THE FISHING INDUSTRY

Captain Moore, State Statistician, Gives Figures on Fishing Industry.

7,500 MEN EMPLOYED.

No Report of Commercial Fishing Industry Published Since 1902, Owing to Lack of State Appropriation.

Three years have elapsed since the Michigan fish commission published a report of the condition of the commercial fishing industry in the state. The reports are not made yearly, as in the case of other departments of the state government, although statistics are gathered annually. According to the provision of the law relating to the reports of state officers, reports of the commission are required to be published biennially, but last year in making up the budget for the department, the expense item for publication of the report was overlooked, and no funds are available for the purpose.

C. H. Moore, of Detroit, statistician for the Michigan fish commission, stated that the department would probably publish a report next year, which would include statistics covering a period of four years. "Michigan has over 2,000 miles of coast line on which commercial fishing is carried on," said Captain Moore. Although last year's report of the fish commission is unpublished, it is in the hands of a governor, as are all our annual reports for the past three years. The total amount of every kind of fish caught in the public waters of the state last year was about 40,000,000 pounds, which represents the general average for the past five years. We estimate that the fishermen received $1,500,000 for the catch, or an average of three and one-quarter cents a pound. Every year the number of whitefish and trout caught by fishermen grows less, but the cheaper grades such as herring, suckers and pike, show an increase. "Ten years ago, fishermen would not take suckers from their nets, as there was practically no market for them and also for the reason that the public would not buy the fish at any price. Last year more than 10,000,000 pounds of suckers were sold by the fishermen of this state, these figures representing an amount equal to one-quarter of the entire state catch of all kinds of commercial fish. Several reasons are assigned for the increase in the catch of the cheaper grades. In the first place, the public demand a cheap fish to take the place of whitefish and trout which were once cheap, but which have gradually advanced in price since the supply began to diminish. Fishermen are now using 'submarine nets,' or those placed on the bottom of the lakes, and as nearly every species of cheap fish are what is known as 'low swimmers,' the result is that they are more frequently caught. There is no doubt regarding the scarcity of the better grades of fish in the great lakes, and every year witnesses a slight falling off in the number of pounds caught. I have been connected with the department for fifteen years, and in that time have noted a gradual decline in the whitefish and trout catch. Some years there is a slight increase, but as commercial fishing is contingent largely upon weather, this may be easily accounted for. The average price received last year by fishermen for all grades of fish was three and one-quarter cents a pound. This looks like a small sum compared with the price paid by the consumer who buys from the retail market, but it must be remembered that suckers and herring net only from one to two cents a pound to the fishermen, which brings the general average down to the above figure.

"There are now about 7,500 men employed in the fishing industry in the state at the present time, and the amount of capital invested in the business in the way of equipment is considerably over $1,000,000."

HUNTERS FOUND "SET" GUN

Two Marquette Men Had Narrow Escape from Death Last Sunday

Arthur Morris, a brakeman on the D. S. S. & A. railway, and E. T. Page, a bartender employed at the American House, Spring street, had a narrow escape from death last Sunday while deer hunting in the vicinity of Cook's camp, eight miles north of Marquette. The men were on a "runway" and stopped to load their rifles, when Morris discovered a fine piano wire stretched across the path. The men followed the trail of the wire to a small bush twenty feet away, where a gun loaded with buckshot was found with the hammer raised, and the wire attached to the trigger. The fact that the men stopped within a few feet of the wire undoubtedly saved their lives. The gun was evidently set by hunters for the purpose of killing a deer should one chance to pass down the runway.—Marquette Mining Journal.

Congressman Young, the state senators, members of the legislature, the chairman and secretaries of the various Republican county committees, all the Republican county officials throughout the peninsula, as well as large business interests, have endorsed him. Mr. Bowen is a veteran of the civil war, and has a good record as a soldier. He is also qualified by education and experience to fill the position he seeks. ## Fatal Shooting Accident.

Frank Lucas of Ingalls, a well digger, was killed accidentally by a bullet from a forty-four calibre rifle in the hands of Edward Hinica, a twelve year old boy, while driving along the old state road fourteen miles from Menominee. Troops of merry children were running along the road on their way home from school, among them young Hinica, the son of a well to do farmer, who carried a rifle expecting to kill a large owl. When Mr. Lucas approached he had the gun cocked, having walked around the tree, but, failing to draw bead on the bird, having taken it into his hands. The trigger was accidentally pulled. The bullet penetrated the back of Mr. Lucas' carriage and passed entirely through his body, about two inches to the left of the right breast. Lucas bore up bravely and started to drive to Menominee, but grew constantly weaker and finally expired when he reached the seven mile farm. He was between forty and fifty years of age and is survived by a wife and four children. No attempt will be made to prosecute young Hinica, who is inconsolable as a result of the accident.

MILDRED HOLLAND

Will Appear at Petersons Opera House Tuesday November 21.

As Catherine the Great, Mildred Holland has ample opportunities both to display her talent as a great actress, and to wear some bewitching gowns. The Royal Russian insignia, eagles wrought in solid gold thread on crimson velvet, appear everywhere throughout the play. They grace the instep of her gold slippers, the blaze on the lovely gown on heavy ivory satin she wears in the final act, and they heighten the rich effect of the beautiful ermine and cloth of gold cloak, which is an exact reproduction of the Czarina's coronation robe.

Another cloak is of white panne velvet; it is encrusted with solid oak leaves made of gold thread and with exquisite embroidery in crimson and dull blue flowers. The great sleeves are faced with Russian lace, and eagles adorn the hem.

A charming toilette in the one worn in the third act, it is of the palest blue chiffon, inserted with lace and sown with iridescent sequins, which resemble pale moonlight.

The peasant costume worn in Act II is of Russian embroidery in red, white and yellow.

Most interesting is the boy's suit of green velvet and lace, in which the Empress enters the Kremlin on her coronation day. Not only are the incidents faithfully reproduced, but this costume is an exact copy of that actually worn by the girl queen when she rode a score of miles in male attire from Petersburg to St. Petersburg to sleep the throne.

Prices 35, 50, 75, $1.00 and $1.50.

It now looks as though a ferry between Gladstone and Maywood is a sure thing for next season. Schaawe Bros. who obtained a franchise from the county board have asked the business men of Gladstone for a guarantee of $1,000 per year for ten years. A petition circulated among the business men has received the required number of signers who are willing to put up a share of the $1,000 in case the receipts from the ferry do not reach that amount.

GROWTH OF WHITE PINE.

Edward Hines Tells of Section in Minnesota With $500,000 Worth of Pine on it.

Edward Hines, president of the Edward Hines Lumber Company, tells of a most wonderful section of white pine which is part of the tract recently purchased by his company in northern Wisconsin about a score of miles south of Duluth, Minn. He says that there is one section of land, which had been reserved by its former owners and sold separately and which contains according to recently revised estimates about 22,000,000 feet of white pine. The trees grow thickly together, are tall, straight, running largely to clear lumber and have been retained in their virgin condition through several successive changes of ownership. The average per acre of this section is 34,200 feet. As showing something of the increased value of white pine, the section was sold ten years ago for $50,000 and when Mr. Hines purchased it a few months ago he paid approximately $200,000 for it. Based on the recent estimate and the present selling price of white pine, Mr. Hines says that the approximate value of the timber on the section is now $500,000. Probably there are few sections of land in the United States or in fact in the world that have timber value anywhere near that of this magnificent tract.

Made Daily Trips.

The Ann Arbor boats made daily runs between Menominee and Frankford nearly all last week. Monday was the first time these boats had visited Menominee since the big storm of last month, which destroyed their tracks. When this is accomplished they will make their regular tri-weekly visits to the west shore again.

ATTORNEY EXONERATED

Stephenson Attorney Cleared by Circuit Court at Menominee.

Attorney N. C. Spencer was fully exonerated in circuit court this week when the case of the People against him for deceit and collusion was heard.

It will be recalled that this case was much aired some months ago, and Mr. Spencer several times arrested being charged with having acted as counsel for both parties in a divorce suit.

Mr. Trudell, acting for the prosecution, stated in open court that the complaint was defective, and read the document to show why. He asked that a nolle proes be entered and the defendant discharged. He explained the weakness of the document.

Judge Stone stated that he had reviewed the complaint several months ago and had written Attorney Juttner to dismiss the case based on such defective complaint. His honor said it was possible that the allegations in the complaint might be true and still no fraud exist. He called the case a "farce" and permitted Mr. Spencer to say a few words in his own behalf, absolutely denying any wrong doing or wrong intent in his connection with the case.

Not Afraid of the "Scrap Heap"

A hundred years in this age of cumulative progress means more than a thousand in the far past. Our national life is changing in every feature more swiftly than any people ever changed before; and in most of its phenomena we are proud of it. It is a distinctive and inherent American quality that recognizes—surely and instantly—the spirit of this progress in new values, new methods, new inventions, and new ways of utilizing them. Lyman H. Howe's marvelous Lifeorama which will be seen at Peterson's Opera house on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 22 and 23, aptly and admirably illustrates the truth and force of American ideas, invention, and progressiveness. The superiority of his exhibitions are partially explained by the fact that Mr. Howe is not afraid of the "scrap heap" like Carnegie in modernizing his mills. Mr. Howe never waits for the old to wear out, and in so doing presents the mediocre moving pictures common to vaudeville or dramatic entertainments. On the contrary, the distinctive quality of this exhibition, and the one always dominant, is its newness and freshness, for Mr. Howe unceasingly discards the old for the newer and better, over and over, while his imitators are but nursing and repairing. By a sure process of elimination and far-sighted enterprise he throws aside good for better, and better for best, though at enormous expense, but by so doing raises his exhibition beyond comparison with any others. Just as Tommy Atkins recognizes Kipling's barrack-room stories as vivid word pictures of things as they are, so does every spectator—only with more intense realism and clarity—see and feel the wonderful fidelity of Lyman H. Howe's exhibition. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents.

Suspend Their Licenses.

Four of the officers of the steamer Harriet A. Hart, which was burned on June 15th near the head of Lake Huron, on Monday had their licenses revoked by the supervising inspector of steam vessels with headquarters at Detroit. These are Capt. Joseph Carrigan and First Officer J. T. Roulette, who are suspended 30 days for having permitted the crew to smoke on the main deck, and Chief Engineer Rufus Spaulding and Assistant Engineer B. W. Neeland are suspended for 90 days because of failure to have the fire hose connected with the pump.

Capt. Carrigan, who was master of the steamer Fannie C. Hart, is succeeded by Capt. Ed. LaDue, who was first officer on the craft. B. W. Neeland was assistant engineer on the same boat. J. T. Roulette has been filling the position of first officer on the passenger steamer Chas. McVea. Engineer Spaulding has not sailed since the mishap to the Harriet Hart.

WOLVES ARE PLENTIFUL

Wells Township Man Says the Animals May Be Seen Nightly at Camps.

Percy Rublin, constable of Wells township, Marquette county, who is engaged in lumbering on timber lands contiguous to the village of Northland, and spends considerable time in the woods, says that wolves are plentiful in the section of country lying west of the Escanaba river in Wells township, and that the animals may be heard every night in the vicinity of lumber camps, and sometimes venture close enough to be seen. As a result, there are few deer in the woods, and hunters complain of having poor luck.

Death of Child

After an illness of but a few hours, Leo Clement, the three-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Clement, died at the home of the family on South Georgia street Tuesday evening. Funeral services were held from St. Anne's church Thursday morning.

Prince Louis of Battenberg and the squadron of British warships were given a royal welcome in New York. The New York Life Insurance company obtained a restraining order in the United States court in St. Louis, temporarily setting aside the order of W. D. #### LABOR LEADERS MEET.

American Federation Opens Silver Anniversary in Pittsburg—Large Attendance.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 14.—Old City hall was crowded Monday when President Samuel Gompers called the American Federation of Labor to order for the opening of the silver anniversary of the organization. All the delegates, representing every state in the union, Canada, England and other foreign countries, were in their seats and all the available space outside was utilized by visitors. The hall was tastefully and elaborately decorated, and there was no confusion in the seating arrangements, which were perfect. Shortly before ten o'clock the delegates assembled at the headquarters, and headed by a monster band of 125 pieces, made up of Federated musicians in Pittsburg, marched through the principal streets to the place of meeting. As President Gompers and Second Vice President John Mitchell entered the hall there was prolonged applause. A few minutes later President Gompers rapped for order and introduced C. C. Douglass, chairman of the local entertainment committee, who welcomed the delegates on behalf of the labor organizations of the city. Attorney John Drew, speaking for Mayor William Hays, welcomed the delegates to Pittsburg, and Mayor James G. Wyman extended the hospitalities of the sister city, Allegheny. Secretary Morrison's report says there were 1,157 labor strikes during the year ending October 1, 1905. These strikes involved 107,268 men, of whom 63,350 were benefited and 62,028 worsted. The strikes cost the unions in loss of wages $2,517,291.

His illness came on suddenly during the evening. Physicians who were hurriedly summoned were unable to stay the course of the paralysis.

Supreme Court Decides Money Lost at Gambling Must Be Returned.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The Ohio anti-gambling statute was upheld in an opinion handed down in the supreme court of the United States Monday by Justice Peckham, in the case of William Marvin vs. Belle Trout. The case involved the constitutional validity of section 4273 of the Revised Statutes of Ohio authorizing any person who loses money at gambling to bring suit for its recovery. Mrs. Trout is the wife of Frank Trout, and Marvin the owner of the building in Findlay, O., in which Frank Trout is alleged to have lost $5,682 on one occasion, and $1,794 on another. Mrs. Trout sued under the state law to recover, and was given a judgment by the trial court. He was a storekeeper, aged 29 years. Four years ago he and his wife were separated, but they became reconciled soon afterwards, and had been living together ever since, though not happily, according to the neighbors. Nothing is known as to what prompted the deed, but it is supposed to have been the outcome of one of the couple's numerous quarrels.

PAINFUL PERIODS

Suggestions How to Find Relief from Such Suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful or irregular something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organization. More than fifty thousand women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes painful and irregular menstruation. It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases. The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers. Miss Nellie Holmes of 540 N. Davidson Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham—Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches, and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get any relief. A friend from the East advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural; every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I might have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

PRACTICAL POINTS FOR BOYS WITH AMBITION AND GENIUS.

How to Make a Library Table in the Pure Mission Style—Stock List for Same.

BY JAMES HITCHIEY, Instructor in Wood-Working and Pattern-Making, Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago.

In the library table illustrated in Fig. 157 we have a good example of the pure Mission style, with legs projecting above the top, and the large shelf for books and papers, with key and wedge connections. This table differs from the ordinary in having a drawer in each end, allowing them to be of greater length, and being very convenient of access when sitting against the side of the table.

The size of the top is 48x30 inches, and the height of the table is 30 inches. The shelf is 12 inches wide, but is placed so high as to be out of the way when sitting at the table.

In Fig. 158 the two inside sides of one of the legs are shown in detail, the side shown at A giving the positions of the two drawer rails, and also that of the shelf rail which is situated 10 1/2 inches below the lower drawer rail. At B the position of the side rail is given, and also the lengths for the chamfers on the corners of the leg.

These chamfered corners, as shown in Figs. 157 and 158, are in perfect keeping with this style of table, but may be omitted and the leg made plain and square, as shown in the end view of the table in Fig. 159. The radius of curvature for the top end of the leg is two inches, as shown in Fig. 160, and the curve must be cut in both directions as at A and A'. Great care will be required to keep the angles straight and clearly defined, as shown at B. While these curved lines are to be preferred for the projection of a table leg above the top, the straight angular end shown at C is more in keeping with Mission style, or the ends may be made perfectly flat or square, simply projecting one-quarter or three-eighths of an inch above the top board of the table, as shown at D.

In Fig. 161 a plan of the table frame is shown, from which it will be seen that the drawer rails, and also the side rails, sit back one inch from the outside edges of the legs, while the two shelf rails (see Fig. 162) must be placed exactly in the middle of the width of the leg. In Fig. 162 all sizes for shelf and shelf tenons are plainly shown, this drawing being a cross section through the legs, shelf rail, and shelf. The two drawers will each be 24 1/2 inches long, 22 1/2 inches wide, and 4 1/2 inches deep, and the construction will be the same in all respects as that given for the drawer of the students' table under Fig. 142.

In Fig. 163 a vertical section through the two drawer rails A, and also the drawer front and bottom, are shown, giving the relative position of each.

As a further ornamentation, a flat moulding one inch wide and one-quarter inch in thickness may be glued on the lower outside edge of each side rail, as shown at G in Fig. 163.

RINGS OF ANCIENT TIMES.

Greek Dandies Had One for Each Week—The Iron Rings of Rome.

The antiquity of rings is known from Scripture. When Pharaoh committed the government of all Egypt to Joseph he took his ring from his finger and gave it to him, as a mark of power, relates the Mirror.

The Israelites wore rings, not only on their fingers, but also in their nostrils and ears. The ancient Chaldeans, Babylonians, Persians and Greeks had likewise the use of the ring. Alexander sealed the letters he wrote into Europe with his own seal, and those in Asia with Darius' ring.

The Greeks, Pliny thinks, knew nothing of the ring in the time of the Trojan war. The reason he gives is that we find no mention of it in Homer, but that when letters, etc., were to be sent away, they were tied up, and the strings knotted.

The Sabines had rings in Romulus' time, and it is from them, probably, the practice first came to the Greeks, and from them it passed to the Romans, who were contented with iron rings a long time; Marius first wore a gold one in his third consulate, which was in the year of Rome 650.

They were at first worn on the fourth finger, then on the second—then on the little finger, and at last on all the fingers except the middle one.

The foppery of wearing rings among the Greeks at length rose to that pitch that they had their weekly rings, and Hellogabalus, who was the dandy of his age, never wore the same ring twice.

Lord Chancellor Hatton sent to Queen Elizabeth a ring, against infections, to be worn in the bosom. Great persons, such as aldermen, used a plain broad gold ring upon their thumb.

The Jilt.

Mrs. Wilkins Freeman, the novelist, nodded toward an angular woman of forbidding aspect at a tea. "You would hardly believe," she said, "that she was once a very beautiful girl. And she was as vain and selfish as she was beautiful. She jilted three desirable young men in two years. She had, I suppose, a good time while her beauty lasted. Now her beauty is gone, and she is alone in the world—a hard, cruel old woman with a bitter tongue. And if she once triumphed over men, men now, if they are vindictive and cruel enough, may triumph over her. One of the men she jilted was sufficiently cruel and vindictive for such a triumph. She met him a few years ago, and said: 'Let me see, was it not your brother who proposed to me when I was a girl?' 'I don't know, madam,' the man answered. 'Probably it was my father.'

He Died Suddenly.

When the shah was in Paris last year he was accompanied by an official named Mahmoud Khan, who is not with him now. A French journalist who remembered Mahmoud well put some questions about him the other day to a member of the shah's retinue. "What has become of Mahmoud Khan?" inquired the journalist. "He is dead, monsieur," was the answer. "Poor fellow! But surely he was young, and seemed to enjoy excellent health." "It was excellent," assented the Persian functionary. "Was he ill very long?" "No, monsieur. He was not ill at all. He died quite suddenly." "Indeed! How did it happen?" "The Persian functionary explained (with a slightly embarrassed air): 'He was not sympathetic to the grand vizier.'—London Chronicle.

Had a Lucky Escape.

Mrs. Shrewsbury—That man who just passed us was Mr. Batchelder. I haven't seen him since we were married. He proposed to me once. You should have seen the look he gave you. Mr. Shrewsbury—That so? Gloried, did he?—Philadelphia Ledger.

WEIST TO PRESIDE

INGHAM JURIST IN SHIAWASSEE PROBE.

SMITH CALLS GRAND JURY

Owosso Judge Tells of Reasons for Drastic Action, Which It Was Believed He Would Oppose—Hope to Unearth "Bing."

(Wm. Ellery, Staff Correspondent.)

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 13.—Judge Howard Weist, of Ingham county court, will preside at the deliberations of the Shiawassee county grand jury, which Judge Smith, of Owosso, has called to investigate the alleged ring which is said to be controlling affairs of that county with a high hand. In this manner Judge Smith will escape the duties, which might force him into conflict with his friends. As a result of the calling of the jury Shiawassee people are in a jovial mood, for the most part, because of the fact that the ill-assorted tales which have been permeating the county for the past 10 or 12 years will now be aired and the public will know the truth. Every day brings greater developments in the scandal. In explanation of his action, Judge Smith is quoted with the following: "I am calling this grand jury because it devolves upon the circuit judge to do it. Newspaper men have stirred up things so beautifully that 99 per cent. of the people of the county, with or without just reasons, believe there are many things wrong. The prosecutor's petition makes no difference with me, but in view of the fact such a hue and cry has been raised I have decided to file the order. I could do nothing else and be logical. I feel I am acting considerately and with reason. The thing about a grand jury I don't like is this: The finger of suspicion is pointed at many men, who, as a matter of fact, are honest and really above reproach, but by insinuations they are classed with the rogues and they never recover from the imputations, even though not indicted." A matter came to light recently which makes the demand for a grand jury still more imperative. The county's contingent fund has not a penny, and Treasurer Northway had to refuse payment on orders. The blanket resolution passed by the board of supervisors authorizing the treasurer to get the money to pay all bills contracted for the new court house in excess of the original appropriation accounts for the condition of the contingent fund. He paid all the bills, close to $60,000, out of that fund. Now the banks here will not loan the county any more money until a safe resolution is adopted by the board.

Twists Eminent Domain Law.

Michigan's eminent domain law has been torn, mauled, jerked, banged and smashed around in recent years, but the stunt that a Montrose county man performed with it stands as a defiant record for technicality hunters. The Toledo, Ann Arbor & Detroit Railroad company is building a line from Toledo to Ann Arbor, and all went well until it struck Petersburg. There an owner refused to allow it to cross his land. The owner refused to set a price upon the property and the railroad company was preparing to condemn it, according to law, when the owner's son, who is an attorney, conceived the idea of organizing a railroad company for the least capitalization allowed by law and deeding the desired property to the new company. This would make it impossible to condemn the land, since there is a statute forbidding one railroad company to condemn the right of way of another railroad company unless such right of way has been unused for three years.

Current State Topics in Brief.

Warden Vincent, of Jackson prison, has reimbursed the state to the extent of $240 for cigars which were purchased and charged to the state as groceries, but he has not seen fit up to this date to return to the state the money which he received as interest on the convict's funds.

The state convention of the Young Women's Christian associations was in Lansing. Delegates from all the large educational institutions of the state and from a number of cities were present.

The state pardon board has been putting in full time since the new law permitting the members to draw pay for not exceeding 156 days, or half the year, and will hereafter not receive pay for the time given to the work until the close of the year.

A Saginaw company has been awarded the contract to build the macadamized road from Lansing to the agricultural college, the cost of which will be upwards of $12,000. The road will be the finest yet constructed under the new state road law.

Some complaint having been made that the salary act relating to Calhoun county was not published in the public acts, the secretary of state explains that the law will be published in the local acts, soon to be issued.

To comply with the new state law German parochial schools will hereafter teach English. German will be the official language, but English will be used in teaching the lower branches.

Manufacturers of Michigan estimate that 100,000 horse-power has been developed by the rivers of the state.

An ordinance has been introduced in the Lansing common council prohibiting the taking of ice from Grand or Cedar rivers for family consumption, it being alleged to be unhealthy.

The state farmers' round-up institute will be held at the M. A. C., near Lansing, February 19-23.

Nothing Wrong with Defeat.

"O. K." is the stamp which Prosecutor McArthur has put upon the defeat of the McKay bill, which was quelled during the last session of the legislature. The investigation has coded and the prosecutor declares that he can find nothing wrong with the defeat of the measure. The McKay banking bill provided for state supervision of private institutions. The bill, which originated in the house and was passed there, was defeated in the senate on the last day of the session of the legislature.

Big State Railroad Earnings.

Railroad earnings in Michigan during September were $4,376,307.62, a gain of $316,930.15 over those of September, 1904, according to Commissioner Alwood's bulletin. For the first nine months of the year the earnings were $37,660,118.33, or an increase of $2,712,737.91 over the same period of last year. This report is looked upon by railroad officials as probably the best which has been issued in some years.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Chloroform Aids Suicide.

Kalamazoo.—Henry H. Showers was found dead in a cheap rooming house here. A towel had been placed about his face and head and saturated with chloroform. He had been dead many hours when found and the coroner concluded he committed suicide. Papers found indicate that the man was a brother of W. J. Showers, editor of the La Crosse County Recorder of Onalaska, Wis., and that his mother lives at Cottage Grove, Wis. He was evidently a man of refinement and had been here but a short time. No reason is known for his act, for no letter was left.

Schooner Lost in Storm.

Manistee.—The little schooner Abbie, 70 feet long, was beached at Ononama lake, 18 miles north of Manistee, and went to pieces, after baffling the storm 24 hours. Her crew, consisting of George Cross, master; Lee Lawren, John Cary and Richard Rider, was rescued by the Manistee life-saving crew, who arrived just in time to save them, as they were about exhausted. The Abbie cleared Beaver Island with a load of tan bark for Milwaukee.

The sale of the property of the Two Rivers Manufacturing Co., took place during the week, and brought only a fraction of the amount of the liabilities. The company is being thoroughly rehabilitated, and its affairs gotten in readiness to resume business. It will be known as the Two Rivers Woodware Co., and will continue to operate in the city where it was established more than fifty years ago. This is indeed fortunate for Two Rivers.

There is a spirited contest being waged at Manitowoc over the disposition of the water works plant. One faction is in favor of the purchase by the municipality while another opposes the proposition so strenuously that at times cause much ill feeling among the people. The latter insist that the plant is not worth the money that the owners ask for it, and these favor a new one owned by the tax payers wholly.

The defeat of Governor Herrick in Ohio is in great part accounted for by the fact that between forty and fifty of the republican country newspapers of the state did not support him. The republican editors in Ohio are usually loyal to their party and its candidates, and that which caused so many of them to refuse to assist the head of their ticket must have been reasons which seemed to them important and vital as republicans. It is well to have it generally understood, as it will be in Ohio hereafter, that loyalty to party candidates can be expected, only when loyalty does not involve desertion of principal and permanent injury to the future best good of the organization.

The argument advanced by a prominent opponent of the proposed official freight rate regulation, that freight rates are not exorbitant and that while prices generally increased seven percent from 1887 until 1904, inclusive, the freight rate per ton per mile on the railroads decreased twenty-four percent, may be accepted as conclusive in that direction. The demand for freight rate regulation, however, is not based on the assumption of exorbitant prices so much as on the fact that all patrons of the railroads are not charged the same price for the same service. There is little value in a fair rate or even a low rate to one shipper if a competing shipper is given a lower rate. The power which the railroads possess and which it has been admitted they sometimes make use of, to injure communities and individuals through favoritism, is the basis of the public demand for more effective freight rate regulation.

Only Too True.

The following article from the St. Ignace Republican News is hardly an exaggeration:

The deer hunters have taken possession of the U. P. logging and drag roads; they infest every old camp, and blaze every other tree. They shoot at everything in sight with guns that kill at two miles. They bring their feed, and kick like steers on the price of the few articles they forgot, or could not crowd into their boxes. One of these chaps demanded that a camp be shut down because ringing axes and falling trees scared the deer. When ordered off the land he swore vengeance—the "next legislature would fix up that sir game law diffrent," he promised; and as this class of gentry have always had their say in the enactment of games laws, we may look for a provision that no lumbering shall be done in the deer season within two miles of a hunter's camp."

MYSTERIOUS BANK ROBBERY SOLVED

Perpetrators of Daring Crime Now Serving Terms Behind Prison Bars.

WOMAN CAUSES ARREST OF THE GUILTY MEN

Divorced and Neglected Wife of Accessory to Deed Unearths Evidence Which Leads to Their Punishment—How National Institution at Lima, O., Was Plundered of Over $18,000 Seven Years Ago—Officers Long Suspected of Taking Money.

Seven years ago the American national bank at Lima, O., was robbed of $18,200. The money having been taken from the vaults sometime between Saturday night and Monday morning but just when and by whom was unknown until the last few weeks. Now, Elijah Bowsler, the trusted janitor of the bank at the time of the robbery, and Thomas K. Wilkins, an insurance agent at Lima, are behind prison walls in the penitentiary at Columbus, O., serving out sentences of seven and five years respectively, for the crime, the former as principal and the latter as accessory, both convicted on pleas of guilty in open court and sentenced without a trial.

The story of the robbery and the final detection of the guilty reads like fiction. It is more interesting, because true, than any of the novels ever written by "Old Sleuth," the famous detective author.

Discovery of Robbery.

The fact that the bank had evidently been robbed was first made known to the cashier, Gus Kalb, by Janitor Bowsler on the morning of Monday, December 26, 1898, then a holiday because Christmas of that year fell on Sunday. He went to the home of the cashier and informed him that he had found the door of the bank vault open.

An investigation followed and the robbery was discovered. The only suspicious fact, however, when Cashier Kalb entered the bank that forenoon, was that the outer vault door was open. The inner door was bolted securely, the time lock apparently not having been tampered with and the mechanism of all the combination locks working properly. How had the robbers secured an entrance? This was a mystery that it has taken seven years to unravel.

Cashier Kalb, with the vice president of the bank, N. L. Michael, had locked the vault doors and the safe the Saturday night before the discovery of the robbery, setting the time lock to run down on Monday noon, apparently defying an entrance until then.

When the cashier pulled the outer vault door open on that fateful Monday morning nothing within indicated that the other locks had been manipulated. Nothing appeared to be disturbed. Yet when the inner vault was reached and the safe opened the $18,200 was gone.

Who had taken it?

It seemed ridiculous to accuse Bowsler, the janitor, of manipulating the burglar-proof locks and then placing them again in the condition they were when found.

her alimony, and denied money from Bowsler, she resolved to tell the secret she had kept so many years.

Janitor Is Accused.

Her story was told to A. L. Freet, the deputy sheriff at Lima, who, of her own volition, she took into her confidence. She said that Bowsler committed the robbery and that Wilkins was an accessory before and after the fact. Her story, in substance, was that Bowssher had frequently told Wilkins what an easy matter it would be for him to rob the bank.

What to do with the money after he had secured it, to avoid suspicion, bothered him, and for its investment and handling he took Wilkins into his confidence. On the morning after the robbery, Mrs. Wilkins related, her husband came home with his pockets stuffed with money, several thousands of dollars in bills of different denominations and gold coin. He was somewhat under the influence of liquor at the time and did not know where to hide the money.

"Well, Lige has done the job," he said, "and this is my share of it."

Finally the money was hidden in a torn sofa at their home, and from this place it was taken as each needed it, from time to time—a fortune in their possession, and yet it did not bring them happiness.

In a few years the money was all gone. Finally, for neglect and cruelty, she obtained a divorce from him, leaving soon afterward to reside with an uncle near Fort Wayne, Ind.

Within a few months Wilkins followed her and for a time their differences were patched up and they lived together, only to be separated again by his dissipation.

He returned to Lima. Thither she followed him, vainly endeavoring to get money for her support. It was then the blow was struck that made her resolve to tell all.

Plan to Secure Evidence.

The story she told Deputy Sheriff Freet, while presenting a strong case, lacked the convincing proof necessary to secure conviction. The deputy sheriff reported the matter to William Klinger, the prosecuting attorney of the county, and it was then the plan was formed to entrap Bowsler and Wilkins and secure evidence that would convict them on their own testimony, and in this act of the drama Mrs. Wilkins was to play the star part.

With the knowledge she possessed, it was not a hard matter for her to arrange a meeting with the implicated men. The meeting was held in a house at Lima which she was temporarily making her home. It was fixed up previously by the officers for the meeting and arranged so that they could hear the entire conversation between the three without being seen.

It was a story and a half house. A hole was cut through the ceiling above the room in which the meeting was held, the lath and plaster being removed, but leaving the paper on. This was, however, perforated with small holes so as to allow the sounds from below to come through. Located in this garret, one could hear a conversation held in the room below.

In this garret previous to the meeting of Mrs. Wilkins with Wilkins and Bowsler three men were concealed, Deputy Sheriff Freet, Walter M. Scott, the court stenographer, and a private detective. Each of them had megaphones. They could hear distinctly the slightest whisper, and the court stenographer could transcribe every word of the conversation.

Immediately after the arrival of Wilkins and Bowsler, Mrs. Wilkins renewed her plea to Wilkins for his payment of the monthly alimony allowed her by the court in the divorce proceedings. Both men were given to understand that this must be paid.

Then began a discussion between Bowsler and Wilkins as to the abilities of each to pay and what they had done with the stolen money.

How Robbery Was Executed.

At last the payments of the alimony seemed to be arranged by Bowsler agreeing to fix it, and then Mrs. Wilkins, for the benefit of the auditors to the garret above, guided the conversation into a narration of how the robbery was planned and executed.

"Tell us, Lige," she said, "how you did the job at the bank. I have often wanted to know." And then Bowsler told the story of how he had taken the money from the bank vault.

He had been around so long as janitor that he had learned much about the mechanism of the vault locks. He was satisfied that he could allow himself to be locked in the vault and then work himself out again.

This is what he did on the night of the robbery, using as his tools only an ordinary wrench and a screwdriver of a common kind. When Cashier Kalb and Vice President Michael were preparing that night to close up the bank Bowsler slipped into the vault unobserved and was locked in. By unfastening thumbscrews and bolts to the inner and outer doors he worked his way to the bank office again within a few moments after the officers left it.

With the combination to the inside safe he secured the money, then, fixing the vault doors and leaving the outer one ajar, he had the scheme fixed to fasten suspicion on the bank officers.

This was the story he told, given here in substance only. Every word of it, with the entire conversation between him and Wilkins and his wife was taken down by the stenographer in the garret above and convincing evidence of the guilt of the two men was fixed.

Their arrest followed. For a few days each denied his guilt. Finally, seeing the web so closely woven about him, Bowsler confessed and, going with the prosecuting attorney and the sheriff to the bank, showed them just how he had committed the robbery.

He allowed himself to be locked in the vault, the combination locks to both doors and the time lock being set, and in eight minutes he had worked himself out.

Guilt Men Sent to Jail.

On the following day he appeared in court, pleaded guilty and received his sentence. Wilkins held out for a few days longer and then confessed to having received part of the stolen money. By reason of her having turned state's evidence, no action was brought against Mrs. Wilkins.

Bowsler has some real estate, part of it being in his wife's name. She, it seems, until his arrest, knew nothing of his guilt in regard to the robbery. Not long after it occurred Bowsler invested in Ohio oil lands.

They proved profitable and his prosperity and land holdings were thus explained, diverting suspicion of his guilt. It is believed at Lima that he has money hidden and that he also has investments in such a shape as not to be reached by law.

He was never extravagant in his spendings and since the bank robbery has been industrious. He will serve his term in prison and then be a free man so get what enjoyment he can, with a guilty conscience, out of his stolen wealth. Possibly, long before his sentence expires he will make restitution to the bank of the money taken.

What money Wilkins received long since disappeared as a result of his dissipated habits. He will come out of prison, in five years, a poor man.

Modern Animals.

"It is a great mistake to conclude that it is a law of nature that recent animals are all small and insignificant as compared with their representatives in the past," says a scientist. "That is simply not true. Recent horses are bigger than extinct ones, and much bigger than the three-toed and four-toed ancestors of horses. Recent elephants are as big as any that have existed, and much bigger than their early elephantine ancestors. There never has been any creature of any kind—mammal, reptile, bird or fish—in any geological period we know of so big as some of the existing whales."

DEALING IN NAMES.

VENDING THEM IS A BUSINESS IN WALL STREET.

Lists of Investors Become Valuable Assets and Are Carefully Guarded by Their Owners.

The holder of two shares of the stock of a well-known corporation succeeded a few days ago in obtaining a writ of mandamus giving him the right to inspect the company's books for the purpose of taking a list of the stockholders. All large corporations make it a point to oppose an application for this privilege, owing to the experience that in a majority of instances it is likely to be abused.

The business of merchandizing in names plays an important part in the machinery of Wall street. There is always a ready market for a list of good names. The value of a list is determined not only by its length, but by various qualities adapting it to the uses for which it is offered. An exclusive list is much more valuable, states the New York Times, than one which is in general circulation. A list that would be valuable to a speculative house might be of little or no value to a house desiring to enlarge its audience among investors. A strong list of investors' names is a more valuable asset than any outsider could believe. There are only a few such lists on the market, and they could not be bought, or even seen, except by prospective purchasers of the highest integrity and reputation. They are kept in safety deposit vaults, and are jealously guarded. A new banking house on beginning business would have to procure a list to start with. In the course of a few years' business it would develop a list of its own, and have then an exclusive asset.

The market for investors' names is somewhat limited. The merchandizing is chiefly in speculative names, and for such lists there is always an active market. Lists of doubtful value are being constantly hawked through Wall street, and unless the buyer is wide awake he is likely to buy a lot of "stale names" which have been worked over and over and are unproductive. A fresh and unworked list of speculative names is something that does not need to be hawked. The vendor does not have to go far with his goods if he offers the list in the right way.

It does not necessarily detract from the value of a list of speculative names that the persons on it have been unfortunate in their speculations. After the collapse of one of the most notorious swindles that was ever perpetrated in Wall street a shrewd dealer in names placed a few advertisements calling upon those who had been swindled to send him their names and addresses. The impression he conveyed was that steps would be taken to recover some of the money that had been lost. All that the advertiser wanted was the names. He got thousands of replies, from which he made up a list of names which he sold at once in Wall street for $5,000. Then he went to Chicago and sold the same list there for a like sum. He sold it once or twice more and netted about $15,000 on the venture. The buyers of this list were under no illusions concerning its origin. The value of the list to them lay in the fact that it put them in touch with thousands of the most credulous persons in the country.

Promoters of mining stock schemes and bucket shop operators are large buyers of new names. The failure of a big bucket shop invariably leaves in the hands of some employe a list of names on which he is able to realize a few thousand dollars very quickly. There have been some lists in circulation among promoters so complete as to show opposite each name the various schemes in which the prospective dupe had already lost money, the particular kind of speculation that had always appealed to him, the probable extent to which he could be interested in a new venture, otherwise his resources and other details bearing upon his credibility.

Somebody owning one or two shares of stock is constantly trying to gain access to the transfer books of large corporations for the purpose of getting names. If the privilege were indiscriminately granted, the compiling of such lists would become a regular business with vendors of names. Large corporations feel that they owe it to their stockholders to protect them from the endless solicitation that would follow the placing of their names in the hands of Wall street promoters and swindlers. A list of the United States Steel corporation's stockholders would be a pretty prize for a dealer in names, and if the holder of two shares of United States Steel common could establish a legal right to copy the list from the transfer books he would gladly enough pay $75 for the necessary stock and clerical fees for the transcription. In opposing those who would in this way possess themselves of valuable lists of names the corporations expose themselves to the suspicion that they are trying to hide something, whereas, in most cases, it is only because they distrust the motive behind the application that they seek to withhold the privilege.

Rheumatism Thoroughly Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

There is one remedy that will cure rheumatism in any of its forms and so thoroughly eradicate the disease from the system that the cure is permanent. This remedy is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and the proof of the statement is found in the experience of Mr. T. S. Wagar, of No. 73 Academy street, Watertown, N. Y. He says:

"The pain was in my joints and my sufferings for over two years was beyond description. There was an intense pain in my shoulders that prevented me from sleeping and I would get up and walk the floor at night. When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the improvement was gradual, but by the time I had taken four boxes I was entirely cured and I have not had the slightest touch of rheumatism since that time."

Mr. Wagar's wife is also enthusiastic in her endorsement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I have tried the pills myself for stomach trouble and have experienced great relief from their use. My daughter, Mrs. Atwood, of Gill street, Watertown, has used them for female weakness and was much benefited by them. I regard Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as an extremely valuable family medicine."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured the worst cases of bloodlessness, indigestion, influenza, headaches, backaches, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, nervousness, spinal weakness, and the special ailments of girls and women whose blood supply becomes weak, scanty or irregular. The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any harmful drugs and cannot injure the most delicate system. At all drug-gists or from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

The number of persons employed in mining in Great Britain and Ireland last year was 877,057, of whom 5,487 were females.

The United States last year launched 227 merchant ships of more than 100 tons each, with a total tonnage of 233,518 tons. Besides these there were launched 19 war vessels, aggregating 170,885 tons.

Louisiana brimstone is now added to Texas petroleum, Alabama iron, Carolina cotton goods and southern cotton, rice and sugar, as a commercial article in which Dixie is a prime maker and important source of supply.

The cotton trade in Austria is not carried on exclusively for home consumption. The exports of cotton and cotton goods, with a value of £19,512,000, showed an increase in 1904 of £436,000 on the preceding year. In Austria there are 3,250,000 spindles, and the yearly consumption of raw cotton is about 600,000 bales, whereas its neighbor, Germany, has about three times that number of spindles, and consumes about three times that quantity of raw material.

"Do you know where little boys who smoke cigarettes go?" "Yes, in behind our stable used to be the safest place, but ma's on to it now!"

Little Ethel was learning to sew, and one day, after vainly trying to thread a needle, she asked: "Mamma, don't they call the hole in a needle an eye?"

Little Juana had noticed that nearly every Wednesday, the day her mother was supposed to be at home, her maternal relative went out. One Wednesday her mother made no move toward leaving, and Juana remarked: "Mamma, this is your deception day; don't you think it's time to put on your hat and go out?"

Here is a bit of exact reasoning on the part of a little schoolgirl. The teacher wished to impress the idea of the wrong of idleness. He led up to it by asking who were the persons who got all they could and did nothing in return. For some time there was silence, but at last the little girl, who had obviously reasoned out the answer inductively from her own home experiences, exclaimed, with a good deal of confidence: "Please, sir, it's the baby!"

From a beautiful farm down in Texas, where gushing springs unite to form babbling brooks that wind their sparkling way through flowery meads, comes a note of gratitude for delivery from the coffee habit.

"When my baby boy came to me five years ago, I began to drink Postum Food Coffee, having a feeling that it would be better for him and me than the old kind of drug-laden coffee. I was not disappointed in it, for it enabled me, a small delicate woman, to nurse a bouncing healthy baby 14 months."

"I have since continued the use of Postum, for I have grown fond of it, and have discovered to my joy that it has entirely relieved me of a bilious habit which used to prostrate me two or three times a year, causing much discomfort to my family and suffering to myself."

"My brother-in-law was cured of chronic constipation by leaving off the old kind of coffee and using Postum. He has become even more fond of it than he was of the old coffee."

"In fact the entire family, from the latest arrival (a 2-year-old who always calls for his 'potie' first thing in the morning), up to the head of the house, think there is no drink so good or so wholesome as Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

College Football Hurt by Public Exhibitions

By BERTRAM G. WATERS, on Harvard Team in 1894.

FOOTBALL essentially is an academic sport, and one that belongs exclusively to the school age. It is played under the best conditions and to the best advantage to the players when the game stands solely for school rivalry in sport. What has hurt football more than anything else has been the feature of public exhibition. Nearly, if not quite, all the so-called evils of latter-day football flow from this exhibition feature.

First of all, the complaint of professionalism never would be heard if it were not for the tremendously increased publicity of the game, for professionals under normal conditions could have no hand in a purely academic sport.

The game has been developed with a view to the perfection of certain principles. Where formerly 22 players were extended along a line of 30 yards, that number now are concentrated in a space of seven yards. The consequence is that a scrimmage, involving the bunching of a large number of players, looks formidable to the spectator, who thinks that some damage must surely result from such a tangle. There is nothing that the spectator likes so well as to witness a long tackle in open field, but there is nothing that is really more dangerous, where-as the player in a scrimmage has a better chance to protect himself.

Those who understand the game know this, but the great mass of the spectators do not, and they see in the change a reversion to brutality. The game therefore is criticised as rough and cruel.

Next, the intense anxiety to win, some measure of which the player ought to have, is exaggerated to an enormous degree by the exhibition feature. The player feels the presence of thousands of friends and foes; he is the center of an immense concourse of people, one-half of whom are applauding him and the other half applauding the opposing team. It is a great incentive for a player to go to any length to score a point against his adversary, and some people think it is too great a temptation to most young men to rough and unfair play.

The American eagerness to win in any contest is already strong enough, and it hardly needs encouragement of so intense a nature on so large a scale. The average young man in a college championship game of to-day actually feels himself for a time disgraced by failure, so fierce is the spirit to win, made so, I believe, to some extent by the publicity of the game.

Football is a fine game, but one that belongs to boys and growing young men, and peculiarly to students. The age is soon reached when the game can no longer be played, at least in championship form.

If football is, as I so firmly believe, so good a game, it certainly ought to be able to flourish without the publicity that now accompanies it, and if this exhibition feature were removed or toned down I think most of the so-called evils of football would disappear.

High Ideals and Unselfish Purpose

By PRESIDENT ARTHUR HADLEY, of Yale University.

his life that, from the standpoint of God and his fellow men, it is worse than wasted. How can we guard against this?

If a man's purposes and ideals are such that he is seeking to attain them for himself at the expense of his fellow men, they are pagan ideals, and the man is likely to grow bad as he grows older. If his ideals are such that each step toward their realization means the advancement of those about him, his purposes are Christian.

What is the pagan ideal of sport? To win whether you play fair or not. What is the Christian ideal? To play the game fairly for all it is worth and to win if you can. If we hold the former ideal, every game we play is a training for a fraudulent business, bad politics and an un-Christian civilization. If we play with the latter purpose in view, every game is a training for that public service in church and state for which Yale college was founded.

What is our ideal in intellectual work? Is it to achieve a certain degree of distinction here and hereafter without regard to the means by which that distinction has been obtained? Or is it to prepare for true knowledge of nature and man which can be used for efficient service? In the former case, our learning is pagan; in the latter it is Christian. In the former case, our collegiate training is morally unsound; in the latter case, it is the most valuable education which a man can possibly have. The old question repeats itself in a thousand different ways. Are we trying to get as much out of life as we can? Or are we trying to put as much into life as we can? It is the man who is dominated by the purpose to put things into life who takes the lead in the service of God.

But how can we get this unselfish purpose? Or, rather, how can we maintain and strengthen the unselfish purpose with which we start?

First, by seeing things about us as they really are. Amid the activities of college life we are tempted to look at all things through a false medium and call them by wrong names. We say that a man is having a good time at college when he is doing things which he would be ashamed to do at home, because he would have to call them by their right names. We say that he is simply complying with college customs in study or in sport when he does things which would be known elsewhere by the plain title of cheating. The man who really keeps his eyes open to see things in their true light is safe from half the perils which would otherwise beset him.

Mother Wanted News.

The habit of moving the lips when reading is a good deal more common than people suppose. But speaking of that habit, says a writer in the Kansas City Times, a queer thing happened recently on a train on which I was riding. I was sitting by a man who moved his lips when he read. While he apparently made no sound he really shaped his lips for each word. He was reading a newspaper and so was I. I was seated next to the aisle. After we had been reading a little while I felt some one touch my arm. Looking around, I saw a little girl seated by a woman across the aisle, was smiling at me. "Please, sir," she said, "would you hold your paper lower?" Of course I was surprised at the request, and asked her why. "Because," she replied, "my mamma here, who is deaf, wants to be able to watch your friend's lips so she can get the news. She can tell what he is reading that way. It hurts her eyes to read print on a moving train."

Get at the Cause.

Sacramento, Ky., Nov. 13th (Special)—A typical illustration of the way Dodd's Kidney Pills Care Rheumatism is well told by Catherine Devine, who is very well known here. She says: "For over four years I was greatly troubled with Rheumatism. It used to take me worst in my legs and feet. At times I would be so bad I could not put my feet to the ground. As I was over seventy-three years of age I began to think I was too old to get cured and should have to bear my Rheumatism the best way I could. But I heard about Dodd's Kidney Pills, and thought I would give them a trial. So I got a box and began taking them. Well, I must say Dodd's Kidney Pills did me a wonderful lot of good. They eased the pain from the first, and to-day I am in better health than I have been for many years."

AN ARTIFICIAL PEARL.

Produced by Placing a Ball of Wax in the Shell of a Fresh Water Mussel.

A ball of beeswax introduced into the shell of a living fresh-water mussel has resulted in producing the most remarkable artificial pearl in existence. It is about an inch and a half in length, oval in form and pink in color, and is now the property of the Smithsonian Institution, reports a Washington exchange.

The ball of wax was placed near the hinge of the bivalve, which being in a tank of fresh water, was carefully watched. The irritation of the wax caused the mollusk to protect itself by coating the foreign object with a smooth coating of pearl stuff—the same material as that which is used in lining the inner surface of its shell. In the case in question the result was an enormous pearl. Owing to pressure, however, the wax ball lost its spherical shape and became oval in form.

At the end of two years the mussel was taken out of the tank and opened and the pearl removed. The wax afterward contracted owing to dryness, which caused the pearl shell to crack. This accident, while destroying the commercial value of the pearl, made it possible to observe the thickness of the nacreous covering, which is somewhat greater than that of an ordinary sheet of letter paper. If the pearl were not flawed it would be worth an enormous sum of money, but even as it is it is priceless as a curiosity.

TESTING HIS NERVE

The Close Shave of a Steamship Gunner.

"I was sitting on the veranda of a far western hotel one afternoon," said the Boston drummer, "and was lazily smoking one of the nicest meerschaum pipes you ever saw when out of the tail of my eye I saw that a native down at the other end of the veranda had his gun sighted at me. They were a wild lot around there, and I couldn't tell whether he meant to shoot me or the pipe. The chances were in favor of the pipe, however, and it seemed a good chance to test my nerve. I made up my mind to let him shoot and to pretend a careless air, but I'm telling you that in the ten or fifteen seconds of waiting the sweat came out at every pore and my heart pounded my ribs sore. I felt a sort of tick at the bowl of the pipe, heard the crack of the gun and knew that the bullet had passed through the pipe. I got a brace with my hands and feet and waited for a second bullet, and it went through the bowl after the first. I sat there until his fourth bullet had knocked the bowl off the stem, and then the shooter sauntered up to me and laughingly said:

"Excuse me, stranger, but I thought it was imitation."
"Same as you are," I replied.
"My gibe hurt him, but he was man enough to tell everybody about my nerve, and the boys chipped in sufficient nuggets to buy me this $50 smoker. Nerve! Say, do you know what happened to me when I made an excuse to go up stairs after my old cornob? I had no sooner got into my room than my knees gave out, chills galloped up my spine, and I'll be hanged if I didn't faint away and lie there for ten minutes. It had suddenly occurred to me that the bowl of that pipe was only six inches from my nose while the fellow was doing his shooting, and I have not yet got over touching my nasal organ now and then to see if it is safe."

Fair Warning.
Time, 11:45 p. m.
A sound resembling a distant peal of thunder is heard directly overhead.
"What was that?" asked the young man as he started up from the parlor sofa in alarm.
"That?" echoed the fair pride of the household. "Oh, that was only papa dropping a hint."
And, hastily gathering the hint unto himself, the young man carried it out into the gloomy night.—Chicago News.

"Stock of what?"
"Children. He has six."—Chicago Post.

American Shipbuilding Company Has Orders for Twenty Carriers.

Orders for two more freight steamers have been placed with the American Shipbuilding company by the Hawgoods, the steamers to be delivered in 1906. The first order was placed by W. A. & A. H. Hawgood and the steamer which they want is to be 555 feet over all, 525 feet keel, 55 feet beam and 31 feet deep. It is to be equipped with triple expansion engines and two Scotch boilers 14 feet, 6 inches, allowing 180 pounds pressure. The second order was given by Henry A. Hawgood and his son, H. B. Hawgood for a steamer which will duplicate the steamer James C. Wallace. She will be 552 feet over all, 532 feet keel, 56 feet beam and 31 feet deep. Her engines will be triple instead of quadruple expansion as are the engines of the Wallace.

Altogether these two orders bring the list of orders received by the American Shipbuilding company for delivery in 1906 up to twenty vessels. One of these steamers, the John Stanton has already been delivered and has already taken her second cargo of ore from Duluth, and it is expected that another, the Joseph G. Butler, Jr., will be delivered about Dec. 1. She was launched last Saturday at Lorain.

No Pipes in Cuba.
Cuba produces no tobacco for chewing or for pipe-smoking. The Cubans who smoke pipes might be counted on one's fingers without making a second round on the fingers. The cigar and the cigarette prevail. To what extent the Cuban cigarette might ever become popular with American smokers is a matter beyond determination. It is certain that most Americans of prolonged residence become, if they be smokers, addicted to Cuban brands, and find difficulty in weaning themselves back to American brands on their return.

Senator Depew Gives an Illustrative Instance Witnessed by Him at Monte Carlo.

Chauncey M. Depew says he saw a man begin to play with a thousand franc note at Monte Carlo. He played and won—doubled his money; played, and won again and doubled. He kept on until he had won about $24,000. Then he started resolutely to go out at the door he stopped, hesitated and turned back. He sauntered over to the table and looked on at the game for awhile. Then he buttoned up his coat again with great decision and started out with a firm stride. But he could not—positively could not get through the door. The last Mr. Depew saw of him he was playing away again, and the $24,000 was going pell-mell back into the gambling house coffers. It is generally thus. Precious few people get away from Monte Carlo with their own money, let alone the bank's.

Average Longevity.
The average longevity of man and of woman varies considerably in different places and at different times. From statistics carefully compiled it appears that in England, for instance, the average age for males was 45.9 and for females 41.85 between the years 1838 and 1854; while between 1871 and 1890 that of males was 41.33 and that of females 44.62. In Massachusetts statistics taken from 1883 to 1887 show an average of 39.73 for males and 42.03 for females. These must be taken as the average of white people; for, to mention but one instance, the average of the colored males in Baltimore is not higher than 31.

This is a picture of ANDREW B. SPINNEY, M. D. the only Dr. Spinney in this country. He has had forty-eight years experience in the study and practice of medicine, two years Prof. in the medical college, ten years in sanitation work and he never fails in his diagnosis. He gives special attention to throat and lung diseases, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc. He never fails to cure them.
There is nothing sadder than to see a man or woman who has been afflicted with some chronic disease, and who has tried every other medicine, and who has spent all his or her money, and who has been told by the doctor that he or she will never get well, and who has been told that he or she will never live, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to work, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to enjoy life, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her family again, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her friends again, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her country again, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her God again, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her soul again, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her heaven again, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her God again, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her soul again, and who has been told that he or she will never be able to see his or her heaven again.
