Manistique Papers; Edison Sault make proposal to EPA on harbor clean-up

A volunteer crew member points out the various parts of the schooner Madeline during the ship's stay in Manistique harbor. Madeline was in town on Tuesday, Aug. 10.

Representatives from Manistique Papers and Edison Sault met with officials from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Tuesday in Chicago to propose a solution to the PCB contamination in Manistique harbor.

Manistique Papers and Edison Sault presented the EPA with a plan to permanently "cap and remove" the contaminated sediments according to Eric Bourdo of Manistique Papers.

Bourdo said the EPA has agreed to the proposal "in principle" and said the EPA told Manistique Papers and Edison Sault to "move along those lines."

"We told them that it doesn't pay to try the 'Band-Aid' approach and do the work later," he said.

Bourdo said the plan could be quickly designed and implemented by this year.

"We were told by our scientists that the PCBs will not splash out if we do the capping," he said. "Capping has been done successfully in other areas around the Great Lakes."

According to EPA officials, the harbor will not be able to be dredged for any purpose until the contaminated sediments are removed.

"One hurdle that has to be overcome is the dredging aspect," Bourdo said. "I contacted area government officials and they said there wouldn't be a problem with not being able to dredge."

"They said there were no current plans to dredge the harbor for business or otherwise." Bourdo added that the Downtown Development Association (DDA) seemed to be looking more toward the recreational uses of the harbor and river and not business uses.

"The Corps of Engineers has not been contacted about the plan, but will be contacted very soon," he said. "They have a say in this too." Bourdo said the proposed solution would not affect the use of the harbor or marina with regard to pleasure crafts.

There is no definite answer on how long the PCBs will be present in the harbor, according to Bourdo, but he said the heaviest PCBs in the harbor have a half-life of approximately eight years depending on the sediments the PCBs are in.

Bourdo said the most important input will come from the community. "Our scientific firm, Blasland & Bouck did a quick review of all our options," he said. "The most environmentally sound option and best option for the community would be to cap."

According to Bourdo, the cap would be formed by laying geotextile fabric over the contaminated areas. A layer of sand and gravel would be placed over the fabric and the edges would be anchored with stone.

He said, "The cap would be designed to withstand any flood flow or environmental event we could ever foresee."

The next step, Bourdo said, is for the EPA to review the proposal. Continued on page 4A

Coliform traces found in city water supply

by Robert Kirkbride

Traces of coliform were found in the Manistique water supply on two separate occasions during routine testing last month according to a report given by the city's Water/Wastewater Superintendent at Monday's city council meeting.

Randy Sanville said that although the bacteria were found in water samples from Manistique, water customers in Manistique have nothing to worry about.

"We took two positive samples and since then have taken 10 that have all come back good," he said. "Whatever it is that caused it, it is gone now."

Sanville said coliform is found every once in a while in the water supply.

"Coliform is found everywhere: in animals, plants and the soil," he said. "The coliform we found in the water samples from Manistique are not the E. Coli or Fecal Coliform that comes from humans and can cause sickness."

Sanville said the traces would not have been found a few years ago, but the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Michigan Department of Public Health instituted new testing criteria in 1990, which expands the test range.

According to a memo sent by Sanville to city council members on Aug. 5, the Michigan Department of Public Health staff have been notified of the results of the tests and have stated that the water is safe and no further sampling related to this incident is required.

The memo says: "Some possible reasons for the positive tests are: Contaminated sample bottles or improper sample collection, laboratory error, lower than normal chlorine residual because of high chlorine demand in our source water, only applying chlorine after the filters."

"Actions we took to resolve the problem: Reesterilize our sample bottles, strictly adhere to the proper sampling technique, increased the chlorine residual, began applying chlorine before and after the filters."

Sanville said under EPA rules, the city is required to make the public aware and that each water user must be notified.

"The water is definitely safe," he said. "It doesn't need to be boiled or anything like that. There is no risk to the drinking supply."

"In other council action: ...The city heard a presentation from Eric Bourdo of Manistique Papers on the report presented to the EPA on the PCB levels in Manistique harbor."

According to the first draft of the paper presented to the EPA: "...there is a low potential of an erosional loss of sediment and PCB from the depositional environment which has been the target of the proposed removal action and, therefore, there is no imminent and substantial endangerment to the environment due to the low probability of the release;

"The Harbor sediments pose no imminent and substantial endangerment to human health; ...dredging of the sediment of Manistique Harbor may cause transport of PCBs to Lake Michigan;

"...the potential large-scale dredging project that would be associated with the Harbor warrants thorough planning and consideration of environmental impacts and technological alternatives; and ...there are no data which justify a time-critical removal action."

Bourdo said removal of the 50,000 cubic yards of contaminated sediments could run in the $20-$30 million price range. "If the $30 million is put on Manistique Papers," will (Manistique Papers) exist," asked councilman Mike Dougovina.

"I don't know," responded Bourdo. "If the money were to be put on us we would be severely David Jahn, the Schoolcraft County Hospital administrator "tests" the waters" with Greg Norman, known around the golf world as "the Shark". Jahn played in the Buick Open pro-am.

Beware of the Shark

by Robert Kirkbride

Common sense would tell you not to play with a shark, but Schoolcraft County Hospital administrator David Jahn did just that Wednesday, Aug. 4 in Grand Blanc, Mich. near Detroit.

Jahn played golf with professional golfer Greg Norman, known around the game as "The Shark", at the Buick Open's pro-am tournament held at Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club.

"It was the best time I ever had playing golf," said Jahn. "It was a once in a lifetime chance and then to pick Greg Norman. He is a favorite for a lot of golfers."

According to Jahn, he was chosen to play by the Service Corporation, which is a part of the Michigan Hospital Association. The Service Corporation is a "Silver Patron" to the tournament. They are allowed to choose one golfer to play in the pro-am and Jahn was chosen.

"I wasn't chosen because of my golf scores," he said. "Someone different gets to play every year." Jahn said one of the main differences between the average player and the professional is the concentration level of the professional is so high.

"Greg's level of concentration rubbed off on me during our round," he said. "You don't want to make a fool of yourself in front of the people there watching." Jahn said he tried to shake off the cob webs on the practice tee before the tournament.

"I asked someone in the club house where I could hit some balls and they told me to go down to the practice tee," he said. "When I got down there, there were pros like Freddie Couples, Tom Watson and Tom Kite hitting. The area they were in was roped off. "So I went back to the club house and again asked where I could hit some balls and they said that because I was playing in the tournament, to go under the rope and hit where the pros were. "I found a spot between Phil Mickelson and Mark O'Meara." Jahn was by no means outclassed by Norman. Jahn said he shot a 4-over-par 76, while Norman shot a 2-under-par 70.

"He's just so smooth and consistent," Jahn said of Norman's playing style. "He hit 17 (of 18) fairways and 16 greens."

Jahn said that for the most part, the course is similar to courses around Manistique. "The big difference was how fast the greens were," he said. "It was like putting on a glass top table. They just kept rolling."

According to Jahn, his group, which consisted of Norman and three amateur golfers, finished sixth out of 52 teams with a score of -15. The winners of the tournament shot a -17.

"They were all excellent players," he said. "They still play the same as we do at our course here. The game is the same. "People think they are uppity and don't think the way we do, but they do."

Jahn said it took about a hole to get over the awe of playing with someone like Greg Norman. "First thing he said to me was, 'Let's go out and have a good time,'" Jahn said. "Once I got talking with him, it felt like I was playing with one of my friends. "I even out-drove him a couple of times and he said to me kidding. "When are you going to hit one Dave?"

Jahn said his group and Norman talked quite a bit during the round. "Since he's from Australia," he said, "some of the group asked him about sailing and diving. He said he enjoyed doing both.

"He seemed really excited about his win a few weeks ago in the British Open. He said, 'It's nice to be back to the States where you can tell the difference between the greens and the fairways.' "He also told us that he has shot nine holes-in-one in his life."

Jahn said he felt sorry for Norman because many of the people in the gallery were rude to Norman while trying to get his autograph. "The pro-am is the time when people can get the pro's autograph," he said. "He was just mobbed with people. "People would push and shove hats and things in front of him to sign. Norman told us only about one in 20 people could thank you."

Jahn said he was amazed at the amount of time the pros spend on the course. "Norman put in an 11 hour day when we played in the tournament," he said. "He was on the practice tee for several hours before we went out, he played the round with us, and when we came in, he apologized that he couldn't join us for a beer, but he had to hit some more balls. That's dedication."

According to Jahn, Norman finished third in the tournament and took home about $70,000 in prize money. "That's not a bad week's work," Jahn said.

Madeline visits Manistique

The 92-foot schooner Madeline was docked in Manistique harbor on Tuesday, Aug. 10.

Free tours of the ship were given from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The visit was sponsored by the Manistique Merchants Association and WTQ-WCMM radio station.

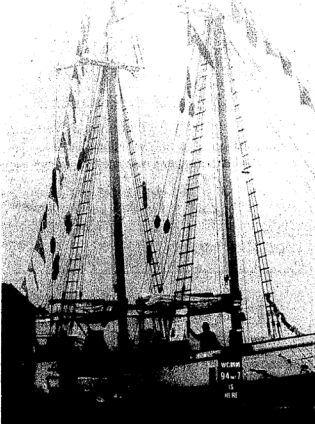

Madeline is a reconstruction of a mid-19th century fore and aft schooner built by the Maritime Heritage Alliance (MHA), a non-profit organization based in Traverse City.

The original Madeline sailed the waters of Lake Michigan more than 150 years ago. During the winter of 1850-51 her cargo hold became the first non-Indian school in the Grand Traverse region.

Like her namesake, today's Madeline has served education since her first frames were lofted in 1985. During the five year building project, hundreds of volunteers learned boat building skills using traditional and modern methods.

Since Madeline was launched in 1990, the MHA has maintained her as a dock side interpretive center allowing thousands of visitors to come aboard and learn about Great Lakes maritime history and traditional sailing craft. When under sail, Madeline becomes a training ship for her crew and a goodwill ambassador representing Traverse City and the Grand Traverse Region throughout the Great Lakes.

Volunteer tour guides and crew members answered any questions about the ship.

The Madeline, partially obscured by Tuesday morning's fog, will visit Fayette and Escanaba at the end of the week.

Headlee vote falls short in Manistique

The residents of Manistique rejected the Headlee Amendment vote to roll back school millage rates at Monday's special election.

Dr. Herb Harroun, superintendent of Manistique area schools said after Tuesday's school board meeting that although the "no" vote will not adversely affect the Manistique area schools as badly as other area districts. It does worry him for next year.

"The no vote means we are going to have to worry about it in the future," he said. "When we do our long range planning next year we will probably talk about some layoffs."

According to Harroun, the district still has found equity, which means the school district can still go with this year's budget without implementing cuts. He said the school district will lose anywhere from $180,000 to $200,000 because of the vote. "Not having the money means we will cut a large part of our fund equity," he said. "Unless the state comes up with more money than we expect, we will have to go back to the old days of threatening layoffs and cuts."

"We will have to adjust to every bump in the road. "When you have reserves, like we have for the past several years, we can take a good look at the long range planning. Now we will be back to making hasty decisions."

"When you prune it sometimes has to hurt. Reserves allow us to take a look at things and try to figure out what will hurt the least."

Harroun said the district has also lost money from the federal government along with a large drop in students, which means less money for the schools. "Not counting the no vote, we have already lost over $200,000 in revenue this year compared to last year," he said. "Losing the Continued on page 4A

PUBLIC NOTICE CITY OF MANISTIQUE WATER CUSTOMERS

The City of Manistique hereby notifies its water system customers of a recent problem in meeting the state drinking water standard for total coliform bacteria. Recent laboratory analysis of water samples collected from the water system have detected the presence of total coliform bacteria exceeding the Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL).

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that the presence of total coliforms is a possible health concern. Total coliforms are common in the environment and are generally not harmful themselves. The presence of these bacteria in drinking water, however, generally is the result of a problem with water treatment or pipes which distribute the water and indicates that the water may be contaminated with organisms that can cause disease. Disease symptoms may include diarrhea, cramps, nausea, and possible jaundice, and any associated headaches with fatigue. These symptoms, however, are not just associated with disease-causing organisms in drinking water, but may also be caused by a number of factors other than your drinking water. The EPA has set an enforceable drinking water standard for total coliforms to reduce the risk of these adverse health effects. Drinking water which meets this standard is usually not associated with a health risk from disease-causing bacteria and should be considered safe.

An investigation has been completed. The water is safe to drink, and boiling or other precautions are not necessary. The bacteriological quality of the drinking water will continue to be monitored. Residents will be notified in the event of any additional violations.

Please write, or call us if you have any questions.

Cheeseburger Pie is simple and yet unique. The crust has dried onion flakes in it and is tender tasty. Topping the meat filling with fresh tomato slices and cheese makes for a special treat and really an attractive dish.

CHEESEBURGER PIE

Crust:
2 teas. Minced or Dried Onion 1/2 teas. salt
1/4 cup cold water 1/3 cup shortening
1 cup flour

Filling:
1/4 cup catsup 1 beaten egg
2 teas. Minced or dried onion 1/2 cup bread crumbs
1 teas. salt 6 fresh tomato slices, or well-drained canned tomatoes, cut into halves
1/2 teas. Sweet Basil 6 wedge-shaped slices Cheddar or American cheese
1/4 teas. Marjoram
1/4 teas. pepper
1 pound ground beef
1 cup shredded Cheddar Cheese

Soak 2 teas. onion in cold water. Mix salt and flour and cut in shortening until size of small peas. Add onion-water mixture and stir lightly with fork, pushing lumps to side, until dough is just moist enough to hold together. Form into ball. Flatten to about 1/2-inch thickness and roll out on floured surface to a circle 1 1/2 inches larger than inverted pie pan (8" or 9"). Fit loosely into pan, fold edge to form a rim and flute.

Cook ground beef until it loses red color. Remove from heat. Add catsup and spices, shredded cheese, beaten egg, and bread crumbs. Mix well. Turn into pastry-lined pan. Top with tomato slices. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes until crust is golden brown. Top with tomato slices with cheese wedge-shaped slices and bake 1 minute longer until cheese is melted. Serve hot. 4-6 servings.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
To the People of Manistique:

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (U.S. EPA) is responsible for investigating and overseeing the cleanup of hazardous contamination throughout the nation. In 1980, Congress created the Superfund program, authorizing U.S. EPA to respond to releases of hazardous substances, pollutants, and contaminants into the environment.

U.S. EPA has several internal programs to manage the complex task of cleaning up contaminated sites. One of these programs, the Removal Program, was created to respond to emergencies involving hazardous substances, pollutants, and contaminants. The Removal Program was designed to minimize or eliminate any immediate danger when hazardous materials threaten to contaminate the air, soil, or water, and endanger human health or the environment.

In a typical U.S. EPA removal action, the contaminants are removed from the area for treatment or disposal in a safe and approved manner. In some removal actions, the threat can be removed by treating the contamination at the site.

This fact sheet provides information about contamination and a potential U.S. EPA removal action at the Manistique harbor Superfund Site in Manistique, Schoolcraft County, Michigan. The site has been designated as one of 43 Areas of Concern in the Great Lakes. U.S. EPA, together with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR), has been working with a Remedial Action Program (RAP) committee of local citizens to address many of the contamination problems in this area.

SITE DESCRIPTION

The Manistique Harbor Site is located in the city of Manistique on the southern shore of Michigan's Upper Peninsula, where the Manistique River empties into Lake Michigan. It is bounded on the east and west by the banks of the Manistique River; on the south by Manistique Harbor; and on the north by a dam that impounds the river at a location 1.4 miles above the river's outlet into the lake. The site encompasses the entire width of the river and adjacent areas for a distance of approximately 1.7 miles.

SITE HISTORY

Manistique Papers, Inc. is currently the only active manufacturing operation along the river near the site boundaries. The other remaining operations along the river include the Edison Sault Electric Company substation near Manistique Papers, near the west bank of the river; and Washawsky Brothers Iron and Metal, a salvaging operation near the east bank of the river.

Waste disposed of into the river in the area of the Manistique Harbor Site has included paper and wood wastes, and various chemical and oil wastes from industrial operations. Prior to the construction of a municipal waste-water treatment plant in 1959, storm water and sanitary wastes were also discharged directly to the river through the city's combined sewer system. These disposal practices impacted the aquatic life downstream of the dam as early as the mid-1950s. The aquatic damage was attributed to the sewage discharge and deposits of wood fibers and organic wastes from sawmill and paper mill operations.

Since 1959, a number of government agencies have conducted sampling at the site to identify and characterize the contaminants in the river. In 1985, a report on Great Lakes water quality identified several problem areas in Manistique harbor. The principal contaminant was polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) contamination that has been found in the sediments of the river and harbor in Manistique. The report found a reduction in the number and variety of aquatic life as a result of the contamination. Fish (such as carp) in the harbor were shown to contain PCBs above the action levels of two parts per million (ppm) set by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The Michigan Department of Public Health issued a public health advisory warning people against eating carp caught in the harbor.

In 1990, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers conducted sampling that confirmed the presence of PCBs in the river and harbor. BACKGROUND ON PCBs PCBs are compounds that belong to a broad family of organic compounds known as chlorinated hydrocarbons. Virtually all chlorinated hydrocarbons are synthetically manufactured and are used for a wide variety of industrial and commercial purposes. Used since 1926, PCBs have many useful properties, including unusually good chemical and thermal stability; fire resistance; non-conductivity; and low solubility in water. The most common uses of PCBs have been as coolants and insulators in electrical transformers, and in lubricants, carbonless copy paper, adhesives, and caulking compounds.

PCBs are extremely persistent in the environment. They take many years to break down into less harmful chemicals. They are not soluble in water. Due to their persistence, PCBs are frequently found in soils and sediments. Humans are primarily exposed to PCBs through accumulation in the food chain.

In the late 1960s, evidence accumulated that PCBs had toxic properties. Studies on humans indicated that long-term exposure to high levels of PCBs can cause liver and skin disorders. Based on cancer findings in humans, U.S. EPA considers PCBs to be a probable human carcinogen. Women exposed to PCBs are at an increased risk of developing reproductive problems. Studies indicate that fish contaminated with PCBs develop severe reproductive impairments. Reproductive problems in fish-eating birds were linked to PCBs. Evidence suggests that children born to mothers having elevated exposure due to eating PCB-contaminated fish may develop neurological problems. In 1976, to reduce risks to human health and the environment, U.S. EPA banned the manufacture of PCBs.

U.S. EPA ACTIONS Based on the data developed by MDNR and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. EPA concluded that additional study was required to determine the scope and extent of PCB contamination in Manistique Harbor. In April 1993, U.S. EPA identified Manistique Papers, Edison Sault Electric Company, and Washawsky Brothers as the potentially responsible parties (PRPs) for the release of PCB contamination at Manistique Harbor.

PCB contamination exceeding 50 ppm may be considered to be an immediate threat to human health and the environment. The PRPs study found four areas at which the PCB level at the surface of the sediment was above 50 ppm.

By scouring, surface sediments from these "hotspots" may constitute an ongoing release of PCBs into the environment, and contribute to elevated PCB levels in fish. The preliminary evidence indicates that PCBs have migrated into Lake Michigan. The continued failure to mitigate this migration into the lake constitutes a possible environmental threat.

U.S. EPA has concluded that, based on the preliminary results, the levels of PCBs in both the sediments and the fish in Manistique Harbor constitute a threat to human health and the environment. Based on the operation, U.S. EPA and the PRPs are currently holding discussions on how best to reduce this threat. Although U.S. EPA prefers to have the PRPs address the PCB contamination, U.S. EPA, through the Removal Program, does have the authority to proceed independently.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency

Dear Editor:

Manistique Papers, Inc. and Edison Sault Electric Company met on Friday, July 30, 1993, with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Region V Administrator, Mr. Valdas Adamkus, to propose an expedited review over the next three months on how to address polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) sediments in Manistique Harbor. Manistique Papers and Edison Sault's proposal is based on the result of a voluntary sediment sampling and analysis program of Manistique Harbor. This study was carried out by Manistique Papers and Edison Sault in June, 1993, in order to provide sound scientific data regarding the PCB sediments in Manistique Harbor and to review whether there is a basis for a time-critical removal action.

The main conclusions of this study are: "There is a low potential for PCB release from the top three inches of sediment averaged 16 ppm, there were concentrations as high as 124 ppm. Samples that were collected from below a depth of three inches had an average PCB concentration of more than 200 ppm. These data have not yet been reviewed for quality assurance."

U.S. EPA policy concerning PCBs specifies that any level of

Marley's Bar battles back from a two game deficit

Roy's Place takes the early lead against Marley's Bar and Grill during Sunday's championship game. Roy's could not hold the lead and lost the game. Outstanding fielding and awesome home run power made the tournament a success and fun to watch.

Roy's Place won some battles, but Marley's Bar and Grill won the war and took home first place in Marley's Bar and Grill Second Annual Softball Mens Softball Tournament held Aug. 7 and 8 in Marquette.

The rivalry began during the regular season. Roy's Place handed Marley's their only loss of the season on Thursday, Aug. 5. But Marley's took the season title and will play in the class D state tournament on Aug. 20 and 21 in Holly, Mich.

Both Roy's and Marley's went into Sunday undefeated in the double-elimination tournament.

The team's met for the first time early in the day with Roy's defeating Marley's.

Later in the day, Marley's paid back Roy's with their first loss, which kept Marley's alive to play in the championship game.

They would play Roy's one last time to determine the tournament champion.

The game began with Marley's in the field.

It looked good for Roy's as they took an early first inning lead on a sacrifice fly. The team was running emotionally high.

The score remained 1-0 for Roy's until the top of the fourth inning when they started out with a single to right center field.

A double put base runners from Roy's Place on second and third.

A single up the middle scored two and put Roy's up 3-0.

The bats warmed up for Marley's in the bottom of the fifth inning.

After a pop-out to left field, Tim Zellner stepped up to the plate and blasted a home run over the left field fence making the score 3-1, still in favor of Roy's.

The third batter was out on a fly ball to right center field.

The next batter walked and was followed by a single.

A single up the middle drove another run in for Marley's making the score 3-2, still in Roy's favor.

With runners on second and third, a double was hit up the middle, which scored another runner.

A ground out to first base ended Marley's rally, but the timing breathed new life into their chances.

Roy's could not get the bats working in their half of the sixth inning, but Marley's sticks started to smoke.

A walk started out the inning for Marley's.

The runner did not wait long to make his way around the bases thanks to a blast over the left field wall by Lonnie Popoure. The score went to 5-3 in favor of Marley's.

Following a fly-out to right field and a single, Tim Zellner smacked another home run, clearing the left field fence by 30 feet. The score was now 7-3 Marley's.

After a pop fly out to right center and a single past Roy's short stop, Rodney Schwartz hit Marley's third home run of the inning for two RBI's making the score 9-3.

The tournament ended with Roy's hitting into a double play in the top of the seventh inning.

Marley's Bar and Grill took first place honors with Roy's Place taking second and U.P. Tire coming in third.

Awards were given out to the teams and individual players following the game at Marley's Bar and Grill.

Jim "Pickles" Marks was chosen as the tournament's outstanding infielder. "Pickles" played for Roy's Place. David Marks, who also played for Roy's Place, was chosen as the tournament's outstanding outfielder. Lee Vaughn, who played for Marley's Bar and Grill was named the tournament's outstanding offensive player.

Jim "Pickles" Marks, the tournament's infielding MVP, lets a pitch fly for Roy's Place during the championship game against Marley's Bar and Grill. The tournament was won by Marley's.

Fish Report

By Sgt. John Walker (Ret.)

Well, they are getting some nice salmon out in the big lake now, just maybe it will be great fishing next weekend for the fishing contest. Things were a little slow this week on the inland lakes, but like I told someone, "If nobody is catching any fish look at the good side, that can only mean the fish are still out there somewhere, right? just waiting for someone to catch them."

From the way it looks right now the hunter safety class will be held on Sept. 15, 16, 17 and 18. The first three days will be classroom time and on Saturday we will be at the Gun club on shoot. There should be a notice out before the class, but remember it is only offered once a year in our area.

Eino and Teivo have a question for you, why is a sandwich called a sandwich? They have been sitting here for over a week trying to find out how you can get sandwich out of two slices of bread with something between them, that is unless you want to say that the peanut butter and jelly is sandwiched between two slices of bread. OK, but then how can a person go to a restaurant and get an "open faced sandwich" made with one slice of bread on the bottom. Then you wonder why Eino has trouble with the English he uses.

Then Teivo takes his teenager shopping and gets a pair of Levis for $40.00. Now it wouldn't be bad if you really got a pair, two of something for everybody knows a pair is two, for $40.00, that is only about double what they should cost. But when you pay the price of a pair and end up with one you have to wonder about people. BUT you can always look at the good side, at least the tennis shoes companies have not woken up to the idea that a pair is really only one. Couldn't you just see the average dad of a teenager. "Dad, I need $100.00 for a pair of tennis that have brake lights on the back." (why do they need brake lights, the average teenager doesn't move fast enough to have to slow down to stop). Off he goes down to the store and for his $100.00 brings back a shoe box with a pair of shoes with only one shoe in the box! Then you hear, "Dad I need another $100.00 so I can get the other pair of shoes so I will have two pair of shoes for both feet."

Or you can look at it another way, you are really getting a good deal if you pay for something and really get a pair of what you pay for. It's like buying one shoe at the regular price and getting the other pair of shoes if you did them long enough.

ally a pair for you have one for each leg, which makes two and all of us know two makes a pair. We are on the right track. So let's see, we now have all agreed that two (2) one for each hand of something make a pair. But then Teivo goes out and buys a pair of waders and they are only one because they do not come apart and make two, unless you snag them on a submerged log. Eino offers to explain, now if we put on our pair of waders and go duck hunting, you take your double barrel shotgun right? Now you don't call your double barrel shotgun a pair of shotguns right, because if you did you would have two guns, a pair of guns, and it is illegal to have more than one gun while duck hunting. So you can correct this misunderstanding of the English language on what is and is not a pair by telling everybody you have double barrel waders for duck hunting. See you can usually figure things out if you think on them long enough.

But then Eino was really confused. A pair of hip boots are re-

IN MEMORY In Loving Memory of Thys J. Ayoite who passed away one year ago August 12, 1992 The day you left us, One year ago, You were taken so suddenly, How were we to know, We never got to say good-bye, Or all you how we felt, We just had to dry our eyes, And deal with the hand we were dealt. We treasure all the memories, The good ones and the bad, We thank God for giving them to us, Even though they make us sad, You sleep with Jesus now. Ever since that day in August, We find comfort in our hearts Knowing you didn't go alone, For most of us went with you, That day God took you home. Sadly missed by, Husband, children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren.

"Antiques in The Garden" - it's what's new in Garden

by Debbie Lang

If you're looking for something unique, antique and original, the place to go is located in Garden and the shop is called "Antiques in the Garden."

"All of our antiques and collectibles are brought here on consignment. We've gotten a lot of support from the local residents. Area people hear about our shop and then started cleaning out their attics and garages," Barb Vichotka said.

The four women had originally decided to rent the building next to the Village Artists Gallery in Garden but after local residents started bringing their antiques and collectibles out of hiding Pat Rasmussen said, "We decided we needed someplace bigger. There was no way we were going to get all of the antiques we have in that small house."

Pat and her husband Chuck own the old Garden Theater which is attached to their business, "The Peninsula Lumber & Supply" Hardware Store.

Pat said, "I believe the last

Chancellor William E. Davis presided at the 9:30 a.m. ceremonies and LSU Board of Supervisors chairman John R. Williams conferred degrees.

Included in the graduating class were the recipients of 28 master's degrees and 54 doctorates.

films to be shown were in the 50s. The local residents used to have plays and graduations in this building because it was big. I think the old building's atmosphere contributes to the antiques on display."

Antiques dating back to the 1800s are on display in the building.

Judy Grochaski said, "We have items from glass, enamel jars, jewelry, tools to furniture. We carry items from the depression era and a lot of out-of-business unique items like Knowles China which went out of business in 1930."

All the women in the business have knowledge of the antique business. Nancy Schave said, "We do a lot of research on antiques. This is something you have to keep on top of. All of us women had a personal interest in antiques before opening up for business. Judy and I were always collecting antiques to furnish our homes. We all genuinely appreciate and like antiques."

Besides antiques, the shop also spotlights local talent that is quality created. Whirly gigs, footstools and quilt racks are just some of the items they have from local talent. The unique antique shop also carries modern collectible items which are destined to become antiques.

The shop "Antiques in the Garden" is open from Memorial Day until Labor Day and also by appointment.

Judy Grochaski said, "Not only is this shop a tribute to our past but it is also a way for us to do something positive for Garden."
