

WIFE'S SUCCESS KILLED LOVE

Dissensions, Misery and Divorce the Result of Husband's Wounded Egotism.

Average Man Must Be the Bread-Winner and the King or the Domestic Structure Is in Danger of Collapse—The Case of Burr Nichols and His Gifted Wife.

Shattered Romance of Two Artists Seems to Prove That a Woman Must Beware of Becoming More Famous Than Her Husband, in His Chosen Line of Work.

Jealousy, dissensions, misery and divorce. Are these the inevitable consequences when a wife is engaged in the same life occupation as her husband, when their lives move on parallel lines and with parallel ambitions, and when it is possible that the work of the wife exceeds in merit that of the husband?

So it would seem from the unhappy marital history of Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nichols, a history in which art and jealousy crept in at the door while love flew out through the window.

Her divorce has just been recorded in the New York supreme court.

It is not an altogether unusual thing nowadays for a wife to outdo her husband at his chosen occupation. In almost every instance where this occurs misery is the consequence.

Men do not like to have wives smarter than themselves, or more artistic, or wiser in a business way, or who win praise for doing things for which praise is usually accorded a man, declares a writer in the New York World.

Let a woman bake a fine pie, or do a fine bit of embroidery, or hem or stitch, or sew or keep a neat house, and the husband will listen to the world's praise of her with complacent satisfaction.

But let her keep to the kitchen, if you please, or play the piano in the parlor, or mother the children in the nursery, or do anything but step over the line of demarcation where he is boss.

He is the bread-winner and the king. Those in his kingdom must be weaker than himself and dependent upon him, or the whole domestic structure falls and there is no more happiness in the world.

ARTISTIC JEALOUSY CAUSES SEPARATION.

So it was with Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nichols, who now has her own studio, her own children, and her own lonely but even after she began to sell her pictures she continued to be an enthusiastic student.

She went to France and Italy, where she studied art in the best schools. She was successful there, and eventually went to South Africa and Asia for landscapes.

Still heartfree and winning her own way in the world, she settled down in Florence, where the air is the very breath of art, and where the sky is as tender as the eyes of love.

Here in the course of her work she met a young painter named Burr Nichols. He, too, was a fine artist, and their mutual tastes drew them much together.

It is strange that the very traits and characteristics and the mutual likes which give birth to love should in the end be the means of its death and funeral. The young artists did not dream of the truth of these things. How could the art from which love sprang be its murderer? Neither did they reckon of the future when they became engaged. Was there not the magic of love in their brushes? Were they not bohemians, enough to face the future with light hearts? Could they not paint the tearful eyes away from the face of sorrow, and put the cap and bells on the picture of poverty? On these fundamental beliefs, they were married.

Nichols, like his wife, was a fine painter. They lived an ideal life in their studio. They painted together, talked together, planned together, living and dreaming for each other.

Ah, what a little fraud love is after all! He had fired the last arrow in his quiver when he shot them through the hearts, and then he left them, deeming his duty done.

The Nichols artist family was increased by two lovely children as time passed, and their happiness increased accordingly.

DECIDE AMERICA IS BETTER FIELD.

While they were prosperous and contented in Florence they at last decided that they could better themselves in this country.

They came accordingly and settled down in the studio quarter in New York. They continued their successful career, disposing of their pictures as fast as they could paint them. They were happier than most married people. They made friendly criticisms of each other's work, adopted each other's suggestions, were forbearing and forgiving, as men and wives should be.

In 1897 Mr. Nichols began a picture which, as it developed and the inspiration took wings within him, he resolved to send to the Paris Salon. As the idea grew his work became more painstaking. Should he succeed, the added incentive as well as the prestige it would give him would be of

Then followed a period of deep anxiety in which two souls joined. Impatiently they awaited the issue. In a month the answer came. The picture had been accepted and would be displayed "on the line."

Joy reigned in the Nichols household. They would now paint with a deep and strong foundation of success under them. The Paris Salon had spoken and the Paris Salon was mighty. The picture had secured "honorable mention."

The husband resolved to paint another picture for the following year's Salon. The wife would try it, too, she said. Was not her husband's success her own? If she should succeed, would not her success be gracious in the eyes of her lord and master?

Mr. Nichols smilingly gave his assent to the plan and they set to work fatal blow, and under that blow love withered. There was no more peace, no more happiness in the household. Seeing this, the children were silent and miserable.

But the last straw came when Mrs. Nichols' picture, her famous "Scarlet Letter," received encomiums on both sides of the Atlantic. The husband had never done anything like it.

After a year of trouble the couple separated, the husband going away and the wife remaining to work out her own career.

Thereafter her existence was peaceful, if lonely. There was but one case now, and one painter. There was but one ambition, and that was the support and education of her children. Art for art's sake was no more. Love for love's sake was a farce.

The woman continued to work

with light hearts. Mrs. Nichols could only paint between the intervals of caring for her children, but she went at the work with a light heart, hoping against hope for success.

The two painters wrought and labored side by side. They saw their separate efforts grow from mute outlines, and take form and shape according to their ideas.

FIND HAPPINESS IN COOPERATION.

Up to this time not a cloud had marred their domestic sky. They were happy, with the careless happiness of children. Their art was a joy—a play to them.

And so they played together until the paintings were finished. In order to insure separate consideration they were packed and shipped in separate boxes to the Paris Salon, where sit the world's arbiters in art.

In due time Mrs. Rhoda Holmes and Mr. Burr Nichols received their respective verdicts.

For Mrs. Rhoda Holmes it was: "Painting accepted and given honorable mention."

For Mr. Burr Nichols it was: "Painting judged unworthy; hereby returned."

Here fell the shadow, if we are to believe those who sympathize with Mrs. Nichols. Here entered the note of discord. Here was the parting of the ways whereby two souls became estranged, through the life of earth and the eternity of heaven.

With the wife's joy was a feeling of sincere sorrow for her husband. He had worked so hard. He had hoped for so much. Why could not both of them have won?

Although the shadow was in his heart, the husband spoke bravely of the future. "Let us try it again, he said; 'we may both win next time.'"

And so they went to work for a second trial. Side by side they painted as before. But now there stood a ghost between them—the impalpable shadow of jealousy and discontent. The wife, perceiving this, grieved much over it. The husband, imagining things that were not, grew gloomy and taciturn.

In due time the two pictures were packed in separate crates and shipped to Paris and in due time the answers came back.

His answer was a box with his picture, returned with a due acknowledgment; hers an acceptance with honorable mention.

Then, say Mrs. Nichols' friends, the man's nature seemed to change entirely. He became grumpy and cross. Nothing seemed to please him. The iron had entered his soul. The wife had outdone the husband in his chosen sphere of life. Oh, strange phase of a man's nature which makes such a thing unforgivable!

Some old philosopher has called love "the egotism of two." The egotism of Burr Nichols had received a bravely. She could have gone to France or Italy, where her young artist days were passed, but she preferred to remain in this country and educate her children. She took a studio at East Gloucester, Mass.

In her artistic career she won eleven medals. She had shown pictures at the exhibition of the Roman Water Color society in 1883; she was hung on the line at Turin, Milan, the Royal academy at Paris in 1900, at the Chicago and Pan-American exhibitions, at Atlanta, Nashville, Cleveland and the Boston Triennial in 1896.

She is a member of many art clubs and societies and was for nine years vice president of the Water Color club of New York, is a member of the National Arts club, the American Water Color society, the New York Water Color club, the Barnard club, Pen and Brush, the Woman's Art club, the American Society of Miniature Painters and an associate member of the Woman's Art Club of Canada.

MUTUAL HAPPINESS IN CHILDREN'S LOVE.

For eight years Rhoda Holmes Nichols has never ceased to struggle. She has earned a fair competence and has led a retired life, but gradually she is learning to be happy again—happy in the love of her children, which knows no distrust or jealousy.

The other day the curtain fell on the last act in this strange marital drama.

Mrs. Rhoda Holmes Nichols received a decree of absolute divorce, carrying with it the legal custody of the children, and authority to resume her maiden name.

Incompatibility was the cause given, but the divorce papers are sealed. Mrs. Rhoda Holmes is still young and much of life is yet before her. But it is doubtful if she will ever again regard love as anything but a mirage of the youthful brain, an unsubstantial dream, the flesh tints laid upon the bones of an awful skeleton.

But the experience of Mrs. Holmes is not singular. So long as man's nature remains unchanged, just so long will he demand the leadership of the family, both mentally and physically. The spiritual crown he accords to woman without question.

Moral: Do not heat your husband at anything he may undertake.

Free Beds for Cats.

In an animal hospital in Philadelphia there is a free bed for cats, endowed by a servant, Ruth Darling, who died in that city some years ago. She had always liked animals, and left her savings to provide free treatment of ailing pets in the Mahor animal hospital, where it takes the form of a commodious iron cage with the inscription "The Ruth Darling Bed" on it in gold letters. This bed has always a long list of cats waiting to be treated. During one year as many as 56 were cared for

How to Preserve Health.

TOO FEW SEEM TO KNOW HOW TO KEEP WELL.

Art That Is Worth Studying—Principles Are Very Simple and Can Be Told in Few Words—Beware of Worry.

BY MARGARET E. GANGSTER.

Considering the trouble we all take about getting well when we are ill, it is extraordinary that some of us take so little pains to keep well.

The latest theory of science is opposed to a common belief that some people are born well and others born ill. The babe in the hut and the babe in the palace each arrives in the world with a certain capital stock on which he may draw. Whether we accept this or deny it, the probability is that most of us could keep well after childhood if only we knew how. We play with our health as a boy plays at marbles. We take risks, we do foolish things, we leave undone things that we plainly ought to do. Everybody has seen, for instance, the frail tenure of life held by an invalid who is always looking out and protecting herself from peril; such an invalid often outlives care-takers who are strong and neighbors who are overflowing with robust vitality. We have seen, too, a man of active temperament, brisk and impulsive and full of business, have marked him as one who has long life before him, and have presently been horrified when he falls exhausted by the way. He did not know how to keep well.

The art of keeping well is worth studying. Its principles are very simple. Nothing particularly occult or particularly puzzling belongs to it. They who wish to keep well must beware not of draughts, not of fresh air, not of sunshine, or rain, but primarily must avoid too great fatigue. The normal human being who is in good health is able to endure a certain amount of strain and to carry a certain amount of weight.

It is not doing the day's work that tells upon health and brings it to the breaking point; it is doing the bit too much that in the end causes weariness of mind and body and makes a person what is called run-down. To be run down in nerves or in strength is perilous.

"I took cold when I was tired," is a common expression and describes a common experience. Don't get tired and you won't take cold.

Another prescription for keeping well is eliminate worry. Worried people are very seldom well people. Worry frets mind and body as moth frets the fabric of a beautiful garment. Worry corrodes the soul as rust corrodes metal. From all sides comes the protest, "It is easy enough to say don't worry, but how is one to help it, if he be of a worrying disposition or if things are contrary?"

Days dawn with frowning faces and through all their course they seem to bring nothing but disaster, disappointment and defeat. Nothing goes right from morning till night. The letter you expected does not come, the bargain you hoped for falls to pieces and the money you counted on is delayed. You thought the children were safe in school or at their play, and one of them sickens with scarlet fever and another with whooping cough, and another falls from a tree and breaks an arm or a collar bone. Your partner in business is grumpy, your best stenographer announces her engagement and the clerk you depended upon goes to another house, while the one who was inefficient and incapable stays on your hands. You don't want to dismiss him because you have a soft-hearted feeling that if he is out of work his wife and children will suffer. So it goes. At the best of times there is occasion for a lot of worry in this world unless we make up our mind firmly that worry is both weak and wicked and that we will not walk this road carrying it as a pilgrim-pack to crush our strength and bow our shoulders. Take the road cheerfully, friend. Philosophy and faith and religion combine to bid you cease useless worry.

"God's in His heaven,
In the art of keeping well, the art of keeping an easy mind takes high place.

Avoid drugs. Avoid stimulants. Avoid crutches. The habit of resorting to a pick-me-up of some sort when one feels the faintness of exhaustion is fatal. Drugs should never be taken except by the order of physicians who have a reason for prescribing them. Whether they excite or depress the heart, whether they give a transient sense of increased power, or a transient desire to sleep, they are not for you and me to meddle with. Especially unwise if you wish to keep well, is the yielding to temptation in the matter of bitterns, cordials or other liquors and syrups having an alcoholic basis. Tea and coffee are the only stimulants in ordinary use that may be taken with safety, and it is an open question whether or not nine-tenths of us would not be much better if we used them sparingly. The effect on the nervous system of too much indulgence in either tea or coffee is marked. Nobody can be called well who acknowledges slavery to any article of food or drink. We should rule our diet, not let it rule us.

In order to keep well, we must eat regularly. Three meals a day is a good rule for some; others may need four or five, and others may do better and be more comfortable if they limit themselves to two. A good deal depends on one's tendency to leanness or to flesh, and a good deal also depends on the work one has to do. Dyspepsia is due to eating too much or eating when one is over-tired, so that the brain cannot supply enough nervous fluid to aid digestion. For our national tendency to dyspepsia there is not the slightest excuse. It is always a blunder and often a crime. Violation of God's laws written so plainly that we may read them without spectacles, is at the bottom of the anguish and irritation of dyspepsia.

If you would keep well, do not forget that the wasted tissues of the body are repaired by sleep. Plenty of sleep in well ventilated rooms, with a good conscience will do much to make you well if you are ill, and to keep you well in ordinary circumstances. "Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep." "Sleep that knits up the raveled sleeve of care is the handmaid to perfect health."

Trimming for the Hat.

New and Old Combinations Are Both in Style.

Felt trimmed with velvet, is an old combination, but velvet with felt is a new one. Ning out of ten hats show wonderfully interesting effects are got by daring contrasts.

Plumes are as good as ever they were—and better even than that, if that be possible—but they are almost invariably the uncurled kind.

Buckles share in the trimming honors of every sort of hat, from the smartest of large hats—almost picture-types, which seem so much more dressy in that very difference of size from walking hats. One stunning little hat was a simple black felt sailor, simply "made," by the way wide plaid ribbon was drawn through a great jet buckle, crushed round the crown, and tied in a great, swashing bow low on the hair.

Leather Trimming.

They are going to trim gowns with leather this fall and this, while it may be good news to the woman who can afford leather, is a sorry tale for her who cannot afford to it. But, for the woman who cannot afford leather, it may be related that there are dull silks which take the place of suede very nicely. If she does not care to buy dull silk, the woman who is doing her own home dressmaking, can get a very good lightweight cloth of dull finish. This is quite as good as leather, for it resembles it so closely.

Marguerite Luncheon.

At a Marguerite luncheon, described in "What to Eat," there was a small glass bowl of the white marguerites at each cover and a large bowl in the center. The ice was served in daisy cups and the salad decorated with daisies made of hard-boiled egg white and yolks. The cakes were sprinkled with petals of slices of almonds.

course in life, separate and distinct from that of her divorced husband.

Before Rhoda Holmes married she was known as now as a water-color painter of much merit. Her pictures were sought by dealers and connoisseurs, who paid good prices for them.

Being an artist, she naturally became well known in the New York artist colony around Fifty-seventh street and Eighth avenue. She was pretty and popular and good.

Miss Holmes was not only a painter, priceless value in his future work.

The wife watched his work with the greatest solicitude and pride. She encouraged him and gave him loving and unstinted praise. She put her own brush by to watch his. To her his work afforded a period of self-abnegation in which all her being was wrapped up in his.

Eventually the great painting was finished. With the utmost care they packed it and sent it off to the Paris Salon.

They would be making more sensible use of their time, even though no attention was paid to them, if the individuals and the here and there insistent political groups who are declaring for tariff changes as a means of increasing our home and foreign trade should drop the tariff subject and give their attention for a time to railroad management and in manufacturing directions. Our home trade has now reached proportions too great for the present freight facilities of the United States to handle, and thousands of men are now working night and day in building more freight cars and more freight engines to meet the needs in that direction. In the iron trade, too, and in some other lines, orders are more than a year ahead of production. This situation would hardly seem to suggest tariff changes as a means of increasing our home trade. The tariff changes proposed would probably relieve the conditions referred to very promptly, but in a way that would be neither desirable or helpful.

Where did you get it all? Should have been one of candidate Kimmerle's questions concerning the millions of dollars in the state treasury. He was seemingly anxious to know if the money was all safely deposited and if the interest payments were being promptly made, but the Cass county man had no curiosity as to where Michigan's millions came from. Perhaps it occurred to Mr. Kimmerle that an answer to the question as to where the money came from would include a review of successful republican state management which would not help his cause.

The state campaign being waged in behalf of the democratic party in Michigan took a rest for a few days last week while Mr. Kimmerle attended the annual meeting of the Cass county board of Supervisors. Mr. Kimmerle seems to be practical as well as inquisitive. The job he is now attached to in Cass county is a bird in the hands of more importance to him than any number of elusive and impossible governorships.

It Costs Nothing

To find out for a certainty whether or not your heart is affected. One person in four has a weak heart; it may be you. If so, you should know it now, and save serious consequences. If you have short breath, fluttering, palpitation, hungry spells, hot flushes; if you cannot lie on left side; if you have fainting or smothering spells, pain around heart, in side and arms, your heart is weak, and perhaps diseased. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure will relieve you. Try a bottle, and see how quickly your condition will improve.

"About a year ago I wrote to the Miles Medical Co., asking advice, as I was suffering with heart trouble, and had been for two years. I had pain in my heart, back and left side, and had not been able to draw a deep breath for two years. Any little exertion would cause palpitation, and I could not lie on my left side without suffering. They advised me to try Dr. Miles Heart Cure and Nervine, which I did with the result that I am in better health than I ever was before, having gained 14 pounds since I commenced taking it. I took about thirteen bottles of the two medicines, and haven't been bothered with my heart since."

MRS. LILLIE THOMAS, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.

It is impossible to estimate the full extent of the loss but it is known to be considerable. Entrance to the building was obtained by breaking the glass in the front door. On Monday morning when Mr. Labre went to open up his store he found a large hole in the front door, goods overturned in every direction and every evidence of burglary. Mr. Labre at once notified the officials of the surrounding towns by telephone, to be on the watch for burglars. Suspicion was soon directed at a man named George Seibolt at Powers, who seemed to have a great many pennies, with which he paid for his meals and drinks. George Labre immediately went to Powers, and, concealing his identity, became quite familiar with the suspected man. It was not long before Seibolt tried to sell him a razor which had Labre's mark on it and a new pair of gloves, and incriminated himself to such an extent, that his arrest soon followed. The prisoner is a old man of a decided tramp variety. He claims to have secured the goods which were found on him, in the copper country, from where he had just arrived. He was taken to Escanaba Tuesday evening and is now lodged in the county jail. It is thought that there were more than one person connected with this robbery and efforts are being made to locate the prisoner's partner.

THE DINNER TABLE.

SIMPLE ADORNMENT NOW THE INVARIABLE RULE.

Era of Elaboration Has Passed, and the Up-to-Date Hostess Will Have Nothing But Simple Centerpieces.

Simplicity and refinement provide the keynote for the well appointed table of today. The era of plush centerpieces and satin ribbon sashes has passed away. So, too, has the looking glass lake, with china ducks and swans placidly resting on its surface and an island of ferns and flowers rising mountainously in the middle. Tall decorations, whether of flowers or potted plants, are, in fact, tabooed among up-to-date hostesses. There never was a shadow of reasonable excuse for their popularity. Nothing is more exasperating than to be seated at a table where one can only guess at the identity of one's opposite neighbor.

The present-day table appointments are exquisitely chaste. Linens embroidered in colors are seen only at luncheons, when no tablecloth is used. At dinner all the table napery is pure white, this being the only correct background for the glittering services of silver and cut glass. If wax tapers are used they are placed in low and rather broad holders of silver, bronze or porcelain, and are usually fitted with silk shades representing the flower predominating in the table decorations. Often, however, electric lights are substituted for candles, each bulb being concealed in the heart of a flower. These are much prettier than candles, and are less liable to accident.

The popular centerpiece for ordinary use is a low-growing fern, set in a squat jardiniere of silver or porcelain. There is no daintier ornament for the round table, and it has been discovered that the delicate fern fronds of soft green have a peculiarly harmonious effect, not only upon the table appointments, but upon the guests. Green is a restful color, and discordance simply cannot long exist where it is the dominant note. It blends, too, with gowns of all shades, while flowers of brilliant hue often seem to scream at the gay colors around the table.

Long-stemmed roses, carnations or chrysanthemums are sometimes strewn upon the tablecloth instead of being placed in vases.

If artistically arranged the effect is pleasing, but the flowers wither quickly. When long-stemmed blossoms are placed in vases the latter are invariably of transparent crystal, extremely slender, and too high to obscure the vision of those seated at the table. Moreover, not more than two or three blossoms at most are placed in each. A bouquet of flowers or a "set piece" of any kind, is never seen.

It is considered ill-bred nowadays to place fruit upon the table; consequently the once inevitable epergnes, piled high with house delicacies, is among the things that were and are not. Baskets of porcelain or crystal are now preferred to fruit dishes, and these, with the rest of the dèsert service, are arranged upon the sideboard, whence they are transferred to the table when needed.

SUN BATHS FOR BEDDING.

Said to Be Guaranteed to Produce Healthy Sleep.

According to the latest health advisers, nothing induces healthy sleep like sun-bathed beds and bedding.

Instead of making your bed the first thing in the morning, take your mattress and bed clothing out into the garden, and lay them in the sun. Leave them long enough for the sweet fresh air and life-giving properties of the sun to be thoroughly absorbed, and to dispel the odors of the night.

Blankets are especially susceptible to bad odors, and if cleansed by the sun they renew the life-like elasticity of the natural wool which is so soothing to tired nerves. Moreover, it is astonishing how long sun-baked mattresses and pillows retain the sweet freshness of the outdoor world.

Delicacy Easily Made at Home.

The delicate cornucopias supplied by some bakers and caterers, which are filled with whipped cream and served as dessert at luncheons, are not difficult to make at home. A woman who has had success with them gives this receipt: She makes a batter with three-quarters of a cupful of sugar, half a cupful of flour and two well-beaten eggs. This she drops by the teaspoonful on to sheets of waxed paper, shaping each little mound into a very thin square. As soon as these square wafer-like cakes are baked she takes each in turn before it cools and becomes crisp and shapes it over her finger into a cornucopia. The cornucopias may be kept for days in a cool, dry place, without losing their shape. When they are wanted, fill them with sweetened and flavored whipped cream. Dot the fluffy tops with candied cherries or nuts and heap them in a glass dish.

Delicate Cake.

Rub three-quarters of a cupful of butter to a smooth cream with two cupfuls of sugar, adding one-half cupful of sweet milk, three cups of flour twice sifted with one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and the stiffly beaten whites of eight eggs, adding the flour and eggs alternately. Almond or other delicate extract can be used for flavoring.—Home Magazine.

Kept Tax Receipts Long.

Charles King, of East Liberty, a suburb of Pittsburgh, is what might be termed a careful man. He has been a voter in the East Liberty district since 1857 and when asked on the last registration day if he had a tax receipt he pulled from a pocket tax receipt for the last 41 years. When asked by the registrar if he had any more he replied that if he went down deep into his "strong box" at home he might possibly find a few dating long back before the oldest member of the board was born. Mr. King is now 78 years old, having been born in Baltimore in 1823, removing to East Liberty in 1857. His first presidential vote was cast for John C. Fremont and his last for Theodore Roosevelt. He is a staunch Republican and as a contractor and brick manufacturer for half a century has contributed much to the up-building and growth of East Liberty.

Industrious French Workmen.

Nearly all the workmen employed in the naval arsenal at Toulon, France, add to their salaries by exercising another trade during their leisure hours. Some are hotel carpet beaters, others distribute prospectuses and handbills, or act as parcel carriers for local shopkeepers. One man complained recently in all seriousness that he was so overworked at the arsenal that he had no time to exercise his profession of masseur. A number of arsenal hands actually carry on their supplementary trades in the yards. There are amateur shoemakers, watchmakers and barbers, who carry on a thriving and lucrative business among their comrades.

Adopt American Ideas.

The Russian military authorities are considering the adoption of khaki uniforms, the czar having been especially interested in one recently worn by an American army representative at St. Petersburg. The military authorities are also considering American accoutrements, including web cartridge belts and cavalry saddles, with a view to their adoption.

INTERESTING CONTEST.

Heavy Cost of Unpaid Postage.

One of the most curious contests ever before the public was conducted by many thousand persons under the offer of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., of Battle Creek, Mich., for prizes of 31 boxes of gold and 300 greenbacks to those making the most words out of the letters Y-I-O-Grape-Nuts.

The contest was started in February, 1906, and it was arranged to have the prizes awarded on Apr. 30, 1906.

When the public announcement appeared many persons began to form the words from these letters, sometimes the whole family being occupied evenings, a combination of amusement and education.

After a while the lists began to come in to the Postum Office and before long the volume grew until it required wagons to carry the mail. Many of the contestants were thoughtless enough to send their lists with insufficient postage and for a period it cost the Company from twenty-five to fifty-eight and sixty dollars a day to pay the unpaid postage.

Young ladies, generally those who had graduated from the high school, were employed to examine these lists and count the correct words. Webster's Dictionary was the standard and each list was very carefully corrected except those which fell below 8000 for it soon became clear that nothing below that could win. Some of the lists required the work of a young lady for a solid week on each individual list. The work was done very carefully and accurately but the Company had no idea, at the time, the offer was made, that the people would respond so generally and they were compelled to fill every available space in the offices with these young lady examiners, and notwithstanding they worked steadily, it was impossible to complete the examination until Sept. 29, over six months after the prizes should have been awarded.

This delay caused a great many inquiries and naturally created some dissatisfaction. It has been thought best to make this report in practically all of the newspapers in the United States and many of the magazines in order to make clear to the people the conditions of the contest.

Many lists contained enormous numbers of words which, under the rules, had to be eliminated "Pegger" would count "Peggars" would not. Some lists contained over 50,000 words, the great majority of which were cut out. The largest lists were checked over two and in some cases three times to insure accuracy.

The $100,000 gold prize was won by L. D. Reese, 1227-15th St., Denver, Colo., with 9941 correct words. The highest $10,000 gold prize went to S. K. Fraser, Lincoln, Pa., with 9921 correct words.

A complete list of the 331 winners with their home addresses will be sent to any contestant enquiring on a postal card.

Be sure and give name and address clearly. This contest has cost the Co. many thousand dollars, and probably has not been a profitable advertisement, nevertheless perhaps some who had never before tried Grape-Nuts food have been interested in the contest, and from trial of the food have been shown its wonderful rebuilding powers.

It teaches in a practical manner that scientifically gathered food elements can be selected from the field grains, which nature will use for rebuilding the nerve centres and brain in a way that is unmistakable to users of Grape-Nuts. "There's a reason."

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

How a Veteran Was Saved the Amputation of a Limb.

B. Frank Doremus, veteran, of Roosevelt Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy. I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 34 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it, and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the urine became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y."

Animals Do with Little Water.

There are some animals which rarely drink; for instance, the llamas, of Patagonia, and certain gazelles of the far east. A number of snakes, lizards and other reptiles live in places devoid of water. A bat of western America inhabits waterless plains. In parts of Lozere, France, there are herds of cows and goats which hardly ever drink and yet produce the milk for Roquefort cheese.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.
