CITY ATTORNEY WRITES ON CHARTER

Discusses Structural Defects in Instrument in First of Series of Papers.

In the following article Mr. Brown, the city attorney, discusses one of the structural defects of the proposed charter. It will be followed by other articles setting forth his views. The Mining Journal expects that the charter commission will see that the points are taken up as Mr. Brown develops them, so that the voters will be able to be fully enlightened on the matters in dispute.

To the Editor of The Mining Journal: I am complimented by the importance which you attribute in recent editorials to what I may deem to be structural defects in the proposed new charter. I may perhaps owe a duty to the public, which I am not disposed to shirk, to point out not only the "structural" defects which I see in the proposed charter, but also objectionable matters of policy therein, assured of your courteous editorial consideration.

I favored and urged charter revision, in order that defects in the present charter might be remedied, and also that some re-distribution might be had of powers to the end that better co-ordination might be secured between related municipal departments. I am as thoroughly impressed as anyone with the advantages of the application of modern business corporation methods to municipal activities, and believe that and may be attained by amendment of our present charter, with out the surrender of its many valuable features and the adoption of objectionable features incorporated in the proposed charter. It has been suggested that defects in the latter may be remedied by the process of amendment after its adoption. Defects of the present charter may as easily be remedied by the same process. Such defects are, in my opinion, far less in number and importance than those in the proposed charter, many of the defects of the latter being the omission entirely of valuable features of the present charter and board acts, and the substitution for tried and tested provisions of other impracticable and less effective ones.

Not because of its relative importance, but because first of the objectionable features to receive newspaper notice first disease. See, 19, Chapter 33, that "neither the mayor nor any other member of the board of commissioners, nor any elective or appointive employee of the city, shall be directly or indirectly in the employ of any person, company or corporation holding or seeking to hold any franchise of the city of Marquette," etc.

Neither the limits of your space, or the present purpose of my writing, permit me to go far in citation of the statutes and court decisions which in my judgment will conclusively sustain, against the mere opinions of others, the proposition that the section referred to will disqualify from holding any elective or appointive office or employment in the city all persons directly or indirectly in the employ of either the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway company, the Munising, Marquette & Southeastern railway, the Marquette City & Presque Isle Railway company and the Cleveland Cliff's Iron company, all of which hold "franchises" from the city in the proper sense of the term as defined by abundance of authority.

The citizen unlearned in the law may understand to whom Sec. 19 applies by a simple reading together, as a court would do, of Secs. 15, 17, 18 and 19 of Chapter 33 entitled "franchises." (The side note to Sec. 15 erroneously contains the word "street," the section not being confined in its terms to street railways).

The public interest in the published statement of its president that the charter commission was of the belief "that railroads operate under a state franchise and only hold a license from the city to use the streets," warrants citation here of enough from the mass of authority on the subject to indicate the substance of it all, viz:

Franchises are of three classes: First, the right to organize and exist as a corporation; second, the right to act generally as a corporation; third, the special privileges granted to it which are not possessed by the individual under general laws. In the third class of franchises are the licenses or easements to use streets for various purposes which have become vested property rights (125 Mich. 673).

"When the right to lay and maintain tracks and operate cars thereon is granted and accepted and all conditions imposed incident to the right performed, it ceases to be a mere license and becomes a valid contract. Grants of this nature are often spoken of as licenses on the theory that a municipal corporation cannot grant a franchise, but can only grant a license, yet they are franchises in every essential particular as much as though they had been granted directly by the legislature" (Thomp. Corp., Sec. 5335). "The privilege of laying railroad tracks and maintaining and operating cars thereon for hire is undoubtedly a franchise" (McQuillin Municipal Ordinances, Sec. 567).

"A grant by a city ordinance to a railroad company, whose charter authorizes it to build its track through any street or highway of the right to build a track along a city street, is a franchise in the proper sense of the term, as the authority to exercise such right in fact comes from the legislature through the corporate authority of the city as agent of the state" (33 Cyc. 195).

The general railroad law, empowers railway corporations to "hold and use all such lands, and real estate and franchises and other property as may be necessary;" etc. In many Michigan supreme court cases municipal licenses to use streets for railroad tracks are referred to as "franchises." For example, "defendant, Detroit, Monroë & Toledo Shore Line railway, operated under the general laws of the state, has no franchise from the municipality" 143 Mich. 217. Again, "a city may withhold a franchise to build and operate a railroad in a street" 149 Mich. 535. In the latter case it was held that such a municipal franchise was a proper element of value to take into account in the assessment of railroad property for taxation.

In my opinion there can be little said in support of the policy of excluding from participation in city affairs, as officers or employees, of so large a proportion of our most capable citizenship, from which class so many mayors, aldermen and commission and board members have been selected in the past.

Respectfully,
GEORGE P. BROWN.

U. S. EXPERTS TO FORM PIG CLUBS

Agricultural Department Men Ask Boys of the South to Make Pork Supply.

Washington, Nov. 2.—From present indications the country boys and girls are teaching the old folks lots of things in the way of turning an honest penny into more and more profitable channels than the latter ever dreamed possible. For instance, from a section of land ranging from a quarter of an acre to an acre, the youngsters are, by pure industry and the exercise of a little intelligence, wringing hundreds of dollars from an unwilling soil.

The financial results attending the efforts of the numerous boys' corn clubs and girls' canning clubs have proved that fact beyond all possible dispute. And the torments derived "book learning" inculcated by the almost omniscient department of agriculture is largely to blame for it all. Not content, however, with the splendid results obtained by these juvenile clubs, Uncle Sam's sharps are already hard at work organizing throughout the sunny South Boys' Pig clubs, for the purpose of increasing the supply of pork and encouraging the good breeding of hogs.

Reach Every Southern State.

It is the purpose of the officials of the department of agriculture to organize such clubs in every southern state. What puzzles them is the self-evident question, namely, "if such clubs can be successfully organized in the South, why not in the West? Why not in the North? Why not in every section of the United States?" What's good for the South ought to be equally beneficial to the other parts of the United States.

The idea of the organization started with the Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration branch of the department and has been carried on with the co-operation of the animal husbandry division of the bureau of animal industry. The organization is an offshoot of the Boy's Corn club, which has an organization in every southern state and which has been the means of producing record-breaking yields of corn. The Pig club, when thoroughly organized, will, it is expected, work hand in hand with the Corn club. The boys of the latter will produce the corn and the boys of the newly organized association will see to it that the pigs are produced to eat the corn.

Lower State Notes

LANSING—Secretary of State Martindale offered a resolution at the meeting of the St. Clair Flats commission, which was unanimously adopted, providing that the commission offer to deed to the Michigan Audubon society the island at St. Clair Flats, located near the new ship building plant which he alleges to be the gift is that it be called Jefferson Butler island, in memory of the president of the Audubon society who was killed in Detroit last week. It is thought that the island can be converted into a sort of a bird refuge. The commission will hold a meeting Dec. 2 to determine upon the leases for the property at the flats.

FLINT—John Murray, a clerk in the purchasing department of the Buick Motor company, has begun suit against Ethel Garner, formerly a clerk in the Pere Marquette freight office, for $140. The price of a diamond ring which he alleges he gave her following their engagement, and which he says she failed to return when the engagement was broken. Murray's attorneys say he gave Miss Garner the ring with the understanding that it was to be hers to keep only on condition they were wedded. The case was to have been heard last week, but the defendant did not appear. It is said Miss Garner has gone to British Columbia.

LANSING—The charter commissioners of Saginaw won a signal victory in the supreme court, when the court granted a writ of mandamus against the common council of Saginaw, and ordered that body to prepare with reasonable speed for the special election that has been called for Nov. 15, when a vote is to be taken on the proposed city charter. The contention of the council was that an appeal of a case had been taken to the supreme court in which the constitutionality of the home rule act was involved, and that no election should be held until that case was settled. The court holds that the fact of a case pending does not constitute a valid reason for a delay of the election. Another contention of the council was that there was not sufficient time left before Nov. 15 to name a board of registration to enable the voters to register. The court was convinced that enough time remains for that action.

Will Take Advantage of Panama Canal in Striving to Retain Sea Supremacy.

London, Nov. 2.—British shipowners and merchants, in every line of production, are endeavoring to take advantage of the Panama canal, for any change that will come over the trade of the world as a result of the opening of the Panama canal.

Pure Water Proposition Carried. The proposition to bond the village of Munising for $23,000—the limit allowed by the state statutes in addition to the previous bonded indebtedness—was submitted to a vote of the qualified electors, with the result that it was carried, 223 to 68.

COAL MINED IN NO MAN'S LAND

Shipment of 38,000 Tons Taken Out in Exploration Sent Out This Year by Arctic Coal Company in Which J. M. Longyear Is One of the Principal Owners.

Present Stage of the Enterprise Represents Eight Years' Continuous Work—International Status of the Island a Question Still to Be Determined.

Asked Saturday if he could verify a report that the Arctic Coal company, operating in Spitzbergen, had purchased a line of freighters to carry coal from the company's mines in No Man's land to continental ports, J. M. Longyear said he was afraid he could not, as the company has taken no such step.

The Arctic Coal company this year shipped to southern ports some 38,000 tons, more than had been forwarded in any previous season, but more, also, than will likely be forwarded next year, for Mr. Longyear explained that the shipment was incidental to the development of the company's property.

The geological conditions place no bar on successful mining in the Spitzbergen coal fields. The veins on the Arctic company's property are uniform to a surprising degree, running about three feet six inches in depth, and the mining problem is a simple one. The veins are underrun, and the coal drops from the sandstone capping which overlaps it.

A deposit of over 69,000,000 tons has been indicated by the company's operations to date. The mines are wrought by from 250 to 300 men, and, although the shipping season lasts but three months, mining is carried on throughout the year.

It is ten years since Mr. Longyear's attention was first directed to the coal resources of Spitzbergen, and the present stage of the Arctic coal company's enterprise represents eight years' continuous development, conducted on a constantly increasing scale.

This latter phase of the matter is one that continues to give concern to the men interested in the company, for Spitzbergen remains No Man's land, and although the Arctic Iron company holds title to its 170 square miles of land by purchase from a Norwegian company, by exploration and by possession, it is regarded as an interloper.

In fact, the company's land has already been entered upon by a force of Russians who have undertaken exploration and who have carried it forward sufficiently so that they have shipped a cargo of coal. What to do about these invaders is one of the many problems that give concern to the officials of the Arctic Coal company.

The officials of the Arctic Coal company have met with no more success obtaining satisfactory assurances about the backing it will get from the American state department than Norway has encountered in bringing the Powers together to deal with the subject.

Anti-Saloon Leader Announces That He Will Further Invade Wood's District.

It now appears that the debate between Senator Wood and J. Frank Burke, the Anti-Saloon league leader, at Manistique will not be the last chapter in the controversy between these men.

He is generally predicted that the campaign of Mr. Burke will give much prominence to the "swell" vs. "dry" issue in the Thirtieth senatorial district, if Senator Wood is a candidate for re-election.

He will maintain further that you aided in getting a bill out in the senate which would have repealed the local option law of the state.

There is one further condition, senator, that I must insist on if you are to speak. That is that you shall in each one of these meetings read from the liquor dealers' circular concerning me that you read from the other night after I had no opportunity to reply.
