The session was attended by lengthy discussions of matters bearing on the business of the evening—and other matters not directly in point—but as a result of the two hours and a quarter's session confidence was expressed that the groundwork of the proposed new charter is laid, and that now the building up of the superstructure will proceed at a more rapid rate.

In preparation for the next session the program committee is to meet to outline further procedure. It is believed that when the work is but little further along the attorneys will be able to take up the task of giving the proposed charter legal phraseology.

The action of the commission last evening, taken as a whole, indicated a disposition to give the commission the city government liberal powers. For instance, it is proposed to give it wide latitude in determining how the different activities shall be grouped under the five departments it is planned to provide for.

Terms of Office.

The committee on terms of office for the elective officers recommended that the mayor should be elected for five years, the commissioner receiving the highest number of votes to serve for a four-year term, the second highest a three-year term, the third highest a two-year term and the fourth highest a one-year term. After the first election it was recommended that there shall be elected annually one commissioner for a term of five years except that every fifth year a mayor shall be elected for a term of five years. The compensation shall be $3 a meeting for actual attendance.

Commissioner Clark suggested that a limitation should be placed on the number of meetings. Commissioner Lantner, a member of the committee, asserted that the committee believed that the matter of the number of meetings to be held should be left to the discretion of the commission. Commissioner Gannon supported the view of Mr. Clark, and Mr. Small endorsed the expressions of Commissioner Lantner.

An amendment was moved by Commissioner Clark that a limit of compensation for fifty-two meetings a year be fixed, and his motion was seconded by Mr. Brown. Commissioner McKereghan suggested that provision be made for ten special meetings, but the suggestion was not pushed. The amendment was adopted by a vote of 5 to 3.

Supervisors at Large.

Commissioner Clark presented a resolution for the election at large of five supervisors, who, together with the assessor, shall compose the board of review. It was seconded by Commissioner Small. Commissioner McKereghan suggested the advisability of electing the supervisors by wards, offering an amendment to that effect, but there was no second. Mr. Clark's resolution carried by a unanimous vote.

Commissioner Small offered a resolution that the qualification of a candidate should be that he shall be a citizen, a qualified voter and a resident of the city for three years. It was unanimously adopted.

Long Discussion Followed.

The report of the committee on proposed division of the city departments was productive of an extended discussion. As presented it provided for five departments, and the committee had outlined with considerable detail the municipal activities that it was planned to include in each. For instance, under the department of public health and safety were included police, fire, health, market master, parks, harbors, playgrounds and fire department.

The discussion covered a wide range of matters germane to the report of the committee and other matters that were not. For instance, Commissioner Lantner asked the city attorney for an opinion on the power of the commission to change the present status of the library board. Mr. Brown asserted that in his opinion the board can be reorganized only by special legislative enactment, and that the charter commissioners have no power in any manner to make provision for the conduct of its affairs. The board is empowered to carry on its work under an old act combining the school library with the Peter White library, and thus is governed by the general law providing for the conduct of school libraries, Mr. Brown says.

Will Have Large Income.

This point is one that has interested many Marquette men, including officials of the present government, for under the new bill prepared by the state tax commission the board will have an annual income of approximately $11,000, or much more than it needs, from the one mill tax.

The extended discussion was finally brought to a close by the action of Commissioner Small in presenting a resolution proposing the adoption of the committee report, but striking out all the detail about the activities to be grouped under the different departments. His motion provides for departments of public affairs; accounting and finance; public works; public health and safety; light and power, and water. It was approved by unanimous vote of the commission, which thereupon adjourned.

TOURING MOTORISTS ARE COMING HERE

Marquette Will Be One of Places Visited on Reliability Run of Chicago Club.

The plans for the annual reliability run of the Chicago Motor club this year contemplate a visit to Marquette. The tentative date for the start of the trip is Sept. 8. The run will, it is said, necessitate harder driving and more nerve than any previous test under the auspices of the Chicago club, as the route planned by the chairman of the contest committee, Charles P. Root, is more extended than those for previous runs, as well as one of a nature to make heavier demands on both the drivers and the cars.

The following have agreed to enter cars, although it is expected that some of them will withdraw: P. E. Ennis, Marmon; Dick Wolfe, Henderson; Zach Elkin, Rambler; Tom Hay, Stayer; Harry Stayer, Stayer; Byrd Sikes, Paige; Claude Anderson, Stutz; A. A. Landry, Marmon; Martin J. Kavanaugh, Midland; M. C. Meigs, Case; W. E. Stalaker, Premier; F. D. Lewin, Chadwick, and the Foraker Motor Trust company, Bessemer truck.

The proposed trip will be made in six days instead of seven. It will be longer than that of 1912, and the daily jaunts will consume more mileage and demand more consistent driving on the part of the drivers. The daily average will be 200.55 miles. The total distance is 1,203.3 miles, and this must be done in sixty-two and one-half hours' driving time.

The first day's run will be to Green Bay, a distance of 225.6 miles, with a noon stop at Meeker, Wis., skipping Milwaukee. From Green Bay the tourists plan to run to Iron Mountain, 132.5 miles, for the noon control, and on to Marquette, for the night stop. The second day will cut off 218 miles of the total distance.

From Marquette the run will be made to Escanaba for the noon control. Last year Escanaba was a night control, but the change has been made on account of the extended daily task assigned to the drivers.

From Escanaba the run to the night control at Newberry will be 125 miles. On the morning of the fourth day the run will be to St. Ignace for the noon stop and ferry of cars across the straits of Mackinac, and instead of remaining in Mackinaw City the tourists will go on to Potoskey for the fourth night's stop. The distance from Mackinaw City to Potoskey is thirty-eight miles and probably will be made in the dark.
