BOY MILLIONAIRE TO SEARCH FOR POLE

Aim in Life of William Ziegler, Jr., Is to Realize Ambition of His Foster Father.

YOUTH UNSPOILED BY FABULOUS WEALTH

Inherits $30,000,000 Through Death of His Uncle—Will Go Through College and Then Take Up Arctic Exploration—Slowly Recovering from a Serious Injury.

New York.—Through the will of his uncle a 14-year-old boy has come into a fortune of $30,000,000. The uncle is William Ziegler, the millionaire manufacturer of Noroton, Conn., baking powder king and projector of arctic expeditions, who died a short time ago; the fortunate youth is William Ziegler, Jr., his adopted son.

Although but a child in years, young Ziegler has been unspoiled by the sudden inheritance of the fabulous wealth. By the time he becomes of age the estate will have grown to more than $40,000,000. His income now is $1,000,000 a year. He is the richest boy of his years in the world and he will be among the world's richest men.

The boy has been brought up to understand that he is the son of the man who fitted out polar expeditions. His books are volumes dealing with adventure in the far north seas. He has been made to understand that it was always his father's wish to have one of his expeditions locate the north pole.

Wealth No Handicap.

To some 14-year-old boys a fortune of $30,000,000 would be a terrible handicap. To young Ziegler the money promises to be anything but a drawback; for the boy, few in years though he is, seems thoroughly to appreciate his unique position, to understand the responsibilities connected with the possession of so much wealth and, what is infinitely better, to have formed a definite object in life, toward the gaining of which he proposes to devote the millions left to him.

He is a manly little fellow, ambitious to achieve heroic adventures. This is an ambition which the cherished dream of his foster father makes it possible for him to realize. He begins life now with millions and a mission, for he is the boy who must discover the north pole.

The task is not imposed upon him in the will, nor is it even specified that he must prosecute the search for the Fiala expedition, lost in the frozen north. But the boy is thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the elder Ziegler, and pictures himself as sailing away, and pictures himself as one of them, some day, with her prow pointed to the north.

There is something pathetic behind all this. Yet pathos and romance have governed the whole career of this little boy, who was not the child of the man whom he knew as his father, except by adoption. The baby was born William Brandt, his father being a half-brother of Mr. Ziegler. At an early age it became necessary for relatives to assume the support of one or more of the children, and Mr. Ziegler took the little boy. He and his wife were childless, and the little chap at once filled the vacant crevices in their hearts as fully as their own could have done. He returned the affection, and between him and his foster father grew a love that was noticeable to the merest stranger.

Shared Father's Confidences.

They were inseparable, the millionaire and the schoolboy, and when, a few years ago, William Ziegler began to crave the distinction of being the founder of an expedition that should find the north pole, the lad was one of the few who shared his confidences, who listened to his ambitions and sympathized with him in his desires.

To a reporter, who saw him at the Ziegler home at Noroton Point one day recently, the boy was as communicative as could be expected of one weakened by more than two months of suffering. Mrs. Ziegler, the widow of the millionaire, and as loving a mother as a small boy could wish for, was afraid that he would not like to talk.

Were Like Boy Chums.

"Willie was more overcome by his father's death than I believed it possible for a boy of his age to be," she said. "He was very fond of my husband; in fact, the two were always more like two chums than father and son. During the early part of Willie's illness, before Mr. Ziegler suffered the accident that resulted in his death, Mr. Ziegler spent a great deal of time talking to him, their conversation having a lot to do with Arctic exploration, in which Willie took as great an interest as he did. I do not know whether I entirely like the idea of his making that his life aim, but there is a long time between now and the day that he shall attain his majority, and, perhaps—"

She spoke as though in the hope that time would change the little fellow's determination; but the hope seemed to vanish as quickly as it came, for Mrs. Ziegler added:

"No, I don't believe he will change. He is a deep little fellow, and when he once gets an idea he is steadfast in carrying it out. Especially true do I think that will be in this case, for his love of Mr. Ziegler, if nothing else, would be incentive enough to keep the matter constantly in his mind. But you may talk to him yourself for a little while."

The room occupied by Willie Ziegler faces Long Island sound. The house is a long distance from the shore, on a high point of land which stretches away to the beach. From the windows a clear view of the water is given, and on this stormy, dark day the sea was forbidding and ugly. Yet the little boy, propped up on his bed near the window, was looking out on the waves as his visitor entered, and there was no sign that the bleakness of the sea had affected his youthful spirits in any way.

"So you are the fortunate young man with a fortune of millions of dollars?" said the reporter, as the boy turned toward him. Willie only smiled, as though the matter of vast possessions was of no consequence to him.

Goals North When Twenty-One.

"I don't know anything much about that," he said. "I only know that I wish it was a pleasant day, so that I could go out for a drive. I've been laid up here for two months and over, and now that it's vacation I'd like to be out. The doctor was going to let me go out to-day if it was not rainy. In a few days I'll be able to walk."

"But it will be some time before you start on your Arctic exploring, won't it?"

"Not so long, perhaps; though it

IN THE METROPOLIS

THOMAS F. RYAN PROPHESED AS FOREMOST CAPITALIST.

ROCKEFELLER AGING FAST.

Ryan a Virginia Gentleman—Out of a Noisome Equitable Mess Will Come Improvement in Insurance Methods—Offended Honor.

NEW YORK.—I separately asked two men who have wide acquaintance with moneyed men who, in their opinion, was most likely to take John D. Rockefeller's place as the foremost capitalist of the country within the next 15 years. Both answered without hesitation. "Tom Ryan," said one; the other, "Thomas F. Ryan."

Why? What has this strong man done to compel shrewd men to know his mastery? Chiefly, I think, that he has been cautious with his boldness. He has never lost a trick. He has never profited by a movement in whose preparation he had not a share. He has never trusted to chance. And he now has the vast funds of the Equitable Assurance society at his back.

A successor to Rockefeller is due; not as an individual owner of property, but as a central figure in the manipulation of the power of wealth; and this involves in time preeminent possessions. Rockefeller is only 66, but prematurely aged. He feels the weight of hostile criticism as once he did not. Ryan is 34 years younger. He is 16 years younger than Morgan, 15 years younger than Hill, who is more of a railroad than of a financial genius; only six years older than polo-playing George Gould, whom he overtops enough in genius to more than make up for his slightly greater age.

Ryan is tall and strong, personally well liked by his friends, not severe, but careful in his personal habits, of iron will, of blue-gray eye, of unshaken nerve. He is worth considerably less than a hundred millions, but does not let that fact trouble him. There is plenty more where that came from. He is six years younger than Anthony N. Brady, whose methods somewhat resemble his own, and who usually aids him. But Ryan is the more powerful; he was reared a Virginia gentleman, though in poverty. Brady "knew up anyhow" about Albany barber shops and barrooms, doing odd jobs as a boy, until he got his start. The difference didn't matter much when both were in low finance. In high finance it tells.

How a Man Gets Very Rich.

HEN a man works

the power in Metropolitan which has first and last "cut melons" worth about $200,000,000, and is now not earning its guaranteed dividend—but its stock is "distributed." Ryan is the tobacco trust. He is the real head of the Morton Trust Company. He is a power in southern railroads. He is the strong man in the almost crowning inquiry of the gas trust in New York. From the ownership of a little local one-horse electric light company he has become the Edison company. Not personally the chief owner of all these things, but their commanding spirit.

How does it benefit such a man to have possession of Equitable Assurance. Not directly, be assured. There will be no more clumsy, petty "graft" of the kind that so nearly wrecked the society. It will be run on business-like lines. But it will have money, and Mr. Ryan's wishes will be consulted as to where that money is to be deposited. Grover Cleveland, George Westinghouse and Judge O'Brien are not the men to name negligent trustees. The society will be carefully conducted. But Ryan was careful also to put in his man, Paul Morton, as chairman before setting these three eminent trustees to name the directors who will name the minor officials.

The Shipbuilding Scandal.

HOW many things a man has to think of if he would be remarkably successful! Mrs. Ben Wood, widow of the late owner of the News, the Tammany organ in New York, was cheated out of the best part of $200,000 in the scandalous shipbuilding trust " flotation." Benjamin B. Odell was another purchaser, but as he "passed his along" when he found out things he lost little. One of those he passed the stuff along to was Judge Alton B. Parker. Odell threatened suit to recover his remaining losses, but nothing ever came of it. Mrs. Wood threatened suit also. Now she expresses herself as satisfied. The game is to satisfy everybody—which, as it is done with other people's money, is easy—and then pitch in and by better management make it up to the treasury of—who is the poor old giant lamb in the whole transaction? Equitable, of course. Equitable Director McCook, Equitable Director Alexander, a relative of the Equitable president, were the leading spirits in the shipbuilding trust. Right through it and past it and until now they have remained Equitable directors. To hush up the victims this man got a job from the society or from the state of New York; that man, not wanting a job, got cash. The whole business has been grossly scandalous and a disgrace to New York. To say that worse is done in New Jersey and as bad in Pennsylvania is cold comfort.

Even cynical Wall street is worked up over the matter. It is perfectly safe to say that out of the noisome mess will come improvement in Empire state insurance methods.

The New Plaza Hotel.

HERE is only one Wall street in the world, only one Broadway, only one corner of those two streets, and only one "No. 1 Wall street," said the St. Louis real estate broker who recently bought the property so described for $700,000, or $26,000,000 an acre. The building is a little old tobacco shop 30 feet by 39 in size, and leased for three years longer. Dear old Benjamin D. Stillman, who owned it, was proud of the possession of the most valuable piece of real property in the world. He was no king of finance, but an old Yale man, something of a lover of science, well connected with scholarly men. For years the shop netted him but a small return upon its enormous value, but he gained steadily by its enhancement in value. It was in his family nearly 80 years. In that time it had grown in value from less than $20,000 to $700,000, besides constantly paying rental. Stillman refused to sell it while he lived. Once a broker offered to cover the site with gold dollars for it. Stillman said he'd sell if the dollars were set edge-wise.

Even more remarkable in a way is the doom of the Plaza hotel. This, often announced, is now at hand. It cost $3,000,000. It is a splendid structure. It is ten stories high. But because its site is so fine, overlooking the Fifth avenue entrance to Central park, it must be more worthily crowned. So another in the endless succession of "the finest hotel in New York" is to grace its site. This is to be what larger on the ground, to be 300,000. This I do not believe to be 1,000 rooms in the and this price would mean that m, with its share of the land d of the kitchen, dining room. st cost $1,500,000, which would r steep. of the famous newer hotels, le Antoinette, the St. Regis, or, are much smaller than the -Astoria.

When It Is Saddest.

WE ARE apt to think of the divorce matron as young and giddy; it causes something like a shock when a woman like Mrs. William Rhinelandt Stewart, who has been married 26 years and has a grown-up son, goes for the usual reason to South Dakota.

W. R. Stewart is over 50 and full of dignities. On his mother's side he derives from the Rhinelandts, who have been prominent land owners in New York for several generations. The Rhinelandt building, down behind Brooklyn bridge, takes the place of the oldest house in New York, on what was Monkey Hill. The Sugar House prison, in which American soldiers were confined by the British Provoost Cunningham during the revolution, was swept away to make room for the same structure.

For every case of long married couples unhappily parting; thus there are at least two or three perfectly well known to large circles of acquaintances in which one or the other party endures in silence what must be intolerable shame and sorrow. It is not fashionable to stigmatize other persons any longer, and it is really getting here much as it is in London, so that certain complications literally leave a man, or more often a woman, no resource but dignified endurance.

A very famous case of this sort—all the parties are now dead, the guilty with the innocent—involved for years the most public and prominent and scandalous disregard of the lawful wife and her children. Absolutely the only thing the wronged woman's male relations could do in her behalf without causing more scandal by starting a shooting scrape they did. Being immensely powerful, financially, they trimmed the erring husband in Wall street! But what a mockery of real revenge was that, compared with the good old mediaeval quarrels!

OWEN LANGDON.

Take Marriage Vows.

In the presence of but a few friends and relatives Dr. Nancy A. Rodger of Menominee and the Rev. George T. Chenoweth, were married last Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rodger, 505 South Sarah street, by the Rev. James Pascoe of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

The bride formerly practiced her profession in Escanaba but moved to Menominee a few years ago where she had built up a considerable practice.

The home of the groom is at Walsh, Assiniboda, Canada, and the newly married couple will make their home at that place. The wedding was a simple home affair only a few close friends and relatives being invited. A wedding supper was served following the ceremony and the Rev. and Mrs. Chenoweth left on a short wedding tour. They will be at home at Walsh, Assiniboda, after July 15.

Made Good Showing.

Joseph Hoffman, formerly of the Escanaba baseball team who has been signed to play with Menasha, made good in his first game with the team of that city on Sunday, covering his position at short without an error and getting the only safe hit that was recorded for the Menasha aggregation of players for the game.

In the first games of the season Hoffman made a brilliant showing with the Escanaba team but with other members of the team took a severe slump in the two games with Crystal Falls at South Park a week ago.

Gravelle, who played with the Escanaba team during the early portion of last season and appeared with the Rapid River team this season, is covering the third base for Menasha and is popular with the fans of that city.

SOME FINE ENTRIES

Big Event prepared for July 4th. by Gentlemen's Riding and Driving Club.

Although the names of the entries for the four classes in the second matinee race meet of the season, have not yet been made public, it is understood that many outside horses of big repute will participate in the events. The fact that the first meet of the season which was held two weeks ago, was such a pronounced success and was of such a close, exciting nature, will tend to arouse the interest in the coming meet, and the officials of the Gentlemen's Riding and Driving Club expect to eclipse all previous meets on July 4th.

All the horses which were entered in the meet two weeks ago will take part in the coming meet, thus assuring plenty of keen enjoyment and excitement. Indications are that the number of horses from outside cities, will be large.

MORE EVIDENCE

It is Coming in Rapidly in Escanaba.

Evidence on the following subject will prove of interest to every Escanaba reader. This public statement should be proof positive to every warring doubter. Read it carefully.

Richard Steinks, of 615 Wells Ave., Escanaba, Mich., says: "Years ago I used Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to be a true backache cure. While working in a lumber camp in Wisconsin I caught a heavy cold which settled in my kidneys and caused me much suffering. I tried all kinds of remedies but kept getting worse. I could not work and could scarcely get my clothing on. I was told by a friend about Doan's Kidney Pills and I sent about Escanaba for a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they were gotten at the Mead Drug Co's store. Inside of a week after commencing to use them I was at work and my back became as strong as ever and the pains all disappeared. I sent and got two more boxes and used them, since which time I have never had a backache. I would not be without Doan's Kidney Pills in the house. You are welcome to refer to me at any time."

No Iden a Whirlwind.

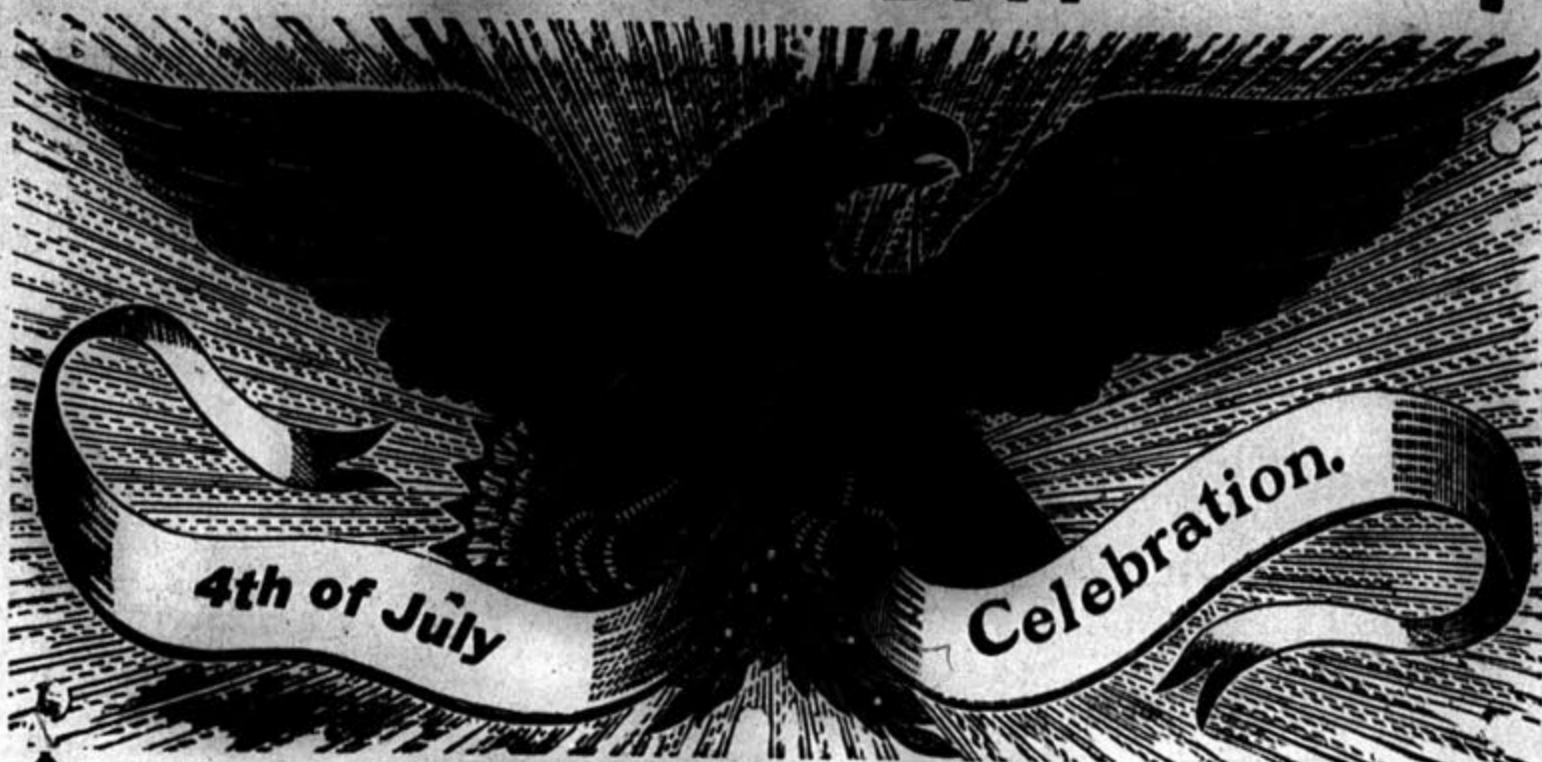

Menominee fans are enthusiastic over the work done by "Pete" Nolden the Escanaba pitcher, in Sunday's game at Menominee against the team of that city. Enthusiasts of that city, class Nolden's showing in the box when he struck out eighteen men on Sunday as the best that has ever been witnessed in that city.

Following is what the Menominee Herald Leader says of Nolden's appearance in Saturday's game.

"Buck Nolden won the base ball game for Escanaba against Menominee yesterday at the fair grounds, eight to one.

He was the whole Escanaba team, striking out eighteen men, giving no bases on balls hitting no men, making no wild pitches, allowing only three men to face him in six innings, four men in two, and six in one, scoring one run, and making three hits, besides assisting in putting one man out. Against such masterly work the home team was powerless. Added to this marvelous work was a high wind which made fielding of fly balls almost impossible.
