DNR's stunning results Harbor fish are healthy

by John Blake

The presence of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) biologists came as a shock to many fish in the Manistique River harbor Thursday.

According to DNR fish biologist Jim Waybrant, a 20 foot boat with two boom sent pulsating currents of 800 DC volts through the water to stun the fish for capture and brief study by the experts.

Area anglers may also receive a shock when they hear Waybrant's assessment of the fish in the harbor, which is slated for clean up of PCB contamination by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) this summer.

"I would eat them," Waybrant said. "This is a great unappreciated fishery. There are some fantastic ones in there."

The biologist said that the survey was part of the Michigan Surface Water Quality Environmental Lab's ongoing surveillance and contamination sampling.

"This has nothing to do with the EPA testing," Waybrant said. "We know there is contaminated sediment in there, and this is to find out how much contamination is leaching out to the fish that swim above."

Waybrant said that a 1988 study of channel fish showed that they were below mercury and PCB "trigger levels."

"Not even the channel cat (bottom-feeding catfish often used as contamination indicators) were above the level, though some were high," he said. "And the river has been cleaning up since then."

The fish that Waybrant and the DNR collected last Thursday appeared to be in good health as well, though they were not taken for extensive contamination study, according to the biologist.

"The fish were attracted to the pulsation of the DC current, which then stunned them," Waybrant said. "There were two people in the front of the boat with deadman switches to not the stunned fish."

The procedure does not harm the fish, but allows them to be collected for inspection, according to the biologist.

"They recover in about 10 minutes in a hoseback that we had on board," he said, adding that the length and condition of the fish were noted.

Though the biologists did not find any channel catfish, Waybrant said that they did find other "beautiful" fish below the dam.

"We found a couple dozen walleye, up to 26 inches long," said Waybrant, adding that many of the walleye were over 20 inches long.

"There were many smallmouth bass, 60 percent of which were legal, and they were up to 18 inches long," he said. Several three inch long Chinook salmon were also found by the team.

Waybrant said that he was "bothered" after talking with area fishermen who avoided the channel due to its alleged contamination.

"Just because they are taking contamination studies does not necessarily imply that the fish are harmful," said Waybrant. "It's almost McCarthyism with chemical contamination these days, and that bothers me a bit."

In comparison to other area rivers, Waybrant said that the Manistique River contains relatively low levels of "naturally occurring" mercury, which can be caused by acid rain.

"The Tahquamenon River below the falls, of 20 to 23 pipe and walleye, 75 percent were over the trigger levels of mercury," Waybrant said.

Three elected to MAS school board

by Robert Kirkbride

If there is one issue that each of the newly elected school board members puts at the top of their list of prompts they want to tackle, it is school finance.

James E. Brownhill (481 votes) and Terry Savage (527 votes) were each elected to a four-year term and Jan Jeffcott (344 votes) was elected to a two-year term to the Manistique Board of Education following Monday's election.

Jeffcott, a write-in candidate, will complete the remaining two years of late board member Alan Jarvi's term.

Also running for the two year seat was William Rogers (335 votes), while Marcus Burnis (448 votes) sought reelection to the four year seat.

"Funding is a difficult challenge for not only our school district," Brownhill said, "but all the districts in the U.S."

The new board members also voiced their concern on how to improve the quality of education in Manistique schools while remaining within shrinking budgets.

"We need to explore forms of alternate (curriculum) delivery at lower costs," said Jan Jeffcott.

community input," said Terry Savage. "We need strong communication between the community and the schools."

City makes EDC choices

by Robert Kirkbride and John Blake

Mayor John F. Stewart met resistance over a planned appointment to the Economic Development Corporation Board (EDC) at the Manistique city council meeting Monday.

Council was considering replacements for EDC board members Sam Harma and George Segerstrom.

Harma recently submitted a letter of resignation to the EDC, according to EDC director Linda Armock.

She added that a letter from the EDC had been sent to Segerstrom asking him if he would like to continue to serve after several absences from scheduled meetings. Armock said that Segerstrom has not responded to the letter. Segerstrom, who was out of town, could not be reached for comment before press time.

Stewart encountered resistance Monday after nominating Robert Harma and Rod Weber to the EDC as Harma and Segerstrom's replacements.

"The two individuals...are well qualified," Stewart said as he nominated Panek and Weber. "They will serve the city well, and I see no reason not to put the individuals into the slots."

Panek's nomination passed, but Rod Weber's was not seconded.

Councilman Don Halling said Panek would be an asset to the board because of his forestry experience. Panek has expertise similar to that of former EDC member and forester Rich LaValley, who resigned from the board after moving from the area.

Halling voiced objection to the Weber nomination based on two criteria. "We can't ignore residency and (application) deadlines," he said.

Halling then nominated Lemart Nygren. The nomination was seconded by councilman George Danko. Councilmen Dennis Boyd, Halling and Danko voted "yes" for Nygren. Mayor Stewart cast a "no" vote. Mike Dougovit was excused from the meeting while on vacation.

The city's choices for EDC board members will not become appointments unless approved by the Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners, and though the county voiced no objection to Nygren and Panek's nomination, the appointment proceeding stalled as county prosecutor Pete Hollenbeck expressed concern that written resignations from Harma and Segerstrom have not been received.

"We should be more careful with the procedure," said Hollenbeck. "There are statutory procedures to remove people from appointed positions. You can't just do it without the proper procedure."

Hollenbeck suggested that the simplest method of appropriately removing Harma and Segerstrom from the EDC board would be to solicit their resignations.

County commissioner Keith Aldrich added that a resignation had been received from Harma.

The issue will be considered by

Big Bay de Noc voters elect Haindl, Chambers

Big Bay de Noc voters re-elected John Haindl to the district's board of education, and Todd Chambers will become the board's newest member.

In Monday's election, Haindl and Chambers captured the two four-year seats with 183 and 174 votes, respectively.

A Cooks resident, Haindl has been a member of the school board for 16 years. Chambers has lived in the Big Bay district for two decades, and has been involved in the school's booster club and scholarship committee.

Also running for the two year seat were William Wad (148 votes) and incumbent Wayne Bushan (113 votes). Bushan served on the board for eight years, and was also on the Delta-Schoolcraft Intermediate School District Board of Education.

A Big Bay de Noc School district representative said that the results of the election will not be made official until they are reviewed by the Delta County Board of Canvassers later this week, though the school district considers the results to be accurate.

Chamber to sponsor charity auction

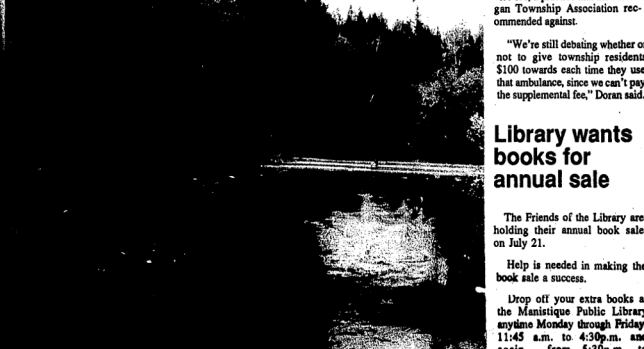

The first ever Manistique Chamber of Commerce charity auction, to be held July 3, need everyone's help and support, according to organization officials.

"We are looking for items from individuals such as antique furniture," said Gail LaCroix, president of the Chamber of Commerce. "Local business have already made some generous donations."

The items to be auctioned include: a Geo Tracker sport utility vehicle, a night stay at the Holo Inn, St. Ignace, a Weatherby Rifle, a complete canoe package, a night stay at the Manistique Motor Inn Homestead Suite, a boat package, a gas grill, a night at the Thunder Bay Inn in the Henry Ford State Park, a USDA full loin of beef, septic tank pump-out, a perm and style, a box of chocolates, two-12 piece chicken dinners, and prints from wildlife artist Dietmar Kurmy and wildlife photographer Krasia Lenon.

For more information on the charity auction contact Carol at the Manistique Chamber of Commerce, 341-5010.

RV's 'stream' into town Monday chosen as a stopping point because of its natural beauty. "We just love this town," she said. "The people are friendly and everything is just so beautiful."

Gert said her and her husband scored the route a year in advance to set accommodations.

Agnes Mastro of Nishville, MI said Airstream RV's have a dedicated group of owners, similar to owners of Harley-Davidson motorcycles.

One problem club members seem to have is telling their trailer from the one parked next to them.

"I've walked into a trailer I thought was my own," Gert Pearce said. "I wondered what the stranger was doing in my trailer when he asked me the same question and I realized I was in the wrong one."

The average club member is 69 years old. Mastro said growing old makes the Airstream more attractive. "Wally Byam originally designed the Airstream because his wife was too ill to camp in a tent,"

A 1936 Airstream RV was part of the WBCCI caravan that came through town early in the week. She said "He wanted a place for her where she could sleep comfortably, but still enjoy the outdoors."

County approves zoning duty change

by John Blake

Schoolcraft County zoning administrator Bill Hackney, currently performed by county building code administrator Bill Hackney, may soon be taken over by Paul Wood, the county assessor.

The county board of commissioners approved the switch at Tuesday's regular meeting by a vote of 3-0, with Schoolcraft County chairman Louis "Sparky" Luzzon and commissioner Jerry Hughson absent.

Compensation for Hackney and Wood will be negotiated at a future county finance meeting, and the committee will make a final recommendation to the board in approximately 30 days, according to commissioner Keith Aldrich.

"Sparky and I discussed this with Bill Hackney and Paul Wood, and it's agreeable to both parties," said Aldrich, who presented the issue to the board Tuesday. "Bill is willing to give up the zoning administrator duties, as they take up too much time."

Aldrich added that Wood has at least three years experience on the county zoning board.

Vice-chairman Ernest Holobok agreed, saying that Wood has the "experience and background."

Upcoming changes at the courthouse will go beyond personnel shifts, as the county board unanimously approved the use of the former county abstract office space by Tom O'Brien, a privately contracted surveyor for the county.

According to county clerk Sigrid Doyle, O'Brien will be responsible for the re-monumentation in the area, as the county recently received a grant to upgrade surveying markers within its borders.

Doyle added that it is not yet clear whether O'Brien will rent the office space or if the expense will be covered by the grant money.

The county board recently voted to close the abstract office as it was not cost-effective.

U.P. registers greatest drop in unemployment

Among the state's major labor markets, the Upper Peninsula had the greatest month-to-month change, as its jobless rate dropped by half a percentage point to 9.8 percent in April, due to seasonal hiring in the region's industries, according to unadjusted estimates prepared by the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESCC). Schoolcraft County's unemployment figures followed the state trend, dropping from 16.2 percent in March to an April jobless rate of 14.5 percent. The county's rate, however, remains above the U.P. April rate, which is above the state jobless figure of 6.8 percent. The state's April figure dropped from 7.1 percent in March. MESCC Director F. Robert Edwards said employment climbed in all 12 areas as seasonal influences

At home with Sarah

by Sarah Bignall

The weather is improving at last. Let's hope it continues and that "four days" of beautiful sunshine isn't for the season. No, I am not going to be so pessimistic and really believe that we are going to have a beautiful summer. Making hamburgers on the grill is one of the many things that I have really enjoyed already. Here is a recipe for Sesame Steak that is a different way to serve an inexpensive cut of meat. This marinade makes an unusual taste treat - different and tender.

SESAME STEAK

- 1/4 C salad oil
- 4 onions, thickly sliced
- 1/4 C lemon juice
- 1 T sugar
- 1/4 C sesame seeds
- 1/2 C soy sauce
- 2 garlic cloves, crushed
- 1/2 T pepper

1 sirloin steak, 1 1/2 inches thick (2 1/2 to 3 lbs)
About five hours before dinner, make marinade. In a 10 inch skillet over medium-high heat, cook sesame seeds in oil until golden, stirring frequently, taking care not to burn. In a 9 x 13 dish, mix the sesame seed oil mixture, onions, soy sauce, lemon juice, pepper and garlic. Trim excess fat from steak. Place steak in marinade, turning to coat both sides. Cover and refrigerate about four hours, turning steak occasionally. Grill steak, brushing meat often with marinade. Broil onions with steak. Sarah says.... Get rid of kitchen clutter. It will give you more work space and also makes cleaning up a lot easier.
Food for Thought....The only person who saves time is the one who spends it wisely.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on June 29, 1993, at 7:00 o'clock p.m. at the Manistiquie Middle and High School Board Room the Board of Education of Manistiquie Area Schools will hold a public hearing on the levying in 1993 of an additional proposed millage rate of .9416 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Education has the complete authority to establish that 32.3359 mills be levied in 1993 from within its present authorized millage rate.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1993 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982, by three percent (3%).

The increase is due to increases in assessed valuation of property in the district and will result in no net increase in revenue due to a dollar-for-dollar reduction in state aid. The levy of .9416 mills will generate $113,531 in taxes.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate. Not more than ten (10) days after the public hearing, the Board of Education may approve all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

The Board of Education plans to take action on the resolution approving the additional proposed millage rate immediately following the public hearing.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Help or hindrance?

Sometimes it is hard to distinguish help from hindrance. Sometimes both come in the same package.

When it comes to state and federal government involvement in politics, Manistiquie has experienced both.

Manistiquie is fortunate to earn government grants so the community can proceed with worthwhile projects such as the lakeshore beautification.

On the other hand, as the lake shore project nears completion, the government has stepped in to stop further construction because biologists have found endangered flower species.

Without its natural beauty Manistiquie would just be another city along the lake shore, therefore protecting endangered plants and animals is extremely important.

But couldn't the government have inspected the area before the project got underway?

The same is true for the channel clean-up. The government has tried to create an environment in Upper Michigan for businesses to succeed.

Then the EPA orders an emergency clean-up. This may very well be a necessary action. But clean-up costs may financially bind a company that was thinking about possible expansion.

Things need to be planned more carefully on both ends. Local government officials need to make local needs perfectly clear to the state and national agencies. "Big" government officials need to help municipalities understand the regulations involved in state funded projects.

Federal and state funding is important to Manistiquie and, for the most part, the laws and regulations these governments enact protect the general welfare of the public. But if they truly want to help small communities, they must realize that a seemingly insignificant decision by a single federal or state decision-maker can cause enormous problems in a small community.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to say thanks to the business organizations that sponsor the Lutheran Digest.

(It is very inspirational and very interesting.)

It is a very nice gesture, on the part of the advertisers, as it is given free to all who want it.

Thanks again. It is appreciated. Mrs. Jean Selling

Dear Editor:

The proposed Manistiquie Rentals, Inc. amendment to the Schoolcraft County Solid Waste Plan is in my opinion an attempt to establish a county wide solid waste disposal monopoly.

Mr. Slining's reference to strengthening the commitment that the city and county made years ago when they supported the building of the transfer station is questionable. MRI needed the positive endorsement of their solid waste transfer station project by various local governments and agencies to meet the requirements of the $168,023 state grant MRI applied for.

Suggestions from the MDNR representatives Brian Burke & Lucille Scotty for the county to utilize MRI's transfer station are irrelevant. There are many facilities and businesses in the county that are funded in part by federal state and local governments and the public chooses to use them or not.

As spelled out by Ms. Scotty in a recent letter to Mayor Stewart, if the facility is under-utilized then that issue must be taken up with the grant recipient, Manistiquie Rentals, Inc.

Thank you, Peter Markham

Kids are glad for dads

by Debbie Lang Children love their fathers. What better way for a child to express how much they care about their father than on Father's Day itself.

Some of the students at Big Bay De Noc school expressed their feelings on "Why their father is special."

"He takes me places. We go snowmobiling and ride on the tractor together. He works hard." --David Robere Jr., son of David Robere Sr., of Cooks.

"He bought my bike for Christmas. He lets us ride our bikes. He makes me laugh 'cause he tickles me." --Stacy Tatrow, daughter of Mark Tatrow of Garden.

"He helps me do my homework. He lets me drive the tractor and we go to camp and we do barn work together. He sometimes tucks me in at night. He's strong." --Rachael Laux, daughter of Rick Laux, of Fayette.

Family teaches at home

by John Blake

On the last day of school, Tom and Dawn Valenti, like many parents, were planning summer activities for their family.

"I hope to get the boat going, so we can get some fishing and swimming in," Tom said. "And we can always go swimming off the Copenhagen Bridge."

Put at the Indian River Teaching Family Home, where Tom and Dawn are currently the "family teachers" to four teenagers, the learning does not stop when the warm weather starts.

The teaching family home is similar to foster care, but offers a more structured lifestyle for its youth, attempting to teach them behavioral skills that will keep them out of trouble in the future.

At the Indian River home, about half of the program participants are from the Manistiquie area, while others come from other U.P. locations such as Escanaba and Newberry, Tom said.

Teaching family consultant John Schade, who helped to found the Indian River Teaching Family Home in the late 1980's and served as a family teacher in Manistiquie for eight months, said that youth, normally between the ages of seven and 17, enter the program from a variety of sources.

"They are sometimes delinquents, often coming from neglect or abuse cases," said Schade.

Some are successful in institutions, and come to the teaching family before moving into society.

Often they are referred to us by the Department of Social Services (DSS). Sometimes they've exhausted the less restrictive resources. They may have been too difficult care but continued to have difficulty in school or continued to commit crimes.

Schade added that some youth have entered the program at their parents' request, due to severe discipline problems.

The teaching family home is not a youth corrections center, however. There are no bars on the windows of the light blue ranch house and, instead of barbed wire, hardwoods surround the two acre yard.

Before becoming a teaching family home, the house was a private residence, according to Schade.

On the western end of the home are the two bedrooms of the three boys in the program. The trio share the bedrooms.

The spacious living room, dining room, and kitchen area at the center of the single story home are not separated by walls, making it easier to understand how family happenings, Tom said.

The girls' bedroom and bathroom is to the east of the living room, and currently houses one female teaching family program participant.

"The house has a capacity of six kids," said Tom. "Either two boys and four girls, or vice versa. Since more boys are in the program overall, we usually have more boys."

The youth are allowed to bring personal belongings to their temporary teaching home.

"We try to make it as much like their bedroom at home as possible," said Tom. "They also bring their own clothes."

Tom and Dawn have also made the teaching family site as homelike as possible.

At the east end of the home is an office that they use for record keeping, and what was formerly a large recreation area in the home just beyond the office and girls' quarters, now serves as the Valenti's private living space.

While the house appears to be a regular home essentially, its inhabitants behave as family as well, even though most of the teaching family program youth stay from nine months to a year, according to Tom.

Though only in the home one week, one of the teaching family...

Family teachers Tom and Dawn Valenti, enjoying the outdoors with their son, Isaac, try to impress positive behavior skills on youth at the Indian River Teaching Family Home. For Tom and Dawn, being a family teacher is more than a full time job, it's a lifestyle, according to teaching family consultant John Schade.

In the future, Tom said that watching television with the Valenti's infant son, Mitchell. Their five year old son Isaac also mixes in with his "adopted" siblings.

"The family specialist will work with goals for the parents," Tom said. "It will help them improve their skills, so the system the child comes back, it will be a more successful situation."

Youth don't always advance from stage to stage, as a current resident of the home admits.

"I was on homework band, but got knocked back for poor performance at school," he said. "That really ticked me off, so I work much harder now." The youth is now on merit, and hopes to be released this summer.

Though the teaching family youth are expected to follow strict guidelines, the system is more democratic than one might think.

"The kids feel they have ownership," Tom said. "The have some say in clean up, rules, and we discuss problems and family issues. All views and opinions are heard."

While on the youth recently helped rearrange the furniture in the living room, two of the teaching family home's participants act as "house managers."

"They have leadership responsibilities, making sure to keep the house clean and the rooms clutter free," Tom said.

The family also votes on what type of fundraising activities will participate in, and what the funds will go to.

At this summer's Folkfest, the family will be operating a "dunk tank" with proceeds going towards the purchase of bicycles for the youth.

"I think the program is effective," said Dawn. "The relationship we develop with the kids is good. We've had 25 total since we began last fall, and some of those kids still call us. They learn a lot of skills that will help them throughout life. It improves their self-esteem."

"We're like a family," said the oldest of the teaching family home's current residents, who turned 16 last week. "You get really attached to them. The other day, I even called Dawn 'Mom' by accident."

"My daddy bought me a bike. He takes me riding in the truck. He works at the Fisher and he works at the store and he's a fireman. He cooks for me and he helps me with homework. He's my dad." --Michelle Groleau, daughter of Paul Groleau of St. Jacques.

"He's always there when I need him. He protects me from myself. He works hard to support us. He always takes the time to help me with different things." --Michelle Groleau, daughter of Paul Groleau of St. Jacques.

"He does stuff with me and he's nice. He likes to talk things over with me and tries to understand everything I do. He's a friend and a father." --Ben Tatrow, son of Jeff Tatrow of Garden.

Although city council differed on opinions concerning the EDC vote, they unanimously voted to add Alan Housler to the Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

According to acting city attorney John Fiorano, state law mandates the city manager be a member of the DDA.

Housler will replace Paul Rhode, who recently resigned from the authority.

The city council also voted to approve the DDA purchase of two parcels located on South Houghton.

Wally Leggett, the director of the DDA, said one parcel would be developed into a 35 stall parking lot, with the second parcel, at the southwest corner of South Houghton and Deer Streets, to be used as commercial property or additional parking.

"The (Willard) Johnson property is $25,000 and the (Richard) Vaughan property is $10,000," Leggett said. "The purchase of the Johnson property is pending its environmental purity."

Leggett said the Johnson property is the site of a former service station and may still contain underground tanks.

According to Leggett, each parcel is 106 feet by 99 feet. Though the DDA approved the purchase at a recent meeting, authority members agreed that the purchase should be considered by the city as well.

Leggett also updated the council on the progress the DDA is making on the lakefront boardwalk.

Phase III of the project, which will extend the boardwalk to the edge of the city property is on hold until state biologists decide whether endangered plant species will be at risk if the boardwalk is continued.

In other action, city council heard Leggett's inquiry about enforcement of the city's blight laws.

Housler said that the city is "actively engaging in the enforcement," and that, in the past six weeks, 26 citations have been issued, some followed up by court cases.

The city manager added that the purchase of the property to be formed a committee of law enforcement, city, county, health department, and legal representatives to determine who is responsible for enforcement of the blight laws.

"Also, if the ordinance is deficient, we should get it shopped up," Housler said.

held public hearings on the proposed DDA amendment (which specifies the DDA's intent to bond to financially assist the city with infrastructure improvements), and the fiscal year 1993-1994 city budget.

During the three public hearings, only one question was asked of council members, as citizen Ted Rajchel asked whether a special assessment district would be created in the area of DDA-city infrastructure improvements.

"It was promised that there would be no special assessment districts when the DDA district was formed," Housler answered.

Continued from Page 1A The original site--the county industrial park property across from the army--was too wet for the circus to set up in, Marin said.

Though use of the Pines Park was approved by the board on county property close to US-2, with the airport parking lot receiving traffic from circusgoers.

"There was all that room in the back, where they should have been," Marin said. "In the future, we should let people know exactly what to do. They could have used our facilities back there."

manumitted voted to send letters to Public Transit and Medical Care Facility requesting a meeting with the Risk Management Committee.

Risk management representatives Keith White and Gary Demers approved the board, as their requests for meetings with the two county agencies have not received responses.

"Risk management is simply a watchdog group to help us with our liability insurance," Aldrich said.

Fish Report

By Sgt. John Walker (Ret.)

Would you believe it! It's the middle of June and the last couple of nights you have been able to leave your windows open at night it was so warm! Then in the morning you did not have to turn the furnace up to warm up the house! Could summer be here a week early? The rain is about to wash us away, but other than that the bugs and berries should be good this year.

Even with all the rain they are getting a few fish both on the lakes and in some of the trout streams. You do have to know where all the rain does not effect the water levels that much. In some places you could see trout on your bug dope, while in others for some reason the bugs are not too bad.

Remember that this is the time of year for the small animals to be in the woods and running across the roads. Also remember that it is illegal to pick up a small (baby) animal in the woods and bring it home for a pet. It seems like every year the Conservation Officers get a number of calls from people who rescued fawns from the dangers of the wild and brought them home to save them. Then when problems set in they call the Conservation Officer about them. Most of the time you are better off leaving them where they are, mother has not lost them.

This is a true story that falls under the heading, "It could never happen to me." Where I used to work you spent a lot of time out on the big lake. We had a lot of waterfowl hunting, both sport and commercial fishing, and tons of pleasure boaters. During the fall of the year we would team up with the Federal Officers from the Fish and Wildlife Service to check waterfowl hunters hunting the flight ducks out in the bays of the great lakes. For some reason, back in those days, the Federal Officers had a lot better boats than we had to work the great lakes with.

The officer who I worked with all the time had been in the Fish and Wildlife Service for a number of years and had been a State Game Warden before that. He had spent a lot of time out in boats in some weather and waves you would not believe. One day I went to meet him to go to work and he asked me, "Did you hear what happened to me the other day?" I had not so he told me this story. This officer and a couple of buddies had made plans to go out duck hunting. Now down there the way you duck hunt is with a boat and decoys. You set the decoys out, pull a canvas cover over the boat to hide it, then wait for the ducks to come in. They had done a little hunting and planned to move. They load up their decoys and turned the boat to move to a different location. As they turned all of a sudden a big wave came over the back of the boat and filled it full of water. The boat went under and only the hunters and the decoys were floating on the surface. They could not find any life vest and were in their heavy hunting clothes, so thinking quickly they forced a number of duck decoys up under their hunting coats to help keep them floating. When they tried to swim to shore they found that the winds were now blowing off shore so strong they could not make any headway trying to reach the beach. They had been out floating in the water for a real long time now and it is a long way to the shore on the other side of the lake.

In a cabin on the beach was a party watching TV. He later told the officer that for some reason he felt he should get up and use his field glasses to look out onto the lake. He had a good set that he used to watch the waterfowl. As he swept the lake looking at the now real rough weather and waves, all of a sudden he observed some people out bobbing around in the water! He could not believe his eyes! After he doubled checked he called for help and the hunters were rescued. This is the only time I can remember this friend telling me anything about this experience, but you better believe that he had a better respect for the powers of nature and now did believe it could happen to him.

P.S. The boat was later recovered on the beach on the other side of the lake.

"Every year we get reports of individuals impersonating IRS employees," said Cornelius Jackson, Inspector-in-Charge of the IRS Internal Security Division in Detroit. "The motive is usually financial gains."

The impostors attempt to harass people or collect money for what they say are unpaid taxes. Every IRS employee who makes contact with the public is required to carry distinctive identification and must show this when conducting official business. "Generally, people who owe money to the IRS will receive written notification before being contacted in person," Jackson said. He also emphasized that individuals should always ask to see credentials of anyone claiming to represent the IRS.

Studio Gallery is open

The Studio Gallery is opening its 1993 season with a "Birds in Arts and Crafts" Show. Featured are the works of several artists who have chosen this theme for their artwork - among them Carol Stoll and Bill Rohring.

New shows can be expected throughout the summer, which will feature themes drawn from the various areas of the participating artists' expertise.

The next few weeks will find new items coming into the Gallery. Included in the arts and crafts are paintings, carvings (soapstone, bone, and wooden), notepaper, stained glass, needlework, sewing, collages, jewelry, baskets, and much more.

Artists wishing to add their work to the Gallery displays must first have their work juried (call Carol Stoll at 341-5916).

In June, the Gallery will be open Thursdays through Saturdays; July and August will see a full schedule from Tuesdays through Saturdays. The Gallery will be closed on Mondays except by appointment.

The Studio Gallery will be closed also the Saturdays of July 3 and July 10 to coincide with the Art Fair held in the Marina and the Manistique Folkfest.

The Studio Gallery is located in the lower level of the Shadow Box on Cedar Street. Open hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Gallery is staffed by volunteers. Naturally, as in most organizations, more volunteers could always be used. For any additional information or for appointments on Mondays, please call Jim Hatfield at 341-8035.

LMAS Hospice is accepting patients

by Maryann Kern

Schoolcraft Area / LMAS Hospice is now accepting patients into this special health care option. During the Middle Ages, hospice was a shelter for travelers on a difficult journey. It offered food, warmth, and spiritual care. Today hospice signifies a way of giving care, comfort, and compassion to the terminally ill during their final passage in life.

Schoolcraft Area/LMAS Hospice is a non-profit local organization that is funded by personal contributions and memorial gifts.

All services are available to those in need regardless of their ability to pay. No one will be turned away.

LMAS serves the clinical needs of hospice patients and families by providing licensed and certified health care. In conjunction with LMAS, the community based Schoolcraft Area Hospice Advisory Board guides and funds the Volunteer and Bereavement Programs available to patients and their families.

A Hospice Care Team consists of the patient's own physician, the hospice physician, clergy, nurses, personal care and homemaker services by home health aides, social worker visits, physical, occupational, and speech therapy, spiritual counseling, and bereavement care. Trained volunteers are also available who can assist a family or patient in a variety of ways. A patient or family member may request a volunteer to provide companionship, assistance in home-making tasks, or respite care. Volunteers are also available to run errands, look after children, or give the primary caretaker a much needed rest. Bereavement counseling and support are also provided to the family after the death of their loved one.

The goal of Schoolcraft Area/LMAS Hospice is to assist the patient and family to live as fully and joyfully as possible. Death is not denied, but life is affirmed and celebrated in a supportive and caring community.

For more information regarding the services offered by Schoolcraft Area/LMAS Hospice or to inquire about becoming a volunteer, call Maryann Kern, Supportive Services Director at 341-6951.

As he and his companion took turns driving, they exchanged the fur garments so the driver would be warm.

Information on Felix Le-Brasseur's sentence is unknown. However, because of Hike's previous record of involvement with moonshine, the courts decided he needed a harsh punishment. He was first sent to Marquette, then Sault Ste. Marie, MI where the trial was held.

Hike's two year and nine month stay at Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary in Kansas was productive. Upon arrival, Hike became concerned with the large rat population at the prison. Using his many years experience as a trapper, he began to set up a rat-trap line.

Hike assumed the position of supervisor of rat traps, and involved fellow inmates by allowing them to check the traps on the line. During this time, he also became acquainted with the notorious gangster Al Capone, who was also spending time at the prison.
