BIG BATTLES START ON ALL BUT ONE FRONT

TURK THEATER, BALKANS, WEST, ALL ARE ACTIVE

In Mesopotamia Field Marshal von der Goltz is About to Attack; Bulgars Have Begun Hit at Anglo-French in Serbia and Allies Are on Offensive in Gallipoli

Germans in Belgium and France Concentrate Reinforcements and Artillery—Teutonic Plan in Near East, Believed to Be to Strike Before Foe Becomes too Strong.

London, Dec. 7, 10:15 p. m.—Important battles have begun or are impending in Mesopotamia, where the German field marshal, Baron von der Goltz, has taken command of the Turkish forces and is about to attack the British at Kut-El-Amara; in southeastern Serbia, where the Bulgarians already have attacked the Anglo-French positions, and have been repulsed; on Gallipoli, where, according to Turkish accounts, the allies have taken the offensive, and in Belgium and France, where, reports from Holland state, the Germans have concentrated strong reinforcements and an immense amount of artillery with the object of striking a blow at the allied line in Flanders and Artois.

BATTLES ONLY STARTING. Except in Serbia, the battles have not developed beyond the preliminary stage so far as is known, the artillery alone of the different arms being active. Along the Vardar-Cerna-Karasi front, in Serbia, the Bulgarians already have commenced their attack against the Anglo-French and it is reported that the German army of General von Gallwitz has been reorganized and reinforced, and is marching south to take part in the operations.

It is evidently the intention of the Germans to strike hard before the allies, who continue to land troops at Saloniki, have completed their preparations. It is reported that the Germans have 40,000 men available. There is no indication of the Bulgarian or Anglo-French strength, but one report says that five allied divisions (nearly 100,000 men) have been landed thus far. The battle, therefore, will be one of the greatest importance.

According to the French all the Bulgarian attacks have been repulsed, but the Germans claim that the French were compelled to give up their positions at the junction of the Vardar and Cerna rivers to avoid being enveloped.

GREEK ATTITUDE PUZZLING. The situation for the allies is complicated by the attitude of the Greek government. The negotiations at Athens have not yet reached a satisfactory conclusion, and although the Greek king has reaffirmed his neutrality and repeated his assurances that Greek troops will never attack the allies, the situation still causes great anxiety.

The Austrians continue their offensive against the Montenegrins and Serbians and are following the Serbs into Albania, where the retreat is rendered extremely difficult owing to the cold weather and the bad roads. There are said to be 100,000 Serbian troops and 20,000 refugees in Albania, and it is reported that Serbians are taking with them 40,000 Austrian prisoners who were captured during previous campaigns.

The position of the Serbians is rendered even more serious by the success of the Austrian cruiser Novara and destroyers in sinking steamers which had arrived at San Giovanni di Medua, with supplies and war material for them.

In view of the probability of Germany asking Great Britain for safe conduct for her attaches whose recall from the United States has been asked, considerable interest is taken in the action of the German submarine in removing from a Greek steamer the British attaché, Colonel Napier, who was on his way to London from Sofia.

TURKS OPERATE WITH VIGOR. Berlin, by Wireless to Tuckerton, N. J., Dec. 7.—Advices received here from the front at Mesopotamia are to the effect that the Turks are continuing to operate vigorously against the British expedition along the Tigris river. They have driven the troops from the region of Bagdad within intrenchments at Kut-El-Amara and also expelled them from the north bank of the Tigris at this point.

The Turks, it is asserted, continue to capture the transport wagons attached to the expedition, a large portion of which were unable to reach the advance base at Kut-El-Amara. Much ammunition was captured just above Kut-El-Amara. The losses in transports, it is said, not only will prevent a renewal of the British advance against Bagdad, but will endanger the further retreat of the expedition in case it should be driven from Kut-El-Amara.

ALLIES' OFFENSIVE BLUFF?

Cologne, Dec. 7, via London, Dec. 8, 3:01 a. m.—The Cologne Gazette's Constantinople correspondent says: "The entente allies have begun a great offensive at the Dardanelles, perhaps in consequence of Earl Kitchener's visit, but the Turkish authorities are inclined to believe it is only a bluff.

Thirty entente allied aeroplanes on Saturday attacked Usun Kuepru, an important military and railway center on the line from Constantinople to Adrianople, throwing many bombs, but traffic on the line was maintained."

MONTENEGRINS RETIRING.

Paris, Dec. 7, 10:35 p. m.—The Montenegrin consul general here today received the following official communication: "On the 5th the enemy attacked our advance posts near Tehelrich and in the direction of Pljevo. Our weak detachments, by stubborn fighting, hold out the whole day and then retired to their principal lines of defense. The general situation has compelled us to evacuate Dijasava. There is no change on their other fronts.

"On the 6th two Austrian aeroplanes dropped eight bombs on Cetinje, causing insignificant damage."

AIM OF GREECE, PREMIER SAYS, IS NEUTRALITY

Athens, Dec. 6, via Paris, Dec. 7, 12:35 p. m.—An agreement for a conference of Greek military authorities and military representatives of the entente powers to examine into and report upon the necessities of the situation respecting the allied demands upon Greece has been reached and the preliminary steps toward holding the conference have been taken, Premier Skouloudis announced today.

"Tell the American people, that the government of Greece has only two aims—to safeguard the sovereignty of Greece and not to abandon neutrality no matter for what reason she may be urged to do so, no matter what inducements or pressures are brought to bear," said the premier to the Associated Press correspondent in an interview today.

BULGARIA WILL GET MUCH SERBIAN LAND VIENNA WRITER SAYS

Berlin, via London, Dec. 7, 8:15 p. m.—Serbia's future status, which is the subject of much speculation not only in Austria, but in Germany, is discussed today in an article in the "Vossische Zeitung" by the Vienna political writer, Dr. Friedjung.

Dr. Friedjung regards it as a settled matter, in view of the utterances of Bulgarian statesmen, that Bulgaria will retain not only eastern Serbia, including Nish and Pirot, which have predominantly Bulgarian populations, but also Macedonia and a strip of the Danube giving a common frontier to Hungary and Bulgaria.

ASKS CONGRESS TO PROVIDE FOR BETTER DEFENSE

President in His Annual Message Deals for Most Part With National Preparedness and Denounces Naturalized Citizens of U. S. Who Endanger Neutrality

Touching on Pan-Americanism, Mr. Wilson Says from the Monroe Doctrine Has Grown a Friendship Between the Two Continents Lasting and Strong.

Washington, Dec. 7.—President Wilson in his annual address to congress today, dealing mainly with national defense, proclaimed an advanced Pan-Americanism grown from the guardianship of the Monroe doctrine to "the full and honorable association" of all the Americas.

Although in the longest address he has yet delivered to congress the president touched upon a variety of subjects the predominating note was the necessity of a policy of military preparedness to meet the readjustments of the next generation as they will affect the American continent. He emphasized his point by saying: "Unless you take it within your view to permit the full significance of it to command your thought, I cannot find the right light in which to set forth the particular matter that lies at the very front of my whole thought as I address you today. I mean national defense."

ATTACKS THOSE NOT NEUTRAL.

The point was not overshadowed when the president, in the most unmeasured terms he ever has employed before congress denounced naturalized Americans who, by their sympathies for the European belligerents, have endangered American neutrality. While congress cheered him loudly he referred to them as having "poured the poison of disloyalty into the very arteries of our national life" and as those who "would turn in malign reaction against the government and the people who had welcomed and nurtured them."

With evidences of deep feeling the president expressed "the even deeper humiliation and scorn which every self-possessed and thoughtful patriotic American must feel when he thinks of them and of the discredit they are daily bringing upon us."

While the president's outline of the administration plan for the army and navy passed without a ripple of applause, and his references to Pan-Americanism were only punctuated with evidences of approval, Republicans and Democrats alike joined in an emphatic demonstration at his words of condemnation for those he assailed so unreservedly.

URGES MERCHANT MARINE.

Great democracies, the president said, are peaceful, not seeking war and without thought of conquest or dominion. Frequent demonstrations of approval greeted the president's declaration of the manifest duty of America to remain "studiously neutral" toward the warring nations abroad, his assertion of friendship for Mexico, his urgent recommendations for an increased merchant marine, the suggestion of legislation for furthering the interests of the people of the Philippines and Porto Rico and his recommendations for increasing government revenues.

But chief attention centered about the delineation of the plans for national defense, the proclamation of Pan-Americanism and the virility of the president's attack upon Americans who, he said, had brought the good name of the government into contempt. He delivered his denunciation in crisp phrases and congress seemed to hang on each word. Cheers rose from every part of the hall when he concluded and the demonstration

POPE POINTS HOW WAR STRIKES AT HOLY SEE

Some of Ambassadors and Ministers Forced to Leave Vatican "to Maintain Dignity."

Rome, Dec. 7.—Pope Benedict in his allocution delivered before the secret consistory yesterday dwelt upon the misfortunes which the war has brought upon the Holy See and referred to his previous complaint that the pontiff had been deprived of the liberty necessary for the government of the church. He said that some of the ambassadors and ministers, by reason of such a state of events, had left the vatican "in order to maintain their personal dignity and the prerogatives of their office."

"Certainly those who govern Italy are not wanting in good intentions to eliminate the inconveniences," said the pontiff, "but this of itself clearly demonstrates that the position of the pontiff is dependent upon the civil authorities and that, with a change of men and circumstances, the position itself might change for the worse."

"No reasonable man can assert that a position so uncertain, so dependent upon the arbitrary power of others, can be that which properly becomes the apostolic see."

ST. LOUIS GETS 1916 MEETING OF DEMOCRATS

Washington, Dec. 7.—The Democratic national convention of 1916 will be held at St. Louis, beginning Wednesday, June 14, at noon. The Democratic national committee tonight named the convention city and adopted resolutions calling for the renomination and reelection of Woodrow Wilson as "the trusted leader of national Democracy."

TO OPEN A DAY LATER.

It has been customary heretofore for national conventions to begin work on Tuesday. The fact that Tuesday falls on the 13th next year may or may not have had something to do with the determination of the committee to begin the proceedings later. The official explanation, however, was to the effect that the convention would not require more than three or four days to complete its work and it would not be too late in the week to start on Wednesday.

EARTHQUAKE IS FELT ALONG MISSISSIPPI; NO DAMAGE RESULTS

Cairo, Ills., Dec. 7.—A severe earthquake, which was felt along both sides of the Mississippi river for a distance of 200 miles, and east as far as Paducah, Ky., was recorded here at 12:45 p. m. today. The apparent direction of the vibration was north and south. As far as reported no damage was done, though throughout the affected district houses trembled.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN EAST.

Boston, Dec. 7.—Republicans were successful where national party lines were drawn in the elections in fourteen Massachusetts cities today. In Marlboro and Waltham Democratic mayors were defeated for reelection by Republican opponents. Republicans won in Brockton, Northampton, Pittsfield and Quincy.

LANSING TELLS WHY U.S. ASKED BOY-ED'S RECALL

Secretary of State in Reply to Germany's Query Asking Reasons for Request for Withdrawal of Naval and Military Attaches, Offers Only General Complaints.

Whether Berlin Will Be Satisfied Without Details, or Will Send Another Note Is in Doubt—Ambassador von Bernstorff Looks for Speedy Settlement.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Secretary Lansing has communicated to Germany, through Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, the reasons which caused the United States government to request the immediate withdrawal of Captain Karl Boy-Ed and Captain Franz von Papen, respectively naval and military attaches of the German embassy here.

In the communication, which is believed to have reached the Berlin foreign office today, Mr. Lansing is understood to have stated that the naval and military activities of the attaches constituted their principal offenses. It is said that there was no discussion of facts relating to the reasons for the state department's request, nor any disclosure of the department's sources of information.

BERLIN'S ACTION IN DOUBT.

Whether Germany expected a discussion of the facts has not been made known. Officials are waiting with interest to see whether the Berlin foreign office will be satisfied with the stating of the broad, general reasons. The opinion seemed to prevail that Germany might, with the reasons before it, instruct the ambassador to send the attaches away without further delay. In some quarters, however, it was thought another communication might come from Berlin.

BERNSTORFF IS SATISFIED.

It was understood tonight that Count von Bernstorff was of the personal opinion that the reply made by Secretary Lansing was satisfactory. Officials also apparently thought that it probably would satisfy the German government.

In addition to mentioning the naval and military activity of the attaches it was said authoritatively tonight that the American communication pointed out that the attaches had been from time to time more or less associated in the public mind by inference, if by nothing more, with certain persons who since had been discredited, and that finally their names had been mentioned in other undesirable connections.

TODAY'S WEATHER.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The following is the weather bureau's forecast for Upper Michigan: * Snow and colder Wednesday; * Thursday partly cloudy.

SPECIAL BULLETINS TO HELP LAKE BOATS

Chicago, Dec. 7.—A special bulletin service to protect lake vessels which are still in service was begun today by William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce. A telegram today to Captain William Nicholas, inspector of steamboats, announced that a heavy storm is approaching by way of Lake Superior and that all vessels be given warning. Strict enforcement of government regulations is suggested, particularly on account of the extra hazards.

CARS WITH SUPPLIES FOR ALLIES ATTACKED

Johnston, Pa., Dec. 7.—A band of twenty men made an attack tonight on cars loaded with munitions and grain consigned to European nations at the Turkey Path cut-off of the Pennsylvania railroad in the mountains near New Florence. About two hundred cars were stored there, awaiting movement eastward. A watchman who telephoned here for aid said that fifty shots had been exchanged. The Pennsylvania road sent men from here and it was announced that more would be sent from Pittsburgh.

AUSTRIANS SINK MANY SHIPS OFF ALBANIA COAST

Vienna, Dec. 7.—The sinking of a French submarine boat, the Fresnel, and six steamers and six large and several small Montenegrin sailing vessels in the lower Adriatic sea, off the coast of Albania is related in an official communication issued here today. All the vessels were loaded with war material, which they either were trying to land on the Albanian coast or to convey there. Five of the steamers and the sailing ships were sent to the bottom by the Austrian cruiser Novara and Austrian torpedo boat destroyers at San Giovanni di Medua, which lies in the Gulf of Drin to the north of Durazzo. They were engaged in discharging munitions. One Italian steamer armed with three guns and an Italian motor vessel were sunk while on their way from Brindisi to Durazzo. These were loaded with munitions.

SHORE DEFENSE A FAILURE.

While the Austrians were engaged in sinking these vessels at San Giovanni di Medua twenty guns on shore bombarded them heavily, but the official report says without success.

LAKE VESSELS ON LAST TRIPS FROM DULUTH

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 7.—The Great Northern ore docks at Allouez will close their season tomorrow. The steamer Joseph Woods was being loaded with ore at the docks today and will carry away the final load of the season.

The Mutual Transit company will send its last boat down the lakes tomorrow, carrying grain; but the Western Transit and the Anchor line will not be through for a few days, probably not until Dec. 12, the final marine insurance limit date. The Mutual, the first package freight line to finish, will end its season with the Dec. 8 insurance limit.

Two of the Western boats are on the way here to carry grain and two more of them are on the way to Fort William for grain. The Utica of the Anchor line arrived here this morning. Ashland, Wis., reports the steamer Jesse Spaulding, with 2,000 tons of pig iron cleared there today for Buffalo, making the last boat to leave this fall.

COMMUNIPAW, GOING TO EGYPT, SENT TO BOTTOM

Standard Oil Vessel, Which Was Held by Italy and Then Released on Representations from United States Government, Is Destroyed in Mediterranean Sea

No Information Concerning Fate of Crew, or the Nationality of Assailant, Received—Washington Officials Await the Details Before Making Any Comment.

Rome, Dec. 7, 7:45 p. m.—The American oil steamer Communipaw has been sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean near Tobruk, Tripoli. No information has been received concerning the crew, or the nationality of the submarine.

The steamer Communipaw was recently held by the Italian government at Genoa, but was allowed to sail for her destination on Dec. 2, owing to representations made to the government by the American embassy at Rome. The Communipaw was owned by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, and sailed from New York Oct. 27 for Egypt.

WASHINGTON AWAIT'S DETAILS.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Word that the American oil tank steamer Petrolite was shelled Sunday in the eastern Mediterranean by a large submarine flying the Austrian flag came to the navy department late today in a cablegram from the cruiser Des Moines at Canoa, island of Crete. One man on the tanker was slightly injured. The information was turned over to the state department, where, it was said, no action would be taken pending the receipt of further details.

No report had been received by the government tonight of the sinking of the Standard Oil steamer Communipaw by a submarine off the coast of Tripoli, reported in press dispatches from Rome, and officials did not comment on the case in the absence of information concerning the circumstances.

CONDITIONS GOVERN ALL.

It was pointed out that the attitude of the United States would depend entirely upon whether the tankers were attacked without warning or attempted to escape after being called upon to submit to visit and search. In the case of the Petrolite it appears that she not only tried to escape but actually did so.

When the dispatch from the Des Moines arrived, officials thought they had the explanation of the mysterious wireless message picked up at Athens saying an American vessel was being attacked by a submarine south of the island of Crete. It was recalled, however, that the message reached Athens Saturday morning, while the Petrolite did not encounter the submarine until Sunday.

39 IN COMMUNIPAW'S CREW.

New York, Dec. 7.—David T. Worden, of Montclair, N. J., manager of the foreign shipping department of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey said tonight that the crew of the Communipaw numbered thirty-nine. Captain Nordstrom is a naturalized American, Mr. Worden said, and the four engineers also are Americans, but he knew nothing of the nationality of the other men aboard, although several of them at least probably were citizens of the United States.

URGES THAT PASSPORTS BE GIVEN FORD PARTY

On Board S. S. Oscar II., by Wireless, via Cape Race, Dec. 7.—Governor L. B. Hanna, of North Dakota, today sent a wireless message to Secretary of State Lansing urging him to provide members of the Ford peace party with passports, which will enable them to visit belligerent countries.

FOR THE COMMISSION.

While other elements entered into it, the issue of the election Monday was determined largely by the attitude of a majority of the voters toward the commission. Mr. McCormick is a man of first rate character and ability and would have given good service in the office he sought, but the voters, for the most part, evidenced by their desire to have Mr. Sink continued in service their view that the commission as it stands has done very well with the city's affairs and thus may well be continued in office as long as its members are willing to discharge their duties.

The result is one that carries a forecast of other commission elections to come, if it is sought to change the personnel of the board while the old members are candidates. Such an effort would be likely to succeed only if the men offering themselves were of equal, if not superior, ability, and some excellent reason could be offered for making a change. The voters are hardly in the frame of mind to make a change just for the sake of making one. They are, it appears, rather impatient of proposals to replace old men with new unless they are offered some substantial reason for that course.

The Marquette public likes and approves of commission government. It also enjoys the relief it has had the past few years from the disturbances of minor politics. It is for the status quo.

AMENDMENT APPROVED.

The proposed amendment that will permit Marquette to establish a municipal court and that finally, with the expiration of the terms of the several justices, will give the city but one magistrate for the minor cases was passed by a vote of nearly four to one, and in due course the plan for the operation of the court will be made effective.

This plan has the approval of practically all the attorneys, who give their testimony that it will mean a more orderly and impressive conduct of the minor court business, and of the general public, which, though knowing little of the justice courts outside of what it reads in the newspapers, has been persuaded that the sooner they are abolished the better its interest will be served.

To this view the public is particularly inclined by the knowledge that the proposed plan calls for the abandonment of the fee system. The proposed municipal judge will have a straight salary and all fees will go to the city and county, according as the law regulates the division. Any ground that is gained against the fee system is ground well won. It is condemned by all authorities on efficiency because it contributes to minor evils and because it is a screen which serves to prevent the public from having the knowledge it is entitled to of how much money public officials are being paid. How can the public have any opinion whether a given office is on a business basis when it is impossible for it to know what the office pays its incumbent?

The wiping out of the fee system, root and branch, will be one important step toward the attainment of efficiency in the conduct of public affairs. Every move made toward that goal is just so much good ground gained.

MARQUETTE'S CLAIM.

The county of Marquette, through its board of supervisors, proposes that the city of Marquette, which claims $3,600, in round numbers, of rejected tax money and other items, shall accept $2,000 and give the county receipt in full for all amounts due. The city of Marquette respectfully declines. It will take the $2,000 on account, if it has opportunity—which perhaps it will not have—but will not relinquish any right to push any claim that seems to have a legal basis. It is advised by its attorney that other items that the supervisors have not acknowledged are collectable.

There will be considerable sympathy, at least in the city, with the view of the city government. It is not asking what it is not entitled to, but looks with no favor on the proposal that it shall sign away anything that is due it. And why, indeed, should it? The proposal that it should take such a course does not appear to have been one in accord with sound business practice. It is not the kind of a thing that happens often in the business world when the elements of the problem are as easily resolved as they are in this particular instance. The city is well placed to take whatever steps are necessary to collect its just dues. It has an attorney retained on full time for the purpose of looking after just such matters. It will cost but little to conduct a thorough inquiry and to pursue the businesslike course of insisting on the payment of the last dollar that is legally due it.

Just why the board should have asked any division of the county to sign away any of its rights is difficult to understand. The fair disposal of the matter would seem to be to have acknowledged and paid the claims which Mr. Thompson found to be fair and reasonable and to give the cities and towns-ship free hand to act in regard to any other claims that might come up.

TABOO ON BASEBALL.

The conference colleges, the Big Nine of the west, have put an official ban on baseball as a college sport and no more games will be scheduled. Baseball, the position is taken, is pre-eminently a professional sport and the difficulties of preserving a simon-pure amateurism for it in college are so great as to be practically insurmountable.

While many persons will regret this decision and question its wisdom, there will have to be agreement that it has the advantage of being definite, and thus is in marked contrast to the temporizing attitude that has long characterized the relations of the athletic authorities to the game.

It has been a matter of general knowledge that large numbers of the college baseball players have found employment professionally at good salaries during the vacation periods. These men have made no particular difficulty about perjury themselves to secure a berth on the college team and the college officials were by no means as diligent as they might have been in hunting them out. The condition has been so notorious as to lead many persons to advocate that, in the interest of the college baseball player's morals, it would be well to take the lid off and let him play summer baseball, as he was doing it anyway, under an alias, and then was bearing false testimony to assure himself a place on the varsity team.

To make college baseball what it ought to be two courses have been possible. One a rigorous enforcement of the requirements of amateurism by as much surveillance and inquiry as might be necessary, the other the frank recognition of summer baseball, with the assumption that, owing to peculiar conditions, it did not interfere with the player's amateurism. The conference officials evidently regard the one task as to great and do not find that the other alternative appeals to them. They regard it as better to put a final taboo on the game.

And still the summer ball player will remain a problem to the colleges. Generally he is an all-around athlete. Frequently he comes out for the football or the track team, and he is likely to turn up in other competitive sports. He will be plaguing the conference colleges and all other colleges long after baseball is given up as a college sport. It is a difficult thing for the college man with skill in the game to resist the temptation to earn excellent money at baseball during the vacation period.

WHAT DETROIT THINKS.

Supplementary to and enforcing Detroit Saturday Night's exposition of what Detroit thinks of Mr. Ford's peace junk are these observations by the Free Press, which, it will be noted, are in the same tone as those of its weekly contemporary:

Mr. Ford's indefinite and vague way of going about his peace campaign, his happy, childlike confidence in the efficacy of money to overcome all difficulties, his failure to make even rudimentary plans for carrying out his ideas, his neglect to learn how the people he intends to deal with may feel about his schemes, all these are but exemplifications of the lack of foresight and commonsense method which constantly crop out in our internal and international affairs, in congress and in the executive department. We project undertakings without knowing that about his schemes, all these are but exemplifications of the lack of foresight and commonsense method which constantly crop out in our internal and international affairs, in congress and in the executive department. We project undertakings without knowing that

We pass seaman's bills for the reform of the world, and we find the world laughing at us because we have only ruined our own merchant marine. We have a Monroe doctrine we couldn't maintain for a second were any strong nation seriously to challenge it. We call ourselves a great world power and we have taken scarcely the first step against disaster in case another state undertakes to test our boast.

Like Mr. Ford and his friends aboard the Oscar II, we sail in the ship of state, singing songs, marrying and giving in marriage and exhorting the remainder of the world. We are on our way. But, really, do we know where we are going?

The A. P. interview with King Constantine of Greece, printed yesterday, will impress even the casual reader as a conclusive statement of Greece's case and as one that goes far to justify its course of late weeks. The allies clearly want to interest Greece in their cause in a manner that would jeopardize the national interest, without being prepared to give the only assurances that under the circumstances suffice, great forces of arms and men that would make certain that the jeopardy would not have fatal issue. It is passing strange if there hasn't been of late a considerable decrease in Grecian enthusiasm for the cause of the allies, for it has been the allies who have been forcing the Greeks into a tight hole, so that almost anything they do will be likely to have serious consequences for them.

What will T. R. do? Only T. R. knows, and perhaps he himself does not know as yet. But it is difficult to see how the most insistent critic of the foreign policy of the administration, and a man who regards the President's plan for preparedness as a sham and a delusion, inviting the very catastrophe it is ostensibly designed to guard against, can, when the final line-up occurs, place himself where he will be of any assistance in returning the Democrats to power.

There was a certain coincidence in the announcement that Italy had come in on the allies' agreement not to make peace separately and the news of the Ford pilgrimage, but still nothing of cause and effect. The announcement was not the Italian government's answer to Ford. Our Henry hasn't at any rate as mighty as that, nor yet, at any rate.

Quite the most warlike interview that has been published in the recent weeks of the war is the Vienna Neue Freie Presse's interview with the warlike von Hindenburg.

When is a shoe shop not a shoe shop? When, as in Iron River, an unannounced visit of the police uncovers twelve quart of redye on the premises.

Surely the Democrats will run Brand Whitlock for something?

Peace! The very idea, says London.

Also, the baseball war will go on.

EDITORIAL OPINION

Autocracy and Democracy.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, in Philadelphia last week, asked the question, repeated so often, "Can democracy be as efficient as autocracy in war?" And he said that, if free governments are to live, they "must be at least as effective as autocratic governments in developing industrial, commercial, financial, and military efficiency." The matter has been much discussed; and the seeming advantages of autocracy, only of plain and direction, secrecy, and so on, have been dwelt upon sufficiently. It is proper to remark, however, that "autocracy" means "German autocracy," Russian autocracy is notoriously inefficient in peace and war, carried on with a truly Oriental amount of graft. Russia's vast population, territory, and resources, the Cubators' promoters of world peace, are proving to be the most effective international irritants and causes of war. Everybody with eyes in his head knows the antagonism between Great Britain and Germany is rooted in trade rivalry.

As the United States is plainly going in for a commanding place in the world's markets, and especially the coveted markets of South America and China, the United States must be prepared to maintain and defend its rights, if necessary.

Let us face the facts. One fact is that at the present time Great Britain is disposed to treat our sea-borne commerce as that of a political dependency and subject to the maritime suzerainty of the Mistress of the Seas. The United States has been outrageously bullied by these European powers ever since this war began and our unpreparedness exploited under the pretext of military necessities in every way. Never again should be the watchword.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

In the case of the Osceola county boys entertained by the National Potato association in Grand Rapids assuredly pride goes not before a fall. For their pride is a just pride, earned by applying muscle and mind to the soil. Theirs is no flash triumph of juvenile smartness, but the solid success which comes of performing every day a stiff job just a little better than it was done yesterday.

While growing potatoes so consistently and expertly these lads grow character between the rows. They developed along with their tubers. No fear that they will slump into the army of the unemployed or hitch their wagons to the artificial stars along the great white way. Already, even before they are out of knee breeches, these youngsters are economically self-sufficient; it necessary they could earn their living and carry a man's load.

All these boys are fortunate in that each has learned how to do one thing supremely well, but who among them does not envy the champion, Howard LaFrance of Osceola county? How many of us have not longed to do today after his welcome to a convention which reversed the ancient saw, "Children should be seen and not heard." For those big, bronzed men, farmers and scientists and government officials, crowded around to shake his hand and bid him good-bye, the story is the same. "In Stratford," he said, "during one of the Shakespeare jubilees, an American tourist approached an aged villager in a smock and said: 'Who is this chap, Shakespeare, anyway?'

"He was a writer, sir."

"Why do you make such an infernal fuss over this one, then? Wherever I turn I see Shakespeare hotels, Shakespeare cakes, Shakespeare chocolates, Shakespeare shoes. What the deuce did he write—magazine stories, attacks on the government, shady novels?"

"No, sir; oh, no, sir," said the aged villager. "I understand he wrote for the Bible, sir."

Not the Millennium.

Amsterdam, via London, Nov. 28.—The German newspapers state that Dr. Mueller of Meiningen, a progressive deputy, will introduce into the reichstag a bill compelling all boys between the ages of six and sixteen years to undergo semi-military physical training.

Dr. David Starr Jordan should note this striking "confirmation" of his theory that the soldier is a soldier during war and a soldier during peace.

What a hardy and inextinguishable old prophet he is anyhow! Before this war broke out he assured us there would never be another great war. Now he revises himself and thinks this will be the last great war.

The pacifist theory was that the twentieth century was to usher in the "reign of peace." As a matter of fact, it has already seen three of the greatest wars in history.

Vast extensions of international trade, so far from being as predicted by the Cubators' promoters of world peace, are proving to be the most effective international irritants and causes of war. Everybody with eyes in his head knows the antagonism between Great Britain and Germany is rooted in trade rivalry.

As the United States is plainly going in for a commanding place in the world's markets, and especially the coveted markets of South America and China, the United States must be prepared to maintain and defend its rights, if necessary.

Let us face the facts. One fact is that at the present time Great Britain is disposed to treat our sea-borne commerce as that of a political dependency and subject to the maritime suzerainty of the Mistress of the Seas. The United States has been outrageously bullied by these European powers ever since this war began and our unpreparedness exploited under the pretext of military necessities in every way. Never again should be the watchword.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Wreck Tender.

Frederick Palmer, the war correspondent, said in New York: "The British censor is beyond me. He is just about as absurd and illogical as the wreck tender."

"A man, visiting a wreck said to the tender: 'What cargo did the poor old boat carry?'"

"Coffee," said the wreck tender.

"Coffee? Did you say coffee?" asked the man.

"Coffee? Nah!" said the tender.

"Coffee—what yer makes tea out of?"

Drill Amenities.

Mayor John Purroy Mitchell said at a dinner in New York: "The memories of camp life are a very pleasant thing to any soldier. Even the little vicivacities of camp life seem in the retrospect pleasant enough."

"Thus I often laugh about a banker who was being drilled one day at Pittsburg by a broker-sergeant."

"What'll you give me?" said the broker-sergeant, an old Yale end, "if I take that hump off your back?"

"I'll give you," the banker answered, "with a tart laugh, 'something to make your hair grow, sarge.'"

Dehyphenizing.

"I just think it should be stopped by law," said the good wife, looking up from her paper.

"What should be stopped by law, my angel?" asked the kind husband.

"This practice of people hyphenating their nationalities. There should be no German-Americans or French-Americans. They should all be just plain Americans."

"But if such a law were passed, my angel," meekly suggested the kind husband, "would that affect your practice of signing your name 'Mrs. Elizabeth Pickles-Muggley'?"

"But her only reply was a hyphenated snarl.—Judge.

It Was the First Time.

Jones was a pastmaster of the habit of carelessness. He dropped things around in any old place and afterwards never remembered where that place was. One night he rose from bed, took some medicine and swallowed his collar button in mistake for a cough drop.

"Mary," said he to his wife when the awful truth dawned upon him, "I have swallowed my collar button."

"That's all right," responded wife in a tone of evident satisfaction. "There's nothing to worry about."

"Nothing to worry about?" returned father. "Do you—"

"That's what I said," interrupted little wife. "For once in your life you know where you've put it."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

LANSING—Six frame buildings in the principal business section of Williamstown, Ingham county, twelve miles east of Lansing, were destroyed by fire, causing a loss estimated at $25,000. Chief Clerk Burdick of the state fire marshal's office has gone to the village to investigate the origin of the blaze.

GRAND HAVEN—The fishing industry of Grand Haven is flourishing, an unusual season being experienced. One plant is smoking from 5,000 to 10,000 pounds of fish daily. The local catch not being sufficient, large quantities are being shipped in from northern shipping points, and there is an occasional shipment from Buffalo. These smoked whitefish go out in twenty-pound baskets by express to all parts of the United States. About 100 men are now engaged in the industry, and the extent of its growth will only be measured by the available supply of fish of suitable size for the smoked fish market. It is stated that nowhere in the country has the art of smoking fish been attained as it has among the Holland fishermen of Grand Haven.

MUSKEGON—An industrial survey of the city of Muskegon, completed through a combination of official and semi-official, but reliable, figures, shows that beyond a question when another year rolls around Muskegon will have a total of made employes working in various factories of the city. The number is expected to over the 12,000 figure, double the figure of some five months ago. Such an aggregate of employes, it is pointed out, will also insure the booming of the city's population to at least 50,000, twice that shown by the last federal census. Industrial development of the city of Muskegon and its suburbs, in fact, has come at such a pace in the last few months that even the most observant citizens are in more or less of a daze as to just what is going on.

MUSKEGON—Lew Rose, comedian formerly with a musical comedy company which played in Muskegon a few weeks ago, is reunited with his fourteen-year-old bride. Directed to choose between her twenty-eight-year-old husband and her mother, Mrs. Louis Hargis of this city, who sought to have the marriage annulled, the young Mrs. Rose chose her "hubby." From the sage wisdom of her fourteen years Mrs. Rose says she loves her husband because he would not choose to boss her. "I'd hate to have a husband who didn't love me," she declared. Other axioms of marriage she outlined after she rejoined her husband, following his being placed in jail at Chicago, are: "If you love a man enough to marry him, stick to him even if you go to jail with him." "No girl ought to marry a man who is not at least ten years her senior." "Marriage is all guesswork, unless someone inside of you tells you that you have sure picked out the right life partner. No wife can go wrong who has a good husband and obeys him."

UPPER PENINSULA

Silver Peddler Arrested.

The first arrest in Ironwood under the pending ordinance was made when Chief of Police Hult took into tow a man named L. Sherman, and who claimed to be from Minneapolis. Sherman and his wife had been in the city for several days and evidently were doing a very good business, though it is said that the most of his sales were made in Bessemer. But the hub was not the only scene of his efforts, for he disposed of a considerable number of his silverware sets to Ironwood parties. The silverware sets which Sherman was selling were marked "Rogers," and were of a quality which ordinarily can be bought at wholesale for four dollars or a trifle over and which any Ironwood dealer would be very glad to get $6 for.

But of course, the easy marks thought they were getting a bargain when they dug down into their purses and paid the engaging Mr. Sherman from $12.50 to $15. It may interest the purchasers of Mr. Sherman's goods to know that there are many qualities and grades of "Rogers" silverware and that this peddler was selling them the very cheapest grade that he could buy—a grade of inferior quality that Ironwood merchants would not carry it. After paying a fine of $10 Mr. Sherman, accompanied by his wife, left on the first train for Rhinelander, Wis., where we presume that he will try the same game.—Ironwood News-Record.

Drys Lose Court Fight.

The action of the Menominee county board of supervisors in refusing to grant the petition of the drys for a local option election in Menominee county in the spring of 1916 was upheld in a decision handed down by Circuit Judge Richard C. Flaigan in circuit court. Judge Flaigan denied the petition of the local option forces for a writ of mandamus to compel the county board to approve the drys' petition. It is thought that the drys will appeal the case to the supreme court, and the only chance now that there will be a local option election in the spring is based on the hope of the drys that the highest state tribunal will override Judge Flaigan. Judge Flaigan denied the petition for the mandamus writ on the ground, in substance, that the supervisors had lawfully denied the petition when it appeared to the board that the affidavits did not show in the board's opinion that all the petitions had been properly posted. The judge upheld the position of Attorney Michael J. Doyle and Prosecuting Attorney Fred H. Haggerson on this point. These two men argued against granting the writ when the question was threshed out in court here last week. Upon the second point raised by these two attorneys that the board also had the right to deny the petition on the ground that the affidavits of the petition did not show clearly whether or one or more had been circulated in certain precincts, and that the supervisors had been within their rights in taking this into consideration in denying the petitions, Judge Flaigan did not decide definitely. The judge in his decision said that dismissal of the point was unnecessary. On the question of deciding the posting from the face of the affidavits the language of the decision in part is as follows: "The members of the board of supervisors considered the question of whether the affidavits furnished basis for the inference that petitions attached thereto were posted and found that they did not. This was the determination of a question of fact which the board alone

CHILDREN HATE PILLS, CALOMEL AND CASTOR OIL

If Cross, Feverish, Constipated, Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "doss" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physics simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicate "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Seeks Franchise for Gas.

Councilman Youngs introduced before the aldermen a franchise for a gas plant in Iron River for William Hayden, of Traverse City, Mich. The franchise provides a rate of $1.75 per thousand feet and gives Mr. Hayden, or his assigns, corporate or individual, the exclusive rights to all of the public thoroughfares of Iron River for a period of thirty years. Nothing is offered Iron River in return for these exclusive rights and the privilege of charging residents $1.75 a thousand for gas. The franchise stipulates that work on the plant shall begin by August, 1916, and that it shall be completed in 1918. The franchise was read, but no action was taken. It is understood that efforts will be made to ascertain the rates for gas in other cities before the franchise is passed. The introduction of the franchise came as a surprise to the public, as there has been no discussion of such a proposition, although there has been talk at times about the need of a gas plant in the city. It is understood a similar franchise will be asked from the village council of Stambaugh.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE ASKS BETTER DEFENSE

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS PLEADED.

Keen interest in the president's address was shown by the foreign representatives in the diplomatic galleries, where every embassy and legation was represented.

All appeared pleased with the message and the Latin-Americans expressed special gratification over the references to Pan-Americanism.

It was the clearest definition ever made of this country's Pan-American policy," said Eduardo Suarez-Mujica, ambassador from Chile.

Definitions of this policy and of the Monroe doctrine have been made before, but they have not been clear, have been, in fact, a bit vague.

Now the position of this country is made so clear that none need be in doubt.

The address was practically the only business of the day in both houses. Each adjourned until Friday, to give time for completing the organization of working committees.

In the brief time the senate was in session more than 1,500 bills and resolutions were offered.

Measures dealing with preparedness, prohibition, suffrage and prevention of sale of war munitions to belligerent nations predominated.

Some of the Points Made. Mr. Wilson began with the statement:

"The European war has extended its threatening and sinister scope until it has swept into its flame some portion of every quarter of the globe, not excepting our own hemisphere, has altered the whole face of international affairs, and now presents a prospect of reorganization and reconstruction such as statesmen and peoples have never been called upon to attempt before."

The United States has remained neutral, he said, because it had no interest in the causes and because it was the duty of the nations of the western hemisphere to prevent collective economic ruin.

The president pointed to the attitude of the United States towards Mexico as proving that this country has no selfish motives in its interest in countries in Central and South America.

There was a time, he said, when the United States looked upon itself as a sort of guardian of the republics to the south against the encroachment or efforts of political control from Europe.

"But," he added, "it was always difficult to maintain such a role without freedom to the pride of the peoples whose freedom of action we sought to protect, and every thoughtful man of affairs must welcome the altered circumstances of the new day in whose light we now stand, when there is no claim of guardianship or thought of wards, but, instead, a full and honorable association of partners between ourselves and our neighbors, in the interests of all America, North and South."

"Our concern for the independence and the prosperity of the states of Central and South America is not altered, but we retain unabated the spirit that has inspired us throughout the whole life of our government and which was so frankly put into words by President Monroe.

We still mean always to make a common cause of national independence and of political liberty in America. But that purpose is now better understood so far as it concerns ourselves. It is known not to be a selfish purpose. It is known to have in it no thought of taking advantage of any government in this hemisphere or playing its political fortunes for our own benefit.

All the governments of America stand, so far as we are concerned, upon a footing of genuine equality and unquestioned independence."

Mexico Proves Our Case. "We have been put to the test in the case of Mexico, and we have stood the test," declared the president. He added that it remained to be seen whether Mexico had benefited by the course taken by the administration, but that "we have at least proved that we will not take advantage of her in her distress and undertake to impose upon her an order and government of our own choosing."

"The moral is," continued the president, "that the states of America are not hostile rivals, but cooperating friends, and that their growing sense of community interest, alike in matters political and in matters economic, is likely to give them a new significance as factors in international affairs and in the political history of the world. It presents them as in a very deep and true sense a unit in world affairs, spiritual partners, standing together because thinking together, because of common sympathies and common ideals. Separated they are subject to all the cross currents of the confused politics of a world of hostile rivalries; united in spirit and purpose they cannot be disappointed of their peaceful destiny."

"I am interested to fix your attention on this prospect now, because I believe you take it within your view and permit the full significance of it to command your thought. I can not find the right light in which to set forth the particular matter that lies at the very front of my whole thought as I address you today. I mean national defense."

The passion of the American people, the president declared, was for peace; that conquest and dominion was not in their reckoning nor agreeable to their principles.

"But just because we demand un molested development and the undisturbed government of our own lives upon our own principles of right and liberty," he said, "we resent, from whatever quarter it may come, the aggression we ourselves will not practice. We insist upon security in prosecuting our self-chosen lines of national development. We demand more than that. We demand it also for others."

War, the president declared, was regarded by the United States merely as a means of asserting the rights of a people against aggression, and that we are as fiercely jealous of coercive or dictatorial power within our own nation as from aggression from without.

ASSAULTS NEUTRAL CITIZENS.

The president said there was reason to hope that no question in controversy between this and other governments would lead to any serious breach of amicable relations, and that he was sorry to say that the gravest threats against national peace and safety had been uttered within the country's own borders.

"There are citizens of the United States, I blush to admit," he declared, "born under other flags, but welcomed under our generous naturalization laws to the full freedom and opportunity of America, who have poured the poison of disloyalty into the very arteries of our national life; who have sought to bring the authority and good name of our government into contempt, to destroy our industries wherever they thought it effective for their vindictive purposes, to strike at them and to debase our policies to the uses of foreign intrigues."

No federal laws exist to meet this situation, said Mr. Wilson, because such a thing would have seemed incredible in the past. "Such eruptions of passion, disloyalty and anarchy," he added, "must be crushed out. They are not many, but they are infinitely malignant and the hand of our power should close over them at once."

Turning again to military questions, the president said he might find it advisable to call into systematic consultation with the directing officers of the army and navy, men of recognized ability who are familiar, for example, with the transportation facilities of the country and therefore competent to advise how they may be coordinated when the need arises, those who can suggest the best way to bring about prompt cooperation among the manufacturers, and those who could assist in bringing the technical skill of the country to the aid of the government in the solution of problems of defense.

He said he might later ask congress for an appropriation to defray the expenses of such work.

The president told the members he might address them again later on commercial conditions about which much legislation has been passed and which are likely to change rapidly after the war when the nations of Europe again take up their task of commerce and industry. The most that can be done now, he said, is to make sure that the necessary instrumentalities are at hand for securing adequate information.

Regarding the railroads, the president said there had been reason to fear that they could not cope much longer, with the transportation problem, and suggested it would be wise to provide for a commission of inquiry to ascertain whether the laws as at present framed and administered were as serviceable as they might be in the solution of the problem. He said that the regulation of the railroads by federal commission has had admirable results and that the question was whether there was anything else to be done to better the conditions under which the railroads are operating.

HOLDS PISTOL TO
SHE FIXES MEAL

Washington, December 7.—A famished burglar, who held a revolver to her head while she worked, compelled the colored cook employed by the family of William D. Sterrett, Pierce Mill road, near Connecticut avenue northwest, to prepare his breakfast. Hearing some one walking about on the second floor shortly after the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Sterrett for an early church service, the maid went upstairs to investigate. She was confronted by a strange white man, who had been ransacking the bureau drawer. The man drew a pistol on the girl, who screamed. The burglar seized the girl by the arm, threatening to kill her if she did not stop screaming, and then at the point of the pistol, which he kept close to her head, he marched the girl to the kitchen on the ground floor, where he ordered her to cook his breakfast. He was particular in choosing the menu and demanded a fresh pot of black coffee, hot cakes and broiled ham and eggs. The girl told Mr. and Mrs. Sterrett when they returned home that the man ate ravenously, as if he had been without food for a long time. After finishing the meal the man left without doing the girl any harm, and disappeared in the woods back of the Bureau of Standards.

An examination of the upstairs room, which had been partially ransacked by the burglar, showed that the only thing taken was a small pocketbook containing $2.

PAYLESS POLITICAL JOB COSTS MAN $9.95.

Vancouver, Wash., Dec. 6.—Financially, it is a losing proposition to serve on the city council or as mayor of this city, as it costs real money to be elected and there is not one cent salary. But there are always men willing to take the sacrifice.

The law requires that an expense account be filed with the city clerk within ten days after the primary. To date several have fled this statement. Charles W. Davis spent $9.65 for his campaign, but he said the fun was worth more. Councilman Atkinson spent $4. Fred Mathys spent $1 and lost.

FARRAR CREATES FURORE.

Her Appearance in "Carmen" in Chicago Breaks All Box Office Records.

Geraldine Farrar, the celebrated operatic soprano, who will appear here in recital on January 3, has made new history for grand opera. The announcement that she was to appear in "Carmen" at the Metropolitan opera house, in Chicago, created such a furore in that city that the box office was swamped with demands for tickets. Owing to the tremendous demand, seats were sold at $7 each, which is $2 higher than at any previous operatic production, and in spite of this the entire house was sold out three days before the date of the performance. Hugh S. Gallup, who has just returned from Chicago, stated that he had learned on good authority that this performance brought in box office receipts to the extent of $15,000, which is the largest amount in the history of the Metropolitan opera house.

It is just fourteen years ago this fall that Geraldine Farrar made her debut as an opera singer in the Royal opera house of Berlin. It was as Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust." The kindly disposed Berlin audience had come to hear this new American singer, chiefly because she was a pupil of the beloved Lilli Lehmann. It was to be only another of those "try-outs" which German knows so well—where the artist disappears into obscurity as suddenly as she had emerged from it. But they had a sensation in store for them. Crude enough in many ways the young singer was not, with the girl, but none the less without experience?—but there were so many signs of an enormous talent that the next day Farrar was the talk of the town.

In less than a year she was the pet of Berlin and before another year had elapsed she could not appear on the streets without being followed by an adoring crowd. Her career reads almost like a fairy tale. In fourteen years she has reached the topmost rung of her profession.

Theatrical

Opera House.

Frederick Perry, the masterful star of "On Trial," is presented in the latest and most pretentious of the Wm. Fox productions, "The Family Stain," at the opera house today. This production is a film adaptation of "The Widow La Rogue," in which the star is supported by a distinguished cast. The mystery of who killed the widow La Rogue appears impossible of unravelling. The tangled web of evidence enmeshes four men and two women, and not till the very end is the mystery solved in a striking and original manner. The production abounds in strong and powerful climaxes and swift thrilling action. For the vaudeville offering today Belle and Eva will present their novel acrobatic specialty, the rebounding trampolines act.

Delft Theater.

"Shadows from the Past," with Marc McDermott and Mabel Trunelle, is listed for today at the Delft theater. This four-act feature is of unusual power, and takes for the theme the marriage of an elderly husband of high social standing with a young and beautiful wife with a "past" that is successfully hidden during the greater part of their wedded lives. Bigelow Cooper as the husband, gives a sympathetic and thoroughly impressive portrayal. Mabel Trunelle, as the attractive young wife, and Marc McDermott, as the suave villain, are equally effective. The exceptional characterization and splendid treatment of this production add greatly to its interest.

Mrs. John A. Bunch is president of the United Zinc company, which owns several hundred acres of fine mining land in the north Arkansas zinc field, and is, so far as known, the only woman actively engaged in mining in that field. She spends much of her time looking after her interests. In addition to giving close attention to affairs of the company of which she is executive head, Mrs. Bunch has hundreds of acres of mineral land in her own name.

JURY DRAWN FOR JOHNSON TRIAL

Final Selection Made Yesterday Afternoon at 2:20, After Fifty-Eight of the Men Empaneled Had Been Questioned—Prosecuting Attorney's Summary.

Charged Oscar Johnson With Shooting Adolph, and John With Being an Accomplice—Three Witnesses on Stand—Testimony of Marshal Trevarrow.

- Oscar Anderson, electrician, Gwin.
- Arthur G. Aas, mechanic, Ishpeming.
- Wm. Sundquist, farmer, Negaunee township.
- George Kemp, teamster, Ishpeming.
- Daniel Hill, miner, Tilden township.
- Chris Jensen, grocer, Negaunee.
- Ernest Yelle, farmer, Sands township.
- Henry Grimes, farmer, Turin township.
- Peter Nadeau, farmer, Chocelay township.
- Einar Swanson, carpenter, Ishpeming.
- John Frederikson, shift-boss, Negaunee mine, Negaunee.

The above jury was drawn to try Oscar and John Johnson, the Ishpeming brothers, charged with the murder of their brother Adolph, after the entire panel of thirty-six jurors had been exhausted, and many had been excused in the additional panel of seventy-five summoned yesterday morning. The selection of the jury started on Monday afternoon, shortly after the circuit court convened for its December term, and the final choice was made yesterday afternoon at 2:30. In making the selection, W. T. Potter, attorney for the defense, changed forty of the men called. Prosecuting Attorney Kennedy excused eight, and ten were dismissed by Judge Flannigan for cause. It is notable that no resident of this city is included in the personnel of the jury. Anticipating that the Johnson trial would consume several days, Judge Flannigan excused the members of the panel, and selected for this trial, until Friday morning.

Prosecuting Attorney Kennedy opened the case at 2:30 yesterday afternoon, with the court room well filled with spectators who came over from Negaunee.

nee and Ishpeming, in addition to the number of men empaneled for jury service. In his opening remarks, the prosecutor charged Oscar Johnson with the murder, and John G. Johnson with being an accomplice. The prosecuting attorney made a lengthy and detailed summary of the case, starting at a point some time previous to the alleged crime, and telling of the bitter feeling existing between the brothers, as a result of the management of the farm which they inherited. He told of the arrest of Adolph on the charge of assault and battery, his release and return to the farmhouse on the same day that he was shot. A number of incidents then described in detail leading up to the confession John Johnson is alleged to have made to the Ishpeming police, and of Oscar Johnson's statement to the Marquette police. In his first account of the crime, said the prosecuting attorney, Oscar Johnson claimed that his brother Adolph entered the house, and picking up a large gun, aimed it at John Johnson. He pulled the trigger, but the gun did not go off. According to the same statement, Adolph turned the stock around and struck John, who called for help, whereupon Oscar shot Adolph. Several conflicting accounts of this crime were made by the defendants, said the prosecutor, but in all of them it was averred that Adolph started the fight with Oscar and John as soon as he entered the house.

Prosecuting Attorney Kennedy summed up his case by stating that the prosecution expected to prove that Adolph was in the house some time before the crime was committed, by showing that the bullet went through his vest and shirt, but not through his overcoat. He also expected to prove, he said, that John was an accomplice, by showing that he helped to lower the body of Adolph into an old pit and then to bring it back into the house, and also helped to carry it from one room to the other.

The first witness called was Harry T. Holst, a mining engineer, who had made a map of the farmhouse to be used in the case. Mr. Holst was asked to explain the plan of the house to the jury, after which photographs of the rooms were submitted.

Dr. V. H. Vandevanter, of Ishpeming, the next witness called, told of having performed an autopsy upon the body of Adolph Johnson, and of the nature of the wounds which this disclosed. According to this testimony there were two small lacerations on the forehead, and a contused laceration on the right shoulder, such as might be made with a blunt instrument. There were three bullet wounds, stated the witness, two being on the right cheek, near the lower jaw. The fatal bullet, it was said, entered the body on the right side between the seventh and eighth ribs, going upward and inward, piercing the heart, and lodging on the other side of victim's chest just beneath the skin. The bullet was then submitted to the court as evidence.

Trevarrow's Testimony.

William H. Trevarrow, chief of police of Ishpeming, submitted testimony of an important nature, the gist of which is as follows:

Oscar Johnson called up Chief Trevarrow at 7:30 a. m., on Tuesday Nov. 2, (the day on which the shooting occurred) saying that he wanted to have his brother Adolph arrested, as he was very cranky. The chief replied that this charge warranted hardly warrant his going out there to arrest Adolph, and advised Oscar to call at the office of the justice of the peace to swear out a warrant. About 9 o'clock that morning, Oscar appeared at the justice court, and obtained the warrant, which was served by an officer. After Adolph was arrested, Oscar appeared at the jail and offered to pay his brother's fine on the condition that he would stay away from the farmhouse, to which Adolph objected.

The next time that Chief Trevarrow saw either of the Johnsons was on the following Thursday morning at 4:30 o'clock, when John went to the justice court and stated that Adolph had been killed by Oscar on the Tuesday night previous, and that the body was still at the farmhouse. John said then that the net was committed in self-defense, claiming that Adolph had knocked down Oscar, and was going after him (John), when Oscar shot him.

The witness was still on the stand, repeating the conversation of Oscar Johnson, as he was being escorted back to Ishpeming from Marquette, when court adjourned for the day.

Will You Read This Twice?

A very important question to-day which every housekeeper must decide for herself is whether she prefers pure, cream of tartar baking powder like Royal or whether she is willing to use baking powder made of inferior substitutes which do not add healthful qualities to the food.

One kind is easily distinguished from the other, since the laws of various States require the ingredients to be printed upon the label. If anyone is in doubt which kind is most healthful, it is worth while to ask the family doctor. Then decide.

And when once a decision is reached let no advertisement or dealer's argument or canvasser's solicitation change the decision. It is not a question of a few cents or of pleasing a salesman. It is a question of health.

If this appeals to you as reasonable and sensible advice, it is worth reading twice. And it is worth remembering.

QUARTET WILL SING AT MASONIC BANQUETS

Will Also Render Sacred Program Friday Morning for Public—Today's Ceremonies.

The quartet of the Oriental consistory, Chicago, arrived here yesterday morning for the reunion of the Scottish rites, and will have charge of the music in all the degrees. This quartet, which is one of the bright features of this convention, will appear at the consistory banquet on Thursday night, and at the shrine banquet on Friday night. On Friday morning the quartet will render a sacred program at St. Paul's church, to which the public is cordially invited.

At the ceremonial sessions yesterday afternoon and evening, degrees from the fourth to the fourteenth, constituting the Lodge of Perfection, were conferred. An exceptionally large class presented itself for the ceremonies. The class included almost sixty members, representing every important locality in the upper peninsula.

Today's Program.
This morning and the early part of this afternoon will be devoted to conferring the fifteenth and sixteenth degrees, constituting the council of the Prince of Jerusalem. For these ceremonies the dramatic personnel follows:

Fifteenth Degree.

FACE COVERED WITH SMALL PIMPLES

Itched Badly, Disfigured for Time Being, Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Made Complexion Clearer. Face Entirely Healed.

New Cambria, Mo.—"The first thing I began to notice some eruptions on my face. They were small pimples forming. They itched so badly that I could hardly keep from picking at them. When I did it seemed as if they kept spreading. I was disfigured for the time being; my face was totally covered with the pimples. They were so bad I hated to have a person see my face. It was in this condition a year or over.

"I read in the paper of how good Cuticura Soap and Ointment were and I resolved to try them. After I used them several times they seemed to heal the places and make my complexion clearer. I placed the Ointment on my face and let it remain for about five minutes and then washed it off with very hot water and Cuticura Soap. My face was entirely healed." (Signed) Miss Flossie Hepworth, June 30, 1914.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them.

Sample Each Free by Mail With 32-p. Skin Book on request. Address post-card "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston. Sold throughout the world.

BLAMES U.S. FOR LACK OF TRADE RELATIONS

Peruvian Minister Says South American Business Has Not Been Cultivated.

New York, Dec. 7.—The effect of the Federal Reserve Act in promoting American trade in foreign countries was described today in an address delivered by Ernest E. Ling, foreign trade manager of the National City Bank of New York, before the International Trade Conference in session here.

Mr. Ling pointed out that for years prior to the passage of this law European banks had fostered and produced foreign trade by their branch bank system—a system which was impossible at that time to American financial institutions.

He said that forty English banks operating in foreign countries have 1,325 branches in South America while five German banks have forty branches in the same region.

"The Federal Reserve Act," he said, "has made it possible for branches of (American) national banks to be established in foreign countries and to place back of the branches the prestige and resources of the parent bank. Thus, within a year, the National City Bank established six branches in South America and this has given rise to an important volume of direct exchange transactions, the immediate effect of which, and the effect most important to the commercial interests of the United States, being the establishment of dollar exchange on a permanent basis."

Dollar Credits.
Mr. Ling explained that the former situation, under which the English pound sterling had been the basis of values the world over, it had been of very great commercial advantage to England. American exporters who have sold goods to South America have been compelled to accept payment in English pounds and to run the risk of a double exchange, from the currency of the original country into British currency and then into American dollars.

"Quite apart from the economy to the individual resulting from the use of dollar credits," he continued, "is the broader question of the economic value to the nation as a whole that will result from the designation of the dollar as the basis of value in our credit transactions with the rest of the world. Heretofore, in order to finance the movement of our enormous exports, we have had to call on foreign money centers to furnish us with the necessary credit facilities. This service has cost the United States millions of dollars annually in interest and commissions.

"With the development of a discount market in New York, this city will be in a position to take its place as an international money market, and this will not only make an important economy, but by the use of the dollar credit in the liquidation of our purchases abroad, will contribute materially to the commercial growth and financial prestige of this country."

Procedure Outlined.
The exact method in which foreign branches of American banks can help American merchants and manufacturers was explained in detail by Mr. Ling. He pointed out that it lies with the branch banks to collect and supply information regarding the business conditions in the localities in which they are established thus enabling the home business men to judge the needs of the particular foreign market and its credit capacities.

"In order to accomplish this result," he said, "a careful study of trade conditions must be made by competent investigators, who, after having made themselves personally acquainted with the sources of information, gather and compile their findings, which are ultimately digested and sent to the home office for dissemination. These trade reports show the general demand for the particular article under investigation; the quantities imported in prosperous and bad years, with the latest figures of exports; the present sources of supply and in what foreign countries the demand has been filled; and the stock on hand with wholesale and retail prices. A comparison is made of invoice prices, together with the freight charges between the United States and South America and Europe and South America. This, added to the customs duties upon the article, gives the comparative cost of placing the American goods in the foreign country as against a competing line from Europe, and may be used as a basis for determining whether or not there is a profit in entering the market."

One of the most important services of the foreign branch banks, Mr. Ling said, was the selection of names of firms willing and competent to act as exclusive agents of United States merchants. He declared that many of the old-established jobbing and commission houses in Latin-America decline to take American agencies and frankly state their reluctance in normal times to "push" American goods in competition with European producers with whom they have been accustomed to do business.

The human element, the difficulty of finding Americans equipped for work in the foreign service, was emphasized by Mr. Ling.

"It is very difficult," he said, "to secure for these branches suitable men having the necessary qualifications which must include a knowledge of banking, credits and commercial work, coupled with a speaking knowledge of the foreign language and a personality suited to the conduct of business with foreign peoples. Unfortunately the United States has not been sufficiently interested in foreign trade to have produced a supply of suitable men, and a task of securing likely young men and educating them is another duty which has to be assumed by any American bank establishing a foreign branch bank system."

TEACHERS WILL NOT STRIP FOR MEDICAL TEST

Atlanta, Ga., December 7.—Incensed at a ruling of the Board of Education requiring them to disrobe from the waist up for a physical examination, 600 school-teachers of Atlanta, most of them young women, said today they would strike rather than submit to the order.

The order was issued by the board so as to guard against communicable diseases, it was announced. The teachers say they are willing to stand such an examination, but they believe the report of family physicians should be accepted.

Dr. W. N. Adkins, head of the medical inspection department, informed the teachers Saturday they could each bring a sheet to wrap about their bodies if they so desired. He said he was acting as the agent of the board of Education and had no option in the matter.

DUTCH GOVERNMENT STOPS IMMIGRATION

Seeks to Hold Skilled Workers at Home—Army Is Being Much Improved.

The Hague, Netherlands, Nov. 20.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The restriction by the Dutch government of the movements of metal workers who were intending to go to Great Britain to take advantage of high wages there has called attention to the position of the Netherlands in connection with war supplies.

The enforcement of the regulations was a surprise to the workmen concerned, several thousands of whose comrades had been employed in German munition factories since the beginning of the war. The labor representatives who conferred with the government officials were told that the action of the authorities was necessary because so many men were leaving whose services would be invaluable to the country in case of need, and that the prohibition of emigration is now applicable without regard to which country they might wish to go.

The Metal Workers' Union has entered an energetic protest against the stoppage of its members' emigration, and has brought forward statistics to show that many of them are out of work in this country. At the same time the Union demands, in case the order should remain in force, an increase of 35 per cent in the men's wages, and the government is considering the problem thus brought forward as it affects the workers in the government factories.

Government Opens Arsenal.
For many years some of the Dutch newspapers have been calling attention to the necessity of establishing efficient arsenals and ammunition factories under Dutch state control to provide sufficient war material for the Dutch army under all conditions, instead of leaving the military forces of the country as hitherto dependent on foreign contractors. Possibly as a result of this agitation, the state since January 1913 has possessed an arms and ammunition factory on the Hembrug at Amsterdam and an arsenal at Delft. These state institutions have been recently extended to include the construction of certain parts of flying machines and sea mines, but the entire output is based on the requirements of the small Dutch army on a peace footing.

Much has been done since the beginning of the European war to place the Dutch army in a position to cope with modern conditions of fighting. Under the circumstances the government deems it unwise to publish even approximate figures as to what has been done, but it may be taken as a fact that the Netherlands are prepared for most eventualities.

The army possesses a good rifle, rather light as compared with others in use in Europe, and the country has enough of them to arm all its trained infantrymen. Rifle ammunition, too, is on hand in satisfactory quantities, reckoned on the basis of the immense numbers of cartridges fired off in modern engagements. Several private factories are engaged in manufacturing still further large quantities of these, as well as artillery ammunition under the supervision of the munitions committee of the government.

Artillery Service.
As to the Dutch artillery, the army experts have followed closely the operations going on all round. They have made their calculations as to the number of shells to have ready for each piece of ordnance and in all probability have provided for even greater quantities of shells than were considered indispensable by the French and German gunnery experts before the opening of hostilities. Provision was then made for the French for each piece of field ordnance sent on active service to be supplied with 579 shells. The Germans, on the other hand, calculated that 308 was an ample supply. Both have proved almost incredibly far below the actual requirements and the Dutch gunners are understood to have taken full cognizance of this fact.

As to the guns themselves, the Dutch have come to the conclusion that their artillery must be strengthened, and it is believed that much has already been accomplished in this direction, both as regards light and heavy field pieces and machine guns. The ordinary field guns in use in the Dutch army do not differ very greatly from the Austrian 8-centimeter weapons. They have also a very light field piece of 6-centimeters calibre, handy for use in broken ground such as is found everywhere in the Netherlands. As to heavier mobile pieces, some of the fortress guns are capable of being provided with field carriages and in this way guns of 10, 12 and fifteen centimeter bore could be placed in the field.

In Holland the guns of the field artillery have many times to be carried by water and the guns are often exercised in this transportation. In every irrigation canal are numerous shallow flat-bottomed boats used for the carrying over of cattle and manure. These are put to use by the artillerymen. Two of them are placed side by side and made fast. The gun and its carriage are then slipped aboard along planks used as runners, each of the planks holding two of the wheels. In this way most of the difficulties of the ground, when wreck up by canals, are overcome.

WRECKING BOATS REACH THE DISABLED MINNESOTA

San Francisco, Dec. 7.—The wrecking steamer Inga and the tug Dauntless sent from here last Friday to the assistance of the disabled steamer Minnesota, reached the vessel at 7 o'clock this morning and took her in tow, according to a radio message from the Inga received here tonight by G. W. Wiley, marine superintendent of the Great Northern Steamship company. The brief message contained nothing that would throw additional light on the Inga's mishap.

Washington, Dec. 7.—President Wilson is studying the question of forming an advisory body of railroad men, manufacturers and technical experts, as suggested in his address to congress today, and it became known tonight that he probably would begin its organization in the near future.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four centes of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and gently destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

ATHLETES TO FORM CLUB NEXT SUNDAY

Organization Will Promote Interest in All Indoor Games and Also in Hockey.

Ishpeming men and high school students who are interested in the organization of the proposed athletic club are asked to meet at the Ishpeming theater Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. More than fifty have already said they will attend the meeting, and it is hoped the number present will be 100 or more.

A committee composed of members of the city football team is now interviewing the young men of the city to ascertain their views with reference to the proposed club, and to urge them to attend the meeting, so that plans for the winter's activities can be fully outlined.

It is proposed to organize city basketball, indoor baseball and hockey teams. A suitable place for the members of the indoor teams to practice, will be obtained, and the members of the committee say they have two or three suitable places in sight. It is also proposed to secure club rooms.

Several Ishpeming ice skaters are keenly interested in hockey, which was introduced here last winter. A team was organized late in the season and it was possible to play only a few games with Negaunee and Marquette teams. Part of the municipal ice rink will this year be specially arranged for this sport. It is planned to make the hockey skating surface about the size of the Amphitheatre in Houghton. This will give the players an opportunity to play the game on a regulation size rink.

The rink on the Cleveland field, corner Fourth street and Cleveland avenue, will be flooded as soon as steady freezing weather sets in. For some time past the young people have been skating on Mud lake, but the snow that fell yesterday put the ice in bad condition for the sport.

ADVANCEMENT ASSOCIATION.

Praises Representative Francis—Will Help Salvation Army.

At a regular meeting of the Ishpeming Advancement association yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A., the work of Representative T. F. Francis to secure the laboratory for Ishpeming was discussed at length. A resolution was adopted expressing the thanks of the association to Mr. Francis for his efforts.

Another resolution authorizes the president to appoint a committee to call on the members of the association in connection with the annual banquet, which will be held some time in January. The officers for the year will be elected at the annual meeting.

Captain Schulte of the Salvation Army attended the meeting and spoke in behalf of their Christmas activities. He

SHIPPING RECORD CERTAIN NEXT YEAR

Railway and Boat Lines Will Be Prepared to Handle Largely Increased Tonnage.

That the Lake Superior iron fields will establish a shipping record in 1916 is predicted by prominent mining men on all the ranges. Many of the railway companies are purchasing new locomotives, cars and other equipment and the ore-carrying fleet will be increased by a number of new boats.

The season just ended showed a much larger movement than was anticipated early in the year, when the iron situation was anything but encouraging. All of the ore boats have not yet docked for the winter, two or three having been loaded at the Soo road at Ashland closed last week.

The shipments from the Great Northern docks at Alouha Bay were not ended until yesterday, when the last boat was loaded.

The grand total of the season's shipments of Lake Superior ores cannot yet be given, but the figures for the docks now closed show that they sent out close to 100 per cent more ore than last year. From five docks in the Minnesota field there were shipped 22,227,774 tons, against 13,515,894 tons last season, an increase of 12,711,883 tons.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern company had by far the heaviest ore traffic. The tonnage moved was 15,437,419, compared with 6,318,295 in 1914. The shipments from the Duluth & Iron Range docks were 8,142,942 tons, compared with 5,579,929 in 1914. The Northern Pacific docks this season shipped 173,047 tons, compared with 127,664 tons last year. The Soo docks at Superior shipped 960,365 tons compared with 721,662 last year, and the Soo line docks at Ashland moved 112,773 tons, against 758,144 tons last year.

UNUSUAL BOWLING SCORE.

T. Saline Made 702 in Three Games Monday Night at Empire Alleys.

That bowling is uncertain, more so than any other game, was shown Monday evening at the Empire alleys, when Saline made a score of 702 in three games, displacing Nurni Hendrickson, who had hung up a 685 total. Nurni's score is a mark that is seldom made, and he felt sure that it would not be beaten. Saline's remarkable record is the largest made since McCullough rolled 705 in 1912. Saline had been to the Ishpeming theater and after the show he dropped into the alleys. His first game of 230 looked good and he decided to try again. He then rolled 257 and finished with a 209, making a total of 702.

Tonight the five-men match between the "Y" team and the "Pickups" from the Empire alleys will roll at 8:30 o'clock sharp. The time was changed 15 minutes on account of the stores being open. Following is the "Y" lineup: Beaglehole, captain; Sackrider, Gant, Eddie Holmgren and E. Hendrickson. The "Pickups" lineup is not known yet.

In the business men's league teams Nos. 10 and 5 are scheduled to roll tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

MISS MABEL LAWRY TO SING.

Miss Mabel Lawry, who is visiting her parents, will fill a three days' engagement at Ishpeming theater, commencing Dec. 23. If the Butler theater opens on the 23d, as expected, Miss Lawry also will sing there. Miss Lawry has been singing in Detroit for the last two or three years and has filled engagements at the most prominent theaters, conventions, banquets, etc. For eight weeks during the summer she sang with Creator's band.

NANCE O'NEIL TODAY.

Wellknown Actress Will Be Seen at Ishpeming Theater in Photoplay.

Nance O'Neil, will be seen here today in "Princess Romanoff," a Fox play, in six reels. "Princess Romanoff" is based on Victorien Sardou's "Esjora." Miss O'Neil, who is many times referred to by critics as the world's mistress of stormy emotions, is assisted in this play by a cast which includes Clifford Bruce, Stuart Holmes, R. I. Scott, Jane Harvey, Victor Benoit, Jane Miller, Jane Gordon, Edgar Davenport and George Paige.

Frank Powell, producer of "Princess Romanoff" regards this as the greatest picture he has produced up to this time. Of it he says:

"I always strive to produce a story that will be as plain and striking to a five-year-old child as to a sophisticated spectator. I have a horror of subtleties and never use them when it possibly can be avoided, as they break up the continuity of the story and confuse the general effect. I am also a firm believer in the value of settings and back-grounds in a picture. For instance, it should be quite possible to suggest the character of the occupant of a certain room merely by showing the room itself, without the human element entering into it. It is the old proposition of judging people by their surroundings and their intimates and their personal tastes. There is no reason why this cannot be done on the screen just as effectively as actual life."

CHINO COPPER CO.

Chino Copper company should make at least three new records in 1915—largest production and earnings and lowest cost in its history.

Production will probably be 12,000,000 pounds in excess of the best previous year—1914. Net will be double that for each of the two previous years.

The above estimate of the 1915 results is based on the company's official figures for nine months—production 48,600,000 pounds, cost 6.6 cents and net $1,445,000. For the last three months the estimate is a production of 18,900,000 pounds, 7-cent cost and net of $2,000,000.

TRIES THREE TIMES TO END HIS OWN LIFE

G. Deperto, Believed to Be Insane, Then Attempted to Remove Bandages to Die.

As Officer Larson entered the boarding house of Maurice Guigher, at the Cambria location, to arrest Giochino Deperto, a boarder there, who was suspected of being insane, Deperto tried to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor.

Yesterday's attempt is the second that Deperto has made to end his life. He has a large scar on his neck as a result of the first attempt.

Deperto had been boarding with Guigher for the last several months and had been out of employment all summer. He did not make any payments on his board bill, which, according to the boarding house keeper, was a large sum.

Guigher left Deperto and a little later the latter approached him and threatened to stab him. Yesterday morning Guigher came to the city and swore out a warrant for the boarder's arrest.

Deperto had been melancholy and Guigher thought that a few inches, and, after the threat, became afraid of him.

Officer John Larson accompanied Guigher to his home and as they entered the house Deperto saw them coming, drew a razor and made a slash across his neck.

Deperto became quiet when the knife was taken from him but when he saw a chance he brought out a small pocket knife, which he had concealed under his vest.

Deperto was taken to the Negaunee hospital, where his wounds were dressed. He was weak from loss of blood but was able to walk and was taken to the city jail. Seven stitches were required to close the gash in the man's neck but it was not serious.

Deperto was taken to the Negaunee hospital, where his wounds were dressed. He was weak from loss of blood but was able to walk and was taken to the city jail. Seven stitches were required to close the gash in the man's neck but it was not serious.

All the time Deperto was in jail it was necessary to keep his hands tightly bound as he made several attempts to remove the bandages from his wounds.

POSTOFFICE KEPT BUSY. Holiday Business Largest in History of Negaunee Office.

Postmaster Peter Trudell, Jr., asserts a larger number of Christmas packages have been sent from his office this month than ever before in the history of the office.

Mr. Trudell believes the office force will be capable of handling the holiday rush. The substitute carriers and clerks are ready and the force will be increased as soon as the holiday rush begins.

Those who wait until the last few days to mail Christmas packages will be disappointed this year. Mr. Trudell said yesterday. "The business conditions are so good that the last few days before Christmas will see much more matter going through the mails than ever before.

The foreign money order business is slackening at the postoffice. "The foreign money order business this year is a large improvement over last year, in fact there is no comparison," the postmaster said.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TAKEN WITH DISFAVOR; MARKET CLOSES UNEASY.

New York, Dec. 7.—If the course of today's market may be accepted as a criterion, Wall Street and the financial community as a whole regarded some of the main points of the president's message to congress with disfavor.

Standard stocks, which were dull but steady in the forenoon, and became more active and stronger on publication of the message, fell back later under the weight of heavy selling, in which bearish operations probably were no small factor.

United States Steel was the overshadowing feature of the mid-day advance, ascending almost steadily from its early minimum of 86 1/2 to 88 1/4, a mere 1/2 under its best price of recent years, on transactions that ranged from 1,000 to 7,500 shares.

BOSTON COPPERS. Ishpeming, Dec. 7.—All markets were strong early, but toward the close prices reacted sharply. During the forenoon Anaconda rallied to 89 and Steel common to above 88, but both of these issues lost their early gains in the last few minutes of trading.

Calumet & Arizona dividend was increased to $125, payable Dec. 20 to a stock of record Dec. 10. Alaska Gold as these prices look attractive and on any further reaction believe it should be bought.

RAY HERCULES COPPER CO. The Ray Hercules Copper company has $975,000 in its treasury to push development work and $1,500,000 in all will be forthcoming as needed.

Henry Krumb, who reported on the Kennecott copper properties for the Alaska Syndicate, has charge of development work at Ray Hercules. A considerable tonnage it is believed will be added to the 3,400,000 tons of 2.26 per cent ore reported by Krumb last September as a result of developments surrounding the sinking of drill hole No. 28 in which 145 feet of ore averaging better than 2 per cent copper was located at a depth extending from 475 to 620 feet before it bottomed.

Krumb had been anticipating such results as he concluded his September report as follows: "Unquestionably the area to the east and southeast of that already developed is very promising." It was in extending the drilled territory to the eastward that 145 feet of ore averaging better than 2 per cent copper was located.

Some drills have been put to work on the Vindicator claim for the purpose of locating a permanent shaft, it being the intention to put it in barren ground so that there will be no possibility of material ground caving. Necessary timber and buckets and other equipment for the shaft have already been shipped.

The shaft will be sunk from an elevation in order that plans for an aerial tramway to carry ores from mine to mill may be carried out.

The company has shipped some high grade carbonate ore of which about 1,000 tons were on the dump. Of this ore cars have already started, containing 305 tons of ore. Two cars assayed 7.58 per cent copper and the remaining cars assayed 7.27 per cent. Proceeds from these shipments and others to follow will be devoted to development work.

NOT ONE HUNTER SHOT FOR DEER

Buck Law in Wisconsin Proves Effective Means of Saving Human Life—No Fatalities Reported for Season Recently Closed—Seven Killed Last Year

Stories of "Thousands of Dead Does Lying in Woods" Found to Be False—Law Is Advocated by Warden Oates for Safety and Conservation Features.

Not one hunter was killed in Wisconsin in mistake for a deer during the twenty-day season recently closed. While the season was on, many lurid tales of doe carcasses lying in the woods emanated from hunters in that state and found their way into the columns of the Wisconsin newspapers. The first authentic report issued by Conservation Commissioner Barber since the close of the season not only refutes these tales, but shows that the one-buck law has been the means of saving human lives. The past season with not a single fatality demonstrate the desirability of the new law over the old law of last year, when seven hunters were killed by being shot by companions or other hunters, being mistaken for deer. Two years ago, eleven were killed, in 1912 fourteen were killed, and the year previous seventeen. The total number wounded in the Wisconsin woods in the deer hunting season during the last twenty years reaches several thousands. These figures are in the records of the Wisconsin conservation commission.

Proved Better Than Expected. The buck-law was in operation in Wisconsin for the first time during the past season. During the course of the season considerable hostility to this law was evidenced by certain hunters, and for some time the Wisconsin newspapers gave credence to the stories of thousands of carcasses of does scattered through the woods, as told by "prominent citizens" just returned from hunting trips. Game Warden Oates, who has always been an ardent advocate of the buck-law, at that time advised that judgment be withheld as regards the efficacy of this law, as these tales were evidently inspired by hunters who desired a return to the old law for reasons best known to themselves. He also estimated that the official report would disclose an entirely different state of affairs from what was then claimed, which has since proved to be the case. The "safety-first" feature of the new law is, of course, regarded as the strongest point in its favor. In the entire season only five Wisconsin men were accidentally wounded, according to the same report. These are what the commission describes as "fool accidents," and none of them has any connection with the deer season or the buck law. The accidents resulted from such causes as men falling while carrying a rifle, the discharge of a gun not supposed to be loaded, a boy stumbling and accidentally discharging his rifle, and the like. As a conservation measure, it was shown by the commissioners report that the shipment of carcasses in Wisconsin was reduced from 9,000 in 1914 to 4,000 in the season just closed. As for the stories of "thousands of carcasses of does lying in the woods where they fell," this matter was thoroughly investigated by the Wisconsin deputies, who had been able to find only twenty-one altogether.

Favored by Game Warden Oates.

"If the one-buck law proved instrumental in saving but human life it would be sufficient to justify its existence," said Game Warden Oates, agent the success of this law in Wisconsin. "The one-deer law, which was obtained for this state by the game department this year as a sort of compromise measure, has proved to be a decided step in the right direction, but the buck law is undoubtedly infinitely more efficient in the saving of human life. In this state twelve hunters were killed during the season just closed, and twenty-three were injured. Comparatively few of these cases were caused as a result of the victim being mistaken for a deer, yet there were some such cases, which the result of the buck-law in Wisconsin shows might have been eliminated. However, the fatality list of this year, with the one-deer law in effect, is not nearly as bad as in previous years under the old law, as in 1913, for instance, eleven men were killed and twenty-seven serious accidents attributed directly to the hunters being mistaken for deer.

"Does may be killed by hunters and left in the woods, as the antagonists of the buck-law maintain, but isn't human life of more value than the lives of a few does? Besides, Wisconsin's experience proves that there are not any more doe carcasses left in the woods under this law than under the old law. This is clearly a matter of administration, and can be curtailed to a great extent by the vigilance of the deputy game wardens.

"The buck-law, by protecting the doe, not only maintains but actually increases the number of deer far beyond the present extent, as deer are fecund breeders. This matter of conserving the game, incidentally, is one which merits considerable attention, as deer are not as abundant now as in years gone by, and if they are killed in greater numbers than they are propagated, we shall be threatened soon with the extermination of the race. Both as a means of protecting human life and as a conservation measure, the buck-law is undoubtedly the most effective yet devised, and the game department will strenuously urge its adoption by this state at the next session of the state legislature."
