County fair fun for all

The Schoolcraft County Fair was held Thursday, Aug. 12 to Sunday, Aug. 15 at the fair building and grounds in Manistique. The fair featured entertainers Britt Small and festival on Thursday. A small, but fun-loving crowd attended the concert that everyone said was one of the best ever. Thursday also featured the band Banjo Demolition. Children and adults alike thrilled to the Wade carnival rides and attractions all weekend. Senior citizen attractions were held on Friday. The Manistique Senior Swinger Band played at the fair building. The Queen's contest was held Saturday. The crowd anxiously awaited the news on who would be crowned Miss Schoolcraft County 1993. Stacy King, a 17-year-old who attends Big Bay de Noc High School was chosen as the fairest in Schoolcraft County. King is the daughter of Arlan and Trudy King. Saturday featured a horse show in the morning. For those interested in the latest steps, line dancing was taught at 1:00 p.m. The Little Miss Queen and Prince contest was the highlight of Friday evening. 7-year-old Quentin Hoag was named Little Prince.

He is the son of Robert and Sandy Hoag of Cooks. Julianne Portugues, a 6-year-old from Manistique was named Little Miss. Julianne is the daughter of Amie Portugues. Crafts and food items were judged to see who would be honored with the blue ribbon, signifying the finest in Schoolcraft County.

Police crack down on seat belt use

Motorists in Manistique should prepare to buckle-up their safety belts, or prepare to pay the ticket. Michigan State Police patrols will be looking specifically for seat belt violations in the Manistique area from Aug. 12 to Sept. 12, according to Lt. Greg Aho of the Michigan State Police Manistique post.

"Basically what we have is a zero tolerance grant," he said. "If you get stopped for speeding, you may only get a verbal warning, but you will get a seat belt ticket."

The director of the Michigan State Police, Colonel Mike Robinson said that effective immediately, he has ordered stepped-up patrols that will be paying special attention to safety belt violations.

Although motorists cannot be stopped solely for not wearing their safety belts, those stopped for other reasons can be assured that enforcement actions will be taken if they are found to not be properly wearing their safety belts.

According to the state police, a citation for not wearing a safety belt may result in a fine of $25 plus court costs.

Aho said a survey of 100 motorists was taken in the Manistique area.

The survey found 64 percent of the drivers and 66 percent of the passengers in the area wear their seat belts.

Manistique DDA to lose part of funding

The Manistique Downtown Development Association (DDA) will lose more than half of its total revenue next year because of state millage changes unless the state legislature comes up with another funding plan, or changes the plan now in place. According to Dave Huddleston the city's assessor and zoning administrator, the DDA will take in around $304,000 this year. For 1994, he said at the DDA's meeting Tuesday, the revenue is expected to drop to around $131,000. "DDA's around the state are feeling the pinch of the Michigan state legislature's move to eliminate property tax for school funding. This millage is a major part of the Manistique DDA's revenue base."

The drop in millage will affect project the DDA is already committed to completing, including the $1 million plus project to replace and add sewer piping from Maple St. to Elk St.

"The state is really in a quandary with DDA funding," he said. "They (state legislators) have made a mess of the bonding rating. ...but we need to move ahead (with the project)."

David Vaughan moved that the DDA update the project bid. The motion was unanimously passed.

"The DDA unanimously voted to accept the bid of Manistique Rentals, Inc. of $8,500 to remove a house from the Vaughan property located on S. Houghton and fill in the crawl space."

The lot will be used as a 55 car parking area. Leggett said he would like to see an environmental evaluation of the area to determine if drainage would be necessary. "I don't think we will have a problem there," said Tom Hoholik. Leggett said, "I just don't want to flood someone out."

EPA officials meet with Remedial Action Plan Team on harbor PCBs

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) officials said there are approximately six tons of pure PCBs in Manistique harbor at a meeting with the harbor's remedial action plan team and public advisory council Thursday at the Schoolcraft county building. According to EPA officials present at the informational meeting, Manistique Papers' and Edision Sault's proposal to cap the contaminated sediments is still being considered, but no final decision has been made.

"We haven't had good solid evidence on the harbor situation until the last few weeks," said Larry Leveque, the EPA's community relations coordinator for Manistique harbor. Walter Nied, the EPA's on-scene coordinator said there were positive and negative aspects to the proposal made by Manistique Papers and Edision Sault. He said the two sides are still in the process of negotiating, but he said, "...there is not an BECA (engineering evaluation and cost analysis) going on," referring to the planned BECA Manistique Papers and Edision Sault proposed to the EPA at the July 30 meeting between the parties.

According to Nied, the PCB problem in the harbor seems to be compounded by the presence of sawdust and wood chips in the sediment. "The most unique feature of the harbor is the amount of sawdust and wood chips present," he said. "I have never personally seen as much in one place."

Nied said sawdust has the natural ability to absorb the PCBs. Jim Hennenberg, the EPA's remedial project manager said the PCBs seem to be associated with the woody, pulpy material in the harbor. "According to data in the 1990 Army Corps of Engineers study of PCBs in the harbor there were six samples with levels higher than 50 parts per million (ppm)," he said. "From the preliminary June data, there were 39 samples exceeding 50 ppm, with a high of 720 ppm."

Milt Clark of the EPA said PCBs at the level in Manistique harbor could have health effects for humans who come in contact with the pollution. "Studies have been done on Rhesus monkeys," he said, "which are the closest genetically to humans."

"CBs have the ability to affect the reproductive systems in monkeys in fairly low amounts. We're not talking high doses. We're talking 1 to 100 ppm in their diets."

Clark outlined the effects of three different types of PCBs in the Rhesus monkey studies. "1016 causes low birth weight and affects spatial recognition," he said. "1248 causes still births and affects learning and memory and 1254 causes conception failures."

County commissioners give airport manager insurance

After 10 months of negotiations, the Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners voted Tuesday to make Schoolcraft county airport manager Bruce Hoffman a county employee and give him and his family health benefits.

Hoffman said he came to the meeting to get the insurance he negotiated for during his contract talks in Oct. "I'm very happy with their decision," he said. "What can I say. I was planning on leaving if I didn't get the benefits."

Keith Aldrich said he could not understand why Hoffman did not receive insurance even though it was available to all other airport managers and their families. "I don't know what the problem is," he said. "If Pete (Hollenbeck, county attorney) wants to look at it that's O.K., but we pay everything else for him like a county employee."

Hoffman made a written proposal to the commission that said: "1. The county of Schoolcraft will supply myself, Bruce F. Hoffman and my family with the standard Blue Cross benefits package."

"2. I will, at no further cost to the county in wages, perform the duties of plowing snow at the airport facility and release the county from contracting those services from the Schoolcraft County Road Commission."

Ernest Hoholik said he was asked to wait to make motion on Hoffman's insurance benefits until Louis Lauzon was back from his business trip.

Hollenbeck said the easiest thing to do would be to vote on giving Hoffman insurance. "We keep using the old (airport manager) contract," said Aldrich. "Maybe we should draw up a new one. We are running around in circles."

"I'll put it in a motion," Aldrich made motion to give full insurance benefits of a county employee to Bruce Hoffman. The motion was seconded by Don Martin. Martin, Aldrich and Hoholik voted yes. Jack Hughson voted no. Lauzon was not present to vote. Hughson said he would like to see the insurance situation looked into further before voting yes. "I think the original three (Martin, Aldrich and Hoholik) who got me in here have been very supportive and honest," Hoffman continued on page 4A.

Environmental Lab dedication today

The Schoolcraft County Environmental lab is complete and will be dedicated today at 2 p.m. The new lab is located on 80 acres of land donated by Manistique Township east of the Jamestown Slough off Krummich Road.

The public is encouraged to attend the ceremony and enjoy the lab along with its trails. The lab is sponsored by FOCUS, a combination of county, state, federal and industry officials and individuals who want the public to have a better understanding of the local environment.

The lab was financed by a federal Forest Service Conservation Education Grant and features about 50 interpretive sites that will include plants, trees, geology and wildlife of the area.

The lab features several different "loops", each of which has a different theme, such as the hardwood loop and the bluff loop. Willie Peters of the Schoolcraft County Soil Conservation District and Deb LeBlanc of the U.S. Forest Service planned the lab and decided on where the interpretive sites would be located.

The diversity of the site allows the visitor to see things such as bear claw marks on a beech tree, the effects of deer browse on tree growth, the diversity of plant life in the area and the rebirth of the Jamestown Slough area.

Eric Mason and Chris Benish have spent the summer doing the physical labor on the project. They were assisted on Friday by people who could help at the work bee to put the final touches on the lab.

The crunch of pads signifies the beginning of football season. The emeralds look strong for the 1993 season.

Children from households whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free and reduced-price meals or free milk.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced-price meals, households should fill out the form and return it to the school. Additional copies of the application form are available at the principal's office in each school.

NON FOOD STAMP HOUSEHOLDS: An application which does not contain all of the following information cannot be processed by the school: (1) monthly source of income received by each household member (such as wages, child support, etc.); (2) names of all household members; (3) social security number of adult household member who signs the application; and (4) the signature of an adult household member.

FOOD STAMP/AFDC HOUSEHOLDS: If you currently receive Food Stamps or "Aid to Families with Dependent Children" (AFDC) for your child, you only have to list your child's name and Food Stamp or AFDC case number, and sign the application.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility and verifying data. Applications may be verified by the school or other officials at any time during the school year.

If children are approved for free or reduced-price meal or free milk benefits, the household must report to the school increases in household income over $50 per month ($600 per year) and decreases in household size.

Households may apply for benefits at any time during the school year. If a household is not currently eligible but has a decrease in household income, an increase in household size or if a household member becomes unemployed, the household should fill out an application at that time.

In most cases foster children are eligible for these benefits regardless of the household's income. If a household has foster children living with them and they wish to apply for free or reduced-price meals or milk for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

Under the provisions of the policy, the Administrative Assistant of Manistique Area Schools and the Principal of St. Francis de Sales School will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of the official may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. The household also has the right to a fair hearing. This can be done by calling or writing the following official: Herbert L. Harroun, Ed.D., Superintendent, Manistique Area Schools - 100 North Cedar Street - 341-2195; John Bauer, St. Francis de Sales School - 220 Lake Street - 341-5512.

The Manistique Area Schools' Administrative Office and the St. Francis de Sales School Office have a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Farral (Golat) Bradtke, a 1969 graduate of Manistique High School said the achievements she is most proud of are intangible, such as the success of her son who is about to graduate from high school and her personal achievements, such as owning her own house.

"For the past four years," she said, "I have coordinated and directed a speech therapy program for the Scottish Rite under a grant from them to Northern Michigan University during six weeks in the summer. This program is being used as a model for programs in Wisconsin so that the Scottish Rite may provide grants and free speech therapy service to children there, also."

Following her graduation from Manistique High School, Bradtke attended the University of Michigan, where she earned a bachelor's degree in speech therapy.

She then went on to the University of Colorado, Greeley, where she earned 20 graduate hours toward the degree of master of arts in psychology, counseling and guidance.

She finished her education for her master's degree at Northern Michigan University, studying communication disorders. Bradtke's career path took her as far away as Texas, but she returned to the Upper Peninsula.

Currently, Bradtke is an assistant professor at Northern Michigan University, teaching undergraduate and graduate level classes. She also works as a speech-language pathologist for Marquette General Home Health and runs a private speech pathology practice, serving clients in Marquette and Alger County.

Bradtke also does volunteer work for Project Enhance. "This voluntary project consists of professionals of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA) membership who work to recruit individuals of high academic and personal quality to the field," she said. "In this capacity, I act as a contact person for the Upper Peninsula region and have made a presentation to high school students considering health careers."

At home with Sarah

by Sarah Bignall

Many years ago, (20, at least) the Pioneer Tribune hosted a cooking school that was held at St. Francis Parish Center. I remember it well because I helped set up the stage and measured all the ingredients that were to be used. Folks attending won prizes and it was a memorable evening. Two appetizer recipes that came from that occasion I have used these many years.

SNAPPY LIVER DIP

1 cup dairy sour cream
1 envelope dry onion soup mix
1 (3 oz) pkg. cream cheese

1 teas. steak sauce
2 drops hot pepper sauce
1/2 pound liver sausage, cut into small pieces

Combine sour cream and soup mix, let stand 15 minutes. Beat softened cream cheese, add sauces and mix well. Add sour cream mixture and mix well. Add liver sausage and mix well. Chill thoroughly. Serve with crackers.

WALNUT GUACAMOLE

2 dozen cherry tomatoes
1 medium avocado
2 teas. lemon or lime juice
1/2 teas. onion powder

1/2 teas. salt
1/2 cup walnuts, chopped and toasted

Trim a thin slice from top of each tomato. Remove centers, leaving shells. Chill upside-down so tomatoes will drain. When ready to fill, cut avocado in half, remove seed and skin. Coarsely mash. Combine with juice, spices and walnuts. Fill tomato shells. Makes 2 dozen.

Or, omit tomatoes and use walnut guacamole to serve with crackers or tostitos.

Sarah says . . . Keep tire air pressure at the recommended maximum. It cuts down on friction and saves on tire wear and can save as much as 50 gallons of gas a year.

Food for thought . . . The word you're able to get in edge-wise is apt to be sharp.

Funds raised by the C.B.C. fund drive were distributed last week. Attending were (l-r) Gail LaCroix, Treasurer Sue Dorothy Hoholik, 1993 C.B.C. Chairperson Chris Kieffer, and Secretary Diane McClelland, Vice-Chair John Lindroth and Chairperson Chris Keiffer.

C.B.C. distributes checks

Chris Kieffer, 1993 C.B.C. Chairperson, said the charity has concluded with the distribution of the checks to the service organizations. The proceeds were divided equally between the American Cancer Society, Bay Cliff Health Camp and Easter Seals Crippled Children and Adults. Each organization received a check in the amount of $13,350.00.

The 26th annual event was extremely successful. Every person, organization and business that donated time, money or merchandise should be recognized as the heart and soul of this organization. Without the high level of dedication and pride shown by all the volunteers, C.B.C. would never have reached this level of success. The 1993 C.B.C. Committee wants to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your past, present and future efforts and dedication. I believe C.B.C. is the ultimate example of Community pride and togetherness. Our Community has a right to share in this pride.

Many hundreds of people deserve thanks for their contribution to C.B.C., but I would like to single out the 1993 Committee and personally thank them.

Everybody is always busy, but these special people set aside enough of their other business to make C.B.C. a priority for three or four months of the year. The pay for this hard work and long hours is nothing more than a feeling inside each of us that we're doing something very special and very right. So those of you on the Committee, and you know who you are... Thank you, you are greatly appreciated.

Again, I would like to thank all people, organizations and businesses for their support of C.B.C. in 1993. We look for a successful future as we move forward together.

The voice of Schoolcraft County since 1876

Environmental Lab

The Schoolcraft County Environmental Lab located off Krummich Rd. is a good example of how good things get done when everyone works together.

The dedication of the lab is scheduled for 7 p.m. today at the site. The public is encouraged to join in the celebration.

Government, business and individuals all worked on the project that will be enjoyed by children and adults for many, many years.

The site is a learning tool and a recreation area. It is a great example of how learning can be enjoyable.

Schools are stressing the importance of hands-on learning. The environmental lab will be an important addition to the studies of the children of Schoolcraft County.

Not only is it a place where the environment can be studied, but also a place of incredible natural beauty.

Take an hour or two to walk through the environmental lab. Don't forget about the people who made the lab turn from just a dream to a reality.

There are far too many people to thank individually, but the best way to thank them is to use the trails they worked so hard to design and build.

We often take for granted the incredible diversity of wildlife we are so fortunate to have in Schoolcraft County.

Many people have lived in this area all their lives, but have never taken the time to truly study their surroundings.

The Schoolcraft County Environmental Lab gives us this opportunity.

In this world of growing environmental concern, the lab is a place we can look at for answers.

Take the time to enjoy the lab and learn something about the world around you.

The Grand Rapids farmer's market is a place where fresh produce is sold and friendships are started and renewed.

Downstate Differences

by Robert Kirkbride

Sugar-beaters like me who are from below the bridge have a different way of viewing things. Not better, not worse, just different.

In this column I will try to explain some of the differences and why they exist.

In this week's column I won't be studying a difference, but an interesting similarity people of the Upper Peninsula may not be aware of.

Last weekend I returned to Grand Rapids to play in a family golf outing (the score of which I will not discuss).

I enjoy fresh fruits and vegetables, so my mother, grandmother and I decided to pay a visit to Grand Rapids' farmer's market.

In the middle of a city (we're not talking suburbs) with a half-million people, sits the market.

Farmers from around the Grand Rapids area bring in their fresh produce to sell every Saturday morning. It is a place to get some of the best fresh fruits and vegetables anywhere.

It is also a place for old friends to meet and get reacquainted.

My mother used to take me to the farmers market as a kid and buy me all my favorite fruits.

I remember the sweet smell of the fresh fruit and the best fragrance attracted. I remember the green posts that held up the awnings and how they got hot as the day went from the cool morning to the hot, steamy summer afternoon.

Paula Red apples are a personal favorite of mine, and I remember that I could never wait until I got home to break into the bag and eat one, even though my mom told me to wait until we were washed.

Some things never change.

On my recent visit, my mom bought me a bag of Paula Red apples. I still couldn't wait to eat one.

The reason I am writing about this is because before I left for Grand Rapids on Friday, I stopped at a road side produce stand in Manistique.

Although it was on a smaller scale people were still getting a great deal on their produce.

They also had the chance to visit with their friends and neighbors.

Unfortunately, there are very few things in this world we live in that bring people together.

This is especially true for large cities. That is why I enjoy the farmer's market in Grand Rapids so much.

Farming is in our blood. For most of us, farming was once a part of our forefather's daily life.

In days gone by, farmers used to rely upon each other for support during hard growing seasons. They were each other's best customers, trading what they grew for things they didn't grow and exchanging community news.

Maybe there is something about farming and produce that sparks something deep inside us to be more friendly toward one another and grow closer.

It sure seems to work for me and my mom.

My mom, Sue McKay, holds a nine pound, organically grown cabbage we found at the farmer's market. It cost $2.

Gravel will cause run-off, not penetration.

Thebes asked if the bids would still be relevant if the specifications were changed because of a study.

"The specs would not change much," said Leggett.

Henshoel's motion to accept the bid, Hohlko seconded the motion, which passed with David Vaughan abstaining because the property is owned by a relative.

Johnnie Wilfred Johnson wanted to know the status of the DDA bidding his property located near the Vaughan property.

Leggett said the DDA, as was decided before, would not purchase the property until it could be proven the area is environmentally sound.

Leggett said it would be up to Johnson to prove the land was environmentally clean. He said the DDA would not be responsible for the cost of the study.

Henshoel said he would write a letter to Johnson saying the DDA will not purchase the land without a clean environmental bill of health.

...Sue Watt said the DDA should consider putting up a sign box on the walkway to advise tourists of boardwalk rules such as not feeding the sea gulls and not riding bicycles.

...To Whom It May Concern: Henshoel said signs were in and would be placed along the walkway.

...The next DDA meeting was set for Tuesday, Sept. 14 at 2:30 p.m.

seconds to buckle their safety belt. If only 10 percent more of our motorists buckle up," reports Colonel Robinson. "We will save an additional 33 lives each year on our roadways."

"There will be 250 fewer serious injuries and Michigan will realize an annual savings of approximately $60 million in medical and societal costs."

State police officials said troopers across the state will be watching more closely than ever for safety belt violations.

According to state police figures officers now write more than 50,000 safety belt violation tickets annually.

"We simply want to save lives on our highways," Colonel Robinson said. "When you get into your car, buckle up."

"Let's Share the Road" improves safety

"I really don't like driving near trucks. They change lanes, cut you off, and act like they don't even see you."

"It annoys me when a car cuts in front of me and then slows down. Don't you realize I can't stop an 80,000-pound truck the way they can stop a 3,000-pound car?"

These are legitimate complaints from both car and truck drivers. Situations like these occur quite often on our state highways and can be attributed to a lack of education, not in the formal sense, but in terms of understanding each vehicle's capabilities. Even the best drivers may not know as much as they should about sharing the road to safely operate on the highway.

To educate motorists and truckers about sharing the road, the Michigan Truck Safety Commission (MTSC) launched a statewide highway safety campaign at 10:30 a.m. on May 18 in Lansing at the Sheraton Hotel. The "Let's Share the Road" campaign kick-off was held in conjunction with National Transportation Week (May 16-23).

With almost four million trucks traveling Michigan highways, motorists need to be aware of techniques to help them share our highways with truckers in a safer, more cooperative fashion. The campaign is aimed at increasing communication between truck and automobile drivers and at reducing the number of highway accidents involving cars and trucks.

"Surprisingly, the number of car and truck-related accidents is quite high in the state of Michigan. Many of these collisions could have been avoided had both drivers known how to communicate to each other," said Colonel Michael Robinson of the Michigan State Police Department.

Last year alone, more than 182,000 right-hand turn accidents occurred at intersections around the country, according to NCI Transportation Services, a transportation insurance, claims, and safety service. Collisions that result from cars squeezing in on the right of trucks about to make a right-hand turn are the most common crashes that occur. Trucks require more room in which to turn. That is why they swing to the left of the lane when preparing to make a right turn.

The campaign will attempt to educate and change the behavior of Michigan highway travelers through advertising and public service announcements. Statewide, motorists will be exposed to television and outdoor advertising. Billboards, featuring a cartoon character of a car and truck giving way to one another, will blanket the state on all major thoroughfares. Broadcast spots will feature updated positive images about truckers, the trucking industry, and the spirit of cooperation on the highways. Each spot will address one safety tip, such as avoid tailgating, and will suggest that both cars and trucks keep a four second following distance when driving behind one another.

"Only a very few states in the nation are doing a comprehensive highway safety program such as this one. The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) is pleased to see Michigan take the initiative in promoting the 'Let's Share the Road' public service message," said Dave Longo, marketing specialist of the FHWA.

The campaign is scheduled to run steadily throughout the summer until Sept. 15. At that time MTSC will assess the truckers' traffic fatalities and plot a course for upcoming years. This will mark the beginning, not the end, of the "Let's Share the Road" campaign. In addition to the public awareness program, Secretary of State driver education materials will provide automobile drivers with tips on how to cooperatively "share the road" with trucks. MTSC will also focus on educating the trucking industry through truck driving schools.

The Commission, established in 1988, is charged with the responsibility of increasing truck driver safety education programs.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

RE: Crime Bill Proposals

There is no way that our county can make a dent in the violence and the crime rate by hiring more police, or building more jail cells, or promoting more instances of executions.

More and more people are picking up weapons and killing several people and then killing themselves.

If the government thinks more laws can prevent these desperate acts they are looking in the wrong place.

President Clinton would be well advised to try and promote the Golden Rule to my way of thinking. Nothing makes more sense than doing unto others as I would have them do to me. Even if one doesn't believe in God they should be able to see the wisdom of that.

Dear Editor:

Pickle Pond + Information + Questions "Anybody got a picture to spare?" Several Telephone calls (one long distance), three letters.

Pickle Pond - Also called "Little Indian" and the "Doughnut"

Where? About 50 yards south of the highway (which hasn't been built yet); if you stood at the end of Lake Street, took a right oblique and lined yourself up with the light house you would come to the end of the pond!

"Where?" Right near the current Pizza Hut but closer to Senior Housing!

"A short way from the 'pond' and towards the beach was a boiler (huge to little eyes) that was all that remained of a certain or curtain-rod factory" said one mother. Anyone remember?

The name came from the flora in the area. (like green cattails (FLORA) a tall reed-like marsh herb with furry spikes of tiny flowers)

Yes, I skated there even though the boys told us about the quick sand, the mud, frogs, polliwogs (but they also told us this same story about the Seltman Pond on the end of Manistique Ave. and we skated there!)

Some of the responses included Bud Doyle, Don "Pee Wee" Southard, Gordon Bebeau, Bennet Olmstead, the Henschels boys, the Huffer boys and girls, (the Bebeau kids) and many others.

Incidentally, Gordon wonders if Manistique is doing anything to celebrate the 100 Anniversary of the Soo Line R.R. coming to town in 1893 (that's when his dad arrived) and also Dr. T. Southard, the dentist.

Olmstead boys enjoy walking on the pier to the lighthouse but he didn't know we had disconnected the nostalgic foghorn!

More to follow.

Dear Editor:

To local people and visitors in this area:

We hope you have noticed the many beautiful bright-colored spike flowers (lythium) in shades of pink and lavender along the lakeshore in E. US-2 and also on State Rd. at M-94 edge of town.

These were introduced to our area over 30 years ago when the Women's Home Extension Clubs in Schoolcraft County decided to choose a perennial flower for our town to be remembered by. Several local club officers, after looking through seed catalogs, were attracted by this plant and got the local florists and Valley Nursery to order a supply. Every member was urged to plant at least three in her yard, then for three dollars! Neighbors, motels, and public places were also invited to support this effort by articles in increase," said Aldrich.

Martin said, "There are three contracts up there. We only have a say in two of them."

Aldrich made a motion to sign the two union contracts, and added that the non-union contract in the future must be passed by the county commission also.

Martin seconded the motion and it passed unanimously.

"The county commission voted unanimously to renew the Community Action Agency (CAA) in-kind rental agreement."

"We get quite good service out of that organization," said Aldrich.

The county commission voted to amend the salary schedule wages and classifications for non-union employees to be the same as union employees.

Aldrich made the motion that was seconded by Hughson. The motion passed unanimously.

The county commission voted unanimously to increase employee life insurance from $8,000 to $10,000 and eliminate job liability.

Martin made the motion that was supported by Aldrich.

"The county commission voted to keep the same lease payment for the mental health building.

Utilities and insurance will also be paid by mental health.

The motion was made by Aldrich and seconded by Hughson and passed unanimously.

Emerit Nygren was appointed to the Economic Development Corporation to replace the term of George Segerstrom who resigned.

Martin made motion to approve and was seconded by Aldrich.

The appointment was unanimously passed.

"The county commission voted to accept all items on zoning changes except the camp permit.

Aldrich made motion and Hughson supported.

It was unanimously passed.

Hughson said he would be attending the dedication of the Schoolcraft County Environmental Lab at 2 p.m. on Aug. 19.

would be harmed by the PCBs.

"There is a promulgated regulation of PCBs triggered at 50 ppm," Nield said. "Nationally we have standards."

"As one of the standards there has to be a PRP (potentially responsible party) search."

"Would you prefer them (PRPs) not to pay and the rest of the nation's tax payers pay for the cleanup?"

Leveque said, "The Superfund law was written in a certain way. We are not trying to run anyone out of business."

"One of the main goals of the EPA is to lower PCB levels in fish, according to Clark."

"We want fish to be able to be eaten in unlimited amounts around the Great Lakes," he said. "Our goal is to get PCB levels in fish to five parts per billion or under."

Leveque said the EPA officials would like to come back to Manistique within the next two to three weeks to explain the EPA's position to the residents of the community.

"The final decision on what will be done in Manistique will be made by the EPA," he said.

"A lot of people are looking at this," said Nield. "M'BNR (Michigan Department of Natural Resources) will also look at it and decide."

The 1993 Manistique Salmon Derby drew 192 people to the area to determine who would be named the area's best salmon angler. The $1,000 prize first went to Keith White.

White takes first in Salmon Derby

by Bill Rogers
Well, we changed the Salmon Derby late to August hoping for better fishing but to no avail. The fishing was lousy. For just about two full days of fishing, believe it or not it looked like a 7lb salmon was going to win the $1,000 first place prize. Worse than that a 1 1/2 lb salmon was about to take fifth place. But two hours before the end of the Derby, Dave Lindell came in with a 17lb 2oz King Salmon. Everybody was feeling pretty good. We had a decent fish to look at. Then Keith White really saved the day with a beautiful 27lb 2oz King Salmon. This year was the second largest turn-out of fishermen in eight years. 192 people registered for the tournament. Not many fish were caught, but everyone had a wonderful time. A lot of local people won some nice prizes.

Duathlon set

State parks mean money

"State parks mean business, good business for Michigan," Department of Natural Resources Director Roland Harnes said after reviewing an updated DNR report on parks visitor-spending patterns. "The new report verifies that Michigan state parks play a very important role in Michigan's tourism economy," Harnes said. "The report estimates that 21 million state park visitors produced a $260 million contribution to the state's economy in 1992. This is quite a return on a state investment in the park system last year of only $7 million in general funding support!"

Researchers reached the $260 million figure by applying updated state parks data to regional economic models developed by Michigan State University's Department of Parks and Recreation. The report considered only visitor spending within 30 miles of state parks and in travel to the parks.

The estimated $260 million contribution figure was based on: An estimated $189 million in direct visitor spending to retail business outside the state parks, including costs for vehicle operation and maintenance, food, lodging, and sporting goods and equipment; An estimated $16.7 million added to the state economy by the DNR as a result of daily spending to operate the state parks.

Retail business used the money spent by parks visitors and the parks operations staff for their employees' wages, capital improvements and product inventory, which kept part of the money recirculating within the communities generating another $54.3 million to local economies. Based on statewide averages of visitor spending, an average day-use party of three persons spends approximately $26 per trip to the state park visited, while an average camping party of 3.5 persons staying 4.7 nights will spend approximately $76 per trip. Michigan state parks employed approximately 1,200 people dur-

Fish Report

by Sgt. John Walker (Ret.)

Well, the Cook's corn roast is just about upon us and that only means that summer is about over, school will soon start and those hunting seasons are just about here. I have been told that this is the last big drawing card for the summer season.

They are getting a few salmon and the fall fishing season is just around the corner. It has been rather slow all summer as far as the fishing goes. We would just have a few good days when the fish start to bite, then the weather would change and fishing would drop off. Maybe the fall fishing season will make up for it.

What am I trying to say? Sometimes it is the best time to fish, but few people do with everything else going on. I bet that I have been asked a dozen times in the last week if I thought the EPA would go ahead with the river cleanup. My answer has always been that the EPA will do whatever the EPA wants to do right or wrong, proven or unproven, public input or not. They do not answer to anyone and do not have to be right in what they do, for if later proven wrong what ever happens to them?

Years ago one thing we were taught as kids was to enjoy reading. My dad, who quit school to work on a train in the woods, would read all the time. He would bring blueprints home to study and the books on the equipment he worked on. Until the time he died he never stopped learning. Today sources Director Roland Harnes has never stopped learning. Today sources Director Roland Harnes has never stopped learning. Today sources Director Roland Harnes has never stopped learning.

How about the little town that was told they had a problem and had to correct it. They took it to court and experts on their side tried to do and did show that the EPA was wrong. The court ruled in the EPA's favor, which they will do 90 percent of the time in a government case. The town was forced to borrow millions of dollars to correct the problem the EPA had dreamed up, and it was added to the property taxes of those living in the town, right or wrong. The taxpayers had little or nothing to say about it. After the money was spent, the facility to correct the alleged problem was built and everyone's taxes went up, the rules were changed and there never was a problem. But what about the millions the local fishing goes. We would just have a few good days when the fish start to bite, then the weather would change and fishing would drop off. Maybe the fall fishing season will make up for it.

What I am trying to say is, get involved, but find out what is going on. Read and study and learn. See who's right.

Wetland violator fined; order to restore land

A Charlevoix man who illegally constructed a home in a regulated wetland, violating the state's Wetland Protection Act, has been ordered by the Charlevoix District Court to remove the structure, restore the wetland, and pay a $1,500 fine.

The case is believed to be the first in the state where court-ordered restoration has required the removal of an unauthorized home. Department of Natural Resources Director Roland Harnes said the case is an important message that this state's natural resources are valuable and that their protection is a priority. "This hearing something or reading something sources direct an important message that this state's natural resources are valuable and that their protection is a priority. Alternative bridge walk is scheduled

The Cedar River Bridge Walk held annually as an alternative to the mackinac Bridge Walk, started as a joke. It has however, become a major Labor Day event. Complete with parade, drawings, live music and pancake breakfast. Last year approximately 5000 people braved the 150 ft. span linking the two sides of this picturesque community. Located on the shores of Green Bay between Menominee and Escanaba, this once booming lumber community now is a vacation area.

This year two other events have been added to the day. A projected 200 to 500 racers will be finishing their races sometime between 11 CST and 12:15 there. The Half Marathon will start in Stephenson, MI at 11 CST and finish 13.1 miles later at the Cedar River. Fun! A 5K (3.2) mile race and fun walk will also be held at the same time using the last part of the half Marathon course. Both races will offer prize money, awards and drawing. The first six miles for the Half Marathon course will offer the runners some challenging hills as it leaves the farmlands of Stephenson and hits the flats of the Hayward Lake Area. The last seven miles going into Cedar River is flat and fast. All surfaces are paved. Late registration will take place from 10:30 to 11:30 at Stephenson High School. Start time for both events will be 11 a.m. CST.

Proceeds for the event will go to the Stephenson Booster Clubs Track Fund. When enough money is collected a track will be constructed.

For more information about the race contact Dale Fountain, HCR-1 Box 25-C, Cedar River, MI 49813, phone 788-4715.

Editor's note: Stephen and Vicki Pike, and their two sons, Christian and Cameron, recently made a visit home to Michigan and the Manistique area from Texas. In Manistique for the trip, Vicki wrote down her thoughts in the following article.

by Vicki Pike

It is important to occasionally withdraw to a former family haven and touch one's roots and foundations. For me, visiting Michigan has become a distant beckoning, longing, foghorn call. The familiar foghorn on the Lake Michigan lighthouse indicates a safe, secure harbor for the boats. That desire for familiarity and security summons me again to its shore. My constancy and directionality need to be reaffirmed.

About 200 people attended the July 29 practical nursing graduation ceremony at Bay de Noc Community College. There were 27 practical nursing graduates from around the Upper Peninsula and northern Wisconsin.

Among the Practical nursing graduates were Jennifer Hyland and Gina Williams of Manistique.

Lane attends Tech program

Deborah Lane of Gulliver recently attended Michigan Technological University's 21st annual Summer Youth Program. Lane was among approximately 1500 students attending this summer's 65 different week-long sessions. Program design focuses on career exploration and developing new skills through laboratory, classroom, and field experiences.

Lane, the daughter of Terry and Helen Lane of Gulliver, is a student at Manistique High School where she participates in golf and band, and is a member of the National Honor Society.

ingly evidenced the last time we stepped home when an influential adult from my formative years failed to remember me. Was it possible that my self-centered perspective took for granted that the world place importance on my existence as I had hers? Or was it as simple as the aging process clouding the memory of times long past? Whatever it was, it did drive home the fact that was not 17 years old anymore. Time had sailed to another shore.

So, returning home is not merely intended to halt the progression of time or to regress. It is assuredly about recalling and reliving some of those selective memory events, but it is more over a desire for a validation of enough of that type of validation to our children. We pack them up, often many times, cart them across the country, leave grandparents, family, and friends and expect them to adapt; which they nearly always do. But what does this process do to their foundations; their sense of who they are in a context of the extended family and familiarity? It may produce a void to be filled by what a worse scenario is that they are never even aware that they are missing "something."

I greatly desire that my boys at least be exposed to what was once valued in our collective lives. I want them to walk out on that Lake Michigan pier where their dad and I sat endlessly discussing the latest high school gossip. I want them to feel the rhythmic lapping of the waves and hear the beseeching moan of the foghorn. I want them to wander through Washington Park as I describe that snowy afternoon when their dad surprised me with the snowmobile. I want them to touch the tombstones of the grandparents who would have lovingly attended and cherished the Saturday morning soccer games, yearly piano recitals, and heart-warming confirmations. Grandparents whose presence was never known, but whose essence permeates in these boys today. I want them to recall those faded memories of that first little house on Essex Street. The house where two baby boys were joyfully welcomed. The house where first steps were taken, raked leaves were plunged into, and "glant" forests in the yard were explored. I want them to become reacquainted with their cousins. Cousins who evoke warm meanings to the term extended family. Cousins whose shared giggles and adventures are filed away in that part of the heart marked "childhood warm fuzzies." Those heart-wrenching tears as we all said good-bye so many years ago, as we saw Michigan in a rear-view mirror, should be revisited.

The boys will be the ones to determine which of these experiences are the ones to keep in a safe place in their heart's harbor, and which to discard as just "Mom's thing." Determinedly, I feel that I must at least offer them that choice. If I don't teach them the importance of listening to that beckoning foghorn in the heart's recesses, is there a possibility that as adults they won't seek to relive the "good old days" with Mom and Dad? They may not have a clear image of what shaped them as persons. How then will they pass on to their children this validation?

I do believe that for everything there is a season. The seasons in Michigan offer both fond and heart-breaking recollections. But the seasons make us who we are.

One echoes and frames the next. That foghorn call subconsciously visits our memory over and over, offering essential direction in our lives and assisting us in navigating life's currents. It often summons us to evaluate and reaffirm our personal truths. Yes, for everything there is a season and for me it is now my season to go home. The call beckons.
