

Death Toll Of Deer Hunters Raised to Six

The death toll of hunters in Michigan's four-day-old hunting season was raised to six last night with the death, near St. Ignace, of a young Detroit, wounded fatally by an unseen hunter.

The victim, Robert Flowerday, about 30, was shot in the back by a bullet which first pierced the leg of a companion, Chester Crowl, Horton. State Police said there were nine other men in the hunting party, but none was able to explain how the accident happened.

Warm, unseasonal weather in the Upper Peninsula continued to plague hunters and many, disappointed, were reported leaving for their homes. Until yesterday, the army of hunters was estimated about normal.

54 Arrests In U. P.

In the Lower Peninsula, conservation department officials said the number of hunters was normal in the Atlanta, Roscommon and Gladwin districts, but was less in the others.

Officials said the deer army was the "best behaved" in years. Twenty-seven illegal deer were recovered in the Upper Peninsula and 54 arrests were made, while in the Lower Peninsula 144 deer and two elk thus far have been killed illegally. Violations totaled 128.

Miss Marie Peltz, Cheboygan sportswoman, killed the first deer in Cheboygan county while on a hunting party with her father.

Wisconsin Officer Killed

A Wisconsin state conservation officer, Al Reif, 33, was killed yesterday in Florence county, Wis., a few miles from the Wisconsin-Michigan state line when he and a fellow officer, Floyd Sanders, questioned a man about shots they heard in the woods.

Sanders, who said he exchanged shots with the man, was uninjured. He told this story:

He and Reif had been patrolling in the woods when they heard a shot. They circled and came upon a man near his parked car. As Reif questioned him about the shooting, Sanders inspected the car. While Sanders was inside the machine he heard a shot, drew his pistol and saw the man with drawn gun, Reif on the ground. They exchanged shots, with the slayer backing into the woods and Sanders following, dodging from tree to tree. A few minutes later the man escaped in his car.

The shooting took place three miles northwest of Iron Mountain. Another U. P. Fatality

The second deer season fatality in the Upper Peninsula was reported yesterday. James Gooden, 45, Roseville, Mich., was shot in the left side of the neck and killed instantly by John H. Smith, Detroit, while the two hunters were driving for deer near Agate Falls in Ontonagon county. Sheriff Robert Davison, who investigated, said the shooting was accidental.

Ed Hickman, East Detroit, lost in the Newberry district Tuesday, had not been found yesterday, but a searching party found remains of a fire believed to have been built by Hickman Tuesday night.

Appeal to 'Phone Users — The Michigan Bell Telephone company yesterday urged its customers to refrain from making social long distance calls on Thanksgiving day to prevent possibly dangerous congestion of the circuits. J. C. Gerling, manager in this area for the company, pointed out that the wires will be crowded with military and war production calls, and calls home by men in the service. He particularly urged users not to make social calls over transcontinental or interstate long distance lines involving distances of more than 300 miles, where the traffic normally is heaviest. He also suggested that a person having an urgent call to make, give the operator the number of the distant telephone if possible and keep the conversation short.

Kelly Unable To Find Residence in Detroit

LANSING, Nov. 18.—P—Governor-elect Harry F. Kelly has been unable to find a suitable residence in the capital city and does not plan to move his family here from Detroit for some time.

Kelly said today he would commute between his office and his Detroit residence for an indefinite period, attributing his inability to find a dwelling here to an acute housing shortage.

Africans Get In Groove On Yankee Ways

By Joseph Morton

SOMEWHERE IN AFRICA (De-layed)—P—After the War, I suppose they will call it the "Yankee belt."

It will be a strip 10 or 15 miles wide, starting on the Atlantic coast and running in straight, unbending lines from one "Little America" to another until it reaches the Red sea. There will be millions of black-skinned Africans in it, each telling the other he's "in the groove," asking if he's had his quinine today, speculating on who'll win the World Series, and humming a tune from a Broadway show.

The foundation already has been laid—along the route followed by America's great aerial supply line to the Middle East, India and Russia. Thousands of Americans, myself among them, are at work in it; hundreds of thousands will traverse it in months to come, each will leave, consciously or unconsciously, something for Africa to remember him by.

Even Take American Names

The belt, aside from its American characteristics, will be one of the most densely populated regions of Africa. The infusion is under way now. Word has seeped back into the darkest part of the interior that the Yanks have brought jobs, and money, and fun.

American coins will be an accepted media regardless of the political ties of the colony or state. In the case of one country, they even will be legal tender by an act of the government.

There will be countless Africans with good American names. The house boy, Musa, will be used to signing "Johnny Jones"; little Vini will be convinced she is getting along better as Mary Smith.

You will see "bush" boys working on airplanes, driving trucks and road graders and putting aside a few cents each month for books like "The ABC of Diesel Motors." The lad who was carving ivory last week will be busy with a set of carpenter's tools and possibly carrying a union card in his pocket.

For every white man's shower bath along the line there will be a thousand tin cans with holes in the bottom—and Africans under them. The G-string will be smiled upon; skirts, trousers and shoes no longer will be a privilege of the "educated." One will see corn on the cob, mosquito netting in native homes, and women talking about "my latest operation."

The boys will be playing the puzzling combination of rounders and cricket and calling it by its right name—baseball. They'll be asking for Milwaukee beer at Uncle Sam's Bar or the White House. Shooting craps over behind the garage and writing fan letters to Bill Robinson.

My Sudanese friend, Faful Mohammed, who has waited on tables in five countries, will no longer be unique with his "sunny side up" and "okey dokey." And the big Gold Coast policeman will have stopped poking his nose in the bus, pointing a finger, and asking: "Who dat man?" Instead, he will say: "May I see your pass, please?"

It is from these Africans, and millions more, that the "Yankee belt" is being forged. Every dol-

Axis Hopes Lie in Sands Of Desert

By Don Whitehead

EN ROUTE TO THE WESTERN DESERT FRONT, Libya, Nov. 18.—P—I have seen the graveyard of Rommel's hopes to conquer North Africa and it is a terrible sight to see.

Even this scene of death and destruction of the desert, however, is not as awesome as that of Britain's victorious eighth army giving chase to the retreating enemy who is not many miles ahead.

The roads to Poland, Belgium, France and Greece must have looked like those I saw today—except that this time it was the Germans who were on the run and the British who were advancing.

The Italian radio said this morning that Axis armies in North Africa were "advancing" to new positions. It was not funny, it was a rather pathetic thing to hear after seeing the tremendous number of British troops, tanks, guns and supplies moving up to the front in a line unbroken for miles and miles.

Feel Warm Inside

Transports moving along the coast road looked like a great brown snake writhing across the desert floor through the littered wreckage of twisted, burned enemy tanks, planes and trucks. As far as I could see dust swirled and billowed over the army on the move.

The sight made you feel warm inside with the knowledge that this time the Allies were going for the knockout and that there was stuff going up to do the job.

I came into the desert looking for the advance RAF unit to which I am to report. But as yet, I am unable to catch up with it. It is always just ahead. Planes move into airdromes right behind the enemy withdrawal. That is how fast this advance is going right now.

I left Cairo yesterday with only a vague idea of where I was headed. In fact, no one could say definitely where the advance units were. They had moved since the last reports.

The plane that brought me up was a Blenheim with a glass-enclosed front and so I had a grandstand seat over the battle area where Rommel's defense was broken. The pilot was lean, lanky RAF Flight Sergeant Peter Bartlett, Nottingham, Eng., a flying fool if I ever rode with one.

Sees Axis Tank Skeletons

I am glad he is on our side. I climbed into the nose of the ship and the yellow-haired kid headed across the green-checked fields of the Nile valley toward the brown desert sand dunes. The desert floor is criss-crossed with tracks of trucks and tanks in a crazy-quilt pattern.

We were flying about an hour during his visit. Lieut. Till talked to the students of the Imperial Mine location grade schools.

Mrs. Oliver Linstrom, the former Frances Moore, was the guest of honor at a post-nuptial shower given in the home of Mrs. Fred Papin last Thursday afternoon. Luncheon was served to 35 friends and relatives. Mrs. Linstrom received many beautiful gifts. Hostesses were Mrs. Fred Papin and daughter, Leona, and Mrs. Earl Luke.

SHOW ROOM SAMPLE COATS

They are coats of the moment, of the same high quality you have always bought here.

Showroom samples from which merchants select their stocks are made with infinite care. They are made even better than the stock that is delivered to the stores.

In these times, however, so many of the 100% woolen materials disappear from the market, no more to be had. So the maker is compelled to sell these showroom samples at a sacrificed price.

That is why you women can now save a quarter to a third on the coat of your choice.
