Instead of vice owning Blackwell, virtue triumphs, almost to a degree, the visitors say, of mountanity.

LOWER STATE NOTES

PORT HURON—With the introduction of Lincoln Avory, a well-known attorney into the fight against Supervisor George W. Drought, charged with using corrupt tactics at an election, Port Huron citizens are awaiting, expectantly, the outcome of the trial which was adjourned until Nov. 20. Prosecuting Attorney George announced that he had retained Mr. Avory to assist him in the prosecution. Lined up against them will be Joseph Walsh and John B. McIlwain, two of Port Huron's ablest attorneys. Drought was generally blamed by Mayor Dixon's friends for the downfall of the present administration Tuesday. It is pointed out that if it had not been charged that he tampered with ballots in his precinct at least two or more of the old commissioners would have been returned to office.

The winner of the Marathon race did not spend his time looking backward to see how much ground he had covered or how hard the road had been — he looked forward. ## BOSTON BOAT AS A CUP DEFENDER

George Lawley Says One Will Be Built—All the Contenders Will Be Large.

New York, Nov. 6.—Although nothing definite has been announced it is the feeling among yachtsmen who know that Boston will be represented with a cup defender next year. George Lawley, the veteran builder, who has turned out many famous yachts from his yard, including successful defenders of the America's cup, probably will be the builder. He has been negotiating with a yachtsman, and although he declines to say who the yachtsman is or who is to design the boat he recently remarked: "I have a feeling in my bones that a Boston boat will be built." Yachtsmen are wondering who the designer will be. George Owen who designed the Dorella and some yachts of the P and Q classes, has no commission to design a defender yet and is not negotiating with any yachtsman. B. B. Crownshield has been suggested but Crownshield has not designed a big boat of importance in the racing world since he designed the Independence in 1901. That boat was very fast under certain conditions, but was no match for the Columbia or Constitution. The Independence was built under the old rule and except for some small boats Crownshield has not had much experience with the new rule. He is, however, an able designer who has kept in touch with the rules and with the models that have been developed, and he could, it is thought, design a cup yacht that would be a credit to Boston, particularly as the present rule gives a designer so much latitude.

W. Starling Burgess, John G. Alden and E. A. Boardman are three Boston designers who have been successful with small boats, but have not had the experience necessary to turn out a racing craft seventy-five feet on the water line, and it is doubtful if any yachtsman or syndicate of yachtsmen would care to take a chance with these men, however able they may be with small craft, on a big yacht like a cup defender. The defenders, according to all accounts, will be quite large and will range considerably over eighty feet. That means that they will spread between 9,000 and 10,000 square feet of canvas. They can do this without incurring very heavy penalties as the sail area is measured and the time allowance figured according to the rating. The opinion among yachtsmen is that the challenger will be a high powered yacht in spite of what Nicholson says about the heavy tax put on sail area according to the American rule. It is argued here that it will be better to give time rather than take time, and for that reason the defenders will be canvassed up to the limit of their carrying capacities.

boat, with the stipulation that he shall not accept an order from another yachtsman or syndicate to design another sloop for the same purpose. No other restrictions have been placed upon Mr. Gardner, who is to produce the fastest yacht possible under the present rule of the New York Yacht club. It has not been announced who the builder of the yacht will be. Mr. Cochran, who is to bear the entire expense of the building and racing of the yacht, is best known to yachtsmen and the public through his phenomenal success aboard with the schooner Westward, which was designed and built for him by the Herreshoffs in 1910. She crossed the Atlantic that year and defeated all comers in German and British waters, winning among other prizes the Kaiser's cup at Cowes, on August 10. The schooner was afterward sold to a German yachtsman and Mr. Cochran has not owned a yacht since.

THEFT OF $72,000 STILL A MYSTERY

Three Hundred Detectives Fail to Find Solution of Trunk Robbery at Savannah, Ga.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 6.—Mystery more baffling than that surrounding any other theft in the history of express company robberies, and rivaling that of any plot of Conan Doyle, surrounds the disappearance of a shipment of $72,000 from New York to Savannah on Sept. 8. The money was delivered to the Adams Express company in Jersey City by the Chase National bank on a Monday night, in a sealed trunk. When delivered to the Savannah Bank and Trust company the opening of the package revealed nothing but empty envelopes and newspapers.

Since that time the watchdogs of the express companies have not slept. Within an hour after the discovery of the robbery every special agent of the secret service had been notified, and the weaving of a net from New York to Savannah began. Today that net is regarded as perfect. It is composed of 100 men, who know that they may be on this special assignment for a few weeks or for years.

During the days that have elapsed since the robbery the Adams and Southern Express companies have spent more than $22,000 in the effort to locate the thief. Three hundred detectives have worked on the case.

At this time, what is considered the greatest aggregation of detectives ever on a single case in American history stands baffled, without one tangible clue on which to work. Through the slow process of elimination the number of employes of the express and railroad companies under suspicion has been reduced to 140.

Searched Right of Way.

Experience has taught the detectives that in ninety-nine out of every 100 robberies such as this an employe of either the express or railroad companies is implicated. A search of the right-of-way from New York to Savannah was made in the effort to find a piece of paper or other evidence that might furnish a line to work upon. But nothing resulted. There are 500 stations between New

WHERE IS THE LOST DIME?

Here is a little problem that may be of interest to some of the younger members of the family as well as the grown-ups, says the Boston Post.

An apple woman had two kinds of apples on the stand, one being marked three for a dime and the other two for a dime. Presently a customer came along who bought five for twenty cents, and then another did the same thing.

Upon thinking the matter over the apple woman concluded that she would get rid of her stock more quickly that way, so she determined to put the lot in at five for twenty cents.

Upon counting up her stock she found she had just thirty of each kind, so she removed the two signs, mixed the apples all up and put up the new sign at the new price.

At the end of the day, the stock being all sold, she found she had lost ten cents by the transaction, but she could not account for it, because she argued that if she could sell two apples for a dime and three for a dime, each lot to a different customer, she could certainly afford to sell the five to one customer. Where lies the loss?

There are about 400,000 persons in the government employ, of whom about 35,000 are at Washington, D. C. The largest number, of course, is in the post-office department, where about 100,000 are employed.

WILLIAM J. GILL ANSWERS FINAL CALL

One of Best Known Residents of Western End of County Passed Away Yesterday.

William J. Gill, a well-known resident of Beacon and brother of Joseph H. Gill of IshpeMING, passed away yesterday morning at 3 o'clock. Death did not come unexpectedly, as Mr. Gill, who was afflicted with cancer of the stomach, had been gradually sinking and was unconscious for more than twelve hours before the end.

Last spring Mr. Gill went to the IshpeMING hospital and submitted to a surgical operation. His condition was then critical, but he improved somewhat for a few weeks following the operation. He had been confined to his bed for nearly a month before his death.

Mr. Gill was a native of England, was fifty-nine years of age. He had lived at Beacon since 1875, moving there from Humboldt, where he had spent three years. In his younger days he was a druggist and for several years he was in the employ of a man named McKay, who conducted a drug business in Humboldt and Champion. After living at Champion a few years, Mr. Gill bought out his employer and conducted the business on his own account until some fifteen years ago, when the store was destroyed by fire.

Mr. Gill was one of the best known men in the western end of the county and he had many friends in that district. He was almost as well known in IshpeMING, as he was a frequent visitor to this city. A widow and eight children, all of whom were at the bedside when the end came, mourn him. Besides Joseph Gill, there are two other brothers and a sister living.

The sister, Mrs. Thomas Oliver, who resides in Butte, Mont., is at present visiting her old home in England. The children are Mrs. Minnie Simons of Sudbury, Can.; Mrs. William Tonkin, of Calumet; Mrs. Keast, wife of Rev. Lewis Keast, pastor of the Salisbury Methodist church in this city; Edwin, of Copper Cliff, Can.; Harold, of IshpeMING, and the Misses Bertha, Luella and Julia. The two former are school teachers in the copper country, and the latter lives at home.

Mr. Gill was a member of Champion lodge, No. 204, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, also of the Modern Woodmen of America. The funeral will be held Sunday, under auspices of the Odd Fellows. Services will be conducted at the house at noon. The body will be brought to IshpeMING on the South Shore train arriving at 2:10, and will be taken direct from the station to the IshpeMING cemetery.

MISS ELSIE MAGNUSEN PASSES IN CHICAGO

After Apparently Recovering from Appendicitis Operation, Death Comes Suddenly.

Word was received yesterday morning of the death in Chicago of Miss Elsie Magnusen, daughter of Herman Magnuson of the IshpeMING Store company. The news of her passing, which was conveyed in a telegram to her father, was received with great sorrow by the relatives and friends of the young lady.

Miss Magnusen, who was graduated from the IshpeMING High school last June, and who soon after accepted a position as stenographer in Butler Bros. wholesale house, Chicago, was taken ill with appendicitis less than a month ago. Saturday, Oct. 18, her father received a telegram informing him of her condition, and he left the following day for Chicago. Monday Miss Magnusen submitted to an operation. She got along exceptionally well and was soon out of the hospital. But she was taken critically ill again on Wednesday and on receipt of a message her mother left that night and was with her when she passed away at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Gust Anderson, formerly of this city, with whom she boarded.

The deceased was a little over eight years of age, she having been born in IshpeMING June 4, 1895. She was a popular girl, and her death is deeply regretted by her young friends, and especially by the members of her school class. Besides the parents a brother and sister survive.

The body will be received in the city today.

What Commission Government Has Done in Other Cities.

To the Editor of The Mining Journal—In Thursday's issue of The Mining Journal appeared an article on "City Finances" in which it was clearly shown that although the valuation of the city's property has nearly doubled during the last eleven years, yet the rate of taxation is $2.14 now as compared with $2.08 eleven years ago. It may, therefore, not be out of place to call attention to a few things done in commission-governed cities along the line of reduction of taxes, etc.

By way of introduction let me state that there are now approximately 250 cities in the United States that have the commission form of government. In states where this form could not be adopted under home rule acts state-wide laws have been passed authorizing the commission plan. Such laws are now in force in Alabama, California (cities under 10,000), Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana (with certain exceptions), Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota, North Carolina, Texas (cities under 10,000), Utah, Washington (cities under 20,000) and Wisconsin. Then there are ten other states, of which Michigan is one, in which the home rule charters grant the right to establish the commission plan of government. If, therefore, any general argument were necessary in favor of the commission plan, the fact that nineteen states of the union have placed themselves on record by statutes in favor of this plan ought alone to have considerable weight. In fact the movement in favor of this plan of municipal government has become so general, far-reaching, that it will undoubtedly go down in history as one of the leading movements for civic betterment during the beginning of the Twentieth century. It is not surprising therefore that unbiased experts and scholars have carefully investigated and scrutinized this new plan with a view of determining its strong and weak points. Paraphrasing what we find in one of the leading movements for civic betterment during the beginning of the Twentieth century. "All this was paid out of current revenues, besides the elimination of the floating debt, amounting to over $500,000. While these improvements have been going on the tax rate has been reduced thirty cents on the $100.

"In 1905 the price of gas was $1.50 per thousand; today it is $1.05 and next year $1, and the company pays one per cent annually upon its gross receipts. In 1905 the price of arc lights was $80 per year; now it is $70 per year. In 1906 the city of Houston purchased the water plant from a private corporation for $901,000 for it. The source of supply is artesian wells in the heart of the city. At the time of purchase the private corporation was charging fifty cents per thousand meter rate for water, and often pumping from the stream which flows through Houston, thus not giving to the community pure water. Today, under municipal ownership, the city of Houston charges only 15 cents per thousand gallons for water, on a meter basis and it is all from artesian wells and absolutely pure. The plant is worth today three times its cost to the city. The tax rate has been reduced from $2 to $1.70."

In a pamphlet issued by the Kansas City Star the first year's results of commission government in Des Moines are summed up as follows (p. 251):

"Des Moines has been operating under the commission plan for more than a year and that city has a population of 100,000. Here are some of the results of the first year of the new rule in that city:

"The police force taken out of politics, reorganized, increased and kept to a higher standard of efficiency than ever before. The same improvement has been made in the fire department.

"The streets are in better condition as to repairs; are cleaner and better lighted; more paving and more sidewalks built than ever before.

"All Des Moines streets were re-named and neat street signs placed at every corner.

"Water rates reduced 20 per cent.

"Wages of day laborers raised to $2.25 and teamsters to $4.50, for an eight-hour day.

"An arch cement bridge eighty feet wide built across the Des Moines river at a cost of $150,000 and paid for without a bond issue.

"The sanitary conditions improved.

"Politics entirely eliminated from every department of the city.

"All complaints of citizens for temporary repairs in sidewalks, streets, sewers, etc., attended to the same day they are received.

"Seventy-one more arc lights established on the streets and 634 lights that formerly burned on the moonlight schedule now burn every at an expense of almost $12,000 less than the old rate."

"All this improvement in Des Moines city government has been made at a saving to the taxpayers of more than $224,000 in a year, and in addition the tax levy for next year has been reduced almost three mills."

In some respect the most searching investigation made of commission government was made by Henry Bruere, director of the New York bureau of municipal research, assisted by William Shepherson, of the same bureau. They published their results this year under the title, "The New City Government: A Discussion of Municipal Administration Based on a Survey of Ten Commission-Governed Cities."

These careful experts actually went to those ten cities and carefully examined the pros and cons of commission government. After giving the strong and the telling points of this form of government, they came to the following conclusion (p. 99):

"It may be said without qualification that the commission is a vast improvement over a mayor and a council government, insofar as it simplifies the relation between the electorate and the government. Irrespective of probable administrative advantage, this fact alone warrants its adoption by American cities.

"Since the first appearance of this book the writer has been asked frequently whether, in his judgment, cities desiring more efficient government may expect to obtain it by adopting the commission plan. Unquestionably the experience of the majority of cities now governed by commission indicates that adoption of the new plan is almost certain to raise the level of a city government."

In conclusion let us state that the proposed revised charter for the city of Marquette is based on a careful study of the best features of a large number of successful commission charters, adapted to the best needs of Marquette. Among them are the charters of the cities referred to above. If this simple, direct and businesslike form of municipal government has led to greater efficiency and economy in the administration of civic affairs in so many other cities, it seems but reasonable that it will accomplish the same results for Marquette if it is equally well administered. And I am sure we are not ready to admit that we have less efficient citizens here in Marquette for the administration of civic affairs than in the average city under commission government.

WASHINGTON WOULD KEEP SCHOOL HEAD

Campaigns Energetically for Retention of Educator Offered Bigger Pay at Pittsburgh.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The helplessness of the national capital to keep itself in line with modern progress is well illustrated by the peculiar situation which has arisen over William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools. The incident is full of significance for the patriot who is ambitious to see Washington set the pace for the country in civic improvement. Dr. Davidson came here July 1, 1911, at a salary of $6,000 a year. His administration has been popular and successful in the best use of this characterization. The city of Pittsburgh has offered him $9,000 a year to accept the like position there, and the District of Columbia is powerless to offer him any inducement to remain except through an act of congress—and where one man in congress is earnestly interested in the welfare of Washington, one hundred men are nothing for it. Dr. Davidson meantime has patriotically withheld any decision as to what step he will take. He likes Washington, yet he owes it to himself and his family to increase his income if he can do so properly.

Trying to Shame Congress.

But the episode is teaching a more cheerful lesson than the foregoing might imply; for the people have arisen in their might—such as it is—and a campaign for the retention of Dr. Davidson is on which is as absorbing in its way as anything New York or Massachusetts can show in politics. In a word, the citizens have proposed a five-cent subscription for the purpose of adding enough to Dr. Davidson's salary to cause him to remain here. Another purpose is to shame congress into action, and thus guarantee that the children of the national capital shall not be brought up under an inferior educational system.

This movement has brought quick results in congress. Representative James B. Aswell of Louisiana has introduced a bill increasing the salary of the superintendent of schools to $10,000 a year. Dr. Aswell is himself an educator, and his standing as such gives weight to his action. While president of the Louisiana Industrial Institute he was elected state superintendent of education without opposition, and while holding this position was elected chancellor of the University of Mississippi, but was prevented from accepting the place by the earnest solicitation of the Louisiana teachers. When Dr. Aswell says, therefore, that the superintendent of schools of Washington should receive $10,000 a year he speaks with the authority of knowledge.

Living on Sunshine and Climate.

Public men of all shades are expressing the hope that Dr. Davidson will remain. Secretary Bryan, who knew him in Nebraska, has spoken for him. "Although his departure meant a great loss to Nebraska," said Mr. Bryan, "I was eager that he change because of the importance of making the school system of this city a model." The board of education is moving to help out. The business men have taken a hand. Henry George, a member of the committee on District of Columbia, is fighting shoulder to shoulder with Dr. Aswell for an increase. Yet should Dr. Davidson remain until the earliest moment when an increase of salary could become effective—July 1, 1914—he would lose $2,530.

Says Dr. Aswell:

"Washington, the centre of social and political thought, should be the world centre in public education. Dr. Davidson is one of the foremost schoolmen of America. You may talk about a model city government for Washington, but you can't build it until you first have an up-to-date system of public schools. Your superintendent of schools, whose business it is to mould and inspire the life of your own children and to uplift society, is expected to live on sunshine and climate."
