Lakeshore development up in the air in Manistique

Lakeshore development is still up in the air, but Bill Giles of Giles & Associates of Manistique is patiently waiting to make an offer on the land. Giles said he is still very interested in developing the land owned by the city of Manistique. "I have been and continue to be interested in the land," he said. "I have been waiting for them to make the move and come up with the answers they need to sell the property." Mayor John Stewart said, "My view has been and continues to be that I don't want to see wall-to-wall buildings down there, but I am interested in seeing proposals. I want to see some proposals, then decide if the plans would be in the interest of the people of Manistique." Giles said he thinks it is strange Gladstone is trying to promote lake shore development while Manistique is not. "The people who are against the plan are much more vocal than those that are for it," he said. "For one, they don't know what my proposal is all about. They don't understand my philosophy. I don't want Manistique to become another Traverse City. I want to enhance this community. The city is running a deficit right now. They could have a $100,000 tax base instantly." Marilyn Lindberg, who organized the Lakeshore Forum, which addressed issues and concerns of area residents on lake shore development said development is not in the best interest of the people of Manistique. "I don't think I talked with anyone who is in favor of development except for those people who are directly involved with the issue," she said. "Where they want to build is environmentally too fragile. It would also cut off the view of the lake and complicate traffic

Sue Harrison, author of "Mother Earth-Father Sky" and "My Sister the Moon" addresses the Upper Peninsula District Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Words are author's love

Her novels are based on characters living in the Aleutian Islands off the coast of Alaska 9,000 years ago, but author Sue Harrison of Pickford has called the Upper Peninsula home since she was four years old. Harrison visited Manistique Monday, stopping at Manistique High School to teach about publishing, the UP District Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Manistique Public Library. Harrison is the author of "Mother Earth-Father Sky" and "My Sister the Moon," published by Doubleday, Inc. "I spent three years researching 'Mother Earth-Father Sky,'" she said. "It took me nine years to write the book." Harrison said she read more than 100 books on the Aleut culture and learned many of the Aleut traditions, including basket weaving, the native languages and kayaking. "I also contacted an archeologist," she said, "who was a great source of help." Harrison said she "fell in love with words" after reading Laura Ingalls Wilder's "Little House in the Big Woods" at age five. "I wrote a really bad poem and gave it to my fifth grade teacher, who hung it on the bulletin board," she said. "From that point on, I knew I had to be a writer. People don't realize how important encouragement is. Ever since that early encouragement, Harrison has loved the art of writing and the Upper Peninsula. "People always say to me, 'You must have been educated somewhere else' like the someone can't make their dreams come true in the way."

New ordinance discussed

By Robert Kirkbride The Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners and the Schoolcraft County Planning and Zoning Board are working on a new zoning ordinance. The Planning and Zoning Board will hold a public hearing on the ordinance on Thursday, Sept. 30 at 7 p.m. in the district court of the Schoolcraft County Building. Zoning Administrator Paul Wood said the board changed the ordinance to make it more usable and functional. "The other zoning ordinance was too restrictive," he said. "It didn't allow for expansion or business growth. Many of the main roads, such as US-2 and M-94 were not zoned properly. The ordinance is also too restrictive on waterways and lakes." Wood said the new ordinance, if passed, would allow for development where development would naturally take place. "People were coming in for variances to the ordinance all the time," he said. "The new ordinance doesn't allow people to do just anything, but it makes sense." Wood said he hopes the proposed ordinance would be in effect by the end of Oct. Zoning Board member Dixie Klugstad said the ordinance will follow the trends where people want to develop. "One example is we made Manistique Township along US-2 a town district that could be used for retail development and residential," she said. If the land was recorded under the existing ordinance, it would fall under a grandfather clause, making it subject to the rules of the current ordinance. Under the proposed ordinance, there would be three lake shore and recreational (LS/R) categories instead of the two that now exist. LS/R-1 and LS/R-2 would remain in place, with 100 feet and 150 feet of frontage needed to develop, respectively. Large, developed lakes, such as Indian Lake fall under LS/R-1 and LS/R-2. LS/R-3 would be added, making 300 feet of frontage necessary to develop. The new category would affect small lakes with little current use.

City to help fund dump closure

The Manistique City Council voted unanimously to pay $41,472 for the M-94 dump scope of work study based on a per capita charge of $12. Councilmember Mike Dougovio said the per capita charge is a computation used to fairly distribute the cost of the study evenly throughout the townships of the county. "The townships and the city can collect their share of the bill in any way they chose, but Dougovio said their options were limited when the City/County Department of Public Works and Manistique City Council voted to extend the exclusive refuse collecting contract with Manistique Rentals. "With the extension of the contract," he said, "we cannot change the cost and 2/3 per pound charge. "As I understand it, it would change the nature of the contract." City Assessor David Huddeston said he is concerned the city is setting an unfavorable precedent by paying for 41 percent of the cost of the landfill study. "The charge is $12 per person today," he said. "The cost of the landfill closure could be $5 million. "What would the per capita charge for the city be then? $500? $600? "The per capita charge does not take into account commercial businesses or part-time residents." Huddeston said the old DPW has approximately $170,000 and "knew why this money was not being used to cover the $99,000 needed for the initial study. "The old DPW does have well in excess of $100,000," said Mayor John Stewart, "but it belongs to the townships. It does not belong to the city. "The city has no claim or right to the $15 account. Huddeston said Manistique and the DPW are part of the county and should have access to part of the money. "I guarantee you'd see snow in August before that happened," said Dougovio. DPW members Dougovio, Dick St. Martin of Seney Township and Bob Leny of the County Board Commission worked out the exact figures and came up with the $12 per capita rate. Doyle Township, with 616 residents would pay $7,392. Gemfask with 542 would pay $6,504. Hiawatha with 1,279 would pay $15,348. Inwood with 638 residents would pay $7,656. Manistique Township would pay $10,992 for their residents. Mueller would pay $2,472 for their 206 residents. Seney would pay $2,220 for their 183 residents and Thompson would pay $5,568 for their 464 residents. Dougovio said the figures are only for this year and could be adjusted to meet additional need for following years. "This whole process is dependent on whether individual townships - all of them - will agree to this schedule," said Stewart. "It might be good to say 'yes' to this general agreement. "It seems we don't have a lot of options. "This generally did fairly well in the townships. "What we might want to do is approve this and do the necessary detail work to come up with everyone's share." Stewart stressed the city has not decided how to come up with the $12 per person. "There is nothing hard and fast saying it will go on the water bills," he said. "One challenge is to find a fair and legal way to spread this cost so big users pay big and little users pay a little." Dougovio said the county is running out of time and quick action is needed. "We have $182,500 due by next Sept. 29," he said. As for additional expenses that may accumulate for the actual landfill closure, Stewart said the city would fight to make sure everyone dumping there would pay their fair share. "We haven't given up," he said. "Anyone who put even a teaspoon of waste in there will now be in the time to start thinking about that. "When we get down to the point of identifying the FRP (potentially responsible parties) we won't be paying 41 percent of the bill." Dougovio made motion the accept the $12 per capita as a general guideline to come up with the $41,472. Councilmember Don Halling seconded the motion. Councilmember Dennis Boyd was excused from the meeting. In other city council action: ...The Manistique City Council unanimously voted to sign a water supply agreement with Hiawatha Township, who will pay one and one-half times the rate charged for residents of the city of Manistique. Water will be supplied to approximately a dozen houses. Continued on page 4A

Camp Manistique topic of committee

The Community Liaison Committee (CLC), which will act as a link between Camp Manistique and the community was formed and met on Tuesday, Sept. 21 at the Harbor Inn to discuss concerns and ideas area residents have concerning the prison. At this time the CLC committee is composed of John Norrington, Greg Aho, Bill Reno, Gary Maddox, Peter Hollenbeck, David John, Don Martin, Leanne Trebilcock, Bethann Gyorko, Alan Housler and John Stewart. Deputy Warden John Norrington said Camp Manistique has changed from a "shock incarceration" boot camp to a Level I, minimum security prison. "The main physical change to the facility is that we put bars on the living unit windows," he said. "We also added an additional ribbon of razor wire, so we have two instead of one. "Berms were built with cedar trees on to help isolate the prison from the community and we added fencing so prisoners can't come to the front of the building." Norrington said most of the prisoners housed at Camp Manistique are first offenders sentenced to prison. "There are no murderers, arsonists or anyone convicted of criminal sexual conduct sentenced to Camp Manistique," he said. "The criteria used to place people in Camp Manistique is very similar to what it was when it was a boot camp." Norrington said the criteria for prisoners who want to participate in the public works program is very strict and the public has very little to worry about. "We have a very good screening process," he said. "I have the final say on who participates. "They may fit all the criteria, but they may have something in their history that is questionable. "A lot of the prisoners want to get involved in this program because they can make $2.50 a day. The maximum pay for a job inside the prison is $1.54 a day. Norrington said the prisoners will eventually come back into society, and public works projects is the first step in that direction. "We want to gradually get them back out (into society)," he said. We are not testing the community or the prisoners. "They have to have shown me a positive change through their institutional record. "They are under direct supervision and a staff member has no more than 10 prisoners max." Norrington said the recent drive-away escape from Camp Casimo near Manistique was a "freaking thing."

UP," she said. "I think a small town is the best place in the world to make your dreams come true." Harrison, who went to Lake Superior State University to study English, said she wanted to write a work similar to Alex Haley's "Roots" except about Native Americans. "It took me five years to find an agent," she said. "Those were five years of rejection. "I really felt the books were more like a university press type publication, but Random House became interested, then Doubleday. "It ended up in an auction and I went with Doubleday. "Since then, it's been a whirlwind. Harrison said her books are published in eight other languages, with the possibility of more on the way. "Brother-Wind" the final book in the trilogy is due out soon, according to Harrison. Harrison said she is currently working on two other books. One will be the first book from the "Storyteller Trilogy" and the other is called "Sins," which is a book about the Upper Peninsula, set in the present day. The Schoolcraft County Economic Development Corporation (EDC) voted Monday in a special meeting to agree to sign off on the lien held on the doctor's building and land at the Schoolcraft County Memorial Hospital. Hospital Administrator David John said the hospital needs the land to remodel the obstetrics lab and lab at a cost of $717,000. The city of Manistique EDC originally held the lien for the land and building. The lien was transferred to the Schoolcraft County EDC when the two separate entities merged. "The EDC actually owns the

NOTICE

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service), an agency of the Department of the Interior, is seeking public comments on a recovery plan written for Houghton's goldenrod (Solidago houghtonii), which was listed in July 1988 as a threatened species under the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended. This species occurs in the United States in eight Michigan counties on the shores of Lakes Huron and Michigan, one Michigan county slightly inland, and one New York county. The principle causes for decline of this species are development of the species' limited lakeshore habitat and the overuse of these areas for recreational activities, particularly off-road-vehicles.

The recovery goal is to restore the species to a secure status in its natural setting. The recovery plan is being developed to provide a guide for Federal and State agencies and other parties interested in helping the species and identifies species and habitat factors of concern for those considering activities that may affect the species. The plan describes tasks that, when accomplished, should ensure the species' survival and thereby justify its removal from the endangered and threatened species list.

The draft recovery plan is available for public inspection during regular business hours at U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, East Lansing Ecological Services Field Office, 302 Manly Miles Building, 1405 South Harrison Road, East Lansing, Michigan 48823, 517/377-6650, or U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Region 3, Division of Endangered Species, Bishop Henry Whipple Federal Building, 1 Federal Drive, Ft. Snelling, Minnesota 55111, 612/725-3276. A copy of the draft recovery plan and additional information can be obtained from the Region 3 office in Ft. Snelling, Minnesota, at the above address. Public comments on the draft recovery plan are invited and should be sent to the Service's Region 3 office in Ft. Snelling, Minnesota, at the above address by October 18, 1993.

Fish Report
By Sgt. John Walker (Ret.)

Well, is winter almost here? hope not but the weather is cutting it kind of close. The Manistique River is getting a lot of activity now for salmon and they are doing pretty good. From all I see and hear pat season is next to nothing. I do not hear of anyone seeing any birds around and each year there seems to be more and more people who take part in bow hunting.

The bow deer season starts this week and this should be pretty good. There are a lot of deer around and each year there seems to be more and more people who take part in bow hunting. Goose season started out pretty good in the area, the only question is how long they will stay around with the cold weather. I thought I would take this week

Watch Your Step: Did you ever try something that should be so simple and usually is under normal circumstances - but when you are in uniform, in front of people, things do not always turn out just like you had them planned. One real problem I always had when I was working (and I never figured out how to solve it) was getting into a canoe gracefully. I have, while out in self, gotten in and out of canoe dozens of times without a problem, but let there be people around and I am still perfecting the art involved in stepping into a canoe.

Here I stand, naturally there are a number of people around, with the canoe on the edge of a stream.

Just as I go to step into the canoe with my other foot, for a 6'3", 230 pound guy of the canoe like I would a boat or the canoe will tip over. At home with Sarah

by Sarah Signall

Someone asked me if there was ever a recipe for Granola in the column. Yes - a long time ago so I looked it up and here it is again. There are real advantages for making your own. It is more than 50% cheaper, and you can make it to your own taste by adding what you like. Here is also a recipe for granola bars.

- | | |
|-------------------|-----------------|
| 1 cup flour | 1 cup nuts |
| 4 cups oatmeal | 1 cup raisins |
| 1 cup wheat germ | 1 cup oil |
| 1 cup brown sugar | 1/2 cup water |
| 1 cup coconut | 2 teas. vanilla |
| 1 cup dried milk | 1/2 teas. salt |

Mix all together in a large bowl. Divide onto 2 cookie sheets (with sides). Bake at 275 degrees for 45 minutes to 1 hour, stirring regularly. Cool and store in covered containers in a dry place.

GRANOLA BARS

- | | |
|--------------------------|-------------------------|
| 3 cups Grape-nuts Flakes | 1/2 teas. cinnamon |
| 1 cup Grape-nuts | 1/4 cup melted oleo |
| 1/4 cup milk | 1/3 cup honey |
| 1/2 cup raisins | 2 eggs, slightly beaten |
| 1/2 cup coconut | 1/4 teas. vanilla |

Combine cereal and milk and let stand 5 minutes. Stir in raisins, coconut and cinnamon. Add honey, oleo, eggs, and vanilla. Mix well - press into ungreased 9x9 square pan. Bake 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes until golden brown. Cool, cut into about 12 bars.

Sarah says Rub aluminum screens and doors with a cloth that has been dipped in kerosene and then wipe off. If this is done twice a year, pitting can be prevented.

Food for thought There is more to life than increasing its speed.

Arrogant Attitude

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency was set up to protect the citizens of the United States from environmental hazards such as PCBs.

The safety of the people is the main concern of the EPA.

The question becomes, "At what cost should the EPA protect us?"

There are PCBs in the Manistiquie Harbor. No one will argue with that.

But should the EPA be allowed to come into our community and tell us what is good for us?

The answer is no.

The employees of the EPA seem to feel we are too ignorant to judge for ourselves what is good for us.

We may not hold PhD degrees in biochemistry, but we do have common sense.

What good is a town without jobs?

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have already been spent by both sides, but nothing has really been done to solve the problem.

That money could have been spent by Manistiquie Papers and Edison Sault to expand their businesses and put more people to work and we all know how much the U.S. government needs the money.

Instead it was flushed down the toilet in legal expenses and time spent on the issue.

The EPA needs to change its arrogant attitude toward this community and let us have a real say on the issues.

Informational meetings, such as the one the EPA is holding Wednesday are fine to explain what they are doing, but we need our concerns addressed and our opinions to count.

Maybe nothing we do will change the EPA's attitude. Maybe our opinions do not count to them.

But the citizens of Manistiquie will continue to voice their opinions and objections, hoping to be heard.

We are not the first, and certainly won't be the last community to deal with the EPA.

The EPA must understand that we will be the ones living with the decisions they make in Chicago.

Spending millions of dollars cleaning up Manistiquie Harbor will not cost anyone at the EPA their job. It may cost Manistiquie its largest employer.

The EPA needs to ask themselves if it is worth destroying a community to clean up a harbor that they knew was contaminated as far back as the mid-80s.

"In the evening, they are not allowed out of their sleeping units."

Norrington said all area law enforcement units have a copy of procedures to be taken in an escape occurs.

The Manistiquie Public Safety Department would be the first law enforcement agency to be contacted in the event of an escape, Norrington said.

Dave Peterson of the Manistiquie Public Safety Department said if the department were to be contacted concerning an escape, they would be responsible for checking the perimeter of the prison. "We have a set routine we would go through," he said.

"Usually, the state police are contacted first," Norrington said, "but in our case, the public safety department is right down the street and usually has a car available.

"First we would contact public safety, then state police and finally from the sheriff's department.

"The information on the prisoner is then put into the lien network, where all agencies statewide would be notified.

Norrington said the final step is to contact the law enforcement agencies in the area where the prisoner is from in case the prisoner tries to go home.

"The best advice to people who live in Manistiquie is to be aware that there is a prison here," he said. "My homeowners had a camp of this sort."

"There was a lot of community concern at that time.

"There is no doubt situations occur and did occur."

Norrington said a small minority of people, who are most vocal, will speak out against prisons in their community.

"People need to remember we bring a lot of money to this community," he said. "Whether it is garbage collection with Manistiquie Rentals, purchasing water from the city or buying things from local vendors, we make an impact."

Norrington said there are approximately 200 prisoners currently housed at Camp Manistiquie.

The total capacity of the prison is 216.

Prisoners have cable television, a basketball hoop, horse shoes game boards and cards. Norrington said they will have indoor basketball and are looking at volleyball, baseball and a weight room.

Prisoners also have the option to complete their high school degree while incarcerated through a contract with Manistiquie Area Schools.

Norrington said if a prisoner becomes a serious discipline problem, they spend time at the Schoolcraft County Jail if there is room. If the Schoolcraft County Jail is full a prisoner can be sent to Jail or Delta County Jails. If that does not work, they are sent to other prisons.

Prisoners and most of their families.

Dear Editor:

To the City Council:

It seems you've played another sneaky one on us again. We voted you in to represent the people not MRI. Especially Dan Halling and George Danko. At first it was until October then for 19 months, why not forever since the people have no choice or vote just like in some other countries. You'd think someone who is got or had some hold over you. If not then the people know that we count too.

Thank you Mrs. Margaret Besaw Rt 2 Box 2679 Manistiquie, MI 49854

Garbage to be classified

Circuit Judge Charles H. Stark ruled the City/County Department of Public Works did not have enough evidence to win their case with Peninsula Sanitation for allegedly breaking a court order barring Peninsula Sanitation from collecting refuse in Schoolcraft County.

County Prosecuting Attorney Peter Hollenbeck said the injunctive order against Peninsula Sanitation did not fully differentiate between Type II and Type III garbage.

Type III garbage has the least potential for contaminating ground water, such as a brick or a tree stump. Type II is usually normal household waste.

"Under the injunction," said Hollenbeck, "there was no clear way to determine what was Type II and what was Type III."

"Peninsula Sanitation had their opinion and the DFW had theirs."

Terry Burkhardt, representing Peninsula Sanitation said the two parties have until Oct. 8 to reach an agreement on the injunctive orders.

If an agreement is not reached by then, Judge Stark will determine how the solid waste is to be classified.

"DFW called all their witnesses," said Burkhardt. "I didn't have to call any of mine."

"I asked for a summary judgment and the judge did not feel enough evidence was presented so he had to do this decision."

Hollenbeck said at this stage of the proceedings, both parties are looking for a solid definition of the different types of waste.

"The Department of Natural Resources rules were unclear," he said. "On October 6, two DNR rules will further define solid waste."

development.

Klagstad said the proposed ordinance further defines terms such as "fencing," "billboards," "junk yards" and "kennels," which were not covered in the last ordinance.

Wood said the new ordinance could be changed if there were complaints. "Once it's law," he said, "it can be amended."

"I have been challenged and changed a lot already."

Boardmember Keith Aldrich said there were many problems with the old ordinance.

"Times change, people change and building habits change," he said.

The ordinance has not been completely revised since 1984.

The proposed ordinance would be reviewed every year, with changes being made when necessary. "If we do this annually," he said, "it shouldn't be such a major undertaking."

"I hope we do have to make revisions to the ordinance. If we didn't, it would show the community is not growing."

Klagstad said enforcement was one of the problems with the ordinance.

"Everybody has to be treated fairly," she said. "There was a lack of communication between departments."

"There was also inconsistency of enforcement and a lack of follow-through when a problem was found."

"We want consistency in enforcement, where the law would apply to everyone equally and fairly."

City Manager Alan Housler, in a letter to city council members says, "A water supply agreement which is intended to formally allow the City to operate in Hiawatha Township, and also requires Hiawatha Township to pay the City for any delinquent accounts which accrue as a result of these operations."

"This agreement is required by FHA (Farmer's Home Administration) as a condition of obtaining the grant loan for our water project."

"Hiawatha Township approved this contract on September 16th."

Halling mar motion to accept the contract between Hiawatha Township and the city of Manistiquie for water service. Councilmember George Danko seconded the motion.

"The Manistiquie City Council introduced Ordinance 228, which would give the city the power to regulate cable rates."

"We have done some work renumbering the sections," said Housler, "and would like council to introduce the ordinance so it can be put on the next meeting agenda."

Halling introduced the Cable Rate Ordinance 228.

"Housler said the trucks and equipment to be purchased by the city will be paid at 4.5 percent interest with no down payment."

"Sisu" is a book about how small town life makes dreams possible and impossible at the same time," she said.

Harrison said she generally knows where she will go with a book when she starts writing.

"I know how I want to start and end a book," she said. "The middle is somewhat unclear."

"I do know my characters and what they want."

"The question is how they get from here to there."

"It's the time when you get to play god, and I mean that with no disrespect."

Characters are important, but to make a book about the people of the Aleutian Islands set thousands of years ago, research is equally important.

Downstate Differences

by Robert Kirkbride

Sugar-beaters like me who are from below the bridge have a different way of viewing things. Not better, not worse, just different.

In this column, I will try to explain some of the differences and why they exist.

Residents of the Upper Peninsula, beware! Cellular phones are on their way across the bridge.

The age of the Yuppie has brought us several hideous items we would all like obliterated from the face of the earth. The cellular phone is one of those items, and it's on its way to our part of the world.

As if beepers aren't enough.

My question to cellular phone users is, "How closely tied does a person have to be to their telephone?"

I guess my life just isn't important enough to justify carrying a telephone every place I go.

After my answering machine was broken, I didn't even replace it because of the unwanted intrusion the machine brings into one's life.

Maybe I hate cellular phones so much because most of the calls I get are unwanted or depressing.

I would hate to know a bill collector or a salesperson could find me at any time of the day or night.

I have several friends downstate who have cellular phones who say the reason they carry them is so they can be contacted for business purposes, but riding in the car with them, you'd never know it.

90 percent of the calls seem to be from friends or relatives.

It's not cheap to get hassled all day long, either.

According to Kathy Kuhlmer of the Cellulink office in Marquette, the basic cellular phone service runs $24.95 per month plus 55 cents per minute during peak hours and 32 cents per minute on off hours.

It was told the per minute charge is calculated regardless of who dials the number. Let me explain. If I were on the golf course playing 18 holes and a friend called me with some earth shattering news, I would be charged the same rate as if I called him.

"You have to be careful who you give your number to," said Kathy. No kidding.

I could join the "Silver Service" where I would get the basic service plus 80 minutes for the low, low price of $52.95 a month.

I only pay slightly more for my car per month.

Kathy said most, but not all areas of the UP are covered by the "net." "But if you want you can use the 'Message Manager Service' where any calls on your cellular phone you receive when you are not covered by the net are put on voice mail," she said.

"How comforting," I thought.

If you travel below the bridge or out-of-state, the phone can still be used. But it'll cost you.

I was told there is a $3 per day charge to use other cellular phone company towers. In addition to this charge, calls average 70 to 85 cents per minute.

The cost does not end with the service. A "real nice" Motorola cellular phone runs $259.

Lower Michigan is already flooded with these infernal contraptions, and they are on their way.

Here is a suggestion if you see someone driving and talking on the telephone: Pull up behind them and start honking your horn, flashing your lights and swearing. I guarantee it will fluster the person so bad, they will have to hang up and do what they should have been doing in the first place - driving.

If you see someone on the phone in a restaurant, come up to them and tell them you are expecting a call and to the person calling it was alright to call you on their cellular phone.

Drastic action must be taken to rid our community of this scourge.

The price of technology is losing personal freedom. I guess I'll have to move to Isle Royale and become a moose tracker.

Opps! Gotta go. I hear my phone ringing.

Sgt Walker writes book

Sgt. John Walker, who writes the Fish Report in the Pioneer-Tribune has compiled his unique experiences in a book called "A Deer Gets Revenge," which now is available at the Pioneer-Tribune office, from Walker and various local stores.

"The stories in the book are about growing up in the UP and being a conservation officer," he said.

"A Deer Gets Revenge" is Walker's first book.

Walker says, "A lot of these stories are those things that really happen to a Game Warden who is out in the field doing his job."

"Others are those passed down from officer to officer, plus those from hunter to hunter, that I heard during visits to hunting camps."

"Others are about growing up."

"Everyone likes to tell their favorite Game Warden story, 'Their side of the story.'"

Walker said the book should appeal to everyone.

"I get more good comments from ladies," he said. "They like to see how men got up."

The book is full of interesting stories about what his life is like in the UP, and includes a "Backwoods Glossary" of Yooper terms.

The book retails for $6.95.

land and building," John said. "We need the EDC to sign off, so the doctors can sign off, so the hospital can get the building permits we need to get started."

The EDC purchased the land and signed for the building to get lower interest rates for the hospital.

"They want this done as quickly as possible," said EDC chairperson Dick Klagstad. "Improving the hospital is a positive thing that improves the community."

"They are not just looking at the property, but will also need the doctors' part."

Bob Males said the EDC would be better off signing off on the property and building in the long run.

John Stewart made motion to agree to sign off on the lien on the land, but not the building at this time.

The motion was seconded by Lenart Nygren and passed unanimously.

Stewart then made motion for chair to sign all necessary documents in the name of the EDC.

The motion was seconded by Males and also passed unanimously.

Soon, the leaves on these trees will fall, signifying the start of winter. Leaves around the Manistiquie area are nearing their peak color. In a few weeks, the branches of these trees will again feel the sting of winter winds and snow.

Theodore Doane

by Ray Wightman

One Sunday night in January, 1990, when I was living in Denver, CO, I received a telephone call from a Rev. Theodore Doane from Flint. His call was just to let me know that a group of United Methodist clergy were thinking of me during my study at seminary. Although the call was on business, we did have a pleasant conversation. Afterward, I recall thinking of how nice it was that this man in a bureaucratic position could dodge the dull formalities and leave the feeling that we had engaged in a friendly and caring chat.

A few weeks ago, I was again in Denver, this time for a visit. I called Manistique and was surprised to see how everyone in the church was doing. The members were fine physically, but were all shocked (as was I) by the sudden passing of Ted Doane, pastor of the First United Methodist Church from 1968 to 1972, community leader of Manistique during those years, and distinguished citizen of many other cities.

When the staff of the Pioneer Tribune learned of Ted's death, they asked me to provide information on the life of Ted Doane. A regular obituary, however, could only provide the factual information, which could not even begin to describe the man he was, nor the impact he made upon the lives of others.

For the record, Ted was a graduate of Albion College and of the Theological School at Oberlin college. While in school, he served as pastor at Methodist churches in Hastings, Michigan, and North Mentor, Ohio. Afterward, he served churches in North Detroit, Southfield, Sault Ste. Marie, and Flint as well as Manistique. Added to this, Ted and his wife Helen Jeanne served as missionaries to Guyana from 1966 to 1968. In 1980, Ted was named superintendent of all United Methodist churches in the Upper Peninsula. In 1990, he became the United Methodist program director for Upper Michigan and the eastern part of the Lower Peninsula.

While all of these positions would appear impressive on a resume, they do not even begin to describe what Ted did for the communities that he called home.

Thank You ...

At the end of the business day this Thursday, September 30th the lights will be turned off and the doors locked for the last time. It has been 53 Years since we first opened our STORE at this same location in downtown Manistique with a simple goal, to provide the Community with a source for quality home furnishings and appliances at reasonable prices. The fact that we've lasted here for 53 Years stands as proof that we were successful in achieving that goal.

OVER THE YEARS we've looked through our windows and witnessed many changes in our downtown shopping district. Now it is our turn.

As the date for us to close draws nearer and I think back over our time here, the good days and the bad, it is impossible to recall all of the many people we've had the pleasure to serve, or all of the wonderful suppliers and friends who have helped us over the years, but I am appreciative to all. We have grown up with many of you, expanding our store and selection to meet your everchanging needs. It has been a wild, and sometimes crazy ride, but one that has provided my family and I with a good living in a nice Community, and with many, many, great friends and terrific memories.

I will miss having the opportunity to serve you again in the future, but look forward to my retirement for the opportunity to relax and enjoy the fruits of my years at Maytag & Furniture, and I have all of you, my CUSTOMERS, Suppliers and Friends, to thank for that, for your 53 Years of Loyal Patronage.

Manistique Emeralds post hard-fought win, 55-54

The Manistique Girls Varsity Basketball Team defeated Big Bay de Noc in what Coach Bob Ryan called, "Just a great high school girls game."

The score was tied at the end of the first quarter 11-11, tied at halftime 23-23 and tied at the end of the third quarter 41-41.

Manistique outscored Big Bay 14-13 in the fourth quarter to win 55-54.

"Both teams really played hard and deserved to win," said Ryan. "There were a number of outstanding performances by both teams."

Renee Kennedy led the Emeralds with 19 points including four 3-pointers.

Sue Fleck was 7 for 12 from the field for 14 points.

Alison Malloch was also in double figures with 12 points.

Sarah Bourdo, with six key points and Renee LaFleur with four rounded out the scoring.

LaFleur was outstanding on the boards with 16 rebounds, followed by Malloch with 12.

Big Bay de Noc had a strong game from Debbie Hermes with 18 points.

They also played extremely well inside, with Dana Putvin scoring 15 points and Lisa Farley 13.

Jennifer Rochefort added six points and Terra Ranguette two for the Lady Bears.

In between all the tie scores, both teams had to make strong comebacks.

"Throughout the game, both teams would take a four or five point lead, only to have the other team come back."

"Fortunately for us, we surged ahead in the final minute and were able to hang on for the victory," said Ryan. "Both teams had chances to win the game in the final two minutes."

Big Bay out shot Manistique from the field, sinking 24 of 52 field goals, or 46 percent. Manistique hit 41 percent of their shots. Big Bay made 5 of 9 free throws, while Manistique hit 7 of 15.

The Emeralds pulled down 35 rebounds to Big Bay's 25.

Knights are crushed, 62-0

The JV and Freshman Football Teams combined to crush Norway at home on Thursday, Sept. 22. 62-0.

Head JV Coach Mike Peters said the freshman held score three or four touchdowns.

"We had a chance to use them quite a bit," he said.

Peters said the Emerald JV team will face some tough battles against good teams in upcoming games.

"Stephenson is undefeated," he said.

"The next three out of four teams we play are undefeated, and Manising is the other one."

Peters said he was happy the game was not a test, even though the next few games will be.

"We are going to try to work on the pass a little more against Stephenson," he said. "Iron Mountain is the game after Stephenson, and they like to send everybody,"

Varsity loses

The Manistique Varsity Football team lost a close game to Norway on Saturday, Sept. 25, losing 18-13.

Head Coach Todd Kangas said the team played a good defensive game.

"We played well enough to win," he said. "Anytime you can hold a team to two touchdowns, you have a good chance to win."

Kangas said Manistique self-destructed.

"We had too many fumbles," he said. "We dropped catchable balls. It's hard to dig yourself out of a hole."

"We had bad field position all day."

Andy Fuson led rushers with 52 yards on 11 carries.

Mike Kratz ran for 51 yards on four carries and was 6-11 passing for 76 yards.

Ben Amock caught three passes for 28 yards and Mark Jarski caught two for 49 yards.

Scott Sholander and David Tenynson had 13 tackles apiece to lead the Emerald defensive attack.

Kangas said Stephenson is a team he really feels Manistique can beat.

"If our offense and defense both play well in the same game, I think we can win," he said. "We really need to eliminate our mistakes."

Jayvees undefeated

The Emerald JV Girls Basketball Team improved their record to 9-0 by defeating the Big Bay de Noc Lady Bears 46-39 at Big Bay Tuesday.

It was a close game all the way with Big Bay getting fine performances from Trina Farley and Christa Harvey, who combined for 28 points.

The Emeralds were led by Mandy Cohen, who topped all scorers with a game high 20 points.

Alexsandra Ackley chipped in with 15 points. Michelle Mickelson and Kylee Norton contributed four each, with Courtney McGuire scoring three.

The game was tied at the end of the first period, with the Emeralds getting a run on fine defense to take a 26-15 lead into halftime.

Big Bay came back to cut the lead to five at the end of the third.

The Emeralds got a spurt in the middle of the fourth, reaching double figures and hold on to win by six points.

"The fourth quarter scoring by Cohen and Ackley put the game away," said Coach Mike Oas. "Mickelson did a great job on the boards, grabbing 15 rebounds before fouling out."

Ackley had seven rebounds, followed by McGuire with six and Norton with five.

"It was a tough game all the way and it was good to get the win," Oas said.

The JV team also defeated Negaunee 54-43 on Thursday, Sept. 23 for their eighth win of the season.

"It was a hard-fought contest with us in control throughout the whole game," said Oas. "We would go on runs that put us up by 18 and then we seemed to get flat and let Negaunee right back into the ball game."

"We played like we were tired. It was the first long bus ride of the season, so I imagine that had some effect on our play."

Ackley, McGuire and Cohen played steady games. They led the scoring with Ackley scoring 24, McGuire 14 and Cohen 13.

McGuire, Mickelson and Norton did a good job on the boards with McGuire grabbing eight rebounds, while Mickelson and Norton each had seven.

"Negaunee scored five 3-pointers," said Oas, "which scared us and kept them in the game."

Name of Sack Bay is from the Indian word "Mus-ke-moo-ton"

Taken from Our Heritage,
The Garden Peninsula
1982 First Edition
by Grace Stern

Memories

Sack Bay, once a bustling village and one of the first permanent settlements on the eastern side of Delta County, faces the waters of Big Bay de Noc and gets its name from the Indian word "Mus-ke-moo-ton" meaning shaped like a sack. Apparently in some legal papers the spelling of Sack has appeared as Sac but some of the old timers contend it should be Sack.

The early settlers of Sack Bay came by way of the islands which were stepping stones from Wisconsin. These settlers were drawn to the area because the region abounded with fish. The island families slowly migrated to the mainland about 1850 because of the many adventures of island life. It is believed that Aaron Olmsted constructed the first house at Sack Bay about 1854. Other homes were moved to the mainland across the ice during the winter; a few of these homes are still standing and occupied.

One well-known and well-remembered family who settled in Sack Bay in the early 1850s were the Elliotts. They came from Wisconsin but not via the islands. Their main occupation was not fishing either. Elliott, in 1878, built a sawmill which could turn out 10,000 board feet daily. The mill ran for 10 summer seasons. This three-story building in 1920 was completely destroyed by fire which started at the nearby docks. Samuel Elliott also constructed a three-masted schooner at Sack Bay for his friend, E.P. Royce of Escanaba. The schooner was designed to haul telegraph poles which was becoming a profitable business. This boat was launched in 1873. Samuel Elliott's brother, Stephen, also arrived here at Sack Bay and in 1861 purchased the property on which the Village of Sack Bay was situated. The property was owned by the widow of Wright Perkins who had served in the War of 1812. For his services Private Perkins's widow was granted this property. Apparently Stephen Elliott was sold the same year - 1861 to Abraham Brown. Abraham Brown sold it in 1863 to

Eucharist to be explained

An instructed Eucharist will be presented on Sunday, Oct. 3 at St. Alban's Episcopal Church. Throughout the liturgy, commentary will be given by Rev. Rayford Ray, Missioner for the South Central Region. The narrative will explain the rich tradition of the Episcopal Church as it is incorporated in the worship service. A coffee hour will follow the 10:30 Eucharist.

A warm welcome is extended to the Community of Manistique at St. Alban's gathers at the corner of Oak and Range.

Mrs. Aaron (Belson) Olmsted. On April 3, 1877 this property was secured by the Board of Health of Sack Bay Township from the heirs of Mrs. Olmsted and was designated as the Sack Bay Cemetery. There were burials at this site in the early 1850s. Indians as well as white people were buried there. The Board of Health advertised for people to submit bids who were interested in clearing the graveyard and constructing a fence to enclose the cemetery. William Wilson was the man contracted to build the fence which endured for 60 years. The wooden fence was replaced with wire in 1937 and two years later the cemetery was enlarged.

In the late 1850s and early 1860s other stores at Sack Bay were established. Charles Scholten and Frank Wilson, who came from Washington Island, opened a general store and warehouse with a fish shed and docks. Later this business was acquired by Donald A. Wells who came to Sack Bay to visit his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson. Wells came from Ohio where he had been a student under James A. Garfield at Hiram College.

Donald Wells did a large volume of business in buying and selling fish and trading hides and furs with the local Indians. While no saloons ever became established at Sack Bay, it was known that Wells kept an ample amount of 100 proof alcohol on hand. A post office, called Delton, was established in Wells' general store on June 25, 1868 with Wells appointed postmaster. He held that position until January 10, 1868 when the office was closed and moved to Fayette. Wells had a great number of leather mail bags on hand, the last of which was auctioned off in 1905. A list of some of the retail prices in those days was found, showing lard cost 16 cents per pound, maple syrup $1 a gallon, flour $6 a barrel, cabbage 7 cents a head, and butter 16 cents a pound. The old store accounts list other names of settlers: Mrs. Gray, Reuben Allen, John and Richard Champ, Aaron, Steve and Jabez Olmsted, William Shipman, and David Wildie.

Another man later associated with Donald A. Wells and his store was Thomas Kynaston who apparently operated the net and twine business. Kynaston died in 1895 and Donald Wells in 1896. Mrs. Kynaston operated this store until 1905.

During the years of the Civil War it was told that there was a heavy call up of soldiers from Sack Bay. Among those who served were: John A. Holden, Abraham Brown, Stephen Elliott, A.S. MacDonald, Paul Sheehan (known as Mr. Pillow), Jacob Carrow, Jonathan Trueblood and Bernard LeQuea. The last two lost their lives in the war. A number of others were drafted but furnished substitutes as the laws permitted.

With the fishing industry bringing people to Sack Bay, the business of furnishing charcoal to the kilns at Fayette, the shipping of telegraph poles and various other products associated with timber, Sack Bay's population grew to a point where the residents of the area petitioned for the formation of a township called Sack Bay. The township was established in 1872 with a valuation of $13,490. For various reasons this township was joined with Fairbault Township in the year of 1906. The valuation of the township then was $45,505.

Time waits for nothing or no one. The little settlement at Sack Bay has become a sleepy little burg now occupied by summer residents and a few who stay and brave the winter winds. The Henry Hazen family owned a farm at the head of Sack Bay but this was subdivided into lots and sold perhaps in 1955. The Elliotts' house and a few other buildings are the only link to the past of Sack Bay. A few people still remember the way it was. The Elliotts' home is now owned by Tom and Barbara Harvey and their two sons, Barbara (Thill) Harvey is the great-granddaughter of Nicholas Thill who came to work at Fayette.

Hazen constructed the two-masted schooner "D.A. Wells." This boat ran around between St. Martin Island and fisherman's Shoal in 1879, and in order to save the boat, its cargo of grain had to be thrown overboard. Darius Hazen also started constructing the "Manatee" for the Saunders Brothers. The brothers moved and took with them the partially completed boat. Henry Hazen was known for his trade as a cooper, making barrels for the fishermen.

The other store was at the other end of Sack Bay which was owned by Douglas Ansell. He not only had a store but a dance hall and pool hall. Above his store was a bedroom where children could sleep while their parents attended the dances. Music for the dances was provided by violins and harmonicas. A few early music makers of the area were Amab Olmsted, Charles Townsell and Amab LeQuea. Dances were waltzes, quadrilles and a few jigs performed to the tune of the "Irish Was Woman." To those who lived near the dance hall, it was not uncommon to have someone knock on the asking permission to leave their horses in their barns while they attended the dances.

Social events in Sack Bay had found their place long before the dance hall, as early parties were held in the homes. Cards were played, masquerade parties and oyster suppers held, and occasionally pull took place. In time, baseball became popular. A ball field was established south of the cemetery and beyond Andrew Olmsted's home. Sack Bay people who later became prominent in baseball were Dotsch, Olmsted, and Chaffee.

As for the education of the children of Sack Bay, records from 1861 stated that papers of glass were purchased for the school. Also books were sold to various families. It is believed that school was first held in a building which was south of Wilson and Schulten's store (later D.A. Wells' store). The teacher was John Holden. In a search to find Delta County's oldest school, records relate that a new building was being built in September of 1865 and completed by John and William Wilson, carpenters. The building was ready for occupancy in 1866, and the first teacher is believed to have been Hiram Wellman. Some other early teachers were Ruth Rashmell, Adelle and Emma Tyler, Lillian Ruggles, Mary Barnes, Laura Polk, Bessie Bacon, Margaret Flemming, Nellie Beath, Kitty McLean, and Nellie Shepard.

Myrtle (Chaffee) Lang, Garden Peninsula's oldest resident and first centenarian, was born at Sack Bay just 26 years after the village was settled. She recalls that under the direction of Lucy Elliott the teacher, they and their school children, made their first American flag which was proudly displayed in their small log school. The government did not furnish transportation to school for the children in those days. Children were all required to walk to school, be it near or far. If the winter was too severe, school was discontinued for several weeks. Children coming from a distance carried lunches in small tin pails, and each drank water from a dipper and pail of water supplied by the teacher. The school was heated with wood and the children used slate boards to write on. In 1890 the school house became the setting for many school programs as well as other holiday celebrations.
