LINE'S BACKERS MADE KNOWN

Menominee, Marinette and Crystal Falls Cantitalists are Behind Inter-urban Line.

CAPITAL STOCK $300,000

William Holmes of Menominee owns One-half of Stock-W. A Holmes, and W. N. Mills Hold Balance,

The names of the capitalists who are behind the Menominee-Escanaba interurban line have been officially announced from Lansing this week, which will put a stop to speculations that have been rife as to the persons financially in-terested in the new electric road.

As disclosed by the articles of incorporation the capital stock of the com-pany is $300,000, divided into 3,000 shares of par value of $100 per share.

William Holmes, of Menominee controlls one-half of the entire stock, or 1,500 shares. The other stockholders with the amount of stock held by each are as follows: W. A. Holmes of Crystal Falls 750 shares, Guy W, Holmes of Marinette 375 shares and Senator W. N. Mills of Menominee 375 shares.

The head quarters of the new company which will be called the Menominee and Escanaba Railway Company, will be located at Menominee.

The names of the incorporators of the new company will do much to satisfy the skeptical in regard to the sincerity and solidity of the campany.

The preliminary survey is now being pushed as fast as possible and it is expected that the right of way will be obtained by fall. Within two weeks it s expected that the survey crew will have reached Delta County. Stephenson, Dagget, Nadeau, Spaulding, Harris, Rark River and Hyde will all be touched by the new road, the course of the Northwestern Road being followed as closely as practicable.

enstruction work will undoubtedly 1906, it is thought that the electric line will be finished.

Was Given Judge Kendrick's Address Before Members of Maccabee

In a very successful meeting arrang ed by the Escanaba members of the Judge J. H. Kendrick, auditor for the Maccapes great camp and member of the state board of pardon delivered an addresa that was not only of deep interest, bul was an intellectual treat to those fortunate enough to be present.

Judge Kenrick's personality was present in all his remarks and his address was keenly enjoyed. Dist. Deputy James Patterson accompanied the orator and left the next morning to continue his tour of the peninsula.

A number of Gladstone Maccabees were present at the meeting.

COMPANY DISBANDED

Miserable Performance Causes Manager Peterson to Cancel Engagement.

The Robinson Stock Company who had come highly recommended by theatre managers to Manager P. M

Peterson, to play an entire week in Escanaba, made such a ludicrous and miserable attempt to produce their play that Mr. Peterson felt obliged to cancel the remainder of their engagement in Following this action, the company disbanded and most of the members of the troupe left the city at once.

With one or two exceptions the performance of the company was disgust-ing, and Mr. Peterson's dissapointment was of course very keen.

GREAT CELEBRATION

German Societies of Escanaba Ob serve German Day at South Park With Great Success.

South Park was the scene of one of the most successful celebrations ever participated in by the German Societies of Escanaba, on Tuesday. People from the neighboring towns of the county were present in large number, and a spirit of patriotism and convivality prevailed to an extent seldom reached in affairs of this kind.

The parade began at ten o'clock in the morning and was headed by the Es-canaba Concordia band. About three hundred men, wearing white caps and the decorations of their society, formed in line, followed by the officers of the German Aid society, the Luxemberger Bruder Bund and the Sons of Herman, with the officers of the day, in carriages.

Floats also were conspicuous in the parade. The Fair Savings Bank Department store float attracted considerable attention. It consisted of a pair of white horses driven tandem, drawing a decorated wagon. The Escanaba Brewing Company was represented by a moving palm garden. Two wagons carrying nearly one-hundred boys and girls, all of whom held flags, formed an pspiring sight.

The park was filled with a happy crowd-all day long, and even late in the afternoon, the street cars seemed to be doing a rushing business in the direction of the picnic grounds.

The entire success of the affair is been planning for weeks for the proper management of this celebration.

DELIGHTFUL EXCURSION

Big Crowd Enjoyed Ideal Day's Outing at Fayette, Garden, and Nahma

A large crowd took in the excursion last Sunday on the new steamer Maywood and the affair was one of the most successful of its kind ever experienced by Escanaba people. The weather looked somewhat uncertian in the morning, but, as the day progressed, became ideal. There were five automobiles along, three of these being owned by Gladstone people. John Johnson's "Blue Ribbon" held the distinction of being the first automobile to touch the shores of Garden.

The base ball game between the Blue Ribbons and Garden resulted in the victory for the latter by a score of 11 to 5.

The Blue Ribbons were handicapped by the strange base ball grounds which were far from smooth. The game was, however, very interesting to watch and with the exception of the seventh and eigth innings the Blue Ribbons held their own.

Most of the excursionists got off at Garden, an account of the base ball attraction.

Fayette and Nahma were also visited by goodly numbers of fun and rest seekers. At Fayette many campers from Escanaba were discovered, enjoying themselves heartily and not anxious to return. Everything about the Maywood was omodious, clean and well managed.

There was no friction disorder of any kind and all who went along, were unanimous in saying that the excursion was a complete success.

CAPTAIN WAS FINED

First Mate of Str. Wm. Edward Brought Suit Against the Captain.

Captain Ahlstrom of the steamer William Edward was arrested at Gladstone last week on complaint of Ben Lehman, first mate of the same steamer, who charged the captain with assult and battery. According to Lehman's version of the case, the captain left the boat for a few hours and instructed him to take care of the newly painted deck.

The captain returned to the boat in an intexicated condition and found the mate rweeping the deck. As he had been instructed to do. The captain became angry at once and began to abuse the mate for what he believed a violation of his orders, and when the mate attempted to explain he gave him a severe pounding, the marks of which the mate bore quite plainly at the time of the trial.

- The mate came to Escanaba and made complaint with the result that the captain was arrested and after the hearing before Judge Glazer, was fined $10 and costs which all together amounted to $21.50.

THE VISITORS

Arrangements Being Made to Receive Party of Merchants and Manufacturers.

COMING AUGUST 12

Business Men Take Interest in En tertainment of Visitors and will Point out Advantages of This City.

The special train bearing the mempers of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Milwaukee, will arrive in Escanaba next Saturday, August 12th, and arrangements for their reception are being made by the citizens of this city. The officials and business men of Escanaba will probably hold a meeting early in the week to appoint committees to be at the depot when the the special train arrives and escort the members of the Association about the

From the announcement of Secretary L. C. Whitney of the association it would appear that the visitors will be in great satisfaction to those who have Escanababut a short time, arriving at 9:36 o'clock in the forenoon and leaving at 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon, making their stay in Escanaba last just four hours and fourty-five minutes. A great deal can be seen and done in this length of time, however, and although it is regretted that their visit is not longer. the best efforts of Escanaba's citizens will be extended in making their stop as pleasant and valuable as possible.

Mayor A. J. Valentine and John J. Sourwine have been very active in arranging for the proper entertainment of the visitors.

It is probable that a banquet will be noon hour.

The Electric street railway will place their cars at the disposal of the guests who it is presumed will visit Wells where the I. Stephenson Company and the Mashek Chemical Iron company's plant can be seen.

Escanaba will do everything in her power to insure the comfort of the association while it is in the city.

FIRED FOUR SHOTS

Officer Beitzer Fired Four Times at Fleeing Prisoner Without Effect.

While being taken to the police station in a carrirge late Tuesday afternoon, Edward Olson succeded in escaping temporarily by leaping from the carriage and eluding pursuit, Officer Beltzer, who was conducting the prisoner, also jumped from the carriage in pursuit of the escaping prisoner but in landing on , the ground, sustained a severe sprain of the knee, which prevented him from following Olson. Olson did not heed the commands of the officer to stop and four shots were fired at him as he ran. The first three were purposely wide from the mark, but the last was deadly earnest, although it too, missed the escaping prisoner. The noise of the shots arroused considerable excitement in the neighborhood and others joined in pursuit of Olson but he escaped to the home of his mother where he was arrested the following day.

The disturbance was caused by Olson's disorderly conduct at the German Day picnic at South Park, preceding his subsequent arrest. When the carriage which held the offlicer and prisoner, was passing the corner of Tweedy and Elmore street, Olson jumped.

Olson appeared before Judge Emil
Glaser Thursday morning and was sentenced to pay a fine of $15 or serve fifteen days in the County jail. He paid the fifteen dollars.

IMPRESSIVE GEREMONY

Remains of Edward G. Turner Laid to Rest Sunday Afternoon.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Edward G. Turner were held at St. Stephen's Episcopal church last Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. F. F. W. Greene, with Rev. P. B. Ferris of the First Presbyterian church and Rev. James Pascoe of the Methodist church joined in conducting the service.

The different Masonic Orders, of which the deceased was a member, ac-companied the funeral procession from the church. The honorary pall bearers, all members of the the Escanaba Commandery, were W. R. Smith, C. M. Thatcher, F. H. Atkins, J. S. Lindsay, W. J. Clark and H. H. Allyn. Active pall bearers were F. A. Richard, V. Aronson, S. J. Spargo, H. G. Becker, Alex Christie and A. J. Crebo. The services at the cemetary were held under the auspices of the Blue Lodge and Past Master A. J. Young conducted the burial service, which was full of pathos. The many close friends of the deceased, gave vent to their love and respect for the tenderly beautiful character of their departed comrade, and sympathy for the bereaved family filled every heart.

Beautiful flowers in fragrant abundance were brought by friends and loved ones. The deep silence which prevailed the services, told in unmistakable language, the extent to which the deceased was loved.

Street Railway Will Install Double Track System Here.

Ties for the construction of the second track were carried to the east end of Ludington street this week thus assuring Escanaba a great improvement to the street car system. Work will probaply be commenced on the second track as soon as the first new track is completed. There has been considerable nconvenience attached to the one track system, and the extra track will be hailed with satisfaction by those to whom the long delay at the switches have been provoking and vexatious.

With the installing of the second track, Escanaba will have a line equal to any city of the state.

DORA THORNE

Popular Melodrama Will Appear at Peterson's Opera House Aug. 12.

"Dora Thorne," a dramatized novel of the present season, marks a new dethe play follows the book accurately enough to permit the use of the title. but the playwright has chosen the incidents and happenings with excellent taste, and woven them into a play that is interesting in the extreme.

The audience cannot help but engage themselves spmpathetically with every turn of the fortunes of Dora Thorne, a girl whom the English would call "low born"; who won the affection of and married the duke's son. The resultant plot may be mapped out, but the treatment of her natural girlish exuberance in contrast to the habitual reserve and repression of the manner aristocratic, must be seen to be appreciated. A large share of the success of the performance is due to the cast, which is strong throughout, including as it does, Miss Cuba Niblo in the name part, Miss Isabel Sherman, who causes all the trouble, and that sterling actor of old men characters, Mr. George C. Denton, "Dora Thorne" will be seen at Peterson's Opera House Saturday Aug. 12.

Fred Diebold, Nephew of Captain Peter Jordan of Gladstone Loses Life

Accident Occured While Working or Tug. Body Recovered Friday Morning.

Fred Diebold, nephew to Captain Pet-er Jordan of Gladstone, was drowned Thursday afternoon at four o'clock near Stephenson's dock. The boy was working for his uncle on the tug Hattie Jordan, and was standing on the rear deck when, losing his balance in some manner, he fell into the water. The tug was then hauling a scow loaded with gravel for street work, which passed over the spot where the boy dissapeared, before any aid could be given him. All efforts to find his body were futile until Friday morning at about eleven o'clock, when it was brought to the surface. The circumstances surrounding the ad accident are singularly pathetic. The unfortunate youth would have been seventeen years old this September. His home is in Louisville, Kentucky, but he had been living with his uncle at Gladstone during the past year. The heart of every parent in Escanaba is extended in sympathy to the rela-tives of Fred Diebold at this sad moment. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made at this writing.

NEW DREDGE A MARVEL

Uncle Sam Sam Saving Thousands With Suction Dredge.

The government's experiment of doing its own work on the great lakes with the suction dredge General Gillespie is proving a great success. This dredge can do the work at a third the cost by contract. It is now in use at Grand Haven.

The General Gillespie was brought to the lakes from the Atlantic coast and stopped at Detroit for several days on its way north. While there it was examined by a number of vesselmen and contractors. It is a craft of 1,210 tons displacement and cost $250,000.

Instances of the suction force are shown in a 75-pound stone which was sucked up through the pipe from a depth of 35 feet and a section of a 12-inch hawser and 30 fathoms of seven-eightsinch chain which was also picked up. Since it has been at Grand Haven the Gillespie has removed 75,000 yards of san't (or over 4,000 yards a day,) at a cost of five cents a yard, whereas the government formerly paid 17 cents a

END FAR AWAY

Chicago's Big Salling Fleet Rapidly Disappearing

Chicago, July 28 .- The passing of the schooners Mary T. Dykes and Graham Brothers, and the dismantling of the old H. A. Richmond and Ralph Campparture in melodrama. The story of bell, this week, have shown vesselmen that the end of the once magnificient fleet of sailing ships at Chicago is not far distant. In 1890 Chicago owned 183 sailing vessels with a total tonnage of 43,337. They were all in service and when the wind went around to the north it was a signal for a dash of the tug fleet for towns. Long strings of five or six schooners came up the lake behind every tug and when the vessels were landed at the lumber market the stream was well nigh blockaded. The decline from 1890 has been rapid, for as the old timers passed away they were not replaced. In five years the Chicago fleet dropped to 167 vessels. with a tonnage of 38,657. From that time to this the decline has been steady from year to year. Figures compiled at the custom house today show that there were now sailing from Chicago but forty-seven vessels, with a tonnage of 15,013. Some of the largest schooners have been converted into barges and are now towed behind steamers.

During the month of July but twenty schooners will have reached Chicago, while a single shift of the wind to the north used to bring more than that number in a half day.

A number of the surviving ships are on their last season and will never be fitted out again. Vesselmen say that five years more will see the entire schooner fleet of Chicago a thing of the tion would be changed. past. This is true all over the lakes.

They had been to the Soo, hoping to find easy money during the celebration there, but their reputations had pacceded them ONLY 17 YEARS OF AGE and the officers of that place wasted no time in forcing them to leave the city.

At Gladstone the men were met at the depot by officers who refused them the privelege of remaining there, and they accordingly "hiked" toward Es-canaba. Officer McCarthy had been notified of their appearance and arrang-

TRACK TO LIGHTING PLANT

Comm'tee Reports Favorably on That Proposition.

COST ABOUT $800

City Attorney And City Engineer In-Officials.

The proposition to build a spur track from the C. &. N. W. railroad yards to the city municipal lighting plant which was brought before the council some time ago was reported upon favorably Tuesday night by the committee to which the matter was referred. The committee reccommended that such a track be built at a cost of not to exceed $800 and that the city attorney and city engineer be instructed to confer with the officials of the railroad company in regards to the terms and costs of building such a spur.

The committee's recommendations met with some opposition in the council and an attempt was made to refer the matter to the finance committee.

Alderman Lawson argued that there was the proposition to boud the city was to be submitted to the people, it would be well to wait until the result of that proposition were known, before spending money for a track. Alderman Jensen spoke in favor of the improvement and said that if the city expected to use economy in operating the lighting plant, it was well to begin at once. "This track" said Mr. Jensen, will pay for itself in two years, as a quarter of a dollar will be saved on every ton of coal brought in by rail. After considerable discussion a vote was taken on motion to adopt the report of the committee and the same was unanimously adopted. ROEMER TAKES CHARGE

Lighting Plant now in Charge of Former Superintendent

Fred Wildi, who resigned from This position as superintendent of the lighting plant on August first has been succeeded by John Roemer. Mr. Roemer has had considerable experience with Escanaba's lighting plant before, having been superintendent of the municipal lighting plant in this city.

The present lighting plant is too small and inadequate for a city of Escanaba's size. Although its running condition is excellent, its capacity is taxed to too great an extent to be profitable. The proposition to issue bonds to the amount of $60,000, would of course insure a plant equal to the demands of a city of this size, and the entire situa-

Mayor's Crusade on Gambling Causes Atandonment of Glenville, O., Track.

Cleverand, O., Aug. 1 .- It was decided Monday afternoon to abandon the grand circuit trotting meeting scheduled for this week at the Glenville track, in this city. The only event Monday afternoon was the consolation heat of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' race, which was not completed at the Detroit meeting. It is stated that all the horses at the Glenville track will be shipped to Buffalo at once. This action was taken as a result of Mayor Johnson's order prohibiting the sale of pools at the Glenville track. Until a short time ago there was but attle doubt that pool selling would be permitted, but as the village of Glenville, in which the track is situated. has in the past few days been annexed to the city of Cleveland, Mayor Johnson has control over the situation. It is announced that the race track will be abolished after precent meet, graded down and divided into city lots.

Negotiations for End of Russo-American Difficulties Progress Steadily.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.-Negotiations for the settlement or Russo-American tariff difficulties are advancing steadily. Russia is willing to withdraw the retallatory duties on American machinery, etc., which weight hard on Russian industry and agriculture and only seeks acknowledgement of the exceptional nature of the retaliatory duties imposed by her on sugar. American exports of which are not not to become an important commercial factor. Certificates of origin necessarily exacted on machinery imported from other countries is also a burdensome formality, and M. Witte, who was minister of finance when the duties were imposed and who was consulted before leaving for the United States, agreed as to the advisability of settling the dispute.

There are bells and there are whistles. There are prolonged salutes to the crowds on the pier. There are castings off of preliminary ropes. Yet once in awhile a big leviathan of the seas floats out into the stream with a frantic didn'tknow-it-was-time visitor. Generally it is a woman and there is loud lamentation, appeals to a ship's officer and afterward to a river tug or mayte the pilot boat. Croker is a broken man since the death of revolver is the accepted instrument of his sons. He has all the money he wants, and since he never was in the game for anything else there is no reason why he should bother himself with the cares of a machine that is now in other hands. In some ways Murphy is quite as securely placed as Croker was, with fair chances of becoming richer than his predecessor. Murphy has many anchors to windward. He is a keen; hard man, quite capable, like Croker, of flourishing on abuse. Abuse, indeed, is absolutely essential to'a Tammany leader. MOTHERHOOD.

DESCRIE SENTIMENT

EDING DIGNITY OF

President Boossvelt's Attitude -Wholesome Sentiment Concerning Motherhood, Now in Vogue -Where the Real Danger Lies-Children Spend Money with Undue Freedom-Middle-Class Folk Too Snobbish-"One Million Is Genteel Poverty"—Women of Standing Drink and Gamble.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER,

(Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.) No dispassionate critic can fail to see that a great and praiseworthy change has come over the spirit of American homes in the last score of years. Before our president called general attention to the diminutive size of American famllies, and sounded his warning note about race suicide, a reaction had set in for the betterment of conditions that were deplorable.

A much more wholesome sentiment obtains among women than formerly as regards the dignity of motherhood. To this the Mothers' Congress and the numerous mothers' clubs throughout the country have contributed, and the oftrepeated opinions of those who believe that child culture is not beneath any woman's genius, have brought an uplifting influence. The expectant mother is not now an object of pity among her acquaintances. Motherhood has become an admired and coveted state even among married women of fashion-and many families are fearlessly going beyond the two or three children who constituted, not long ago, the ideal American group.

Race suicide is therefore not a menace to be dreaded, from the standpoint of the man who loves his country and hopes to see her sons and daughters born in numbers sufficient to keep the balance steady against the swarming crowds of the foreign-born, as a counter poise to the throngs who see the light in homes of deepest squalor and poverty. The comfortable, thrifty, intelligent, hardworking, plain-living and high-thinking American citizen is to have his table surrounded by bright, clever, lovable children, life's crown and life's truest wealth.

Where, then, does a threat of danger interpose itself? The race suicide we have reason to fear, how shall we define

To me, at least, it seems that our greatest present peril lies in the lowering of our standards of integrity, in our acceptance of commercial success as the only success worth having, and in our mad desire for ease and luxury. We are becoming effeminate. Our boys and girls shrink from labor. One finds the children and grandchildren of toiling men who earned their living by the sweat of their brow and the exercise of eir muscle, shirking chores about the house, evading mere work on the pleaof athletics or of study, and spending money with a freedom and irresponsibility that bodes ill for the future.

The education of rich men's sons too often tends to make them idle and elegant incapables, globe-trotters and spendthrifts. The education of rich men's daughters trains them in social charm and distinction, but too much neglects the homely virtues. Else why do so many of them fall readily into the trap when a foreign adventurer with a high-sounding title seeks to recoup his wasted fortunes with their father's wealth?

Middle-class folk, if anyone will own to being middle-class, are far too snobhish. Real worth is overlooked in favor may or may not be of pseudo refinement and society veneer. guilty of the of- People who should know better are guilty of the vulgarity of worshiping money, and God help us, we are all too anxious to make money. So anxious are we for the things that perish with the using, that we strain every nerve, sacrifice health, good temper and selfrespect to get on, to secure more money, to add dollar to dollar and acre to acre. "One million," I not long ago heard a woman exclaim: "What is one million? Why, in this period it is nothing but genteel poverty!" This is what we instil by precept and example into the lives of our young people.

So it has naturally followed that sanitoriums flourish. Young men in their haste to be rich, break down with nervous exhaustion. The sanitorium recaives them. They live to be nervous wrecks, or improve to walk softly all their days. Herein is a finger that points y those who enervate the race, w kill its valor, deplete its virtue, and mock its self-denials, as by those who limit the number of its newly-born.

The cry of the pessimist is perhaps un-casonable. But the most obstinate optimist cannot shut his eyes to the fact that we readily condone acts of dishoner that we once condemned, and that we are too tolerant of excuses for wrong-do ng if they present themselves in royal purple with a golden clasp. The old note of poverty and simplicity needs to homa, Texas and parts of Kansas. With sound its sustere signal in our ears if it are coming to market the usual rethe soul-suicide of the race is to be averted.

In every land and age vast resources and large material wealth have been stepping stones to corruption. Too much luxury paralyzes endeavor. From time to time somebody's shipwreck startles us; some one in whom the public have had confidence suddenly is discovered to have abused that trust, or in some way to have gone wrong.

We need an overwhelming sentiment against graft, and in favor of purity and honesty. Only in the home can this be nurtured. Only there by those who love their country and fear God can race suieide be averted. Let us learn from the memories of our glorious past, from the Spartan traditions of those who have or loss in conditions. gone.

FLUFFY WHITE WAISTS.

The Lingerie Blouse Continues Reign Supreme and Will Be Worn the Coming Season.

Lovely materials are used in the white blouses in the shops. There is a new and extremely lacy looking pongee which is glistening white. It is shot through with shiny little dots and derives its lacy effect from an openwork pattern which runs all through it in a kind of a grenadine weave. Made up, this material was seen trimmed with elaborate rows of Valenciennes edging sewed on so as to overlap. Dotted swiss, with exceedingly fine dots, is also popular, and handkerchief lawn of an extremely fine quality is a new fabric which will take washing, and also a little tiny bit of starch, which is now used in these extremely thin waists. Silk batiste is another fabric used in making up the elaborate blouses in the shops, which is warranted to wash and is also decidedly pretty.

This washing question is one to consider well before indulging in the china silk and lace-trimmed waists, which look so attractive and which can be bought cheaper in the same degree of elaborateness than when they are made of lingerie. They positively will turn yellow if washed often in water, no matter how carefully it is done. The only way to keep them in their first loveliness is to have them dry cleaned, and on this account it is better to indulge in crepe de chine if one wants silk of some kind. That altogether satisfactory fabric can be washed in cold water with soap and can be shaken dry and is positively successful without ironing (except a little pressing of the lace when it is almost dry) so great is its elasticity. This applies equally well to both black and white.

WHEAT CROP CRISIS.

ERCENTAGE FÎGURES GIVEN BY GOVERNMENT STATISTICIAN.

They Are Taken as a Standard of Calculation by Produce Exchanges -The Year's Probabilities.

New wheat has already commenced to move toward the markets in Okla oma, Texas and parts of Kansas, With ports of black rust, red rust, the chinch bug, the Hessian fly, and all the rest of the pests that hurt the wheat and help the market. But we have had all of these reports in former seasons, states the Portland Oregonian, special date, and recollection of their appearance has thrown a decided air of uncertainty over the situation. Statisticians have been busy with their pencils since the government crop report appeared, about a week ago, and they have figured out some widely divergent results for the crop now coming on. The government does not make quantitative predictions so early in the season, but in lieu thereof puts out some percentage figures showing gain The statistician of the New York

Produce Exchange has for many years figured out a quantitative result from these figures, and while it is not always verified by the crop returns for the year for which the particular prediction is made, it is valuable as a standard for comparison. According to the figures of this statistician, the government's condition reports indicate a total yield of wheat this year of 727,432,000 bushels, which, with the exception of the crop of 1901, would be the largest on record. Should the alleged condition be maintained until harvest, and that amount of wheat be secured, we should have 205,000,000 bushels more wheat than was produced in this country last year, or a sufficient amount to put us back into our old place as one of the big wheat-exporting countries of the world.

But there is a world of difference be tween the promise of a crop of 727,000,-000 bushels and the actual harvest of such a crop. Taking the same condition and acreage figures for a basis one year ago in June, the experts figured out a probable yield of 628,302,000 bushels, or 76,000,000 bushels more than was actually harvested. The June condition reported by the government has at no time in the past five years been verified by the yield which followed. The June figures based on the government condition and acreage reports have in the past five years indicated a crop of from 587,856,000 bushels to 776,024,000 bushels, with an average of 670,442,000 bushels.

The maximum crop actually harvested in that period fell 28,000,000 bushels short of the estimates based on the June report, and the average for the five years was 45,000,000 bushels less wheat than was predicted by the statisort as a basis for their figures. It is cline in conditions that now keeps the wheat market wrought up to a highly nervous state, and for the next 30 days some striking changes in prices are not , improbable. This country managed to take care of practically all of the wheat that was grown last year, with the exception of about 75,000,000 bushels, most of which was sent out as flour.

With such a narrow margin between the amount required and the amount available, the price quite naturally ruled abnormally high throughout the season. Should the crop be only 100,-000,000 bushels greater than that of last year, it will require a crop failure abroad or some other unusual occurrence to enable last season's prices to be approached. Pending more definite knowledge as to the outcome, there will be a strong tendency to hold the short stocks remaining and to check a free-selling movement of the new wheat that is available early.

Sand Soled Shoes,

Appreciating the rapidity with which leather soles wear out, an inventor now comes forward with a "rock bottom" shoe which he declares to be practically indestructible. His invention consists of a cement for coating the under side of the usual leather sole with fine quartz sand. His process is said to leave the sole as flexible as ordinary leather, and yet there is no danger of the cement cracking and chipping off. The shoes are designed principally for out-of-door workers, and it is asserted that not only will the shoe resist the effects of wear, but it will enable the user to maintain a footing upon the most slippery surface, the sole presenting hundreds of fine points which will grip anything without slipping-N. Mixed Pickles.

One of our exchanges made an unfortunate-error in its "Answers to Correspondents" last week.

"Fond Mother" wrote in to find out what she should do for her children who had the whooping couugh. In the makeup the compositor got some items transposed and the answer read: "If not too young, skin them thoroughly; immerse in scalding water, sprinkle plentifully with salt and leave for a week in strong brine." "Horrors! He misplaced the answer to "Anxious Housekeeper's" query for a pickled onion recipe .- Washington Life.

RICH IN HISTORIC LEGEND.

Town of New Mexico That Was Founded by Spaniards in Seventeenth Century.

The recent destruction of Tome. N. M., by flood waters from the Rio Grands river removes one of the quaintest and most historic places in the southwest, says the Kansas City Times. At the time of its obliteration a few days ago Tome had a population of about 600. Every house in the town was swept away, and what was formerly the main street is now the new channel of the erratic river. No lives were lost, but there were many narrow escapes and thrilling rescues. The survivors are now camping on the adjacent hills.

Tome is rich in historic legend, tragedy and romance. The place was founded in the seventeenth century by a colony of Spaniards coming by way of Mexico. This colony consisted of 70 persons, headed by Don Ignacio Bacca, a Spanish grandee. The settlement flourished and for many years was the leading town of New Mexico, although it never attained a population beyond a few thousand. In the palmy days Tome was the home of the Baccas, the Castilos, the Oteros, the Chaves and other distinguished families, whose names still stand on New Mexico's roster of aristocracy.

Tome was once the scene of an appalling Indian massacre—a massacre which came as a revenge because Cuerveno-Verde, a Comanche Indian chief, had been outwitted in his plans to marry Meatriz Bacca, daughter of Don Ignacio Bacca, the Spanish grandee. The chief had made the acquaintance of the Bacca family and lost his heart to Beatris when she was a mere child. He asked her father if he might have her for his wife. Presuming that the Indian was jesting, Don Bacca replied in the affirmative, adding that the chief might come and take Beatriz on her fifteenth birthday.

The redskin remembered, and when Beatriz was 15 he appeared at her father's home, accompanied by a band of warriors, not to make war, but to help celebrate the nutials. Don Bacca, realizing that the Indian was in earnest, resorted to strategy.

"See me to-morrow," he said, "for f have bad news for you-Beatriz is dead." Meanwhile, the father caused a grave to be dug and next day the Indian was led thither. He looked at the little mound, accepted the story as true, and went away mournfully.

A few weeks later the chief discovered that he had been deceived. He was furious. Gathering his warriors about him he swept down upon Tome early on a Sunday morning when many of the residents were in church. First he captured Beatriz, the object of his savage affection. Then he gave orders to destroy the town. The church was burned and many of the fleeing worshipers were caught and scalped. Beatriz became the unwilling bride of the chief, and although she grieved for a long time, she finally became reconciled to her new environment and lived to an advanced age.

So many people were killed in the ticians who used the government re- Tome massacre that the local priests had to call upon the clergy of Albuthe recollection of this invariable de- querque, a short distance away, to come and help bury the dead. The romantic story of Tome is fully verified by church records saved from the recent flood by Father Railerre, the local parish priest, who has been on duty in Tome since 1858.

FIRST TO REACH ROCKIES.

Canadian in Employ of Fur Traders Reached the Mountains in 1790.

"Peter Pangman is set down in Canadian annals as being the first white man to reach the Rocky mountains, and also the first white man to ever see them from the east," said George Sillman, of Toronto. "While in the employ of fur traders, he ascended the Saskatcheman above its junction with the Clearwater and, looking to the westward. he saw the white mass of the Rocky mountains, to which he afterward penetrated, but he marked this spot of his first vision by carving his name on a pine, which from that day became known as 'Pangman's tree.' The great north country was far enough off in 1790. "Peter Pangman had no special cause for believing that any second person would pass that same way. It was more reasonable to suppose that time or fire or, wind would destroy this one pine among 1,000,000 other pines; yet 125 years after he made his rude inscription the tree is spoken of. Some years ago the Northwest Fur company established a post on the Saskatcheman in the vicinity which came to be called the Rocky Mountain House. All the trappers and traders of an early day speak of this place as 'three miles below Pangman's tree.' The tree was a landmark before the trading post and continued to be after the post had ceased. A transcontinental railroad passes not far away now, but it has not obliterated the memory of the post, nor blotted from the minds of men the living and leafy monument."

FOOT BALL RULES

The New Changes Meerly Make the Old Rules More Clear.

Foot ball coaches, officials and players of the gridiron game will now begin a study of the changes in the rules which were issued in book form last week.

These changes refer more to a clearing up of the rules in the minds of officials than in the changing of the game as demanded by those calling for more op-

If we were to assemble all those who have been cured of heart disease by Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and who would to-day be in their graves had not Dr. Miles' been successful in perfecting this wonderful heart specific, they would populate a large city.

What a remarkable recorda breathing, thinking, moving monument, composed of human lives,-that for which every other earthly possession is sacrificed.

The Miles Medical Co. receive thousands of letters from these people like the following: "I feel indebted to the Dr. Miles' Heart Cure for my life, I desire to call the attention of others suffering as I did to this remarkable remedy for the heart. For a long time I had suffered from shortness of breath after any little exertion, palpitation of the heart; and at times terrible pain in the region of the heart, so serious that I feared that I would some time drop dead upon the street. One day I read one of your circulars, and immediately went to my druggist and purchased two bottles of the Heart Cure, and took it according to directions, with the result that I am entirely cured. Bince then I never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy to my friends who have heart trouble; in fact I am a traveling advertisment, for I am widely known in this locality.

I would have your majesty know that I have just created a formula for a soup that shall win an instant immortality."

"And what may it be?" asked the monarch impatiently. "I never was an expert in the art of guessing, and I would know the name of your new decoction."

And the chef, appreciating the king's interest and his own importance, sataamed again and replied:

A Bull For a God. The ancient Egyptians believed that the spirit of their greatest god, Osiris, dwelt among them in the form of a pure white bull marked by a certain sign. Herodotus mentions two of these signs—a black eagle on the back and a black forehead with a square of white h its center. These creatures when found were worshiped during life and mummified after death. The New York Historical society has one of these "bull gods," a fine mummy from the temple of Serapis.

THE FASHIONABLE SABBATH.

Marietta Holley ("Josiah Allen's Wife"), Author of "My Wayward Pardner," "My Opinions and Betsy Bobbett's," "Sa-mantha at Baratoga," "Samantha at the St. Louis Exposition," Etc., Tells the Story of a Prodigal Nephew Who Re-turned to the Fold.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowlee.) Josiah's nephew, John Waddle Al-Ion, has been home on a visit. He is a fashionable.

He wuz brought up well. Karen Christian. He wuz bred on the altar. as you may say. Sunday school and New York that wugn't afraid to go meetin' wuz his hants on the Sabbath day, and good picture books and Bible stories his recreations.

I used to admire his up-bringin', he had a few interestin' toys and picture books brought out only on Sunday, to make 'em a desired rarity. Noah's Ark, the Tower of Babel, and Bible games. He enjoyed himself first rate and wuz kep' in, too. She used to take him to walk Sunday afternoons sometimes, in quiet pretty places, for be loved flowers and birds and runnin' brooks, and his ma said she read sermons in 'em. I have too, sometimes. She learnt him the greatness and goodness of the God she loved in His works.

Well, as I say, he grew up a Christian, united with the M. E. meetin' house, got good book learnin', and wuz engaged to Deacon Piddockses Lucy, and his folks wuz well pleased, for Lucy wuz a good girl, and a pretty one, and a believer and perfessor from 14. But Jack went to New York as clerk in his rich uncle's office, and got fashionable and new-fangled idees. His uncle didn't really know what he did believe in. I guess he kinder favored the Hindoos. He wuz real took with one of the Swammers that held meetin's there, and he kinder favored the Booders, too, I've been told. He wuzn't really settled on anything, but very stylish, and Jack's firm beliefs got kinder loose jinted, I guess, livin' there, 'tennyrate he got dretful fash-Ionable idees in his head.

His folks spozed he would come home after a year or so, and settle good farm and farm house, and Deacon Piddock stood ready to furnish it from top to bottom. And his folks spozed that he would only stay in New York jest long enough to git money to stock the farm with, that wuz his intentions when he went, one year would have been enough and two a great plenty. But years went by and he didn't come back and he didn't come back, only summers on a visit, and his folks acted sad and Lucy looked peaked. And finally the fourth summer his folks went off to spend most of the summer with a married daughter to the west. leavin' the farm to a tenant, and when lack got ready for his usual summer's wacation he come to our house on our Invitation. Josiah thinks his eyes on him and I do too, but I don't like his idees and told him so.

Yos, it wuz sad to see how livin' amongst them genteel people he'd got above all. They believed in the Chrisgenteel loose idees, fur different from his ma's, and when I reminded him of it he said "he'd outgrown 'em."

Outgrown his ma's good sound beliefs and ways! The idee! The good old M. E. creed that he used to lean on for comfort and help didn't seem to support his strong young back no more. He didn't seem to believe much in anything, he didn't believe in keepin' the Sabbath, he believed in everybody's usin' their own judgment. He talked a sight about the beauties of a Cosmopolitan Sabbath, pleasin' every

But he stood firm in his idees, or m as he could on such a his troulde with Lucy. She'd kep' on Almighty Maker of Heaven and Earth, and in Jesus Christ His Son. She wus a sweet-girl naterally, full of sperit and intelligence and fun, but doin' her duty everywhere, week day and Sun-day, and she follered the Beatitudes and Commandments jest as nigh as she could. And the command, "Six days shalt thou labor and do thy work, and the seventh shalt thou rest," wur engraved on her heart. And she felt jest as I did that to say nothin' of religious principle folks needed the rest and quiet of one day in seven, to keep the wheels of life from wearin' out with feverish friction.

Jest before Jack went back there wuz a ball game and horse race to be well disposed young chap, but he's given over in Scriba on a Sabbath, lived in New York and wants to be and it bein'a beautiful day Jack wanted to take his pa's two handsome gray horses and take Lucy there, but she Happuck Allen, born Waddle, wuz a refused to go, pine blank. He wuz mad, and told her there wuz a girl in with him to ball games Sundays, or to golf games or the theater.

And then Lucy, whose wings hadn't started, I spozed (though she wuz as good as gold), advised him to seek the society of that girl, and he banged the door to and come home, and bein' excited he told me about it, and said the New York girl liked him well enough to accept his invitation. And I told him that Lucy liked him well enough to not accept it.

He wanted to know what I meant and I told him Lucy wuzn't the girl down. They stood ready to give him a I took her for if she would drive to condemnation with him with two gray horses and a top buggy.

And he said my idees and hers about Sunday wuz old fashloned and obsolete. And he flew round in a hurry gittin' ready for Scriba, I havin' no right to spank him and shet him up in a dark closet as I wanted to. But while we wuz eatin' dinner, for I don't want to starve saint or sinner, he and I had a few words. He repeated agin that my Puritan idees about Sunday amusements wuz old fashioned.

And I sez: "I know it. It has been some years since the Puritans come over and knelt down on Plymouth Rock and asked the blessin' of God on their new home. It's quite a few years since them that founded our republic set the seal of their blood on the document, preachin' personal liberty to all, but puttin' God's laws tian Sabbath, John Waddle Allen," sez-I. "George Washington believed in it years ago, it is real old fashioned." He sez: "Our country is made up of different nationalities and their wishes ort to be respected."

and he has passed away a number of Sez I: "God said let the stranger within our gates conform to our ways in keepin' the commandments, and not we give up to them. If they come and enjoy the blessings of a Christian country they ort to be willin' to foller its customs."

Sez Jack: "A good many eminent statesmen and church dignitaries belleve in a continental Sabbath, all kinds of recreations, amusements, open saloons, etc."

Sez I: "Saint and sinners all agree that drunkenness is evil and only evil, the most fruitful cause of crime, misery and poverty, and if there is one day in the seven that it can be controlled a little why lose that little gain?"

Sez Jack: "It is sold now more or less, it is better to sell it openly than to have it sold on the sly."

"Well," sez I, "open liberty in that respect will lead us into strange places. If a man has a right to sell whisky Sunday he has a right to sell other things. It is surely no worse to sell good dress goods that are needed for comfort, than to sell the stuff that clothes the body in rags; to sell food to nourish the body instead of pizen to destroy it; to sell shoes with good stout soles to protect from sickness instead of stuff that destroys the immortal soul."

"But it will be sold anyway," ses Jack, "folks always have had it and always will have it; if you make a law aginst it it will be evaded and the "Well," sez I, kinder wore out with his arguments, "let's be consistent and carry out this belief in full. Murders have always been done since the first man waz born into the world, and so francs, and to remain in prison till the let's abolish the law agin it, ruther than have it brought into contempt lery and when they are all lined up before us, ask 'em very polite how few murders they could git along with durin' the comin' year and feel com-fortable, and as if their personal liberty wusn't tampered with. And so with stealin' and kidnapin'. Be real sation, and that was where he had peticular about that, and out for sure ld feel they must drag off for ran m. Be very polite and genteel with and such, and they might feel real hurt if we insisted on fewer murders and assassinations and kfdnapins than they felt free to agree to. For personal liberty is precious to 'em. And they feel that they must shoot and stab and drink and steal and kidnap or they hain't havin' their rights."

"Oh, shaw!" sez Jack, "you know, Aunt Samantha, such talk is absurd." "Indeed it is," sez I, "and it is the logical effect of what you approve on."

But he kinder shrugged his shoulders as if to throw off my powerful arguments, and sot off for Scriba with his head up, but as I found out after wards with a sad heart, for he loved Lucy dearly, and I felt bad, for I loved Jack and Lucy, and wanted 'em to be happy and I knowed he wuz goin' in jest the very direction to find lastin' onhappiness, and I hoped he would see where he wuz and make a change. And whilst I wuz washin' up the dishes entirely onbeknown to myself I broke out a-singin':

"Whilst the lamp holds out to burn The vilest sinner may return." And Josiah thought I wuz practicin' for evenin' meetin', and he jined in too and sung the hull him through We sung it to the tune of Balermy. Well, if you'll believe it, John Waddle Allen come back that Sunday afternoon a changed man, struck to his soul jest as sure as Paul wuz on the way to Jerusalem. He come back a different Jack, jest as different as day is from night. He driv over to Lucy's and apologized to her, and told her his idees had changed entirely on the Christian Sabbath. He wuz always enthusiastick and energetic. He took her to meetin' that night, and told the minister he wanted to jine his Bible class; Lucy was a member of it.

"But how can you?" sez the astound ed pasture; "you so far away?" "I'm comin' home to live," sez Jack T've had enough of city life."

He had to go back to the city to set tle his affairs, so he went the next day, and he told me before he went how his idees had changed about Sunday amusements, and for pretty nigh a month I went round with my inward head held high, my inward neck craned up stiff with pride, for I felt that it wuz my eloquent talk that had converted Jack, and I spoze now that it may have helped.

But I guess the main thing that converted him wuz what took place at that ball game. I knew they'd had a big row, and more'n a dozen had been dragged off to jail, and one man shot in a drunken quarrel and disabled for life, leavin' his big helpless family to struggle on in poverty, and three boys mangled and broke up in the ball game, and two or three run over by the trottin' horses, and a general Pandemonium let loose as it usually is when the personal liberty of roughs git their full recognition. I knowed that, but that wuz so common at such public Sunday games where the evil element from all the towns about congregate, and liquor runs free, I didn't pay much attention to it. But after Jack and Lucy was married, which took place the third week after. Jack's pa and ma-comin' home joyful to the weddin', Lucy told me that Jack had met that New York girl that day. She had come with a big excursion party, and she, havin' cut loose from all Puritan restraint, was staggerin' round with a cigarette in her mouth. Maudlin and silly, she accosted him, and he turned his back on her, turned the grays round and driv back. He see what fashionable beliefs and freedom from restraint might lead to. His early trainin', his loves, his thoughts and early aspirations come rushin' back on his heart as the waters of a mountain spring that have been dammed up by dirt and gravel will when sot free gush along and clear the path before it of mud and weeds.

He took Lucy to meetin' that night with the results as stated. They moved into their new house last week. I'm goin' there to-morry to a quiltin'.

Woman Are Angry.

Manistique,—The women at St. Isnace are up in arms. It had been announced that women paying a school tax or mothers of children of school age would be permitted to vote at the recent election for members of the board of education. When 50 or more, however, put in an appearance at the polls, they were dealed the right of suffrage. The chairman, wao was a candidate for reelection and who won out over his opponent, was supported in his action by an opinion from the attorney general's office stating that only men had the right to participate in the balloting. A number of St. Ignace attorneys take issue with this construction and it is not improbable that the courts will be asked to pars upon the question.

Woman Dispatcher Dies.

ow a Woman Was Frood from Troubles That Had Made Life Wretched for Many Years.

The immediate causes of headaches vary, but most of them come from poor or poisoned blood. In susmin the blood is scanty or thin; the nerves are imperfectly nourished and pain is the way in which they express their weakness. In colds the blood absorbs poison from the mucous surfaces, and the poison irritates the nerves and produces pain. In theumatism, malaria and the grip, the poison in the blood produces like discomfort. In indigestion the gases from the impurematter kept in the system affect the blood in the same way.

The ordinary headache-cures at best give only temporary relief, They deaden the pain but do not drive the poison out of the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on the contrary thoroughly renew the blood and the pain disappears permanently. Women in particular have found these pills an unfailing relief in headaches caused by ansunia.

The Corporation Broblem Before the Nation

By JUDGE PETER S. GROSSCUP. ited States Circuit Court, Chicago

The great corporate problem before the American people is not how to wipe out the new domain of property represented by the corporation; nor how to hinder or hamper it; nor how to take it over into national proprietorship; nor, simply, how to make those who have already come into its proprietorship deal fairly and benignantly with the people, as the great proprietors in the monarchies of Europe might be required to deal fairly with their peoples.

The great problem that confronts the statesmanship of his day, like that which confronted the statesmanship that had to deal with the public landed domain, is how to peopleize the ownership of this new domain; how to widen and deepen the popular stake in this new possession; how to sweep forward into the age that is to come, losing nothing overboard from the age that is passing; but with everything aboard so really republicanized that in the public mind there will be no feeling that under our laws, and under the practical opportunities for an individual career that our laws are supposed to furnish, the field is not open to all alike. It is not the appetite of the men and women of America for food that creates our problem. It is not their wish for entertainment or change. What creates our problem is that under present corporate policies, the instinct of independent manhood, the instinct that characterizes us as a people, finds no field for exercise. And what confronts us is, to find a way that will, with reasonable security, open to this instinct the whole domain of industrial proprietorship.

When the deeper judgment of the nation is reached; when the vested interests of this country come to see that their greatest security lies in having all about them neighboring vested interests-a proprietorship that reaches out and out, until, carrying reasonable security, it is within the reach of all; when the men who toil for wages, without abating their appreciation of their present protective agencies, come to actually wish for an individual share in the country's property; when the country wakes up to the consciousness that benevolence is not the only thing that is human; that just dealing is not the only thing that is human; but that individual ambition to get on in life is human also; that the wish for a career is human; that individual independence is human; that some share in the world's inheritance from nature is human; when the spirit that inspired the pre-emption and homestead laws-peopleizing the domain that fell to our fathers-revives in us, dealing, as we have to do, with the larger and more difficult domain that has fallen to us; when the public mind and heart have been lighted up, ways will be found, abundant ways, to infuse into this new property domain of the republic, even though embodied in corporate form, the widespread personal interest and individuality that alone gives to property its fullest utility as an agnecy for good, and alone saves to private property its place as one of the republican institutions of the country.

What's in a Name

By CHARLES W. LAMB.

"What's in a name" is an old saw that has been overworked these decades, and still when we look at it in the light of research there is a good deal in a name

There is more prejudice in this life than anything else, whether we call it fancy, prejudice or something else, and it is one of the most prominent characteristics of our being. This exists in regard to names as well as to other things. Most of us remember Mark Twain's admission that whenever he found a man named Spriggins, Wiggins, Higgins or names that rhyme with them, he felt an instant desire to call the bearer an enemy.

But it is not prejudice of that nature that we feel in names. We frequently look on the Percys, the Claudes and the Clarences as weaklings and sissies-which they are not all by any means-and we are as apt to look on the Johns and Toms as men of strength. And in that, in a vast number of cases, we are likewise wrong. Frank and Harry we think of as boys, and John, James and William seem so dignified that we make them Jack, Jim and Bill-if they happen to be the Jack, Jim and Bill sort-which means hearts in the right place-for names are apt to be remade to fit the character as character is, by the force of prejudice, given an imagined color by a name.

Among the feminine names we find the same prejudices and superstitions. Bess is invariably looked upon as a tomboy-which means life, happiness and goodheartedness-while if Bess be dignified and womanly, we call her Elizabeth. In Dorothy we look for something sweet, quaintly old-fashioned, rather small of stature, while dark hair and large dark eyes seem to fit the name. And if a girl twists the honored, if much abused, name of Mary into Mayme or Mae, we think of her as ashamed of her parents-as we do a man who spells Smith, Smyth.

In surnames there is a great deal in the advertising value-and fame is merely a phase of successful advertising. The man who leaves his son a two or three syllable name is, nine times out of ten, leaving him a better legacy than if he left him a name with a single, short sound, for a single syllable is too short, stands too much alone and too easily slips over the tongue without impressing the mind, and the mind, like the muscles, needs a little work for its proper development. Take it in literature, it is the three syllable name that reaches prominence before the two and the two turns the charmed corner in advance of the one, with the chances that the diminutive racer for the smiles of a mistress as fickle as Fortune, her much-wood sister, has done vastly greater homage and laid a larger number of wilted collars

Have you ever noticed that the greater number of authors who jump into fame from the portals of a publishing house either have fled me that the use of coffee was at long names or ones so coupled with peculiar appellations that they form a striking combination that is an eye catcher, an advertisement of itself?

And this is not only true in literature. I have frequently heard young professional men with Smidt-Jones-Brown sort of names sigh for a Chauncey de Chamondeley style of cognomen that would distinguish them from the crowd and do their advertising for them. Would John Wanamaker have had so great success with a name that carried no advertising? And do Chicago people ever think of Field's without the longer prefix Marshal? And again, would Chicago, Milwaukee, New York or Philadelphia have come to their greatness on short and easily forgotten names, or Oshkosh have received such attention from the jokesmith under her maiden name of Athens?

Before the days of proper enfoguards a good many estile got in the paths of Michigan railroads and were killed outright or so badly injured as to necessitate putting them out of misery.

These happenings frequently afforded These happenings frequently afforded the owners of the cattle an opportunity to bring suit against the railroad com-panies, so that the employees were re-quired to be very careful as to details and to keep a strict record of the man-ner of a cow's death, etc. Begular printed reports of such cases had to be turned in by the section master, who was required to fill out blanks stating the probable age of the deceased animal, weight, color, distinguishing marks and disposition of carcass, the animal being sometimes cut up and hold for beef.

Naturally it was an Irish section "schuperintindher" who, like Finns gan in his terse report of a wreck, simply stated, "Off ag'in, on ag'in-Finnegan," made out the record of a certain bovine tragedy in a characteristic way. One time one of the pressmen, an excellent workman, who have been there many years, but was sometimes guilty of a lapse of sobriety, bad a black eye and was in a quandary as to what excuse be should offer if the proprietor noticed it. By a sudden lospiration be seized an ink roller and daubed some ink on his face, quite covering the discoloration. Presently the governor came in and, with the foreman, went through the room, commenting on er ery detail and looking very sharply at every workman. When about to have he suddenly pointed to the inky pressman and said, "What is that man's mame?"

The man quaked in his shoes until be continued slowly: "I want you to give that man 5 shillings a week more wages. He is the only man in the room who locks as if he had been working."

Something to Brace Up On. It was along about noon when well dressed man lined up against the bar. He had the air and looked the part of a high liver, but there was every sign of a bad night. He stretched

"I want something to brace up or." "All right, sir. "What'll is be?" "Get the large lomonade glass and break five eggs in it."

Chapman, the bartender, looked a him suspiciously and hesitated. "That's what I want," he ordered. Chapman broke five raw eggs to the class and waited for further orders. "Now a pint of champagne." Chapman opened the bottle, and the sustomer poured it on top of the eggs and, taking a spoon, stirred the mixture thoroughly and then drank it. Then he paid his bill and walked out-

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. Prunes as Medicine.

That the fruit possesses very considerable virtue in this respect is conceded by most eminent authorities, and for this reason as well as on account of their food value they are included among the foods suitable for invalids, children and those whose digestive powers are rather inactive. Their influence is mild, which fact makes them desirable for the not over

A dish of well cooked rice and prunes, made dainty and attractive for serving, is a dish to serve for either a breakfast, luncheon or a dessert, especally for the child or invalid, and should be added especially to our list of hot weather dishes, frequently replacing meat and potatoes and heavy, unseasonable desserts.

A Man of Experience. "You are quite sure, Uncle Bushrod," the queried, "that Judy has no idea there are only books in those two boxes you took this morning over to the courthouse in the cart?" "Miss Ma'y," answered the old chap, with digatty, "I done had three wives, an' Judy's de las', I reckon. An' I jes' tell you dis, honey, I don' trus' no colored 'coman's tongue."-Mrs. Burton Harrison in Lippincott's.

Bodily Proportions.

The proportions of the human figure, says an anatomist, are six times the length of the right foot. The face, from the highest point of the forehead, where the hair begins, to the end of the thin, is one-tenth of the whole stature. The hand, from the wrist to the end of the middle finger, is also one-tenth of the total height. From the crown to the nape of the nack is one-twelfth of the stature.

TESTING HIS NERVE

The Close Shave of a Drummer Out

Wast. "I was sifting on the veranda of a far western hotel one afternoon," said the Boston drummer, "and was lazily smoking one of the nicest meerschaum pipes you ever saw when out of the tall of my eye I saw that a native down at the other end of the veranda had his gun sighted at me. They were a wild lot around there, and I couldn't tell whether he meant to shoot me or the pipe. The chances were in favor of the pipe, however, and it seemed a good chance to test my nerve. I made up my mind to let him shoot and to pretend a careless air, but I'm telling you that in the ten or fifteen seconds of waiting the sweat came out at every pore and my beart pounded my ribs sore. I felt a sort of tick at the bowl of the pipe, heard the crack of the gun and knew that the ballet had passed through the pipe. I got a brace with my pands and feet and waited for a second bullet, and it went through the bowl after the first. I sat there until his fourth bullet had knocked the bowl off the stem, and then the shooter sauntered up to me and laughingly

"Excuse me, scranger, but I thought it was imitation.' 'Same as you are,' I replied. "My gibe hurt him, but he was man enough to tell everybody about my nerve, and the boys chipped in suffclent nuggets to buy me this $50 smoker. Nerve! Say, do you know what happened to me when I made an excuse to go up stairs after my old corncob? I had no sooner got into my room than my knees gave out, chills galloped up my spine, and I'll be hanged if I didn't faint away and lie there for ten minutes. It had suddenly occurred to me that the bowl of that pipe was only six inches from my nose while the fellow was doing his shooting, and I have not yet got over touching my nasal organ now and then
