NESS CASE

Supreme Court Affirms Judgement of $1,000 Secured by Mrs. Ness In Circuit Court.

FELL THROUGH WALK

Appeal Was Taken by City Because Photograph Showing Condition of The Walk Was Excluded.

The judgement of $1,000 which Mrs. Christina Ness secured in Circuit Court against the City of Escanaba for injuries which she claimed to have received because of a defective walk, was last week affirmed by the Supreme Court of Michigan.

Mrs. Ness was injured on April 27, 1904 and soon after brought suit against the city for $3,000. She received judgement for $1,000 and from this verdict the city took an appeal on the ground that a certain photograph, showing the condition of the walk, should not have been excluded. The photograph in question was objected to by attorneys of the plaintiff because it had been taken two months after the accident and after repairs had been made. The objections of the plaintiff were sustained by Judge Stone and the photograph excluded. Upon the introduction of the photograph however, the city took its appeal claiming that it tended to show that the walk was in fairly good condition.

In considering the case the Supreme Court says: "There are but two questions to be decided: First, should the court have directed a verdict of not guilty upon the ground that notice of the defect was not proved?

Second, Was it error to sustain an objection to the introduction of a photograph which defendent offered?

The actual notice was not shown but there was evidence that tended to show that the walk was badly out of repair for several months. This made the puestion of constructive notice one for me jury.

An examination enables us to say rotten or that the boards were loose, Morever the undisputed proof shows that after the accident some boards were nailed down. As the photograph will throw no light upon the undisputed questions, its exclusion was not harmful to the defendant, whether it was admissionable or not.

The case was argued for the city before the supreme court by City Attorney Arthur H. Ryall, while Mrs. Ness, was represented by Attorney C. D. McEwen and Attorneys Cummiskey and Yelland.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Coffey and on the death of her mother was adopted into the family of Mr. Flynn. She is survived by one brother, Eugene Coffey of Hibbing. Minn., and one sister, Mrs. Miles of Manistique. For several years Miss Flynn was engaged as teacher at different schools in the county. She taught at Rapid River, Bark River, and in the townships of Sac Bay and Maple Ridge. She had a host of friends both in the city and in the country and her death is deeply felt by all.

LAW IS SATISFACTORY

Judge Stone of the Twenty-fifth Giroult, Has no Fault to Find

"I have no particular fault to find with the indeterminate sentence law, so far as it applies to our circuit," said Judge J. W. Stone, of the Twenty-fifth judicial circuit, when asked regarding the workings of the law, and think it has advantages as well as some characteristics that work a hardship on certain classes of prisoners. A man without friends to intercede in his behalf, and without funds or ability to bring before the state board of pardons evidence tending to show a lesser degree of participation in a crime that the maximum sentence fitly punishes, is affected adversely by the law. It sometimes costs money to secure evidence after cases have been passed upon by courts, and many men of foreign birth who lack both financial and intellectual ability to assemble such evidence must sometimes suffer in silence until the pardon board has had the oppurtunity to sift the case according to its own

"The number of cases acted upon by the pardon board acc rding to a recently published statement of the secretary, is one for each day in the year, and when it is considered how many men there are confined in Michigan penal imprisonment is reached daily some estimate can be made of the immense amount of labor connected with thoroughly looking into every case, for the evidence has to be assembled according to the regular procedure adopted by the board. No matter how much work is done by the board, delays must occur before every case can be investigated.

"Under the old law, if circuit judges made a mistake and sentenced a man too lightly for the commission of crime the error was irreparable, and at the date of expiration of the sentence he had to be released. Under the interminate sentence law, if it should appear by the introduction of evidence before the board that a man was guilty in a greater degree than the trial court had been led to believe, the state may detain that man in custody until the expiration of the maximum sentence fixed by statute.

"Trial judges may, in sentencing prisoners under the indeterminate law. recommend to the board a sentence between the minimum and maximum as the that the photograph does not show that one they deem sufficient. To illustrate: the boards or stringers were not A man is convicted of the crime of burglary The law fixes the minimum at two years and toe maximum at fifteen years. Some times it appears from the evidence that in justice the prisoner should not be penalized the maximum, and so courts recommend a period in accordance with the degree of guilt. It might be three years, or four, or any number between the two extremes. If it should be subsequently brought to the notice of the pardon board that the prisoner was guilty in a maner to deserve the extreme penalty, it would be in accordance with public policy to detain that man in confinement, notwithstanding the trial judge may from the evidence adduced at the trial have decided that a lesser number of years was sufficient. In such cases the indeterminate sentence law is preferable to the old law.

"As I stated before, the poor man suffers most in the new law. At the temination of the minimun sentence period the state provides the prisoner with blanks for the purpose of stating concisely the reasons why a greater sentance should not be imposed It then becomes the duty of the prisoner to look after his own interests. If he has influential friends and funds with which to employ counsel to gather evidence in his behalf, matters are somewhat simplified, but if he has not these advantages he must await the regular course of events. In this respect the law works to the disadvantage of a certain class of prisoners. Otherwise, I am satisfied with it so far as our circuit is affected."

Visit of City Officials to Toledo Re sulted in Satisfactory Understanding.

After a delay of three months the city is about to receive $85,000 for the street assessment bonds which were sold to Spitzer & Co., of Toledo on October 17th. Shortly after the bond issue was sold the city made application for the money from Spitzer & Co. but that firm raised institutions whose minimum term of technical points which they claimed must be adjusted before they could send the money. On the various divisions of the road the agents have organized local Agents' Associations, one for each division, and at their monthly meetings various problems that confront the local agent in the preformance of his daily duties are discussed, experiences recited and new methods suggested for the better-ment of the service. These discussions result in much practical good to all concerned.

The interest manifested by the management of The North-Western Line in these Agent's meetings and the value placed on their expressions, indicted by the opening paragraph of the Bulletin:

"The papers which have been read from time to time at the meetings of the Station Agents Association on the various divisions of The Chicago & North-Western Railway have indicated careful thought and a keen appreciation of conditions."

When the management of corporation freely declares that the views of their local subordinates "have been of such interest and inspiration" as to call for the trouble and expense of giving them wider distribution among officers and fellow employes it is obvious to all that existing industrial problems are in a fair way to meet a solution along the most satisfactory lines to all concerned.

The employes of the Chicago & North Western Ry, it seems to the editor, are to be congratulated upon this movement layed the matter in order to profit by which serves to bring them into closer the interest on the bonds, which will touch with their superiors, many of London, Dec. 25 .- The sanguinary battle of the Russian revolution has been raging in the streets of Moscow. A huge plot by the revolutionists to capture railway to St. Petersburg and the imperial bank and organize a provisional government was discovered by the govornor general, and he at once assembled 25,000 troops to defeat the insurgents. Barricades erected in the streets were stormed one after another by the soldiers, who used machine guns to mow down the mobs. While the military seems to have the upper hand, the result of the conflict

Nervous Women

Their Sufferings Are Usually Due to Uterine Disorders Perhaps Unsuspected

A MEDICINE THAT CURES

"Don't speak to me." Little things annoy you and make you irritable; you can't sleep, you are unable to quietly and calmly perform your daily tasks or care for your children.

The relation of the nerves and generative organs in women is so close that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous debility, the blues, sleeplessness and nervous irritability arise from some derangement of the organism which makes her a woman. Fits of depression or restlessness and irritability. Spirits easily affected, so that one minute she laughs, the next minute weeps. Pain in the ovaries and between the shoulders. Loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia. A tendency to cry at the least provocation. All this points to nervous prostration.

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition and prevent months of pros-tration and suffering so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. M. E. Shotwell, of 103 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I cannot express the wonderful relief I have experienced by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. And now-when he had thought his position assured-when he had dreamed of spending John Little's millions with perfect taste and passing his days in an atmosphere of wealth and leisure with the grace of one "to the manner born," he found that he did not "seem to belong anywhere," and was to be given a New Year's dinner out of charity, while little Charlie Leffingwell, who never managed to get beyond his freshman year at Yale, whose only accomplishment was driving an automobile and whose one aim in life was to increase his already large fortune, was to share the Little millions, and "the boys" would no doubt laugh behind his back because he, Bertram Wingate, had angled for them in vain. A young girl, turning briskly to enter the house fexclaimed: "So you have really come to see us at last. This is the place. Come right in. Your mother said she would write and tell you we were here, but we thought she had forgotten. Mabel is teaching, I'm going to the conservatory, Bob's In business college and father's got a good job buying wheat for the Consolidated. Why haven't you been to see us before?"

Wingate murmured something about being very busy, as he meekly followed the girl into the house.

"I suppose you're always busy," commented the girl kindly. "Out this way on some building I guess? I hope you haven't been to dinner.

"Motner, here's Bertram Wingate. He was out this way and has looked us up," she said, ushering Wingate into the cheery sitting room.

He was thankful for the easily assumed explanations and glad to follow the girl into the cosy room. Mrs. Whitcomb greeted him heartily and the whole family gathered about him, pressing him to stay and asking news of his people. There was an air of pleasant affection and a deference for his accomplishments which was soothing to his wounded vanity.

When he took his departure, Mrs. Whitcomb said, kindly, "Can't you spend New Year's with us, Bertram?" "It would be real charity on your part if I may," said Wingate, flushing warmly at the thought of the other charity dinner he had expected to eat.

"It's nice of you to speak that way Bertram," said Mrs. Whitcomb, stroking his sleeve, but you know the pleasure will be ours in having a friend from the old Dakota home to share the day with us."

The New Year's dinner was by no means the last which Bertram Wingate ate in the little cottage.

In the spring Molly, the irrepressible, wrote to her Dakota confidante, 'Mabel and Bertram Wingate are going together a good deal. SUPREME COURT TO HEAR DE-HUBRER ARGUMENTS.

CASE INVOLVES $4,000,000

Gigantic Suit Against Michigan Central Road for Back Taxes Rests Upon Decision Given in Coming Litigation.

(Wm. Ellery, Staff Correspondent.) Lansing, Mich., Dec. 25.-Hearing of arguments having been postponed on industries canvassed were the carriage December 4, the supreme court will and wagon factories, factories where take up the case of the sommonwealth of Michigan against the Michigan Central Railroad company on January 2, and an entire day has been set apart for this case—the most important in the history of the state-a suit for $4,000,000 in back taxes. Ottor Kirchner, Thomas E. Barkworth, of Jockson, and Attorney General Baird will appear for the state, while Henry Russel, Benton Hatchett and O. E. Butterfield will make the principal arguments for the railroad companies. The company filed a demurrer to the state's bill. which was overruled by Judge Wiest, of this circuit, and the question to be considered is whether the demurrer will be sustained. The standing of the state's case is therefore at stake. and should it lose the case will fall. Should the demurrer be overruled, as it was in the court below, the state will then have an opportunity to prove in court whether the Michigan Central company, by a series of alleged false and fraudulent reports covering a long period of years, has defrauded the state out of that amount. The state's attorneys contend that the Michigan Central company, in its brief, has practically admitted that these false reports have been made, contending that the state should have discovered the discrepancies complained of long ago, and that, as a matter of fact, the state had ia its possession documents siat tended to prove the inaccuracies in the reports submitted. Having failed to notice ... ereon within a reasonable time, the company contends the state is prevented from bringing action by reason of the operation of the statute of limitations. The gist of the controversy. therefore, is whether the state had notice of the alleged false and misleading reports. On this point Otto Kirchner will contend, and will produce authorities to support the contention, that the fact that the secretary of state, to whom the reports were made, did not examine the reports closely to discover whether they conformed to the statute does not constitute such negligence on the part of the state as would preclude it from recovering against the company. The point is an important one and will be thoroughly elucidated in the arguments. It is not likely, however, that the arguments will develop any sensational features, for, although be needed." the lawyers are greatly interested in the issue, the discussions must neces-

Unless this repeal is effected every public service corporation in Michigan whose existence expires before the meeting of the legislature in 1906 will be able by its own act to continue itself in the holding of its franchises and other rights for a period not exceeding 30 years from the date of the incorporation. Already one such corporation, the State Road Bridge company, of Saginaw, maintaining a toll bridge, has seized upon this revolutionary and amazing franchise graft. State Senator Baird sounded the alarm and in the belief that the legislature has finally done what it was feared it would some day do, perpetuate franchises, Baird is demanding a special session of the legislature.

Sanitarium Directors Quit. A reorganization of the Jackson San-Itarium company is likely to be held as a result of the startling revelation that without paying in any money, Dr. W. W. Lathrop, the promoter and medical director of the business, holds $125,000 of the total stock issue of $161,000. Directors who desire to know something of the conduct of the business claimed they were unable to do so and resigned a few days ago. The resulting meeting of the stockholders brought about the disclosures. Much to the surprise of the stockholders of the company who furnished money for equipping a big plant, they found at the meeting the other night, that the articles of association provided for the purchase from Medical Director Lathrop of his medical practice, appliances and formulas for $100,000. Dividends were declared from the first, which it is claimed were not earned. The minority stockholders were pald dividends in cash, while Dr. Lathrop, it is said, issued stock for his dividends and thus swelled his total. State's Ten Big Industries. The state labor bureau has completed the canvass of ten of the greatest industries of the state, exclusive of fron, copper and coal mining, in which are employed 35 per cent, of the whole number of workingmen in the state. The number of factories visited. from which statistics were compiled, was 3.514, which is about one-half the number in the state. The capital invested in these industries aggregates $125,-882,483. Economy of Legislature. Bent on economy, the legislature limited the number of clerks to be employed by the new state tax commission to ten, and it probably neglectedors, the name of the same body [Qua. different field of activity, had the nower of employing such clerical assist? ance "as may be necessary." The pay roll showed only the ten clerks for the state tax commission, but 18 for the board of assessors. Gov. Warner Lelieves the employment of such a number is justified, saying: "When the new commissioners took office I warned them that they would have an extraordinary amount of work to do in the next few months. To have their rolls ready by January 15 and to have the most reliable statistics to lay before the state board of equalization next August, I believe they will have to do more work from now until next July than any succeeding commission will have to do in two years. Once we get squared away so many clerks will not

The syndicate composed of James R Elliott, of this city, and Myron W. Mills and George T. Moore, of Port Huron, has purchased in New York a controlling interest in the Battle Cre k-Kalamazco interurban trolley line and the Battle Creek and Kalamazoo city electric lines. This gives the Mills-Moore-Elliott syndicate control of 193 miles of city and interurban lines in the interior of the state. The lines new held, together with a number of projected extensions, are to be reorganized under the name of the Michigan United Railways company and Lansing will be the center of the system.

BEES SHIRK THEIR WORK. Honey Hunter Says the Insects Do Not Make a Bre Line.

"There are several popular errors about the ways of bees which need rectifying," said Ike Hubbard, a honey hunter, according to the New Sun. "The average I ee, instead of being an example of industry, is about the laziest thing that flies.

"Even in the busy season in midsummer no bee will quit its hive until after the sun is well up and has taken off the heavier part of the dew, and so soon as the sun slants toward the hills in the afternoon every bee will come flying home and go to roost, though darkness is four hours away.

"Then there are few bees that will hunt for honey from flowers so long as they can find corn or syrup or brown sugar to steal. The fact is so well known to apiarists that many beekeepers buy corn syrup for 50 cents a gallon and pass it along to the bees, which convert it into something that resembles honey, but is not honey, and still sells for the genuine product of the hives. When a man can buy syrup for 50 cents a gallon and then sell it back to the trader as honey for, eight dollars a gallon he can get rich right away, provided he has enough bees.

"The greatest mistake that is made about bees is the belief that they follow straight lines when carrying home their loads of honey. I samure you that the bee line one reads about in the books does not exist.

"When a laden bee is going home with a big load of honey in its stomach and great wads of pollen on its hind legs it takes the easiest course, regardless of any line. In our hilly Maine country no bee will rise in the air a surmount a hill when it can go around the obstruction.

"When a sharp rise lies between my hone, box and the bee tree every bee flies away on the arc of a circle, so as to avoid exerting itself by rising. In such cases I place my box on either side of the hill and make my trinagudation nearer the apex. If one were to the fact that the state board of assess a go chasing after a bee that was flying around a hill his calculations might lead Lim to China. "The beekeepers tell us that white clover honey is the best, but I do not agree with them. Domestic honey, such as is gathered from white clover, buckwheat and other cultivated plants, is too sweet.

"To my mind wild honey that is stolen from the blossoms of dogwood and basswood and wild thyme and mints and nettles is far better than anything bought in the stores. It has a gamy flavor about it that suggests wild woods and great trees and singing brooks and everything that lives out of doors and away from the contaminating taint of mankind.".

DECEITFUL ACCOMPLICE.

Would-Be Smuggler Was Fooled, So Were the Customs

George W. Whitenead, appraiser of merchandise at the port of New York, was talking about smugglingg, says the

New York Tribune. "No great amount of smuggling is done." he said. "To smuggle extensively, it is necessary to have accomplices. These accomplices cheat you, or you cheat them, and then they betray you. Altogether, in the end, you lose rather than gain."

Mr. Whitehead smiled. "Not so long ago," he said, "a certain skipper hailed a fisherman off the coast. and asked him if he would smuggle ashore for him a cask of brandy.

"The fisherman agreed, and two casks of brandy were lowered into his boat. "'One,' said the skipper, 'is for your trouble and risk, my man." "Well, a week or so later the skipper cailed with a team at the Jersey fisherman's house for his cask of brandy. It was night. He got the cask, and started on the dark and lonely way back home. "But the custom house people have sharp eyes and ears. They lay in wait for the skipper. They caught him a mile outside of the fisherman's village, and there was the cask of brandy in the

"He said nothing. There was nothing to say. The cask was opened. " 'We'll sample this fine liquor,' said a customs officer.

"And he put his mouth to the bung. and then drew back, amazed. The skipper was amazed, too. The cask contained nothing but water."

Industrial Precious Metal.

The world's total supply of platinum during the year 1904 was about 13,860 pounds, 13,200 pounds of which came from Russia. The United States produced 200 ounces, valued at $4,160. All of this came from California and Oregon, the Wyoming mine having suspended operations. The price of platinum increased ten per cent. during the year. According to Dr. David T. Day, of the United States geological survey, the outlook for an increased production during 1905 is good. The present price of platinum—$20.50 an ounce—is the highest which this metal has reached in recent years .- Electrical World.

SATURDAY, DEC. 80, 1905.

It has been stated as the result of postoffice figures and estimates that about six million dollars in comparatively small money orders have been sent during the month of December to relatives and friends at their old homes across the sea' by the men and women and boys and girls who left the lands beyond to make new homes in America. There are those who have lived all their lives in this favored country who are persistently urging that the methods and policies of other nations should be substituted for our own. If all other protests against such backward changes should be silenced these millions of dollars in money orders, provided out of the surplus earnings here to meet necessities there, would appeal too eloquently to be denied.

THERE IS MONEY IN GROWING GINENG

Prof. W. L. Howard of Missouri State Agricultural College says: "I advise American farmers to cultivate Ginseng. Big profits may be realized. It is a hardy plant and is easily grown."—A recent bulletin issued by the Pennsylvania State Agricultural College in part says: "The supply of native Ginseng root is continually diminishing and the price per pound is correspondingly increasing, while the constant demand in China stands as a guarantee of a steady market for Ginseng in the future. The market for our cultivated root will exist as long as the Chinamen exist."-Counsel General W. A. Rublee of Hong Kong says in the U.S. Consular reports: sale of the Ginseng root grown in America is very large here and the demand is so great that much more could be disposed of advantageously. The root is as indispensable to the 400,000,000 Chinese as is their rice."

Ginseng is a staple on the market the same as corn. wheat, and cotton. The present market price varies from $5.00 to $8.00 per pound according to quality, while the cost of production does not exceed $1.50. There is room in an ordinary garden to grow several hundre dollars worth each year. The plant is hardy and thrives in all parts of the United States and Canada. except in the arid regions. We are successful growers and can show you how to make money growing Ginseng. You can get a good start in the business for a comfortable income. We have several thousand choice roots for sale for fall delivery. The planting season begins in August and continues till the ground is frozen.

It was about a year ago that Lulu Mueller, of Cumminsville, and Alma Steinigeweg, of Winton place, Cincinpati, were murdered. Their deaths took place within 30 days of each other. May McDonald, of Cincinnati, was killed about this same time.

It has developed that Dr. Haugh was in Cincinnati at that time and two women who saw a man leaving the spot where the mutilated body of Lulu Mueller was found described him as stooping, gray haired, shaking as if palsfed and with a glaze in his eye. This description fits Dr. Haugh, as he was on October 14, 1904, within a few days of the girly death. On that date Mrs. Mary Johnson, an old friend of the Haugh family, refused him admission to her Cincinnati lodging house because of his drug eating habits. She especially noted his appearance.

The Cincinnati police are working on the theory that Haugh may have knowledge of the murder of these three girls.

W. C. Parish, a brakeman on the Baltimore & Obio rallway, was in Dr. Haugh's rooming house in Lorain the night of February 16, 1904. He became ill an i Haugh gave kim treatment. Then he began growing worse and was taken to the hospital, where he died.

"L gave him medicine." Haugh explained when an ambulance called for him. "But it doe-n't seem to have done any good."

The physicians thought Parish was suffering with pneumonia and made no investigation.

Dr. Haugh advocated the painless killing of all aged and infirm people cases while he operated in Hamilton, O.

Before the Transformation.

It is only five years ago that Dr. Haugh was considered an authority in composition of drugs, and about his laboratory there hung an air of mystery and fascination for the people of Dayton, for he boastfully declared:

"I am at work on the evolution of a drug, which in its perfection, will creof thought, and a new race of beings. I will bring into the reality of day semething more wonderful than Steven-on in his wildest dreams ever imagined. TO UNITE SOUTHERN CALIFOR-NIA AND ARIZONA.

The Unique Name of Calizona Has Been Suggested by Los Angeles Man-Territory

the suggestion of Arizonans and Los Angelans to segregate the counties of southern California, annex the territory of Arizona, and form a new state, having common interests and claims, has decided merits, well worthy of consideration. Such a union, says the Los Angeles News, was proposed a number of years ago, when the division of California was urged by many citizens living south of the Tehachapel and, if we mistake not, it was W. S. Knight, of Los Angeles, who invented the short, euphonious name of Calizona for the appellation of the proposed new state.

In addition to the seven counties usually classed as southern California -namely, San Diego, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Ventura and Santa Barbara-there are three others which naturally belong to this section of the state-San Luis Obispo, Kern and Inyo. These ten counties comprise an area of 66,767 square miles, or about two-fifths of the state of California. Their population, according to the census of 1990, was 341,645. Adding 30 per cent, for the average increase in the last five years-certainly a moderate estimate, for Los Angeles alone nearly doubled its population in that period-the present population of the ten counties is close to 500,000.

If to this is added the area of Arizona, 112,920 square miles, and its census population of 1900, 122,031, also with a 30 per cent. increase, bringing it up to 188,640, we shall have an aggregate population not far from 650,000 with which to start the new state of Calizona. There were 19 states with a less population in 1900.

It is suggested that Los Angeles will naturally become the capital of the new state, but there may be other claimants for that honor. With few exceptions the state capitals have not been located at the metropolitan centers. In the early days of the republk there was a strong sentiment against having the political capital in the commercial metropolis; it was deemed unwise to have the legislative halls brought into too close contact with commercial influences. If that sentiment should prevail in the new state the capital might be located at Pomona or Redlands or Riverside. Either of these towns is easily reached from all points of the proposed new commonwealth.

Califona's representation in congress would be two United States senators and three representatives but the latter would be increased by one or two representatives by the census of 1901. The two great states of Calitornia and Calizona would then work effectively together for common interests, and would wield a much greate. influence than at present in the halls of congress and in all national affairs. The development of the port of San Policy and Wilmington barbor would tective a new stimulus. Aslatic lines of steamers would be established an i Los Angeles would become the recogrized emporium of all the southwest, with all his magnificent agricultural and mineral resources and its splendid commercial pessibilities.

Let all sections of southern California and Arizona make a concerted effort to create, organize, develop and periect the new and imperial state of Calizona. Before the next census is taken it should be known in all lands and should be unrivaled in reputation for climate, scenery, production, rapid growth and wonderful development.

LIKE AN UNBLAZED TRAIL. Intricate Plea at the Bar of Justice That Was Too Deep for

Soon after the late Gilman Marston, of New Hampshire, had been admitted to the bar a civil suit was brought to him. It involved a somewhat complicated ques-tion of inheritance, says the Boston Her-ald. But the young man, in no way ald. But the young man, in no way daunted, took the case, looked up authorities all the way back to Julius Caesar, and prepared an argument of a few hundred pages which seemed to him unanswerable. His only fear was that it might be beyond the comprehension of the court.

When his case was called Mr. Marston When his case was called Mr. Marston rose with inward assurance and plunged in boldly. The judge seemed interested and he took heard. But at the end of an hour and a haif, in the minst of the most intricate part of his plea, he was pained to see what looked like a lack of attention on the part of the court.

It was as he had feared; the judge was unable to appreciate the nice points of his argument.

"Your honor," he said, "I beg your pardon, but do you follow me?"

"I have so far," answered the judge, th filing wearly about in his chair, "but I'll say frankly that if I thought I could find my way back, I'd quit right here."

Reaching the North Pole Not Impossible

By SIR JOHN MURRAY, K. C. B.,

In my opinion the poles-both north and south-might have been reached long ago if suitable expeditions had been fitted ont. Of this I am convinced. The discovery of the poles is chiefly a matter of time and cash. If our government would expend the same amount of money on a polar expedition that it does on one of our small wars, the north pole would be found quickly enough. But as there's nothing at the north pole to conquer except, Nature, no government is anxious to adopt any such policy. Hitherto everybody who has essayed the task has had to be content with relatively small means, and has thus been seriously handicapped.

I regard it as quite likely that Lieut. Peary will accomplish his object. He is starting from the American side, and he knows that he will have a long walk-one of about 1,200 miles from his ship to the pole and back. He will have the aid of a number of Eskimos, and will be in a position to undertake journeys which have not been possible to others. His apparatus, of course, will be fixed to sledges.

The qualifications necessary to a polar explorer are determination combined with the ability to make men work-that and money. The discovery of the north pole is not a desperately difficult problem. As I have pointed out, expeditions in the past have been organized in a niggardly spirit. There has been no adequate attempt on the part of a civilized nation to solve the secrets of the poles. The work has been left in the main to private individuals. If we were prepared to spend some hundreds of thousands of pounds the task would be rendered comparatively simple. There have always been thousands of first-rate young fellows-young fellows of a university stampeager to join expeditions to the poles, and this notwithstanding the miserable rate of pay that has prevailed,

The north pole is a sea almost entirely surrounded by land. The south pole is a continent surrounded by an ocean. Of this there is no doubt. Probably neither the north nor the south pole in the early stages of its history was covered by ice. No, I do not anticipate any wonderful revelations. There is not the slightest chance of meeting with human beings in either pole. There may be minerals in the south, but it is not probable that they will be of any commercial value.

The Public's Weapon Against Wrongdoers

By RICHARD P. WILLIAMS, Rector of Trinity P. E. Parish and Archdescon of Washington, D. C.

Toleration of wrongdoing beyond a certain point is condoning evil. Sympathy with a sinning individual is proper. But sympathy which does not condemn his sin is in itself sinful.

Sympathy which makes him think less of his errors is even criminal. Such sympathy never leads to reformation.

There is a condonation of wrong which is likely to undermine the foundations of society unless it is promptly suppressed. It is the continued social and official recognition of men high in office and eminent in social position who have violated positions of trust, or have been guilty of flagrant and open violation of the moral code.

Unless men who have confessedly been unfaithful to interests intrusted to them, but who cannot be convicted in a court of law, are punished by society, there will be no limit to the amount of similar

There is one penalty which will be more effectual than any other that can be devised. It is social ostracism. It is ecclesiastical osracism. And, lastly, political ostracism. In no way can such persons be reached so readily as by depriving them of their importance in society, the church and politics. And I take it those who still believe in morality and sterling honesty, those who still believe in the jewel of a good name, have it in their power to work a reformation among these high and lofty sinners, which the church alone cannot accom-

Our remedy lies with public opinion. Public opinion is but the aggregate of individual opinion. Where courts fail evil may be corrected in no other way. Men and women who love the thing which is right and hate the thing which is evil, should have the courage to use the weapon in their possession and bring offenders against society

The Unbelief of Believers

By REV. THEODORE VALAINT. Evangelist of Homeward Bound Mission, Washington.

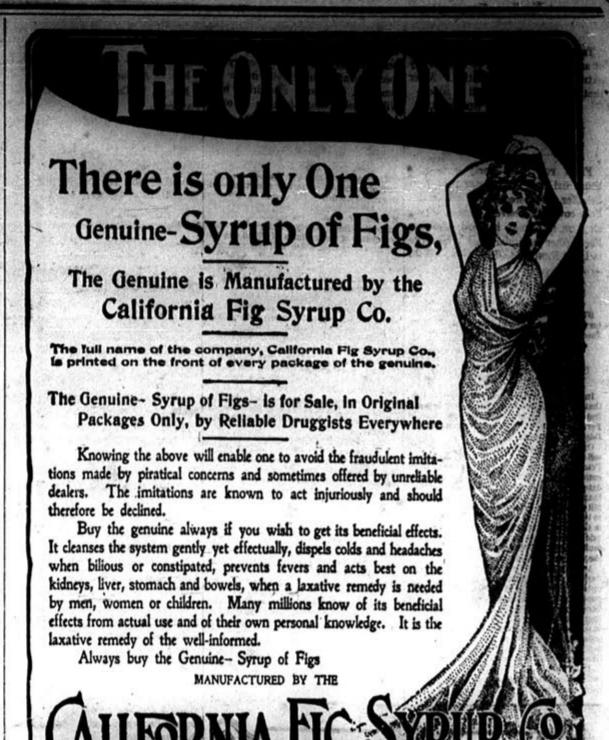

The unbelief of believers-this seems like a contradiction; it is in a certain sense a paradox, and yet in fact is true What we mean is that men accept a theory of truth, which does not have any influence or effect upon their conduct or character. All men believe in the virtrue of honesty, integrity and veracity, but all men do not practice these virtues, and some time almost all are guilty of an infraction of these principles. It is usually true that what a man is, is made by his faith, but it is not true that a man is made by what he believes.

Now, it is a truth that may be tested at will in any community that many people accept the doctrinal truths of the Christian religion who never even make a profession to obey its principles and precepts. They believe what they do not practice; that is, they accept as true the existence of God, the atonement of Christ, the authenticity of revelation and the ethical precepts which it prescribes, but they live and act as if none of these doctrines of the church were true.

But there is another class of believers to which we specially refer. It is the men and women who do not only accept at full value all doctrinal truths and ethical principles of Christianity, but they make a profession of religion and may even claim to have been converted. But there cause of religion and may even claim to have been converted. But there is no noticeable change in their lives. They are greedy and covetous. They are shrewd in business to the point of questionable transactions.

Their theory is all right. Their practice is mostly wrong. They believe, in that they do not deny the fundamental principle of religion, but they do not believe in any such sense as makes it possible for the grace of God to affect their conduct, purify their hearts or change their lives. The profession and the practice do not harmonize. It is the faith without works and it is dead.
