CROSS-BILL DENIES CHARGE

Reverend Gentleman Will Ask for Affirmative Relief-An 'Interview With Mr. Jewell's Atatorney, C. D. McEwen.

The Rev. Joel S. Jewell, the Gladstone Presbyterian minister who is defendant in divorce proceedings inpublished the story of Mrs. Jewell in her application, a representative of Greep; Wells, Andrew Johnson. The Iron Port sought out the rever end gentleman's attorney, C. D. Mc-Ewen, for something of the other side of the case. In answer to his inquiry regarding the facts in the case Mr. McEwen said:

"This is an ordinary chancery divorce case and I should much rather the case would be tried in the courts than in the newspapers. But The Iron Port having given, substantially, to the public the complainant's bill of complaint in its last week's publication of Mrs. Jewell's side of the case perhaps it will do no harm to outline our defense."

"Mrs. Jewell, in her bill," continued the attorney, "makes three charges against her husband. Eirst, failure to support; second, mental cruelty; third, incapacity to contract the marriage relation. In regard to the charge of non-support, her bill charges that she did not have enough to eat. This charge seems ridiculous and absurd. Mr. Jewell, his wife and two daughters, all living in the parsonage together, open to callers at all hours of the day; living in a believe. Mr. Jewell's answer to this will be a complete denial, and he will show that he and his daughters lived well and that Mrs. Jewell always had the best the house afforded.' In regard to the charge of mental cruelty the attorney said: "It is claimed by Mrs. Jewell that her husband exercised arbitrary control over here actions and that she was not permitted to visit members of his congregation without being accompanied by Mr. Jewell or one of his daughters, and that he criticised her manner and actions. There does not seem to be anything in this charge, and Mr. Jewel will deny it, and show that she was given as much freedom of locomotion as any woman in Gladstone, and that she used it and exercised quite as freely as any of them. Now, in regard to the alleged efforts of the Jewell girls to detain Mrs. Jewell in the house, it will be shown that their motive was to detain her there for a few minutes only until Mr. Jewell should These circumstances," said come. Mr. McEwen, "bave been highly colored. Mr. Jewell was not present and knew nothing whatever of the transaction until afterward." According to his attorney, Mr. Jewell's defense will be a general and specific denial of all the charges in the bill of complaint. In addition to this the defendant will file what is known as a cross-bill, asking for affirmative relief. In behalf of Mr. Jewell, and acting as his attorney, Mr. McEwen declined to give to the public the specific counter charges to be set up in the answer which he is to file. Mr. Jewell bas lived and preached in Gladstone for four years, and commands the universal respect of his townspeople. For fifteen years he was the pastor of the Presbyterian church of Genoa, New York, and for five years pastor of the Congregational church of South Riverside, California, where he owns an orange grove. Three years ago the first above mentioned church celebrated its centennial and at the invitation of the church Mr. Jewell was called to deliver the aniversary sermon. Several of his brothers are ministers. At the decline of a long and useful life Mr. Jewell has the misfortune to be made defendant in a divorce case. This is Mrs. Jewell's fourth matrimonial venture, and at least three of the quartet have proven unsatisactorily, for twice bas she been divorced, while her third application for divorce from her fourth husband of holiday goods in the city.

is pending. Her third husband was a German Baron named von Feilitzsob, whom she first met in Florida, and who lived only a few months fter their marriage.

At this time the last train of empty ore cars left ***** the dock, and in celebration of the event the locomotives in the yard blew their whistles long and loud. attracting the attention of the entire populace. The fire department thought there was a fire in that neighborhood, and hastened in that direction only to learn the true condition public manner, as it were, and yet of affairs after making a run of more Mrs. Jewell suffering for want of than a mile. Many citizens bastened northward, and Ludington street was thronged with people who were waiting for a street car to carry them to the supposed conflagration of the company's extensive works. The blasts from the locomotive whistles were the same as used here for fire alarms, and it was natural to suppose that there was a fire.

Rev. Father Langan Secures Injunction Against Miners' Bank.

ASKS FOR AN ACCOUNTING.

The injunction is the Result of Investments in Copper, Gold and Railroad Stocks by the Complainant.

Rev. Father Joseph M. Langan, pastor of the recently organized St. Patrick's church of this city, has instituted legal proceedings against the Miners' National Bank of Ishpeming for an accounting and to restrain the threatened sale of about fifteen thousand dollars worth of copper, gold and railroid stocks held by the bank as collateral security for loans made principally for the purchase of a considerable part of the stocks, the remainder of the stocks having been deposited with the bank as security. The claim is made that the bank reported to Father Langan from time to time that it had purchased for him the stocks as ordered and for the purchase price of which he was charged by the bank, but that he recently applied to the bank to transfer his account to another institution with which he had arranged to take up the stocks and pay the indebted ness to the bank. If the tax is not forthcoming the city, which is paying $6,160 annually for rental of 140 hydrants, would undoubtedly withhold payment therefor until the amount levied against the property was liquidated. The call was not only defective, but the charter allows the raising of but one per cent of the assessed valuation of the city in any one year for such purposes.

ZAZOOS DEFEATED.

Ishpeming Wins Football Championship of Two States.

Isbpeming again wins the Michi gan inter-scholastic football championship. Last Saturday these young gridiron warriors defeated Kalamazoo, the champions of the lower peninsula, by a score of 27 to 21. The scores well indicates the nature of the contest. Neither team had any developed defense, and the side that got the ball was the one to rush the ball across the field for a touchdown.

The Kazoo team averaged nearly, thirty pounds beavier than the lshpeming lads, and the latter naturally had the sympathies and encouragement of the crowd. Ishpeming got the advantage of several of Umpire May's decisions. Kalamazoo was penalized often, while infringements ments to this earnest worker in the on the part of Ishpeming were overranks of the republican party. The looked. Kalamazoo also held Ishpeming for downs once, but Ishpeming was given a fourth trial, and shortly after soored a touchdown, However, Ishpeming's victory was popular with the students. The Ishpeming eleven had fine team work on offense. They worked the old revolving mass with great effect, the celery city lads being un-able to solve it. Kalamaloo resorted to straight line backing, and it was only their great excess of weight that made their long gains possible:

The feature of the game was a 55yard run by Rumney, of Kalamazoo, for a touchdown; a goal from a placement by Gilbert, of Kalamazoo, and the great all-around playing of Gill, of Ishpeming. The latter was easily the star of the day. By her victory Isbpeming lays claim to the championship of Wisconsin as well as Michigan, having defeated Oshkosh, which claimed to Badger championship, by a score of 35 to 0.

WHIRLPOOLS IN THE SUN

New Step to Be Taken In Astronomical Investigation.

OHIEF WORK BY MISS KLUMPKE.

Garrett P. Serviss Tells How the Woman Astronomer Will Try to Ascertain by Photography Whether Spiral Shaped Nebulm That Glow In Whirling Motions.

Something entirely new is about to be undertaken in astronomy, and the at his skill, says the New York Evening brilliant American girl astronomer, Dorothea Klumpke, is to perform the most important part of the new work, says Professor Garrett P. Serviss in the New York Journal. If successful, it will afford us a wonderful glimpse into the mechanism of the universe. It is no less than an attempt to ascertain by the aid of photographs whether the great spiral shaped nebulæ that glow here and there among the stars are subject to a visible whirling motion.

The forms of these strange objects indicate that they resemble in their nature vast whirlpools composed of incandescent gases, mingled perhaps with meteorie bodies and started in gyration by means of forces and influences not clearly comprehensible to us. But hitherto there has been no direct evidence of motion in these nebulæ. So far as sny visible change is concerned they might be as motionless as frost figures upon a window pane.

Telescopic observation alone does not suffice to reveal their movements, because they are so immense and the length of an observation is so brief that there is not time enough for the effects of the probable motion to reveal itself to the eye. Moreover, on account of the faint and hazy outlines of the nebulæ, no drawings of them made by hand can be rendered sufficiently accurate to serve the purpose. But now that astronomical photography has reached a high degree of perfection all this is changed, and it is hoped that by comparing such photographs taken at intervals the whirling of the nebulæ will be rendered evident to our senses.

The interest of this experiment lies in the fact that there is some reason to think that the spinal nebulæ Fepresent a primordial condition of the substance out of which the stars, worlds and suns composing the universe have been formed. Our solar system may once have glowed softly in the depths of space in the form of a rather small spiral nebula before its gleaming atoms had been whirled and compacted into sun and planets. Thus in studying the spiral nebulæ we are like the botanist who is able to see locked up in the showed no uneasiness when he led out

SHE TAUGHT WU TO WALTZ

Chinese Diplomat, Charmed With Miss Barkadale's Dancing.

"The prettiest girl I ever saw" is what Minister Wu Ting Fang says of Miss Clarice Barksdale of Augusta, Ga. "As good a waitzer as I would wish to dance with" is what Miss Barksdale DEOREASE IN NUMBER OF OASES. says of Minister Wu.

And thereby hangs a tale, for Miss Barksdale, the charming southern belle, whose sojourn in Washington has been one long round of entertainments, I given the credit of lastructing Minister Wu so thoroughly in the art of waltzthe Stars Are Subject to Visible ing that when he made his public debut in Newport, dancing with Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, society was surprised

> Journal "But where did he learn to waltz? And the two step, above all things! How and where did he pick that up?" So run the questions. As for Mrs. Fish, she doesn't know, but she says, with emphasis, that wherever he learned he dances most delightfully. As for Minister Wu, he looks mysterious and says, "A lady of the south."

Well, here's the secret: The lady is a young girl of the southland, graceful, good to look upon, with the ease of the south as an atmosphere. Her name is Miss Clarice Barksdale, and she lives in Augusta, Ga. Miss Barksdale made her debut only this winter into society and was one of the belles at a large reception given at one of the finishing schools in Washington. Minister Wu was among the celebrities in attendsnce, and his eye was instantly caught by the graceful, handsome young girl, whose waltzing he declared the most beautiful ever seen by him.

An introduction was requested, and the minister begged the dancer to teach him this art, of which he was wholly ignorant. So in a corner of the drawing room the lessons began. Her distinguished pupil was much pleased by his progress and, considering a little learning a dangerous thing, came again and again and by his marvelous aptness proved great credit to his fair young instructress.

Just before leaving Washington a dinner dance was given in Miss Barksdale's honor at the Chinese legation. All the gay younger set of the capital were invited, and when the dinner was over and the dancing began great was the astonishment of the guests when their petticoated host, arrayed in the purple embroidery and white silk of honor, led out the dark eyed girl from Georgia. And well they danced, these two-on and on through the evening, through waltz and two step, until the final lesson was over.

Miss Barksdale pronounced the great statesman and scholar as good a waltzer as one would wish to dance with. And this is why Minister Wu

LEPROSY IN FAIR HAWAII

Disease Being Eradicated by Gradual Extinction of Natives.

Scientific Treatment Hay Had Little Effect-More Stringent Rules For Lepers of Molokal-Desire Expressed That the United States Take the Matter Up.

Leprosy is being slowly but none the ess certainly eradicated in the Hawaiian Islands, says the New York Sun's Honolulu correspondent. Five years ago there were over 1,300 inmates at the leper settlement on the island of Molokai. When the annual visit was made a few days ago, there were barely 900. This is due not so much to any scientific treatment of the disease as to the gradual extinction of the native race, which alone, in the opinion of Superintendent Reynolds of the settlement, will cause the complete eradication of leprosy there.

Last year there were an even hundred lepers sent to the island, while only fifty have been sent during the first nine months of the present year. In the blennial period ending December, 1900, directly after the islands had been annexed, over 500 were taken to the settlement. This was due not to any increase in the disease, but to the fact that the question was taken out of the hands of the party previously in control, and many afflicted persons who had remained in Honolulu through political influence were hurridedly bundled off to the place of segregation. A stockade has been built on the island, and, though the lepers are allowed to look upon visitors, it is at a distance of ten feet and through a high picket fence. The scene at this stockade, or corral, is a most pathetic one. The visitors to the island are led to it through a double row of guards, and behind another fence some distance away the lepers are compelled to remain. All day they look longingly at their relatives without even having the privilege of a hand clasp. It is this display of affection which physicians in Hawaii hold responsible for the spread of the disease to such an alarming extent in the past.

The disease is thought to have been brought to the islands by a Chinaman thirty years ago, and as soon as it once reached the natives the disease spread with great rapidity. The Hawallans are much given to an outward display of affection, and it is still no uncommon sight to see even old men

TESTING HIS NERVE

The Close Shave of a Drammer Out

"I was sitting on the veranda of a far western hotel one afternoon," said the Boston drummer, "and was lazily smoking one of the nicest meerschaum pipes you ever saw when out of the tall of my eye I saw that a native down at the other end of the veranda had his gun sighted at me. They were a wild lot around there, and I couldn't tell whether he meant to shoot me or the pipe. The chances were in favor of the pipe, however, and it seemed a good chance to test my nerve. I made up my mind to let him shoot and to pretend a careless air, but I'm telling you that in the ten or fifteen seconds of waiting the sweat came out at every pore and my heart pounded my ribs sore. I'felt a sort of tick at the bowl of the pipe, heard the crack of the gun and knew that the bullet had passed through the pipe. I got a brace with my nands and feet and waited for a second bullet, and it went through the bowl after the first. I sat there until his fourth bullet had knocked the "'Same.as you are.' I replied.

"My gibe hurt him, but he was man enough to tell everybody about my nerve, and the boys chipped in sufficient nuggets to buy me this $50. smoker. Nerve! Say, do you know what happened to me when I made an excuse to go up stairs after my old corncob? I had no sooner got into my room than my knees gave out, chills galloped up my spine, and I'll be hapged if I didn't faint away and lie there for ten minutes. It had suddenly occurred to me that the bowl of that pipe was only six inches from my nose while the fellow was doing his shooting, and I have not yet got over touching my nasal organ now and then to see if it is safe." M. QUAD.

By learning what laws control the motion and contraction of such nebulæ we shall approach toward a solution of the old and always interesting question of how the world began. But the fact should not be lost sight of that the spiral nebulæ now visible in the heavens enormously exceed in extent the entire solar system.

It is probable that such nebulæ as the large one in Canes Venatici or the still mightler one in Andromeda contain enough matter to form hundreds if not thousands of solar systems. In their case a gigantic sun like Arcturus, exceeding our sun thousands of times in size and radiant capacity, may be in process of formation. And we are at liberty to suppose that around such giant suns giant worlds will revolve when the process of the ages has brought them into existence.

In short, the aim of the new step that Miss Klumpke is to take in astronomical investigation is to clear up some of the mystery that now surrounds those objects in the heavens which give in their appearance every indication that they stand for the most ancient form of cosmical order emerging out of primeval chaos.

If the method proves as effective as is hoped, we may not have to wait it in the state of Sonora. very long for results, because fortuthe chief representatives of the spiral very similar to those existing in Egypt, nebulæ began to be made by Dr. Isaac and the only difficulty will be the scar-Roberts in England ten or twelve years city of water for irrigating in some loago, and his series of photographs has been continued at more or less frequent intervals during all the intervening time.

Miss Klumpke's first work will consist of a most careful measurement and comparison of these accumulated photographs of Dr. Roberts, upon which, as already explained, the results of any change of form undergone by the respective nebulæ must be recorded, provided that those changes have been rapid enough to reveal themselves in the course of a decade.

Possibly as photography improves it will become easy to detect motions in the nebulæ of a far more complex form than has yet been suspected. Cerainly astronomy has never presented more important or more fascinating problems than it does today, and the means of attacking these problems have never been more abundant or more full of promise.

EGYPTIAN COTTON CULTURE

Successful Experiments at Government Station Near Phenix, Aris. Experiments at the government station are proving without a doubt that Egyptian cotton can be successfully grown in the southwest, says the New York Sun. An acre planted at the experimental farm near Phenix, Ariz., is producing a crop of unexpected luxurlance, with a fiber that is long, silken and strong and a much stronger and better staple than the American cotton of southeastern states.

The experiments have been made under the direction of the department of agriculture in conjunction with similar work in Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama and the Carolinas, but reports received at the Phenix station say that in no other place, except on a small tract in lower Florida, has any success been attained. So successful have been the results with the experimental crop at Phenix that plantings will be made next year in a score of places in the southern part of Arizona and New Mexico. In old Mexico, too, much interest has been aroused, and the government will make trials with

According to advices from Kiel the new high school there for the teaching of shipbuilding and construction of machinery will be opened in 1903. The school will be wholly in the hands of The farmers who are engaged in the state, but the cost will only in part be borne by the state, the town of Kiel contributing $15,000, says the London Express. Leprosy is not held to be a hereditary* disease, and children born of leper parents in Molokai are allowed to leave. It is seldom that the parents consent to this, however, and their children are kept by their side until they, too, become contaminated. It was formerly the custom to allow wives to accompany their husbands to the Island settlement, but this practice is now being discouraged, and only in rare instances is this permitted.

Of the 900 lepers on the Island of Molokal all but fifty are native Hawailans. There are only fifteen whites and . thirty Chinese. Expert physicians who had made a lifelong study of leprosy in Japan, France and China have been in the Hawalian Islands studying the conditions, but have found no suitable remedy for the disease that is effective. The local government has given up experiments upon the disease, and there is a general feeling that the United States should now take up the study of the disease with the purpose of ef-

MARTINELLI TO REMAIN. Appointment of Scalabrini to name?"

Washington Not Likely.

The reported assignment of Mgr. Scalabrini, of Placenza, Italy, as the successor of Cardinal Martinelli, the papal delegate in this country, is regarded as very improbable. Mgr. Scalabrini is regarded as one of the ablest ecciesiastics of the church in Italy, and for a number of years bas been in char, je of his present diocese in Placenta. He has become very much attached to his people, so much so, in fact, that when some time ago he was offered aposition in the church, which meant elevation to the cardintownship this week, and he expresses alate, he refused to leave his assignment. The expectation is that Cardinal Martinelli will remain until spring.

Twas an Irish Bull.

Before the days of proper safeguards a good many cattle got in the paths of Michigan railroads and were killed outright or so badly injured as to heessitate putting them out of misery. These happenings frequently afforded the owners of the cattle an opportunity to bring suit against the railroad companies, so that the employees were re-quired to be very careful as to details and to keep a strict record of the manner of a cow's death, etc. Regular printed reports of such cases had to be turned in by the section master, who was required to fill out blanks staring the probable age of the deceased animal, weight, color, distinguishing marks and disposition of carcass, the animal being sometimes cut up and sold for beef.

Naturally it was an Irish section "schuperintindher" who, like Finnlgan in his terse report of a wreck, simply stated, "Off ag'in, on ag'in-Finnegan," made out the record of a certain bovine tragedy in a characteristic way. Mike guessed pretty well at the age and weight and color of the dead cow, but when he came to the line "disposition of carcass" he scratched bis head reflectively.

"Sure," he muttered, "she doled alsy, annyway." Then opposite the line he scrawled, "Kind and gentle."-Detroit Free Press.

What a Daub of Ink Did.

A certain newspaper proprietor had a way of appearing in the composing and press rooms at the most unexpected times, and as his visits often resulted in a general "shakeup" of the working forces of the paper they were awaited with fear and trembling by the employees.

One time one of the pressmen, an excellent workman, who had been there many years, but was sometimes guilty of a lapse of sobriety, had a black eye and was in a quandary as to what excuse he should offer if the proprietor noticed it. By a sudden inspiration he selzed an ink roller and daubed some ink on his face, quite covering the discoloration. Presently the governor came in and, with the foreman, went through the room, commenting on every detail and looking very sharply at every workman. When about to leave, he suddenly pointed to the inky pressman and said, "What is that man's Peculiarities of Footpaths.

Footpaths are what roads are 'not, natural productions, just as the paths made by hares, deer and elephants are. No one really makes a footpath—that is, no one improves it. What is true of central Africa is true of England.

"The native paths," wrote Professor Drummond, "are the same in character all over Africa. Like the roads of the old Romans, they run straight ou through everything-ridge and mountain and valley-never shying at obstacles nor anywhere turning aside to breathe. Yet within this general straightforwardness there is a singucentricity and indirectness in detall. Although the African footpath is, on the whole, a bee line, no fifty yards of it are ever straight. And the reason is not far to seek.

"If a stone is encountered, no native will ever think of removing it. Why should he? .It is easier to walk around it. The next man who comes by will do the same. He knows that a hundred men are following him. He looks at the stone a moment, and it might be unearthed and tossed aside; but, no, he holds on his way. It would no more occur to him that that stone is a displaceable object than that felspar belongs to the orthoclase variety. Generations and generations of men have passed that stone, and it still walts for a man with an altruistic idea."-Spectator.

This constant bearing of the weight on the left foot makes it wider than the right, and it often happens that a man who tries on a shoe on the right foot and gets a close fit has to discard the shoes altogether because he cannot endure the pain caused by the tightness of the left. If when riding on the street car you will take the trouble to notice, you will see that in laced shoes the gap is much smaller on the right foot than on the left, while with button shoes the buttons have to be set back ten times on the left shoe to once on the right.

break five eggs in it." Chapman, the bartender, looked at him suspiciously and hesitated.

"That's what I want," he ordered. Chapman broke five raw eggs in the glass and waited for further orders. "Now a pint of champagne."

Chapman opened the bottle, and the customer poured it on top of the eggs and, taking a spoon, stirred the mixture thoroughly and then drank it. Then he paid his bill and walked out --Cincinnati, Commercial Tribune.

Prunes as Medicine.

That the fruit possesses very considenable virtue in this respect is conceded by most eminent authorities, and for this reason as well as on account of their food value they are included among the foods suitable for invalids, children and those whose digestive powers are rather inactive. Their influence is mild, which fact makes them desirable for the not over robust.

A disb of well cooked rice and prunes, made dainty and attractive for serving, is a dish to serve for either a breakfast, luncheon or a dessert, especially for the child or invalid, and should be added especially to our list of hot weather dishes, frequently replacing meat and potatoes and heavy, unseasonable desserts.

The proportions of the human figure, says an anatomist, are six times the length of the right foot. The face, from the highest point of the forehead. where the hair begins, to the end of the chin, is one-tenth of the whole stature. The hand, from the wrist to the end the middle finger, is also one-tenth 10 of the total height. From the crown to the nape of the neck is one-twelfth of the stature.

Almonds.

The world's almond crop, exclusive of those raised in California and the west, comes from Italy, Sicily, Majorca, Spain, France, Portugal, Morocco and Algiers. The highly prized Jordan almonds come from Malaga, Spain, and not from the Jordan river, as many people suppose. The common used as a desert or as a flyoring. One peculiarity about the almond tree is that its leaves confain prussic acid and are therefore poisonous, while the fruit may be eaten with impunity.

Immigration Bureau Working on System to Exclude Anarchists.

THEIR RECORDS MUST BE KNOWN.

All Immigrants Must Bring Certificate of Good Character From Port of Departure-Congressman Connell of Pennsylvania to Draft a Law. Identification System Planned.

Foreign anarchists will be excluded from the United States if laws are adopted in accord with the ideas now being worked out by Mr. Powderly, the commissioner of immigration; Representative Connell of Pennsylvania, and other members of congress, says a Washington dispatch to the Chicago Tribune. The head of the immigration bureau, who is disconsolate over the death of President McKinley, was pacing up and down before the treasury department the other day, turning over in his mind a scheme which if adopted will exclude foreign anarchists; and if they develop anarchistic tendencies after reaching here they can be deported at any time before they are naturalized. This scheme, as outlined by Mr. Powderly, contemplates naming certain ports in Europe from which immigrants will be allowed to land in the United States. At those ports officers of the immigration bureau will be sta-Moned.

When a person desiring to enter the United States presents himself, he will be required to give a certificate of character from the time of his birth to the day of sailing. If this document shows the person is a member of an anarchistic or similar society, has ever been arrested for crime, is of an excitable temperament or develops any undesirable traits, these will be sufficient grounds on which the official can base his refusal to approve the certificate. If the certificate is approved by the official, the emigrant will be allowed to land when he reaches the United States, but if he should present himself at any American port without a certificate properly indorsed he will be refused entrance.

If a foreign government should object to the presence of an American official within its borders, then Mr. Powderly would favor the adoption of a law granting him authority to decline to allow any immigrant from that country to land here unless the United States is permitted to maintain bureaus which will enable its representatives to inquire into the character of proposed emigrants. It has been suggested that the consular officers act as representatives of the immigration bureau. There is objection to this, however, upon the grounds of divided and thority. Mr. Powderly is in favor of of the character in the hands of either the state department or the treasury department and to hold the person who is to administer it responsible. Representative Connell, who is one of the rich men of the country, is greatly interested in the subject and has been in conference with Mr. Powderly concerning it. So anxious is the Pennsylvania congressman that prompt action be taken that he has decided to draft a law on the lines indicated. He has also determined to employ at his own expense the best legal talent in the country to pass upon the constitutional-it of the proposed law in order that it will stand a better chance of being deelared constitutional in event of the supreme court being called upon to pass upon it. In connection with the measure contemplated Mr. Powderly will also rec-ommend the adoption of legislation which will compel all immigrants on landing to register and to declare their intentions as to citizenship. He also wants authority to keep watch upon all allens for a period of five years or until they become naturalized. If during the time they are aliens they develop anarchistic tendencies, the commissioner general will recommend that the power be given him to deport them. In addition to this he will recommend the adoption of the Bertillon 'aystem of measurement. He is now making a study of this system and is of the opinion it will be valuable to his bureau in keeping track of the aliens until they leave the country or become naturalized. The fact that aliens are being watched by a powerful government like that of the United States would, he believes, have a wonderful effect, as it would convince all aliens that they are on their good behavior and could be deported whenever they showed the least sign of making undesirable citizens. Legislation requiring newcomers to declare their intentions would undoubtedly simplify matters for the general government in the event of a riot" or of violence done to persons who claim to be subjects of foreign goy-ernments. Whenever a riot happens and a supposed foreigner is injured he immediately sets up a claim for indemnity and calls upon the govern-ment of the country from which he came to enforce it. Foreign complications of a serious character have been threatened by inci-dents of this character, and it after-ward developed that the person in juestion had either declared his inten-tion of becoming a citizen or had actually been naturalized. With a complete record of every one who enters, this country, it was pointed out by Mr. Powderly, it would be a simple matter to determine whether or not the victim to determine whether or hot the victim of violence was a naturalized citizen or the subject of a foreign govern-ment. This would spare the country the disturbance to business and peace of mind which usually follows threat-ened international complications.

GREW UP FROM EPIGRAMS. Bow President McKinley Started Bia falo Spec President McKinley's great speech at uffalo grew from three phrases thought out by him one evening in Can-top while smoking his after dinner cigar, says a special dispatch from Washington to the New York World. This was three weeks before he was to leave Canton for Buffalo on the visit which terminated with his death, The president and Secretary Cortel you were sitting together in the president's office in Mfs house. It was 7 o'clock, and the lights had not yet been. lighted. The president sat, quietly smoking, looking at the celling and watching the smoke curl upward. Mr. Cortelyou sat across the desk from him, glancing over some papers. Neither had said a word for-ten minutes, when suddenly the president took his cigar from his lips and said, apropos of nothing at all apparently:

"Expositions are the timekterpers of progress,"

Mr. Cortelyou made a note of the epigram on a bit of paper, but said nothing. The president smoked a few minutes and then said:

"Amity is better than animosity." Mr. Cortelyou made another note. Mr. McKinley lapsed back into his thoughtful mood. He puffed at his cigar for a Pianos, Organs and Sewing Machine: time and then again broke the silence: "Reciprocity is better than retalia-" tion.'

The president finished his cigar, walked over and looked out of the window, returned and sat down at the desk again and then took up routine business with the secretary. There was not a word between the president and the secretary about the three phrases, but after the work was finished and the president had gone in to see if Mrs. Mc-Kinley was comfortable Mr. Cortelyoù went up stairs and had one of the stenographers typewrite the three phrases, one at the top of the paper, one in the middle and one at the bottom. Next morning before breakfast Mr. Cortelyou took the sheet of paper and put it on top of everything else on the president's desk. When Mr. McKinley came in, he picked up the paper, read over the epigrams, and then, turning to Mr. Cortelyou, said, with a smile:

"We have begun the Buffalo speech, I see."

The president expanded the three ideas into the Buffalo speech. He did not use "Amity is better than animosity" or "Reciprocity is better than retallation" in those exact words, but that notable epigram, "Expositions are the timekeepers of progress, went safely through all the revisions and attracted immediate attention in the speech.

The president dictated little of the speech. He wrote it out by paragraphs, taking fully two weeks to do it. He used a pad on his knee on the porch ilso wrote some of it while he was

Mrs. Jack Gardiner's Venetian palace on the Fenway is still far from completion, says a Boston dispatch to the New York Evening Journal. Objects of art lie around on the floors that are worth the ransom of a king. Mrs. Gardiner has engaged, it is stated, John La Farge to create for the glassroof that covers the great inner court a most original design in stained glass, The idea is Mrs. Gardiner's own and is nothing less than to have over this court a reproduction of an Italian summer sky. The main body of the glass will be soft blue of several hues, scattered over with artistically arranged masses of white, pearly gray and tender rose colors to the semblance of clouds. The sun shining through this roof, even on a winter's day, will give, it is expected, a charming illusion of the skyscape of the Italy so beloved of Boston's society queen.

mething of the White Pine Which Has Been Cut and the Amount of Remaining Hardwood-Authoritive Figures.

J. E. Defebaugh, editor of the American Lumberman, contributes. an interesting article on the past and future of Michigan's lumber industry :

"If the question were to be asked," says Mr. Defebaugh, "what is or was the greatest lumber state in the union, someone without consideration might say Maine, some Pennsylvania, some Washington or California, but after due consideration I believe that all would unite in saying Michigan. The estimated round figure product for the forests of Michigan, from its settlement until now, has been 217,-$75,000,000 feet. The area of Michigan is 58,919 square miles, or 37,706,-000 acres. This would indicate a lumber product for the entire state, considerable areas of which were prairie land when discovered with other large areas but sparsely timbered, of 5,780 feet an acre.

"Not only has this enormous amount of timber been taken out of Michigan but a very heavy amount of timber st.lt remains It is quite the fassion nowaday to speak of Michigan as a denuded state, but today it probably carries more timber than Georgia and some other states which are considered factors in the lamber supply of the country. The hardwood resources of the state which during the regnancy of white pine were little considered, are enormous and of wonderful value. I be lieve it entirely within the bounds of safe conjecture to state that the hardwood product of the state last year was not less than 750,000,000 feet, while more likely it was a billion. In addition to the hardwood is a heavy and growing hemlock product. This wood was little valued as long as white pine was found in large quantities and when there was no limit to its production except the capacity of the nills. In 1900 the hemlock product of the state was about 750,000,000 feet, making an aggregate in round figures of 'about 15,000,000 000 teet manufactured in the Wolverine state of classes of timber that 25 years ago were hardly considered in estimating its forest wealth. We find Michigan, then, a state which, ordinarily considered the victim of timber spoilation, still one of the heaviest producers in the country and bidd ng fair to furnish in perpetuity no small contribution to the demands of the lumber trade. "Compara.ively few people recognize the real importance of the hardwood business as compared with pine-The pine business brought and still brings into the state an immense amount of money, but it can hardly be compared in this respect with the hardwood trade. The individual operators in pine make more mouey, but as an employer of labor, as the basis for diversified industry and as a staple support for the industries and the people of the state, the hardwoods are its superior. Take the course of the timber business throughout and this fact can be seen. "Hardwood timber is more generally than pine distributed among the people of the state. Where pine was held in large blocks by mill op erators, the hardwoods are all in sorts of ownership, from the farmer or settler with 160 acres up to the big lumbering companies with their thousands. Logging is more expensive in bard woods, due to the larger in proportion, and out less per man. They are scattered through the woods, giving life to hamlets which become the centers of agricultural communities and gradually build up other industries, where, as the pine assisted during the last illness and mills are more largely centralized in after the death of our beloved father, lac, Manistee and Menominee. however, that the hardwood industry help and relief. has over the pine is that to a much greater extent it is the basis for other industries located in the state. By far the larger proportion of all the pine lumoer ever made in Michi-gan was shipped outside its borders. To what extent it was consumed at

Earl H Thomas, of Nauvoo, Penn., who has had much experience with the measurement of lumber, long ago became dissatisfied with the tables of figures commonly used for that purpose. One table, which is very popular today, seems to him to underestimate the quantity of lumber to be got out of a log. Thus Scribner gives 210 feet for a log 20 inches in diameter and 12 feet long, while 4r. Thomas gets 222. Of course, in the days when timber was plenty and prices low it did not matter much, but with a diminished output and increased prices accurate measurement becomes more important. Mr. Thomas thinks that lumbermen have lost thousands of dollars through the use of the old rule. He says:

"My rule is the only rule I know of what measures logs of any size with the same degree of accuracy. My rule has not been hastily got up. I have tried every rational method to I have tried every rational method to arrive at a correct understanding of the subject. I know the practice of sawyers to manufacture jumber to the best advantage. I have worked out four series of numbers by a slight variation of the same princi-ples, and produced results which ples, and produced results which easily show the correct ideas. In, the beginning of my work I made a series of drafts, one for each size, giving the exact number of boards and feet in each size of log. They would saw out exactly the amount indicated, just as a building will be like the architect's plan. By my method of calculation each number follows the preceeding one by an exact ratio. The difference for each size increases from between 6 and 7 inches for 7 feet to between 47 and 48 inches for 57 feet." Like other authors of tables, Mr. Thomas makes a certain deduction for waste in slabs and edgings. He also made allowance for sawdust. And he believes that both of these are sufficient, though less than those adopted by others. These figures are for straight stuff, however. He makes a separate estimate on crooked logs. Thus, if a log 24 inches in dia meter has a four inch crook hear the middle, Mr. Thomas deducts 2 inches if the crook is single, and 4 if it is double.

IRON ORE SHIPMENTS.

Official Figures for Season Are Not Yet Obtainable.

While it is as yet impossible to give any official information as to the amount of ore shipped from the Northwestern docks during the past season, it is known that the tonnage will come within a few thousand tons of the four million mark. The season, number of people required and the it is said, has been better than last more varied character of the opera- year. The St. Paul company shipped tion. Again, the hardwood mills are from its dock at Wells something of much smaller capacity than those over 500,000 tons, and this' amount which cut the pines, use more men will be greatly exceded next year be cause of the additional dock facilities.
