Marquette Man Is Member Of Army Ordnance Advisory Staff

'Clouds'

First place in the Marquette Camera club's September contest was awarded Mrs. Earl A. Ferns, 617 West College avenue, who took the above picture. The assignment was "Clouds" and the title of Mrs. Ferns' picture is "Clouds Over the Dunes." The picture was taken on Middle Island beach.

To expedite and increase efficiency in the training of soldiers in the United States Army's Ordnance Department during this emergency, a special educational advisory staff composed of some of the nation's outstanding educators has been formed to cooperate with Brig. Gen. Julian S. Hatcher, chief of the ordnance military training division.

John E. Johnson, director of the department of training service, General Motors Corporation, a native and former resident of Marquette, is a member of this staff.

Other advisers in the job of educating thousands of men in the highly complicated and extremely technical details of ordnance use, maintenance and supply are Dr. Karl T. Compton, president, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Ivan C. Crawford, dean, University of Michigan; Dr. Robert E. Doherty, president, Carnegie Institute of Technology; Dr. H. P. Hammond, dean, Pennsylvania State college; Dr. Alex R. Stevenson, Jr., assistant to the vice-president (engineering), General Electric company, and Dr. Arthur C. Willard, president of the University of Illinois.

The average citizen does not comprehend, nor is it easy to visualize the scope and magnitude of the job facing the Ordnance Department in World War II. General Hatcher, working directly with the civilian advisers in the administration of the training program, says in the current edition of "Army Ordnance" that "activities of every civilian enterprise in the United States pale into relative insignificance" besides the scope of the Ordnance Department's $42,000,000 program of keeping Army supplies flowing to widespread armed forces in a global war.

Such supplies as tanks, guns, helmets, rifles, powder and ammunition are being called for in ever-increasing quantities by the United Nations' forces, and to fulfill the demands, the department has called upon not only the physical resources of the nation but the country's brain power as well. In addition to the educational advisory staff, the nation's leaders in industry, finance, science and education are assisting in other phases of the gigantic program in cooperation with Maj. Gen. Levin H. Campbell, Jr., chief of the Ordnance Department.

Well-qualified For Position Marquette's Mr. Johnson was one of many leading educators who responded, patriotically and wholeheartedly, to the department's request for civilian aid. That he was appointed to membership on the special seven-man advisory is a tribute to the respect with which he is held in his chosen field of endeavor and to his wealth of background, which includes a combination of educational, business and military training that adequately qualified him for the position.

Born in Marquette October 18, 1892, he obtained his early education in the grade and high schools in Marquette and was graduated from Northern Michigan College of Education when it was known as Northern State Normal. He received a life certificate in teaching and continued to take postgraduate courses in architecture and general contracting until 1917 when he entered the military service as a private in the United States Army.

Mr. Johnson was sent to Fort Sheridan, Ill., which now serves as the reception center for recruits from the Upper Peninsula. At Fort Sheridan, he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the infantry and later, at Camp Hancock, Ga., was advanced to the rank of captain. Camp Hancock was a machine gun training headquarters.

With Chevrolet Division Upon his discharge from the Army, Mr. Johnson entered the purchasing department of the Du Pont Engineering company, Wilmington, Del., and in 1920 went to Nashville, Tenn., as timber superintendent of the Bor A Coal & Iron corporation. The following year he went to Janesville, Wis., as sales representative for the Samson Tractor company. In 1923 he became connected with the Chevrolet motor division of General Motors corporation in Janesville as distribution representative. He remained with the Chevrolet division 16 years.

In 1927 he was sent to Detroit as assistant general business manager and after four months was made zone manager of the Knoxville, Tenn., and Pittsburgh, Pa., offices. He returned to Detroit as general business manager in 1929, and two years later was appointed zone manager in Baltimore, Md. In the fall of 1933, he was made zone manager in Detroit.

Summer Home In Standia Appointed regional manager of the Chevrolet southwest division in 1934 with offices in Dallas, Tex., he was named assistant general sales manager in charge of used-car sales in 1938. In July of the following year, he was appointed vice-president and director of sales in Detroit.

News From Back Home

D'you know this soldier? He's Llewellyn Riopelle, son of Ernest M. Riopelle, 332 West Park street, Marquette, and when one of his buddies snapped this picture he was getting a load of home-town news from a copy of The Daily Mining Journal. And he's reading it "somewhere in Australia." He has been in the Army since November 27, 1941, and has been in Australia 10 months.

Don't Gulp Too Hastily At Stories

First-hand experience speaks in the article below, warning good-news-hungry American newspaper readers against a common, but unfortunately, often successful trick of Nazi propaganda. Jean Graffis, the author, was Berlin correspondent for NEA Service until the U. S. declared war against the Axis.

BY JEAN GRAFFIS NEA Staff Correspondent

MAD as a hornet, Adolf Hitler paced the aisles of his luxurious General Headquarters train which is secreted under heavy camouflage deep in a Lithuanian forest.

He had decided to mete out Nazi justice for the colossal failure of German armies before Leningrad, Stalingrad, Moscow and Cairo. So he barked out orders: "Arrest Field Marshal Fedor von Bock!" (Original commander of Nazi forces before Stalingrad.)

"Demand the resignations of Colonel General Franz Halder!" (Chief of staff of the High Command.) "And of Field Marshal Wilhelm List, too!" (He vainly tried to take Stalingrad after von Bock failed.)

"Place under surveillance Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel!" (Chief of the German Supreme Command.)

"The same for Marshal Erwin Rommel!"

All of which, fact or fancy, has made spicy reading to victory-hungry Americans and Britons lately. With Hitler himself bouncing five opotch generals out of the High Command, the Nazi crack-up and our day of retribution would seem nearer.

But war-wise American readers should not gulp too hastily to swallow stories like these. In the first place, any news emanating from Germany must be suspect. It couldn't very well get out unless Joseph Goebbels wanted it out.

Remember, Goebbels invented and perfected the "war of nerves" technique, one phase of which is to issue false stories of Nazi German dissension in order to promote enemy overconfidence and carelessness.

In such cases, a Propaganda Ministry contact man is delegated to "whisper" the information "confidentially" to the Berlin correspondent of a newspaper located in a neutral country. The story then is credited to a "usually reliable source."

Another point to be remembered is that despite earlier reported "purges" by Hitler of his general staff, the "outcast" military leaders always have popped up in later campaigns with major assignments.

He Can't Play With Army Still more important is the fact that Hitler, regardless of his moral vacuum, does have a distinct genius for picking the right man for the right spot. It is obvious from Nazi history that Der Fuehrer does not make a habit of cashiering the men of ability whom he knows he must have to win.

Hitler can, however, and often does, shift his key men around in an effort to obtain better results when failure looms. While it is extremely doubtful that he would fire his generals outright, it is quite probable that he would try switching them, seeking a working combination.

Most important of all, in assessing a purge story of this character, is the consideration which must be given the German High Command itself.

That group of military experts is nobody's plaything, not even Hitler's. It is a proud group of which the common people are proud, and if Hitler went too far with an army purge, he could count on sympathy from no one but his own SS divisions. It may be seriously questioned whether the SS could take care of its end in a quarrel of this kind.

On the same grounds, reports that Gen. Alfred Jodl was named to replace Halder may be questioned. Jodl is regarded by regular army men as a climber who got where he is by hanging onto Hitler's coat tail.

He's Outside Clique He may be a good military theoretician but he has never been able to break into the high army clique. It's hard to believe the army would tolerate him now. Oppositely, Jodl is the best candidate of all for real purging, since his position depends wholly on Hitler's whim.

Without overlooking the strain that is surely growing within Germany's military and economic system, this is what may have happened in fact at that lonely eyrie of Hitler's.

He did get mad enough to chew carpets and may have threatened to behead a couple dozen generals. But after reflection, he recalled that (1) he must not antagonize the army and (2) he must preserve these generals for further use in a still-active war.

So he called in the generals, suggested that by switching around or taking brief vacations, they might freshen their outlook and start pitching fireballs to the enemy again.

Nerve-War "Natural" The generals, conscious of their own failure, agreed. Then, as they all quailed from the wassal bowl, wily Joseph Goebbels edged into the circle with another proposition. "It's a perfect spot for some nerve-war," he said. "Let's tell the enemy a big purge is on. It will blot them with overconfidence; make their workers sloppy and careless. And we don't have to let the German people know anything about any of it.

Here are recent photographs of Aviation Cadet Robert P. Brown Marquette, and Jack J. Dixon, brother of Mrs. Lloyd Holmgren, Ishpeming. The pictures were taken at the completion of their basic training course in the Chico Army Flying school, Chico, Calif. Brown and Dixon have been buddies in the Chico school and expect to go to Luke Field, Phoenix, Ariz., soon for advanced training. After eight weeks of advanced training they will be commissioned as second lieutenants and will be fledge-plots in the Army Air Force. After they are commissioned they will be given leave of absence and probably will come home for a brief visit. Cadet Dixon was married in August, in King City, Calif., to Miss Patricia Repler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Repler, Marquette.

And thus, perhaps, was it done.

In October, 1941, all foreign correspondents in Berlin were called to the Propaganda Ministry to hear Reich Press Chief Dietrich tell how the Russian army and air force had been annihilated and no longer existed as a fighting unit.

For that speech, Dietrich was flown to Berlin direct from Hitler's GHQ. The whole thing had been hatched up in the tough-covered train on a blind siding where Hitler, far from the front lines, is still playing Napoleon. Every German official of any standing at all knew that Dietrich's story was a typical phony, designed to cast despair over enemy camps.

Eventually Hitler and his generals will break. When that happens, the explosion will be so thunderous that we can't doubt it until then we can safely disregard anything that Berlin's "usually reliable sources" have to say on the subject.

Yellow Shadows Darkening South Seas Sinister Threat

By SAM JACKSON Wide World Features Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30 — The "white shadows in the South Seas" which once alarmed humanitarians have been succeeded by a far more sinister threat to life and happiness in Pacific "islands of paradise"—the yellow shadows of invading Japanese.

The impact of white traders and planters on the simple native peoples is now recognized as having been harmful, but much of the harm was unintentional. It consisted of introducing strange diseases and of bringing in white men's luxuries and methods which put an end to the natives' free-and-easy living off the land.

The effect was shown in population: When whites first arrived, the Oceanic populations are believed to have totaled about 3,500,000—almost twice their number today.

But, in the grip of the totalitarian power of Japan, the Polynesians and Melanesians are now up against something much more ruthless than the bluff individualists who went to the islands in the palmy days of the 19th Century. This is shown by Japan's record of brutality and such reports as formerly came from the closely-guarded islands of Micronesia, which Nippon held under mandate long before the present war. Among the last Americans to visit them was Dr. Albert W. C. T. Herre, of Stanford university.

"The Japanese have not endeared themselves to the people of the islands," he says. "They took over all public lands, notably the mangrove swamps that were a source of fuel, and charge for their use. Native school children are taught Japanese."

The land area of the mandated islands is small, yet authorities estimated the Japanese incursion at 70,000 to 100,000 persons, including a horde of officials.

These strategic islands, now a nest of airfields and submarine bases, were sold by Spain to Germany for $4,500,000 soon after the Spanish-American war; and were seized by Japan in the first World war.

Except for the mandate, the Japanese so far have not overrun the "South Sea Islands," as geographers usually employ the term. Their conquests have been in the Asiatic continental islands, and their two attempts to push into the wide Pacific were stopped at Midway and the Solomons.

War Changes Native Life

Nevertheless, the war has greatly affected native life. With shipping disrupted, thousands of them have been forced back to a subsistence existence.

Arthur C. Rowland, Associated Press correspondent at Tahiti, says that even in that comparatively civilized center of French Oceania the Polynesians are going back to primitive ways. Coconut wicks burn in place of the white man's kerosene lamps, and bark is again being pounded into tapa cloth, because ships no longer arrive with factory-made clothes.

From Vaughn Meisling, a newspaperman who went through the capture of Hong Kong, comes an idea of what conquered tropical people may expect from the Japanese.

"The looting of shops, houses and warehouses was thorough," he says. "Food and metals and anything else of value were shipped away. What little commercial life remained was disrupted by Japan's favor by a decree that the military year would be worth two Hong Kong dollars instead of one.

"Hundreds of thousands of Chinese were deported to the mainland, and those left were given barely enough food to enable them to work. Labor was enforced by means of press gangs."

The Wing That Keeps Him Flying

Cadet Magee, now receiving basic flight instruction at Randolph, soon will move to an advanced school, the final milestone in his career before he becomes a commissioned Army Air Force pilot.

Highlights From New Books

BUILDING a library is a slow but never tedious process. Once you start, it soon becomes sport to seek out choice volumes for your shelves. Best evaluation of the books you select is: What is the book worth to you? Unless the book adds to your knowledge or brings you actual pleasure, it is not worth shelf space.

Your library may number 10 volumes or 10,000. But too many homes are crowded with books that were bought to fill bookcases rather than to be read and loved. Your books, like your friends, reflect your real self.

A Working Etiquette

Etiquette, writes Mrs. Oliver Harriman, is common sense plus courtesy. And that is the key to Mrs. Harriman's new guide to social customs, "Mrs. Oliver Harriman's Book of Etiquette" (Greenberg; $3). Too many authorities on etiquette write only for those in "Society."

Mrs. Harriman, a member of Gotham's 400, breaks this rule to discuss fully and sensibly how good manners can add to the enjoyment of life in the factory worker's home as well as in the financier's apartment. Filled with tips on home management, recipes, and sound advice, Mrs. Harriman's book should become a housewife's bible. One that all the family should read, too.

Russians Again Withdraw In Nalchik Area

1,100 Nazis Slain Inside Volga City

By Henry C. Cassidy

MOSCOW, Oct. 31 (Saturday)—R—Russian troops defending the approaches to the Georgian military pass through the Caucasus mountains have been forced to retreat again in the Nalchik area, but the Red army defending Stalingrad killed 1,100 more Nazis in a successful stand yesterday in the ruins of that Volga river city.

The midnight Soviet communiqué stressed the numerical superiority of the enemy forces attacking on the Nalchik plains toward Ordzhonikidze, gateway to the high snow-banked military pass. It was the third consecutive Russian retreat there.

Dispatches said a formidable mass of German forces, including a bombing squadron shifted from Stalingrad, was employed in the plateau area leading upward into the Caucasus mountain range.

Before retreating to a new defense line, the Russians said, their troops exterminated one Nazi infantry company and disabled two tanks.

Nazis on Defense at Tuapse

In the west along the Black sea coast the Russians reported the Red Army had "advanced slowly" after a two-day exhausting fight in which 1,000 Axis troops were slain northeast of Tuapse. The Germans now have gone over to the defense in this area, the communiqué said.

Inside Stalingrad the Red army was said to have destroyed or disabled eight Nazi tanks, 14 mortars and artillery batteries and 18 planes in addition to killing 1,100 Germans. No further Nazi advances were conceded in the shell-torn factory area in the northern part of the city.

Soviet troops attacking the Nazi flank northwest of Stalingrad broke into Nazi trenches, wiped out an entire company in hand-to-hand fighting, and captured one gun, two mortars, five machine guns, a radio transmitter and two ammunition trucks, the communiqué said.

In another sector on the same front the Russians reported the killing of 180 Germans in a successful local fight against Axis counterattacks.

Reds Gain at Voronezh

Hundreds of miles northwest of Stalingrad in the Voronezh hinge of the long front, the communiqué said, nearly 200 more Nazis had been killed and 24 enemy blockhouses and other equipment destroyed.

Despite three successive Russian withdrawals in the Nalchik sector of the mid-Caucasus, there were no signs of immediate gravity to the main Red army forces in that area. Such retreats have been common at the resumption of Nazi offensives until the Russians could accumulate or shift their troops to meet the challenge.

Ordzhonikidze is 60 miles southeast of Nalchik and at the northern end of the excellent Georgian military highway that winds through gorges in the 18,000-foot mountains to Tiflis.

Intense bombing and tank attacks spearheaded the German attacks to clear the way for infantry. The Russians noted the 52nd bombing squadron at Nalchik, which until mid-October was at Stalingrad. The 51st bombing squadron was reported moved from the central front to Stalingrad. Crack pursuit squadrons using the newest German planes also were thrust into the Nalchik offensive.

Battle Confined to Smaller Areas

Armored forces attacked up to 100 tanks to breach the Russian lines. Red Star said the army repulsed four attacks at a waterline before falling back before the inexorable pressure of superior forces. The waterline might have been the Ardou river, a tributary of the Terek along which the Russians for two months have halted a German offensive in the nearby Mozdok region.

The limited number of roads confined the offensive to narrow concentrations and exposed German concentrations to raids. Low-flying Stovmivk planes patrolling south from Kiska and north from Midway, our Hawaii-Aleutians protective line across the north Pacific would be secure.

Then the enemy would be blasted out of the Solomons, New Britain and New Guinea. Once this was achieved, we could continue to build up our forces in the south Pacific behind the security of a line of bases stretching almost without break from Australia to Hawaii.

FDR Urges Everyone To Vote Next Tuesday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(AP)—Ballots as well as bullets are important in the fight to preserve democracy, President Roosevelt said today in urging every citizen to vote in next Tuesday's elections.

As for himself, he said he would vote either by absentee ballot or in person in his home district at Hyde Park, N. Y. He would not go into details as to how he would mark his ballot, but said in response to questions that he would vote against Rep. Fish (R-NY), Congressman from his home district.

British Push Forward On Desert Front

CAIRO, Oct. 30—(AP)—Infantry of the British eighth army was credited officially today with seizure of additional desert battleground at the end of a week of Allied offensive, while small battle groups of British and Axis tanks fought sharp local skirmishes.

Still there was no real test of the opposing armor, although the enemy was known to have deployed as many as 200 tanks in various formations, "tapping in" at several points along the Allied front and firing at long range.

British tank crews took quick advantage of the proximity of these panzers and, as the result, one day's losses for the Germans ran into double figures. One corporal tank gunner scored eight hits on enemy tanks.

The latest infantry advance to be reported was made during the night of Wednesday to Thursday, and in the process a mixed batch of prisoners was taken.

Allied communiqués reported a slight increase in the enemy's activity, but nothing on a scale that challenged the general superiority of British, U. S. and imperial air forces.

Indeed, the USAAF fighter squadrons, which now have a score of 22 to 2 in planes shot down, found no enemy fighters willing to scrap during operations over the desert Thursday, and American medium bombers were able to make their attacks at will on enemy positions, tanks, motor convoys and other objectives.

Foe Must Be Driven From Kiska for U. S. Offensive

BY WILLIAM F. BONI
Associated Press Military Editor

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30—The Solomons, New Britain and New Guinea at one end of the Pacific, and Kiska at the other hold equal importance in our preparations for the eventual attack on Japan.

While Kiska remains in enemy hands, it remains a threat to the development and successful use of our growing base in Alaska. While Japan keeps a foothold in the Solomons, New Britain or New Guinea, her forces are far too close to the long supply line that feeds our forces in Australia.

It will take removal of the enemy from all four to clear the way for a successful United States offensive.

That is the view of a high military authority who, while asking that his name be withheld, takes a leaf from Napoleon's century-old book to build an entire campaign around lines of communication and supply. Such a campaign would follow these approximate lines:

Yanks Down 22 Planes In Desert War

By Don Whitehead

CAIRO, Oct. 30—(AP)—American pilots have shot down 22 enemy planes and lost but two in the renewed Allied offensive in the western Egyptian desert.

In just five days, the United States desert task force has destroyed 14 Messerschmitt-109s, four Macchi-202s and four Fiat-CR42s.

Many thought the Americans might be too green for the more experienced German and Italian fliers.

Lieut. Lyman Middleditch, Highlands, N. J., who ran a six string to four with three victories in a single combat, is the leading American pilot in the desert. It took him three years to pass the stiff medical examination and get into the Air Corps.

Tells of Duel in Air

Here is Middleditch's own story: "I picked out the two-ship element nearest me and turned to meet them. I got good bursts on them and smoke poured from the leader. He took a quick climb, rolled over on his back and dove for the earth."

"Then I tried the second one. That is when things really started happening. I had altitude on him but too much speed and I couldn't nail him on the tail. If I tried to turn under this guy to get him, he attempted to climb to rejoin my gang. I exposed myself to everything they had. So I dove past and kept going."

"The Messerschmitts followed me down with the sun behind them. I think there were four, but only three stuck around. I wasn't stringing any one place very long at about that time."

"Every time I turned or changed altitude, I'd see one of those golf balls (20-millimeter Messerschmitt cannon shell) go floating by where I had been."

"I saw the first ship I hit spin into the ground and explode. Then I went over the sea with a Messerschmitt on my tail. One case in too close and I nosed up and met him and got in a good burst. He dove into the water."

"That Left Only Two"

"Then something went over me from an angle so close it made me duck. I think it was a fourth Messerschmitt in that pack. He missed and kept going until he was out of sight."

"That left only two and I was breathing easier. One of them came close—too close. His ship couldn't have missed mine by more than five feet. But he exposed his belly and I raked him with fire. He spun into the sea."

By this Middleditch's ammunition was gone from the gun in one wing, but another German still was after him. The American nosed toward the enemy and fired a burst in front of him.

"That convinced him I had some bullets left so he turned away and left me," the new ace said. "Then I headed home."

of aircraft from the Andreanoff island bases; hand-glove teamwork by Army and Navy in transporting, covering and landing troops, and at least 5-to-4 numerical superiority for the landing force.

The Japanese tenacity at Kiska, in the face of heavy losses in ships, has dispelled any notion that this was a face-saving move to compensate for the defeat at Midway. Rather it now must be regarded as a carefully-planned step that was integrated with the attack on Dutch Harbor—an attack which fell short of its mark because the forces involved had not expected to encounter land-based U. S. bombers.

Some analysts have cited the south Pacific as the most feasible avenue for direct attack on Japan. They favor a step-by-step northward progression, much as the Japanese moved south through the Philippines and into the Dutch East Indies.

Allied Airmen Blast Warships In Raid On Buin; Enemy Fleet Quits Solomons, Knox Reports

Troops Win First Round Of Struggle

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(By A. P.)—With pride in his voice, Navy Secretary Knox declared today that the Japanese fleet has "retired from the scene" of the Solomons battle and that the first round of the struggle has ended with American forces on Guadalcanal "occupying every inch of ground we ever controlled."

Some of the Japanese warships, which have been supporting the foe's all-out drive to wrest the vital airfield on Guadalcanal from American Marines and Army troops, have gone back to their bases, Knox said. He did not divulge where the others have gone.

"We are in complete control of the situation in Guadalcanal as we ever have been," he said at a press conference.

Knox stressed, however, that he did not want to disseminate too much optimism. It was obvious that, despite the withdrawal of Japanese warships, there was no telling when they might be back to support a renewed drive. In view of this uncertainty, the task of supplying the fighting troops on Guadalcanal was a problem still receiving major attention in unofficial discussions here.

"Have Done Superb Job"

After warping against over-optimism, Knox added: "But I do have a great feeling of pride in the way our men have met the onslaught in the Tulagi-Guadalcanal area and the skill with which these forces have been handled. They have done a superb job."

Before Knox spoke, the Navy department disclosed that American defenders of Guadalcanal had destroyed 17 Japanese tanks since the foe began his big push. The communiqué also revealed that a census had been taken of women in the area, and called for an answer to a set of questions about themselves, but would not compel them to take a particular job. It would give the Government information about the country's womanhood like that obtained on older men in the registration of those over 18.

The registration, as outlined by the President at his press conference, would require all women to answer a set of questions about themselves, but would not compel them to take a particular job. It would give the Government information about the country's womanhood like that obtained on older men in the registration of those over 18.

Registration Of Women Considered

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(AP)—The Government is considering a nationwide registration of women, President Roosevelt disclosed today, to locate those who could work in war plants and learn what jobs they could do.

Green Advocates Census

William Green, president of the AFL, advocated before a Senate labor sub-committee during the day that a census be taken of women 18 to 55 to list their experience and training, saying that "we must look to the homemakers" to man the industrial plants.

Green and Philip Murray, president of the CIO, opposed any legislation to draft workers or to freeze them in their jobs and called instead for better coordination of the various agencies dealing with manpower to eliminate confusion.

Mr. Roosevelt reported that national service legislation was still in the study stage and no decision had been made as to whether it was necessary.

Brown Begins Swing In Upper Peninsula

DETROIT, Oct. 30—(AP)—U. S. Senator Prentiss M. Brown closed his Detroit campaign for reelection tonight and headed north for a three-day swing through the Upper Peninsula.

In his concluding appearance here, Brown praised labor for cooperating in the anti-inflation legislation he recently sponsored in Congress. He also declared that the farm bloc's demand for an increased parity standard threatened to boost the cost of living.

Plane Carrier Believed Hit In Air Blow

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Oct. 31 (Saturday)—(By A. P.)—Allied bombers probably damaged a Japanese aircraft carrier, scored two hits on a warship described as either a cruiser or a battleship, probably damaged still another cruiser and left an unidentified ship ablaze in a raid on Buin, the high command announced today.

The raid was the second in as many days on the Japanese-held harbor on the southern tip of Bougainville island in the northern Solomons. It was by far the most damaging aerial blow announced recently in attempts to checkmate an all-out assault of the Japanese on Guadalcanal to the southeast of Buin.

Drop 27 Tons Of Bombs

Allied medium and heavy bombers delivered three attacks last night on shipping concentrations at Buin. Twenty-seven tons of explosives were dropped on the Japanese vessels.

"The first wave on heavy bombers scored two hits on a heavy cruiser or battleship," the communiqué said, "and placed other bombs very close to a light cruiser and an airplane carrier, probably causing extensive damage."

Reports from medium units which made up the second wave have not been received. Heavy bombers formed the third wave.

They set the unidentified vessel ablaze and also scored two possible hits on a destroyer.

In contrast with Thursday night's raid by Flying Fortresses when no interception was encountered, last night's raiders drew an interception attempt by three Jap float planes, but it failed.

Allied Troops Occupy Alola

A small force of Allied medium bombers also delivered two attacks last night on Jap-held portions of the town of Dili, on the north coast of Portuguese Timor. Results were not observed.

General MacArthur also announced that Allied troops pounding steadily at the Japanese in the Owen Stanley mountains of New Guinea have occupied Alola, within eight miles of Kokoda, and Allied forward elements are continuing their advance.

Bus Driver Charged With Manslaughter

DETROIT, Oct. 30—(AP)—William F. Cios, driver of the Detroit Street Railway motor coach on which 16 persons were killed when it was struck by a passenger train Wednesday, was charged with manslaughter today.

Accused by Nicholas Grankowski, Hamtramck justice of the peace, Cios stood mute. A plea of innocent was entered and he was released on $2,000 bond. Examination was set for November 6.

Higgins Gets Contract For 1,200 Cargo Planes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(AP)—Andrew J. Higgins disclosed today that he had obtained a contract to build 1,200 Army cargo planes in the New Orleans shipyard where he was to have built the 200 freighters whose cancellation last July caused a wide furor.

At the time the Maritime Commission cancelled the Liberty ship contract on the ground of insufficient steel supplies, Higgins said his shipyard was designed to construct flying boats as well as freighters. The type of planes to be built under the Army contract was not disclosed except that they would be large and of a type already in production. This appeared to rule out participation by Higgins, at least for the present, in the project of Henry J. Kaiser, west coast shipbuilder, to construct a new type of cargo plane larger than those now in use. Kaiser already is at work on an experimental model in California.

No One Hurt In Wreck On South Shore

No one was injured yesterday when the locomotive, tender and seven cars of a nine-car freight train on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway were derailed at Rock River about 5:30 p. m. The train was westbound from St. Ignace to Marquette.

The cause of the derailment has not been ascertained, Herman Schmidt, superintendent of the South Shore, said last night. The locomotive left the rails as it reached the Rock River bridge and was standing on the bridge when it came to a stop. The tender, also on the bridge, was leaning at a 45 degree angle. The caboose and one car remained on the track, but the rest of the train buckled and seven freight cars left the rails. The tracks for seven car-lengths were badly torn up.

The L. S. & A. railway wrecker, leased by the South Shore in cases of emergency, was sent to Rock River early last evening and wrecking crews worked all night. Mr. Schmidt said the track probably would be ready for use by 6 p. m. today. South Shore trains will be detoured over the L. S. & A. tracks between Marquette and Munising Junction until the damage at Rock River has been repaired.

Charles Cleary, engineer, and a brakeman, fireman and engineer were in the locomotive when the derailment occurred. Thomas Fagan, conductor, and one trainman were riding in the caboose.

Five Planes Destroyed When Wind Hits Airport

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Oct. 30—(AP)—Five airplanes were destroyed and three others were damaged in a windstorm that struck the Putnam airport near Climax, 12 miles southwest of here, shortly before noon today. Damage to the planes was estimated at $8,000.

Windows in a hangar were smashed, but none of the buildings on the field were damaged.

His appearance will mark his first visitation in the diocese as bishop. Only yesterday he received his release from the United States Army, which he has served for some time as an executive officer of the Army chaplains, school in Cambridge, Mass., with the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Bishop and Mrs. Page and their son, Herman, arrived in Marquette this week. They are residing temporarily at the Northland hotel and soon will occupy the bishop's residence on East Arch street.

Bishop Page was consecrated at services held October 23 in St. Paul's church, Dayton, Ohio, where he served as rector 14 years.

After the service here Sunday, Bishop Page will go to Escanaba to speak at a regional meeting of the Young People's Fellowship.

Blunders Causing War Reverses, Rushton Says

ESCANABA, Oct. 30.—(P)—Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton gave a "home folks" talk today to a group of about 250 women precinct workers from all parts of Delta county, in which he charged the state and Federal administrations with blunders through which, he declared, "we are losing this war."

"They talk about preparedness," the attorney general said. "We were not prepared and you may as well know it if you have not realized it before."

"If MacArthur could cut the red tape between him and Washington he could do something out there," Rushton declared.

The attorney general dealt mainly with issues brought up in connection with the coming November election, and condemned "political trickery" which brought about the recent circulation of slips of paper with biographies of the two candidates for governor, those of Van Wagoner bearing a union label, and those of Kelly lacking the label.

Delay in putting salvaged scrap metal and rubber gathered by citizens of the state to use also was criticized by Rushton.

"That's what we Republicans are kicking about," he asserted. "It all sums up to the fact that if you want anything from Washington you had better see the 'right' man."

Scrap Must Be In Before Snow Falls

An appeal to farmers of Marquette county to transport scrap metal to rural depots or to Marquette or Ishpeming junk dealers as a means of getting scrap rounded up before snowfall, was made yesterday by Warner Biekola, who is in charge of rural scrap collection.

Many Marquette, Ishpeming and Negaunee business houses have donated trucks to transport scrap from rural depots to junk yards, but the supply of trucks for this work is inadequate.

Biekola said there is hardly a farmer in the county who does not have a truck, or at least a team of horses and a wagon.

Patriotic Service

"Farmers can render a great patriotic service by transporting scrap they collect on their farms to the nearest scrap depot," Biekola said. "In most instances scrap depots are located on farms where war club leaders reside."

He pointed out that if farmers can bring scrap to the J. H. Green company in Marquette or Joseph Narotky yard in Ishpeming, they will receive about two dollars a ton more for it.

Three townships in Marquette county have rural depots which are "cleaned out." This does not mean that all of the scrap has been collected, but only that the material brought to the depots has been transported to junk yards. The three townships are Richmond, Negaunee and Wells. Most recent report showed that 20,000 pounds of scrap were hauled from Richmond township scrap depots to junk yards.

LANSING, Oct. 30.—(P)—State employees are not blocked by new Federal pay freezing regulations from receiving "step" increases within the state's present compensation plan, it was asserted today by Thomas J. Wilson, state civil service director.

Within the minima and maxima fixed by the pay plan, the increases—usually of $3 a month—still may be allowed without Federal action, Wilson said. Any change in the plan, however, must be referred to the War Labor Board or the U. S. Treasury.

Most of '42 Fire Loss In First Month

With the first snows of the winter in the air in Upper Michigan, the state conservation department added up its season's losses from 817 forest fires at 13,153 acres, and now hopes to hold them close to this figure for the rest of the year.

Last large fires of the season were three totalling 300 acres in the Crystal Falls district. Danger of further fires is not yet past, but it continues small if hunters exercise reasonable care, conservation department forest fire men say.

While not so good a record as was set last year when 1,604 fires burned-over 10,463 acres, the 1942 loss is less than in any other recent year. More than 9,000 acres of this 1942 loss were burned in the first month of the season, when the fire hazard was so extremely high the governor proclaimed a state of emergency in the dry forest areas.

Consumer To Pay 'Shot' On Liquor Taxes

Because of the new taxes on liquor and bottled beer, the cost of these commodities to the consumer will be increased, Liquor Control Commissioner James Dotsch said yesterday.

Liquor dealers are permitted to lift ceilings on liquor and beer to cover the increased taxes, but no more, Dotsch stated. The tax on liquor is $2 per gallon on 100 proof spirits. This will probably amount to a couple cents per drink in liquor sold by the glass.

Dotsch advised liquor dealers to consult the Office of Price Administration to determine exactly what the new ceiling prices can be and warned them against taking chances on establishing false ceiling prices.

No Liquor Shortage
Dotsch said the liquor dealers not only can pass on the new taxes to the consumer, but he added that the liquor control commission recommends that they do so.

Grange Calls For Stringent Liquor Laws

ADRIAN, Mich., Oct. 30—P—Closing its annual convention here today, the Michigan State Grange adopted resolutions calling for more stringent liquor laws, fewer taverns where beer is sold and the elimination of chairs in places where liquor is sold.

Grange resolutions also demanded that beer hall "treating" be prohibited and that each customer be compelled to pay his own drink. In still another section of the resolution Congress was called upon to prohibit the sale of alcoholic liquor to any man in the service at any camp in the world.

In other resolutions the convention opposed any attempt to divert automobile we hit tax and gasoline taxes to the state's general fund. With older cars going off the highways and with gasoline rationing becoming effective, it was explained that income from both sources will be curtailed sharply.

The Grange also condemned the use of public funds to place the names of officeholders on public signs and literature to aid in promoting their political aspirations.

Four New Forest Fire Projects

Bolestered with $68,500 in new Federal grants, the state conservation department's forest fire division is adding four emergency defense projects to its work program in the current fiscal year.

Largest of the four projects is the intensive protection and better organization of forest fire protection in Michigan's more important logging areas, especially the areas producing yellow birch for plywood veneer used in airplane manufacture, lumber for crates and cantonments, and pulpwood for paper making.

Work on all four emergency projects will continue through June 30, the end of the current fiscal year.

Hook Raps Editorials In Newspapers

Asserting that "every daily newspaper in the Twelfth district is Republican in its outlook" and referring to those newspapers as "one of the peculiar phenomena of the district," Rep. Frank E. Hook, Ironwood, in a campaign speech yesterday from the studios of WDMJ, the Mining Journal radio station, ridiculed editorial comment in The Daily Mining Journal, The Iron Mountain News and the Ironwood Daily Globe in which it was predicted that John B. Bennett, Republican candidate for Congress, would benefit in next Tuesday's election by the fact that large numbers of men who voted for Hook two years ago are now in the armed forces.

"They claim," he said, "that because the young men, who they admit voted Democrat and voted for me, are now removed from the district, the Republican party, especially my opponent, has a chance to win. The editor impartially and independently points out that the Democrats have been peculiarly and particularly successful with this group and with these men gone and fighting, offering their lives for their country, the chances of the Republican party have been greatly improved. The inference seems to be that the poor fellows were a little weak in the head, as the editor thinks is proved by the fact that they supported Congressman Hook and Democratic candidates in the past, and now that they are out of the way, the Republicans have a chance."

"The parents, brothers, sisters, sweethearts, wives and friends of the men in service should have only one answer to make to such an argument, whether they are Republican or Democrat," Rep. Hook declared. "To you republican fathers and mothers whose boys are in the Army or Navy, I humbly request you to cast your ballots for the Democratic party so that your boy's wish may be registered, so that he will not lose his vote because he is patriotic enough to defend his nation. You should overwhelmingly elect the man that the boys in service supported and overwhelmingly reject the shop-worn candidates whom these boys, in their wisdom and patriotism, have already rejected several times."

ly recently developed in forest country. A third project is concerned with reduction of forest fire hazards near a vital military maneuver ground and a fourth will extend the department's railway forest fire prevention program to keep pace with the great increase in railroad freight movement and increased use of stationary steam engines.

Work on all four emergency projects will continue through June 30, the end of the current fiscal year.

Trick-Or-Scrap Prank Newest For Hallowe'en

It has come to the ears of the county salvage committee that when certain youngsters go out tonight to ring doorbells it will be "trick or scrap" instead of "trick or treat."

W. J. Weber, chairman of the salvage committee, was at first a bit hesitant about recommending such an action to the children of Marquette, but his final analysis follows:

"I know residents get grey hair answering the doorbell on Hallowe'en. But I suppose doorbells will be ringing tonight no matter what anyone says to the contrary. And if its going to be 'trick or treat,' I'd like to see that old refrain changed to 'trick or scrap.' Scrap collected in this way would be turned in by the children to their school scrap piles, the scrap would be sold and the money invested in some school project."

Trapping Season Opens November 1

Trapping of muskrats, mink, badgers, skunks and opossums begins in Michigan November 1, with good prices for fur in prospect and a new wartime duty for trappers on the schedule the salvage of furs for explosives, from carcasses of furbearers that once were discarded.

The November 1 opening is statewide only for skunks, badgers and opossums. Muskrats and mink may be trapped November 1-30 in the Upper Peninsula, November 15-December 15 in the northern half of the Lower Peninsula, and December 1-31 in the southern half of the Lower Peninsula, with another month of rat trapping allowed in the Monroe marshes.

Hunting of raccoons begins in the Lower Peninsula November 1 and continues for six weeks, but 'coon trapping is restricted to November 15-December 15 in northern Lower Michigan and from December 1-15 in southern Lower Michigan. Nocturnal hunters with their full-voiced dogs ordinarily take five times as many 'coons as trappers get.

Trapping of wild furbearers is a $2,000,000-a-year industry in Michigan, according to conservation department records. While some muskrat carcasses are sold as "marsh rabbit" it is believed that most of the 700,000 furbearers taken annually can be turned over, after being pelted, to rendering plants for extraction of the glycerol-producing greases needed for making explosives.

Vermont Led States in Big Scrap Drive

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—P—Final returns from one-third of the 48 states and partial totals from the rest boosted the newspaper-sponsored scrap drive's collection near the 5,000,000-ton mark today.

The latest compilation of the newspapers' united scrap metal drive gave an aggregate of 4,852,438 tons.

While the drive officially ended October 17, many communities continued their collections as part of the school children's campaign or in connection with the industrial salvage program. Others, which started later, were just getting in full swing, it was explained.

Vermont led the states reporting to date, on a per capita basis, with 155.4 pounds for every man, woman and child, or a total of 27,905 tons.

Kansas was second with 141.8 pounds and Oregon third with 129.3 pounds. Kansas tonnage was 127,732 and Oregon 70,508.

Ranking of the states, after the three leaders, with per capita tonnage and total tonnage, was: Indiana, 124.6 pounds, 213,548 tons; Illinois 122.4 and 483,300; Nevada 113.1 and 6,551; Montana 116.6 and 32,629; Pennsylvania 110.6 and 547,404; Nebraska 109.3 and 71,946; Arizona 108 and 26,948.

Men Donate Holiday To Scrap Drive

County salvage committee members are praising the patriotic spirit of five employees of Burns and Company, who have volunteered to donate their weekly half-holidays to scrap drive efforts.

The five are Clarence Racine, Lewis Laing, Harold Heiser, Rex LaMour and Charles Trepanier. On their half-holidays these men will go out with two Burns and Company trucks, donated by the company, to collect rural scrap and haul it to Marquette.

Plans are being made for the collection of scrap metal in Republic township by F. E. Spear and Sons trucks which make frequent deliveries in that area.

YOUR CONGRESSMAN
FRANK E. HOOK
ASKS YOUR SUPPORT FOR RE-ELECTION

I, as your Congressman, take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation of the fine support and assistance given to me by the people of my district, and especially Marquette county, for the fine support and cooperation not only on election day but during all my tenure in office of eight years.

I have not been able to meet all my loyal friends personally because it is quite a task to take care of my duties as your representative in Congress and carry on a political campaign at the same time. My opponents say this is no time for politics and I agree with them. There would not have been a political campaign if they did not run at this time.

I therefore take this opportunity to greet you and hope that soon peace will come. When our job of winning this war is over I will then have time to visit you personally.

LESS WE FORGET

Here are a few of the things that I, as your Congressman, was instrumental in bringing about besides taking care of important legislation:

- 1.—The Presque Isle harbor, Marquette, approximately $500,000.
- 2.—The Keweenaw water way, Houghton county, approximately $1,500,000.
- 3.—The Ontonagon harbor, approximately $75,000.
- 4.—Helped to bring about the use of northern Michigan lumber in the Army cantonments in the amount of 100,000,000—one hundred million feet.

Single Men To Fill Quota In November

LANSING, Oct. 30.—P—Col. E. M. Rosecrans, state selective service director, expressed hope today that early passage of legislation to draft 18- and 19-year-old youths would delay the induction of married men until after January 1.

"We have enough single men to fill our November quota and we will have quite a few left for the December quota," Rosecrans said. "We don't know just how many of course, but if the 18- and 19-year-old groups are made available soon we think they will fill the gap enough so that we don't have to take married men for a while longer."

The director said that more than a month is required to induct a draftee and that unless the legislation is approved next week, not many youths will be available for military service until late in December.

At the same time, a spokesman for the headquarters said draft officials were not authorized to discourage the 18- and 19-year-old groups from enlistment. He referred to reports some draft authorities had told men in that age group they were more needed in industry.

"Not many 18- and 19-year-olds are vital to the war efforts in factories," the spokesman said. "The Army is making them a particularly attractive offer and draft boards have no jurisdiction over them."

Conscientious Objectors Barred From State Jobs

Conscientious objectors to military service in the U. S. armed forces are not permitted to be employed in state civil service jobs, E. J. Carter, Marquette, president of the Marquette union of state employes (CIO), said yesterday.

"Recently, because of a shortage of manpower in state hospitals, a plan was suggested to alleviate the shortage by employing conscientious objectors," he said. "To put this plan into effect it would be necessary to obtain permission of the national selective service headquarters."

"State employes belonging to the CIO met recently in Lansing and voted unanimously against such a move and resolutions were sent to the state civil service commission, the hospital commission and the national selective service headquarters."

"We have just received word that the national selective service headquarters has refused to approve the plan."

Hallowe'en Damage Aids Foes of U. S.

ISHPEMING, Oct. 30—Chief of Police Nestor Eckloff today reminded parents that America is at war and that Hallowe'en acts of vandalism tolerated in the past cannot be overlooked now.

"Everything should be considered in the light of the war effort," he said, "and it is not exaggeration to say that Hallowe'en tricks can actually be a loss to defense activities. Any damage to property which requires money to repair or replace means that much less money for war bonds and stamps.

"Property damage also means loss of time in a period when so many persons are hard-pressed to find the time necessary for war duties. These duties are taking an increasingly important place in the life of our citizens. Anything that detracts from that impairs our contribution to the war effort.

"We do not expect that we can put a complete blackout to Hallowe'en activities, but we ask parents to impress upon their children the need for more consideration for people and property in their Hallowe'en observance."

County Liquor Vendors Will Meet Monday

ISHPEMING, Oct. 30—A special meeting of Marquette county liquor vendors will be held in the United North hall, First street, Ishpeming, Monday night, beginning at 7:30.

James Nardi, president of the county organization, said today the purpose of the meeting is to discuss prices to be charged as a result of the higher costs of liquor. Costs have gone up, he explained, because of increased taxes.

Light Department Needs Overhauling, Committee Says; Probes Junk Dealings

Sees Need Of Revision Of City Charter

NEGAUNEE, Oct. 30.—The fact-finding committee, named September 9 to investigate conditions within Negaunee's municipal government, found evidence of drinking on the job by city employees. Conditions with regard to city scrap collection and disposal it believes need further investigation and action, an extremely unsatisfactory condition within the city electric light department, particularly as to its physical setup, and need for charter revision.

The board exonerated Mayor George H. Russell of any effort to deprive the city of revenue for personal electric power consumption, but held that electric department employees have been derelict in their duties.

Mayor Names Committee

It asked that a special committee of the council be named to determine what action should be taken as a result of the report, and Mayor Russell immediately named Aldermen Lehto, Catron and Kemp to that committee. Kemp, a member also of the fact-finding committee, was specifically named as an advisor for the other two.

Because of the widespread interest in the committee's work and the expressed desire that conditions be "fully disclosed," the complete text is presented herewith:

Text of Report

Your committee devoted about 22 hours in session to which time rules of witnesses. Your committee examined 19 witnesses, two of whom were questioned in Marquette. Some of the witnesses testified on more than one of the questions investigated.

Your committee held an organization meeting at which time rules of procedure were decided upon. These rules were followed and an effort was made to conduct the hearings in a dignified manner somewhat comparable to court proceedings. Every member of your committee attended each investigatory meeting.

Members of your committee were furnished with the following written statements: (1) in re the law of the fraudulent connecting or using of electric service; (2) in re the law of intoxication; and (3) in re the law of confusion of goods. The members were also presented from time to time with typed copies of the testimony. Some of the members of the committee were furnished in advance with typed copies of the questions to be propounded to the witnesses. The members were furnished with a typed rough draft of this instrument presented from the same was accepted. The members spent considerable time outside of the committee sessions reviewing and considering the written material which had been furnished.

Drinking Charge Sustained

Your committee investigated the complaint made by Mr. Everett Reichel that two employees of the electric light department, of which Mr. Reichel was once foreman, had been drinking liquor during hours that they should have been working, contrary to the policy publicly announced by the mayor. The two men who were accused denied having consumed liquor during hours of city employ. Evidence was adduced by apparently disinterested witnesses as to the odor of liquor upon the two men, as to the men's conduct, and as to the manner of speech on or about the occasion of which Mr. Reichel complained. An eye-witness testified to having seen the men partake from a liquor bottle during working hours. In view of the strong evidence, the committee's opinion is that, giving the men the benefit of every reasonable doubt, the objections made by Mr. Reichel in this regard were meritorious. Your committee is of the opinion that the policy announced by the mayor in the Mining Journal concerning the drinking problem should be stringently enforced.

In the course of its investigation of the liquor problem, your committee heard evidence concerning city employees other than the two complained of by Mr. Everett Reichel. To have investigated these complaints and other subjects suggested by divers witnesses would have extended the life of your committee for a long and indefinite period. So that the council might have this report as expeditiously as possible, your committee restricted its investigation on the liquor problem to the complaint made by Mr. Everett Reichel.

Your committee investigated the complaint made by Mr. Reichel that a truck owned by Alderman Roy Lee, chairman of the claims and accounts committee, was being hired by the city at $5.50 per day, to transport city employees to and from the cemetery. Three witnesses were examined. Alderman Lee admitted that a truck whose certificate of title was in his name was being so employed by the city, but he stated that he had leased the truck by written lease to his brother who was receiving the earnings.

WOMEN'S FUR-TRIMMED WOOL VELVETEEN GALOSHES

NOW FOR $4.75

Kirkish's BOOT SHOP ISHPEMING

The written lease was shown to the committee chairman only.

From such evidence as was adduced with reference to the lease, there was apparently no basis for your committee questioning its validity. In any event, there appears to be considerable precedent for council members and other city officials renting and selling personal property to the city. The charter apparently does not forbid such transactions.

Rev. Legislation Recommended

Your committee investigated the complaint that earnings of a truck employed by the city were being paid to Fire-Chief Thomas Curtis, Jr. by virtue of an assignment. No apparent basis for objection by the city on this account seems at present to exist.

Your committee is of the opinion, however, that as long as aldermen or city officials sell or rent personal property to the city, even though the city receives the full value, complaints meritorious or otherwise will be voiced by citizens of this community. Your committee believes it well for the council to consider the advisability of enacting appropriate legislation forbidding the city to buy or rent directly or indirectly any tangible personal property from any member of the common council or from the head of any city department.

Your committee investigated the complaint made by Mr. Everett Reichel that a plug or socket was ahead of the city meter on the premises of Mr. George Russell. Five witnesses were examined.

Mr. Russell admitted that a plug was ahead of his meter. He denied that the socket had been placed by himself. Evidence adduced by an employee of the electric light department tended to support Mr. Russell's statement. Mr. Russell further denied that he had derived any benefit from the socket save for a period of a few minutes when the socket was used by an itinerant agent to demonstrate a welding machine. Your committee checked former bills rendered over a period of years to Mr. Russell. No apparent discrepancies appeared. Your committee also viewed the premises to check whether any long lines existed that could have been hooked into the socket which was of a 220 volt. Your committee found that all equipment capable of using a 220 line was permanently connected with the current registering on the meter. Your committee includes in its membership an electrician, and was advised that 110 volt lines will burn out if hooked on a 220 circuit. Your committee considered Section 282 of the penal code of the state of Michigan. Since there was no evidence of any willful or intentional taking of electricity by means of the socket and since no proof was produced that the socket had been placed by Mr. Russell, your committee concludes that aside from the testing of the welder above referred to, the city has not been deprived, as a result of the socket, of any revenue.

Light Department Derelict

While your committee was unable to discover evidence indicating that the light department had been deprived of revenue as a result of the particular socket investigated, your committee does not condone the practice of sockets being attached ahead of the meter. Testimony was adduced that the city electric light department knew for a long period that this particular socket was ahead of the meter. Testimony was also adduced that more than 50 users of electricity in the city of Negaunee have appliances ahead of their meters. No statement was adduced as to whether the 50 or more patrons had placed said appliances there themselves or whether the patrons were aware of their existence or whether the city is being deprived of revenue. Your committee is of the opinion that the electric light department is derelict in its duty when it permits sockets or plugs or other attachments to remain ahead of the meters after the same has been observed. Your committee recommends that the council instruct the electric light department to make a complete report of all persons who have sockets or plugs or other contrivances ahead of their meters and that appropriate steps be taken.

Your committee investigated the efficiency of the electric light department generally. Testimony by three informed witnesses was adduced that from 40 per cent to 75 per cent of the poles in use in the city electric light department are greatly defective. In many instances, according to the testimony, wires alone tend to hold the poles erect. Instances were disclosed in which transformers costing in excess of $500 were blown out by electrical disturbances, the loss of which might have been avoided had the city installed lightning arrestors costing $6 of thereabouts. The evidence indicated a substantial portion of all city transformers are lacking protection of lightning arrestors and that efficiently run electric light departments have arrestors for every transformer.

Competent witnesses testified that the operating lines of the city electric light department are in a sad state of disrepair, and that the entire system is about 40 years behind the times. Testimony indicated that some repairs and improvements currently being made follow methods and plans that were discarded more than 20 years ago by efficient electric plants.

Competent Management Needed

Your committee is of the opinion that since the position of foreman of the electric light department has not been permanently filled, that the council should adopt the procedure followed by the city of Marquette and should employ from outside the city limits an electrician-businessman who would be competent to assume control over the Negaunee plant which has a gross revenue of around $75,000 a year. Such a foreman should receive a salary in keeping with his responsibility, should be given a free hand, free from all political interference, should develop a competent personnel within the department and should evolve a plan for the ultimate rebuilding of all lines owned by the city of Negaunee.

Your committee appreciates that at the present time it is impossible to purchase new poles and copper for rebuilding the system. Your committee is of the opinion that the council might wisely consider the advisability of setting aside to a special fund each year, from the annual gross profits of $15,000 or thereabouts of the electric light department, the sum of around $10,000 to be used when conditions permit renovation of the electric light department.

Scrap Sales Probed

Your committee investigated the complaints concerning the sale of city scrap in the early summer of 1942, and listened to the testimony of nine witnesses. Since the public has evidenced interest in the scrap transaction, your committee believes the details of the same should be fully disclosed.

Your committee sought to ascertain the limits of authority of the various parties to the transaction and the source from whence the authority derived. It would appear that the scrap transaction got underway as the result of a letter which Mr. George Russell received in his civilian defense capacity from a superior civilian defense authority. This letter urged Mr. Russell to appoint in Negaunee a chairman for scrap collection, although the exact title was not ascertained. Mr. Russell thereupon appointed Thomas Curtis, Jr., as city chairman. Mr. Curtis was apparently an agent of the civilian defense council and not an agent of the city of Negaunee.

Mr. Russell, as mayor of the city of Negaunee, designated Mr. Guy Scanlon, city efficiency clerk, as overseer of junk owned by the city of Negaunee for the purpose of protecting the city's interest. Mr. Scanlon testified that he was supposed to "see to it Curtis didn't take anything the city could use." The testimony indicated that nothing was junked until Mr. Scanlon approved the junking. Mr. Curtis testified, "He (Scanlon) checked everything before we could move a thing."

Your committee sought to ascertain the manner of arriving at the price of $8 a ton the city received and the price of $12 a ton Mr. Curtis received. Mr. Curtis testified he paid $8 a ton to the city because several other junk dealers had offered Mr. Curtis that amount. The Marquette junk dealer who actually purchased the scrap, however, testified that he paid Mr. Curtis a gross ton which was the prevailing market price, and would have paid the same amount to the city of Negaunee had he known the junk was owned by the city.

Will Pay City $12

The junk dealer testified he paid Mr. Curtis for all junk save one truck load weighing 7,600 pounds which was received by him July 21, 1942; and that payment thereon at the rate of $12 a gross ton will be made to the city as soon as directions for payment are received.

The junk dealer testified he arrived at the price of $12 a ton after coming to Negaunee at Mr. Curtis' request and viewing a scale at the city warehouse together with pieces of pipe and other scrap. It would therefore appear that the junk dealer stated that he was viewing property alleged to be owned by the city only, although the scale will be referred to later herein. Only Mr. Curtis and the dealer were present when the price was set.

Mr. Curtis stated that he worked off and on about three weeks in preparing the city junk. Yard laborers paid by the city of Negaunee assisted. Mr. Curtis testified that in his agreement with the junk dealer the junk furnished had to be "clean and of certain lengths and size" and therefore the junk had to be prepared. Mr. Curtis stated: "We had to burn off anything that would add weight that was not merchantable such as wood and tar barrels, and scrap bolted together had to be cut apart."

Mr. Curtis testified the city would not have received $12 a ton since he claimed the presence of tar barrels and car bodies in the city's junk reduced the value. The junk dealer, however, testified that no discussion was held as to the effect on the price of tar barrels and car bodies; and the yard man could not recall having received such items although he admitted that some such items may have been delivered.

Mr. Curtis testified that the difference between the $12 received by him from the junk dealer and the $8 paid by him to the city constituted the handling charges and that the profit resulting was remuneration received by him for his labor.

City Property Junked

Your committee sought to obtain a list of the city owned items that were junked. Neither Mr. Scanlon nor anyone else was able to present a written list. Some of the witnesses were able to testify from memory.

Among the city property thus junked were the following: Adjustable water meter tester including scale and scale tank and metal table frame formerly located at fire hall; steel turn tables or plates from water works; metal tar barrels; cast iron from crusher; pieces from hook and ladder truck and from old GMC trucks; steel wheels; oil lanterns; small steel rails from water works trestle; hydrant stems; guard rail wire; old valves screens and street signs; old picks; old shovels and old pipes. Certain copper and brass was also junked.

Mr. Curtis testified that he had, as a result of his private business, an accumulation of about two years of junk, and that he bought certain small items from children. Your committee sought to learn the reasons for the sale as a unit of junk owned by the city and by Mr. Curtis. It would appear, according to Mr. Curtis' testimony that, in at least one instance, the junk dealer paid directly to the original owner of the junk rather than to Mr. Curtis. Mr. Curtis represented that the city lost nothing as a result of the manner in which the city junk was sold. Testimony was adduced that private junk was sold as a unit was not as inclusive as your committee desired.

Your committee sought to learn the reasons for the junk dealer executing checks in favor of Mr. Curtis and for Mr. Curtis' delivery to the city of his own personal check. Your committee is of the opinion that, quite aside from the fact that junk was sold as a part of a patriotic effort, city items should have been paid for by checks delivered direct from the junk dealer to the city. The junk dealer testified that Mr. Curtis represented that the scrap belonged to Mr. Curtis personally and that Mr. Curtis made the statement: "I buy this stuff from the city and I pay them an agreed price and I sell it for what I can get for it later." The junk dealer showed his first two weight slips covering the first two loads of junk, which slips were made out to the "City of Negaunee" with a line drawn through the name and the words "Curtis Motor Company" written along side. The junk dealer stated Mr. Curtis accompanied each load and that Mr. Curtis ordered the words "City of Negaunee" stricken from the first two slips. Thereafter all similar slips were made out to "Curtis Motor Company" at Mr. Curtis' request.

Details Of Weight Lacking

Your committee sought to learn the total weight of the junk sold by the city to the junk dealer. Mr. Scanlon produced several weight slips hereinafter set forth in detail which were of no value as evidence of absence of detail. Mr. Scanlon also produced the following itemization on the junk dealer's letterhead:

5-12	9,140 lbs. scrap	$119.09
5-12	12,760 lbs. scrap	9.35
5-13	295 lbs. copper wire	41.60
5-13	740 lbs. mixed metals	$177.04
5-14	8,229 lbs. scrap
5-15	6,969 lbs. scrap
5-15	35 lbs. mixed brass
5-19	5,540 lbs. scrap
5-20	4,260 lbs. scrap
5-21	7,490 lbs. scrap
5-21	21 lbs. brass
5-27	4,620 lbs. scrap

Checks Paid To Curtis

5-12	$291.57
6-2	119.12
	$410.69

Your committee directs the attention of the council to the following differences between the statement which the junk dealer claims Mr. Curtis dictated to the junk dealer's secretary and the junk dealer's records: (1) Said statement indicates the City sold 32,605 pounds of iron at $8.00 per gross ton whereas the junk dealer's records indicate purchase from Mr. Curtis of 58,790 pounds of scrap at $12.00 per gross ton. (2) Said statement indicates the city sold 258 pounds of copper at 7 1/2-cents per pound while the junk dealer's records indicate purchase of 295 pounds of copper at 6 1/2-cents per pound. (3) Said statement indicates the City sold 642 pounds of brass at 6 1/2-cents per pound while the junk dealer's records show the purchase of 926 pounds of brass at 7 1/2-cents per pound. (4) The junk dealer delivered to Mr. Curtis two checks totaling $410.69 and Mr. Curtis delivered to the city his personal check dated June 10, 1942, for $102.04 and 100 picks that will be described hereinafter. With reference to the brass and copper, the junk dealer showed your committee his original slips of which there were four. The first one only, was made out to the City of Negaunee and showed the following:

5-13-42, Slip No. 43, City of Negaunee; 295 lbs. copper wire at $8.50 CWT, $25.07; 740 lbs. brass, $7.50 CWT, $55.80. Paid 5-18-42.

Dealer Used Own Trucks

The junk dealer stated eight loads of scrap that were involved were all hauled on the junk dealer's trucks and that if any of the above scrap had been hauled in Mr. Curtis' trucks, as Mr. Curtis intimated, such fact would have been noted on the weight slips.

Your committee inquired into the sale by Mr. Curtis to the city of the 100 picks referred to in the statement purporting to have come from the junk dealer. A typical pick was examined by your committee and was found to weigh 5 pounds 10 ounces and to be about two inches shorter than new picks. The junk dealer testified the picks were sold to Mr. Curtis as junk for 2c per pound. The superintendent testified it costs the city about 10c a point to sharpen picks, and that he purchased the picks on his own authority and that 88 of them are still in the warehouse unused. Mr. Curtis stated about 90% of the picks had been work d over. Investigation revealed that new picks, assuming that priorities for their purchase can be obtained, sell at wholesale at around 85c each. The second-hand picks were sold to the city for 75c each.

The committee learned that the scale at the warehouse which the junk dealer was shown by Mr. Curtis transaction, Mayor Russell indicated that because he had only recently taken office it did not occur to him to seek approval of the council and of the board for the junking and sale of city property in connection with a patriotic drive. Your committee noted that Mr. Russell had assumed office in April, 1942, and that Mr. Curtis testified he had served six years previously as alderman and is now fire chief, and that Mr. Scanlon testified that he had held various city positions for more than 35 years and is now efficiency clerk.

Since city property was sold without the council's consent and without the city being properly protected, your committee herewith relates excerpts from the testimony tending to point toward responsibility.

The mayor testified that he expressly instructed Mr. Scanlon to obtain the weights of all scrap shipped by the city. Mr. Scanlon testified, "The mayor told me to take charge of the junk and look after it." Had the city junk been

Interest In Tuesday's Vote Grows

NEGAUNEE, Oct. 30—A quickening of interest in election issues has caused persons who predicted a light vote next Tuesday to change their opinion and express belief that "Americans will never lose interest in politics."

"In the past few days there has been a sharp upturn in interest and definite indications of a representative showing of voting strength," a veteran Negaunee political observer said today. "It is a foregone conclusion that Ishpeming, with a special local issue up for decision, will poll a large vote, and it appears now Negaunee will be well up on the list, too."

About 30 absent voter ballots have been requested here and City Recorder J. H. Anderson today reminded the public that such ballots will be received up to 5 Monday afternoon.

Two Veterans' Groups Give War Relics

NEGAUNEE, Oct. 30—Two Negaunee veterans organizations, the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, have donated 21,020 pounds of war relics to the scrap drive, it was announced by Oral J. LaCombe, Jr., Marquette county war relics chairman, who is directing the collection from all Marquette county organizations. On LaCombe's committee are: Charles H. Roguet, Marquette; Ralph Magnuson, Ishpeming; and James McAuliffe, Negaunee.

The Negaunee VFW turned in tow guns which weighed 15,020 pounds. The Legion post donated an artillery gun barrel, twelve 155-millimeter shrapnel shells, and two machine guns, weighing 6,000 pounds.

Two guns already have been donated by the Marquette American Legion post.

Monrovia, Africa, was named for James Monroe, fifth president of the United States.

Chicago Firm Takes Over Dress Plant

NEGAUNEE, Oct. 30—By resolution of the city council, the Martha and Lillian corporation, manufacturers of women's dresses, was permitted to turn over its Negaunee plant to the H. A. Satin Co., Inc., Chicago, under the same terms which applied to the former operators.

The Morrison interests of Chicago, who operated the Martha and Lillian corporation, are retiring from the Negaunee plant because its management was in the hands of three brothers, all of whom are now in the armed forces.

The H. A. Satin company assumes all the obligations of the Martha and Lillian corporation and will receive all the privileges its predecessor enjoyed.

Has Federal Contract

At present the Negaunee plant employs approximately 100 persons and is working on a Government contract for 50,000 mosquito bars, which are used in the tropics as shields against insects. This job probably will be completed by December 1, but Mr. Satin expects that other Government orders will follow.

The H. A. Satin company has been nationally known for 30 years and in its Chicago plant it employs more than 600 persons.

Mr. Satin, attending the council meeting last night, said: "After my investigation of the setup in Negaunee I am impressed with the neighborly manner in which the Martha and Lillian corporation and the City of Negaunee get along. We compliment the Morrison interests and we are certain that it was, in great measure, due to their honest and sincere efforts that this good will obtains. For ourselves, we wish to assure the people of Negaunee that we shall strive in every way possible to merit continuance of this good will and neighborly understanding."

"It is our hope that we shall be able to increase the employed personnel and certainly we shall be able to do it if we can obtain release of sufficient goods to meet increased demands for our product."

Committee Reports On City Probe

weighed separately and had weight slips been obtained at the time of the weighing by a city official attending the weighing in Marquette, the instructions of the mayor would have been conformed to.

The mayor testified it was his understanding Mr. Curtis would not receive any pay for his work. Mr. Curtis testified that he told the mayor some dealers offered $8 per gross ton, and that he would pay the city $8 per gross ton. Mr. Curtis asked the mayor if that would be satisfactory to the city, to which Mr. Curtis states the mayor is alleged to have answered, "Yes, if that is what the others will pay." It does not appear that the mayor knew Mr. Curtis was receiving $12 per ton, or that the mayor knew the Marquette dealer stated his price after viewing junk believed to belong to the city.

Different in Other Cities
The junk dealer was questioned as to whether the scrap chairmen in other cities derive a personal profit from the scrap delivered to them in their official capacity. The dealer replied that he was familiar with several other communities and in none of them did the chairman purchase on his own account or derive any personal profit from such scrap, his personal labor being donated as a part of the patriotic undertaking. The junk dealer stated he did not know that Mr. Curtis was city chairman at the time of the sale.

Long hours have been spent by your committee in gathering the facts for this report. Pine Cone Live In Heart of Tree

Apparently, said Older, the cone was fresh and alive, although it must have been imbedded in the heart of a tree for a long time.

State Gets Results From 'Help Wanted' Ads

LANSING, Oct. 30.—Imagine the disgust of politicians when they learn the state civil service department has been advertising in newspapers for applicants for state jobs.

Thomas J. Wilson, civil service director, reported today "quite a few" applicants for unfilled jobs in state institutions had been obtained by experimental "help wanted" ads in a Jackson and Grand Rapids daily paper.

Interviewers who called on the applicants made a point of getting their reactions to state pay scales and hours of work.

Arthur Rasch, civil service administrative head, said "the experiment showed us definitely that there are people who are willing to take state employment, but we know now we have to carry our story to the people rather than wait for them to come to us. We've got to go right into the labor market and bid for help."

Wayne Home Rule Affects Only Wayne

By GUY H. JENKINS
(In Grand Rapids Press)

LANSING, Oct. 30 — Through the use of the initiative provision of the state constitution, civic leaders of Detroit and Wayne county have placed before the voters a constitutional amendment to allow Wayne county to modify its form of government.

More than 300,000 qualified electors signed the petitions to win a place on the election ballots. The approval or rejection of the amendment has become a controversial issue. On one side of the fence are the forces of civic improvement which seek to rid the county of its cumbersome form of government, to end political graft and corruption and to bring about orderly and efficient functioning of government at the least cost to the taxpayers.

On the other side of the question is a solid partisan opposition in the person of the Democratic party machine. The leaders are vocal in their opposition because the charter commission, if authorized, is limited to the adoption of a non-partisan form of county government.

Kelly Asks 'Yes' Vote

From Gov. VanWagoner down to county surveyor the Democrats see the end of their party domination in Michigan if they lose control of Wayne county government.

Harry F. Kelly, Republican candidate for governor, has asked a favorable vote. Gov. VanWagoner publicly has taken a hands-off policy.

With two exceptions the Democrats have won every Wayne county office since the election of 1932. That year Harry S. Toy was re-elected prosecutor. The other Republican to win an election was John C. Cowan, a member of the board of auditors.

Judge Homer Ferguson's one man grand jury inquiry into official graft, bribery and corruption uncovered unbelievable conditions not only in Wayne county government but the city as well.

VanWagoner removed two Democratic Wayne county auditors, who have since been convicted of accepting bribes, as quickly as he removed Republican Cowan, whose ouster was petitioned by Judge Ferguson on misfeasance and malfeasance and conduct unbecoming a public official. Cowan was not indicted—his two Democratic colleagues were.

Won't Affect Others

For years various groups and civic organizations in Detroit have sought to rid the county of a costly and unwieldy form of government. They have contended that the system is a barrier to efficient government because of the power of a three-man board of auditors and a board of supervisors which is larger than any legislative body in the United States with the exception of the national house of congress. The proponents charge Wayne government is void of public responsiveness.

Taking their city nonpartisan government as an example they have contended county government affairs would operate equally as well for the cities and townships of Wayne.

They point out that adoption of the amendment will not change county government in the other 82 counties one iota.

If the amendment is approved the election of a charter commission, the drafting of the new form of government and every other step taken under the amended provisions of the constitution will follow exactly the procedure as obtains for home rule cities.

Assuming the amendment is approved, the election of 19 persons to the charter commission must take place within five months after the effective date of the amendment. The primary and election will be nonpartisan. No paid county, city, village or township official is qualified to serve on the commission.

Eleven From Detroit

Eleven of the commissioners will be elected at large from Detroit, one each from Dearborn, Highland Park and Hamtramck. The other five would be elected from single districts arranged by the county election commission on a population basis.

Wayne's charter will provide for a chief executive, a board of supervisors of not more than 21 members (it now has 265) elected from single districts according to population but not more than two-thirds shall be from Detroit. They may be elected at-large or ex-officio.

The charter must provide for civil service nonpartisan election of officials to be selected by the voters, fix terms and compensation of all elected and appointed officials under the charter and include the initiative and referendum.

No authority is granted to change the time and manner of election, term of office or jurisdiction of circuit or probate judges or alter township government.

Under the amendment Wayne will have all the rights, powers and benefits conferred and shall be subject to the restrictions and limitations imposed by law upon all counties.

All special and local acts now in effect shall continue in effect unless and until superseded by the new Wayne county government charter or by an ordinance adopted under its provisions.

Brown's Annual Report Costs Only $2,500

LANSING, Oct. 30—P—Auditor General Vernon J. Brown's annual financial report of the state, which unfriendly critics a year ago described as a "rhapsody in pink," was considerably subdued this year in its wartime dress.

Limited to a simple black and white, with cartoons and photographs salvaged from previous publications, the report cost only $2,500 for more copies than last year's two-colored $7,000 issue.

News Behind the News

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—Recent revelation of details of the Doolittle mission in this column, which was published before the facts were forced from Secretary Stimson by Tokyo's disclosures, inspired a letter which is self-explanatory. It comes from a woman in Muleshoe, Texas, and constitutes a tragic commentary on the sort of censorship practiced in Washington:

"I absorbed with interest your comment on 'tales told by Doolittle raiders.' And this is why. "A little widow in this vicinity has been waiting with patience all these months to hear from her son, Lieutenant Lowell Hyatt, who took part in this raid. It is amazing that the human nervous system can bear what we friends have seen this woman endure without even so much as annoying the War Department for the facts concerning her boy. The mother who made this sacrifice is entitled to know.

"She had a most devoted son, and she is positive that he would have notified her immediately if he had returned safely to freedom. Where is that boy who went with Doolittle? He certainly wasn't of Russian descent. Why can't we have the straight of things, and especially after this length of time? The boy's name may be spelled 'Hite' instead of Hyatt. Surely somebody can answer this, can you?"

Tokyo solved the mystery almost simultaneously with the writing of this pathetic communication. It announced over the short wave that it had captured an American airman named "Robert L. Heights." The War Department subsequently admitted that Lieutenant Hyatt was a Japanese prisoner—but its reply was made six months after the event.

TRUTH—"Jimmy" Doolittle's

F. D. R.'s job at "typewriter strategists," Mr. Wilkie said nothing which the President has not already revealed or which the head man did not want expressed. The Chief Executive has admitted several times that our supplies of food and arms to our Allies, especially Russia and China, had not lived up to our promises or the expectations of those nations. Mr. Roosevelt too wishes to aid in the settlement of India's grievances against London, but for obvious reasons cannot take the lead in demanding that Churchill show a less recalcitrant attitude. As a man who polled 22 million votes in opposition and as a member of the official household, the Roosevelt could utter truths which neither the President nor Secretary Hull could set forth.

The Wilkie warning may also stir public opinion and prepare the people for even more severe sacrifices. It may move Congress to quit politicking and get down to business of winning the war. It is true that there were portions of the address at which Presidential friends grimaced, but the general tone was eminently satisfactory.

HOLES—The Office of Price Administration's handling of the original buyers' run on coffee has aroused suspicion that the rationing boys blundered—again—with respect to America's favorite breakfast drink. Here is the slightly amusing story:

The first recorded rush to hoard occurred in St. Louis, where rumors of shortages apparently frightened housewives. Although even the canned variety will lose its flavor and strength in about six months, the women began to lay in stores of that particular kind. So, in order to check advance buying, the local grocers decided to punch holes in the containers, thereby making it necessary to consume the product within a few days after purchase. The hysterical race to fill pantry shelves ended almost at once.

Then O. P. A. intervened in what many experts regard as a masterfully bungling way. Washington officials ruled that, once the tins had been pierced, the contents could no longer be advertised as "vacuum-packed," and they ordered a five-cent cut in the retail price. Naturally the dealers quit puncturing the cans and a renewal of the stampede ensued. The fact is that, as with gasoline, there is no scarcity of this commodity. Its disappearance is due entirely to a lack of ships to transport it from Brazil to this country.

Winning The War

By Albert N. Lemmon

BOASTS—Members of the New Deal inner sanctum are on pins and needles over facts divulged in a survey of sentiment in the United States armed ranks. The canvass was made by an important analyst and so secret is the result that only a half-dozen original copies were printed for distribution to the Administration's upper crust.

The poll uncovers a growing disillusionment among the fighting men. Perhaps the most significant point is that this tendency is found even among many who in civilian life were active in union affairs. If the chiefs of organized workingmen are permitted to examine this document they will probably charge that such a critical attitude is extremely unfair because factory toilers are keeping "em flying, rolling and sailing."

But the men in uniform are not impressed by alibis. They do not punch time clocks, receive time and a half, enjoy personal freedom and safety. The complaint is that, whereas an Englishman shops 56 hours a week at the sweat and a Russian 64, an American is employed only on an average of 43 hours. Some doughboys bluntly state that until the man in overall steps up his day and quits knocking off whenever he pleases, the boasts of his leaders about "backing up our brave heroes" are just the bunk. But political oracles expect no crackdown from the White House because apparently it believes that a labor vote in hand is worth two soldiers' votes in the bush.

ELECTION—The social fever chart also recorded the rising popularity of the managers of industry. The miracles wrought by our mechanical wizards are not merely hearsay to the lads in khaki. Their divisions are supplied with all kinds of motor vehicles, armament and engineering gadgets and the individual infantryman owns as many impedimenta as a king on coronation day. The Army is enthusiastic about the men who make the assembly line tick.

This news is bitter herbs to the New Deal policy molders. From the decline of Herbert Hoover this coterie of streamlined reformers has used the American businessman as its tackling dummy. A bloc of 7,500,000 future voters speaking well of private enterprise could upset the postbellum political apple cart.

The men in the camps and slit trenches are thinking independently. If the ordeal lasts three or four years they will have plenty of time to develop a different outlook on partisan life. The American Legion at its peak strength of more than a million and a quarter members is a small group compared with what this war's veterans can become. They can repeat the deeds of the Grand Army which controlled the election of Presidents down to the days of McKinley. A jolt may be in the cards for both Democratic and Republican orthodox bosses.

HAVOC—A generally unrecognized objective of the United States squadrons in El Dabai is to give their buddies in the British Isles a chance to win their race with time before the German blitz returns. A few weeks more are needed for Major General Spaatz to complete his supply, repair and communications setup and transform his green pilot into seasoned aces. If the Egyptian campaign can pin down Kesselring's Mediterranean command and the Stalingrad death grapple can hold the eastern Luftwaffe, the Americans and British should be braced for the winter attack.

That horrors will be unleashed again is the firm conviction of Allied staffs in London. The weight of the blows should be greater than formerly. In 1941 the best Nazi bomber could carry approximately 4,000 pounds of explosives; today the Do. 217 can dump more than 6,500. Most of the planes on the Caucasus front must be re-equipped and their crews given a long rest before a heavy action against England.

But when they are ready they should be able to send over 600 machines in a sweep. Of those, if 90 per cent—the usual figure—get through, greater havoc can be created than in the most terrible moments of the battle of London. Even a move in the El Alamein sector that helps postpone this doomsday is in itself an indirect victory for the defenders of Britain.

TRIBES—Wilkie's fulminations concerning empires must have aroused fury in British, Dutch, French, Portuguese, Belgian and Spanish ruling classes who hold sway over colored peoples. But not in all. A few days ago one of the supreme executives of the Dutch East Indies, now on a New York visit, privately broke the news that a movement is on foot to prevent a return to the status quo in his Spice islands.

The revolution contains an entirely new political organization in which whites and natives shall be entirely independent of Amsterdam in domestic affairs; that is to say, have a dominion arrangement similar to that of the British Commonwealth. The official offers an idea that is even more progressive: A suggested union of Wilhelmiana realm be controlled by a States-General with members elected by both the Netherlands and citizens of the Indies, irrespective of race. This body would sit one year in Europe and the next in Java.

Certain voting qualifications would be necessary and backward tribes are sufficiently educated for the franchise. But the bulk of the population would have immediate power and responsibility. Before the disaster the Indonesians were becoming self-governing. They were welcomed in almost every phase of life except top posts in private business where big directors selfishly barred the doors to advancement. Now even these diehards are in favor of a more liberal attitude.

Train Wreck Puts Ferguson In Hospital

Detroit, Oct. 30—P—Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson, injured in a railroad wreck that cost the life of the locomotive engineer, mapped plans Tuesday to bar his name from the campaign for the senatorship from his hospital bedside.

The Republican standard-bearer, in pain and described as suffering from the shock of a head-first jolt against the partition shutting off his Pullman berth, was informed by Ford hospital physicians that he would be confined to his room for several days.

He immediately instructed his advisers to cancel further personal campaign appearances, but insisted that he would fill his radio engagements. Ferguson campaign headquarters announced that a flood of volunteers, headed by Samuel B. Pettengill, treasurer of the Republican national committee, and former Governor Wilbur M. Brucker, would substitute for the judge on all or most of his remaining speaking engagements.

Dr. Wesley Mitchell described Ferguson's condition as favorable, and not at all critical, in a bulletin from Ford hospital tonight.

FRUIT GRAPE FRUIT

LONDON—P—A case of grape fruit, brought from Canada by a British seaman, fetched the equivalent of $1,125 at a Red Cross auction here.

"HELL'S CORNER"—IN GUADALCANAL—A U. S. Navy scout bomber dives over "Hell's Corner," at the mouth of Matanikou river where retreating Japs attacked a small force of Marines and were wiped out. In virtual hand-to-hand jungle fighting at least 36 Japanese were killed. (Passed by Navy censor.)

LUNCHEON PARTY CHAPTER XVIII

When Nancy Hale came in at 10 this Tuesday morning, Blythe prepared at once to leave. She couldn't trust herself to stay here and face the other girl, even with Pop.

"I'll let go of myself and say something before I'm ready!" she half-whispered, ducking into a sweater.

"Leaving, darling?" Nancy asked, sweetly.

"Yes," Blythe arched her eyes.

"I'm sorry you must. Seems like I hardly ever see you much now."

Blythe let that pass unanswered. She looked out a window. Pop spoke up heartily.

"Why'n't you two girls take off this afternoon and go to a movie, mmm?"

"Doggone Pop! It was just like him, Blythe knew; trying to be generous, cordial, kind. But he didn't know the score here.

"We'll all be together at noon anyway," he went on, genially. "Mom's having us all for lunch."

"She is?" Blythe hadn't known that.

"Oh, yes!" Nancy appeared happy about it. "Mrs. Miller phoned. With Norman and Duane!"

"That really messed up things, to Blythe's thinking. But she'd have to go through with it. Have to sit there in her own home, entertaining Nancy Hale and feeling like a hypocrite all the while! But, then, on second thought, it might be just as well to stay near Nancy as much as she could. She might learn something further. If Nancy had promised the gambler's agent to drug Norman and Duane on Wednesday night, the more she stayed with them now—"

"I'll scoot home and help Mom," she announced, and departed.

coat and his beloved puppy, Link. At home, later, Mom Miller baked a special little "private pie" for Scooter alone at luncheon.

While the family and the four guests ate their luncheon, Blythe noted that Nancy seemed utterly without regret or worry. She marveled that the other girl could be so wholly brazen about her plotting.

"I would be jumpy as heck," Blythe told herself, watching Nancy closely. Norman was watching Nancy, too, she noted. Well, that much was all right. Undeniably Nancy was pretty. And usually Norman Dana made a pest of himself paying attention to Blythe. Big Duane just smiled all the while and said little.

Maybe—yes—Blythe suddenly felt that she understood. Tomorrow night, Wednesday, Nancy would have to have both Norman and Duane as dinner guests in her own cute upstairs apartment. This was essential to her scheme. And so, Nancy was "playing up" to Norman now! Laughing and talking with him in pretended friendliness, just to be sure he was flattered sufficiently to come. She would already feel sure of Duane. . . . Blythe was appalled more than ever at the widow's calculating, conscienceless nerve.

"It's just like some of the early troubles the Japs and Germans handed us," Pop was saying, between forkfuls. "We have to expect the unexpected, the setbacks. We have to weave 'em, and come back scrapper than ever before, lads. It's the only way to triumph in the end. The only way."

Blythe understood that. Good old Pop, softening the psychological blow of losing Heavy Underwood from the lineup Thursday. Putting new confidence and assurance in the two stars' minds. Norman especially was given to quick flareups, emotional streaks and such, in addition to what people thought was conceit in him. She, Blythe Miller, knew now that Norman wasn't as conceited as he sometimes appeared. On one memorable occasion he had proved it. She would always respect him for that.

"Anybody tell you how cute you look in a red dress, Nancy?" Norman himself said that, beaming.

"Why—no! How nice!" "Sure do. People say blondes shouldn't wear red. You corrected that. Mind if I stare?"

Mom Miller put in genially, "I'm sure Nancy is sweet in any color, boys. I have never seen a prettier girl."

"Umph," Pop grunted, mouth full, nodding.

Blythe said nothing. She might have said that the red dress was once her own. Given to Nancy after the car wreck, when Nancy was penniless in the hospital. Oh, to be sure, Nancy had since remembered to pay the asked-for $10. for all that big suit case of clothes, but that was only a token to save pride; the dress was still a hand-me-down.

Suddenly ashamed of her thoughts again, then, Blythe forced a cordial smile. "You take all the men's eyes, Nancy. Makes me horribly jealous!"

They all laughed at that—and only Blythe herself knew that it stung a little. Her sally hadn't been wholly untrue!

"Imagine!" said Big Duane. "You, being jealous! Or anything else not. . . well, not perfect!"

Blythe was astonished. Duane Hogan didn't say such things; it amounted to an epic, from him! Never, never in their two years of rather close friendship, had he said so much of her and to her. He had called her, Blythe, perfect! True, he had gone right on eating, just as if it were casual and therefore inconsequential and soon to be forgotten. But he had said it, even so. He had!

"You know," Norman was teasing again, "this business of inviting cadets to eat is a wonderful invention. Great institution! Why don't more ladies do it? Why don't you, for instance, Nancy, take lessons in it from Mom Miller, hm? Or maybe I should talk to her myself. Look, Missus Hale, as a hint to get some of your home cooking later, will you and Scooter go to dinner downtown with me tonight?"

Nancy jumped at the chance. "If you'll come to potluck with me tomorrow evening, Norman! You and Duane. I can feed homesick soldier boys! We'll have a little dinner party. Just we three!"

Blythe felt her pulse leap. There it was, exactly as planned.

But, hey—she had a new whirling sensation, too. Nancy had been openly dated by Norman—but it was Duane who had complimented her, Blythe! Big, bashful, handsome Duane.

Sales Tax Collections Continue Upward Trend

LANSING, Oct. 30—P—Sales and use tax collections on September retail business in Michigan amounted to $7,777,796, the state revenue department reported today, noting an increase in spending by consumers.

The September business, on which taxes were collected this month, ran about $1,000,000 more than August, it was said, and almost $500,000 better than the comparable month of 1941.

The increase was in spite of a $346,000 decline in automobile sales taxes from the previous year.

Six-Team National Hockey League Opens 1942-43 Season Tonight

Bruins Play At Detroit On Sunday

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—P—The National Hockey league, uncertain of survival until a few weeks ago when the United States and Canadian governments agreed to permit players not eligible for military service to play and to cross the border, will open its 1942-43 season Saturday night. There's every indication that the season, once started, will continue to the end without too many difficulties.

Only one of last year's teams, the Brooklyn Americans, will not be in the lists this season. Brooklyn, always weak financially, lost all but three or four of last year's players to the armed forces and suspended operations at least for this season. Most of the other clubs have lost heavily in manpower, but there's an adequate supply of veterans to go around and plenty of youngsters who are permitted to play with the understanding that they will be returned on 24-hour notice if they're needed for military service.

Boston at Detroit Sunday

The season's opening games tomorrow night will pit the Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley cup winners last spring, against the New York Rangers and the Montreal Canadiens against Boston. Sunday Boston will visit the Detroit Red Wings. The sixth team, the Chicago Blackhawks, will not move into action until next Thursday.

Pre-season favorites are Detroit, which didn't lose a regular to the Army, and Toronto and Montreal, which managed to keep a good many players. The only important newcomer on the Red Wing squad is Left Winger Harry Watson, bought from Brooklyn when that club's few remaining players were auctioned off.

Toronto lost eight men, but had enough material left so that Gordie Drillon, one of the league's best goal-getters, could be sold to the Canadiens. Montreal still has most of the young players who have been developing for three seasons.

Bruins Lose 11 Men

The Boston Bruins, with 11 men gone, retained Goalie Frank Brimsek, four veteran defensemen and two experienced forward lines. Chicago's rearguard was wiped out, but there remained three sets of first-class forwards. Goalie Bert Gardiner was bought from the Canadiens while four experienced defensemen were located in the defunct American association.

The New York Rangers received the same sort of blow that struck Boston last year when the Bruins' "sauerkraut line" went into the Canadian air force. The famous Colville-Shibicky combination went into the Army along with Goalie Jim Henry and a half dozen others. They'll have to depend upon Steve Buzinski, an untried amateur, to guard the goal, but he'll have a fair defense in front of him. The line of Lynn Patrick, Phil Watson and Bryan Hextall, which accounted for 40 per cent of last year's scoring, remains intact.

Archers Open Deer Season Tomorrow

MUNISING, Oct. 30—While riflemen chafe at the bit, awaiting the "go" sign which will flash in 15 more days, archers will flock into the Upper Peninsula's deer areas Sunday to open their annual "special" hunting season.

Although the armed services and war work have called many bowmen (and bow-women) from their favorite recreation, indications are that a record number of archers will stalk deer this year. During recent years there has been a notable increase in archery equipment sales, and there also has been an increase in the number of deer license sales to the modern Robin Hoods.

Munising archers have taken the initiative in beckoning their fellow sportsmen to this section of the hunting grounds and it may be expected that all sections of the Peninsula will feel the results. Though the number of bow- and arrow hunters may be small this season, an increase should follow the war. Letters to popularize Upper Michigan as a "bowman's deer hunting paradise" have been sent to archers in the Lower Peninsula and in neighboring states.

The archers' season will close November 14, and gun-totin' hunters will take to the woods November 15.

Coast Guard Squad Plays Duty-First Football

Ensign Gar Griffith puts Coast Guard football squad through practical paces on towing end of boat at Manhattan Beach.

By BURTON BENJAMIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—This is what "duty-first" football means to a service team.

It means performing the myriad tasks that make up the military routine from 5:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., rushing to a nearby field in open trucks and practicing until dark.

It means playing only station complement—no importations for football purposes discouraged.

It means leaving New York on Friday night for a Saturday night game in Toledo, playing that game and catching a 4:33 a. m. return train Sunday.

It produces a squad which ranges from 18 to 37 years in age.

These are just a few of the features of the pride of the Coast Guard—Manhattan Beach Station—which is undefeated in four outings.

Is Extra-Curricular
It is the only representative of this branch of the service that has not been beaten. The Coast Guard Academy of New London and the Alameda, Calif., station have fallen by the wayside.

Coached by Ensign Gar Griffith, former player and coach at Ohio State, the team was organized September 10, walloped Brooklyn college, 30-0, just 16 days later. The boys trounced City College, 31-0; surprised by repelling Villanova, 20-13; and tied Fort Monmouth, N. J., 14-14.

It is strictly an extra-curricular proposition.

There are no special privileges for players. The men play football because they want to and in doing so perform a worthwhile service.

From a morale point of view, the team is doing a superb job. Although the absence of a playing field makes home contests impossible, the men at the station have boundless undergraduate pride in the varsity.

Profits are turned over to the Welfare Fund, which takes care of needy Coast Guardsmen. For example, if a man is called home because of a death in the family and has no funds to make the trip, the Welfare provides for him.

One of the organizers of the team was Lieut. E. S. Lott, who played at Columbia in the '20s. Despite his 37 years, he holds down a tackle berth.

Assisting Griffith and playing a stellar end is Ensign Esco Sarkkinen, the Ohio State all-America. Other "All" acers are Tackle Mike Karmazin, star of last year's Duke team, and 33-year-old Pug Vaughan, Tennessee quarterback in '32 and a member of the Detroit Lions and Chicago Cardinals.

From the All-Star collegiate ranks come Jim Walker, Iowa's Negro tackle; Liz Astroth, Illinois back; and Tommy Farris, Wisconsin quarterback.

Dempsey Does Everything

Other backs are John Murray, Boston college; Art Sandusky, Morris Harvey standout; John McAfee, Ohio State; Eulace Peacock, the great Olympic sprinter and broad-jumper, of Temple; and Eriestus Sans, Tuskegee.

Its football team is operating according to that tradition.

Mathers Play Manistique In Finale

MUNISING, Oct. 30—Topped from the ranks of Upper Michigan's undefeated football teams by Menominee last Saturday, Mathers high school gridlers will hit the comeback trail at 2 p. m. tomorrow when they meet Manistique on the municipal playgrounds field. The contest will wind up the Orange and Black schedule.

During the current season the Emeralds have won four of five games played. Last weekend they stopped Graveraet, Marquette, 6-0. While the Menominee game mended up Munising's plans for an undefeated season, the setback has put Coach St. Germaine's boys in a frame of mind which bodes ill for the Schoolcrafters.

Ohio State-Wisconsin And Georgia-Alabama Contests Top Today's Football Card

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—P—Saturday, October 31, figures to be a football important day on the 1942 football calendar, especially since four of the six top ranking college eleven's tangle in two of the nation's foremost games.

Ohio State, holder of the No. 1 spot for three successive weeks, meets sixth ranking Wisconsin at Madison in a clash between two unbeaten Western Conference foes. Not only will the Buckeyes' position as the nation's ranking eleven be at stake, but the game should go a long way toward helping settle the conference race.

The Southeastern Conference argument over whether Georgia or Alabama is the better team also comes to a showdown at Atlanta in another test of unbeaten eleven's. In this week's ranking by the country's sports writers, Georgia was placed No. 2 and Alabama No. 3. It'll be Georgia's all-American Frankie Sinkwich against a Crimson team strong in power and reserves.

Undefeated Army is the only other member of the "Big Ten" to clash with one of the high ranking eleven's. The Cadets, rated eighth, travel to Philadelphia to take on Pennsylvania's Quakers, whipped only by Georgia Pre-Flight and ranked 14th.

Notre Dame, whose comeback in the last two games earned the Irish the fourth spot, take on a weak Navy outfit at Cleveland while Georgia Tech, rated fifth, moves out the Southeastern Conference to do battle with Duke's Blue Devils, on the comeback trail after a poor start.

Boston College, No. 7 in the rankings and rolling along with a four-game winning streak, tackles always dangerous Georgetown, Texas Christian, whose 60-minute men make the Horned Frogs the chief Southwest Conference threat.

risks its No. 9 ranking against a weak Baylor team, and Minnesota, whose victory over Michigan moved the Gophers up to No. 10, plays host to Northwestern.

The most important game between members of the second 10 pits Illinois, whipped only by Notre Dame, against Michigan, which needs a victory to keep alive its Western Conference titular hopes.

UCLA powerhouse of the west coast, tackles Stanford in the outstanding game in the Pacific Coast league.

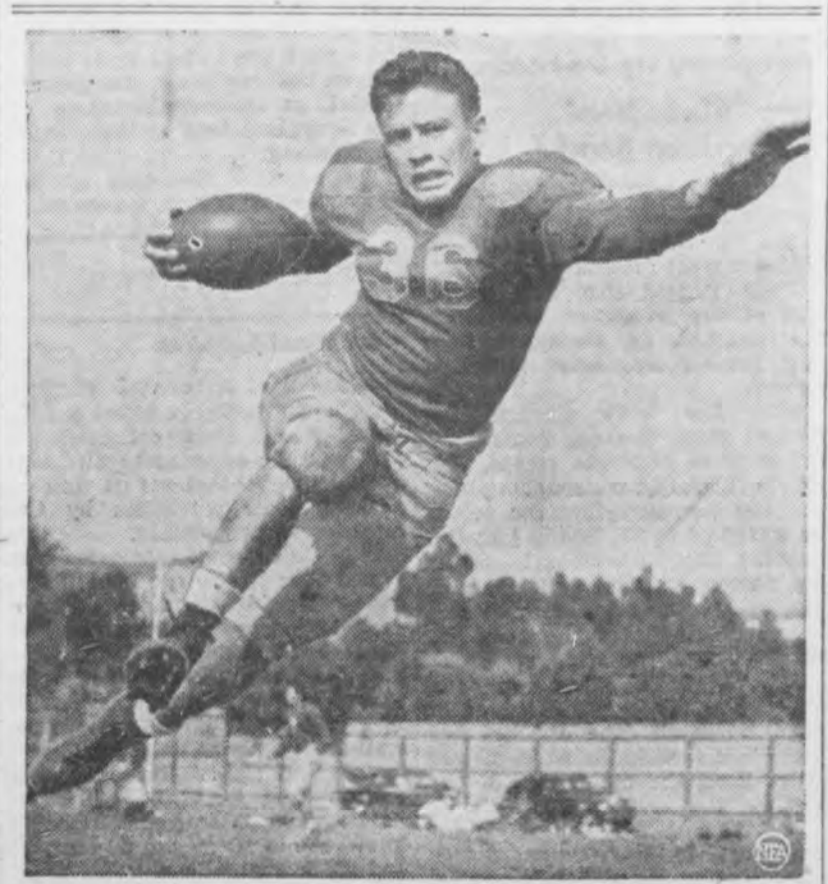

Many Sectional Contests
The remainder of the schedule is studied with games that are mostly sectional in nature. In the east, there's Cornell-Columbia, William and Mary-Dartmouth, Brown-Yale, Colgate-Holy Cross, Lafayette-Bucknell, Carnegie Tech-Pittsburgh, Princeton-Harvard, Michigan State-Temple, St. Mary's (Calif.)-Fordham and North Carolina's Cadets-Syracuse.

The southland offers Auburn-Mississippi State, Clemson-Wake Forest, Florida-Maryland, Davidson NML, LSU-Tennessee, North Carolina-North Carolina State, Vanderbilt-Tulane, VPI-Virginia and Washington and Lee-Richmond.

The midwest presents, in addition to its leading attractions, Great Lakes-Missouri, Iowa-Cadets-Indiana, Nebraska-Kansas, Oklahoma-Iowa State and Oklahoma A. & M.-Creighton. Down in the southwest, there'll be Southern Methodist and Texas, while in the Rocky Mountain region Utah will tangle with Colorado State.

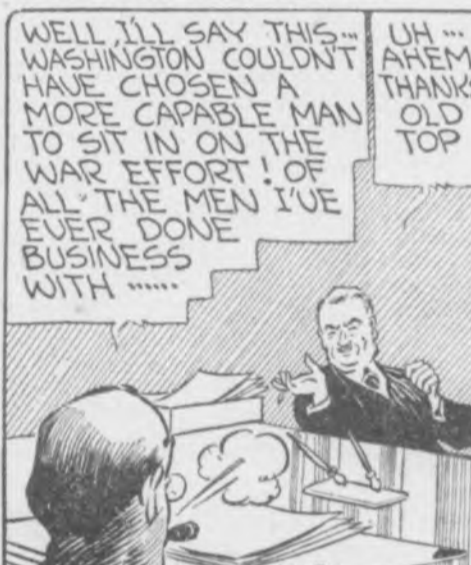

Oregon-California, Oregon State-Washington and St. Mary's Cadets-Washington State complete the west coast's major schedule.

Stalingrad, Dieppe Show Gun's Value

G. W. WARNECKE

THE great argument concerning a second front goes on. General Staff analysts are conning secret reports on Dieppe and Stalingrad. Few details are allowed to penetrate the veil of military censorship. Enough facts are known, however, to indicate that field strategy is ominously slewing back full circles to the artillery holocausts of World War I.

Recognition of the gun's comeback in positional warfare is Lesson Number One from Stalingrad, with confirmation coming from Dieppe and Sevastopol. "Informed observers declare that these three instances of 1942 warfare point to the foreseeable nature of western front operations more sharply than do the blitz invasions of Poland in 1939, France in 1940 and Russia in 1941.

The carnage that would result from modern curtain fire among concentrated armies in France in a campaign of exhaustion can be envisaged only in terms of Verdun, the Somme and Arras in 1916 and 1917—the most sanguinary battles of history. That is the grim possibility which is giving pause to military leaders in weighing a second front.

Pattern Of Offense

The significance of Stalingrad, Sevastopol and Dieppe is that these were all cases of frontal assault on prepared positions. They are the only important exceptions to the pattern of offense followed otherwise by the Reichswehr in the European theater — that is, of squeezing strongpoints between the jaws of pincers.

Translated to western Europe, the crucial factor is that the entire Channel coast is now walled by continuous fortifications in depth. To by-pass and to pinch beachheads such as Dieppe is a stubborn problem for there are no weak, open regions between hedgerows as on the 2,000-mile Soviet front.

War Needs Put New Life In 'Isinglass' Mining Industry

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 30.—Thanks to war-stimulated imports, a long-moribund industry of Georgia, North Carolina, and Vermont is getting a shot in the arm that authorities think will keep it alive and kicking in profits after war.

Most people know this strategic mineral as "isinglass" and don't think much about it except at Christmas, when they buy a box of mica flake "snow" to sprinkle on the Christmas tree, and after Christmas, when they cut it as they try to vacuum the stubborn stuff out of the rugs.

But high-grade mica is used in the ignition system of planes, tanks and trucks, in the booster station equipment of transoceanic cables, in radio tubes and condensers. As an insulating material—in spark plugs, for example—mica is far superior to porcelain.

In peaceful years, this country imported most of its high grade mica from Madagascar and India, but today Uncle Sam looks to Georgia, North Carolina and Vermont to supply him with 4,000,000 pounds per annum.

North Carolina remained as the principal domestic producer, but it never supplied the needs of a nation of motorists and radio fans. Most of the mica came again from the lands of cheap labor.

Georgia has vast mica deposits, but not a single mica mine was in operation on January 1. Today there are 25. Each produces from 100 to 1,000 pounds a day, more than half of it commercially valuable.

Against the sombre picture of a Continental Armageddon offered by hard-bitten army men, these same authorities nevertheless believe that an eventual United Nations invasion will be successful, provided our preparations are adequate and complete.

In the meantime our campaign in North Africa, the continued stand of the Red army and the stepping up of bomber raids are measures which must not be discounted. Neither should they blind anyone to the fact that in the last analysis the Wehrmacht, with all its mechanical devices, has had to fall back on bloody grind-and-wear tactics at Stalingrad.

LITTLE CHILDREN SHOW 'EM TAMPA, Fla.—A group of children at a playground solved a problem that had baffled their elders for years—how to pick up sandspurs from playgrounds and athletic fields. Their device is a barrel covered with rags. They roll it over the playground and the sandspurs—prickly burrs—stick to the rags.

Small Gun Fells Deer Where Big Rifle Fails

DURANGO, Colo.—P—Zeko Flora had a hard time getting ammunition for his big game rifle and so when he went hunting he took his .22 caliber weapon also.

After hunting three days and missing several shots he found he had only five cartridges left for the big game rifle. Then he saw a buck and blasted away with all five remaining shells, missing each shot.

He raised his .22 and pulled the trigger, although he believed the buck was out of range. To his amazement the deer collapsed. The bullet had severed an artery next his heart.

HAYS, Kas.—P—Rummaging among papers belonging to his father, an old geologist, Paul McCready recently found a complete set of contour maps of the three principal Japanese islands. "I don't think there is a creek on the islands that is not marked," says McCready. The maps were made more than 40 years ago when Japan was seeking oil on the islands. McCready has turned them over to the United States Government.

Consolidation Scenarios Of Unions Can, Off the Set May Happen

By Jack Stimmert

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—There are so many obstacles in the way of that so-called "labor peace" that many concerned will pass snap judgment that it can't happen here. But off-the-record observers within the labor movement and without are almost unanimous: A consolidation of the CIO and AFL, with practically all independent unions except the United Mine Workers (John L. Lewis) stringing along, may happen any day now.

For the moment, let's not consider the obstacles. They have been recited before in this report and others. The reasons for consolidation are:

(1) The war, with its attendant manpower and wage-control legislation, has taken away from war-making labor factions the weapons with which they fought each other. Labor's most potent weapons for maintaining the gains it has made and righting wrongs that still exist are: (a) Labor leaders who hold key jobs in Washington, such as those on the War Labor Board, in the Manpower Commission, and in the Department of Labor; and (b) the Washington Labor lobby.

(2) Labor's most potent weapons for maintaining the gains it has made and righting wrongs that still exist are: (a) Labor leaders who hold key jobs in Washington, such as those on the War Labor Board, in the Manpower Commission, and in the Department of Labor; and (b) the Washington Labor lobby.

Public opinion is also a vital factor in this matter of strikes and operates importantly against demands for excessive wages and shorter hours.

These things force labor to look for (2) representatives in the war government and an influential lobby that can make itself felt whenever labor legislation is in the offing. In both cases, a split labor movement defeats its main objective and the old saw, "In union there is strength," becomes too apparent to need further elucidation.

From the very first defense move, the Administration has given labor its representatives within it and has shown an inclination to listen to the voices of labor without. It is only when those "voices without" have been in discord that labor has lost ground.

There is no need here to go further into (3). Lewis and his battles with the AFL and more recently with his own original CIO are pretty well known. It is sufficient to point out that Lewis gained most of his original strength from his "stand-in" with the Administration. He gave that up when he opposed Roosevelt for the third term.

Army Finds Need For Apache Scouts

FORT HUACHUCA, Ariz.—P—Today's mechanized Army still has a job for the Apache scout, a holdover from the Indian wars. These rugged sons and grandsons of the tribesmen who made life miserable for pioneer settlers now number only seven in active service.

With the fort's strength increased from two regiments to a full division of Negro troops, Col. Edwin N. Hardy, commanding officer, has proposed that the scouts be increased to 30. "Many jobs can be done only on horseback—riding the fences, keeping cattle out of the reservation, guarding water sources, acting as fire guards and similar duties," he said.

Marquette Man On Ordnance Advisory Staff

Mr. Johnson is well-known to residents of Marquette and Skandia. He is a frequent visitor here and for several years has maintained a summer home in Skandia, where his mother and two brothers reside on neighboring farms.

To provide a layman with some idea of the magnitude of the Ordnance Department's job and, relatedly, of the task of training efficient Ordnance soldiers, it is advisable to say that their knowledge begins where that of the ordinary soldier ends.

Ordnance Requisite To Success They must be trained to be able to repair hundreds of complicated articles used in modern war, such as range finders, fire-control directors, transmission systems for fire control (operated by vacuum-tube amplifiers and electronic devices), optical instruments, machine guns, automatic engines, power trains, tank suspensions, electrical controls and a host of other items.

Besides their work of maintenance, Ordnance troops have a colossal supply job. They furnish bombs and ammunition with which battles are fought, and they also must be prepared to furnish new equipment and spare parts.

A well-organized, well-trained Ordnance service in a combat zone is a requisite for a successful Army. postoffice building at Bugnos Aires. A new stamp for airmail service comes in a design similar to a previous issue. It is a 30-cent orange, formerly lithographed and now printed by offset. The design shows the shadow of an airplane against the back of an envelope.

The third stamp commemorates the "Day of the Race" and is in the value of 15 cents, with the all-blue design showing the so-called Columbus lighthouse and bearing the dates Oct. 12, 1492-1942. This stamp honors the Spanish blood of Argentina's pioneers and refers to the 450th anniversary of Columbus' venture. Stamps honoring special ties have been issued in previous years by other South and Central American countries including Paraguay, Nicaragua, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic. It is the first stamp of this nature issued by Argentina since 1929.

Paraguay has issued four emergency stamps of one and seven peso values while awaiting arrival of a commemorative set recently mentioned here. The emergency set is of smaller size than normal.

A new Brazilian stamp now available commemorates the fourth National Eucharistic Congress in Sao Paulo. Value is 400 reis; the design of church coat of arms being in light brown. . . . Added to war prints now available is a set from Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika, the three countries using the same stamps. Such stamps are of inferior quality due to wartime shortages.

See here, man," he said, "you're in a rut. I'll bet that with a shave and some decent clothes I could get you a job at the general store." "Thanks, fellow," grinned back Guy Kibbee, "but I know where my next meal is coming from."

She Knew Him When The year was 1918 and they called them Liberty Bonds then. Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Marie Dressler, leaders in the bond sales, were posing for publicity photographs on the White House lawn. For one of the photographs Miss Dressler climbed onto a fence and Government officials grouped around her. A split second after the photograph was taken, the fence gave way. The actress grabbed on the way down, the nearest official, an assistant Secretary of the Navy, and both of them landed, laughing.

The assistant Secretary of the Navy was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Stamp News

Wide World Features BECAUSE of a reversal of government policy in effect during World War I, stamp collectors today have the opportunity of dressing up their collections as well as showing their patriotism by the inclusion of war stamps.

War stamps, not catalogued in World War I, now are being catalogued for the first time. As a contribution to the war effort, the New York dealers, R. J. Scott Stamp & Coin Co., are selling sets of war stamps in singles, blocks of four and panes, all at face value, and are supplying the purchasers loose-leaf sheets for mounting without cost.
