Naming Of Plane For Mitchell Recalls His Feud With Army

Fans Demand Lombard's Last Picture

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6—The last picture made by Carole Lombard will be released, of course, just as were Will Rogers' "Steamboat Bill" and Jean Harlow's "Sarotoga" after the deaths of those stars. Not only are theater men and fans making impatient inquiries about the recently completed "To Be Or Not To Be," but there's a revival of old Lombard films for strictly morbid interests.

Two changes have been made in the new movie—the addition of a special dedication to the dead actress, and the deletion of a line of dialog in which she inquired: "What can happen in a plane?"

Disney Digs

Five artists on the Disney lot now are employed exclusively on the designing of war insignia. About 125 military trademarks have been finished—for everybody from the Free French to the Tiger Squadron patrolling the Burma Road, and more than 300 requests remain to be filled.

Almost every sea, air and land unit of our forces seems to want a sassy insignia, and the hardest job of Disney's designers is to reduce the complicated requests to something simple. For instance, one outfit asked for a mosquito sitting on the back of an eagle in flight and firing a machine gun at a fleeing buzzard wearing the Nazi emblem. Try putting all that on a two-inch circle of felt!

The more critical attention turned on "Suspicion"—with highest praise for the performance of Joan Fontaine and for most of the picture—the madder Alfred Hitchcock gets. The director agrees with the critics that the conclusion is unsatisfactory, and his annoyance is with the studio which insisted on the happy ending for the picture. He originally filmed it with the husband murdering the wife, but RKO decided on the less logical ending because it was feared that fans wouldn't accept Cary Grant as a killer.

Boyer to Boss

Charles Boyer, whom nobody had suspected of having executive ambition, has signed a producer-contractor contract with Universal and expects to boss not only his own pictures, but others in which he will not appear. . . . After his next film at Columbia, Bill Holden goes into the Army.

It's likely Clark Gable will go on a Defense Bond tour soon, flying all the way. . . . The odds are growing against an immediate marriage of Orson Welles and Dolores Del Rio. . . . They're saying that even if the Japanese suc-

Marquette Winter Queen

MISS BEVERLY BROWN

Miss Beverly Brown, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ian Brown, 203 East Michigan street, will be crowned winter queen of Marquette in the Palestra tonight. She will succeed Miss Shirley Johnson, 1941 queen, who with Miss Marie Markert, of Stambaugh, Michigan winter queen, will participate in the coronation. Other highlights of the fourth annual Marquette carnival program in the Palestra tonight will be a gala ice revue of 18 acts and induction of the U. P. Wildcatters, a Navy aviation cadet squadron composed of Upper Peninsula youths, ceeded in invading California they'd never get into the studios under the present iron-clad rules against visitors.

The Hays Office seems to be getting a little sensitive about the ribbings it used to take good-naturedly. In "Whispering Ghosts" Brenda Joyce and Milton Berle mistake John Carradine for a ghost until she observes: "That's just a man—he's in his underwear." And Berle whispers, "Well, he'd have to be wearing something. Do you want the Hays Office after us?" The censors killed the scene.

How To Get Rid Of Static—"N" Everything!

CLINTON, Okla.—(AP)—Bill Teasley, 20-year-old farm youth, thought an electric dynamite cap he found was a radio condenser and tried to connect it to his automobile set to cut down static. Hospital attendants said he would recover from burns and cuts about the face and hands.

Tawdry Business Before Fall Of Carol's Country

By James E. Helbert

AS dissipated as the circles under King Carol's eyes, as treacherous as the Iron Guard and as flimsy as a Nazi reason for executing 100 Poles, such was the Bucharest described in R. G. Waddock's "Athens Palace" (McBride: $2.75), an eye-witness account of how Mad Adolf New-Ordered Rumania to fall flat on its face.

E. Phillips Oppenheim in his pipe-dreamed days never conceived a more fantastic setting and set of people than those who moved, or crawled, about Bucharest's grand hotel from the fall of France to what we now cautiously call the rise of Russia.

The hotel was the spy headquarters of Europe, the place where all the saints and sinners of the continent gathered to listen at each other's keyholes. Everyone was there, from the ancient Excellencies of Bucharest to members of the British legation to the German military mission (charming fellows, too) to Iron Guardists plotting to hand their country to the highest bidder.

Another solid reason for reading this book lies in its hard-boiled, professional account of just what went on in the Iron Guard during the hectic months when Carol was abdicating, Helen was returning and Michael was vowing allegiance. It also is valuable and interesting because it shows how Nazi missionaries work to convince all classes of society that life would follow as usual under Hitler. Here's one example:

"On this particular evening the society matrons were assured about the Nazi way of dealing with elegant women. . . . by a princess superbly dressed in something that spelled the Rue Cambon. This Serene Highness made no bones of the fact that, war or no war, her chief interest in life was clothes. Powdering her high patrician nose from a crested golden compact, she would say, with a trusting look at Nazi diplomats and journalists, 'I do hope that now we have Paris, I can buy at Chanel's and Molyneux with reichsmarks.'

"The Nazi diplomats and journalists would laugh and reply, 'Don't you know that for you to be able to buy at Chanel's and Molyneux with reichsmarks is one of the German war aims?'

It Turned Out To Be The Easiest Question

CLEVELAND—(AP)—A native of Yugoslavia, Mrs. Antonija Gnidovec, 59, wanted to become an American citizen. To test her knowledge of American ways Judge Paul Jones inquired who made a city's laws.

That stumped Mrs. Gnidovec. "Well," said Judge Jones, seeking to be helpful. "What does the city council do?"

"They get you jobs," said Mrs. Gnidovec.

And now she's a citizen.

WITH the embattled nations all crying for "planes, planes, and more planes," an increasing number of people in this country are paying more and more tribute to the man with whom this cry can be said to have originated—the late Gen. William (Billy) Mitchell.

Today this tribute gains added force from the action of J. H. Kindelberger, president of North American Aviation, in announcing that its powerful B-25 medium bomber would be named the Mitchell in honor of the man who predicted that this country's next war would be decided in the air and who, because of the impetuosity with which he voiced that opinion, was driven into exile and ultimately court-martialed.

To be sure, the court-martialing was not based directly upon the predictions. It was due to statements that constituted a breach of discipline as Gen. Mitchell, who had been reduced to the rank of colonel and sent off to a corner of Texas, admitted. Climax of Bitter Feud

As the climax of a feud which had developed between the flying general and the old order, represented by generals who had never flown and who were resentful of the growth of a military branch that might overshadow the older establishments, came a bitter statement in 1925 after the Shenandoah had crashed over Ohio with a loss of 14 lives and the PN-9-I had come down on a flight to Honolulu and drifted for 10 days before her crew of four were rescued.

"These accidents," declared Col. Mitchell—he had already been reduced to that rank—"are the direct result of incompetency, criminal negligence and almost treasonable administration of the national defense by the War and Navy departments."

"As a patriotic American citizen, I can stand by no longer and see these disgusting performances by the War and Navy departments at the expense of the lives of our people and the delusion of the American public."

Predicted Own Court-Martial

Fully aware that no commissioned officer can speak in that way, Col. Mitchell told his friends: "I'll probably be court-martialed, but I'm going to get the truth before the American people."

He was, and the court-martial found him guilty, suspending him from rank and command and ordering pay and allowances forfeited for five years. The next day Col. Mitchell resigned from the Army.

Col. Mitchell never won his fight for an independent air force, but so rapidly had public opinion changed—a big part of the change unquestionably was due to his continued outspoken writing and talking after his retirement—that only a month before he died in 1936 the Senate passed a bill that would have reinstated him as a retired officer in good standing. Now there is not one of the higher commanders in either the Army or the Navy who is not thoroughly air-minded. If there remained any before December, Pearl Harbor must have convinced them.

Gen. Mitchell, incidentally, was not the only prophet to be vindicated at Pearl Harbor. Less than a year ago Rear Admiral J. K. Taussig brought down on his head the official rebuke of his superiors by telling the Senate naval committee that this country was likely to be attacked by Japan.

He was urging passage of the naval expansion bill and reminded the Senators of the so-called Tanaka Memorial, a program for Japanese world conquest reputedly drawn up by Admiral Tanaka for Emperor Hirohito but branded by the Japanese as a Chinese forgery. Admiral Taussig wanted Guam fortified and the Philippine fortifications made impregnable to meet the threat of Japan. Admiral H. R. Stark as chief of naval operations promptly declared that Admiral Taussig was expressing his own and not the Navy's views and that the department's recommendations were not directed against any power.

Gen. Mitchell was right! The feeling that "Mitchell was right" is not based on his fight over Army policy so much as on the predictions he made as to the future of aviation and its role in future wars. He had returned from France, where he had headed the Army air men, to become a militant chief of the Army Air Service, convinced that other military weapons must be subordinated to the airplane. He claimed that the plane was superior to the battleship, and backed up his view by sinking an old battleship with startling dispatch. He made himself the idol of the air corps by personally leading its exploits, demonstrating that he would not send his men where he would not go himself. And after his retirement he talked and wrote in a manner that constantly ruffled his former superiors.

"The next war," he said, "will be an attack on the great centers of population. Once the power of initiative is seized by an air force, the opponent had better make peace."

"Air power is the greatest determining influence on future contests," he said on another occasion. "Our national defense must be designed to protect us, our homes, our means of livelihood and our institutions from outside aggression."

Foresaw Jap Treachery

He was always concerned about the Japanese threat. In both 1932 ADD NAMING OF PLANE—4C 42 and 1933, Mr. Kindelberger recalled, he foretold a surprise attack. "When Japan goes to war she gives no warning of an attack," Gen. Mitchell wrote in 1932. "She jumps on her adversary when he is at the greatest disadvantage and is ruthless in her methods. She gave no warning to the Chinese in 1894, nor when she attacked Russia at Port Arthur in 1905, nor when she attacked Korea, nor recently when she pounced on Manchuria. The best insurance against such a possibility in the future is to provide for a sensible, modernized national defense. It will cost no more than we are spending on it at present."

The following year he reminded his countrymen: "While many consider it debatable that Japan will make war against the United States, history shows that countries which feel their very existence menaced will seize a favorable opportunity to strike a powerful adversary. Japan never declares war before attacking. She would probably launch several simultaneous attacks against us. One would be against the Philippine Islands, which she could seize with a very small detachment of her total strength."

Americans favor law and order. Step up to the bar and tell the Judge what you know about these questions on law and courts.

1. What Federal court does the Constitution specifically provide for?
2. Into what two general divisions does law fall?
3. Everyone has heard of the writ of habeas corpus. What are the functions of a writ of mandamus and writ of prohibition?

4. Upon what code of law is most American law founded?
5. Can all Federal cases be appealed to the United States Supreme Court?

Even A Hen Oughta Have Some Privacy

TUCSON, Ariz.—(AP)—Gentlemen never walk in on a laying hen without knocking. It upsets her, Harry Embleton, University of Arizona poultry husbandman, confided. If he doesn't knock before entering a hen house, a wise poultryman says something to let the hens know he's there. Embleton has the men who work around the university poultry farm keep to the same type of clothing because any change in appearance is apt to startle a hen off her laying stride. The lighter breeds are more nervous than the darker ones, he added, but in the fall all hens are easily upset.

LUCILLE DAVIES Iron River

The Upper Peninsula winter carnival has been cancelled this season because of the war, but the fourth annual Marquette carnival ice revue, coronation and formal induction of a U. S. Navy flight squadron of Peninsula aviation cadets to be held at the Palestra tonight will have all the flavor and atmosphere of a 100 per cent Northern Michigan affair. In addition to the Navy ceremony, in which interest is widespread throughout the Upper Peninsula, skating talent for the ice revue has been assembled by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Houghtens from several Peninsula communities. Heading the cast are Marjorie Davies, Iron River's "Miss Gals'way," and Pat Kazda, Iron Mountain's spinning marvel. And to mention a few more—The Hanna girls from Baraga, Darlene and Betty; Jon Flanagan, from Escanaba; Lucille Davies from Iron River; Jimmy Smith, Lester Gull and Freddy Reed from Baraga; Marquette's own little five-year-old Karen Olson, a skating marvel, and Jane Setterberg and Joe Scott, Jr., of Iron Mountain.

Ishpeming Topples Graveraet, 31-23; Pierce Beats Trenary, 36-32

Hematites Lead, 17-9, At Halftime

Dick Keskey, veteran Graveraet forward, played a whirlwind game last night to take high scoring honors but Ishpeming's better-balanced power provided the visiting Hematites with a 31 to 23 triumph, their second over Marquette this season.

Keskey scored 14 of the Redmen's 23 points, and only one other field goal was made besides the five Dick collected. Leonard Brumm, guard, scored that one.

On the other hand, the Hematites coupled widespread scoring strength with a near-airtight defense to best the fighting Redmen. The game was rough to say the least. Thirty-four fouls were called, Marquette being tabbed for 18 of them.

Four Get Four Personals Bernard Chapman and Lloyd Vadnais, of the Graveraet forces, made early trips to the showers via the personal foul route, and Hamre and Gagliardi did likewise for Ishpeming.

Ishpeming ran up a 17-9 lead at halftime. The Redmen woke up long enough to come within four points of the visitors, 21-17, by the end of the third quarter but it was to no avail.

The Hematites had matters well under control and closed up shop for the evening with a 10-point spree in the finale, which is lots of points for a Hematite team.

Graveraet will play at Menominee Saturday night. The team will leave by bus Saturday morning.

Buck's fortunes of last season, when he won five games, were expected to result in a liberal whack off his salary figure, undisclosed by him but reported to be $37,500, second only to the $53,000 ear-marked for Hank Greenberg.

"They can cut all they please," said Newsom, "and maybe they can look for some pitchers, too."

Asked what he'd do if he decided to quit baseball, Bobo replied that he'd probably "stay here and run my grill."

Fort Brady Bows, 59-22, To Wildcats

SAULT STE. MARIE, Feb. 6.—The Northern Michigan College Wildcats registered their twelfth victory of the season here tonight at the expense of the Fort Brady soldier quintet. The score was 59-22. Northern beat the soldier five, 71-29, in Marquette early in the season.

Eddie Ols and Harold Anderson scored 14 and 13 points, respectively, to set the pace for Coach C. B. Hedgcock's formidable Wildcats cagers who have averaged 60 points a game in winning 12 and losing two.

Fort Brady put up only a slightly tougher game on its own floor than it did earlier at Marquette. Oliver, guard, was the shining light for the losers, dipping in eight points to the Chauncey St. Germain and Henry Lindeman, Northern, for third high individual scoring honors.

The Wildcats started slowly, gaining a 23-14 edge at halftime, but moved into high gear for the last 20 minutes of action and pulled away from Fort Brady without any difficulty.

Eleven Wildcats saw action and nine of them broke into the scoring column.

Box score: Northern FG F FM FT Tot. Fort Brady FG F FM FT Tot.

Anderson, St. Germain, Lindeman, Williams, Ols, Gorman, DeSantis, Cardew, Hampton

Fort Brady—Gaff, Goff, Brian, Carro, Williams, Oliver, Plietta, Richards, Bercher

Score at the half: Northern, 23; Fort Brady, 14.

Rehearses All Shots Hoppe toured, gave exhibitions and improved during the ensuing nine years. When he returned from his Paris victory, he met George Sutton for the biggest prize of his career, $7,500. More than 4,000 persons watched Hoppe win, 500 to 391.

Hoppe is financially set, gives only few lessons (at $10 an hour) and spends most of his time in Army camps and drumming up billiards on college campuses. His next tour will take him to California.

For one practically reared in that smoky landmark of the American frontier, the rugged, old pool hall, Hoppe shows surprising restraint.

He calls himself a steady drinker — one cocktail a month, augmented in recent years by an occasional brew. He smokes lightly, sleeps sufficiently, still does 15 minutes of setting up gyrations every morning.

Before tournaments he practices three to four hours a day by himself, rehearsing every conceivable shot.

Best of Young Players Hoppe calls Arthur Rubin, 37, and Johnny Fitzpatrick, 38, the best of the youngsters. When he pointed out that was hardly young by Hoppe standards, he smiled.

"Kids are interested in baseball and football today. They can't go in a billiard parlor until they are 18. The game is hard work, and youngsters don't like to work too hard."

"We are staging intercollegiate tournament and Army camp competition. Speaking of young players, Johnny Miller, of Wisconsin, was the best collegian I ever saw but he got married and dropped the game."

"Wayne Stilly, of Michigan, is very promising, and they tell me Dick Wakefield, the youngster who quit school to play with the Detroit Tigers, is a good one."

Hoppe speaks lovingly of the men who usually trail him in tournament play. He calls Charley Petersen the finest trick shot artist, Jake Schaeffer the best mass and short angle player. Joe Chamaco, he says, has the greatest stroke and Jay Bozeman the best style.

And Hoppe? "Oh, I just play all the shots," he says, quite seriously.

Big Ten May Be Forced To Change 3-Year Rule ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 6.—P—Legally speaking, Michigan cannot play its scheduled football game with Harvard next fall, now that the Ivy league has approved freshman players—but don't count the contest off yet.

Herbert O. Crisler, Wolverine athletic director, pointed out today that the Big Ten has a rule which prohibits any conference member from meeting a school where first-year men compete.

"But don't worry yet about our game with Harvard next fall," Crisler advised. "I'll undoubtedly be played."

Most Michigan coaches feel that the Big Ten will be forced to make adjustments similar to that taken by Harvard, Yale and Princeton.

Another matter that will have to be clarified is the starting date of football practice. The three eastern schools have agreed to begin practice "on any date," while conference schools at the present time do not start until September 10.

Big Ten directors will meet in Chicago early in March to clarify the whole muddled sports picture.

Slalom Club Skiers Go To Munising At least 50 members of the Marquette Slalom club are expected to go to Munising tomorrow afternoon to practice on Munising's winter sports area. The club will not be represented Sunday at the Michigan Tech meet, which is strictly an intercollegiate competition.

All members interested in participating in tomorrow's event are requested to register at the Sportsmen's Store not later than 6 tonight. Members are also requested to meet the bus promptly tomorrow noon, when it will leave from the Clifton hotel.

Many Marquette skiers planning to enter the Central association slalom meet to be held at LaCrosse, Wis., are anxious to take advantage of the Munising snow. Last Sunday also the Slalom club skiers practiced at Munising.

The slalom club is planning an entertainment and movies for the public some time in the near future.

FORDSON JUNIOR WINS DETROIT, Feb. 6.—P—Fordson Junior college registered its second triumph of the season over Jackson Junior college, 39 to 33, here tonight in a loosely-played Michigan Junior College conference basketball game. Only seven fouls were called in the contest. It was Fordson's third conference win against eight defeats.

Wind Lifts Tokle's Prone Body Like Wing of Plane

Torgor Tokle power dives 263 feet over Olympian hill in Snoqualmie Bowl to win Seattle ski club's open jumping tournament.

By BURTON BENJAMIN NEA Service Correspondent

MOROTON, Conn., Feb. 6.—The N setting was perfect. A simple wooden house faced the cove, and the reflection of the moon made the waters of Long Island sound sparkle. It was cold, bleak, almost desolate. The lights in the house were the only sign of civilization.

The young man in the green sweater and tweed pants answered the door. He was fair, blond, with deep blue eyes and the physical ruggedness of his country.

"This looks like a slice of Norway," he ventured.

"Yes," he said in his unmistakable Norwegian accent, "perhaps like the fjords at Trondheim."

It was in these surroundings so reminiscent of his homeland that he met the flying Norwegian whose ski jumping has made his name legend among winter sports followers. How does he do it?

Torgor Tokle is entered in the annual ski tournament to be held on Pine Mountain at Iron Mountain on Sunday, March 1. In that meet he will compete with several of the ablest riders in the country, including Alf Engen.

"You ski about 600 feet on the Iron," he points out, "crouching as you gain speed. The jumper must be in the air for 10 seconds, then, spring and kick your legs as you hit the takeoff. You must hit in the middle of the ski boot to get distance.

"If you kick too soon the skis tilt. If you kick too late, you're liable to do a somersault. You're going 65 to 70 miles an hour when you take off.

"The jump lifts you 65 to 70 feet in the air. I jump as high as I can for that means distance. In the air you lean forward in a floating position, almost horizontal. Your legs are together, arms twisting forward steadily like a swimmer. The wind lifts the prone body like the wing of an airplane.

"When you land, you must continue smoothly. No pawing for balance and, of course, no falls. If you fall, the jump is out and you lose."

Tokle becomes Tok-el Tokle (Tok-la although he has dropped that pronunciation for the American version—Tok-el) speaks of his art in the offhand manner you might describe the game of jacks.

Obviously jumping takes amazing coordination, timing, balance, power, stamina and a cool head. Tokle has them all. Experts call him the most powerful jumper this country has ever known. He has tremendous recoil and kick. His balance is superb. In 39 meets, he has won 35, fallen only twice.

Tokle came to the United States on Jan. 21, 1939. One of 11 children, his home was in Lokken Verk, 40 miles from Trondheim.

In Norway, he says, anybody who knows how to walk knows how to ski. He started at 3.

He began to jump when he was 6. At 9, he won a local tournament with a leap of 80 feet. He soared 130 feet when his tenth birthday.

Torgor won the Bear Mountain jump the day after he arrived, but his reputation really began when he tied Reidar Anderson, Norwegian champion, at 220 feet at Laconia, N. H., later that year.

Since then, five-foot, six-inch, 160-pound Tokle has been the guid-

John D. Pierce racked up its sixth victory of the season here tonight, downing a fighting Trenary quintet, 36-32. L. Latvala, Trenary forward, took high scoring honors with nine points. Ted Olson, forward, and Wil Tuominen, center, were high for Pierce with eight points each.

Pierce went into the lead in the opening quarter, 11-8, but the Jack Hebbis came back to close the gap to 18-17 at halftime. Pierce then outplayed the invaders in a close third quarter and put on the pressure in the final stanza to provide the margin of victory. Pierce went into an effective stalling game in the final minutes of the game to keep the ball away from the invaders.

Pierce's passing game showed great improvement.

Jim Mense, filling the shoes of Lloyd Rose, veteran guard who was out of the game because of illness, did a fine job both offensively and defensively.

Pierce will battle St. Paul five here next Friday.

MUNISING Has Ski Tourney February 15

MUNISING, Feb. 6.—Between 75 and 100 riders of the Central U. S. Ski association are expected to compete in the Munising ski club's seventh annual tournament Sunday, February 15, on the city playgrounds hill. Invitations were sent to 42 association member clubs.

Bruno Saari, Ishpeming's outstanding Class A rider, holds the present hill record of 164 feet, and that mark will be the target of the long distance "fliers" in the coming meet. Saari established the mark in last year's tourney.

Munising jumpers have participated in several Central tournaments this winter, and three will enter the national jumping championships in Duluth Sunday. Gordon Robare will compete in Class A, Edward Brisson in the B division and Walter (Guski) Alexander in Class C.

Defenders Ready For 'Chute Raid' On Singapore

Equipment Removed From Base

SINGAPORE, Feb. 6.—P—Some of the men, planes, ships and supplies have been removed from the Singapore naval base and from several airfields on the beleaguered island because they could not operate under Japanese shell fire, Lieut. Gen. A. E. Percival, commander of imperial land forces here, disclosed tonight at the end of a week of siege.

But he said firmly: "We will hold Singapore! There is no question about it."

"Just because we do not see so many of our aircraft overhead and our naval units about does not mean the air force and navy have abandoned Singapore," added General Percival.

Troops Patrol Island

"They have gone to places whence they can bomb Japanese bases just as effectively and build up our naval strength. The navy is continuing to do a lot of work around the island and Malayan shores under difficult circumstances."

General Percival's disclosure—some people in Singapore have known it for several days—came as British troops on the island against the threat of attempted parachute invasion and imperial batteries, laboring under enemy dive-bombing assaults, flung salvo after salvo across the Johore strait into Japanese troop concentrations on the Malayan mainland. He even spoke, a pillar of smoke rising from burning oil tanks to the north marked the site of the great Singapore naval base, a bastion that was 20 years in the building at a cost of tens of millions of pound sterling.

Isolated Troops Rescued

The navy's rescue of nearly 1,000 British troops who had been cut off in Malaya provided ample evidence of the heroic work British warships have been doing in Malayan waters. Larger vessels remained several miles offshore while launches and motorboats towed sampans and fishing boats through shallow water to beaches where they took on full loads then returned to the ships offshore.

With the first full week of the siege of Singapore running out, there still was no enemy effort to raise his grand assault, either frontally or with the parachute technique used in Crete.

Singapore, itself, four times raided from the air before 9 a. m., was defended not alone by its hot ground guns but by fighter pilots who arose to destroy one enemy plane and damage three others.

One British Plane Lost

Expect Parachute Invasion
(In London as well as Singapore there was concern at the prospect of a major attempt at parachute invasion and this, coupled with the possibility of surreptitious night landings from small boats, was considered one of the greatest menaces confronting the island fortress.

(Recent dispatches to London have emphasized the inability of European and even some Indian troops to distinguish between disguised Japanese troops from native Malaysians.)

(The Singapore raid appealed to all able-bodied European civilians to serve with the naval force in its endless patrol of the shore line in launches and other small craft.

(London informants expressed the belief that continued operations of British Hurricanes against the Japanese raiders would greatly encourage the Singapore garrison and population even though the withdrawal of all these planes might become necessary if the Japanese began a major bombardment of the island's airfields.)

Guard Against Sneak Attacks

Much of the day's defense program here on this beleaguered island was centered upon preparations against sneak attacks, not only by parachute but by small landing parties. Every green creek mouth along the north shore was under water; every beach area was made intimately familiar to the defenders.

The Australians, in particular, had been trained in advance in this work, and to carry it out effectively in the night time.

All commanding officers have been impressing upon their men the order of Sir Archibald Wavell, the Allied generalissimo, that the example of Tobruk be followed and that Singapore be held at any cost.

Woman Sues To Recover Money From Parents

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 6.—P—Mrs. Gertrude Dornbos filed a suit in Kent county circuit court today to recover $3,900 in currency hidden in a glass jar under a greenhouse on South Davidson road.

She claims the money represents her savings and those of her late husband, Gerrit, but that it is being kept from her by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dornbos, who own the greenhouse.

In her suit, the widow alleges she had saved $1,700 of the amount and her husband $1,600 before their marriage, with the remainder saved jointly after they were married.

Gerrit Dornbos died May 14, 1941, and since then, she alleges, his parents have refused to surrender the money.

Only one person in each family will have to apply for the stamp books. He will be required to sign an application stating the amount of sugar in his household. All supplies over two pounds a person will be considered hoarded sugar, Henderson said.

As a discouragement to dishonest reporting of family sugar supplies, the application will carry on its face the warning that false reports to the Government are punishable under the Federal criminal code with penalties up to $10,000 fine or 10 years imprisonment.

"It is expected that there will be relatively few cases of falsification in reporting the amount of sugar in the possession of any family," Henderson predicted in a formal statement.

Each book will contain 28 numbered stamps, each good for the purchase of a definite amount of sugar—probably 12 ounces—during a designated week. As sugar is purchased, the store keeper will tear out the proper stamp and paste it on a master card which he must turn in, when filled, to replenish his supplies for the following week.

The War Production Board, rather than the Office of Price Administration headed by Henderson, is charged with responsibility for seeing that sugar supplies are distributed throughout the country so that every store will have sugar when the rationing plan goes into effect.

Teachers To Issue Sugar Ration Books

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—P—The nation's public school teachers were given tonight the huge task of issuing sugar rationing books to every man, woman and child in the nation and were directed to crack down on hoarders by withholding the sweet from them until their supplies are used up.

Price administrator Leon Henderson announced details of the rationing program under which books containing stamps will be distributed entitling each individual to a strictly limited quantity of sugar—probably 12 ounces a week.

One Book To Each Family
When the 130,000,000 copies of "War Ration Book No. 1" are distributed "within a few weeks" persons who have built up hoards of sugar will have stamp torn from their book at the time of issuance, to prohibit purchases by them until stocks in their cupboards are exhausted.

Only one person in each family will have to apply for the stamp books. He will be required to sign an application stating the amount of sugar in his household. All supplies over two pounds a person will be considered hoarded sugar, Henderson said.

As a discouragement to dishonest reporting of family sugar supplies, the application will carry on its face the warning that false reports to the Government are punishable under the Federal criminal code with penalties up to $10,000 fine or 10 years imprisonment.

Japs Tighten Grip on Coast Of Borneo

BATAVIA, N. E. I., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Japanese have strengthened their hold on Borneo's eastern coast in the drive on Java by occupying Samarinda, 60 miles north of the wrecked oil port of Balikpapan, the Dutch high command announced today.

Samarinda is an oil "feeder point" for Balikpapan.

After two destructive air attacks on Soerabaja, big Allied naval base in eastern Java, Japanese planes today reconnoitered this island which apparently is next on their invasion program.

Scouting planes were sighted over the towns of Semarang, Magelang, Magetan, Solo and Tegay as Java's defenders girded for a possible parachute invasion attempt.

Survivors of the Balikpapan fight reaching here revealed that the invaders used parachute troops to take that port whose oil installations were blasted by the retreating Dutch.

Nazi Admission Intended To Pave Way for New Blow?

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Wide World War Analyst

Outgivings of Herr Goebbels, one-man brain trust of Nazi propaganda, are necessarily subject to suspicion. Any time he admits that there is discontented murmuring in Germany, look for his real motives.

The Goebbels admission that there is grumbling over the reverses in Russia and the lack of food and fuel must be scanned in that light. His aim may be to stir public sentiment in the Allied camp for a negotiated peace or to pave the way for the next Nazi offensive blow.

Any development that impeded prompt execution of the Allied all-out war program would be grist for Hitler's mill. Goebbels' hints of wobbling German morale would be dangerous if they led to public apathy over the war effort in the Allied camp due to a feeling that Germany was cracking-up internally anyhow.

With that said, there are elements in the Goebbels article which are worthy of close attention. As a whole it is nicely shaped to induce a degree of credence in well-informed Allied circles that there is some winter war ferment in Germany.

Doubt Control Can Be Broken
Americans of long residence in Germany who returned only months ago have told this writer they saw only two possibilities that could induce any significant anti-war or anti-Nazi outbreak—military defeats and near famine food conditions.

The same informants doubted, however, that the iron-handed Nazi control of the home front could be broken through even if those two prime requisites were present to induce its ingenuously peevish people to reverse in Russia and because they are short of coal and potatoes, Hitler's own propaganda minister, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, admitted today in the Nazi journal das Reich.

He explained it by saying the people were "overworked and irritable."

"It doesn't matter whether one wants to curse things occasionally," Goebbels wrote. "The reasons may be varied. One complains of the cold, another of the shortage of potatoes or coal, a third about the over-crowded trains, a fourth about the eastern front, a fifth about the war in Africa. All this really is not bad because we all are overworked and irritable."

(In Washington, the Agriculture department said that early fall frosts had cut German potato production 200,000,000 bushels and that the Nazis faced a possible rationing of this food, one of the principal items of their diet.)

"Must Be Told Of Strength"
Goebbels returned to his familiar theme that Germany is a "young nation," saying that because of this the people had not developed full confidence in the Nazi doctrines.

"On the battlefield we always have been a great people," he wrote "in politics, however, we frequently have failed. We Germans must always be reminded of this strength again and again, because we don't feel sure of ourselves on the field of political decisions."

Goebbels said it was easy for the Germans to believe in victory during the Battle of France when special announcements told of "victories every three hours."

"When the time comes that the conquered areas have to be held and defended, and when the leader of the state and the army are faced with constantly new difficulties, then deportment and morale are necessary."

British Army To Make Stand Near Tobruk

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 6.—(AP)—British forces pushed back to the rugged western approaches to Tobruk will make a stand short of that battered port "from a line which can be defended and defended successfully," highly-placed British informants declared confidently tonight.

Indications that General Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck's eighth army already was organizing positions for such a stand were seen in today's Middle East communiqué which reported no change in the situation yesterday.

Thus it was apparent that imperial forces were holding their ground against the Axis sweep some 50 to 60 miles west of Tobruk, where a seven-month siege of British defenders was lifted last December 10.

Aguinaldo Jap 'Quisling' On Luzon, Belief

By Richard L. Turner

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—P—Old Emilio Aguinaldo, leader of the 1899 revolt against American occupation of the Philippines, has apparently been installed, the Army said today, as a sort of "Philippines Quisling" by the Japanese.

The aged "general," a commune-que said, broadcast from Manila an address to General Douglas MacArthur to surrender to the Japs. This advice was of course ignored by MacArthur.

It was one of many similar radio speeches with which MacArthur and his troops have been "bombarded" recently. More pamphlets have been dropped by Japanese aviators, too, the latest telling Filipino soldiers of MacArthur's Army that American money was growing worthless, and saying they were exposing their lives without remuneration.

Philippines Amused

The only response of the troops, MacArthur informed the War department, was one of "considerable amusement."

These developments were announced in the Army's second communiqué of the day. The first said that more Japanese reinforcements had been landed on Bataan from nine troop ships, and that the guns of Corregidor and other island fortifications at the mouth of Manila bay had destroyed Japanese gun emplacements, installed presumably for the purpose of shelling the American-held islands.

The Army also announced that the steamship Cynthia Olsen, under charter of the War department, had been given up for lost. She had not been heard from since Dec. 7, when she radioed that a Japanese submarine was attacking, 1,200 miles west of Seattle. Thirty-five men are missing.

United Council Maps Strategy
In Washington, meanwhile, it was announced that the United States and Britain had taken steps toward further unity in prosecuting the war by setting up a "combined chiefs of staff" group, charged with coordinating production and distribution of supplies and other war efforts, and collaborating fully with other United Nations.

The new group will have two principal subdivisions, one of United States chiefs of staff, the other of British military and naval officials representing in Washington.

The United States group includes Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations; General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff; Admiral E. J. King, fleet commander-in-chief, and Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of Army Air Forces.

The British chiefs of staff are represented in Washington by Field Marshal Sir John Dill, until recently chief of the imperial general staff; Admiral Sir Charles Little, Lieut. Gen. Sir Colville Wemyss and Air Marshal A. T. Harris.

Aguinaldo Hero To Filipinos
Aguinaldo was the leader of irremovable Philippine insurgents who fought against American occupation of the islands immediately after they had been wrested from the Spanish. The rebellion ended with his capture by a scout detail led by General Frederick Funston.

Reds Meeting Stiffer Nazi Resistance

By Eddy Gilmore

MOSCOW, Feb. 6.—P—The Red army, trying to widen three wedges imperiling Germany's long winter line, tonight admittedly was meeting increasing Nazi resistance, strengthened by air-borne reinforcements.

Front dispatches spoke for the first time in weeks of battles in which the Russians were outnumbered, but nevertheless said the Reds were hacking their way westward after inflicting nearly 10,000 casualties on the invaders in a three-day period ending Thursday night.

(Rzhev, important German defense junction north of Vyazma on the north-central front, was under Russian siege from three sides with German food and munition stocks running low, said a Free French agency dispatch from Stockholm to London.)

Gets Defense Job

Mayris Chaney (above), dancer protégée of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, has been named head of children's activities in the physical fitness division of the Office of Civilian Defense at $4,600 a year.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—P—In an upsurge of revolt against the appointment of Actor Melvyn Douglas and Mrs. Roosevelt's dancer-protégée to high civilian defense posts, the House voted, 88 to 80, today to forbid use of civilian defense funds for "instructions in physical fitness by dancers, fan dancing, street shows, theatrical performances or other public entertainment."

During an angry discussion that preceded the vote, Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.) suggested that a "bundled for Eleanor" movement be started in tribute to Mrs. Roosevelt's ability to get jobs for her friends. He referred to Mayris Chaney, dancer, and others.

Equally severe were the representatives in dealing with Donald Duck. By a vote of 78 to 63, the House eliminated an $80,000 allotment to pay the cost of producing a Walt Disney film in which Donald demonstrates the problems—and the benefits—of the income tax.

Action Not Final
The two actions, both tentative and taken on teller votes, came in consideration of a $160,590,611 deficiency appropriations bill containing $100,000,000 for civilian defense. Toward the end of the day, leaders had the whole bill put over until Monday to give Administration forces a chance to rally support behind the controversial provisions; all of which are subject to a later roll call vote.

From both the Republican and Democratic sides of the House came cries — bitter, sarcastic, acrimonious — that the country needed fewer entertainers and more bombers, and that "parasites and leeches" should be stricken from the payroll.

In short, sharp words, member after member pointed to the appropriations committee's report that "enemy air raids on the continental United States are to be expected," and then asked bluntly what actors and dancers could do to eliminate the danger.

The omnibus supply bill carried fresh funds for a dozen Federal bureaus, departments and agencies, including $100,000,000 to pay for civilian defense expenditures already authorized for fire-fighting equipment, medical supplies, facilities to manufacture gas masks and personnel salaries.

The OCD personnel, it was disclosed this week, includes Douglas as head of an arts council, to be paid at the rate of $8,000 a year but only while actually working, and Miss Chaney, who will receive $4,600 a year as head of children's activities in the physical fitness division.

No Allied Losses; Foes' Base Raided

By Daniel De Luce

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 6.—(AP)—In a swift and effective shift from offense to defense the American volunteer group and its RAF teammates broke up a chain of vicious Japanese raids on this Burma road port today by destroying at least 10 and probably 20 raiders, up to two-thirds of the attacking force.

Their victory came in daylight, after Rangoon had been pounded all night by waves of enemy raiders in the third consecutive overnight attack. The last raid, at 9:50 a. m., was the seventh wave, involving 30 enemy planes, and when it was over this was the official score for the defenders:

American volunteer group: 7 certainly shot down; 5 probably. RAF: 3 certainly shot down, 5 probably.

There were no Allied losses.

Enemy Base Pounded
The accomplishment was the more remarkable because it followed by 24 hours a hard raid by two waves of the RAF's Blenheim bombers, escorted by American fighters, on the enemy's Salween river base of Paan, in lower Burma, from which the Japanese are trying to drive toward the Burma road.

One blond San Antonio fighter pilot on coming back from this raid reported: "Boy! They've Coventry-ized it!" and said he saw three sticks of bombs explode simultaneously in the center of the village.

By the time the last Blenheim in the second wave had unloaded, he added, "there was not much of anything standing."

Again—as on every other day this week — no Japanese fighters appeared to fend off the RAF bombers, and the Texan wondered: "Does this mean the enemy is running short of fighters?"

Dozens of Japanese aircraft were over Rangoon in the moonlight last night, however—at least 44 in the first six waves. The RAF drove off one night attack and the bombers had to jettison their cargoes, one possibly being destroyed. Some of the bombs started on an airdrome north of Rangoon, but they were put out quickly and a communiqué said there was no damage. There were other fires in a suburban residential district.

Ground Troops Stand Firm
The British and Burmese troops fighting the invaders on the Salween front 100 miles east of Rangoon appeared to stand firm on their orders "to fight the Japanese on every inch of our soil, to the last spot and, if necessary, to the last man."

They were not so hard pressed today, possibly as a result of the RAF raid on Paan, on the east bank of the river. Some movement of the enemy in this area was noticed and was brought under quick British shellfire.

British-held Martaban, at the mouth of the Salween, where it flows into the broad Gulf of Martaban, was under spasmodic Japanese cannon fire, but a communiqué said there were no casualties or damage.

The defending forces were told bluntly, however, by Maung Aye, Burma's home minister, that "any further withdrawal will be dangerous" and that "the present situation is very serious."

Women Crushed to Death In Their Own Homes
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—P—Two women were crushed to death in their own homes under tons of mud today as sliding hillsides pushed their houses off the foundations and brought the buildings toppling down with an ear-splitting crash.

Two other deaths were caused by drownings, blamed on recent torrential northern California rains. At Healdsburg, in Sonoma county, an aged man was drowned as the racing Russian river poured through outskirts of the town. A woman drowned in flooded waters near Chico.

Other floods virtually isolated Napa and half a dozen other San Francisco bay communities. Police and state guardsmen evacuated hundreds of families as the entire southern end of Napa was inundated.

Mrs. Dora Kammer was trapped in her San Francisco home by a river of mud, 20 feet high, which crushed and buried the building.

The mud struck with such force that her brother-in-law, Thomas Hill, 65, was hurled out through a kitchen window and a heavy wood splinter driven through his leg.

Across San Francisco bay in Fairfax, 17-year-old Muriel Swanfeld was crushed as her home slipped from its foundation and collapsed.

Coronation, Ice Revue, Navy Induction Feature Palestra Program Tonight

18 Skating Acts Spice Carnival

A near-capacity audience will assemble at the Palestra tonight for the coronation and festivities connected with the fourth annual Marquette winter carnival, which promises to be fully as spectacular as the Upper Peninsula carnival presented there last season. The program will begin at 8:15.

Several things have combined to give the city carnival an Upper Peninsula flavor. Figure skating talent from several parts of the Peninsula has been recruited; several winter queens will be here to share honors with Miss Beverly Brown, lovely Marquette queen; Miss Marie Markert, former Queen of the North and Michigan winter queen, will participate, and, last but by no means least, young men from many communities in the Peninsula will be formally inducted into the United States Navy tonight as members of a new Naval aviation cadet squadron.

Unusual Event
The induction ceremony, a formal Naval function, will be well worth seeing. Twenty-five young men, including nine from Marquette, will leave civilian life and start to become fliers in the rapidly growing Navy air corps.

Navy officers from Chicago and the Naval Aviation Selection Board will officiate in the ceremony, which will be broadcast over an Upper Peninsula hookup consisting of five Peninsula radio stations. Persons unable to attend the carnival program at the Palestra will be able to hear the induction via radio.

But the induction—grand and stirring as it is—is only one part of the program of entertainment planned for the climatic night of the city's winter carnival.

Miss Beverly Brown, blue-eyed beauty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ian Brown, 203 East Michigan street, will be crowned Marquette winter queen by the 1941 queen, Miss Shirley Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin F. Johnson, Hewitt avenue, assisted by Queen Marie Markert.

Visiting Queen, Also
She will be attended by members of her court, the Misses Ruth Waisanen, Patricia Ann Power, Elizabeth Meymouth, Virginia L'Hullier and Betty Nadeau.

In addition to this bevy of beauties, queens from at least three other communities will participate.

The program will be opened with the presentation of the colors. In a darkened Palestra arena with the American flag conspicuously spotlighted, the entire cast and all spectators will sing the "Star Spangled Banner." The colors will be presented by the Richard M. Jopling post, American Legion, and Marquette Sea Scouts.

Following the coronation, 18 skating acts will be presented, the cast including Miss Marjorie Davies, of Iron River, known as "Miss Gateway," and Miss Marie Markert, Michigan winter queen, both of whom appeared in the U. P. winter carnival here last year.

Many Talented Performers
There are many talented performers on the program, as many or more than appeared last season. The young Hanna girls from Baraga, Darlene and Betty, have a new act. From Iron Mountain will come Pat Kazda, a spinning marvel, who shows promise of developing into another Roy Shpstadt, and little Miss Jane Setterberg and Joe Scott, Jr.

Other headline performers are Karen Olson, five-year-old daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Wesley "Wackey" Olson, of Marquette; Jon Flanagan, of Escanaba; Miss Lucille Davies, 13-year-old sister of Marjorie Davies; the Baraga trio, Jimmy Smith, Lester Gull and Fred Reed, and Bobby Consani, of Marquette.

Novelty numbers will be presented by the Escanaba Figure Skating club, and a "Good Neighbors" number will be given by members of the Negaunee Skating club, featuring Miss Elaine Hill, 1942 junior Upper Peninsula champion.

Miss Davies and Pat Kazda, who will appear in a double, won Upper Peninsula titles at the figure skating meet held in Negaunee last Sunday night.

"Anchors Aweigh"
There also are several group numbers, outstanding of which are "Keep 'Em Flying," by 16 talented young Marquette girls, the "Gay Nineties," by the Escanaba Skating club, ice "chariot" races and precision numbers by young girls under the direction of Miss Lillis Seitz.

The ice revue was organized and skaters trained under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Goran Houghens. The Naval induction will follow the ice revue, after which the entire assembly will sing "God Bless America." Following a baton twirling exhibition by Miss Marjorie Cavadeas, the recessional tunes—the stirring Navy song, "Anchors Aweigh"—will be sung.

Mattson, arrested by state police and charged with assaulting John Kolivisto in a lumber camp in Chocoma township on February 1, demanded an examination when arraigned yesterday before Judge John Siegel.

Unable to furnish $1,000 bond, he was committed to the county jail. Mattson has a prison record, police said.

U. P. Wildcat Cadets Join Naval Corps

Induction of 25 Upper Peninsula young men into the United States Navy as member of the U. P. Wildcat, Naval aviation cadet squadron, will feature the fourth annual Marquette winter carnival program in the Palestra tonight.

Through arrangements completed late yesterday afternoon, the formal induction program will be broadcast over an all-Upper Peninsula radio hookup, being relayed from WDMJ, the Mining Journal radio station, to WDRC at Escanaba, WJMS at Ironwood, WHDF at Calumet and WSOO in Sault Ste. Marie.

Lieut. Carl G. Olson, of the Naval air base at Glenview, Ill., who was instrumental in the organization of the squadron, in which the Peninsula youths will be trained as a group, will officiate.

Formed U. P. Unit
Several months ago, Lieut. Olson came to Marquette with Lieut. Commander Richard K. Gaines, of Chicago, to sound out the proposition of forming an Upper Peninsula unit. Sigurd O. Wilson, CPT flight instructor here, and Charles B. Hedgcock, CPT ground instructor, were consulted and both fell in line with the plan.

Lieut. Olson, who originated the plan of organizing squadrons at colleges and universities in the midwest, learned that CPT students at Northern Michigan College of Education and several others who had taken or were taking the secondary, cross-country and other advanced courses at the Laurium airport in the Copper Country, would provide an ample number of young men well-qualified for membership in the squadron.

With the cooperation of Phil Spear, Jr., president of the Marquette Winter Sports club, plans were made to hold the formal induction as part of Marquette's winter carnival.

It is part of a program which will include an 18-act ice revue.

Ensign Childs To Give Oath
Ensign Robert L. Childs, of the Naval Aviation Selection Board, who has assisted in the organization of the squadron, will give the men the oath of induction tonight. Others participating in the ceremony will be Ensign John M. Shaheen, of the Great Lakes, Ill., Naval Training station, and Lieut. Robert F. McLeod, former all-American football player at Dartmouth university, who recently won his wings in the U. S. Marine air corps. He completed the flight training course at Pensacola, Fla.

Charles B. Hedgcock, who has had charge of the CPT ground school here and who also has coached several members of the squadron as members of athletic teams at Northern Michigan college, will speak briefly before the induction.

The young men are scheduled to leave Thursday, February 12, to start training at the U. S. Naval Reserve base in Glenview, Ill. Upon completion of nine weeks of basic training at Glenview they will be sent to a ground school in Texas and then will take advanced flight instruction in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Biella, Kukuk In Group
The Marquette contingent include Norman E. Kukuk, Albert W. Nyquist, Robert F. Johnson, Roland M. Sandell, Howard Mott, Thomas J. Fagan, Albert John Murkala, Clinton Leo Goudreau and Blake Ford.

Among the others are Toivo J. Lauri, Rock; John K. Pellow, Negaunee; Ralph E. Hannula, Ishpeming; Albert Jokela, Negaunee; Robert P. Hupy, Gladstone; Ralph L. Gunville, Munising; Melvin M. Prichard, Onaway; Patrick Brennan, L'Anse, and Walter G. Biella, famous Ishpeming ski jumper.

They will receive U. P. Wildcat squadron insignias tonight from the winter queens. The insignias were designed by Mary Elizabeth Hedgcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hedgcock.

Men on Isle Royale Will Be Registered

LANSING, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Twelve men isolated on Isle Royale in the midst of Lake Superior will be registered for the draft on time if plans of the state selective service headquarters materialize.

Previously, the headquarters had expressed fear that registration material could not reach the island by February 12. An airplane is scheduled to leave Sunday or Monday from Houghton on a visit to the island and the headquarters received today the registration materials which must go on that plane if the deadline is to be met.

A spokesman said registration cards had been shipped out at once to George Bagley, national park service superintendent at Houghton, and arrangements made for a park service ranger on the island to act as registrar.

County and township planning committees are discovering so many unsuspected uses for tax-reverted lands that their interest is continuing after filing of formal sale or public use recommendations, the state conservation department's lands division reports. Similar recommendations regarding municipal reverted property made much earlier because municipal governments were quickly prepared for the work, have largely guided sales of tax-reverted city and village lots. State Oil Output Last Year Continued Decline
LANSING, Feb. 6—(AP)—The state conservation department reported today Michigan's natural gas production in 1941 reached a record level, but oil production continued its decline.

A summary showed production of 15,092,464,000 cubic feet of gas, a billion feet more than in 1940 and 37.7 per cent more than in 1939. Oil production was placed at 16,258,717 barrels, 3,500,000 less than in 1940 and about 30 per cent less than in 1939.

Children's Commission, Judges Reach Agreement
LANSING, Feb. 6—(AP)—The state crippled children commission and a committee of Michigan probate judges reported substantial agreement on commission policies after a conference here today. For several years, the two agencies have fought over legislation.

The commission declared the session was the first of a series designed to explain its policies and provide opportunity for complaints and explanations of regulations.

Probate Judge Clair R. Black, of Port Huron, president of the Probate Judges association, said the conference was "highly satisfactory and friendly."

City Goes On 'War Time' After Sunday

As the nation goes, so goes Marquette. Complying with an act of Congress, Marquette will go on "war time" officially at 2 a. m. Monday, Mayor Louis W. Biegler announced yesterday.

"All residents are reminded to advance their clocks and watches one hour before retiring Sunday night," the mayor said. "Certainly, we will comply and, in all probability, we will remain on 'war time' the year 'round for the duration of the war."

Meets With Favor
"I am sure that this move will be favored by the great majority of residents of Marquette, for it has been our aim for some time to coincide with the time adopted by the railroads. Marquette is advancing from Central Standard time to Central Daylight time, and the railroads are doing likewise. It will make for greater uniformity here and throughout the Upper Peninsula the entire year."

In announcing that Marquette would remain on Central Daylight the year 'round, he cleared up a point that has bothered some residents. There will be no "summer daylight" as customary from April to September, in addition to Central Daylight.

Clocks throughout the nation will be advanced to "war time" Monday, February 9. Official action was taken in some cities to comply with the Congressional measure, but Mayor Biegler said yesterday it would not be necessary for the city.

Vacations Necessity In Wartime

LANSING, Feb. 6—(AP)—The Michigan Commercial Secretaries association, representing managers of chambers of commerce and trade associations, today stood forth against any curtailment of Michigan's normal tourist business or methods to attract vacationists because of the war.

Hugh J. Gray, manager of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort association, declared he had the assurance of state and Federal officials that civilians should be encouraged to travel and take vacations next summer so long as troop and supply movements are not hampered.

Civilians Need Vacations
Other secretaries said there was a growing belief in many small communities that "to take a vacation is unpatriotic."

Gray said both England and Germany discovered that the civilian population needed vacations to maintain high war production and good morale.

As a result of that feeling, Gray asserted, the state tourist advertising fund and funds of tourist agencies would be concentrated in newspapers the central states "where we definitely know we get much of our tourist trade in past years." Little, if any, of the fund will be spent in national magazines, he said.

Asserting that "despite the tire situation there will be good resort business in Michigan," Gray warned resort operators they must provide means of entertaining vacationists who will be unwilling to use their automobiles more than a commission to take official action in the matter.

Sunrise, Sunset Table
"We will merely comply with the act," he said.

appreciably beyond their present range, for their increases in the price of food will be relatively small, and the wage dollar will be subjected to any great additional strain.

If there is to be any further upsurge in prices it will come, it now appears, as a result of a general marking up of the cost of labor. If the UAW workers got from General Motors the one-dollar a day increase they seek, it would at once be asked by all other workers engaged in war industry, and the demand would spread to other fields.

Opposition to placing a ceiling on wages for labor was based largely on the contention that if the cost of living could be kept down labor would have no justification for asking for more pay, and would not ask for it.

While the question is water over the dam Jay Haydon, writing in the Detroit News, gives an interesting summary of the relation of the automobile industry to armament last year, one that shows that in continued production of cars and in such commitments as it made to armament work it was doing what, and all, that was asked of it.

In October, 1940, the President wrote to Mr. MacCauley, president of Packard, "The expectation of a high level of productivity with which the automobile industry starts its 1941 season is gratifying."

But it was not until January, 1941, that the Ford company was first approached on the subject of mass production of bombers, and another month passed before a letter signifying "intent" to let a contract was received.

As late as August of last year, Mr. Haydon records, another group of executives was assured by Navy executives that the contract situation was "entirely satisfactory."

As for profits, Mr. Haydon succinctly remarks: "The irrefutable answer on profit is that corporate excess profits taxes range up to 73 per cent. After that the dividends of individual stockholders are taxed heavily."

Here is refutation of all the loose talk about the danger that a new crop of war millionaires is in the way of being created. There can be no such animal this time.

The relocation is being built in country of difficult terrain, with result that it is one of the most expensive jobs of the kind ever carried out in the state. The cost of surfacing will be a relatively small part of the cost of the whole.

The UAW is asking General Motors for a wage increase of one dollar a day. It is reported that the 10 cents an hour increase obtained in the last contract has been more than taken up by increases in the cost of living.

The price control law may fall short of what it might have been. But there is no doubt that it will serve to slow up increase in living costs. Because the President has obviously intervened to see that a lid is placed on farm prices much under the lid the members of Congress who were seeking votes from farm constituencies thought they were establishing, it is a better law than it bade fair to be.

The President was unable to secure defeat of the proposal to permit the Secretary of Agriculture to overrule the price administrator on farm prices, for which a parity of 110 was set. But the Secretary of Agriculture has proved a great disappointment to the farm bloc.

There is only one thing that worries us. There will be no vests. We will admit at once that vests are not very beautiful, but they seem indispensable. Without a vest, where do we accumulate pencils, fountain pens, keys, cigars, pipes, paper clips, rulers, small change, tobacco pouches, ticket stubs, rain checks, card cases, matches, rubber bands, half-lengths of chewing gum and all other vitally necessary paraphernalia of life in this complex age of ours?

So, bring on the Victory Suit.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Thirty Years Ago

Marquette Politics in Marquette county is more backward than is generally the case in the Upper Peninsula, but there are indications that it will soon begin to command attention.

The water was turned on at the new Carp river plant of the Cleveland-Cliffs company yesterday for the first time. Engineers, inspecting the entire pipe line and plant, which is worth more than a million dollars, were greatly pleased.

Although the council Monday evening paid no attention to agitation for a municipal rink, a number of skaters are determined to get some place to skate and at the first opportunity will organize a group to clear the ice for a rink.

Miss Anna Matthews entertained a number of her young friends Monday afternoon at her home, 216 Oak street.

Mrs. E. C. Cooley and daughter, Winifred, will entertain at their home on Main street Saturday afternoon.

John J. Wentala returned Tuesday from the automobile show in Chicago. While there he took over the Negaunee agency for the De-Tamble cars.

The fire department, on answering a call near the Negaunee mine yesterday, discovered a foreign woman trying to mail a letter to the "old country" in an alarm box.

E. J. Longyear and F. G. Jurek, of Minneapolis, were in Negaunee yesterday on business connected with their exploratory work near Palmer, Richmond township.

Miss Myrtle Mitchell returned yesterday from Chicago, where she attended the automobile show.

Spokesmen of the automobile industry who submitted themselves to a day-long questioning by newspaper men at Detroit brought to light a large number of facts that serve to correct the impression created by the Truman committee report.

It is to be presumed that President Roosevelt asked defense appropriations of Congress as rapidly as he felt they were needed and as extensively as he thought public opinion would permit.

What some of the critics of the automobile industry report to hold against that industry is that it did not know to better detail in June, 1940, what we all know now. Even that charge is without substance, for if the industry had learned it, by crystal ball or otherwise, it would have had to put in more hours than there are in a day convincing the rest of us.

Seven men in a Navy seaplane, on patrol duty protecting the Panama Canal, were forced down far at sea by motor trouble. They made a crash landing. One man was seriously injured. The others had to bail out constantly to keep the plane afloat. The radio was smashed. Navigation instruments were destroyed or lost overboard. So was almost all the water supply.

The men, realizing that only a miracle could save them, knelt on the wings of the tossing plane three times daily to pray. Between prayers they worked. Some of them improvised a condenser, from which they got less than a pint of fresh water daily. It wasn't much, but it kept them alive. For five and a half days they were held against the elements. The others had to bail out constantly to keep the plane afloat. The radio was smashed. Navigation instruments were destroyed or lost overboard. So was almost all the water supply.

It would be hard to find better proof that the Lord helps those who help themselves.—Chicago Tribune.

The only thing this country cannot afford is idleness.—Dr. Alvin H. Hansen, Harvard economist.

Cuba is a small country without resources, but the little we have we cheerfully place on the altar of liberty of men who are dying for liberty.—President Fulgencia Batista, of Cuba.

It is very hard to see how democracy can survive if there is discrimination among people because of their economic interest.—Arthur Warfield Hays, defending newspaper ownership of radio stations.

The League of Nations, which seemed so bold a step after the last war, will be paled indeed by what will be necessary after this war.—Arthur Sweetser, secretary of the League of Nations.

Echoes Of Historical Blunder

The political ineptitude of the Sage of the Bronx, the Hon. Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is so well known that there will be little surprise at his plea that only Democrats should be returned to Congress in the coming election.

But surely there are others in the Democratic high command, with keener memories and wiser heads who recall the effect of the famous appeal to the nation of President Woodrow Wilson on Oct. 24, 1918, in which he called for the election of a Democratic majority to both houses on the ground that the Republicans were pro-war, had been "anti-Administration," and that "the return of a Republican majority to either house of Congress would be interpreted on the other side of the water as a repudiation of my leadership."

The result of this appeal was, as Mr. Flynn appears conveniently to have ignored, almost as inappreciable as if they had come from the White House, because of the obvious indication that this high official in the Democratic organization is thinking exclusively in partisan terms. Mr. Flynn even had the effrontery to charge the Republicans with repudiating an agreement to adjourn politics for the duration of the war in the very same speech. In which he himself said in so many words that only Democrats are fit to be in Congress at present, and that only Democrats are sufficiently loyal to the country to be trustworthy in this great crisis.

This newspaper, beginning many months before Pearl Harbor, opposed the injection of partisanship into discussions of measures affecting America's relation to the World War. We criticized many Republicans for taking a narrowly partisan view. Since Pearl Harbor we have insisted more vigorously than ever that partisanship be dropped. But this imposes an obligation on Democrats as well as Republicans.

In reviving the Wilsonian tactics Mr. Flynn is fanning the flames of partisan and personal resentment and, in his own inimitable blundering way, is making the same mistake on the Democratic side that Mr. Clarence Budington Kelland made on the Republican side.

The criterion in the coming Congressional election should not be the narrowly partisan one which Mr. Flynn bespeaks, but rather which candidate for each office is best qualified by intelligence, character and ability to serve his country in this great emergency. Where a Republican candidate is the better choice he should be elected. Where the Democrat is the better man the vote should go to him. The country needs constructive criticism in Congress more than ever, regardless of the political label of the critic.—New York Herald Tribune.

New York Chats

NEW YORK—Rupert Hughes, the Lancaster, Mo., boy who has written poetry, plays, novels, serials, romances and biographies, also wrote a book about New York. It doesn't appear in the list of his books published as part of his long biography "Who's Who in America," but I have a copy of it.

It's entitled "The Real New York," was published by Smart Set Publishing Co. in 1934, and is now a real collector's item.

It's a good book, too. Its 384 pages are extravagantly illustrated with so many pictures that it takes two pages of fine type to list them. They are by Mayer, some scores of them in two colors and occupying full pages. Publishers used to print books that way. No more. Engraving costs are too high.

I don't know what this book cost when it was circulating, but my copy, in fair condition, was bought at a second hand store in Fourth avenue for $2.50.

Hughes was 32 when this book was published. I suppose that might mean that he was 30 when he started to write it. The enthusiasm for women and anxiety about them, displayed especially in the earlier chapters, would seem to indicate that we had here the beginnings of a great novelist.

He takes his heroine and her western friend all over New York. While this is a fiction book, hardly sturdy enough to be called a novel, it is also a guidebook of the Manhattan of 1904.

Wind Lifted Skirts High The great wonder of the Big City in that day was the Flatiron building. The devilish jokes of the day were nearly all based upon the fact that the wind, swirling through Madison Square and around the point of the Flatiron, had a tendency to raise the skirts of the Gibson girls above their ankles.

With the imagination of a poet, and optimistic novelist, Mr. Hughes even speaks of a case, noted as rumor, in which a skirt was blown much higher than that.

The Flatiron building is still there. It is still a beautiful building, though no longer impressive for height. The wind is as it always was, and the Flatiron masts were in a month.

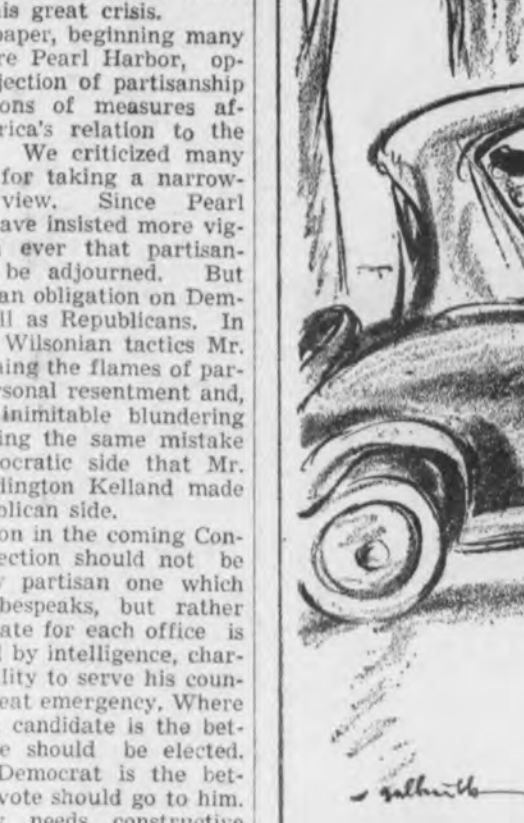

Gone are the crowds of observant young men that Hughes describes as "dry goods men, waiting to learn the newest styles in hosiery."

Oh, Mr. Hughes, doesn't that sound corny!

Built Arch for Dewey "The Flatiron is like a glorious white ship!" exclaims the sophisticated hero of "The Real New York." "And how wonderfully it dresses up the vista! After we lost the Dewey Arch, because Dewey gave away the house they gave him, I don't know how we ever used to get along without the Flatiron."

Today and Tomorrow

Friend or Foe?

By Walter Lippmann MANY delicate and perplexing questions arise in this war when it comes to deciding who is really foe. The questions arise for the State Department as regards some foreign governments, and as regards many organized groups of foreign nationals. They arise for the Department of Justice and the Treasury in regard to many groups and individuals in the United States—some of them aliens, and some native-born American citizens.

Just because the ordinary rules do not fit all the facts, much wisdom, much information and much knowledge of the world today are needed if justice is to be done, if the security of the state is to be protected against its enemies and its power reinforced by its friends.

What We Assume The ancient American rule is to assume that the allegiance of each citizen of a state is to the government of that state. Thus the citizens of an enemy state are, according to the rules, all of them enemy aliens. The citizens of an allied state are according to the rules all of them friendly aliens. The citizens of a neutral state are all of them neutral aliens. The citizens of the United States are all loyal citizens.

This rule, that legal citizenship determines a man's allegiance, is, of course, fundamental in the American conception of things. For since we are historically a new nation, which has been forming on new soil out of successive waves of immigration, we have long insisted on what is called the right of expatriation, and have repeatedly and in the most unqualified terms insisted that a person can have only one allegiance; that is, to the state of which he is a citizen. The American doctrine, as stated, for example,

Czechoslovakia is another victim of Nazi aggression, and according to the rule the citizens of the Czechoslovak state as it existed in 1939 are friendly aliens. But among them are the Sudeten Germans of Bohemia, and among the Sudeten Germans are some of the most virulent Nazis in Europe. There are many anomalies of this sort—for example, Poles who were German citizens because they lived in Silesia, and Germans of Danzig who are treated as Poles.

There are Frenchmen who, according to the rules, are neutral aliens. For France, according to a somewhat questionable ruling, though not at peace with Germany but only under arms, is allowed to act as a neutral. On the other hand there are the Free French who are still at war with Germany and who are now at war with Japan: Yet under State Department policy it is hard to say what their status is either in the African territory which they control or in the immensely important Pacific Islands, or here in the United States.

Problem Very Difficult We have then a whole series of difficult cases arising out of the fact that Hungary, Croatia, Slovakia, and Bulgaria have declared war upon the United States while the United States has not deigned to reply by recognizing the existence of a state of war. Does this mean that during the war and after we shall not distinguish between the Hungarian and the Bulgarian governments for example, which fight against us and against the United Nations, and let us say, Greece and Serbia, which have fought so gallantly on our side?

The problem is extremely difficult and of much practical importance. For it raises the question as to whether a nation at war, as we now are, is to take the line that there is not necessarily a reward for helping us nor necessarily a penalty for fighting us? The position we take on this matter may have a great bearing on the action of the South American republics, and on others.

Not All Citizens Loyal Then there is the fact—unpleasant but inescapable—that American citizenship, whether acquired by birth or by naturalization, is not an inflexible guaranty of loyalty. We know that some of the most dangerous Axis agents, and some of their most subversive organizations, have been recruited from naturalized citizens. We know also that there have been more than a few citizens who have worked for the Axis.

Their allegiance has not been guaranteed by their citizenship and yet much of their conduct, though extremely dangerous to the security of the nation, is not to be defined as treason.

These are some, but by no means all, of the problems in this field, and obviously there is no simple solution. Certainly I am not pretending to offer one here, but only to indicate the nature of the problem, and to suggest that it be considered as a whole—perhaps by some joint committee of the Cabinet—so that a coherent policy may be worked out instead of leaving the matter to the rulings of minor officials in several different departments of the Government.

Smiles Greetings by Messenger A stranger had stopped his car to give a fair pedestrian a ride. "Going north?" she asked. "Yes, indeed," replied the motorist.

"Well, give my love to the Eskimos." Found Wanting The late Governor Folk of Missouri, accompanied by a friend, arrived at his office one morning to find a number of men waiting for him in the anteroom. He paused as he passed through, and related an ancient, rather pointless joke.

Inside the Governor's private office, the friend remarked, "Say, that was a terrible old chestnut you pulled out there." "I know it," was the complacent reply, "but I had to find out how many of those fellows were here to ask favors." "And did you?" inquired the friend. "Oh, yes," said Folk, "they were the ones who laughed."

Smiles

Reason Enough One day a lady remarked to Alexander Dumas, "Monsieur, you have certainly mastered the art of growing old gracefully."

"Madam," replied the author with a bow, "that is because I give all my time to it."

One Exception Anyway "Mother—No, you can't have it and that's the sixth time I've said No!"

Sonny (mumbling to himself)—"Wonder where Pop gets the idea women are always changing their minds!"

Gob Humor "Wife—'Every time you see a pretty girl you forget that you're married.'"

Gob—"You're wrong my dear. Nothing brings home the fact more forcibly.—U. S. S. Chester Weekly."

A Mouthful? "Miss Green, do let me help you to more pudding."

"Well thanks," said the young woman. "I will take some more, but only a mouthful, please."

"Bella," said the hostess to the maid, "fill Miss Green's plate."

Many Apply For Jobs At Prison Here

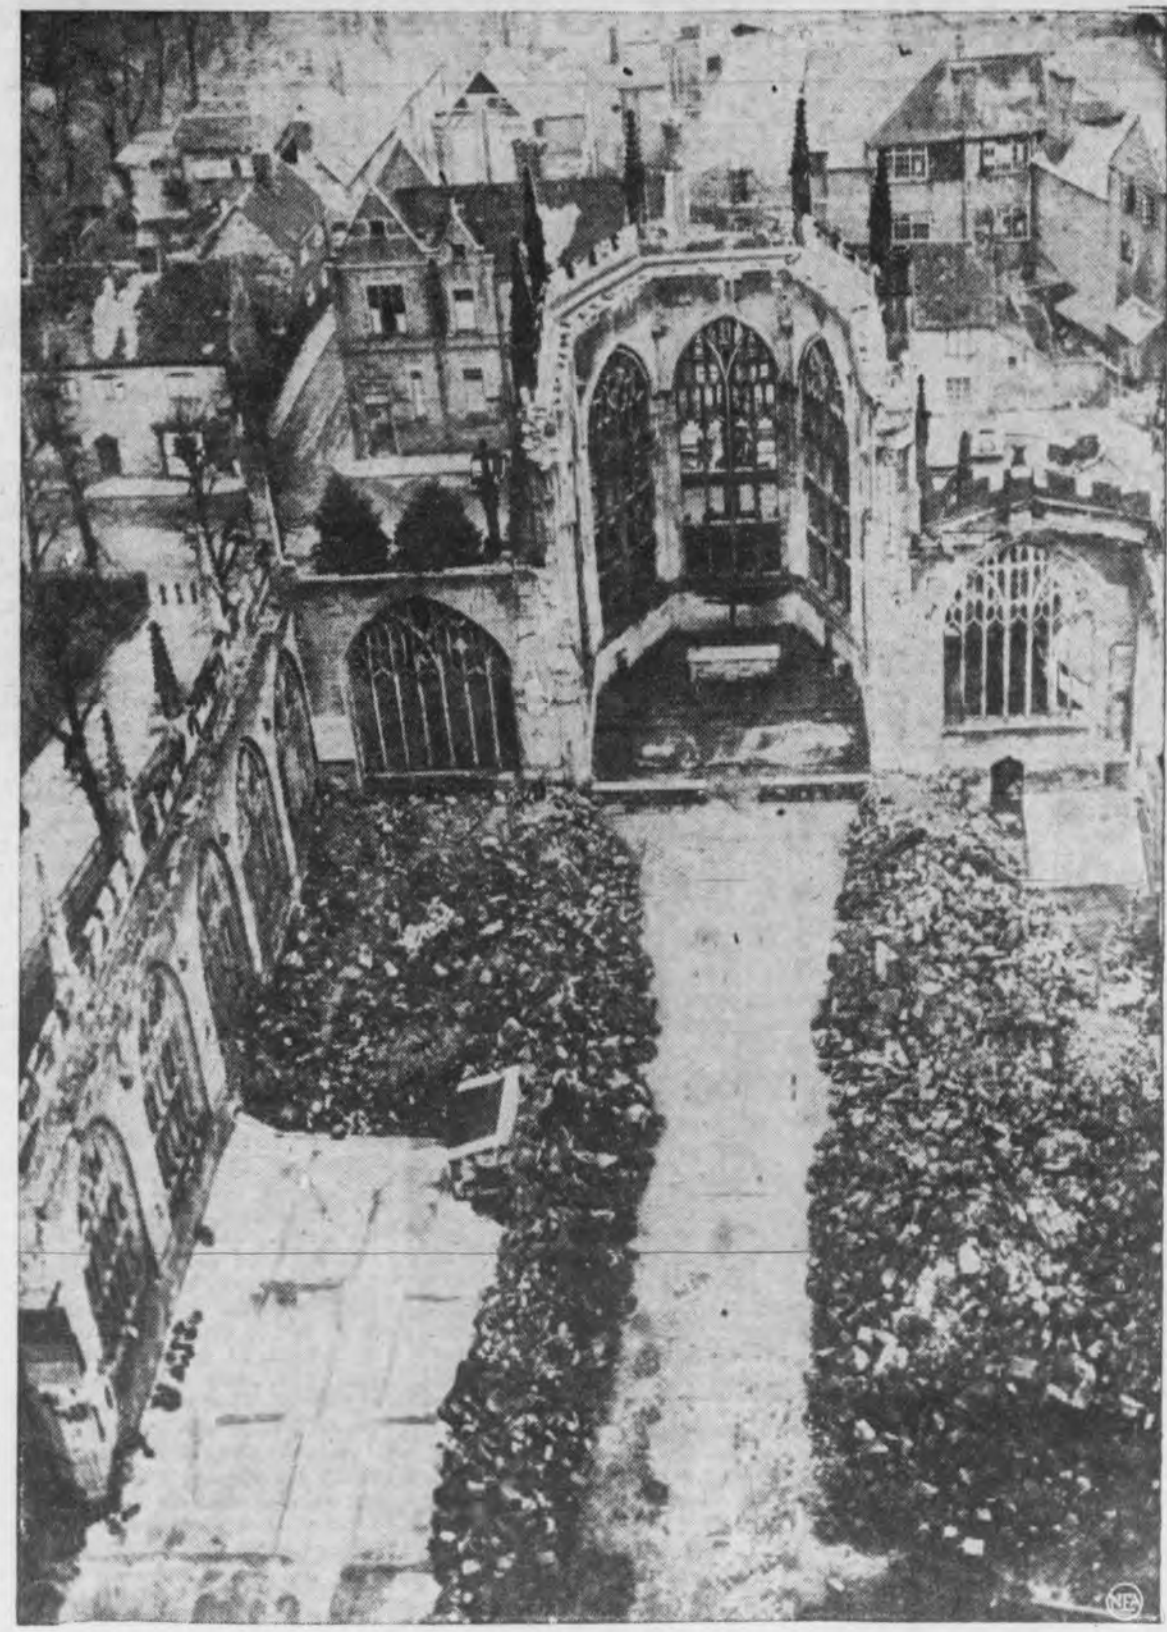

Up to yesterday 45 men from this area had filed applications with the state civil service department as candidates for positions as prison guards. It was stated by Ralph Benson, warden of the Marquette prison. The number of applications filed by applicants for jobs in the Marquette institution is larger than the number filed in Ionia or Jackson, Mr. Benson said.

The applicants will be given oral and written examinations here and then applications may still be filed. Blanks may be procured at the prison, but must be filed with the state civil service department in Lansing. Physical examinations will be given here next week.

Applicants for prison guard jobs must be not less than 25 years old or more than 50. They must be citizens of the United States and residents of Michigan for not less than six months. They must meet the physical requirements, must be at least five feet, eight inches in height and weigh at least 150 pounds. They must have normal hearing and vision, be free of chronic disease and have a record of education through the eighth grade.

Applicants who are war veterans will be given the veterans' preference prescribed in the civil service regulations. The system of rating follows: Twenty per cent for training, 20 per cent on oral interview, 20 per cent on an intelligence test and 40 per cent on a practical written examination which includes questions on prison practice and terms, attitude toward inmates, knowledge of causes of anti-social behavior, knowledge of first aid, ability to command respect and obedience of inmates and ability to keep records and make reports.

Draft Board Prepares For Registration

The Marquette county draft board announced yesterday that its offices in the Vierling building will be open Saturday, February 14, until 7 p. m. and Sunday, February 15, from 10 to 5 p. m. for the registration of men in the 20-44 age bracket who will be required to register not later than Monday, February 16.

The board was instructed to arrange for the advance registration February 14 and 15 for the convenience of registrants. It will be difficult or impossible to register February 16.

The board was instructed to arrange for the advance registration February 14 and 15 for the convenience of registrants. It will be difficult or impossible to register February 16.

Exemption Rule Changed

LANSING, Feb. 6.—Minor physical defects no longer will be grounds for exemption from military service for men who otherwise are physically fit, under orders soon to be made effective. It was disclosed by the state selective service headquarters today.

The new orders will offer draft registrants the choice of having the minor defects or ailments corrected at either their own or Governmental expense before induction or being drafted anyway for treatment by Army doctors.

Spokesmen asserted correction of defective teeth, now the principal cause of rejection of registrants, would be stressed. Such things as hernia, poor vision and venereal diseases which can be cured within a reasonable time also will fall within scope of the order, it was added.

Local medical advisory boards will be informed of cases in which the registrant could be made fit for duty "in a reasonable time at a reasonable cost."

Must Get Treatment

"The registrant," a prepared explanation continued, "will then be advised of his defects and that the same may be remedied at Governmental expense. He will be told that if such defects are successfully remedied, he will be reexamined and, if found acceptable, will be inducted.

"He will be further advised that if he refuses to have the defects corrected, the defects may be waived by the draft officials regardless of his views, and in such event he will be subject to induction.

Within certain limitations the registrant would have free choice of physician, if the Government pays for the corrective treatment, the doctor to receive a fee fixed by the Government. The registrant could, if he chose, go to any doctor of his choice without restriction and pay for the treatments himself.

Deer Herds Faring Well This Winter

Favored by the mildest winter weather in four years, deer yards were given a much-needed "rest" in January as deer took advantage of the lack of deep snow to range far into the uplands and live largely on food supplies on their normal summer range.

Conservation department officers say the effect of the January mild weather, which was state-wide, has been to eliminate the long hard drags that characterized the winter of 1940-41 in the Lower Peninsula and resulted in heavy deer mortality. Upper Peninsula conditions also are much less severe this season.

As a result of the mild spell, deer will be in better condition and will have relatively more food available in late February and March in the event of severe temperatures and snow conditions. Chances of deer survival are, consequently, greatly increased. Perhaps even more important is the conservation of winter food supplies which are not readily renewable, conservationists point out.

Reports for the week ending January 24 showed snow depths to be no greater than a foot, and in some places less than six inches, in both the Upper and Lower Peninsulas.

There are approximately 4,000 to 5,000,000 rivets used in the production of a single airplane.

The famous mineral springs of Bath, England, produce 500,000 gallons of medicated water daily.

Iron River To Be Host To Firemen

The usual tournament of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association has not been cancelled. It will be held in Iron River this coming summer, it was decided at a meeting of Iron River firemen with the executive committee of the association.

Because of the war and the fact that attendance at the meet would deprive Upper Peninsula communities of their full complement of fire fighters, there has been some doubt that the tourney would be held.

William Collins, Iron River, past president of the association, said that fire protection during the war would be one of the things discussed at the tournament.

During 1940, 6,700,000 persons were kept employed, directly or indirectly, in motor transport.

Your Federal Income Tax

GAINS OR LOSSES; CAPITAL ASSETS

The term "capital assets" is defined as the property held by the taxpayer (whether or not connected with his trade or business), but does not include stock in trade of the taxpayer or property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year, or property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of his trade or business, or property, used in the trade or business, of a character which is subject to the allowance for depreciation; or an obligation of the United States, its possessions, a state or territory or political subdivision thereof, or of the District of Columbia, issued or after March 1, 1941, on a discount basis and payable without interest at a fixed maturity date not exceeding one year from the date of issue.

Capital gains and losses are classified as "short-term" (applicable to capital assets held for 18 months or less) and "long-term" (applicable to capital assets held for more than 18 months). Such gains and losses are taken into consideration in the percentages shown on the return, based upon the period of time during which the assets were held.

Short-term capital losses are allowable only to the extent of short-term capital gains. However, any net short-term capital loss (not in excess of the net income for the taxable year) may be carried over to the succeeding year and applied against the short-term capital gains not already offset by short-term capital losses in such year. The carry-over is restricted to one year.

In the case of a net long-term capital gain or loss, an alternative tax is imposed with respect to a gain if such tax is less than the normal tax and surtax of net income, and in the event of a loss, such alternative tax is imposed if greater than the normal tax and surtax on net income.

Where a taxpayer derives a net long-term capital gain and computes his tax under section 117(c) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code, relating to alternative taxes, the base for determining the 15 per cent limitation on the charitable contributions deduction provided by section 23(a) of the Code and the earned income credit provided by section 25(a) (3) of the Code is "net income."

Where a taxpayer sustains a net long-term capital loss and computes his tax under section 117(c)

Certainly He's A Meat Hunter--And Proud Of It

Regardless of the commonly professed scorn of hunting for meat only, and regardless of the number of hunters who publicly denounce it, there is at least one Michigan man who declares he is a meat-hunter "and proud of it."

In a candid letter to the director of conservation, in defense of the camp-deer law, this Detroit sportsman writes, in commenting on printed opinions of hunters denying any great interest in meat: "I am proud to say I am a meat hunter. If I were not I would stay home and not waste the deer. I suggest our supply of game be conserved for meat hunters, and let these so-called sportsmen shoot at targets.

Pressure Groups Are Greater Menace Than Japs And Germans, Chase Says

Just Why Do You Take Daily Bath In Tub?

(By MANTHEI HOWE)

"Hold your hats, boys, we're off!"

That has been something of our theme song the past several years. We rush across country in airplanes. We used to speed across the Atlantic and Pacific in great liners that ate up the miles amazingly, and every year tourists wanted more speed. The submarines tend to dent that bit of speed mania.

In automobiles of stream-lined luxury, or in rattling and creaking old Model-T contraptions, folk shuttled around the country. Almost invariably we hurried to get from place to place, or for the mere stimulation of rushing. Tire shortage smacks down on that heedless swishing around.

Time to Relax

Now we are asked to speed, all speed ahead in one direction, production of defense necessities, shells, bombers, airplanes, battleships and so on down a lengthy list, that is so lengthy it should serve to take around the excess part of our system and make us realize the value of some relaxation.

I'm all for the idea of re-discovering the comfort of leisurely bathing! Ahuh. The good old-fashioned bath.

There was no turning of a faucet, hopping into the tub, and out again before the tub was quite filled. The water had to be poured in by buckets, the fire had to be kept roaring in the range. Having gone to all that preparation, and since the bath ritual was a weekly affair, naturally folk made the most of it.

Got Their Money's Worth

When the members of the family decided to take the Saturday night bath, they knew perfectly well that there was not much possibility of cutting down the time used and nothing else to do with that time, so they meandered about the task and, in consequence, received a comfortable and pleasant relaxation from it.

But when American plumbing came into its own, with a tub in most houses, and all kinds of gadgets provided for making bathing quicker and more comfortable, the folk cut down on the time needed for the cleansing and, since they took baths daily instead of weekly, they thought they were ahead of the game.

They recited knowingly the statement that about two and a half million sweat glands were at work every day pouring out on the skin of the body the watery substance called perspiration which is composed of water, oil and waste matter from the body.

Becoming health-conscious, as we have in the past half century, these folk pointed out that the water evaporated from the body, leaving solid and oily substances on the surface which clogged the pores, and—to keep the skin in a clean condition and build up the health of the body, bathe every day.

I resent the fact that for some years so many people have thought of baths only in terms of cleanliness.

Is That So?

The other day a young woman, hearing of another girl who confessed that she arose earlier so as to be able to have a half hour for the daily bath, exclaimed smugly: "A half hour? My goodness I never heard of such a thing. It doesn't take me more than 10 minutes to get my daily bath. That's long enough for any one!"

Inelegantly, but expressive of my extreme dissent with her idea, I say "Nerts!" People of antiquity, when they could not get water for bathing, rubbed themselves with oil or clean sand. To them the bath was primarily a utilitarian activity.

But, as long ago as the days of the old Romans, there came a recognition of the luxury of bathing and the part it played in physical health.

And as we climbed up the ladder of civilization we became more and more aware of what bathing contributed to a people. It raises the standard of health and morale. Assuredly in these times when folk are ambling around a bit tense, considerably worried about the income tax, the rising prices, the gamble of war, we need to recognize the soothing, comfort-giving potentialities of the bath.

Solitude Is Good

By the great horn spoon, the time we spend in the bath tub is, for many of us, the one time in the day when we have complete isolation from everything else that goes on about us. There is no talking, no noise, no intrusion of other human beings.

And as the bather sits in the tub, soaping and rinsing, soaping and rinsing, he can think in calm fashion of some of the things he plans to do during the day, or think of all that happened during the past 24 hours, if he is a night bather. It will even be time well spent if he merely sits and shoves soap and water and doesn't bother to think.

A lot of us would be the better for having a few moments during the day when we could refrain from bothering to think, and merely let the old wheels slow down for awhile.

If you do tend to do some thinking in the bath, you will be surprised how much more effectively the old bath works. With no noise, no interruptions, some problems solve themselves most readily under the soothing influence of a leisurely bath.

Of course, you will have to guard against the possibility of becoming so interested in your thoughts that you sit there staring absentmindedly at the faucet and half-hypnotizing yourself because of your interest in your thoughts, until pretty soon the goose-pimples about two and a half million of them, will make you realize that you've been sitting goodness knows how long and that the bath water is getting cold.

However, that is a fear that you won't need to entertain if you are a member of a family. Long before you are congealed, some one will be hammering on the door with the query: "Say, are you going to stay in there all day?"

But, at least for the duration, I'm all for people taking a bath for cleanliness—and comfort. None of this hopping in the tub for a lick and a promise and then hopping out, and rushing breathless about the business of the day.

Ten minutes for the bath. Phooie!

Speaker Points Out That High Taxes And Price Control Decrease Danger Of Inflation

Several factors influence the cost of defense, or rather the cost of war, for all nations maintain that they are waging defensive war, L. A. Chase, of the Northern Michigan College of Education, said in the talk he gave Thursday night at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club on the "Cost of Defense."

He noted that a dollar is merely the symbol of something else, the value of a certain amount of silver backed by gold, and both have a fluctuating value. Because of that fluctuating value, a $26,000,000,000 appropriation is really smaller today than it would have been in the first World War, staggering as such an amount is.

We are still on the gold billion standard, though not making any gold dollars. The value of the dollar, the speaker pointed out, is affected by the value placed on goods for which the dollar fixes prices.

Can't Safely Cheapen Dollar

"If we want to keep defense cost down we can't cheapen the dollar or we shall have a situation similar to what happened in Germany after the first World War, and of which we had a taste in the Civil War when the paper dollar deteriorated in value because the government didn't have the gold to redeem the dollar."

Mr. Chase reminded that in inflation the value of the dollar soars to the point where it takes many dollars to buy a few things, and that the situation then created the fiercest on persons who live on a salary of fixed income.

A factor in keeping the cost of war down is the keeping the value of the dollar up in relation to other things. The speaker noted that the Government has been belatedly trying to do something about that with the price control bill which, as it stands is inadequate, for it did not keep farm prices down and did not fix wages, which becomes a fundamental factor in the cost of defense and everything else.

with the knowledge that the cost of inflation would be more costly than the cost of interest on such bonds.

Mr. Chase pointed out that the Government is using good economic sense in paying for the cost of war through the sale of defense bonds. "If you keep the cost of government down, you keep your freedom, and you can't keep freedom if you don't keep everything down. The inflation in Germany helped Hitler into power, and it is well to remember that there is $22,000,000,000 in gold in this country. It is not functioning, it is true, but it is there and can be called in. It is not functioning because of foolish legislation passed a few years ago, but we can switch to the gold standard if need arises, and help anchor the paper dollar to reduce the possibility of inflation."

Is Protective Technic

Price inflation can result from other factors, the speaker reminded, and he pointed out that the increase in the current income tax is a technic to reduce the purchasing power. If the production of goods is not sufficient to supply the demand, prices rise. If there is severe taxation and people invest in securities in the government there is no money to buy other things.

"We have not begun to be taxed as we will be," said the speaker, "and if we pay the taxes we shall not have money to buy commodities and prices will stabilize. The power of the United States, as far as taxes are concerned, is unlimited. The increase of taxes as a lessening of the danger of inflation is a step in the right direction."

The Government has not practiced as much economy as it might have, Mr. Chase pointed out, and that the Government has a selfish purpose to pursue trying to tie it up with national defense. "The great danger to the United States is the utter selfishness of various pressure groups."

History Repeats Self

The speaker says that there is always wasteful expenditure of public money in time of war. He noted the work of 1,000,000 employees in executive civil service might be more economically administered and work accomplished with less help and more cheaply if an administrator had been appointed.

The cost of defense will be increased by the mistakes and blunders that always have been, and will be, made. The Germans made colossal blunders at a high cost. The United States blundered at Pearl Harbor.

There was a costly blunder due to the failure of appointing a production controller. The failure of the administration to deal effectively with labor was costly through time lost in defense industries because of strikes.

A costly blunder was the selling of scrap, gasoline, and oil to Japan with the result that we are on the verge of that scrap, gasoline and oil embargo.

However, no President can avoid making mistakes, the speaker reminded. Lincoln did and so has every President. The ablest incumbent of the executive, head of Army and Navy, and foreign relations, has responsibilities that he can possibly handle without making mistakes.

General Staff Important

The speaker pointed out the importance of appointing a general staff, a co-ordinating agency, and reminded that the Germans, who know how to fight, have a great general staff.

Pearl Harbor was a blunder due to the fact that there was no co-ordination between the two officers in command. Mr. Chase stressed the wisdom of the President's action in placing all the forces in the Far East under the command of the British General Wavell, and said that no pettiness of national feeling should be allowed to enter as protest against acceptance of that wise move.

The speaker conceded that the United States will have to finance the cost of this war, and that it is foolish to expect repayment of money given under the Lend-Lease act.

Mr. Chase said it was unfortunate that more people do not read such books as those on price control as avidly as they do best sellers; and did not bother to read treasury reports and books on economics. If they did they would be willing to give the amounts necessary to win this war, aware that the country has greater economic resources than any other country in the world, that it is a country of the competent people, and that its adjustment to mechanized industry will offset expenses.

He foresees the necessity of employing women in defense work all over the country as they have had to be employed in England, Germany, and Russia, and reminds that we have the man and woman power, the materials to make a tremendous war effort.

"What we have needed," he said, "was organization, and we are beginning to get that now."

This all-out war time effort will require adjustment, and there will be additional re-adjustment necessary in the years after the war; an adjustment to peace; the magnitude and form of that adjustment no one can now foresee in detail.

The program included vocal solos by Miss Bernice Waters, soprano, who sang "Fairy Rockets" and "Dear Arabella," and Irving Johns, baritone, who sang "The Green Eyed Dragon" and the spiritual, "Go Down Moses." Both are residents of Negaunee and are attending the Northern Michigan College of Education.

Three Dutch Princesses Live Happily In Ottawa Home

The succession to the throne of Holland lies with the Princesses Irene, 2, and Beatrix, 4.

By MAJOR THOMAS WATLING NEA Service Correspondent

OTTAWA, Canada, Feb. 5.—The Princess Juliana, heir to the throne of Holland and the Dutch possessions beyond the seas, stroked the flaxen hair of her youngest daughter, the Princess Irene, and affectionately squeezed the little hand of the Princess Beatrix.

"Canada and the United States have been so good to me and my children . . . I can never forget it . . ."

In a little gray stone house in a suburb of Ottawa, the Princess has established a war-time home for her family.

From London, the Princess Juliana's mother, Queen Wilhelmina, still rules the Axis-torn Netherlands empire. And here in Ottawa, beneath the Delft blue roof of this unpretentious little house, may be found the succession to the crown of Holland. Like the royal house of England, the succession lies with two small girls.

Reared Like Canadians

Tiny Princess Irene is two-and-a-half years old, the Princess Beatrix is four. They live the lives of Canadian children in every respect, mothered and brought up like the colonel's baby and Judy O'Grady's.

Princess Beatrix attends Elmwood preparatory school, where she is rapidly picking up English. At school she is "Trix," and just as Canada has taken the Princess Juliana as a likeable guest, who is to be made welcome and live as she desires, so the children of Elmwood treat little "Trix" just as they do other youngsters.

On state occasions, the Princess Juliana is the royal heir of Holland; at home she is herself, wife and mother, free to live simply and well, to work and play as she sees fit, to bring up her children in the normal healthy life of young Canada.

On state occasions Canadians cheer the princess; in everyday life she shops downtown, goes to movies, walks and skates like any young Canadian matron. She wears plain dresses around the house and economizes by darning the odd run in a stocking. (What she eats is her own affair, otherwise every time she visits someone would serve the same thing.)

Live In Picturesque Area

The little grey house lies at the end of a road in a valley. Tall trees surround it and there is no confining fence. Today it is cold, twelve below zero, so after a brisk walk from school the princess and her daughters are in the cozy green drawing room—a livable room where small feet scramble over furniture, and dolls and toys are strewn all over the place. On the mantel are Dutch boy and girl dolls, a Dutch sailor and a little Canadian birch bark canoe. In the window ledge is a row of books.

With the little princesses plays Renee, a small chubby youngster of Trix's age, who came with her mother from Holland. Renee is Trix's constant companion. They go to school together, play together, like any two little Canadian or American girls.

There is no royal household as such—no ladies or gentlemen-in-waiting. The little house couldn't hold them if there were. There are a cook and a maid. Two personal friends live with the princess, one is the mother of Renee, the other takes care of the children. W. van Tets is the princess' private secretary and takes care of the multitudinous affairs that come up officially and unofficially.

All Love The Outdoors

"What time do the children get up?" I asked the princess.

The princess threw up her hands with a little squawk.

It was a squawk; if the princess wants to squawk, she does.

Evidently Trix and Irene were no different to other girls. They awoke with the dawn or when they felt like it.

"Trix must be at school at nine," said the princess, "she's just gone in the morning; it's children's school."

Mention of the gallant fight of the soldiers, sailors and airmen of the Dutch East Indies brought a new light in the princess' eyes. She was proud of them. "And the natives, too, they are fighting well," she added.

"You know," said the princess, "this is the first time Holland and the United States have fought side by side, and we know what the outcome will be."

Because of her position representing the royal house of Holland the Princess Juliana ranks in Canada after only the governor-general and the Princess Alice, who represent the British throne. She is, therefore, a guest at all state and government functions, and enjoys them all.

Any day in the summer the princess may be seen in the garden. She likes to play a game of tennis and is a keen swimmer. She loves the outdoors and the two small princesses have inherited this love. She does not go in for bright colors and her formal dresses are usually black.

Paul Bunyan Yarns Provide Plenty Chuckles

The appetite for Paul Bunyan stories is something like eating olives. Some folk like olives as soon as they taste them, others have to acquire a taste for them.

Those, who have a natural liking for the astounding tales of the greatest lumberjack of them all, have much fun over the yarns of the lumberjacks and read them whenever they have an opportunity. Readers who have to acquire a taste, will find it worthwhile in that they have moments of chuckling enjoyment in reading these yarns, tall as the pine trees of the northland, yarns that were spun around the stove when the men, returned after a day in the woods, smoked, chewed Peewees, and "smooed" and vied with each other in telling the most remarkable whopper.

Most of those bragging yarns centered about that legendary super-man Paul Bunyan.

Is In Library

In the Peter White Public library is a collection of the stories by Esther Shepard, published under the title of "Paul Bunyan" and made doubly attractive by the illustrations by Rockwell Kent. First published in 1924, Mrs. Shepard's book has been rated among the best of the Paul Bunyan books.

She says the stories for the most part were collected from loggers in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia. Many of these loggers had followed the logging industry from the east, and they brought with them the word-of-mouth versions of the tales that were told in Canada, in the camps of Michigan, and from other sections in the middle-west where logging was once an outstanding industry.

Actually the stories were told by many individuals, often each adding some special embellishment for local consumption, but even more often telling them exactly as they had been handed down. Mrs. Shepard in her book, makes one lumberjack the narrator for all the astounding adventures of the hero, Paul Bunyan.

Origin Is Disputed

Mrs. Shepard says it is a bit difficult to tell where these stories began. Some believe they had their genesis in the camps of the loggers of Quebec or northern Ontario and believed they may even have brought the tales from the old country. But other authorities hold just as strongly to the belief that the Paul Bunyan yarns had their first spinning in the camps of Maine, Michigan and Wisconsin.

When the scene of logging operations shifted toward the west, the stories traveled along with the lumberjacks, and, as Mrs. Shepard points out, they were colored and enriched along the way. In Minnesota Scandinavian myths crept in; father west was noted the effect of Indian legend.

Even the spelling of the name of the hero indicates how the stories have traveled. He is Paul Bunyan in Michigan and Wisconsin camps, in the east, he becomes Bunyan and the French call him Bunion.

In Mrs. Shepard's book the reader is told about the birth of Paul Bunyan who is said to have been born in Maine. He grew so amazingly and was such an obstreperous baby that when he kicked around in his sleep he created such commotion that he knocked down miles of timber, so his parents had to make him a floating cradle of timbers. They anchored the cradle off Eastport and, even then, his restlessness made complications which you will have to read about in the book.

Some Ox, Babe

Of course, one can hardly hear the mention of Paul's name without thinking of that fabulous Babe, the Blue Ox, who had such prodigious strength, that in no time at all he pulled out the logging chain with which he was tethered into a straight bar of iron.

The other day a woman going to California for the winter wrote to her friends here her amusement over the comment of a woman on the trip who was seeing the Grand Canyon for the first time and wondered if it was a WPA project! Nope, Paul Bunyan made the Grand Canyon!

When lumbering seemed to be slacking in Michigan and Wisconsin and he became restless he

SAVING LIGHT

Having a definite routine for dusting lampshades, washing light bulbs, and such, will actually save you money. You will not get maximum illumination from soiled bulbs and shades. Wash the bulbs in soap and water, taking care not to get the metal connection part wet. Dry carefully before returning bulb to socket.

ONE-DISH MEAL

You can make an excellent one-dish meal out of baked macaroni and cheese to which chopped ham or sliced luncheon meat has been added. A green salad, a fresh vegetable, stewed fruit or dessert and a beverage would be an appetizing as well as highly nourishing meal.

Ski Trails In Excellent Condition For Ishpeming's Winter Sports Opening

Many Events On Program For Sunday

ISHPEMING, Feb. 6 — Delayed for weeks because of the lack of snow, the opening of the Ishpeming winter sports area is slated for Sunday afternoon. A program that will please adults and facilities that will appeal to persons of all ages are offered.

Winter Sports club officers today reminded the public not to judge conditions in the sports area by the amount of snow on city streets. "The streets have been plowed, snow carried away and have been traveled on constantly by cars. We still have plenty of snow for our sports program," one of them said.

The only accommodation the club will not be able to offer the public is the slalom slope north of the ski tow.

Ski Trails In Good Condition

The trails are in excellent condition, the ski tow slope facing Teal Lake will be ready for skiers and the ski tow is operating. Several slopes adjacent to the clubhouse on the east side of the area also will be usable.

At 2:15 a cross-country race will be started from the clubhouse and will end at the ski tow slope. As soon as the crowd assembles there also will be a slide-tow race.

"Everything has been done to make the program enjoyable and we urge that all fans of the community will attend Sunday and see what the club has done to build up winter sports in Ishpeming," Clifford Sundblad, president of the organization, said this afternoon.

Parole Violator Found By Fingerprint Checkup

PERU, Ind., Feb. 6 — A routine FBI fingerprint checkup in a minor law violation case today revealed that John (Slim) Miller, 36-year-old Peru taxicab driver is Kenneth Allen, Michigan prison parole violator, according to police authorities here.

Allen, who adopted the Miller alias here, has been away from Michigan 15 years. He violated his parole following a one- to 10-year sentence from the state prison of southern Michigan, at Jackson, according to FBI records.

War Time To Affect Bluegill Ice-Fishing

LANSING, Feb. 6 — Daylight saving or war time will put a damper on much of the fun of winter bluegill fishing when it becomes effective Monday, an informal opinion by the attorney general staff declared today.

Harry W. Jackson, assistant attorney general, informed the conservation department that the new Federal law advancing time schedules an hour will affect the sport, because the hours in which it may be enjoyed are defined specifically by statute.

The law says fishing through the ice for bluegills is legal only between 6 a. m. and 6 p. m., Eastern Standard time. Jackson held that after Monday, this will mean 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. fast time, and that fishing thereafter must halt at what would now be 5 p. m.

The conservation department's fish division said this would cut off "just about the best fishing hour of the day," since more fish are caught between 4 p. m. (present time) and dark than in all the other hours of the day combined.

Wayland Osgood, secretary of the conservation commission, said conservation officers would be instructed to enforce the law as interpreted by Jackson, and that an opinion would be sought later on effect of the fast time schedule on hours for hunting.

Public Schools To Aid In Model Plane Output

LANSING, Feb. 6 — Michigan public schools will aid in production of model airplanes which national authorities expect will play an important role in the United States war effort.

Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction, said construction of 22,000 model planes, built to scale to represent American and Axis planes, has been planned.

The miniature craft, he said, will be used in training of airplane spotters who must be able to identify friendly and enemy craft and otherwise help in military experiments. Construction was requested by the Secretary of Navy, Elliott said.

Sports Club Invitation County-Wide

ISHPEMING, Feb. 6 — All winter sports fans of Marquette county are invited to attend and participate in the opening of Ishpeming's winter sports area Sunday, Clifford Sundblad, president of the club, emphasized today.

"There have been friendly relations between winter sports clubs of the county in past years, large delegations of fans visiting each community when sports events have been held.

"We want this to continue and we assure residents of Negaunee and Marquette, and of other communities in the county, they will find a hearty welcome here if they visit our area, whether it be for our grand opening or at any other time during the season."

Sundblad also thanked the city council, board of public works and all other agencies whose cooperation has made possible the improvements at the area for this season.

U. S. Tax Payments In State Over 30 Millions

DETROIT, Feb. 6 — A tax collection of $12,342,511 on new automobiles was one of the larger items in a gross Federal tax collection of $30,576,537.81 for January, Giles Kavanagh, collector of internal revenue, announced today.

Kavanagh's figures were for Detroit and Michigan. He revealed that $1,700,183 was collected on new truck taxes, and $813,168 on the new retail tax on jewelry, furs and cosmetics.

The value of California's wine industry has been estimated at $435,000,000.

Doctors Endorse State Immunization Campaign

LANSING, Feb. 6 — A campaign to immunize upwards of 750,000 Michigan children against diphtheria and smallpox possibly resulting from evacuation of cities or large population shifts has been endorsed by the Michigan State Medical society, according to Dr. H. Allen Moyer, state health commissioner.

Dr. Moyer said county medical societies would direct the program and that "the family doctor" would immunize the children. Those from families able to pay for the service will be expected to do so while arrangements will be worked out to pay for charity services, he said.

The program, to immunize all children above the age of nine months, is expected to start between March 15 and 20 and to be completed by May 1, Dr. Moyer declared.

The health department disclosed also that apparently harmless contamination had been found in the Mendon city water supply. No corrective measures have been ordered, the department said, other than a constant check to locate the cause of a gas in the water.

Publicity From State Bureaus Costs $500,000

LANSING, Feb. 6 — Leo J. Nowicki, state budget director, said today he estimates the publication of periodicals, reports and publicity material by state agencies costs Michigan taxpayers upwards of $500,000 a year.

A survey of 89 of the 111 state agencies showed, he said, that they produced 415 different pamphlets, annual reports, weekly press bulletins, periodicals and other publications.

Nowicki declared cost reports by the agencies were vague, but indicated $154,000 was spent annually for paper and other materials used in producing the publicity, and more than twice that much for salaries of employees assigned to write and edit it.

The budget director suggested that if the volume can be shrunk—

SWOC Gets Recognition At CCI Mine

IRON RIVER, Mich., Feb. 6 — Recognition of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee (CIO) as the sole bargaining agency for employees at the Spies mine of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., was announced today by L. Komaroff, of Milwaukee, NLRB field examiner.

The field representative said the union agreed to recognize the company when it learned the SWOC was the choice of 58 of 72 employees.

It was the first recognition of the CIO in the northern Michigan and Wisconsin mining areas.

As he has served notice he intends to shrink it—'it ought to follow that the writers of these booklets can be dispensed with also."

Winter Queen Election To Start Monday

ISHPEMING, Feb. 6—Next week Ishpeming will elect its 1942 winter queen and a new method of selection has been adopted.

All persons who have bought memberships in the Winter Sports club will find coupons on their cards. Each coupon constitutes a ballot.

Voting booths will be open for the week starting Monday, February 9, in the following places:

Eman's Shoe Shop, Berg's Sport Goods, Creamland, Johnson's Sport Shop and Sundblad's.

Votes may be cast from February 9 to 14 and the girl receiving the most votes will be the winter queen. She will go to Negaunee to appear in the "emergency" 1942 Queen of the North contest, set for February 21. Negaunee is inviting communities to renew the contest, even though it was dropped by Ironwood, and there were indications today that enough have already endorsed the move to justify Negaunee in proceeding with the plan.

Candidates for the Ishpeming winter queen honor are Mary Ellen Cornish, Ruth Hanninen, Jeanette Marie Ayotte, Ruth Marion Felt, Mae Peterson, Grace Mandley, Elizabeth Gauthier and Bernice McCormick.

The girls have been selling Winter Sports club memberships, aided by promotional efforts of the club, and although the lack of snow has dulled interest in winter sports activity, a large number of memberships have been disposed of.

Pig Born Without Hind Legs Survives; Youth Prefers Army to Jail

But woe is me, Farm Boy Glender's feet are too flat, said the Army.

Glender is bidding for other service.

Reality of the current rubber shortage was emphasized in an important manner to Walter Scott Hanson (above), of Chicago, who couldn't understand why—on his second birthday, of all days—someone stole all four rubber-tired wheels from his buggy. LUMBERTON, N. C.—(P)—A soldier kept calling a spinster here, proposing dinner at a downtown restaurant. Finally he volunteered that he was 25 years old.

Miss Petron Cites Need Of Child Aid

ISHPEMING, Feb. 6—A civic consciousness and volunteer leadership are all that are needed to give Ishpeming a well-rounded, comprehensive program for the benefit of its children, Miss Dorothy Petron, Girl Scout regional director, of Chicago, told the Ishpeming Rotarians at their meeting held in the Ishpeming Ski clubhouse last evening.

Miss Petron said that in her work here she had often heard the remark that her program ideas are good, but that Ishpeming has no meeting places.

"If men and women of the community would take the active interest that the times demand," she said, "they would find places, even places only large enough to accommodate neighborhood groups, where children could meet under supervision and enjoy themselves and each other's company."

She cited the fact that already juvenile delinquency is on the upturn, probably because of war conditions.

She said also that much could be done with children in groups to train them for civilian defense duties, thus releasing adult power for tasks children are not capable of performing.

Phone 'Leak' Reported From State Capitol

LANSING, Feb. 6—(P)—Investigation of telephone conversation "leaks" at the capitol, including a tipoff of a state police raid, has been ordered by the state board of auditors.

The board said Auditor General Vernon J. Brown complained he suspected a telephone call from his office to state police in Detroit ordering a raid had been intercepted by some person, because officers found the place to be raddled deserted.

George J. Burke, member of the civil service commission, also was said to have reported telephone eavesdropping to the board.

John Gafner, board secretary, said the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. has been requested to conduct a survey with the possibility the company might be employed to operate the switchboard and assume responsibility for protecting against "leaks."

How To Fool The Rubber Robbers

BALTIMORE—(P)—Truck Driver George D. Hull played it safe: He hauled two huge truck tires into a police station, explained he was leaving his truck overnight on a parking lot, and wanted to take no chances that tire thieves would lift his spares. Obliging police locked up the tires for the night.

Carlson Leaves Newberry

NEWBERRY, Feb. 6—Russell Carlson, Newberry water and light engineer for the past 11 years, left Newberry Tuesday for St. Louis, Michigan, where he has accepted a similar position as manager of the municipal plant in that city. He announced his resignation several weeks ago.

To Remodel Hotel Lobby

SAULT STE. MARIE, Feb. 6—Work of remodeling and modernizing the lobby of the Park hotel on Portage avenue west approved Tuesday at a meeting of directors of the hotel and David Anderson, Marquette architect, will begin next week with the firm of Charles Barnes & Son, awarded the contract. Exterior of the building will not be touched, but a new main entrance doorway will be constructed. Other minor changes are also planned, Anderson said. Remodeling work is estimated at about $3,200.

Flies Huge Bombers

ESCANABA, Feb. 6—Lieut. Julian Schuster, formerly of Ontonagon, now chief of the accelerated service of the U. S. Army air corps at Wright and Patterson Fields, recently established a new record in flying the B-24 Consolidated four-engine heavy bomber from San Diego to Patterson field, near Dayton, O. News of the flight was contained in a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Shaw, of Escanaba, from their daughter, Mrs. Schuster, the former Ardith Shaw. The B-24 flies more than 300 miles an hour, but the speed attained by Lieut. Schuster in the cross-country trip was not disclosed. The current issue of Life magazine shows Lieut. Schuster flying a P-38 high-powered fighter plane, built by the Lockheed company. Lieut. Schuster was graduated from the Ontonagon high school and the county normal in that city. After teaching for a year, he secured a job as welder in the Ryan aircraft plant in San Diego, and later was promoted to inspector. After completing a flying course at Randolph Field in Texas, he was assigned three years ago to the Army airfield at Dayton.

Pneumonia in Michigan At New Monthly Lows

LANSING, Feb. 6—(P)—The state health department reported today that pneumonia in Michigan has dropped to new monthly lows as the critical period for the disease reached the halfway mark.

The department said 262 cases of lobar pneumonia were reported in January, compared with 390 in the same month last year and between 500 and 900 for the month in previous years.

A decline in pneumonia deaths from between 3,000 to 6,000 cases a season in past years to 2,632 in the 1940-41 season was attributed to extensive use of new serum and sulfonamide drug treatments, but no explanation is available for the present low level of the disease, the department declared.

Time Change Effective At 2 Monday

ISHPEMING, Feb. 6—Residents of Ishpeming are reminded to turn their clocks ahead an hour at 2 Monday morning to conform with the power-saving schedule authorized by act of Congress.

All persons are affected by this move. Railroads will move their clocks ahead and trainmen have received explicit instructions to do the same so that there will be uniformity throughout the district when the time changes.

To avoid confusion among those who want to travel by train, the change makes no difference in comparative schedules. Trains will be leaving on local time.

"There is no reason for confusion," said Chief Nestor Eckloff this afternoon, "for the change is not as complicated as when we go on daylight saving time during summer months. This time everybody changes. If a resident merely turns his timepiece ahead an hour when he retires Sunday night, everything will run according to schedule Monday morning."

Home-Loving Cow Goes A-Visiting

LEXINGTON, Okla.—(P)—Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Garrett caught a cow. They went calling and left the back screen open. A cow strolled in on the back porch. The wind blew the screen door shut.

When they returned the cow was taking it easy, chewing reflectively.

Cash Will Be Welcome Gift At Bake Sale

ISHPEMING, Feb. 6.—Realizing that many women are busy, but want to show their appreciation of the efforts being put forth by the Winter Sports club, leaders of the community bake sale said today that cash contributions, as well as baked goods, will be acceptable.

"While we do not want to have too large a proportion of cash, because this is a bake sale," said one, "we realize that there are many who do not find it possible to bake on any specific day. For this reason, we want it known that cash will be gratefully accepted."

Solicitation starts Monday and continues until Wednesday noon. The sale opens at 9 Saturday morning, February 14, and will continue until all contributions are disposed of.

Grand Rapids Expected To Return to War Time

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 6.—Indications were tonight that Grand Rapids will be back in the war time fold Saturday. Four of the seven city commissioners indicated that they had reached their minds in the matter and requested a special session of the commission to reconsider the action anchoring the city on Eastern Standard time.

The commissioners turned about face after the executive committee of the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce adopted a resolution urging the city commission to adopt a time that will be universal throughout the Lower Peninsula.

Meanwhile, two western Michigan communities acted tonight to make their clocks conform with that of Grand Rapids. The Holland city commission and the Zeeland city council approved resolutions placing their communities on Eastern Standard time.

18 Left Dead As Tornado Strikes South

By The Associated Press

Out-of-season tornadoes, dipping destructively into widely-scattered sections of five southern states, left a toll yesterday of at least 18 dead, scores injured and widespread property damage.

The quick-striking windstorms hit sections of Arkansas and Mississippi Thursday night, then crossed on into Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia to add to the casualty list.

Georgia, where the storms whirled furiously shortly after noon Friday, was hardest hit with a toll of at least 12 killed and an undetermined number injured. Three were dead in Arkansas, two died in Alabama and one was killed in Mississippi. Scores were injured, many seriously, in these three states. Tennessee counted three hurt.

Little Rock Hard Hit

Numerous buildings were demolished in 17 communities in the central and east central portions of Arkansas. The Red Cross sent five disaster relief workers to aid in nine counties. The heaviest property loss was in the Little Rock business district.

Two negro women were killed in the collapse of a house near Russellville, Ala., and 22 were hurt in the storm's visit to that section. Six were in serious condition. More than 100 homes were damaged.

More than a score were injured and Mrs. T. M. Holland, of Palmetto, near Tupelo, Miss., was killed when a tornado struck there, sweeping over a 10-mile strip just north of East Tupelo at 2 a. m. Friday. Many houses and stores were flattened in a number of small communities.

Remember 1936 Tornado

Many residents of Tupelo, remembering the tornado of April 6, 1936, which killed more than 200 and injured some 1,500, stayed awake all night fearful of a repetition.

The Georgia dead included an 18-year-old wife, Mary Tankley Cleveland, her six-year-old brother and 10 negroes. The storm struck hard in several middle Georgia sections, even doing minor damage in Atlanta. A negro school teacher and three pupils were killed when the storm leveled a school near Monticello. Three negroes died when a church, where they were attending a farm meeting, collapsed.

At least four scattered towns in Tennessee—Cleveland, Columbia, Ardmore and Harriman—were visited by the storm. Two persons were injured, one seriously at Cleveland. Many homes were damaged.

Communication systems throughout the five states were badly disrupted.

State Tire Rationing Directors Held Meeting

CLEVELAND, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Seeking to clear up problems of automobile, tire and sugar rationing, and to establish a regional office to clear up some of them, state administrators from Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia met in conference here today.

The state representatives were called together by Paul Morton, field consultant of the Office of Emergency Management, who said the objective of the new setup would be to relieve Washington of administrative burden. Matters of policy and administration will filter to the new regional board through the local and state rationing boards. Morton said, but the Office of Price Administration in Washington will retain final authority.

Grange Told To Aid Other Farm Groups

EAST LANSING, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Michigan State Grange must keep community morale "at even keel" throughout the war crisis, C. V. Ballard, Michigan State college county agent leader, declared today at the closing session of farmers' week.

Ballard, addressing a Grange luncheon, asserted the farm organization must assume "a broad attitude towards war problems" but should be quick to act when farm production efforts "get jammed."

"As the pinch of sacrifice gets sharper, the Grange must aid other agencies in adjusting neighborhood sentiment, opinions and performances to meet new problems," he said. "The Grange must be a forum through which accurate, helpful information is channeled."

Milk Exports Held Up

Uninformed persons, he said, are charging that the condensed milk market has been glutted by mismanagement. "Truth of the matter is that exports to the Allies have been held up because of a present shortage of ships. We must be patient until authorities can work out this problem," Ballard said.

John Schreyer, of Hudsonville, was acclaimed the state onion king at the annual meeting of the Michigan Muck Farmers' association.

Schreyer was credited with a record production of 1,512 bushels of sweet Spanish onions on a measured acre. Second place winner in the gold medal class for production in excess of 1,000 bushels was John Madden, of Otsego, with 1,512 bushels. Otto Lynn, of Homer, was third with 1,025 bushels and Veril Baldwin, of Jackson, fourth with 1,001 bushels.

Russell G. East, agricultural agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad company, told the muck growers that the public has become "salad conscious" since the first World war. Between 1918 and 1938, he said, consumption of celery increased 308 per cent, asparagus 486, cauliflower 442, green beans 500, lettuce 503, spinach 558, Lima beans 646, carrots 640 and green peas 1,600.

Advertising Brought Increase

East said advertising was the greatest single factor in bringing about the increases, but that greater care in production, preparation and packing also provided impetus.

Winners in the 14th annual rural drama contest in which six district finalists competed were the Washenaw County Model Home-Makers, home economics club, first; the Branch County Rural Youth Bureau, second, and the Gladwin County Rural Youth Bureau, third.

Top honors in the "little international livestock show" went to Norvel Wiseloge, of Albion, and Robert McCrea, of McBrides, Michigan State college students. McCrea won the sweepstakes grand champion dairy showman trophy for his showing of an Ayrshire heifer. Wiseloge, exhibiting a chester white gilt pig, was the grand champion winner in the livestock sweepstakes. The awards were made by Betty Joan Wright, of Detroit, Michigan State college queen of agriculture.

Arthur Hunsberger, of Merritt, was the leading turkey exhibitor, winning first prize for the best heavy tom and hen.

MAN FOUND DEAD

MUSKEGON, Mich., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Ordered to report back to Camp Custer Monday for duty, Frank Flaska, 36, was found dead tonight in his room at the Bezuary hotel, Muskegon Heights. Coroner Thomas C. Clock said death was caused by a rifle wound in the head, apparently self-inflicted. Flaska had served three months in the Army last fall and was released because he was over the 28 year age limit.

Even Patriotism Must Have Limits

ROCKINGHAM, N. C.—(AP)—A man stopped by a state highway patrolman here for operating his automobile while under the influence of liquor protested vigorously. It was all for defense, he said. "Ya' know there's a big tax on liquor," he explained, "an' so I bought some so the Government would have more money for defense and as long as I had it I thought I might as well drink it—and furthermore you ain't patriotic if you arrest me!"

The cop was unapologetic.

"WHERE WINTER IS FUN"

City Employees Union Gets No Recognition

NEGAUNEE, Feb. 6.—Following the recommendation of a special committee appointed by Mayor Leslie W. Richards, the council last night adopted a resolution providing that city employees will retain their positions through seniority rights and will have a grievance committee to discuss labor problems with the council.

Adoption of the resolution followed several requests from the employees for recognition of their union, Local No. 333, of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

The resolution does not grant special privileges to union members, but applies to all city employees. It is effective only during the term of the present council, which will not prevent the hiring of new men in April and the discharge of present employees.

3 On Grievance Committee
The grievance committee will consist of three employees who will receive complaints of individuals and confer with a committee representing the council. If no agreement is reached by the committee, the individual will be entitled to a public hearing before the council.

The resolution does not recognize the group as a union with bargaining powers for all employees. Any citizen of Negaunee, regardless of whether he is a city employee or a union member, has the right to appear before the council at any meeting and make complaints.

Teachers To Issue Sugar Ration Books
supervision of local rationing boards, will personally supervise the registration of consumers, the issuance of books, and the removal of stamps from the books of persons having excess supply.

Recent Hoarding Considerable
"This action is necessary," Henderson said, "in order to place all sugar consumers on an equal footing. There has been a considerable amount of hoarding in recent weeks.

"Justice and fairness to all requires that those who have built up hoards be restrained from buying any more sugar until their stocks have been used up. The rationing plan we are developing will tend to insure this and to provide for equitable distribution of sugar in the future.

In the meantime every patriotic citizen should reduce his normal sugar consumption by at least a third. Those who have hoards should stop buying more sugar and start using up their hoards. Retailers should continue limiting sales to individuals until the formal rationing plan is in effect. And consumers should remember that the retailers are not responsible for the shortage."

Supply Cut One-Third
The rationing of sugar is absolutely necessary as a war measure, the price administrator emphasized. "The facts are that we can count now on only 5,300,000 tons of sugar this year as against 7,984,000 tons in 1941. This means a one-third reduction must be made in both household and industrial consumption."

Unofficial sources have estimated that the amount of hoarded sugar in family cupboards might range from 300,000 to 500,000 tons at this time, constituting a considerable factor in the supply shortage.

Henderson explained the major reasons for the decline in supply as being threefold: "Sugar cane is required to make molasses from which alcohol can be derived for manufacture of smokeless powder. Cutting down on sugar means more powder for our soldiers.

Imports Curtailed
"Secondly, imports from the Philippines have been cut off and those from Hawaii will probably be curtailed.

"Third, our Allies have lost some of their supply sources and will draw in part on some of our sources this year.

"For the first time every person in the country has an opportunity to make a direct contribution to the war by reducing his consumption of sugar. I am counting on every person to do his bit."

Other OPA officials said that supplies of sugar for home fruit packing and canning would be made available under some system to be worked out in future months. This problem will not become acute until fruit and vegetable crops begin to come in.

C. D. Sullivan Ousted As Tammany Hall Leader
NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Christopher D. Sullivan was ousted last night as leader of Tammany Hall—Manhattan's famous New York Democratic committee—by the slim vote of 12-1-2 to 11-1-3.

Telephone Booth Traps Policeman

Tables were turned on Policeman Patrick Walsh in Chicago when he was trapped by, of all things, a criminal courts building telephone booth. After he was freed, he re-enacted the incident (as shown) and got stuck again. Left: a colleague and a court clerk struggle to free the six-foot two-inch, 225-pound officer. Center: Walsh mops his brow as the window is taken out and the door is loosened. Right: Walsh, twice freed, sheepishly walks away.

National Whirligig

News Behind The News

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—President Roosevelt has ordered his wipers on Capitol Hill to delete the provision in the War Powers bill permitting the lawmaking body to recapture its extraordinary grant of authority whenever it deems that the crisis has expired. His stand threatens a sharp tussle with solons suspicious of his post-war plans and fanatically jealous of their peacetime prerogatives.

The measure as it passed the upper chamber imposes two limitations with respect to its life. The first stipulates that the waiver of ordinary restraints should die as of December 31, 1944. The second, and the more important, provides that Congress may strip the Executive of royal vestments by mere passage of a concurrent resolution, which does not require Presidential approval to become valid.

The Chief Magistrate feels strongly that alone should be the judge of the conditions under which he no longer needs freedom from legislative checks. But the people's representatives insist on retaining the right to take back as well as give away their democratic controls, especially as Mr. Roosevelt would enjoy more dominance over a country than Hitler or Stalin.

Appearing before a closed session of the House Judiciary group during consideration of the subject, Attorney General Biddle branded the offending paragraph as contrary to our national charter. He assailed it as an infringement on the President's office as Commander-in-Chief and sole arbiter of foreign policy. But the disputed verbiage was held constitutional by unanimous vote of a similar Senate committee, which consists of some of FDR's strongest supporters and the leading lawyers in the U. S. A.

OUTPOSTS—Congressmen who once screamed patriotically for the scalps of Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Major General Walter C. Short have lowered their voices with amazing unanimity. Both foes and friends of the official war record to date appear disposed to fall in with quiet arrangements for blocking a court-martial of the Oahu somnambulists.

While no final decision has been announced by Secretaries Stimson and Knox, they are inclined to abandon the matter of personal punishment for considerations recently suggested here—the fear of exhuming embarrassing ghosts and revealing Pacific defense plans to the enemy. Washington brass hats will defer formal judgment until they are assured that a hands-off policy will not precipitate popular or Congressional backfire. So far they detect no sign that cavalier treatment of the men adjudged "derelict" will cause a dangerous reaction.

Thoughtful members of both Houses, including those who first cried for the ultimate in disciplinary action, see nothing to be gained by lugubrious post-mortem. They believe that President Roosevelt has profited and been sobered by the lessons of Pearl Harbor, and the effect of sugar rationing illustrates the trend graphically—and the reasons for it. Corner grocers, mostly independents, receive only a small allotment of the previous commodity. They cannot handle demand. Chain stores obtain a relatively larger amount, but they do it out only to old traders. Therefore, figuring that the war may last a long time, housewives are deserting the little shops and hastening to establish themselves as preferred buyers at emporiums. Washington deplores the tendency but admits its helplessness.

RURAL—The sage of the House—Hutton Summers, of Texas—recently epitomized the fear with which many legislators will approach next fall's elections. Few have had any jobs to distribute since the war began in Europe and they must go before the voters empty-handed or laggard. "Reminds me of the Congressman who heard that one of his oldest friends was against him," drawled the Texan as he gossiped in the Capitol corridor. "The politician couldn't believe his ears, so he accosted his constituent. When he learned that his ancient backer had gone over to the other side, he exploded.

Humor—Always Dobbin and Fido have felt the impact of war, but these days almost every animal in a modern Noah's Ark is affected. The Bronx zoo is establishing a breeding station in an attempt to offset the loss of beasts it formerly received from the equatorial forests now in the battle zone. In case of air raids keepers will kill immediately the dangerous black panther, leopard, hyena, and giant chimpanzee.

Pigs will be called upon to furnish more hushes for paint brushes, which formerly came from Japan. One of the lend-lease items is veterinarian medicines for the horses dragging guns on sleds since the Russian winter froze the motors. Australians place snakes around their concentration camps to drive off rats. Canaries must diet since hoppers for paint brushes. One of the queerest animal stories comes from Holland. In occupied Rotterdam whenever the newspapers are compelled to print pictures of Hitler greeting Mussolini or Axis generals, the Dutch editors publish a collection of dog photos on the opposite page. The Gestapo has taken such offense that it issued decrees promising stern punishment to the next staff which uses this brand of humor.

SHREWD—Just as they crawled into the nearly impenetrable Malayan jungles to reach Singapore, now the tireless Japs are squirming through the tight passes of the Dawna mountains and swimming the swollen waters of the Salween river to gain sight of the famous Shwe Dagon pagoda's golden dome in Rangoon. Daredevil machine gunners and bombardiers are smashing their pontoons—but still they come on, until now they approach the gateway to the Burma Road and India.

Telephone Booth Traps Policeman

Tables were turned on Policeman Patrick Walsh in Chicago when he was trapped by, of all things, a criminal courts building telephone booth. After he was freed, he re-enacted the incident (as shown) and got stuck again. Left: a colleague and a court clerk struggle to free the six-foot two-inch, 225-pound officer. Center: Walsh mops his brow as the window is taken out and the door is loosened. Right: Walsh, twice freed, sheepishly walks away.

News Behind The News

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—President Roosevelt has ordered his wipers on Capitol Hill to delete the provision in the War Powers bill permitting the lawmaking body to recapture its extraordinary grant of authority whenever it deems that the crisis has expired. His stand threatens a sharp tussle with solons suspicious of his post-war plans and fanatically jealous of their peacetime prerogatives.

The measure as it passed the upper chamber imposes two limitations with respect to its life. The first stipulates that the waiver of ordinary restraints should die as of December 31, 1944. The second, and the more important, provides that Congress may strip the Executive of royal vestments by mere passage of a concurrent resolution, which does not require Presidential approval to become valid.

The Chief Magistrate feels strongly that alone should be the judge of the conditions under which he no longer needs freedom from legislative checks. But the people's representatives insist on retaining the right to take back as well as give away their democratic controls, especially as Mr. Roosevelt would enjoy more dominance over a country than Hitler or Stalin.

Appearing before a closed session of the House Judiciary group during consideration of the subject, Attorney General Biddle branded the offending paragraph as contrary to our national charter. He assailed it as an infringement on the President's office as Commander-in-Chief and sole arbiter of foreign policy. But the disputed verbiage was held constitutional by unanimous vote of a similar Senate committee, which consists of some of FDR's strongest supporters and the leading lawyers in the U. S. A.

OUTPOSTS—Congressmen who once screamed patriotically for the scalps of Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Major General Walter C. Short have lowered their voices with amazing unanimity. Both foes and friends of the official war record to date appear disposed to fall in with quiet arrangements for blocking a court-martial of the Oahu somnambulists.

While no final decision has been announced by Secretaries Stimson and Knox, they are inclined to abandon the matter of personal punishment for considerations recently suggested here—the fear of exhuming embarrassing ghosts and revealing Pacific defense plans to the enemy. Washington brass hats will defer formal judgment until they are assured that a hands-off policy will not precipitate popular or Congressional backfire. So far they detect no sign that cavalier treatment of the men adjudged "derelict" will cause a dangerous reaction.

Thoughtful members of both Houses, including those who first cried for the ultimate in disciplinary action, see nothing to be gained by lugubrious post-mortem. They believe that President Roosevelt has profited and been sobered by the lessons of Pearl Harbor, and the effect of sugar rationing illustrates the trend graphically—and the reasons for it. Corner grocers, mostly independents, receive only a small allotment of the previous commodity. They cannot handle demand. Chain stores obtain a relatively larger amount, but they do it out only to old traders. Therefore, figuring that the war may last a long time, housewives are deserting the little shops and hastening to establish themselves as preferred buyers at emporiums. Washington deplores the tendency but admits its helplessness.

RURAL—The sage of the House—Hutton Summers, of Texas—recently epitomized the fear with which many legislators will approach next fall's elections. Few have had any jobs to distribute since the war began in Europe and they must go before the voters empty-handed or laggard. "Reminds me of the Congressman who heard that one of his oldest friends was against him," drawled the Texan as he gossiped in the Capitol corridor. Most of these gigantic funds goes to salaries and routine organization expenses but in these days there is always plenty of golden ammunition to shoot when the voters are going to the polls.

COSSACK—Is Japan poised to strike the Muscovite even while she relentlessly forges ahead in the East Indies? General Tojo may not wait for Stalin to present Vlasov to U. Secret agents, who have managed to sneak from such Japanese-occupied cities as Harbin, Shanghai and Tientsin, report a symptom which may forecast an attack on the Soviet rear in Siberia.

Nippon's propaganda officials are paying special attention to the 100,000 residents of old Manchuria, Russia, and China who fled to the above-named places of refuge during the reign of terror which swept through Asia in the initial stages of the Bolshevik revolution. These third-rate czars and other exiles with Fascist ideas were living in various metropolitan areas when Allied troops took control. Now the "sons of heaven" have been angelic in the studied kindness shown these wanderers. Army officers are attempting to mold them into a militant anti-Comintern spearhead which will be extremely useful whenever military operations begin in the north.

Outstanding White Russians who have openly cast their lot with Hirohito's forces in Manchukuo are two Cossack adventurers, Rozdavsky and Semjenoff. Well-liked with yen, they have been sent out quietly to recruit their fellow Slavs. They are making promises of lucrative administrative positions when their native land is purged of Communists by the liberating armies of Bushido.

An interesting sidelight on the native mentality is found in recent reports of the Bengal & North-western railroad. The line runs through a province jammed with 50 million Hindus and Moslems. Stockholders complained that last year 315,247 passengers had been put off trains for not paying their fare—roughly 900 "gate-crashers" a day. AMBOINA CAPTURED?
The belief persisted that a Japanese aircraft carrier was operating somewhere in the Java sea between Borneo and Java because of fighter planes participating in the Soerabaja attacks.

(For the second straight day the Dutch made no mention of fighting at Amboina, second most important Dutch naval and air base 1,000 miles northeast of Soerabaja. Roundabout Tokyo reports claimed that Japanese landing forces had completely occupied the stronghold.)

Further reports from Soerabaja said the population appeared much calmer during yesterday's attack than in the first heavy raid on Tuesday. There were no signs of panic, and as soon as the all-clear sounded the city of almost 350,000 returned to its normal life.

The midnight Soviet communiqué merely reported "further advances" and fierce fighting in which the Germans suffered heavily. No battle areas were named.

For four days now Soviet communiques have noted increasing German aerial activity "on Moscow's approaches" with 32 Nazi planes destroyed in that period.

However, residents of this capital have heard no gunfire, nor have they had an alert in several weeks, indicating that the German airman never got very close to Moscow.

Some observers believed the Russians' failure to mention any specific gains for days was caused by a general Soviet pause to reorganize their shock troops and supply lines.

There were unconfirmed reports that the Russians had pierced German lines north and south of Kharkov, the Ukraine's second city, and also that some units were operating north of Mariupol, 50 miles west of the German Sea of Azov anchor at Taganrog.

Others disclosed that the Dutch delaying action was upset by failure of a plan to defend a stream behind the town with a fire set by oil spread on the water. The oil was ignited, but a heavy rain made it impossible to start an effective blaze, they said.

Of the 40 Japanese bombers and 20 fighters who attacked Soerabaja yesterday, the Dutch command said two fighters were shot down and "presumably two bombers." Three Dutch aircraft were lost. One pilot was killed and two are missing. Four civilians were wounded.

Washington's strategic experts were of the opinion that great as Japan's gains have been, the Pacific enemy has spread its forces so widely and so far that they are vulnerable at many points— if Allied planes and ships can be placed in position to strike against them.

Jap Weaknesses Listed
Japan's weaknesses, they said, were:

An army of some 2,000,000 men is stretched over an area so vast that supply and communication lines are open to attack at many points. The successful Allied attack on a convoy in Macassar straits illustrates this, as does the

Mayor Uses Veto Power; Pans Council

NEGAUNEE, Feb. 6—Mayor Leslie W. Richards last night used his power to veto for the first time in his four-year administration and the council, voting later at his request, upheld his majority by more than two-thirds majority.

The mayor's action followed the reading of a petition from Anthony Georgianni for appointment as police officer to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Russell Rogers, who has joined the police force of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company.

Mayor Richards said the job was being filled by Al Phillips, but that as long as petition had been presented it should be acted upon and the council should choose between Phillips and Georgianni.

Vote 5 To 4 For Georgianni

A secret, informal ballot was taken and Georgianni received five votes to four for Phillips. No motion was taken to make the ballot formal, whereupon the mayor informed the council that he vetoed its action. There was no comment and the council proceeded with other business.

Just before adjournment, Mayor Richards told the council that it had the power to over-ride him by a two-thirds majority vote of the aldermen present and he requested a vote on his veto.

Richards pointed out that Phillips had served as a relief officer during vacations, or when regular policemen were ill, and had been recommended by the police committee and the chief of police for appointment to fill the vacancy.

Following the mayor's statement, a second informal ballot was taken which resulted in seven votes for Phillips and two for Georgianni. The ballot was made formal, and by this action the council upheld the mayor's veto.

"Too many reports have come to me that this or that would have been done or would not have been done, if it hadn't been for Richards," the mayor said. "There are 10 aldermen and myself on this council and there is no alderman or any mayor who can tell this group what it must do. You each have a vote and it is up to you to cast it in this council chamber instead of remaining silent and complaining later in public. If you don't exercise your right to vote you certainly have no right to complain," he concluded.

Claims Rights To Slogan

Louis Fortman (above), Chicago printer, runs off "Remember Pearl Harbor" posters in his basement print shop after his attorney, Norman Gerlach, said Fortman had exclusive rights to the use of the slogan in Illinois under a state certificate. Fortman said he had no objection to use of the slogan for patriotic purposes but said he had threatened to sue a publication using it without his permission. (Associated Press Telemat)

Employees Of City Request Pay Increase

NEGAUNEE, Feb. 6—Following pay boosts granted to linemen of the city light department and clerks in the light and water department, six petitions asking similar increases were placed before the council last night.

Last spring the council granted wage increases for all city departments and when the pay of the linemen was boosted aldermen predicted a flood of similar requests. Subsequently clerks in the light department and the city recorder asked for a raise and although it was not recommended by the bonds and salary committee, it was granted to the clerks, but not the city recorder.

Last night requests for salary increases were received from the four fire truck drivers who now receive $120 a month; Henry Broad, city assessor, who is paid $75 a month; six engineers and six firemen at the water works who receive $120 a month; Edward C. Stevens, member of the electric crew who was not working because of injuries at the time the raise was granted other linemen; William T. Heggaton, superintendent of public works, who receives $185 a month; and Jacob H. Anderson, city recorder and clerk, who is paid $170 a month. Through the employees' union, Local No. 333, the employees asked for an increase of 12 1/2 per cent for those who have not received a boost recently.

Several aldermen were in favor of granting the requests at once. Alderman Theodore Lundstrom said he believed the matter could be settled in a few minutes by the salary committee. Other council members, however, said the committee should give the matter careful consideration. It was left in the hands of the committee with the understanding that a special meeting of the council would be called as soon as the committee's recommendations are prepared. The increase, if granted, would go into effect February 15.

City Police Arrested 11 Persons Last Month

NEGAUNEE, Feb. 6—The city police department reported 11 arrests in January. Two persons were arrested for being drunk and disorderly, two for being disorderly, two for being drunk and disorderly, one for vagrancy and two for parking violations.

Telephone calls totaled 143 and 41 complaints were received and investigated. One person was given first aid, 26 auto accidents were investigated, 14 days found open, five dogs shot and 61 lights reported out.

The report shows that 102 persons were given lodging in the city jail. Of that number 60 were residents of Negaunee and 42 non-residents.

Council Notes

Gust Johnson, of the Second Ward, was the only alderman absent from the meeting.

The mayor and city recorder were authorized to sign a lease with the Lake Shore and Ishpeming Railway company for easement on a right-of-way for installation of sewer pipe under the company's tracks adjacent to the Collins addition.

The New Amsterdam Casualty Insurance company, of Baltimore, Md., was awarded the city compensation insurance through the National Agency, Inc., local agents of the company.

uniform for Bertol Agnoli, new member of the fire department.

The sexton at the cemetery reported 17 burials during January.

Dr. N. J. Robbins, city health officer, reported two cases of chickenpox, one of scarlet fever and one of pulmonary tuberculosis during January.

Mrs. John Scanlon and Mrs. Albin Romo were given exemption from payment of water bills.

It was voted to appropriate $100 for an advertisement in the Upper Peninsula Lure book for 1942.

The report of the municipal court for January shows four persons committed to the county jail and court costs of $18.20 charged to the county. Eight criminal cases were handled and one person held to circuit court. There were no garnishments or civil cases. Fines collected amounted to $20 and court costs $11.

It is said that color blindness occurs in three to four per cent of men, and 0.3 per cent of women.

In 1940 United States exports to Latin America increased 31 per cent over 1939.

Fire Loss Small In Negaunee In January

NEGAUNEE, Feb. 6—The January report of Dominic Motto, Negaunee fire chief, shows that the department answered 13 alarms during the month.

There were nine chimney fires, one oil burner fire, one house fire and one gasoline station flaze and the department was called to the Finnish Lutheran church at Gwinn when that structure was destroyed by fire. The fire trucks traveled 63 miles and 1,110 feet of hose were laid. The total fire damage in Negaunee was $1,450 and $1,300 was covered by insurance.

Benefit Show Pleased Big Audience at School

MUNISING, Feb. 6—Blackface Opera, starring a home talent cast of minstrel show performers, was presented before an audience of 500 persons in Mather high school auditorium last night as a benefit for St. John's Episcopal Guild.

Quips, music and fancy dance steps were reeled off by the 16-man company under the supervision of Benjamin Zastrow, interpreter. Bud Kincaid, Ernest Koehn, Frank Tiernan, Vernon Florida, Verl Willis and William Dore, as endmen, "pulled" gags and sang novelty songs which were well received. Surprise numbers were staged by Eugene Richards, who sang "Piccinny Lullaby" and gave an imitation of Donald Duck; Pat Gattis, tap dancer, and Stanley Cashneau, who played a banjo solo. Music accompaniment for the minstrel show was played by Bill Bauman's orchestra. Mrs. G. M. Evans and Mrs. Henry Korpela appeared in a pre-curtain comedy stunt in the audience and the Mather high school pep band furnished music before the stage show, which was directed by Mrs. E. S. Walters.

In a final patriotic tableau, John Scholtes, formerly of the U. S. Army, Charles Ames, Jr., who is home on furlough from Navy service, and Miss Monica Parker took part.

Dairy Income Up

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(AP)—Milk, cream and butter brought more money to American farmers than any other products in 1941. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, dairy products made up 17 per cent of the cash farm income from the sale of all crops and livestock combined.

Railroad Issues Join Retreat On Stock Market

Early Gains Soon Turned Into Losses

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Wavering stocks of yesterday backed down further in today's market and even the recently buoyant rails joined the retreat.

Efforts to revive the list at the start met with only faint response and modest early advances soon were turned into declines. While selling urgency was lacking throughout, closing recessions ranged from fractions to around two points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 3/4 of a point at 37.9. Transfers of 431,960 shares compared with 440,140 Thursday.

Among depressed stocks Du Pont dipped to a new 1941-42 low. On the losing end included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Anaconda, American Telephone, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Consolidated Edison, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, American Can and International Harvester.

Rail Bonds Slip

Western Union was one of the few favorites finishing with a modest improvement. Others were Radio Corp., General Foods and Corn Products.

Rail bonds slipped with stocks and other loan groups were mixed. At Chicago wheat was off 7/8 to 1-1/8 cents a bushel and corn down 7/8 to 1-1/4. Cotton steadied at the last and ended up 25 cents a bale to off 15 cents.

In the curb Todd Shipyards conceded three points, South Penn Oil 1-1/2 and American Cyanamid 1-3/4. Lesser casualties were American Gas, Electric Bond & Share, Gulf Oil, Humble Oil and Pennrod. Fitchburgh Engine and Pantoper improved. Turnover here was around 70,000 shares versus 89,000 the day before.

Grain Prices Continue To Swing Lower

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Grain prices were in retreat again today, losing one to almost two cents a bushel in a market which traders said was depressed partly by developments in connection with the Government's wheat and corn selling program. Soybeans fell more than three cents.

Grain men said much trade attention was centered on Government disposal of large quantities of wheat as feed, which has been depressing feed prices in general, directly affecting all grains. The market also was forced to absorb hedging and profit-taking sales, with processing and other consuming interests holding back waiting to see what the ultimate effect of the Government program will be as far as prices are concerned.

Wheat reached the lowest levels in about a month, closing 7 1/2 to 1-3/8 cents lower than yesterday. Loopholes In Irish Border For Axis Spies

By William B. King

LONDON, Feb. 6—(Wide World)

Loose control of the frontier between Northern Ireland and Eire, which leaves loopholes for possible enemy agents to report to Axis legations in Dublin, is a matter of deep concern to Northern Ireland officials.

"This easy entry into Northern Ireland is a danger that does not seem to be appreciated in this country," Sir Wilson Hungerford, parliamentary secretary of the Northern Ireland commerce ministry, declared in an interview. "We in Northern Ireland, however, do realize it and we want it stopped."

Police inspect identification papers and baggage when one crosses the border at main highways, with only a cursory glance at identity cards and a request for the traveler's assurance he isn't carrying contraband.

Anyone Can Obtain Cards

He declared that identity cards, required of all persons living in the United Kingdom, can be obtained by anyone coming into Northern Ireland—"then he is safe and can move between Eire and Northern Ireland as he wishes."

Those familiar with Irish affairs say, however, that Eire is cooperating closely to eliminate the greatest potential source of spy activity, particularly in the drive against the outlawed Irish Republican party.

This organization, which has been only of a close alliance with Nazi agents, is being watched carefully by the Eire government, and already several hundred alleged members have been interned.

U. S. Buying Trailers From Michigan Concerns

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Hundreds of trailers are being ordered from Michigan companies for use in the Government's temporary shelter program.

Carl L. Bradt, director of the program in the division of defense housing coordination, advised Senator Brown (D-Mich) today that the trailer coach industry, like the automobile industry, centered in Michigan and that many orders were going to the state.

The Senator was informed that 2,325 trailers had been purchased recently from Michigan concerns and that similar contracts were to be awarded soon.

The American Coach Co., Casopolis, was awarded a contract for 600 trailers; the Roycraft Coches, Chesaning, 300; the Kozy Coach Co., Kalamazoo, 300; Zimmer Boat and Trailer Co., Detroit, 300; Alma Trailer Co., Alma, 750; and the Palzse Travel Coach Co., Flint, 1,075.

Crop Results Depend Upon Labor Supply

Michigan farmers feel they can cope with war crop problems unless further labor losses are suffered, extension workers attending the 27th annual farmers' week program at Michigan State college in East Lansing this week were told.

Marquette is represented by Clare A. Rood and Miss Marcella Meyer, assistant state 4-H club leaders; the Misses Helen Strow and Olga Ludwig, home extension leaders, and D. L. Clananan, MSC crops specialist in the Upper Peninsula.

L. R. Walker, county agricultural agent, is ill at his home in Marquette and unable to attend the conference.

Representative agriculturists, participating in a "free-for-all" discussion of 1942 problems, asserted they planned no changes in crop plantings unless forced to do so by lack of help.

An "Excellent Job"

L. E. Osmer of the Michigan Elevator Exchange said he was certain Michigan can grow and harvest 770,000 acres of navy beans in 1942. He said state farmers were doing an "excellent job" of marketing beans under the recent production step-up and that six million bags of beans were handled in 1941 without glutting the market.

Osmer said that even if 1942 production brought an 18-bushel crop compared with a 13 1-2 bushel yield from 740,000 acres harvested last year, elevators could handle the volume if it was uniformly marketed.

Dairy farmers agreed that in view of the labor shortage, it would be more feasible to increase volume from present cow herds than to attempt to enlarge herds to meet an eight per cent increase in production sought by the Federal Government this year.

Soil Experiment Necessary

C. M. Harrison, of the Michigan State college farm crops department, said that "seedling in" of such a crop as alfalfa with corn might be attempted as a substitute for crop rotation, but warned that soil experiment was necessary.

Louis Allais, Paw Paw farmer, reported successful alfalfa-corn plantings for the past six years on 28-acre plots. Best harvest from the combination, he said, was 50 bushels of corn per acre and a ton and a half of dry hay.

Harrison suggested, as a means of growing crops with less labor, "concentrated early work" which would eliminate later hoeing cultivating and weeding.

A. R. Mangus, professor of rural sociology at Ohio State university, discussing "morale in the local community," declared that war had accentuated "problems of health, child welfare and family welfare." He said the first World War afforded a commendable pattern for morale building, but warned against fanning of "extreme emotion and community hatreds such as occurred in 1917."

"Antidote To Mass Hysteria"
He said communities should maintain "public forums, because open discussion is the antidote to mass hysteria."

Meanwhile, the Michigan Cattle Breeders' association formally protested against a labor dispute at the Detroit stockyards, charging the Michigan Livestock Exchange was prevented from "doing business by the teamsters' union-AFL." It requested Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, Governor Van Wagener, Lieut. Col. Harold A. Furlong, state defense administrator, and Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, of Detroit, "to use your influence to re-establish their business pending mediation."

War Nutrition
Dr. Helen Mitchell, principal nutrition for the office of production management, said that "just good food and plenty of it" will solve the nation's war nutrition problem.

Miss Mitchell asserted that "there is no need for a spectacular vitamin industry in this country if we develop proper food habits."

To bolster the defense program, she said, persons in the low income bracket must obtain sufficient milk, vegetables, fruits and eggs. "You can't take people off relief rolls, place them in war industries and expect them to be efficient and accurate," she stated.

Dr. Mitchell said that if family heads earning less than $100 a month were to receive the same beneficial foods obtained by higher salaried workers, "there soon would be a shortage in food supplies."

Science Helped Nazis
"There would not be food surpluses today if the nation as a whole was properly fed in recent years," she continued.

Dr. Mitchell attributed the "excellent" physical condition of Nazi soldiers to the fact the German nation has applied "scientific nutrition" in the development of its armed forces.

England, she said, was slow in adopting nutrition values but now is feeding canned tomatoes to submarine personnel and vitamin A foods to aviators to increase their stamina.

Lieut. Col. Harold A. Furlong, state defense administrator, also addressed the farmers, tracing the expansion of Michigan's civilian defense program.

The farmers' week program closes today.

Slayer of Daughter To Get Sanity Hearing

DETROIT, Feb. 6—P—Mrs. Mary Bennett, 34, Lincoln Park mother who pleaded guilty here today to a charge of first degree murder in the strangling of her eight-year-old daughter, Patricia Ann, will be given a sanity test, Circuit Judge Ira W. Jayne announced.

The court took the woman's plea under advisement, pending appointment of counsel for her. A commission will be named to determine Mrs. Bennett's sanity, the court ruled.

DOC IN DANGER
CHAPTER XXIX

The lieutenant in charge came over to the shack and hammered on the door with the butt of his revolver.

"Mr. Oliver," Doc said. "Stand away." Doc said. "State police. You're under arrest."

"Can you protect us?" "Yes, sir. Come out, both of you."

"Swooby isn't here. There's no one but Mrs. Baumer and me." He stepped out. What happened next, I don't rightly know. There was a rush and some police shots, fired into the ground, and free-for-all fighting between the Wellivers and the mob, with the footballers chucking rules into the discard and doing nicely. One of the police cars unraveled itself and put off with Doc between the Loot and another cop. The two that were left hustled me over to the mansion. One of them, a nice young fella with a Fuller brush pompadour, asked me:

"Where's the man you were protecting, ma'am?" "He got away. In my clothes."

"That's good," he said. "He didn't do it. We got the man that did, a red-headed hobo, about half-witted. He's confessed."

"Where are they taking Doc Oliver?" "To Brandon jail."

"Will he be safe there?" "He shrugged. "That's up to the sheriff, ma'am."

Juddy came up and hugged me. "Oh, Mom!" she said. "What about Maurie?" "Dr. Starrow's taken him to the Leverton hospital."

"Is it bad?" "I'm afraid so. We're waiting to hear."

"Where's Angel? I didn't see him in the come-all-ye."

She turned to Rags and Tatters Owen who had been in the thick of it and needed repairs. "Well, where is Angel?"

That vaudeville team "put on their best dust style. "I don't know," they both said together, and then, each to the other, "Well, where is he?"

"You needn't answer," Juddy said. "I know. He's drunk. He would be when I needed him. Hendy, too, I suppose."

"Not me," Hendy Kent poked his head in at the doorway. It was wrapped in a dirty, white bandage. "Somebody sidswipped me with a tire-wrench," he said.

You never can tell about folks. That's what makes life so interesting. I'd have bet that pampered son of the rich would run a mile to sidstep a fight. Juddy said:

"Come here and let me fix it." I gave her something to do while we were waiting. At two o'clock we had word from the hospital. Maurie was unconscious. Every hour we telephoned. No change. Tambay didn't get much sleep that night. To pass the time, I told Juddy about the old Tambay document I'd found, and the gold ornaments. She wasn't even interested.

"I don't need any proofs that I've been a fool about Loren," she said.

"What price Angel, now?" I said. "Poor Angel!" she said.

"That's all right," I said, "so long as you don't get too sympathetic and mix everything up for yourself."

"Mom," she said, "does Hendy remind you of someone?" "Me?" I said. "No, what's the catch? Why should he?"

"Think again." "Then all of a sudden it hit me. Well, by thissenthat, it's Angel! Hendy's a pocket edition of him. They even look alike. Why they even think alike!"

"Now do you get it, about Angel and me?" "I do not. Once bit, twice shy, I'd have thought."

"Mom, you're dumb." "O. K. I'm dumb. But I wouldn't be dumb enough, after I'd married one of a kind and found it was a flop, to take on another just like him."

"That's the point. Angel was never any danger." "No? What was?"

"Hendy, of course. I thought you understood that before." "You told me you were cured of him."

"Hendy himself was no temptation. The temptation was his money. You know the homeopathic principle, like cures like. Angel was a counter-irritant, or whatever they call it. The more I saw of him, the better I realized what a boob I'd be to go back to Hendy."

I gawped at her. "But unless you're stuck on Angel—"

"I'm not. I never was. But I'm sorry for him."

"So am I. I think you gave him a dirty deal, Juddy."

"No, it was all fair enough. When he couldn't get me any other way, he wanted to marry me. I never pretended, with him. He just took everything for granted."

"You stuck up for him against Loren Oliver?" "My theory was that Loren was being unnecessarily tough with Angel, and I wasn't going to stand by and see him put it over."

"I get it. The gal bought a god. Anyone that won't protect her own property is no true woman, huh?"

Juddy grinned. "Something like that," she said.

Two washed-out females wobbled over to the Feederia for breakfast. Crossing the road I caught sight of something at the lower turn that jarred a gasp out of me. Juddy saw it, too; a figure swinging from Tambay Tree.

Old Swooby—I thought. Before I could stop her, Juddy was off, running like a deer. When I caught up, she was leaning against the fence, panting and gulping with laughter that was kind of sick.

"It's a dummy," she said. The thing swung around in the wind. A placard was pinned to its front. It was lettered in big, ugly print:

OLIVER YOUR NEXT
Was I glad to see Old Swooby and Dolf when they showed up at about 10 o'clock! They were caked with mud, and all in from their push through the swamps.

"Is it bad?" "I'm afraid so. We're waiting to hear."

"Where's Angel? I didn't see him in the come-all-ye."

She turned to Rags and Tatters Owen who had been in the thick of it and needed repairs. "Well, where is Angel?"

That vaudeville team "put on their best dust style. "I don't know," they both said together, and then, each to the other, "Well, where is he?"

"Mom," she said, "does Hendy remind you of someone?" "Me?" I said. "No, what's the catch? Why should he?"

"Think again." "Then all of a sudden it hit me. Well, by thissenthat, it's Angel! Hendy's a pocket edition of him. They even look alike. Why they even think alike!"

"Now do you get it, about Angel and me?" "I do not. Once bit, twice shy, I'd have thought."

When Swooby heard about Doc Oliver he went haywire. He was all for taking Juddy's gun and staging a one-man jailbreak. I had to threaten to lock him into the stockade.

Dr. Starrow stopped in on his way to Brandon. Maurie was about the same. He had an outside chance.

"We may have to operate," he said. "Will you telephone us?" Juddy said.

"If it's successful." "And if it isn't?" I said. "We'll hold back the news as long as we can. To save Oliver. They're organizing to break into the jail and get him if Maurie dies."

"Can't the sheriff stop them?" He chuckled. "He's up for election next year," he said.

Over in the camp, Hendy Kent was pattering around his helicopter, readying it up to leave. "I wish you'd stick around till tomorrow, Hendy," I told him. "I might have use for you."

Somehow or other Doc Oliver had to get out of that jail if things went wrong at the hospital. That's when I figured Hendy's machine would come in handy.

"Right-o, Mom," he said. "Yours to command."

All the morning we waited for news. All we got was rumors. By afternoon I couldn't stand it any longer. I hopped in the car, saying nothing to Juddy, and beat it for Brandon. The sheriff was at the jail.

"What can I do for you, Mrs. Baumer?" he said, very polite and official.

"You ought to get around more, sheriff," I said. "Don't you know they're all set to lynch Loren Oliver?"

"That's all talk. Brandon's a law-abiding community."

"And the Hanging Tree bears crab-apples, I suppose."

"Sears ain't dead."

"No. But he's liable to die tonight or sooner."

"I can't help that," he said. "You'll have to excuse me now. I've got an emergency call out in the country."

I could have kicked his pants, he looked so stuffy and important.

So's to leave the coast clear for the lynchers," I said. "If you can't hold the jail, why don't you send for the troopers?"

"Am I crazy?" he said. "They already shot the toes off three-four of our folks last night. Listen, ma'am; it's like this. If the crowd comes here after Oliver—well, suppose some of them gets killed?"

"Listen, yourself, Mowry," I said. "We've got to get Oliver out of there. If you'll manage it, Juddy'll cut you in for your 25 per cent on the gold proposition."

He favored me with that pig's-eye squint of his. "What guarantee have I got of that?"

"I'll guarantee it. Why wouldn't I?"

"You ain't the owner of Tambay," he said. "What about her?"

"Juddy would give up every cent in the world to save Loren Oliver," I said.

Munising High School Cagers Hand Newberry Season's First Loss

Algers Take Heavy End Of 36-33 Count

NEWBERRY, Feb. 6.—(Special to The Mining Journal)—Newberry high school's imposing string of basketball victories was snapped here tonight when the invading Mather squad, of Munising, outpointed the Indians in two periods and smeared a last-minute offensive thrust to beat Coach DeCook's boys, 36-33.

It was the Indians' first defeat in seven starts. They went down fighting stubbornly after the Orange and Black had emerged from the first half one point to the good. The count at the end of the second stanza was 19-18 for Munising and the Indians opened the third quarter with a drive that appeared to spell trouble for the visitors. Munising's offensive play, however, continued to produce the most pay dirt and the Matherians hung up three more points than their opponents to make the score 29-25 as they went into the last session.

Alger Defense Holds

That final period was one of the most exciting Newberry fans have witnessed in some time. The Indians turned on all their power, but the best they could do was not enough. They took up only one point of the four-point slack as the Alger defense stood its ground.

Steinhoff and Elavsky, with 12 each, were high scorers for Munising. Each made five field baskets. Charlebois racked up three from the field. Zagelemer and Kettvirias made 11 each for the DeCook clan.

In a preliminary the Newberry B team defeated the Munising B's, 31-19. Summary of main game:

Beers Again Take Lead In Crib League

They're back on top. Yes, seven other teams in the Marquette Cribbage league managed to keep the Pfeiffer Beers, winners of first round honors, from the leading post for only one week, but in the latest matches the Beers defeated the American Legion by 433 holes, 13,683 to 13,250, and recaptured that coveted position.

Cheering news to many pegging enthusiasts, however, is the comeback being made by the Knights of Columbus. Forced to stumble around in the second division much of the opening round, the Old-Timers have regained their form of previous seasons and are trailing the Pfeiffer by only 57 holes. In this week's contests they defeated the Elks, 13,829 to 13,317.

In other matches the Independents took over third place with a 13,668 to 13,608 victory over the Fitzer Beers and the K. of C. Colts won from the Marquette Service, 13,471 to 13,292.

High score of the four matches was pegged by two duos—Stark and L. Vadnais, of the Pfeiffer, and F. Chopp and J. Rose, of the Old-Timers.

All members of league teams are reminded that matches for next Tuesday night will be played as scheduled. Any team not showing up will forfeit the match.

Team standings: Pfeiffer Beers 41,221; K. of C. Old-Timers 41,164; Independents 40,910; American Legion 40,897; Fitzer Beers 40,728; E. C. Colts 40,659; Elks 40,471; Marquette Service 40,207.

Mangrum Sets Fast Pace In Western Open

By Robert Myers
PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 6.—(P)—Heading a wrecking crew of 22 par-busters, lanky, unheralded Lloyd Mangrum, of Chicago, set a spectacular pace through the first round of the $5,000 Western Open today with a six under par 65.

Overlooked in the pre-tournament predictions, Mangrum threw a scare into the big-name delegation when he moved into a commanding two-stroke lead over Benny Hogan, golfing a mighty mile, and a larger advantage over other more highly rated professionals competing in this 42nd edition of the Western.

Hogan Took Early Lead
Mangrum, who tied for low score of all the professionals in the recent $5,000 Bing Crosby tournament in California, blistered the first nine with 31, five under, and came on in with a 34, one under regulation figures for the Phoenix Country club course.

Berardino, Chaves Find Out About Army Flying Cadets

By JERRY McLAINE

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 6.—Two of the better athletes who are learning the intricacies of flying at U. S. Army aviation cadets are Johnny Berardino and Martin Chaves.

Berardino was the brilliant shortstop of the St. Louis Browns. He played his college baseball at Southern California.

Chaves, a guard, started 1942 by captaining an underdog Oregon State football team to a translucent Rose Bowl victory over Duke in Durham.

Today the two are undergoing basic training at Williams Field near here.

It's easy to see why flying would appeal to the two young men. The romantic, devil-may-care sort of life is made to order for athletes.

To date they have found little glamor, however, and they're too busy for devil-may-care.

Army aviation cadets are drilling these days—marching, close order drill and routine for six hours a day at reception or replacement centers.

Uncle Sam intends to make well-rounded men of aviation cadets, judging by the report of an Arizona boy assigned to a replacement center. From his description, cadets are due for a rigid training program.

"You have to learn to speak, eat, walk and sleep all over again—in the West Point way," explains the trainee.

"It will be nice to be an officer so I can use a chair again to sit in while I eat."

"Right now it amounts to squatting at attention, using the chair as a prop. We use only the front four inches and use only one arm during the process of eating, the other being held stiffly down at your side—not daintily draped across your lap."

"And the plate! Well, it's no longer a plate. It's a clock. When you're eating, the knife is parallel to the edge of the table, edge toward the eater, at 12 o'clock fashion. Your glass is also at 12, cup at 3 o'clock and bowl, if any, at 3 o'clock. When you're eating the knife, fork and spoon are placed side by side on a line from 4 to 10 o'clock, with the edge of the knife toward the eater, and the napkin over at 9. The plate then is properly 'dressed'."

"There's plenty of good stuff to eat. Everything from pickles and olives to ice cream."

"The more 'sirs' you can throw into your speech the better you get along. When you speak to an upperclassman you begin with a 'sir' and end with a 'sir'."

"When he asks your name, the reply is: 'Sir, now aviation cadet, Jones, J. J., sir'—nothing else. When he asks your serial number, you'd better know it, and zeroes are zeroes, not 'oh's'."

"To walk the air corps way you keep in cadence with everyone else, swinging your arms six inches forward and three inches backward. To get cadets out of the habit of walking normally, they begin by prohibiting our swinging our arms at all, pinching the seams of our trousers if necessary."

"We drill about three hours every morning and afternoon, with 10 minutes to rest between each hour. Following evening mess, we have until 8:30 to get to the post exchange for a coke, cigarette or stamps or to visit around the post. 'By 8:30 everyone must have signed back in for the night.'"

It Can Happen Here! Ski Snow Has Been Found

Sports Editor, Mining Journal:

The skeptics may laugh but the weekly hikers are going to combine and trek on this Sunday afternoon with some real ski-riding. One of their sleuths has uncovered a bowl of beautiful snow, long enough and deep enough in spots to provide tricky practice for the experts, with plenty of rolling slopes for the uninitiated.

Like the fishermen with their hidden deep pools filled with striking beauties, we divulge this spot to no one. But all who love the open spaces on the sliding hickories should join the gang in Superior Hills and be ready to shove off at 2 p. m. sharp.

We hike for less than an hour to this miniature Sun Valley where sitzmark contests will hold sway for an hour or more and then back to the start in Superior Hills by 5 p. m. We guarantee good skiing! Everybody is invited to come along. Most of the group are beginners and it's loads of fun. Physical fitness is the appeal of national defense and all can combine this duty with a sporting good time on our hikes. Painesdale, Sentinels Meet Sunday

The Marquette Sentinels, idle since Tuesday when they thrilled a season's record crowd of 2,100 fans here by beating the Soo, 7-4, will battle the Painesdale Chiefs in Houghton tomorrow afternoon.

At the same time the Calumet-Laurium Olympics will take on the Soo Indians in the Pullar Stadium at Sault Ste. Marie. Taffy Abel's team has been strengthened by the addition of two new men, Pat Wilson and Red McClure.

Wilson and McClure joined the Soo squad just before the Northern Michigan league deadline for the addition of new players. The deadline was Thursday, February 5. All teams must finish the season with the talent they now have on hand. No new players can be added.

Wilson is well known to Soo fans, having played in the Lock City before. McClure opened the current season with the Baltimore Orioles in the Eastern Amateur circuit. He hails from Winnipeg.

Next home game on tap for the Sentinels is the Calumet-Laurium encounter here Tuesday night. The Olympics have been going great guns since Johnny Whittaker joined the squad.

Former Stars Battle Bruins To 4-4 Tie

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—Varying degrees of their old-time uncanny skill and terrific speed were demonstrated by 16 of the greatest players of the National Hockey League's modern era tonight as they waged a 4-4 tie with the world championship Boston Bruins in a 39-minute exhibition charity game before an overflow crowd of 14,622 at the Boston Garden.

Such famous forward combinations as the New York Rangers' Frankie Boucher, Bill and Bun Cook, the Toronto Maple Leafs' Joe Primeau, Charlie Conacher and Busher Jackson, and the Detroit Red Wings' Marty Barry, Larry Aurie and Herbie Lewis were reunited in their old time formations.

Protecting them were such defensive immortals as Eddie Shore, Boston's greatest hockey hero; Red Horner, the crowd's pet hate when he was campaigning with the Maple Leafs; George Owen, Harvard's only gift to major league hockey, and the bigger Cy Wentworth, once of Montreal's Canadiens.

Boston's beloved Tiny Thompson protected the all-stars' net and he did it so well that he kicked out 10 of the 14 shots the non-pressing Bruins managed to fire at him during the Army relief fund benefit.

The all-stars' scoring honors were gained by Bill Cook, who tallied twice after being set up by Hooley Smith, the erstwhile New York American's representative, and Spare Forward Owen and Busher Jackson.

Big Ovation for Shore
Horner ignited the spark for the all-stars' last pair of tallies with his aggressive rushing and Primates set the scoring stages for both Owen and the elder Jackson. Shore, still active with his Springfield American league club, gave the crowd many thrills by enacting some of his bull-like rushes. He was the last of the all-stars to be introduced and when he stepped onto the ice, the crowd gave him an ovation as thunderous as any he received during his spectacular career as a Bruin.

The receipts, which are to be turned over to the U. S. Army relief fund, were expected to exceed $14,000, a sum that Maj.-Gen. Thomas A. Terry, commandant of the First Corps area, described as "the largest single gift" in its history.

Eben Quint Wins, 32-24, Over Baraga

EVEN, Feb. 6.—Shutout the first period, the Eben high school quintet suddenly found itself in the second quarter and made a near-walkaway with its game here tonight against the Baraga Parochials of Marquette. Eben won, 32-24.

Forward Salmi set the pace for the Eben five piling up 14 points for top scoring honors. Baraga's scoring was widespread with eight of nine players making the point column, but it wasn't enough to offset the fine work of Salmi and his mates.

Ross and Johnson, center and guard, respectively, dipped in eight points to help the cause. Kuhn, Baraga forward, led them with their second high honors.

Started Out Strong

Baraga started out like it meant business by getting four points while holding Eben scoreless the first period, but it was only the calm before the storm. Eben rang up 14 points in the second session to seven for Baraga and outscored the visitors 15-5 in the second half.

The Marquette team held its own in the finale but the damage had been done.

In preliminary games, Eben "B" defeated Baraga "B", 26-15, and the Eben junior high school team topped Howard school (Marquette), 26-9.

Palmer Wins 23rd Straight At Republic

REPUBLIC, Feb. 6.—Palmer kept its victory string intact here tonight, but the Class E Upper Peninsula champions at least had a scare before they went home with a 42-34 triumph over a hard-fighting Republic crew. It was Palmer's 23rd straight victory.

In the waning moments of the last quarter, Republic drew up to 35-32, and Coach Elvin Niemi of the Palmer squad, was beginning to ponder a bit about the possibility of that string being broken. Whereupon, he sent his regulars back in to save the game—and that they did.

Republic trailed Palmer by only 21-19 at the half. The visitors went to two in the third quarter, however, posting 12 points to four for Republic. The home five outscored Palmer, 11-9, in the finale.

In a preliminary battle, the Republic "B" squad topped the Palmer second-stringers, 12-11.

Michigan State Defeats Cincinnati Five, 36-30

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 6.—Michigan State Spartans turned on the steam in the second half to outdistance Cincinnati's Bearcat cagers, 36-30, in a sloppily played but hard fought game here tonight.

Both teams missed fire on many shots, but the visitors wound up the half with a 13-11 lead. The Bearcats tied the score at the start of the second half and managed to get in front, 17-16, but the Spartans ducked it at 17-16 and went ahead, never to be overhauled.

Joe Gerard paced the Spartans with six field goals and a free throw, while Nate Kakaboff, sophomore Bearcat forward, led his team with eight points.

Chet Atubuchon bolstered his point total with five free throws in as many attempts and caged a field goal for a total of seven points—second high individual Spartan performance. His fine floor work sparked the Michigan State attack.

Greatest Skating Find

Dorothy Goos . . . fancy split jump.

By BURTON BENJAMIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A blonde, 13-year-old New Yorker, who started to skate because she wanted to be like Sonja Henie, today is rated as the most likely successor to her famous dimpled inspiration.

Four years ago, Dorothy Goos saw her first Henie movie and like many an imaginative youngster went into raptures.

She pictured herself, regaled in the colorful garb, twisting, swirling across the ice. It became an obsession, a peculiarly difficult one for a 9-year-old who had never even been on skates.

A few days later, while strolling with her mother in Rockefeller Plaza, Dorothy stopped at the ice rink to watch the skaters.

Soon she had rented a pair of skates and with the aid of an instructor took her first faltering steps. Ten minutes later she scooted along by herself.

"Remarkable," gasped the instructor. "He was indeed prophetic. Has No Parallel."

That was four years ago. Today they are calling Dorothy Goos the most phenomenal skating prodigy ever produced in this country. At her present rate of development, critics predict the Bronx miss will be the finest figure skater the world has ever known.

Listen to her coach, Willie Boeckl, world champion from 1925 to 1928:

"She learns so rapidly it takes your breath away. She is a wonderful free-skater and an accomplished figure skater. She is studious, she is talented, and she carries her charm right on the ice. Some day she will make them believe it."

Her progress has no parallel.

There are eight figure skating tests required of a gold medal skater. Most novices will settle for one successful test each year. Three is unusual.

Dorothy passed five tests last year, an unprecedented number. She has completed seven in all, will hurdle her final barrier this year.

She won her first championship in 1939, the Mid-Atlantic novice, after finishing second in the Eastern novice.

In 1940 she won the Eastern novice and Mid-Atlantic juniors. The following year she won the Eastern juniors and National novice crowns. She has already copped the Eastern senior in 1942 and is gunning for the National junior in Chicago, Feb. 19-21.

Boeckl is bringing her along slowly. While some believe she is ready for the National seniors, her coach prefers to wait until next year.

Negaunee Host Tonight To Newberry

NEGAUNEE, Feb. 6.—Coach Red Sugden's Negaunee squad will meet Newberry here Saturday night in an attempt to pull itself back into the win column after dropping the last two games to Iron River and Soo.

The Miners had little chance to show what they could do in the Iron River game as Erkilla was put out of the game on fouls in the first two minutes of play and with the exception of a few minutes in the third and fourth quarter, Nichols did not play because of an injury.

Against the Blue Devils last week the team did not function well, and the Soo quintet showed vast improvement over its performance here the first of the season.

Although Newberry is favored to win, the Miners are determined it will be a battle and realize that if they are to stand a chance in the district tournament they will have to show improvement.

Coach Sugden has been working the squad on recovery of rebounds and stressing shooting practice. During the last five games the Negaunee squad has had a below-average mark on the number of successful shots.

A preliminary game will be played at 7 between the second team and Palmer high school. The latter has a record of 22 victories in succession.

Illini Meet Wildcats In Big Ten Test

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Illinois, leading the Big Ten race, will expose itself to the sharpshooting of a couple of top-ranking runners-up this weekend when it clashes with Northwestern tomorrow night and with Indiana Monday.

The Hoosiers technically are in third place and the Wildcats tied for sixth. Actually Indiana and Northwestern both have the same number of defeats, three, and their different standings result from the Hoosier quintet holding five victories to three for the Evanston team.

The Illini, idle since Jan. 24 because of semester examinations, will be on their home floor tomorrow to oppose Northwestern, away from league action since Jan. 19. The leaders will go to Bloomington, Ind., on Monday for their game with the rising Hoosier brigade.

Iowa and Purdue, each with three defeats in the Big Ten, will battle tomorrow at Lafayette while Minnesota, currently the No. 2 quintet, will be host to eighth-place Ohio State. Great Lakes will play at Wisconsin in a non-conference tussle.

Other games Monday will send Wisconsin to Chicago, Ohio State to Iowa and Northwestern to Purdue.

Clark was a proud Wellesley graduate, they were married. "He practically courted me on horseback," smiles Mrs. Hartle, recalling the long mountain rides she used to take during her vacations with the persistent young officer.

When "Scrappy" Hartle's safe arrival in North Ireland was announced, Mrs. Hartle, recuperating from severe grippe at Walter Reed hospital in Washington, said she just felt like getting up and singing with relief.

Stage Star, 12, Doesn't Like Movies

By NEA Service
NEW YORK, Feb. 6—Fame and success seldom come to any 12-year-old girl, outside of Hollywood, anyway, but if came to Pat Hitchcock with a flourish—all on account of pickles, you might say.

She's the quiet little British girl, who awoke the other day to find that, although she won't be 13 years old for almost two months, she had become a hit as the star in the Broadway two-act play, "Solitaire."

Pat got her chance last fall. John van Druten, the playwright, was driving along near Hollywood thinking about his new production when his eye was attracted by a billboard advertisement showing a girl making a wry face after biting into a sour pickle.
