Enemy Boats Smashed By Fortress Guns

WASHINGTON, March 29-AP-American - Filipino forces have nurled back a new Japanese attack on the Bataan peninsula front with "heavy losses" to the enemy, the War department reported today, while artillery fire from the island fortresses smashed a concentration of small, hostile boats off Patungan beach.

Heavy bombing attacks on Corregidor and the Bataan rear positions accompanied what the department said was a "heavy attack on the right center of the American-Filipino line. Military observenemy might be the forerunner of a long-expected offensive.

Little Progress in 64 Days Pointing out that it is now 64 days since the Japanese opened the battle for New Guinea with their occupation of Rabaul in New Britain on Jan. 24, and that the Japanese have made only negligible gains since then, military observers said the reason was because the Japanese for the first time have come up against an air power equal or better than their own and are facing constantly growing reinforcements. The Japanese efforts already have cost them more than 100 firstline planes, upwards of 50 ships and thousands of troops, it was estimated.

Although the Japanese thus have arrived at a situation resembling a stalemate, observers said it would be foolish to assume that the Japanese could not concentrate an enormous force for a heavy hammerblow if they choose Observers believed that the bat-ture of which is still in question. Both sides already are seeking out the hidden bases of the other, in preparation for this phase, Gen. MacArthur is expected to confer with President Manuel Quezon, of the Philippines, at his headquarters shortly. Prime Minister Curtin is to spend the week at MacArthur's headquarters, along with Lieut. Gen. George H. Numerous Upper Peninsula trappers, unable to take beavers on their home waters in the season that ends April 1, have trapped successfully in 19 counties of the Lower Peninsula, conservation officers report. Game Division Plans Spring

Despite the shortage of labor resulting from the closing of CCC camps, the conservation department's game division expects to get more than a half million food- and cover- producing shrub and tree seedlings planted this spring in new air base at Corpus Christi, four northern and six southern state game areas.

The spring planting schedule calls for setting out 70,000 seedlings at Cusino, 50,000 at Munuscong about 75,000 at Ogemaw and 50,000 on the Hanson game area where a lanting is being made in cooperation with the Higgins Lake state forest program. In the north, mostly food-producing plants are being stocked.

Southern Michigan wildlife re storation areas to be stocked this spring are the Tuscola, with 100,000 edlings and transplants; Gratiot-Saginaw, with 100,000; Dansville with 10,000; Barry County, with 90,000, Gourdneck, with 32,000; and Oak Grove, with 5,000.

Southern Michigan plantings include a large proportion of pines to furnish islands and avenues of game cover on the open, abandoned farm fields in the Pittman-Robertson areas, as well as substantial amounts of food-producing species. One of the serious initial faults of the British system was that too many men and women jumped into defense activities, offering their services as physicians, firemen, policemen, gatekeepers, truck drivers and the like, instead of concentrating on the work in which they were best able to contribute to the war effort. In Marquette county this applies particularly to men working in mines and defense plants. Their first responsibility is to do their work well and to permit nothing to interfere with their efficiency.

"Every country at war," one observer comments, "has learned that the business of ordinary living has to go on with as little interruption as possible. Hysterical demands that everybody join in some activity, thus disrupting any semblance of family life, have been recognized abroad as an undesirable feature of the crisis."

One See-Saws When Planning Flower Garden

Possibly, there are but few readers who will agree with me, but this time of the year is by far the most onerous and exacting as far as my garden is concerned. One Cause for Gratitude

The only consolation is that in March and April I can exult in the knowledge of, and be grateful for,

A friend, who is one of the kind who always has an answer for all problems, grins derisively and says: Why don't you get one?"

Ahuh, that's one of the compli cations that make my plan for a College Girls Plan small flower garden as slow moving and as unsatisfying as some of those first WPA projects that bloomed like funny wrinkled mushrooms, figuratively speaking.

And I'm perfectly sure that many Those flower catalogs are such tempting things and with so much information new to me. You will Grows and thrives in any kind of soil in sunny position, but prefers light, rich loam. Begins to blossom in early summer and continued until fall. Fine for bedding borders, edgings and cutting."

"Now isn't that interesting," sez I to myself, and jot down phlox, and some poppies, scabiosa, stock because it smells so fragrant; and, of course, verbenas have much to recommend them because they are hardy and free-growers (I'm strong for those plants that will do something for themselves and not need eternal cutting back, weeding and meticulous care). Jotting down things that are appealing, there comes the notion that it would be too bad not to have some pinks because they have such a tangy spiced odor, and one remembers, too, that larkspur gives color and is fine for bouquets.

About then, scanning a list already much too long, one awakens with a start to the fact that all those choices are annuals. Well, well, wouldn't it be sensible to have some perennials so that all the work wouldn't need to be done again next year? "Eenie, Meenie'

Once get into the perennial bracket and the problem of choice bread crumbs, salt and pepper, 1-2 stares one in the face again. Add tomatoes, cover irises.

My, one indulges in a great wrestling with the spirit of cupidity and the limitations of one's garden

For days I've been continuing the struggle and am now fairly well convinced that the worst and most exacting period of the flower gardening problem is over with. Doubtless I shall plant just what went into the garden last summer -lots of zinnias because they bloom and bloom in such a heartening array of brilliant colors; and nasturtiums, the sturdy, "nasty urchins" as the children call them, which grow almost in spite of what you forward and two steps back in demay do, or neglect to do, to them.

In fact all those participating kept perfectly within the role, never by look or gesture giving the least awareness of the presence of an audience; seeming to be fully cognizant of the seriousness and sacredness of the story in the drama they were presenting.

Others in the cast, each doing his full share in contributing to the success of the presentation, were: Achaz (Joseph Balwinski), John (Morgan Quinn, Jr.), Joseph of Arimathea (Tovel Petersen), Longinus (Guy Peterson), Mary Magdalene (Lucille LaChapelle) who was particularly eloquent as she knelt before the table and beside the window; Veronica (Rita LaBreche), Angels (Mary Bebo and Florence Chartier), Simon (Clarence Constance), Alexander (William Cherrette), Rufus (John DesJardins), soldiers (John Leonard, Robert Todd, James O'Neil, Wilfred Sa-

All the tableaux were well handled, but especially impressive were the scene showing the carrying of the Cross against the threatening outcry of the mob, and the Crucifixion which was glimpsed through the window of the Upper Room. The lightning effects and rumble of thunder gave a starkly realistic effect to the tableau. Richard Page was the aware and patient Christus. It was hardly a championship performance. Iron River led at the half, 21-9, without being pressed and Hancock showed little or no ability to work the ball past midfloor. Constantly, it brought the ball to the center mark, passed futilely back and forth across the floor, then shot from mid-distance.

With the exception of a few minutes in the first quarter, when it stopped the fourth-period rally of the Copper Country team, Iron River did not show-and did not have to show-the same type of basketball it offered in defeat Escanaba the previous evening.

For two periods Norway looked the equal of Crystal Falls, holding the champions to a 15-all deadlock at the end of the half. The Vikings, however, fell apart

Coming back to the floor for the third period, the two teams had the attention of every fan in the acked gymnasium. All were lookng for a blistering battle, but found an alert Crystal Falls team, passing around a temporarily stodgy defense and when the champlons went into a mounting lead Norway appeared to be confused and slipped from bad to worse. They failed to score a single field goal in the third period, connecting for only two free throws and missing six. In the meantime, Sartori, Stacy and Sachek peppered the pasket from all angles to run up a 29-17 lead, or a 14-2 advantage for the period. In the opening minutes of the final period two free throws and a basket gave Crystal Falls a 33-17 advantage.

The all-India Congress party's working committee considered Sir Stafford's proposals at a three-hour secret meeting Sunday, but adjourned until later today without making any announcement.

Answering questions, Sir Stafford said "the defense of India will not be in Indian hands even if all parties wanted it. It would be the worst thing for the defense of India. It would disorganize the whole defense arrangements and such disorganization would be fatal.' Must Approve Entire Plan

He made it clear that "the scheme goes through as a whole or is rejected as a whole."

The draft proposal, as released by him, said it "object is the creation of a new Indian union which shall constitute a dominion associated with the United Kingdom and other dominions by a common allegiance to the crown, fully equal to them in every respect, and in no way subordinate in any aspect of its domestic and external affairs." est British exploit of this type since the submarine C-3, loaded with explosives, rammed between the piles of a viaduct and exploded at Zeebrugge April 23, 1918. At St. Nazaire the British surprised the Germans.

The operation, said the British, threw the Germans into a panic. One of their six-inch guns fired on and sank one of their own antiaircraft ships as her crew fought the retiring British forces. The Germans, in the confusion, "fired indiscriminately at friend and foe," the British said. They acknowledged that "full withdrawal" of the attacking forces appeared to have been prevented by German machine-gun fire. NEGAUNEE, March 29-Starting at 1 Monday cafternoon and continuing until Saturday night, all qualified persons of Negaunee who have not registered are asked to enroll for volunteer service in civilian defense.

Through the cooperation of the NYA, girls will be on hand in the council chambers in the city hall to register those who volunteer. Members of the defense council, who enrolled previously, have agreed to handle the registration in the evening

For six days, the council chambers will be open from 1 to 5 in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 in the evening. The night session is for the accommodation of those whose work makes it impossible for them to enroll during the day. "While we can use younger people," said Mayor Leslie Richards, we have a large number of them Miss Lila Niemela, of Chicago, now. However, we would like much use in their registering as they probably will be in active service before we can use them. "We would like to stress that this is all volunteer work and that every effort will be made to classify people so that they will be placed where they can be of greatest service."
