City Council Desires Wish of People on Paying of Ludington Street.

MAYCALL MASS MEETING

Matter Must be Decided at Once Before Appropriations are Made for Next Year.

What is to be done with Ludington street next year? is the all important question that will have to be taken up shortly by the city council. As it is necessary to make appropriations next month for all streets that are to be paved next spring, it will have to be decided within a few weeks whether or not Ludington street is to be paved next year. The urgent need of new paving for that street is apparant to all, and to none more clearly than the members of the council. The matter was broached at the council meeting last Tuesday night by Alderman Jensen who as a member of the street commitee called the attention of the council to the necessity of acting at once.

That the matter may be settled next month Alderman Jensen recommended the calling of a mass meeting of the property owners along Ludington street for the purpose of determining the prevaling sentiment regarding the paving of that street.

Other members of the council offered suggestions and all agreed that immedmayor and members of the street committee and it is quite likely that this visit will be made.

The members of the council realize that the task of paving Ludington street is a large one and will be sat-

Council Meeting.

The common council met in regular session Tuesday evening. In the absence of City Clerk Hugh Robertson, Fred Shows Them in Excess of Liabilities Wildi acted as clerk. The report of city poor commissioner Geo. Young showing an expenditure for the month of July for $136.62 was accepted. The report of Judge Emil Glaser showing fines collected to the amount of $47 was received.

The recommendation of the street committee for an arc light at the corner of Thomas and Wolcott streets was accepted and the work ordered done. Library bills amounting to $373.87 were allowed. The report of the city scavenger were held over until the next meeting for investigation.

A rebate of a sewer tax amounting to $32.50 was granted to Mrs. Hill because of the fact that the sewer did not pass or front the lot assessed.

Cars Run to Fast.

Though no definate action was taken by the council Tuesday night regarding the high rate of speed at which the Street Railway company runs its cars within the city limits, several aldermen expressed themselves as being in favor of taking some action to enforce some regulation of the speed. At the rate which some of the cars are run it would be almost impossible to bring the cars to a short stop if it were necessary

Besides rendering the streets dangerous this high rate os speed makes every pedestrian crossing the street in front of a car feel mighty uncomfortable,

Good Entertainment.

An entertainment consisting of experiments with Radium, Liquid Air and Wireless Telegraphy was given by Prof. W. B. Patty in the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening. The entertain-ment was an interesting and instructive one and it is to be regretted that the attendance was not larger. The experiments with wireless telegraphy were especially interesting. Prof. Patty had a minature wireless outfit and demonstrated the principles upon which it was operated.

Name Changed. ___

The name of Thomas street above Georgia street was changed at the meeting of the council to Escanaba avenue in response to a petition from property owners on that street. The petition states because of the smoke and dirt of the Northwestern shops and City Lighting Plant the lower end of Thomas street was unfit for residence purposes and that on account of the name property along the whole street was affected.

The prefect of police notified the emperor of the tragedy immediately upon its occurrence. The emperor, who was at the Villa Alexandria at Peterhof, was greatly affected by the news, coming, as it did, atop of the bad tidings from the seat of war, fears of international complications and the strain incident upon the hourly expectation of an event so close to the father's heart. The emperor almost broke down when he was informed of the minister's murder. Whatever may have been the motive for the crime, nothing but the utmost indignation and condemnation of the assassin's act is voiced anywhere.

Senator von Plehve was appointed minister of the interior April 18, 1902, succeeding M. Sipiaguine, who was assassinated April 16, 1902, by a student named Balmashoff. He had formerly been director of the department of police, which position he practically assumed of his own accord, when in charge of the department of political prosecutions, owing to the incompetency of the official who was in charge of the police when Emperor Alexander II. was killed, March 13, 1881. M. von Plehve conducted the prosecution of the regicides and afterwards reorganized the police. From that time on the power of M, von Plehve increased until it became only second in importance to that of the emperor. Several plots to assassinate the minister have, according to reports, been discovered during the last two years, which period has been marked by strong political rivalry between the interior minister and the former minister of finance, M. Witte, now president of the committee of ministers. He was regarded as being in many ways the power behind the throne and was dreaded on account of his control of the third (secret) section of police and also owing to the fact that he controlled the press of Russia, through the censors, who, it has been understood. did M. von Plehve's bidding without question. The deceased minister was laborious in the extreme and was an indifferent conversationalist. He was, however, fond of music and was accustomed to read many French novels during his leisure hours.

"The chief's quite right in insisting upon everything being above board," I said, boldly. "We don't want any hole-and-corner business in a concern like this. We are all like so many mountaineers roped together on a mountain. If one of us makes a slip and the others aren't prepared to set their feet hard and meet the jerk when it comes, the chances are that the lot of us get pulled over the precipice. And mind you, friends, a rope round your body on a mountain is one thing, and a rope round your neck on a scaffold is another. I've sampled one, but I don't want to sample the other. So I think the chief is right in taking us into his confidence as he has done. We all hang by the one rope, so what I say is, 'Let us know where we're going.' Besides, in a concern like this, which claims before all things to be democratic, we don't want any one-Here are we working to man show. overthrow the autocrat or aristocrat wherever you find him, and you propose setting up one man who is to be our pope and lead us all blindfolded by the nose."

"Give us your hand, Number Seven," said Number Six, slapping me familiary on the shoulder. "It's a good job you ain't a parson, for if I heard you preach a few times, I believe you'd convert me, and I'm damned if I could stand that. I'd no idea we'd got such an orator among us. Anyhow, he's convinced me; so go ahead, chief, and et's have the details in full."

"The thing is to be done in this way," he said. "Hubbock was once chef at the Ishmael club, and is still friendly with the steward and the other waiters. From one of them he has heard a little secret which is supposed to be known only to the secretary of the club and the committee. As you all know, the prince is only now recovering from a serious illness, and as his presence at the Ishmael will be his first public appearance Hubbock's idea is not to change the after his convalescence, the Ishmaelites intend to give him an ovation. The speech of the evening will be, 'The health of our guest his royal high- and easy place, and Hubbock is so ness the prince of Wales.' Well, the well known there that he anticipates secretary has sent the ten-minute no difficulty in finding some excuse to timekeeper to Switzerland to have the ordinary gong replaced by a musical box which shall play 'God Bless the Prince of Wales.' The chairman, in proposing the prince's health, will purposely outstay his ten minutes. The gong will strike, but instead of merely sounding ten warning notes on the bell it will lead off with 'God Bless the Prince of Wales.' As soon as the members 'tumble' to it (for the affair is to be kept secret from all but two or three), the chairman will spring to his feet and take up the air, which will the sung, all standing, and ending up with 'three times three.' . That's just the kind of thing to catch on with the Right Honorable Lord Cranthorpe, M. Ishmaelites, and I should't be surprised if it proved an immense success and pleased the prince into the bargain.

"Well, Hubbock has contrived-in virtue of his old connection with the club-to get engaged as an assistant chef for the occasion, and he also managed to get a peep at the address on the box that contained the gong, when the box that contained the gong, when dinner to the prince of Wales, and waited dutifully for the ten stroles "The misthress is too ill fer to it was sent on to Switzerland to have though the rule by which members are to sound. Anyhow, the chairman, our old enemy Lord Cranthorpe, and the prince, who as the guest of the evening will sit on his right, will be as good as dead men. The joke of it is that it will be Lord Cranthorpe himself, who, by winding up the gong-according to the regulations of the club-when he gets upon his legs, will with his own hand put into motion the machinery which will give him and his guest, the prince, as well as a good many of the members, a bare ten minutes more of life. The secretary is no doubt chuckling to himself to think of the stir that his own ingenuity in preparing so pretty a little surprise is likely to make. 1 think that the surprise which we are preparing for his royal highness, as well as for his lordship and the other members of the club, is likely to make a bigger stir. That, however, we can discuss when the thing's fait accompli. I'm getting shy of counting my chickens before they're hatched, since that miserable jubilee flasco. All the same, I think Hubbock's idea for adding to the evening's entertainment is very curious, and as he is willing and, in fact, anxious to undertake the business, I think that he should be allowed to consider his scheme as under our 'distinguished patronage,' as the placards put it, and to have our best wishes for his success. Anyhow, there's his programme, and as discussion is freely invited, I hope any of you who have anything to say will speak up." "It's a very clever little arrange-

"What's that?" asked Number Two "This, Isn't it very likely after Hubbock has changed the gongs, that some member of the executive of the Ishmael will want to test the mechanism, if only to see that it is in working order? No one demurring to this, Number Two announced that the next meeting of the council would be held in the same place, and at four o'clock in the afternoon of the day following the proposed outrage at the Ishmael club.

"I hope on that occasion," he said, genially, "that we shall be in a position to offer Councillor Hubbock our heartfelt congratulations at having succeeded in blowing his royal highness, the prince of Wales, and the

Within its walls immediate vicinity, and, in fact, it is all men are equal. To a good fellow, more than probable that it will kill the right hand of fellowship is readily extended. The "stick" will find himself as readily cold-shouldered, and the assumer of "side" may think himself lucky if he be allowed to depart unbaited. To see the Ishmaelites "trail" a sufferer from "swelled head" is to undergo inoculation against that fell malady. The author who has suddenly found a public and as suddenly lost himself, or the moneyed noboby, who has made a successful bld for a baronetage by placing his thousands at the disposal of his political party would do well to air his new honors elsewhere than at the Ishmael. When such a man is known to be in the house, the word goes round, and to him these trusting children of nature come to be instructed in the secret of his greatness. They sit at his feet and drink in his words of wisdom as if hoping thereby one day to follow -be it ever so humbly-in his footsteps. They ask him artless questions about himself, and when he condescends to gratify their very natural desire to be informed upon so interesting a subject, they tell each other audibly what a great man he is, or si listening with unconcealed wonder and been accorded to him, there was just admiration in their eyes. They beg the ghost of a tremble in the voice to be allowed to present to him this or that friend or member who will esteem it a privilege to know so distinguished a person, and when their victim is most swollen-like a human wind-bag-with gratified vanity and a sense of his own importance, they unostentatiously produce the necessary pin, and what is left of him when they have done with him is scarcely worth the trouble of sweeping up, not to say of interment. With the Ishmaelites the heir apparent had always been a prime favorite. Whatever their faults may be, they are at least not flunkeys, and his popularity with them is in no sense attributable to his exalted position, but to their regard for him as a man. If there is one man in all England who may be pardoned for allowing a flatterer to get the blind side of him, it is surely he whose every wish or whim it is the business of those about him to humor. Yet if there is one now hiding. Dinner being finished, and the permission, "Brother Ishmaelites, you may smoke!" having gone forth and been received with the customary yell the chairman rose in his place to make the speech of the evening, by other yell greeted the placing of the ten-minute bell before him, and yet another the setting of the machinery in motion. Then he began his speech. Nothing of the sort could have been happier, for there was not a false note throughout. He claimed for the prince only that illustrious personage's due; and yet he referred so sympathetically to hfs illness and paid so graceful a tribute to his qualities as a man, a sportsman and a good fellow, that the Ishmaelites interrupted him again and again with ringing cheers.

The announcement-the unexpected announcement-that the prince had that evening expressed his wish to become a member of the club and a Brother Ishmaelite, brought the enthusiasm to the culminating point; but the welcome words had scarcely passed the chairman's lips before the first stroke of the ten-minute gong was heard, and at the sound he held up the customary silencing hand and dropped back into his chair.

The rule of the club is that when the gong strikes, the speaker, whoever he may be, at once resumes his seat, and every one sits in silence until the ten strokes have sounded, when members are at liberty to give expression to their feelings, a privilege of which they svall themselves by yelling, howling and hurling epithets, and even match-boxes, cigar-ends, or anything else which may be handy, at the der who has transgressen their time-honored ten-minutes rule.

Hence when Lord Cranthorpe telapsed into his seat there was a sudden hush while the members.

not throbbed away before the submac ites became aware that som out of the ordinary-but what they did not know-was happening. There was a flutter of repressed excitement. Then some one called out "Hush!" and the silence became electric. What was that sprinkling of bird-song music that percolated the smoke-hung atmosphere as if fairy hands were flinging the largest of tiny wafer-like silver coins for all to gather? "Hush!" some one said impatiently again. Expectation stood on tiptoe, as every ear was strained and every face became alert and expectant

Note by note the thin thread of music rippled out. It was recognized, and a tremendous cheer set rattling the trophies on the wall as the chairman rose and with a wave of his hand above his head took up the strain. In another second every man was on his feet, and "God Bless the Prince of Wales" was being sung as it had never been sung before.

"With heart and voice awaken Those minstrel strains of yore,
Till Britain's name and glory
Resound from shore to shore.
From all our ancient mountains, And from our lovely vales, O! let the prayer re-echo-

God bless the prince of Wales!" The secretary's little unrehearsed effect was a huge success. Perhaps the prince's illness had left him somewhat weak and shaky, for as the hymn concluded with the most deafening "Three times three," and yet again "Three times three," that ever left human ears buzzing and human hearts thumping, the kindly eyes of that right royal prince of good fellows were suspiciously bright, and when in a few manly words he thanked his "brother Ishmaelites" for the greeting that had that is generally so firm and strong. Lady Curzon as a Detective. There is a curious'story, with dry matic sidelights, going the rounds about Lady Curzon, the American vicerine of India.

It is told by a retired Indian judge and is a leaf from his own experience. He was dining at the viceregal lodge one night when the conversation turned upon a sensational murder trial that he was conducting at the time. After dinner Lady Curzon drew the judge aside and said: "I do not want to interfere with your judicial duties, but I know as an absolute fact that the man who is charged with that murder is innocent. "If you will send a detective to me to-morrow morning I will direct him to the house where the real murderer is this afternoon, when I was down there

Sure enough, the murderer was caught, as Lady Curzon had sald, and the innocent man was released. Lady Curzon would not tell how she found out the murderer.—Philadelphia suredly not the Saviour when He direct-

Ordeals of a Doctor.

It is often claimed by outsiders that having a profession dulls a woman's sympathies; but I cannot believe that this is true in the practice of medicine, where one side of the work is so immeasurably sad. I have seen a baby that came after 15 years of waiting and hoping, and was rejoiced over daily and hourly for a wonderful year, suddenly struck down and gasp its little life out in a day with pneumonia. These are the times when it hurts to be a doctor, to find that all the knowledge that you possess, all the skill at your command, is as so much chaff before the wind. To have a woman cling to you, begging you to save her baby, is an ordeal to which no human being can grow callous. You must feel as though the brand of Cain were upon you when, with all your efforts, you cannot save the little life. Not years nor experience can lighten hours such as these.-From the Autobiography of a Woman Physician in Everybody's Mazazine.

Accomplished the Task.

A lady who had been ill and under medical treatment for some time without getting any better became very distrustful of her doctor's skill, and therefore wished to dispense with his services and to try another man in his stead. She had not, however, the temerity to inform him of this, so she communicated her state of wind to hermsid, a gem from the Bmerald isle. 'Lave 'im to me, mum, lave 'im to

ENOCH WALKED WITH GOD.

My God, how can I walk with Thee? O, wiit Thou not to me confide, The secret of the Enoch life, In Thy communion to abide?

Not for eternity mone, To brighten hope and cancel fear; But, listening Father, for to-day, To know the joy to feel Thee near.

In skies and flowers and holy book At times I hear Thee speak to me. I love to speak to Thee in prayer, But, Father, do I walk with Thee?

Can I be walking with my God, If, through some storm of selfish grief, I shrink, and lie with sullen gloom In some foul cave of unbelief?

Or, if alternately within Now reigns the good and now the fil? Or, if my heart in changeful moods Rebels against Thy holy will?

Come, Holy Spirit of the Lord, Before whom chaos cannot be, To harmony bring all my soul. That God may come and walk with me Be near me. O Thou, Christ Divine Who art the Life, the Truth, the Way,

Now let me closely follow Thee Then shall I walk with God to-day. -J. Hunt Cooke, in Chicago Standard.

TRUST IN GOD.

Two Errors Into Which the Children of God Are in Danger of Falling.

We sing: "In some way or other, the Lord will provide," and still we worry about it, as if the Lord did not care anything about us, or were unable to help us however much He might wish to do

What is lacking, in a greater or less legree, is an intelligent trust in Goda disposition to take God at His word. To many Christians it is comparatively easy to trust in God for spiritual blessings, but difficult if not altogether impossible to trust Him for temporal blessings; and yet in the promises of God's word there is no distinction made as to these; or if there is any discrimination, it is in favor of temporal blessings. "Thou shalt dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed." "Your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of these things," What things? Why, food and clothing, to be sure. And all these things shall be added unto you.

There are two errors with regard to these promises of God, into one or the other of which we are apt to fall.

The first is the disposition to spiritualize them, until they lose all reference to temporal things. "Thou shalt be fed." "Yes, with spiritual food!" "Ye shall be clothed." "Yes, with the robes of righteousness!" But who says this? Ased the attention of the disciples to the pirds of the air that are fed (not on spiritual food) as an illustration of the way in which God would provide for them! There is, in fact, not the slightest intimation that anything else is meant than the supply of those temporal and material wants to which the disciples were subject while in the world. The care that our Heavenly Father bestows on the comparatively insignificant and worthless objects of His creaion is used as a convincing argument to prove His care for those that trust Him. "Are ye not much better than hey?"

The other error is that of the fanatic who says: "God has promised to take care of me, to feed and clothe me, why should I make any effort to care for myself? To trust is easier than to work, therefore I will give myself no concern as to the clothing and feeding of myself and my family, for verily the Lord will provide!"

Undoubtedly the Lord will provide, but how? Not by encouraging improvidence or laziness, but by putting the means of supply within the reach of those who trust Him that they may help themselves; just as He does for the fowls of the air and all the other creatures that He has made. "God feedeth the sparrow that scratcheth for a living," is not exactly Scruptural language, but it conveys a very sound Scriptural truth, nevertheless.

The same rule applies in temporal matters as in spiritual, says Horn. the Chicago Advance. If one would enjoy spiritual blessings he must use the means of grace that God has placed is greater than the man that is.-Unitwithin his reach. The one who does not will assuredly starve spiritually just as he who, through indifference or laziness, neglects his opportunity to make a living, will starve physically.

"Trust in the Lord and do good!" and, be assured, the "doing good" is as important a condition of the promise as is the trusting. But having done all, ye may safely leave the results with Him Who has promised, for His promise cannot fail.

There is no room for anxiety, no occasion for worry. "Commit thy ways unto the Lord, trust also in Him, and He will bring it to pass, and He will bring forth thy righteousness as the light and thy judgment as the noonday!"

ALONE WITH GOD.

It Is the Time for Confession, Communion and Spiritual Growth.

This is the quiet hour in which I sit slone with God, writes Charles Edward fartin, in the New York Observer. He hears my whispered plaints and listens to my love. He maketh me happy in my love, which ever goeth out to Him as quietly and constantly as the river flows or the star shines.

This is the hour that I talk with the loving Father about myself, of victories won in the open field, when He was my deliverer and my strength, and of the sorry failures and defeats which were mine when I sought safety within unstrengthened ramparts of my own construction. I acknowledge His marvelous strength, and own my own wavering weakness.

I was too impetuous, too impatient. would rush headlong and heedless, following my own plans to my own shame and dishonor. It would seem that I could not wait. But I will now learn the value of time-the wisdom of taking time to do all things in obedience to His plans, and to do them well.

In this quiet hour I will tell Him all. But I will not speak of my plans. Alas for me! I have too many plans! I will simply and humbly ask for His love and guidance just for to-day. To-morrow I, may be with Him in paradise. I will say: "All-wise One, all loving One, Thou who makest and warmest the affections of the human heart, I submit myself to Thee. By Thy grace I live. and by Thy mysterious quickening will I ply my task with loving faithfulness and care. Let Thy love, and if so be, Thy approval, be my reward. O teach me to understand Thy love! Make me to love Thee more and more. Make me as Thou wouldst have me, dear Father, and I shall be satisfied. Thy ways shall be my ways. Widen my narrow thought. Unchain the self-made fetters that cramp and fret my heart. Teach me that true and lasting happiness cometh only with those things which are pleasing unto Thee. Lead me in those holy footsteps that bear the print of the nail!"

KIND WORDS.

Their Value Is Inestimable-They Should Be Zealously Cultivated.

Cultivate kindness of heart; think well of your fellowmen; look with charity upon the shortcomings in their lives; do a good turn for them as opportunity offers; and finally, don't forget the kind word at the right time. How much such a word of kindness, encouragement or appreciation means to others sometimes, and how little it costs us to give it! We do not need to wait for some special occasion. When calamity overtakes a friend words of sympathy and encouragement are offered sincerely enough, yet, in certain respects, as a matter of course. Such an occasion calls for expression on our part, and we naturally respond, says the Luther League Review. But why wait for an occasion? Why not speak the kind word when there is no special occasion? In the course of our lives there must be many times when thoughtless words are spoken by us which wound the hearts of others. And there are also many little occasions when the word of cheer is needed from us, and we are silent. There are lives of wearlsome monotony which a word of kindness can relieve. There is sunering which words of sympathy can make more endurable. And often, in the midst of wealth and luxury, there are those who listen and long in vain for some expression of disinterested kindness. Speak to those while they can hear and be helped by you, for the day may come when all our expressions of love and appreciation may be unheard. Imagine yourself standing beside their last resting place. Think of the things you could have said of them and to them while they were yet living. Then go and tell them now.

The prefect of police notified the emperor of the tragedy immediately upon its occurrence. The emperor, who was at the Villa Alexandria at Peterhof, was greatly affected by the news, coming, as it did, atop of the bad tidings from the seat of war, fears of international complications and the strain incident upon the hourly expectation of an event so close to the father's heart. The emperor almost broke down when he was informed of the minister's murder. Whatever may have been the motive for the crime, nothing but the utmost indignation and condemnation of the assassin's act is voiced anywhere.

Senator von Plehve was appointed minister of the interior April 18, 1902, succeeding M. Sipiaguine, who was assassinated April 16, 1902, by a student named Balmashoff. He had formerly been director of the department of police, which position he practically assumed of his own accord, when in charge of the department of political prosecutions, owing to the incompetency of the official who was in charge of the police when Emperor Alexander II. was killed, March 13, 1881. M. von Plehve conducted the prosecution of the regicides and afterwards reorganized the police. From that time on the power of M. von Plehve increased until it became only second in importance to that of the emperor. Several plots to assassinate the minister have, according to reports, been discovered during the last two years, which period has been marked by strong political rivalry between the interior minister and the former minister of finance, M. Witte, now president of the committee of ministers. He was regarded as being in many ways the power behind the throne and was dreaded on account of his control of the third (secret) section of police and also owing to the fact that he controlled the press of Russia, through the censors, who, it has been understood. did M. von Plehve's bidding without question. The deceased minister was laborious in the extreme and was an indifferent conversationalist. He was, however, fond of music and was accus-tomed to read many French novels during his leisure hours.

"The chief's quite right in insisting upon everything being above board," I said, boldly. "We don't want any hole-and-corner business in a concern like this. We are all like so many mountaineers roped together on a mountain. If one of us makes a slip and the others aren't prepared to set their feet hard and meet the jerk when it comes, the chances are that the lot of us get pulled over the precipice. And mind you, friends, a rope round your body on a mountain is one thing, and a rope round your neck on a scaffold is another. I've sampled one, but I don't want to sample the other. So I think the chief is right in taking us into his confidence as he has done. We all hang by the one rope, so what I say is, 'Let us know where we're going.' Besides, in a concern like this, which claims before all things to be democratic, we don't want any one-Here are we working to overthrow the autocrat or aristocrat wherever you find him, and you propose setting up one man who is to be our pope and lead us all blindfolded by the nose."

"Give us your hand, Number Seven," eaid Number Six, slapping me familiar-y on the shoulder. "It's a good job rou ain't a parson, for if I heard you preach a few times, I believe you'd convert me, and I'm damned if I could stand that. I'd no idea we'd got such an orator among us. Anyhow, he's convinced me; so go ahead, chief, and et's have the details in full."

"The thing is to be done in this way," he said. "Hubbock was once chef at the Ishmael club, and is still friendly with the steward and the other waiters. As you all know, the prince is only now recovering from a serious illness, and as his presence at the Ishmael will be his first public appearance Hubbock's idea is not to change the after his convalescence, the Ishmael-gongs until the last moment, when ites intend to give him an ovation. The speech of the evening will be, "The health of our guest his royal highness the prince of Wales.' Well, the secretary has sent the ten-minute timekeeper to Switzerland to have the ordinary gong replaced by a musical box which shall play 'God Bless the Prince of Wales.' The chairman, in proposing the prince's health, will purposely outstay his ten minutes. The gong will strike, but instead of merely sounding ten warning notes on the bell it will lead off with 'God Bless the Prince of Wales.' As soon as the members 'tumble' to it (for the affair is to Se kept secret from all but two or three), the chairman will spring to his feet and take up the air, which will be sung, all standing, and ending up with 'three times three.' That's just the kind of thing to catch on with the ishmaelites, and I shouldn't be surprised if it proved an immense success and pleased the prince into the bargain.

"Well, Hubbock has contrived—in wirtue of his old connection with the club-to get engaged as an assistant chef for the occasion, and he also managed to get a peep at the address on the box that contained the gong, when laced by a musical box. The ad- this occasion been suspen tell you why? It was to get a duplistead of the musical box, Hubbock is getting an infernal machine made from every one in the room. Anyhow, the chairman, our old enemy Lord Cranguest of the evening will sit on his right, will be as good as dead men. The joke of it is that it will be Lord Cranthorpe himself, who, by winding up the gong-according to the regulations of the club—when he gets upon his legs, will with his own hand put into motion the machinery which will give him and his guest, the prince, as well as a good many of the members, a bare ten minutes more of life. The secretary is no doubt chuckling to himself to think of the stir that his own ingenuity in preparing so pretty a little surprise is likely to make. I think that the surprise which we are preparing for his royal highness, as well as for his lordship and the other members of the club, is likely to make a bigger stir. That, however, we can discuss when the thing's fait accompli. I'm getting shy of counting my chickens before they're hatched, since thatmiserable jubilee flasco. All the same, I think Hubbock's idea for adding to the evening's entertainment is very curious, and as he is willing and, in fact, anxious to undertake the business, I think that he should be allowed to consider his scheme as under our 'distinguished patronage,' as the placards put it, and to have our best wishes for his success. Anyhow, there's his programme, and as discussion is freely invited, I hope any of you who have anything to say will speak up."

"It's a very clever little arrangement," said Councillor Number Six, "and what I says is, here's my re-speaking for myself and for "the silent councillor," to use the name by which I had dubbed the remaining member. "But if Mr. Hubbock and the chief will pardon me for saying so, there's a difficulty ahead which it won't do to overlook." "What's that?" asked Number Two. "This. Isn't it very likely after Hubbock has changed the gongs, that some member of the executive of the Ishmael will want to test the mechanwould be a bit previous. We have no quarrel, I take it, with the members ternity of which we who are present in this room have the honor of being

But gongs until the last moment, when the table is laid and ready for the dinner. The Ishmael is a very free and easy place, and Hubbock is so well known there that he anticipates no difficulty in finding some excuse to effect the change. I think we may be content to leave it in his hands, since he is willing to undertake all responsibility." No one demurring to this, Number Two announced that the next meeting of the council would be held in the same place, and at four o'clock in the afternoon of the day following the proposed outrage at the Ishmael club

"I hope on that occasion," he said, gentally, "that we shall be in a position to offer Councillor Hubbock our heartfelt congratulations at having til the ten strokes have sounded, when succeeded in blowing his royal highness, the prince of Wales, and the Right Honorable Lord Cranthorpe, M. P., to blazes."

Within its walls immediate vicinity, and, in fact, it is all men are equal. To a good fellow, more than probable that it will kill the right hand of fellowship is readily extended. The "stick" will find himself as readily cold-shouldered, and thorpe, and the prince, who as the the assumer of "side" may think himself lucky if he be allowed to depart unbaited. To see the Ishmaelites "trail" a sufferer from "swelled head" is to undergo inoculation against that fell malady. The author who has suddenly found a public and as suddenly lost himself, or the moneyed noboby, who has made a successful bld for a baronetage by placing his thousands at the disposal of his political party, would do well to air his new honors elsewhere than at the Ishmael. When such a man is known to be in the house, the word goes round, and to him these trusting children of nature come to be instructed in the secret of his greatness. They sit at his feet and drink in his words of wisdom as if hoping thereby one day to follow -be it ever so humbly-in his footsteps. They ask him artless questions about himself, and when he condescends to gratify their very natural desire to be informed upon so interesting a subject, they tell each other audibly what a great man he is, or sit listening with unconcealed wonder and admiration in their eyes. They beg to be allowed to present to him this or that friend or member who will esteem it a privilege to know so distinguished a person, and when their victim is most swollen-like a human wind-bag-with gratified vanity and a sense of his own importance, they unostentatiously produce the necessary pin, and what is left of him when they have done with him is scarcely worth the trouble of sweeping up, not > to say of interment. With the Ishmaelites the heir apparent had always been a prime favorite. Whatever their faults may be they are at least not flunkeys, and his popularity with them is in no sense attributable to his exalted position, but to their regard for him as a man. If there is one man in all England who may be pardoned for allowing a flatterer to get the blind side of him, it is surely he whose every wish or whim it is the business of those about him to humor. Yet if there is one man in England who is absolutely inaccessible to flattery, it is the genial, generous, but keen-eyed prince. This the Ishmaelites know well, and thou love him for it, just as they hall him prince of good fellows, and the best and most honest hater of humbug in the country.

Hence the dinner which was being given in his honor was the most brilliant and at the same time the heartlest function that the club house has fully. ever witnessed. Brains, pluck and good-fellowship-these are what the Ishmaelites most delight to honor; but being a British club, they put bravery before even brains, and at the high table that night sat wearers of the Victoria cross, leaders of forlorn hopes, admirals who had saved life as well as fought the enemy at sea, explorers, travelers and soldiers who with a handful of men had held an impossible position or not hesitated to face a thrice outnumbering foe.

Everything had gone without a hitch, and there was no denying that the function was a magnificent success. The prince, still pale from his recent illness, was, it was easy to see, both touched and gratified by the genuinely enthusiastic and affectionate greeting which had been accorded to him; and never had he looked more thoroughly at home than when hobnobbing with the Ishmaelites.

Dinner being finished, and the permission, "Brother Ishmaelites, you may smoke!" having gone forth and been received with the customary yell. the chairman rose in his place to make the speech of the evening, by proposing the prince's health. Another yell greeted the placing of the ten-minute bell before him, and yet another the setting of the machinery in motion. Then he began his speech. Nothing of the sort could have been happier, for there was not a false note throughout. He claimed for the prince only that illustrious personage's due; and yet he referred so sympathetically to his illness and paid so graceful a tribute to his qualities as a man, a sportsman and a good fellow, that the Ishmaelites interrupted him again and again with ringing cheers.

The announcement-the unexpected announcement-that the prince had that evening expressed his wish to become a member of the club and a Brother Ishmaelite, brought the enthusiasm to the culminating point; but the welcome words had scarcely passed the chairman's lips before the first stroke of the ten-minute gong was heard, and at the sound he held up the customary silencing hand and dropped back into his chair.

The rule of the club is that when the gong strikes, the speaker, whoever he may be, at once resumes his seat, and every one sith in silence unmembers are at liberty to give expression to their feelings, a privilege of which they svall themselves by yelling, howling and hurling epithets, and even match-boxes, cigar-ends, or any-thing else which may be handy, at the time-honored ten-minutes rule. Hence when Lord Cranthorpe telapsed into his seat there was can't come in to-day, doctor! It was the night of the Ishmaol club a sudden hush while the members the box that contained the gong, when dinner to the prince of Wales, and walled dutifully for the ten stroles "The misthress is too ill for to the way sent on to Switzerland to have though the rule by which members are to sound. the inside mechanism taken out and permitted to introduce guests had on not throbbed away perore the ishmeelites became aware that som out of the ordinary-but what they did not know-was happening. There was a flutter of repressed excitement. Then some one called out "Hush!" and the silence became electric. What was that sprinkling of bird-song music that percolated the smoke-hung atmosthere as if fairy hands were flinging the largest of tiny wafer-like silver coins for all to gather? "Hush!" some one said impatiently again. Expectation stood on tiptoe, as every ear was strained and every face became alert and expectant

> Note by note the thin thread of music rippled out. It was recognized, and a tremendous cheer set rattling the trophies on the wall as the chairman rose and with a wave of his hand above his head took up the strain. In another second every man was on his feet, and "God Bless the Prince of Wales" was being sung as it had never been sung before.

"With heart and voice awaken Those minstrel strains of yore, Till Britain's name and glory
Resound from shore to shore.
From all our ancient mountains, And from our lovely vales,
O! let the prayer re-echoGod bless the prince, of Wales!"

The secretary's little unrehearsed effect was a huge success. Perhaps the prince's illness had left him somewhat weak and shaky, for as the hymn concluded with the most deafening "Three times three," and yet again "Three times three," that ever left human ears buzzing and human hearts thumping, the kindly eyes of that right royal prince of good fellows were suspiciously bright, and when in a few manly words he thanked his "brother Ishmaelites" for the greeting that had been accorded to him, there was just the ghost of a fremble in the voice that is generally so firm and strong. [To Be Continued.]

Lady Curzon as a Detective. There is a curious'story, with dramatic sidelights, going the rounds about Lady Curzon, the American vicerine of India. It is told by a retired Indian judge and is a leaf from his own experience. He was dining at the viceregal lodge one night when the conversation turned upon a sensational murder trial that he was conducting at the time. After dinner Lady Curzon drew the judge aside and said:

"I do not want to interfere with your judicial duties, but I know as an absolute fact that the man who is charged with that murder is innocent. "If you will send a detective to me to-morrow morning I will direct him to the house where the real murderer is now hiding. I only discovered the fact this afternoon, when I was down there in disguise with one of our syces."

Sure enough, the murderer was caught, as Lady Curzon had said, and the innocent man was released. Lady Curzon would not tell how she and out the murderer.-Philadelphia

Ordeals of a Doctor.

It is often claimed by outsiders that having a profession dulls a woman's sympathies; but I cannot believe that this is true in the practice of medicine, where one side of the work is so immeasurably sad. I have seen a baby that came after 15 years of waiting and hoping, and was rejoiced over daily and hourly for a wonderful year, suddenly struck down and gasp its little life out in a day with pneumonia. These are the times when it hurts to be a doctor, to find that all the knowledge that you possess, all the skill at your command, is as so much chaff before the wind. To have a woman cling to you, begging you to save her baby, is an ordeal to which no human being can grow callous. You must feel as though the brand of Cain were upon you when, with all your efforts, you cannot save the little life. Not years nor experience can lighten hours such as these.-From the Autobiography of a Woman Physician in Everybody's Mazazine.

Accomplished the Task.

A lady who had been ill and under medical treatment for some time without getting any better became very distrustful of her doctor's skill, and therefore wished to dispense with his services and to try another man in his stead. She had not, however, the temerity to inform him of this, so she communicated her state of wind to her meid, a gem from the Bmerald isle. 'Lave 'im to me, mum, lave 'im to

TRUST IN GOD.

Two Errors Into Which the Children of God Are in Danger of Falling.

We sing: "In some way or other, the Lord will provide," and still we worry about it, as if the Lord did not care anything about us, or were unable to help us however much He might wish to do

What is lacking, in a greater or less legree, is an intelligent trust in Goda disposition to take God at His word. To many Christians it is comparatively easy to trust in God for spiritual blessings, but difficult if not altogether impossible to trust Him for temporal blessings; and yet in the promises of God's word there is no distinction made as to these; or if there is any discrimination, it is in favor of temporal blessings. "Thou shalt dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed." "Your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of these things," What things? Why, food and clothing, to be sure. And all these things shall be added unto you. There are two errors with regard to these promises of God, into one or the other of which we are apt to fall.

The first is the disposition to spirence to temporal things. "Thou shalt be suredly not the Saviour when He direct- ment are offered sincerely enough, yet, d the attention of the disciples to the pirds of the air that are fed (not on spiritual food) as an illustration of the way in which God would provide for est intimation that anything else is meant than the supply of those temporal .nd material wants to which the disciples were subject while in the world. The care that our Heavenly Father bestows on the comparatively insignificant and worthless objects of His creaion is used as a convincing argument to prove His care for those that trust Him. "Are ye not much better than hey?"

The other error is that of the fanatic who says: "God has promised to take care of me, to feed and clothe me, why should I make any effort to care for myself? To trust is easier than to work, therefore I will give myself no concern as to the clothing and feeding of myself and my family, for verily the Lord will provide!"

Undoubtedly the Lord will provide, but how? Not by encouraging improvidence or laziness, but by putting the means of supply within the reach of those who trust Him that they may help themselves; just as He does for the fowls of the air and all the other creatures that He has made. "God feedeth the sparrow that scratcheth for a living," is not exactly Scruptural language, but it conveys a very sound Scriptural truth, nevertheless.

The same rule applies in temporal matters as in spiritual, says Horn. the Chicago 'Advance. If one would enjoy spiritual blessings he must use the means of grace that God has placed within his reach. The one who does not will assuredly starve spiritually just as he who, through indifference or laziness, neglects his opportunity to make a living, will starve physically.

"Trust in the Lord and do good!" and, be assured, the "doing good" is as important a condition of the promise as is the trusting. But having done all, ye may safely leave the results with Him Who has promised, for His promise cannot fail.

There is no room for anxiety, no occasion for worry. "Commit thy ways unto the Lord, trust also in Him, and Hewill bring it to pass, and He will bring forth thy righteousness as the light and thy judgment as the noonday!"

Idols Transformed. A missionary in Travancore, India, saw, one morning, a native coming to his house with a heavy burden. On reaching it, he laid on the ground a sack. Unfastening it, he emptied it of Dr. Cuyler, "have you never yet won its contents-a number of idols. "What a single soul from sin to holiness? have you brought these here for?" asked the missionary; "I don't want them." "You have taught us that we Then I pity you when you reach your do not want them, sir," said the rfa- Father's house in Heaven. ALONE WITH GOD.

It Is the Time for Confession, Communion and Spiritual Growth.

This is the quiet hour in which I sit slone with God, writes Charles Edward Martin, in the New York Observer. Ho nears my whispered plaints and listens to my love. He maketh me happy in my love, which ever goeth out to Him as quietly and constantly as the river flows or the star shines.

This is the hour that I talk with the loving Father about myself, of victories won in the open field, when He was my deliverer and my strength, and of the sorry failures and defeats which were mine when I sought safety within unstrengthened ramparts of my own construction. I acknowledge His marvelous strength, and own my own wavering weakness.

I was too impetuous, too impatient. I would rush headlong and heedless. following my own plans to my own shame and dishonor. It would seem that I could not wait. But I will now learn the value of time-the wisdom of taking time to do all things in obedience to His plans, and to do them well.

In this quiet hour I will tell Him all. But I will not speak of my plans. Alas for me! I have too many plans! I will simply and humbly ask for His love and guidance just for to-day. To-morrow I may be with Him in paradise. I will say: "All-wise One, all loving One, Thou who makest and warmest the affections of the human heart, I submit myself to Thee. By Thy grace I live. and by Thy mysterious quickening will I ply my task with loving faithfulness and care. Let Thy love, and if so be, Thy approval, be my reward. O teach me to understand Thy love! Make me to love Thee more and more. Make me as Thou wouldst have me, dear Father, and I shall be satisfied. Thy ways shall be my ways. Widen my narrow thought. Unchain the felf-made fetters that cramp and fret my heart. Teach me that true and lasting happiness cometh only with those things which are pleasing unto Thee. Lead me in those holy footsteps that bear the print of the nail!"

KIND WORDS.

Their Value Is Inestimable-They Should Be Zealously Cultivated.

Cultivate kindness of heart; think well of your fellowmen; look with charity upon the shortcomings in their lives; do a good turn for them as opportunity offers; and finally, don't forget the kind word at the right time. How much such a word of kindness, encouragement or appreciation means itualize them, until they lose all refer- to others sometimes, and how little it costs us to give it! We do not need fed." "Yes, with spiritual food!" "Ye to wait for some special occasion. shall be clothed." "Yes, with the robes When calamity overtakes a friend of righteousness!" But who says this? As- words of sympathy and encouragein certain respects, as a matter of course. Such an occasion calls for expression on our part, and we naturally respond, says the Luther League Rethem! There is, in fact, not the slight- view. But why wait for an occasion? Why not speak the kind word when there is no special occasion? In the course of our lives there must be many times when thoughtless words are spoken by us which wound the hearts of others. And there are also many little occasions when the word of cheer is needed from us, and we are silent. There are lives of wearisome monotony which a word of kindness can relieve. There is sunering which words of sympathy can make more endurable. And often, in the midst of wealth and luxury, there are those who listen and long in vain for some expression of disinterested kindness. Speak to those while they can hear and be helped by you, for the day may come when all our expressions of love and appreciation may be unheard. Imagine yourself standing beside their last resting place. Think of the things you could have said of them and to them while they were yet living. Then go and tell them now,

-Sir Humphry Davy. Truth's motion is spiral. The emphasis used to be on law. It got around to love. It is coming back to law. "You ministers talk a great deal about the law of love; why not speak more often about the love of law?" said a distinguished and highly respected publicist to Rev. Paul Revere, Frothingham recently.

The Catholic Sentinel, of Chippewa Falls, Wis. one of the most influential weekly papers in Northern Wisconsin, has announced its intention of bolting the Democratic ticket, saying editorially: "Democracy is dead. Parker's telegram of last Saturday killed it. The good old principles of Jefferson, Madison and Jackson went down before the assault of the gold bugs. We hope Wall street and the trusts are satisfied. Let the corpse be laid in its little bed, but there will be no requiem sung. The party left as a legacy the Louisiana purchase and it fittingly died within the boundaries of that vast territory. We have stood by it for forty years, and always hoped to see it restored to its former glory. But our hopes lie buried in its grave and we shall only live to wreak vengeance on its murderers."

receipts must be $19,6000,000 besides enough for the wages of thousands of employes, if the fair is to come out even. This amount is represented in just four items, namely: $5,000,000 from stock sold; $5,000,000 from the people of St. Louis: $5,000,000 given outright by congress and $4, 600,000 loaned by the federal government. The attendance for the first ten weeks was below the record for the Columbian exposition at Chicago despite the greater scope and expense of the St. Louis fair. The total number of June admissions was 2,124,836, but more than a third of the numbut $690,431.50. Beyond the admissions there is of course, a big income from concessions but at that it is easy to understand why the directors do so much studying over the financial problems connected with the big exposition.

"Under Southern Skies."

It has been said by those who have made a careful study of dramatic literature that no play can make a popular success that has not a good love story at its very foundation. It is, no doubt, the strength and in-terest of the love story in 'Under Southern Skies' which comes here Sept. 8. that has given it its third year of uninterrupted success, playing to crowded honses wherever it has appeared. The strong story showing the broken life and hearts of a man] and a woman, and the most wrecked hap-piness of a young girl has never failed to hold an audience fasinated and deep-ly interested from the opening of the play to the fall of the final curtain.

GEORGE F. MCEWEN, EDITORAND MGR.

SATURDAY, AUG. 6, 1904.

The Catholic Sentinel, of Chippewa Falls, Wis., one of the most influential weekly papers in Northern Wisconsin, has announced its intention of bolting the Democratic ticket, saying editorially: "Democracy is dead. Parker's telegram of last Saturday killed it. The good old principles of Jefferson, Madison and Jackson went down before the assault of the gold bugs. We hope Wall street and the trusts are satisfied. Let the corpse be laid in its little bed, but there will be no requiem sung. The party left as a legacy the Louisiana purchase and it fittingly died within the boundaries of that vast territory. We have stood by it for forty years, and always hoped to see it restored to its former glory. But our hopes lie buried in its grave and we shall only live to wreak vengeance on its murderers."

receipts must be $19,6000,000 besides enough for he wages of thousands of employes, if the fair is to come out even. This amount is represented in just four items, namely: $5,000,000 from stock sold; $5,000,000 from the people of St. Louis: $5,000,000 given outright by congress and $4,-600,000 loaned by the federal government. The attendance for the first ten weeks was below the record for the Columbian exposition at Chicago despite the greater scope and expense of the St. Louis fair. The total number of June admissions was 2,124,836, but more than a third of the number, or 741,973, entered the grounds on passes, so at the admission fee of fifty cents the receipts were but $690,431.50. Beyond the admissions there is of course, a big income from concessions but at that it is easy to understand why the directors do so much studying over the financial problems connected with the big exposition.

The camping season is here and all who can afford it and have the opportunity are leading the way to the various camping grounds. One of these settlers who was in Escanaba and Wells the other day stated that in many places this grass reached to his chin. The man was over 6 feet tall, so this would make the hay fully 5 feet high. This hay growing with-out cultivation is a good sign for the future of this country as a dairy and stock saising locality. There are thousands of acres of good grazing lands Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fisher and along the Escanaba & Lake Superior tainly come into use sooner or later. If the present packing strike should continue, it would not be surprising if some arrangement were made toward using these lands as storage for cattle for supplying meat for the Upper Peninsula markets. The central location and the facilities for shipment in all directions would make this an excellent location for keeping a large number of cattle, sheep and hogs, and the supply of water and good grass is inexhaus-

It has been said by those who have made a careful study of dramatic literature that no play can make a popular success that has not a good love story at its very foundation. Dramatists have found this so true, that whatever themes may appeal to their artistic sense as novel or instructive material for the basis of a play it is put aside as not likely to meet the taste of the ma-W. It is, no doubt, the strength and interest of the love story in 'Under Southern Skies' which comes here Sept. 8, that has given it its third year of uninterrupted success, playing to crowded honses wherever it has appeared. The strong story showing the broken life and hearts of a man and a woman, and the most wrecked hap-piness of a young girl has never failed to hold an audience fasinated and deeply interested from the opening of the play to the fall of the final curtain.

The Catholic Sentinel, of Chippewa Falls, Wis. one of the most influential weekly papers in Northern Wisconsin has announced its intention of bolting the Democratic ticket, saying editorially: "Democracy is dead. Parker's telegram of last Saturday killed it. The good old principles of Jefferson, Madison and Jackson went down before the assault of the gold bugs. We hope Wall street and the trusts are satisfied. Let the corpse be laid in its little bed, but there will be no requiem sung. The party left as a legacy the Louisiana purchase and it fittingly died within the boundaries of that vast territory. We have stood by it for forty years, and always hoped to see it restored to its former glory. But our hopes lie buried in its grave and we shall only live to wreak vengeance on its murderers."

Indiana Man Elected Head of the Democratic National Committee.

New York, July 27.-Thomas Taggart, of Indiana, was unanimously elected chairman of the democratic national committee Tuesday. The meeting had not been in session long before this action was taken. All efforts to induce Senator Gorman to take the place failed. Urey Woodson, of Kentucky, was elected secretary of the committee. Edwin Softon, of the District of Columbia, was elected assistant secretary. John I. The executive committee may be members of the national committee or others, in the discretion of the chairman. The selection of treasurer for the national committee was left to the executive committee. The committee then adjourned, subject to the call of the chair.

LATE MANDATES OF FASHION

Seasonal Bits About What Is Being Worn by Feminine Devotees of Dress.

Bronze color is coming to the fore as a quiet, fashionable tint. You notice it in stylish rajah silka (a sort of glorified pongee), in veiling, in chiffon-strange to say-and also in the London-made raincoats, which are so much admired. A bronze-tinted raincoat is more distinguished than those of olive or exford gray, the usual variations from navy blue and black offered ready-made, says the Chicago Daily News.

The grape is again the vogue for hats, writes a Paris correspondent. Two years ago it arrived, and for anything to have more than one season means that it grapes are used in immense bunches, depending from the backs of the hats. If they were as heavy as they look it would sham ones are of cotton and are very light. Camomile and wall flowers are

The fashionable brown, now called mordore, is also represented, and there are two good shades of royal blue and a rich poppy red. The white silks are suitable for children's frocks, as they are rather more substantial than Japanese washing silks, though just as easy to tuck and quite as soft, and any of the pale tints will make smart and serviceable slips for all occasions.

REMEDIES FOR MOSQUITOES

Simple Precautions Which Will Afford Relief to People in

Mosquitoes, as everyone knows, find their lodging places in any corner where dampness lurks An uncovered rain water barrel will bring them in hordes. Water barrels should be covered in dry weather, all damp heaps of dead leaves cleared away from every corner of the premises, the sunshine allowed to enter all crevices, and the scientist's favorite remedy of kerosene used freely over the surface of stagnant pools. If these precautions are strictly followed the country family should have no trouble from these pests, providing the nearest neighbors do likewise. It is easier to follow these precautions than to keep the insects off by herbs and lotions, says the

New York Tribune. If, in spite of all reasonable precautions, mosquitoes persistently haunt the premises, a small smoldering fire of pine boughs or any fragrant wood built near the house will have a deterring effect upon them. The fire should smolder enough to give forth a thick smoke, which is not at all disagreeable to persons out of doors.

It is said that a bouquet of pennyroyal will, as a rule, keep mosquitoes away from a room. The best antidote for a mosquito bite is ammonia weakened with a little salt and water. Some persons use camphor. Salt and water is a good disinfectant. Alcahol and a mild solution of carbolic acid, rubbed well into a mosquito bite, will kill any germs.

Mosquito netting is certainly ugly and undesirable. It always keeps out more or less fresh air, and plenty of fresh air in summer is a necessity. There seems to be nothing to take its place, however, in certain localities where mosquitoes abound.

Egg Barley.

Egg barley is a dainty soup paste which is an agreeable change from noodles, macaroni, spaghetti and similar compounds. To make, prepare as for noodles, save that one-third more flour is to be kneaded into the dough. This must be so firm that it can be grated on a large grater or chopped into the tiniest of kernels with a chopping knife. These are then spread in a tin plate and allowed to become a light golden tint in the oven. Strain the soup and put over the fire. When it bolls put in the egg barley and let it remain till it begins to float on top. -Boston Budget.

A STRONG PROTEST.

United States Called on to Act in Case of Steamer Seized by Russians.

Washington, July 28 .- Acting on a formal protest received from the American owners of a portion of a portion of the cargo of the Hamburg-American steamship Arabia, the state department has cabled to R. S. McCormick, United States ambassador at St. Petersburg, to get full statement of the seizures of that vessel by the Russian Vladivostok squadron. This is the first protest which has come to the department from American owners of goods seized by Russia and of the commander of Vladivostok was in the form of a telegram from John H. Mitchell, United States senator and attorney for the Portland Milling company, of Portland, Ore. Mr. Mitchell declared that his clients had shipped on the Arabia 99,000 sacks of flour, valued at $100,000; that the flour was consigned largely to Hong-Kong, and was not a war order, but a part of the normal trade of the company, and therefore it should under no circumstances be considered contraband. Lord Lansdowne was not disposed to unduly press the matter and promised to wait a reasonable time.

St. Petersburg, July 29.-The foreign office has received official confirmation of the press reports that the Peninsular & Oriental company's steamer Malacca, seized in the Red sea by the Russian volunteer fleet vessel St. Petersburg, was released after a formal examination of her cargo by the Russian and British consuls at Algiers. GOOD WILL FARM.

Representive is in City Solicitating Funds for Its Support.

Miss Anna J. Beattie, representing the Good Will Farm at Houghton, is in the city soliciting funds for the that instituiton. That the institution which Miss Beattie represents is a worthy one there can be no doubt. Hundreds of homeless children are cared for and kept there until good homes can be found for them. For several years the work has been going on with good success. A new building is to be erected which will greatly add to the comfort of those in charge and the children they are caring for.

This charity is purely a home institution as it is devoted to the field of the Upper Peninsula alone, from which it must expect its support. Each year the cities of the Upper Penninsula are visited by a representive of the company who solicits funds and looks other affairs of the institution. Miss Beattie reports that many in Escanaba have contributed liberally. The Good Will farm is steadily growing in favor.

The importance of finding good homes for dependent children is quite apparent and few would refuse to contribute something to so good a cause.
