SAND.

THE LADY and the Lucie are both outfitting.

MARSHAL STERN makes his predecessor, Mr. McCarthy, his deputy.

THE May term of court, which should open on Wednesday, May 9, has been adjourned until Monday, May 14.

IT DOES, really, look as though Gen. Alger would be "the man" before the date of the convention and take the cake, easy.

MARRIED, in this city on Monday, April 23, by the Rev. C. H. Tyndall, H. F. May and Elletta Tower, both of Escanaba.

LOOK AGAIN at the call for the republican county convention on the 2d proximo, next Wednesday, and note the place and hour of meeting.

BESIDES the Norrie, mentioned last week, the Superior and the mines belonging to the Penn Co., the Vulcans, have begun to ship ore, or rather to send it hither for shipment.

THE Chicago company's dredge was fired up last Tuesday and is now at work finishing the work at the new lumber dock, left unfinished when the freeze up came last fall.

NUMBER FOUR ore dock is so far advanced toward completion that the day for opening is fixed. Unless some catastrophe occurs to prevent it will be ready to receive ore next Tuesday.

THE Mirror took shelter in the rink while its new building was going up. It was not a very comfortable place, but it was better than out of doors. Phil will get into his new house next week, D. V.

WHO SAYS Escanaba really is a bad investment? A. Ladue, on Tuesday, sold lot 6 block 87, corner of Ludington and Sarah streets, which he purchased less than a year since for $450 on contract, paying only $125 down for $1,100, cash.

THE outfit for the tracklaying and the steel for the extension of the Northwestern to Michigamme and Republic is on the ground, waiting for the melting of the snow and ice. It is intended to have the work complete by May 31, at the latest.

ED. F. DIMOCK & Co. succeed to the business of F. W. McKinney & Co. in this city. It is a change of name only. Mr. Dimock remaining in charge as heretofore but M. McKinney retaining an interest. Gladstone occupies Me fully just now.

THE LIQUOR law may be unconstitutional; of that we do not undertake to judge, but until it is so declared by competent authority it is law and should be obeyed. The city council, it may be remarked, is not "competent authority," nevertheless it acts as though the law was "of no effect."

THE Iron Herald insists that the Jackson company's furnace, when it shall be moved from Fayette, will go to Negaunee. Says the company owns the land for a site there, etc. As the Cochrane company has just been given a site here free of cost it may occur to the Herald that the furnace need not go to Negaunee for a site.

HENRY MEIER, one of the pioneers of our city, he having been a resident thereof for more than twenty-two years, died on Monday evening last, and was buried on Wednesday. As his name indicates he was of German origin, having been a native of Hesse Darmstadt, and was almost 63 years of age at the time of his death.

THE OFFICERS of the I. Stephenson company are Hon. Isaac Stephenson, president; Charles J. Barnes, vice president; George T. Burns, secretary and treasurer, (Escanaba and Wells); Charles W. Wells, assistant treasurer, Chicago; S. W. Wyatt, manager, Chicago.

THE company takes possession of the property on Tuesday next.

THE ALPHA was fired up and attacked the ice in the harbor Tuesday morning, breaking her way from her winter berth to the coal dock. She found the ice 18 inches thick under the snow and hard as nails. Capt. Neville is pushing the work of outfitting the Samuel Mather and the chances are that he will be fighting his way out through the ice before any other tries to break the way in.

THE MAYOR is the oldest lawyer in the county and the city attorney is no chicken, and between them the transactions of the city government ought to be kept pretty near the mark; but there are citizens who do not understand where the council gets its authority to change the form of the bond prescribed by the statute for liquor dealers, or to accept as bondsmen persons whom the law proscribes; and some of those persons propose proceedings to find out.

EDWIN CLIFFORD and a strong dramatic company will begin a three-night engagement at Opera hall commencing Tuesday, May 1, producing "Galley Slave," "A Wife's Peril," and "East Lynne." Mr. Clifford has surrounded himself with a strong supporting company and the plays are rendered in a first class manner. Clifford never failed to please the theater going citizens of Escanaba. Reserved seats, for all three nights, now on sale at Mead's. Tickets 50 cents.

WE HAD confidently anticipated a large reduction in the number of places for the sale of liquor to result from the increase of the tax and the stringent provisions of the law with regard to closed days, bonds, etc. It appears that we reckoned from insufficient data. The council approved the bonds of forty-nine firms and individuals who propose to continue in the business and appointed a committee to attend to such others as should want attention before the next meeting of the council, and the prospect seems to be that we shall have as many saloons as ever. You see, we counted on the council and the city officers for more than we ought; we expected them to pay an outward respect to the law of the state and to insist that others should do so, whether they approved of the law or not, so we got left; they do nothing of the sort; of the forty-nine bonds approved Tuesday evening very few are such as the law demands and prescribes—some have portions erased, one liquor dealer is accepted as surety for another on some, men appear as sureties without making oath to the possession of the property required, and other irregularities occur—but there was no scrutiny, no (or almost no) opposition and the whole batch went through the mill without a hitch. The council can not expect the persons giving these bonds to attach any importance to them—can not expect the business to be carried on as the law prescribes—can not expect the men who pay the tax to pay more respect to the law than they do themselves, or if they do expect it they'll be as badly fooled as were we. The spasm of reform that took the trade about the time the new law went into effect has passed—the curtains and screens are no longer removed on Sundays and back and side doors are open and trade is brisk all day. They want prohibition, evidently, and are taking the proper way to bring it about. If we were in the trade in this region we'd do just so; but it would bankrupt the city treasury and we don't just understand the action of the city fathers.

FOR ONCE, because we think we know the writer and that he omitted his signature thro' carelessness and for the further reason that the matter thereof need offend no one, we give place to an anonymous communication. If we are correct in our surmise as to its authorship the writer holds a position in his township that gives weight to his words and has sand to follow them up in action if need be:

BARK RIVER, April 23, '88.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

There are a goodly number of Indians that are a-getting too much liquor for their good, and are making a great deal of trouble, by way of disturbing people at all hours of the night and sleeping in straw stacks and barns. When asked where they get their liquor they answer "Escanaba." Now, I hope those who handle the stuff will look into this matter at once, for if I find any more of these Indians drunk, lying around the streets, I will try and carry out the provisions of the law. Hoping that you may all take this in a kind and friendly way, for it is not that I have anything against you, but that I don't want to arise some fine morning and find my buildings in ashes, I put this question for your consideration: Will you obey the law? *

WE HAVE been shown a letter from one speaking by authority from which we are allowed to quote the following words: "As I have to go south to be gone until the 3rd or 4th of May, I am not sure that I will be able to have the deed placed in Mr. Royce's hands before that time. I can only say that I can assure you and you are authorized to state for Mrs. Ludington that the deed will be properly executed, without any reservations, and will be forwarded to Escanaba within a week or ten days." He is talking, our readers will understand, of the deed for the site of the Cochrane company's works.

ONE bondsman, going upon a dozen or so bonds for liquor dealers, was careful to have the lines in the qualifying affidavit which declared that he was not surety on any other, similar, bond erased; but others being surety on two, three or four bonds, took no such pains—"subscribed and swore," in each instance, that they were not "surety on any other bond." They are regarded as honest men too; men whose word is to be depended upon. Queer: Don't see how they square their consciences.

COAL will have good dispatch hereafter. The railway company is rebuilding the derricks now and for some years in use, and so improving them as considerably to increase their efficiency, and has bought three new ones, of the sort called "Champion," built at Cleveland, which are now on the way hither and will be in position by the time they are needed. The capacity of the plant for handling coal will be more than double what it was last year when all is done.

THE Metropolitan accommodation train, westward bound Wednesday morning, ran into and through a herd of deer about a mile east of Foster City and so wounded four of them that they were captured and killed. It would be expected that they would be thin at this season but Baggage's Hill, who gives as the item, says they were not, but were in fair flesh and made good venison. There were 20 in the herd.

CHARLES LARS, a lad five years of age, was seriously if not fatally injured by the kick of a mule at Ford River Thursday.

ASHLAND's big blast furnace has begun to sell iron, the first shipment having gone to the Malleable Iron works at Racine this week.

GEORGE NEVILLE, an elder brother of Capt. N. of the Sam. Mather, was killed by a fall from the staging in the shippyard in which he was employed, at Cleveland, last Monday.

A YOUNG man of our city attempted suicide last Wednesday but was prevented. Time to brace up, boy. One live, sober man is worth a graveyard full of dead men for any use. Take a tumble to the facts—drop the bowl and be a man; it's in you.

SECRETARY Vilas' man Gregory had to step down and out—the investigation "got him." It is to be hoped that the investigation will be thorough and long continued enough to exonerate the secretary or start him on the same trail that Gregory took, resignation. If his hands are clean it should be shown—if not they should not hold a portfolio in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet.

JAMES VAN RENSSLAER puts in a claim for an undivided one half interest in the land, or a part of it, on which the Soo is built—says his grandfather owned it and his uncle got away with the whole business at his grandfather's death, choosing his sister, Van's mother, out of her equal share. Van's grandchildren may get something if his claim is valid—he won't live long enough.

THE question is raised as to where, in charter or statute, the council found its authority to delegate its power to approve or disapprove liquor dealers' bonds to a committee of three. It makes no difference in the result, the committee can not pay less attention to the law than did the council itself—but the question is pertinent. Perhaps his honor the mayor or the counsel for the city will point out the place—article and section.

MONTREAL dispatches of the 21st announce the purchase of the "Soo" line by the Canadian Pacific. If it be true the change of ownership has come about a little sooner than we had anticipated, but is not, therefore, a surprise. It has been inevitable from the start. It will be a good change for the road and the country it traverses—the C. P. company knows what to do with a road and has some financial strength.

THE Board of Pharmacy sends us, with the request that we publish it, a digest of the law relating to the business of selling drugs. We have not room and it is sufficient to say that every dealer in drugs should read up the law and every person intending to enter the business should do so even more carefully, or they'll get into trouble—the board is after all incompetent or unauthorized persons with a very sharp stick.

In the May number of the Atlantic Monthly Harry James reaches a dramatic climax in his search for "The Aspen Papers," which meet a most unexpected fate in this issue. The story of "Yone Santo, a child of Japan," by E. H. House, is continued with undiminished vigor; and the many admirers of Charles Egbert Coadock (Miss Murfree) will be delighted with the artistic progress of her serial novel, "The Despot of Broomfield Cove." Among recent brilliant contributions to periodical literature, nothing more powerful than "Cicero in the senate," by Harriet Waters Preston, has appeared; it is an article at once entertaining, luminous, and instructive, and will add materially to Miss Preston's fame as an author. In "The Cavalier," by Angus Reppier, a strong side light is thrown upon the character and career of Graham of Claverhouse; "The Emperor William" is the title of a timely and remarkably intelligent article by Herbert Tuttle; in a quaint monograph entitled "Po' Sandy," Charles W. Chesnut shows that the ancient superstitions of India have found lodgment even among the negroes of North Carolina; and Frank Gaylord Cook's thoughtful article on "Reforms in the celebration of marriage" forms a logical supplement to his investigations with regard to the historical aspect of marriage. So much is written concerning that extraordinary man, perhaps the greatest of any this country ever produced, that we seldom expect any positively new information concerning Benjamin Franklin. In her review of "The American Philosophical Society," however, Annie H. Wharton indicates particular reasons why we should be grateful to Franklin on grounds not heretofore emphasized. We had not expected to hear from Olive Thorn Miller that, to her, any bird could ever be "utterly unlovely," and yet that is just what she says of a certain oriole, in her paper, with the significant title "A Discard in Feathers." The usual Book Review and "Contributors' Club" conclude an excellent number. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, or news-men here, or with the IRON PORT for $5.

WARD CAUCUS.

The Republicans of the 2d ward will hold caucus, to select delegates to the county convention to be held May 2, at Wixson's gallery south side of Ludington street on Monday evening April 30, at 8 p. m.

Our Initial Enterprise,

The Cochrane

Roller-Mill Company

Organized and Ready for Work.

The meeting of the shareholders of the above named company held at Music hall on Tuesday evening put the enterprise fairly under way. The company was organized by the choice of seven directors, the persons chosen being William F. Cochrane, Valency E. Fuller, James H. Macdonald, Hiram A. Barr, Joseph F. Karns, John McKay and Hugh E. Macdonald.

The directors then made choice of V. E. Fuller for president, W. F. Cochrane for vice-president, James H. Macdonald for treasurer. Messrs. Cochrane, Barr and J. H. Macdonald a committee to carry on the construction of the works, and authorized Mr. Cochrane to proceed to purchase the necessary machinery and tools. They also decided on the employment of Joseph H. Karns, formerly superintendent of the Noye works at Buffalo, as managing director, of Samuel R. Campbell, from the same establishment, as superintendent, and of Albert Muellen, from the Smith Purifier shop at Jackson, as draughtsman. These engagements, however, not to take effect until the works are ready to go into operation.

The contract with Mr. Cochrane and the transfer of his patents to the company had been previously made, the bylaws adopted, the title to the land whereon to build the works received and other necessary preliminaries gotten through with so that nothing now remains to do but to build and put in operation the works. Plans in outline of the building were submitted and explained, and yesterday the directors entered upon the work of construction, one starting for the south to order the tools and machinery and others taking up the work here, the preparation of the grounds, the purchase of material and erection of the buildings. The works will be at first of a size to employ three hundred men and it is intended that they shall be in operation before the close of the summer.

The effect of the enterprise is already felt in the appreciation in value of property at the west end of town but that is as nothing to the results that will flow from the establishment of this, the first of the manufacturing establishments of our city. At last Escanaba ceases to be a mere "railroad town" and takes rank as an independent city, with a life of its own.

NOW'S A GOOD TIME to subscribe for the IRON PORT. We shall begin next week a new serial, "Under a Cloud," founded on the fact of the "Jim Cummings" express robbery.

Marine.

The Arundell was pinched by the ice in Thunder Bay on the 18th and badly crushed. Her bulkheads kept her afloat and she worked out and returned to Bay City.

Capt. James Miller after visiting the straits and examining the ice says "5th of May or later" when asked about the prospect of an opening.

The Welland canal opened Monday. The first passage was the steamer Ohio, from Toledo with corn.

The Erie canal will be opened May 7.

Capt. Hogg says that the damage to the Susquehanna last season, said then to have been only a broken plate, was much more extensive—that $25,000 was expended during the winter to make it good.

The Melvina, of Charlevoix, will have the spars of the Myosotis this season.

The Lawrence tried her rope Monday but could get no farther than Frankfort.

The lighthouse at Grosse Point, lake St. Clair, was towed to position and the light shown last Monday.

Entrance to Manistee river is partially obstructed by a sunken wreck.

Water is very low in Chicago creek and all the loaded craft therein are aground. Forty thousand dollars has been appropriated to dredge it, but Commissioner Swift says $140,000 is needed.

Navigation of lake Ontario opened Monday, the Norseman arriving at Charlotte from Port Hope on that day.

The tug Paddy Murphy was burned off Dover Bay, lake Erie, April 24. No loss of life.

Wheeler, of Bay City launched the propellers Tom Adams and Post Boy this week.

The Algonquin, a new steamer for the lakes, Clyde built, is on the way over. She will be cut in two to get her through the Canadian canal.

Grain freights are a trifle higher. The light at Kenosha which was discontinued March 31, has been relighted. The lake Haron ice is heavy and is on the Michigan shore.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The German Kaiser suffers much. To his chaplain he said: "You pray for my preservation; pray rather for my release."

Just like a white man: A colored man of Sardis, Miss., found his wife and her shepherd in flagrant delicto, and killed the shepherd, one day last week.

The Northwestern Miller puts the shortage of wheat at over 18,000,000 bushels.

Father McFadden, the parish priest who was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for holding proscribed meetings, appealed, and on the trial of the appeal got six months instead of three.

An old negro named Kirkpatrick and his wife were killed by a mob at Gallatin, Tenn., on the night of the 18th. The woman was suspected of arson.

The Bethel home, a St. Louis charity, was burned on the night of the 19th and several persons lost their lives in it.

Fotheringham, the express messenger who was robbed by "Jim Cummings," got a verdict of $20,000 against the company for false imprisonment, but there's lots more "lawing" to do before he touches the money.

The first reduction of Dakota tin ores was made by the school of mines at Rapid City last week and proved the value of the deposit. Works will be built.

Pete McCartney, who has only been out of prison a month or two after serving eleven years for the same crime, was arrested at New Orleans last week for "shoving" notes raised from $1 to $50. He is safe for the remaining years of his life, now.

A. G. Owings was shot on April 7, the bullet penetrating the brain five inches, but lived and suffered no pain until the 19th when he became unconscious and died.

The Illinois Rolling Mill Co. is a new corporation which will make steel rails at or near Chicago.

Standard Oil tanks at Fort Wayne burned the 20th. Nobody mourns.

By the burning of the Bethel home at St. Louis four persons lost their lives and four others are likely to die of their hurts.

Base ball, in professional circles, is getting to be too much like prize fighting. Anson's men and the Hoosiers got to banging each other last week at Indianapolis.

Sioux City must spend half a million or more in dikes and the Missouri will eat up all the low ground on which it is built.

The big dam to provide a water supply for San Diego is completed. It makes a reservoir covering 750 acres.

Charles S. Boggs, rear admiral, retired, died last Sunday.

The Windsor hotel, Milwaukee, was on fire Sunday morning but was saved with trifling damage.

Senator Cullom has declared himself out of the race for the republican presidential nomination.

Mrs. Wolhaupter paid the fine for carrying concealed weapons and was released from arrest. Nothing relative to the Search murder was developed.

Anthony Comstock is in arrest for conspiracy to defraud one Hemmons and the evidence is pretty conclusive against him.

They have got through the books of the defaulting Kentucky treasurer, Tate, and find that the state has lost only $150,000. Tate took two thirds of that with him when he left.

A "Christian Science" doctress named Connors took charge of the confinement of a healthy young woman, Mrs. James, at Boston, and blundered so that both mother and child were sacrificed. The public prosecutor will try to have her punished.

Boyton finished his long swim, from Pittsburgh to Evansville, last Saturday and retires—will undertake no more such.

The Mississippi levee at Dubuque broke Saturday and all the low grounds are under water.

John A. Rice, of the Tremont house, Chicago, died last Saturday. He was 59 years of age.

A bogus dollar good enough in appearance to deceive bank tellers and ticket sellers at the railways has been shovled in the cities of New York and is coming west. Erie, Pa., caught a thousand or so of them last Saturday.

Carpenter, the portrait painter made a careful study of Mr. Conkling's face after his death and took measurements for a portrait. Mr. Conkling had consented to sit to Carpenter but had never done so and there is no portrait in existence.

Zeph Davis made an attempt to commit another murder Monday, attacking the prison doctor who refused to consider him insane.

Gen. Crook takes command of the department of the Missouri, headquarters Chicago. Gen. Howard stays on the Pacific.

An earthquake (another one) at Yunnan, China, is officially reported to have destroyed 4,000 lives and much property and wounded as many or more than were killed.

Senators Palmer and Stockbridge have each withdrawn their amendments to the bill to forfeit the O. & B. R. and other land grants. The bill drawn up by Senator Plumb will now, in all probability, go through.

The journeymen lakers of Chicago ran a successful strike this week—the bosses gave in before the day was over.

The Vatican (that is to say the head of the Catholic church) has issued a condemnation of the "plan of campaign" and "boycotting" in Ireland.

Republican brunettes organized a Protective league at Jackson April 24.

Arbitrators are trying, with not much prospect of success, to settle the fight between Thorp & Godfrey and their men.

Muskegon lumber shovers pounded the life nearly out of a non-union man Monday night. Gov. Luce gave the vets at the soldiers' home a hat each when he visited there last week.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at J. N. Mead's Drug Store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

CONTINENTAL MONEY.

The Currency Which Enabled the Colonies to Carry on the Revolution.

The issue of bills of credit, not only by the colonies, but by the Continental Congress became a necessity when the war began in 1775. The second Congress met in Philadelphia, May 19 of that year, and on the first day the measure was agreed upon in secret session, but was not adopted until June 22, the day on which Congress received the news of the battle of Bunker Hill. Then it was agreed that a sum not exceeding $20,000,000 be issued in bills of credit, for whose redemption the twelve Confederate colonies—Georgia not then being represented—were pledged. The bill specified the form and the number and denomination of the bills to be issued. The plates of the bills were engraved by Paul Revere, of Boston. The size of the bills average 3 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches, and they were printed on thick paper. New issues of this currency were made from time to time until the close of 1779, when the aggregate amount was $242,000,000, and the bills had so much depreciated that $100 in specie would purchase $2,600 in paper money; in 1781 the same amount in specie would buy $7,500 in paper. Strenuous efforts were made by Congress to keep up the credit of this currency, but as the one essential to save it, a pledge from the States to redeem it in specie, could not be secured, the money was bound to go down. Early in 1777 a convention of representatives of New England States agreed upon a scale of prices for all goods. This was strongly opposed by merchants, but the New England States soon after enacted it into a law, and a similar law was adopted soon after by the middle States, including Maryland and Virginia. Congress approved of the scheme, and further passed a resolution declaring that the bills of credit ought to pass current in all payments, trade and dealings, and be deemed equal in value to the same nominal sum in Spanish dollars. It further resolved that all persons refusing to take them "should be considered enemies of the United States," on whom "forfeitures and other penalties" ought to be inflicted by the local authorities. These resolutions, however, could not check the inevitable, but as the depreciation of the money was gradual, it operated as a tax, and thus prevented untold suffering. Moreover the money had served a good purpose, for it had enabled the colonies to carry on three years of war with a powerful foe almost without taxation. This currency has no value now except to the collectors of curious coins and relics.—Toledo Blade.

STAGE JEWELRY.

The Mock Diamonds Worn by Nearly All Theatrical Queens.

"Yes, there's lots of colored glass used in stage jewelry and regalias, and a big show it makes, doesn't it? That case there, for instance, a blaze of light and color, could be restocked for a few hundred dollars, while its contents, if the 'jewels' were real, would be worth half a hundred very respectable fortunes.

"There exists a very decided difference between stage jewels and jewels intended for regalias and secret societies, but crowns are favorite articles always.

"That handsome and regal looking one there, sparkling everywhere with 'diamonds' and 'rubies,' can be purchased for exactly $7.50. The crown alongside, with a crimson plush lining, is probably one which the theatrical sovereign wears when he mounts his fiery white horse—or, I should say, 'charger.' This belt clasp, with 'emeralds' fully an inch in diameter, can be purchased for $1.50, and single 'topaz,' 'rubies,' 'diamonds' and 'sapphires' of the same size and set round in pearls can be had at the uniform price of $1 each.

"Here's a handsome set of pearls, which if real would be worth every cent of $50,000. Sixty-five dollars will buy them, but even that's a pretty good price when you consider that you're only getting an imitation anyway.

"Brass is the metal almost invariably used for both theatrical and society jewels, because it can be brightly gilded and is easy to work. They are more substantial than their appearance would indicate.

"Paris is a great headquarters for the stuff, and we keep it simply because we have to; there isn't much money in it and it takes lots of room. The duty adds considerably to the cost."—Jewelers' Weekly.

I noticed this morning when I came down that one of the legs of the large easy chair in the parlor was broken."—Epoch.

PANAMA'S RAILROAD.

Experiences of a Conductor Who Carried Passengers at the Isthmus.

"Aspinwall is situated upon a sort of backout, or channel, from the sea, the houses being built upon 'the edge of the water. During the hot season this water stagnates and breeds a pestilential miasma, which kills out the inhabitants by the hundreds, feeding as they do chiefly on bananas, oranges and other fruits. It is an every day sight to see men dying on the streets. The policeman on duty passes by and stooping down makes an examination of the man. If he still breathes the officer walks along and pays no further attention to him until life is extinct, when he has him thrown into a common wooden box and put on one side to await the departure of the funeral train. This funeral train leaves Aspinwall every morning for the cemetery, called Monkey Hill. The dead of the better classes are given a decent burial, of course, but the lower classes are dumped unceremoniously from the boxes and buried like so many dogs."

"Why don't they leave them in the boxes?" interrupted the reporter. "Because the boxes are needed for the other dead. They are carried back to the city on the train and used the next day for other unfortunates who have died during the day."

"Is there much money in railroad-ing?"

"Yes, I was paid a salary of $175 a month, besides my house thrown in. But that is a small amount considering the dangerous life I led. I never know, on leaving Aspinwall, whether or not I would be killed before reaching Panama, as the Spaniards are a very treacherous set, and will stiek you in the back in a minute for a small imaginary insult."

"I hardly ever made a trip without getting into a fight, and nearly always had some trouble, except with the Chinese, who always paid their fare without growling. Travel was so heavy that it took from six to ten conductors to collect fares, one for each car."

"How is the price of travelling as compared to that of America?"

"Much higher; and it was always a wonder to me where the people got money on which to travel. The road gouged everyone they could, and through passengers or travelers were charged $25 in gold for a ticket from Aspinwall to Panama, a distance of forty-seven miles, while the natives paid for a first-class ticket only $7 and a second-class passage $2.40. The charge on a box car of freight for the same distance was $250."—Atlanta Journal.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

George R. Sims Nearly Buried Alive in an Old Neapolitan Dungeon.

All around Naples there are wonderful ruins and natural curiosities, and, of course, I explored them all, says the author of "Ostler Joe." I went all over the temple of Serapis, in the same place, and thoroughly explored the great amphitheater in which the famous sea-fights of Naumachia were held by the Romans. The center of the amphitheater was filled with water, and then hundreds of slaves and prisoners rowed in and hacked each other to pieces. It was while exploring the dungeons underground in which the prisoners were kept that a terrible adventure befell us. Our guide was a local old gentleman of about ninety—the real genuine oldest inhabitant in the flesh. He carried a tow torch to light us through the damp, noisome, winding passages that led to the cells below the earth, and just as we got into the darkest dungeon the old gentleman fell down in a fit and his torch went out.

The situation was awful. We had not the slightest idea where we were, and we hadn't any matches with us. We shouted loud, but only the mocking echo of our voices answered us. Just as the old man fell he had told us that we were now in dungeons from which no sound could escape. We groped about in the dark, and tried to find a passage, but only with the result that I found myself in one dark dungeon and my companion got into another, and we could neither of us find our way back to the old gentleman. We gave ourselves up for lost. We had not even the hope which the ancient prisoners had of being dragged out into the arena to make a fight of it. We should perish by inches in the secret dungeons of the great Roman amphitheater of Pozzuoli.

Just as we had abandoned hope and I was trying to scratch a last message to the world on the wall with the point of my scarf-pin, a distant murmur reached our ears. It drew nearer and nearer. We shouted—on it came. We heard English words spoken by English lips. A guide was bringing another party to the secret dungeons. They entered and found us, and between us we carried the epileptic old gentleman up-stairs into the light of day, and got him some cold water and brought him round. But I registered a vow never again to visit dungeons with an elderly gentleman subject to fits and a tow torch of limited powers of endurance.—London Bazaar.

—Little Gracie came home from school greatly excited. "O, auntie," she said, "we had a lesson about my brother Eugene to-day." "I think you must be mistaken," auntie replied. "No," said the little girl, "it was really a Eugene lesson, and the teacher told us we ought to drink milk and never eat cake or candy." And then we knew she meant a hygienic lesson!

THE HOHENZOLLERN.

The First Person of the Family of Whom History Takes Notice.
Names of persons, and of course, also of families which are aggregations of related persons, were derived in early Saxon days mainly from two sources. First, from personal qualities, physical characteristics or professions; and second, in the case of important personages from the names of their homes or estates.

Whoever is familiar with the writings of Sir Walter Scott—more particularly those of his tales whose subjects are Scottish, will remember that he is given to calling his characters by the names of their estates or holdings. When he had referred once to a personage as the "laird o' Tullietudlem," the "laird o' Dumbiedykes," the "laird o' Garscadden," and so on, he was in the habit of dropping the early part of the expression and speaking of them simply as "Tullietudlem," "Dumbiedykes," "Garscadden," etc. This practice is carried on in Scotland even at the present day, and was universal in Saxon and Scandinavian countries centuries ago. It is to this practice of naming persons and families from the estate of holding that we are indebted for the words "Hohenzollern," "Brandenburg," "Hapsburg," "Brunswick," etc., as applied to reigning dynasties.

Of Conrad, the first person of the Hohenzollern family to whom history deigns to give notice, Thomas Carlyle, in his "Frederick the Great," has given an exquisite description. He says: "It was in those same years (about 1160-1170) that a stout young fellow, Conrad by name, far off in the southern part of Germany, set out from the old castle of Hohenzollern, where he was but junior, and had small outlooks, upon a great errand in the world. Hohenzollern lies far south in Schwaben (Suabia), on the upward slope of the Rauthe-Alp country, no great way north from Constance and its lake, but well aloft, near the springs of the Danube, its back leaning on the Black Forest. It is perhaps definable as the southern summit of that same huge old Hercynian Wood which is still called the Schwarzwald (Black Forest), though now comparatively bare of trees. Fanciful Dryasdust, doing a little etymology, will tell you the name Zollern is equivalent to Tollery, or place of Tolls; whereby Hohenzollern comes to mean High or Upper Tollery, and gives one the notion of antique peddlers climbing painfully out of Italy and the Swiss valleys, thus far; unstrapping their pack-horses here, and chaffering in unknown dialect about toll. Poor souls! it may be so, but we do not know, nor shall it concern us. This only is known: that a human kindred, probably of some talent for coercing anarchy and guiding mankind, had, centuries ago, built its burg there, and done that function in a small but creditable way ever since."

The original Hohenzollerns, therefore, seven centuries ago were leviers of toll at some gateway or pass on a high roadway of the Alps; and the staying quality of the race is shown by their survival in an unbroken line to the present Emperor of Germany, Frederick III., more than twenty generations in lineal descent from ancestor Conrad!—N. O. States.

BOWSER'S LOVE LETTERS.
His Wife Produces Them at the Right Moment and Makes Him Squirm.
"My dear child," said an old aunt of mine the day I was married, "have you got all your husband's love-letters?"
"Of course."
"Are now that you are married you will probably burn 'em?"
"That's just what I was going to do."
"Well, don't. Keep 'em to the longest day you live."
"Because they will be stronger weapons than all your tears, pleadings or arguments. Nothing will bring a husband to time like a sight of some of the love letters he wrote before marriage."
I took her advice, and have always been glad I did. On several occasions I have used them to bring Mr. Bowser down off his high horse, and the fact that they both his peace of mind is proved by the fact that he has several times hunted the house over in my absence in hopes to lay hands on them. Something went wrong at the office the other day and he came home cantankerous. He held in until he got to the supper table, and then broke out with: "Got any name for these things here?"
"Yes, dear. They are called biscuit."
"Well the man who calls 'em fit to eat ought to be shot! Mrs. Bowser, why is it I can never get any thing decent to eat in my own house?"
"Why, Mr. Bowser! No one could take more pains than we do. In order that the biscuit might be extra good I went out and made them myself."
"Humph!"
"Then was a time, Mr. Bowser, when you raved over my cooking?"
"Never! I knew from the day I set eyes on you wading across a mud puddle that you could never cook. You can sing very well—as well as some bad actresses—but you can't cook."
"Are you will prove that you once hungered for my cooking you will—"
"I will give you fifty dollars cash in hand."
"Bring supper I went up-stairs and brought down several letters. Mr. Bowser had got his nose into a magazine and wanted the matter dropped, but I read to him the following extracts:—"And I thought, darling, while eating supper that night, how proud I should be over your delicious cookery when we had a home of our own. The thought of those biscuits alone makes me hungry. Good-bye, my pet."

"Who wrote that?" sternly demanded Mr. Bowser.
"You did."
"When?"
"Three months before our marriage."
"Never!"
"But here's the letter, dated and signed."
"Is it a base forgery, and the forger must beware! How could I have praised your cooking?"
"You also used to praise my singing, Mr. Bowser."

"Never!"
"Ob, but you did. Let me read: "And, precious pet of mine, let me again thank you for that beautiful song, 'The Lover's Farewell,' and the exquisite manner in which you rendered it. It drew tears from my eyes, and I was not ashamed of them. You have one of the purest, clearest voices I ever heard."
"Who wrote that?" he gasped.
"You did."

"Mrs. Bowser, don't carry this thing to far! There is a limit beyond which you must not go!"
"Well, here it is, in your own writing and over your own signature. Once in awhile you fling out a hint that I am very dull. There was a time when you thought different."

"Look out, Mrs. Bowser!"
"Yes, you did! You even thought me the smarter of the two."
"Who! What! Am I awake or dreaming!"
"Wide awake, Mr. Bowser. Let me read you an extract from this exhibit marked 'A':—"I don't see why you should go back to Vas-sar. Few young ladies are more accomplished or better educated. All your friends, myself included, give in to you on the matter of grammar in particular. Hope to see you as usual next Sunday, my dear little honey-suckle."

Mr. Bowser sat and looked at me like one terrified.

"And, sir, you often fling out about the size of my feet. I admit that they are as large again as I should have ordered from a dealer, although I wear No. 3's with a great deal of comfort. Let me say, however, that your mother wears 6's, your three sisters 5's, and the two girls you kept company with before we met wear full-sized 6's with very broad toes."

"Mrs. Bowser, do you suppose I will stand such insults in my own house!" he shouted as he sprang up.

"Are facts and truths insults? I have been reading from your letters."

"Never! Never! If I ever wrote such stuff I was crazy!"

"But here is your signature. You remember you used to want me to sign my letters 'Rose-bud,' and you signed yours 'Oak Leaf.'"

"I never did! No power on earth can convince me that I was such a fool as that!"

"Well, perhaps you will remember this sentence. You wrote it a few months before our marriage. Listen: "Oh, my Rosebud, but the heart of Oak Leaf was made a thousand times lighter by the receipt of your loving note yesterday. If those delicious little missives should cease coming I should pine and die."

"And you claim I wrote that!" he asked in a strange voice.

"Of course. You can't go back on your own writing, can you?"

"You assert that those are my letters, do you?"

"Certainly."

"And that I called you fond names and wanted to die for you?"

"That's about the size of it, Mr. Bowser. You wrote me several times that you were as much my slave as if I had bought you. I think you would have jumped into a well any time I asked you."

Mr. Bowser put on his overcoat and hat, drew on his gloves, and then kissed the baby and said: "Good-bye, darling! if you never see papa again remember that he loved you."

He went off without so much as a look at me, but about midnight came home very softly and crept into bed, and the next day went on his usual hunt after that pile of love letters.—Detroit Free Press.

Andrew Johnson's Grave.
Andy Johnson's grave is at Greenville, Tenn. It is on one of the highest bluffs in the vicinity of the town, and the tall, eagle-crowned shaft that marks the spot can be seen from the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia railroad for several miles. Travelers approaching the town watch for it with eager eyes. The lot is neatly enclosed with an iron fence and the inclosure contains in addition to the principal shaft several smaller monuments. Several children of the dead President are buried around him, and the lot throughout bears evidence of the most sedulous care and attention. The most imposing feature of the shaft is the bronze eagle on the top. Its head is turned toward the Appalachian range—grandly blue in the distance—and its wings are spreading as though the great American bird was preparing to fly away to the pine-covered ravines of the mountains. In the foreground is the quaint little town of Greenville—a sleepy village just awakening from a Rip Van Winkle sleep of twenty years and a half as much more.—Philadelphia News.

"Do you think, Miss Ethel," he inquired, tremulously, "that I could see your father this evening?" "I hardly think so, Mr. Lastyn," she replied with a soft and not unbecoming blush. "Papa is in the library with Mr. Getthere and I expect he will need me, too, in a few minutes. But I am sure that any other evening papa would be happy to have you call on him. He is always pleased when young people show him attention."—Puck.

"When Mr. Hamlet remarked: 'Eye, there's the rub,' he is supposed to have just got off a railroad train with a cinder in his optic.—Lowell Courier.

It declares that an "American gang" is making all the trouble in Europe—fomenting discord and stirring up strife, so that the Yankees can sell them beef, pork and bread-stuffs to live on while they fight, and rifles and ammunition to fight with. Now that it has given the snap away there is no danger of war, of course.

IT EXASPERATES some of our democratic neighbors that they are not allowed to "holer" for the man whom they like, but must take their medicine like little men—Cleveland, first last, and all the time; the party having no other candidate whom it dares trust before the people. Lots of Michigan democrats would much prefer Lothrop—some would give half their apple to shout for Don M.; not a few would prefer Randall, but the gag is in every month. Holler Cleveland or keep your mouth shut, is general order number one, National headquarters.

SURVIVE (and it is a fair supposition) that Senator Sherman should fall of the nomination at Chicago: what then? Has Allison a chance? Who believes it? Too far west in location—from a state too solidly republican—not favorably known (although not unfavorably, either) to the masses. Hardly a winner? Has Gresham, though he would unquestionably make a good run and a splendid chief magistrate if elected? He has no state to enter him for the race; Indiana will present Ben. Harrison, and that fact, while not fatal is a heavy handicap in convention and would not induce solidity of the party in Indiana in case the nomination fell to him. Hardly Gresham. Ben. Harrison, then? Could he bring us the electoral vote of his state? We want it, bad, and if he could give the convention reasonable assurance that Indiana would give him her vote in November he would have a strong pull for first place. But can he? If the answer be yes, how happens it that he is not in the senate? Bob Lincoln? The campaign in New York last fall took all the stiffening out of the hereditary idea and Bob has nothing in the way of capital except his name; not Bob, then. Depew? No man so near the Vanderbilts has a ghost of a show at the polls; not Chauncey, though, he's head and shoulders over the Buffalo man, in every particular. Cameron? No, for reasons too apparent to need enumeration. Who then? Why, Russell A. Alger, the only wealthy man we know of that has or could get the hearty, cordial support of the "labor" voters; General Alger, the soldier now, since Logan's death, nearest the hearts of the veterans; Governor Alger, the best executive the state of Michigan has had since the war. Alger, the man with an unimpeachable record in every respect and ability to fill the office of president as it has not been filled since Lincoln's death. The man whose nomination would offend no one, and would, we believe, go far to heal every factional difference in the party. Of a surety no one can forecast, at this date, the outcome of the June convention; but supposing John Sherman, to whom the lead at the outset is conceded, to have faltered; we can not but hope—not on personal grounds, not as a matter of state pride, but for the assurance of success at the polls that it would give—for the nomination of Russell A. Alger.

THE SUN, which shines for all good democrats, casts but a cold and watery beam on the administration. We have no reason to love the Sun nor the man who directs its shining, and we do nothing without a reason, but when its light brings out anything worth seeing we can but take cognizance of the fact. This is how it shows up the president and his policy: The six definite enterprises which constitute the whole book of Mr. Cleveland's policy, so far as his administration has had a distinctive policy, are these: The reform of the civil service on the so-called non-partisan mugwump plan. The suspension of silver coinage in order to avert predicted financial panic. The negotiation of an extradition treaty with Great Britain. The settlement of the fishery troubles by the negotiation of a treaty with Great Britain. The reduction of the surplus by means of an extensive reduction of customs duties, retaining the internal revenue taxes. The Pan electric suit to annul the Bell telephone patents. In every one of these six cases the result of the undertaking can be recorded in a single word: The administration's civil service reform policy—abandonment. The administration's demand for the suspension of silver coinage—relinquishment. The administration's extradition treaty—collapse. The administration's fishery negotiation—surrender. The administration's surplus reduction plan—repudiation. The administration's Pan-electric suit—disgrace.

W. D. KELLEY, T. M. Browne, T. B. Reed, W. McKinley, Jr. and J. C. Burrows, the republican minority of the committee of ways and means, in their report against the Mills bill show it up in its true character. We quote the final paragraph of the report: The minority regard this bill not as a revenue reduction measure, but as a direct attempt to fasten upon this country the British policy of free foreign trade. So viewing it, their sense of obligation to the people, and especially to the working people, employed in manufacturing and agriculture in all parts of our common country, impel them to resist it with all their power. They will assist the majority in every effort to reduce the redundant income of the government in a direct and practicable way, but every effort at fiscal legislation which will destroy or enfeeble our industries, retard material development, or tend to reduce our labor to the standard of other countries will be met with the persistent and determined resistance of the minority.

FRANK GOULEAU was killed by a flying slab at Witbeck's mill Saturday. A sudden rise of water Monday gave rise to fears that the Pembine dam had gone out again, but it proved to be only the breaking of a log jam at the rapids. Frank DeMour was so wounded in the M. R. L. company's mill Monday that he can not live. He was using a hand axe and allowed it to come in contact with a revolving pulley which threw it against his head and split his skull. The water-works management expect to furnish water for fires by July 1, and to have the plant completed by Sept. 1. —Eagle, Marinette.

R. B. KELLOGG offers the city $15,000 toward the establishment of a public library and conditions the gift only on a provision for the perpetuity of the library and an annual appropriation by the city of $900 for the library. The Boston Sugar Refining company will establish a depot and agency here this spring. Capt. Cliff Hart says "May 10" about the opening of navigation. Thirty-eight licenses for saloons and a few more to come.—Advocate, Green Bay; which copies our items and credits them to our neighbor McKenna.

THE 17th of May is the anniversary of Norwegian independence. Are our Norwegian friends going to observe it in any manner?

MR. TILLEN's wines are to be sold. There are some very rare brands and the value of the "cellar" is said to be not less than $20,000. The old boy had nice taste.

THE roads reaching the Sault from the west are without eastern connections, the C. P. road having suspended its passenger service on the line reaching there for the present and until it can be put in better shape.

MINNESOTA republicans talk of Knute Nelson for governor. Good! Take the free-trade out of congress where he is a "stumbling stone, a rock of offence." He's an "assistant democrat" just as is the Chicago Tribune.

PLEASE, GOVERNOR, we couldn't. Give us another "arbor day," say about the time of year the boys were doing the fighting at Gettysburg, and we'll observe it in great form. April 20 is too early for this part of the state.

THE coolest thing we have heard of this winter—blizzards counted in—was the proposal by the working brewers that everybody should quit drinking beer to help them beat the bosses. They did not set the example, though.

BREARLY is "a boomer from Boomtown." A hundred for each man killed on the railroad with a Journal in his pocket; $500 to the one who shall guess the three hottest days, and now a series of ball games between news-boy nines—all to advertise the Journal.

THE C. & H. mine was opened on the 24th and no signs of fire found. No examination has yet been possible sufficient to determine the extent of the damage but it is unquestionably great. At the current price for copper the company can stand it, though, without passing a dividend.

"WHAT WE WANT," said a timid republican of the need of the party just now, "is a man who can knock the stuffing out of Cleveland." It would be a pity to do that, and leave him collapsed, but Gen. Alger is the man that can do it. How Grover would look, though, without "the stuffing."

NOMINATE him and, as at Booneville, Gen. Alger will charge straight at the enemy's center. But there the parallel ends; this time, having more men with him, he'll go right through. When the skirmish is over we'll find the parallel again—Cleveland will be just as badly whipped as Chalmers was. Draw sabres: Charge!

JOHN LEATHER is on the way home, broke—spent his wealth for pine land in Louisiana. The Two Rivers Manufacturing Co., [Mann Bros.] has bought and sent to Alpena for the tug Temple Emery, to take the place of the Goldsmith. No ice in sight in Lake Michigan and nothing but ice in Green Bay.—Advocate, Sturgeon Bay.

THE TREATY negotiated by the secretary of state and his colleagues as a settlement of the fisheries disputes was reported adversely by the senate judiciary committee, of which Senator Edmunds is chairman, and will probably be rejected by a party vote, as it should be; it settles nothing that was desirable to have settled, and what it does settle it settles the wrong way.

THE Grand Rapids Leader says that the republicans desire to beat I. M. Weston for mayor of that city in the hope that he, may lose also the place he holds as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee. Pooh! pooh! Mr. Leader; there are a dozen, yes a hundred better men for the place. Weston was a good lieutenant for Don M. but he's not much of a captain. We are not "secret of him."

THE K. of L. has another fight on hand. The Edgar Thompson Steel works were started up on the 20th without their aid and hereafter the management will ignore the order entirely—not proscribing its members but recognizing them as individuals only. The knights still stand out hoping to cripple the management, but they may as well lie down, the works will run, with them or without them.

WE NOTE no further reports of transactions in iron ore but it is coming to be understood that sales have been made of quite large amounts and the transactions not allowed to be made public until the question of freights shall have been settled. The latest sale announced is one of 80,000 tons of Lake Angeline, divided among four purchasers either one eighth, if they buy at all, will want more than the $0,000 tons.

MR. PHELPS, now our representative at the British court, is said to be the president's choice for the chief-justiceship. His party friends oppose the selection for the reason that the backbone of the party in the north—the Irish contingent—do not like Mr. Phelps and will be offended by his elevation, and beg the president, if he will make that nomination, to defer it until after the coming election. The president will hardly do that, however; it would be cowardly, and the president is no coward. He may be persuaded to select another man, though.

THE TALK of "stampeding the convention" at Chicago and forcing the nomination on Mr. Blaine is just the d—dest rot that sane men—if they who indulge in it are sane—ever voided. Mr. Blaine is out of the field by his own act and for reasons satisfactory to himself, and the men who stood by him in '84 and would have rejoiced in his election understand and accept his action. The republican party does not depend upon Mr. Blaine, or any man alive, for success—it would not deserve success if it did. There will be no stampede—there will be an honored name at the head of the ticket and the ticket will be a winner, but the name will not be Blaine.

WE MISCOUNTED, in our notice of the Mining school last week and Principal Wadsworth calls our attention to the fact; there are 29 instead of 23 pupils in attendance. The principal also assures us that the school is (we said that it was not) "on its feet" making a success, all which we are glad to know. As it is not yet in its own house, and has, as yet, so few in attendance (even 29 is, it seems to us a small number) we thought our statement correct, but did not intend any criticism on its success in teaching. When its roll contains a couple of hundred names we shall consider the school "on its feet" in that particular.

THE SCHEME for a canal between Little Bay de Noquette and Lake Superior got an airing in the Inter Ocean of the 1st. The cost of a canal from the harbor inside of Grand Island to our bay is put at $2,500,000 and one lock is said to be necessary "which may be avoided by a shallow cut through the divide." The value of the knowledge displayed may be pretty accurately gauged from those two statements, or we might quote another, namely that the distance would be thirty six miles: It would not be less than fifty. Mr. Wm. H. Morrell is the man quoted as giving the information.

BUT NOW comes word from Washington that Fisher will not take the democratic nomination for governor—that must be given to Burt to hold him up to the rack—and will go in for reelection to congress from the tenth district, the boss fearing that no other democrat can get there. Fix it how you will, gentlemen; C. G. Luce is to be his own successor and Fisher can be retired easily enough on the record he is making now. No free wool, free salt and lumber man can carry the tenth next November. Paste that in your hats.

THE power to grant a license implies the power to withhold. Therefore a license law presupposes that government has not only the right to issue a license, but also to withhold, which would be prohibition. This shows the humbug of the claim that the government has no right to prohibit the traffic for those who make the claim are practically solid for a license law.—Ionia Standard.

But the license conveys no right; it merely restricts a natural, pre-existing right of all to the few who pay the sum demanded. Makes a difference, y' see.

GEN. WASHBURN'S story of consolidation and a working arrangement with the Canada Pacific, and the one which comes from Montreal of the purchase of the Washburn roads by the Canada Pacific are probably only two versions of the same, one adapted to the longitude of Montreal and the other for that of the twin cities. What an exact statement of facts would show is yet to be guessed at. The General "gushes" quite freely but is a bit misty as to what is and what may be.

J. H. BATES, successor to S. M. Pettengill & Co. and Bates & Locke, an advertising agent of twenty-five years' experience and good standing, will next week open and thereafter occupy a neatly fitted suit of rooms at 38 Park Row, N. Y., where he will be glad to see such country newspaper men as may visit the city. Mr. Bates is one of the few brokers in advertising whom we have found square and plumb, and we are glad to know that he is prospering.

A COCK AND BULL story of a winter survey, by the C. & N. W. company for a line from Brampton to the Soo—the surveyors on snowshoes and their traps on dog teams—comes in both the Wisconsin and the Inter Ocean. It should have been added that they worked only at night and camped in cedar swamps by day and so escaped detection by the lumbermen and cedar butchers along the route. Only that was needed to round out the yarn.

TEAMS arrived from Fish Creek, over the ice, on Wednesday. The mills are all getting ready to start up. The street crossings are in superb condition—after you get through the mud to them. The fish culture station has begun operations. Higgins does not own a majority of the stock of the gas company but he runs it, all the same [Got Hig. on the brain a little, has "the old bird"].—Eagle, Marinette.

Ammonia in Baking Powder. Among the recent discoveries in science and chemistry, none is more important than the use to which common ammonia can be properly put as a leavening agent, and which indicates that this familiar salt is hereafter to perform an active part in the preparation of our daily food.

The carbonate of ammonia is an exceedingly volatile substance. Place a small portion of it upon a knife and hold over a flame and it will be immediately developed into gas and pass off into the air. The gas thus formed is a simple composition of nitrogen and hydrogen. This gives it its superiority as a leavening power over soda and cream of tartar used alone, and has induced its use as a supplement to these articles. A small quantity of ammonia in the dough is effective in producing bread that will be lighter, sweeter and more wholesome than that risen by any other leavening agent. When it is acted upon by the heat of baking, the leavening gas that raises the dough is liberated. In this act it uses itself up, as it were; the ammonia is entirely diffused, leaving no trace of residuum whatever. The light fluffy, flaky appearance, so desirable in biscuits, etc., and so sought after by professional cooks, is said to be imparted to them only by the use of this agent. The bakers and baking powder manufacturers producing the finest goods have been quick to avail themselves of this useful discovery, and the handsomest and best bread and cake are now largely risen by the aid of ammonia combined with other leavening material.

Ammonia is one of the best known products of the laboratory. If, as seems justly claimed for it, the application of its properties to the purposes of cooking, results in giving us lighter and more wholesome bread, biscuit and cake, it will prove a boon to dyspeptic humanity, and will speedily force itself into general use in the new field to which science has assigned it.—From the Scientific American.

CHAPTER XIV.—CONCLUDED.
God in Heaven! he had come too late. His blood flashed to ice, then to fire again, for the figure in the light, shifted its position and lifted the rifle again. But the rescuer did not wait; with a bound he went over the assassin, striking him a terrible blow with the revolver, and sending man and rifle rolling in the dust, then on through the door and flung it shut. Like lightning Elchard snatched up his revolver and fired, and the wild, begrimed and panting apparition fell crashing beside him. In an instant Elchard was on his feet presenting his weapon again.

"Don't shoot me again!" gasped the fallen man. "I'm Orson Beam! I've come to save you! Men out there are going to kill you!" Elchard gave him one look of wonder and consternation, then leaped over his body and bolted the door, whirled about and shut the window and dropped the shade over it, then he turned to Beam.

"Oh, my poor friend, where did I hit you?" he groaned, falling on his knees beside him. "In my side here. I guess it's not bad. I fell mostly from exhaustion, I think," panted Beam. Elchard tore open his clothing and found the wound. It was not serious but bleeding freely, and he sprang up the little stair to the room above, drew a sheet from the bed, and descending, tore it in large strips and bound them tightly around the man's body. Then he brought a pail of water from a corner and bathed the face and hands of this grimy survivor of his with the tenderness of a woman.

"Where did you come from, and why did you do this?" asked Elchard, gently. "I came from town," said Beam. "I found out by accident that they meant to kill you to-night. I wanted to prevent it."

"What got you in such a plight?" "I had to climb the face of the mountain; they were ahead of me." Elchard gave an exclamation of astonishment. Beam got up waveringly and looked at him. Elchard put out his hands gratefully, but the wounded man drew back and his eyes filled. "No," he said, "I'm not fit. I tried to kill you the other day. This is my restitution, and if you can forgive me it is all I ask."

Elchard stared at him in dumb amazement for a moment, then he caught the man's hands and wrung them. "You are free," he said. "You have earned forgiveness, and it is yours." They had scarcely thought of the assassins, their meeting had been so strange, but now they listened. Evidently the men had fled. Elchard turned to Beam. "I was going to start for the East to-night," he said. "Miss Hartman is waiting for me."

Beam's paleness deepened, and he leaned against the desk for support. "Yes—yes, you—should go," he faltered. "But I shall never go and leave you in this accursed corner of the world," said Elchard. "It was reported that you had gone, but now I see why you have remained, and I shall not desert you."

"No, you must not wait for me; I can not go yet," said the other. "Not now—not yet; when I am better I will come," and he wavered about and sat down. Elchard looked at him with swimming eyes. He could not divine what was in this man's heart, but something about him touched his own heart with a great pity.

"If you would help me down to the bunk houses," said the wounded man, wearily, "I will stay there till morning. Then one of the men may be able to get my horse and clothes and go with me to the railroad. If I'm not able to go they can get me the doctor, and I will stay here a few days, then start. Mother is waiting for me at Cheyenne; she will be glad to know of this—it will be my greatest reward."

"I will wait and take you to her," said Elchard, resolutely. "No," said Beam, with something like consternation. "No, I must not. I can not go yet! We are friends now; please let me wait until you are gone and we shall remain so. Miss Hartman is in danger every moment; you must go to-night. If you feel what I have done makes you my friend; if you are obliged to me, please—take—her—now—before harm comes to her!"

Elchard put his arms about the man's shoulders and held him a moment; his heart was full. The truth as to this brother-being was glimmering in his consciousness. He said nothing; words were not for such a case.

He went up-stairs and brought down some of his own clothing and left them by the man, who sat with head leaning forward upon the desk. "Please occupy my room until you are well," said Elchard, huskily. "I will send up a man to watch with you, and another to guard the place. You shall not lack for friends and comforts until you are ready to go. Good-bye."

Beam lifted up his head and put out his hand. Elchard took it in both of his, stooped down and kissed it with a broken "God bless you," and passed out into the night. In half an hour he was driving down the mountain.

But what of the woman whom these men loved? What of the human wolves from whom she had fled away into the darkness? In the same hour that Orson Beam was telling up the face of Eagle mountain one of the saddest tragedies that ever stained the Wasatch range was occurring over at Gray's peak. When the carriage bearing the three figures drew out of Hartman's lane it passed across the stream and directly up the valley. The tires of the wheels were bound with cloth and the horse's feet were muffled. It moved forward in the darkness like a phantom. Ever and anon the woman struggled, but the two men held her like a vice between them. Her breathing was labored and difficult, the block being between her teeth and her head covered, and her hands tied in a painful position behind her. Ah, God, how cruel it was; and how fierce and low Thy creatures sometimes are!

At length they left the valley and entered a gorge which ran along the west side of Gray's peak. When they had entered its jaws they seemed swallowed up by the earth. An unseen stream gurgled and murmured along the canyon's bottom, and on either hand the huge walls piled upward in dark outlines against the stars, while the gray arch of the mill-way hung over the gaping chasm like a bridge of splintered mist. It was lonely and haunting, and for a long time the carriage went slowly onward through the gloom. The men had swept up an aspidochelone stone; they started, and the woman now ceased to struggle. Apparently she had become unconscious. After a time they turned into a smaller canyon that ran up the mountain toward the east. Here the road was not good, and the smaller man got out and led the team. In a little time the canyon seemed to cease, and they came out upon the side of the mountain. Then they stopped. Just above them was the dark opening of an abandoned mine's drift. They lifted the helpless figure from the carriage and laid it upon the ground. Then the small man knelt down and prayed with his wild, dark face turned up to the stars. Before he had finished the muffled figure began to strain and struggle, and when he had said "Amen," he arose, and handing the large man a surgeon's knife, turned away with his face toward the mountain's top. As he looked the rim of the moon came into a notch near the summit, he heard a strange noise behind him, a sound to be remembered in dreadful dreams, then a hoarse hoarse kind of shriek that whirled him about with its frightfulness. Half of the moon was throwing its light down the mountain side, and Hyrum Parley was staggering back with arms lifted and eyes protruding. "I've killed Cistene!" he shouted. "O God, I've killed Cistene!" and he caught his hands in his hair and plunged about like a drunken man. His limbs seemed to double up under the weight of his body, and in a moment he fell headlong among the stones and lay there beating his face among them in frenzy.

The little man stood still and gazed in horror. Ah, they had shed innocent blood! The unpardonable sin was theirs! And the moon swung into the notch, and looking down a moment with ineffable sorrow, passed slowly behind the peak and left them in darkness.

The explanation was this: Cistene, jealous of her lord, had watched him slip away mysteriously toward Hartman's, and had followed. Standing in the darkness under the trees to watch for him, the poor woman had seen Tread by her like a midnight spirit, and, stopping forward in fright, was hurled to the earth by the girl's pursuers and gagged and bound. It was a sad ending to a sad deception. Far away in Norway, the same moonlight which had just shown her pallid face to Parley had fallen but a few hours before on the cottage roof which sheltered her through all her peaceful childhood, and had looked down with seeming pity into the eyes of her gray-haired parents, eyes that longed and hungered for their child, but should never be satisfied.

But Tread! She had fled on through the darkness, with her heart shrinking and her feet winged with fear. She knew nothing of the cruel miracle which had saved her, but, in fancy, feeling the rough clutch of horrible hands upon her still, she strove only to gain her lover's side. Just beyond the row of trees, into whose protecting shadows she had plunged, a large gate stood open. Through this she ran, and on across the fields and around the town. In a short time, from sheer exhaustion, she ceased running, but still hurried forward with quick breath and fluttering pulse, and ever and anon looking back into the gloom with a throbbing horror and fear. When she had entered the road below the town, she suddenly remembered that Elchard was to come by the other road, and she turned back into the fields, and, crossing the valley, found the dim way and hastened on.

It was a long walk to Eagle canyon, and lonely as death, but at last she reached its gloomy mouth and entered. Then on and on until it seemed her weary limbs would fall her. At the entrance to the smaller gorge she stopped, not being sure of the road beyond that point, and set down in the darkness by the wayside, quivering with weariness. The moon was lifting its pale disk over the mountains now, and presently the yawning chasm broke open as by magic, with all its huge bowlders, gnarled pines and lowering ledges turned to grotesque phantasmagoria in the misty light.

Then suddenly three horsemen came riding down the gorge; the one in the center, who was evidently wounded, being steadied in his saddle by the other two. The girl shrunk into the shadow, and they passed away toward the city. She could wait no longer after seeing that, but fled like a wild thing up the canyon toward the mines with her heart crying out in apprehension. But soon the blessed sound of carriage-wheels came to her ears. It was like music, and she hastened on. When Elchard saw her standing by the road, with her hair fallen down her back and her large eyes lustrous with fear and yearning, he gave a cry of amazement. In a moment she was in his arms, clinging to him like a hunted thing. "O Paul, take me away from this awful place!" she implored.

"Yes, darling, we will go now," he said, and before the dawn broke they had passed from these valleys forever.

"OH, TAKE ME AWAY FROM THIS PLACE!" Dr. Dubette, too, was never seen again in Utah after that night. Long afterward it was rumored that he had been seen in old Peru, a human wreck wandering about the lonely borders of the world, and all but mad with the belief that he who sheds innocent blood can never be forgiven. Bishop Parley died within that year of continuous drunkenness, and at the last laid bare the pitiable secret that tortured him out of the world.

But what of Arsen, the tithe-gatherer? Months afterward a youth searching for lost cattle found him lying in the brambles directly across the road from the spot where Orson Beam had stood when he attempted Paul Elchard's life. In his hand was the weapon whose bullet had stung Beam through the shoulder, and in his brain the lead which had left Beam's weapon, stinging Elchard's temple in its fatal flight. Why the man was there, and which life he had aimed to end, must ever remain a mystery. Perhaps he, too, had deceived his cruel heart with hopes of Tread's love, and thought to rid the field of Beam just when that highest but creed-ridden youth should silence Elchard. Be that as it may, his life was taken from him; he had become unworthy of it, and its sin, and ultimate end are hid in shadow. Mrs. Smoot now lives in the East, and breathes the free air with ever-increasing gratitude. Orson Beam is minister of a saner, sweeter gospel, and Paul Elchard, helped by his faithful and worthy wife, both upon the rostrum and in the halls of law, has labored long to bring in that dawn which at last is softening the gloom of Mormonism. ### SOME TIMELY THOUGHTS.

The Need of Education in Agriculture Clearly Demonstrated.

From an address recently delivered before a farmers' institute by Colonel J. McClenahan, on the need of education in agriculture, we take the following paragraphs:

The object of agricultural education should be to teach the science rather than the art of agriculture; to give a more complete knowledge of the farm, the structure and the growth of the domestic animals, and the laws of breeding; to teach the structure and laws of growth of domesticated plants, and the adaptation of both plants and animals to the circumstances of soil and climate, and their variation as affected by variable influences; to train those employed in agriculture to habitually observe the phenomena of animal and plant life as it goes on before them, and to quickly take advantage of observed facts to improve methods and products.

This science also includes insect life and injurious vegetation so far as agriculture is affected.

These studies involve almost all the natural sciences, but each in a limited sense. It is not necessary in order that a man may be an educated farmer, that he be a scientific botanist, understanding the whole range of plant life, but it is necessary that he know the general laws and special phenomena of the plants with which he is concerned. It is not necessary that he study the form, habit, structure, and growth of insects and animals he never sees, but that he have an accurate and complete knowledge of those with which he deals. It is a special application of scientific principles in a special direction in order that he may use these principles in practice, and thus secure better results or with less labor, and also to increase the sum of human knowledge and add to his happiness by the exercise of his mental faculties.

For several generations Americans have been stimulated to mental activity until now American youth inherit an impulse in that direction. Not only is this the effect of schools, but it is the result of our political system, of the free press, and of commercial intercourse. The boy may be dull at books, slow at school, never having connected the world in books with the outside world of things. He may lack the quick memory of words which often passes for learning, and yet have the impulse to activity of thought and action. For this very reason young men prefer positions in the town or city or on the railroad. There is not only something to do, but something to learn. Unable perhaps to think much for himself, the young man feels that he is nearer the thoughts of others. Farm life is monotonous, isolated and laborious. You, gentlemen, think and work, your boys work and think, your thoughts are fully occupied with the problems of farm management, his with the dullness and drudgery of his daily life. You, perhaps, are interested in politics or business beyond the farm, he finds little food for thought, has few social advantages, sees nothing ahead but a dull round of labor year after year, with little to conquer but weeds, and nothing to attain but a living or possibly moderate wealth. This does not comply with the demand of his birthright and education, his native "Yankee grit."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

NOTES FOR WOMEN.

Imported and Domestic Novelties in Feminine Wearing Apparel.

Cloth jackets in copper, the new greens, blue-green, suede, tobacco brown, gray or bright red are among the most serviceable purchases one can make, as the present fashion allows them to be worn with any costume that does not make a contrast positively murderous.

The new figured China silk will be made up of flounced skirts and long draperies, bordered with bias silk the shade of the darkest figure, stitched on with one or several rows of white silk or something equally as glaring, yet there be people who call this the age of dress reform.

Braiding has by no means had its day of favor as a trimming on jackets, and is done with both metal and mohair braids, some of which are flat and others tubular, while the twisted cords of silk or of metal are used in all the most elaborate designs hitherto done only in soutache braid.

The stylish coats of smooth-faced cloths for dressy occasions come in copper colors, in the new green shades, in tobacco browns, suede color, the odd lines with green tints, and in bright red shades, while the rougher homespun jackets are in stripes or bars or melanges of two or three of these colors together.

India silk and foulard designs reappear in the glossy cotton satens—which show palm-leaf fans, links of chain, interlocked circles of different sizes, anvils, hammers, sleigh bells, "thunder and lightning" streaks, lilies, fuchsias, harebells, checker boards—and half a hundred more appear in white or cream upon dark grounds, perfectly brown or blue.

The German, whose popularity knows no wane, is danced in the home, in the hall, in winter and in summer at the resorts, and is always delightful and in season. It affords a field for ingenuity in the devising of new features and the invention of favors. Great is the man, socially, who can lead the German, and the dancing floor is the veritable ground whereon he conquers.

Under a Cloud; —OR— CLEARING HIMSELF.

The above is the title of a thrillingly interesting story by JENNIE DAVIS BURTON, a well-known and popular writer. The story tells in a clear and entertaining style the adventures of a young express messenger who was charged with having committed a robbery upon his company. The plot is admirably constructed, and without any of the "blood and thunder" sensationalism, the story is yet so rich in stirring incidents that the reader, once started to peruse it, will be loth to lay it down until he has read every line. This charming serial, profusely illustrated, will shortly be begun in these columns. We congratulate ourselves on having been able to secure it, and only suggest to all lovers of good fiction that they subscribe soon so as to secure the opening chapters.

UPPER PENINSULA.

—The boxing match between Butler and Kelly proved to be a "sprinting match" instead—the big man, Kelly, doing no work with his hands whatever, but a great deal with his legs. The blasting from the new sidewalk on the east side of Front street was recklessly done, windows were broken and life endangered. Six fewer saloons in Ishpeming under the $500 tax and stringent rules as to bonds. Republican county convention will be held at Ishpeming May 2. Frank Asurada's place, saloon and dwelling, and John Wiesener's dwelling and meat market, at Grovetown, burned Wednesday.—M. J., 20th.

—James McCarty, drunk; Florence saloon keeper, also drunk; McCarty hit with a bottle. Nose smashed, may die. Joe Cherie, drunk, $800 over in his pockets. A. Pelletier took it, put Joe to bed; let him mourn a while after he waked up and missed his wealth; then returned it to him. Lucky Joe, to fall into such good hands. Boys from the woods and town toughs, all drunk, spoiled the performance of the "Chimes of Normandy" by the Bostons. The manager said it was the worst he ever saw, and he had played all the u. p. towns.—Mining News, Florence.

—Gas from the lime-kiln is still sent into the mine and the temperature, instead of falling, has risen a couple of degrees, Prof. Richards, though 2,000 miles away, seems to be the arbiter as to when the mine shall be opened.—News, Columet.

—The body found at Floodwood is yet unrecognized and the murder as much of a mystery as ever. The plant for the publication of a Finnish newspaper is on the ground and the paper will be issued, at Ishpeming, in a few days.—M. J., 21st.

—Capt. Bernier reports solid ice extending from three miles above Whitefish Point in a northeast direction to the north shore. He finds the ice in Whitefish bay fourteen feet [inches?] thick with two feet of snow and slush on top of it. Hay lake shows no sign of breaking up and teams still cross abreast of the city. May 5 is soon enough to look for the opening. Cellars are full of water and the streets and alleys are horribly filthy. Clean up and provide against the recurrence of such a state of things in the future.—Democrat, Sault Ste. Marie.

—The homesteaders on the M. H. & O. and O. & B. R. lands have forwarded photos of their "improvement" to Washington to strengthen Tom Palmer's hands. A Skandian vian Republican Club was organized at Ishpeming Friday with 110 members. The law and order league of Hancock is looking sharply after the bonds of liquor-dealers. Calumet stamp mills turned out 310 tons of copper in three days, beating the record. The tug Martin made the first move in the harbor Saturday, breaking her way across the harbor.—M. J., 23d.

—P. E. Dunn, who came over from Crystal Falls in the capacity of clerk of the circuit court to take homestead affidavits, and Cha's McDermott were arrested on charge of conspiracy to defraud, but no case was made and they were discharged by the magistrate. McDermott, who collected the fees, did over-charge, though. Some sneak thief tapped the till of the Boyington house for $150 or $200 and got clear away, leaving no clew [Wish Andy had caught him at it; there'd have been a thief less now]. Foglegren, elected treasurer of Stambaugh township, could not make the bond and McQuown was appointed. D. I. Lay has returned from Vermont, where he wintered. Dr. Carpenter is back, too.—Reporter, Iron River—with which we take some comfort, now.

—That reckless blasting is kept up; Mont-real house and LaRochelle's building look as though they had been bombarded. Somebody will be killed, yet. No water for log driving. Marquette folks should remember, as the new postoffice goes up, the man who got it for us, the late Hon. Ed. Breitung. Gas is still going down the Calumet shafts at the rate of three million cubic feet per day. Dynamite placed in the oven of a cook stove in one of Nester's lumber camps, exploded, and the camp was wrecked and two men, William Morrison and Patrick Ratigan were instantly killed. The cook, Peter Somerville, had a leg blown off and will die, and two other men were badly wounded but may live. Abraham Stalter is in limbo at Ishpeming for rape of a girl of 13. Near killed by a South Shore passenger train near Negaunee yesterday. He was drunk and lying on the track. His body has not yet been identified.—M. J., 24th.

—At a meeting of representative citizens it was determined to organize for the purpose of assisting and encouraging "the commercial and moral development of this city"—a cross between a "chamber of commerce" and a "law and order league" [Won't do—can't serve two masters, especially if one of 'em is Mammon]. Republic ore is coming and the Republic fleet will be here to take it away as soon as may be. Bois Blanc light was lighted Monday. Solid ice from beyond Bois Blanc, eastward, to the South Fox, 90 miles up lake Michigan, as strong and thick as at any time this winter. Mackinac folks have been accused of piracy but never caught at it, like those Cheboygan folks that hooked the ice Albany's four.—Republicans, St. Ignace.

—Hugh Barclay is missing from Thompson and the description of the body found in the lumber camp at Floodwood fits him pretty accurately. His friends will try to find out if he is the murdered man. The new plumbing at the Oms was done by a man from Wallace's, at Escanaba. Manistique is to have a deputy collector [Mont. Double leads the item]. Myers Ephraim is here stringing up the boys for suits of clothes.—Sunday Sun, Manistique.

—Track laying and ballasting on the uncompleted portion of the South Shore road is to recommence May 1, and the line to be in operation from end to end by July 1. The road is to be worked in three divisions—all east of Marquette one; between Marquette and Thomasville one, and between Thomasville and Duluth one. Gov. Sweeney and wife are here. The man who was killed by the train near Negaunee was Mike Nisula, a single man some 40 years old and not addicted to drink. Somerville, who was hurt by the explosion at Nester's camp, has died, making the number of deaths three. Nick Barth is "fixing up" finer than ever.—M. J., 25th.

—The contract is let for the construction of a street car line, to be operated by electric motors. The outfit will cost $35,000, and is to be complete July 1. There appears to be due the city from ex-Treasurer Murray $737.36 but he says it's a mistake, that he does not owe the money, and the committee which is investigating the matter believes him and will try to find the error.—News, Sault Ste. Marie.

—James Keen, burglar, and James Joyce, illicit liquor dealer, broke out of the lock-up and skipped across the river into Wisconsin.—Record, Ironwood.

—The Colby is little affected by the depression in the ore trade; it will ship not less than 300,000 tons this season. Ed. V. Conley is supervisor of Watersmeet and chairman of the county board.—Pick & Axe, Bessemer.

—Error; Mr. Hubbell had secured the appropriation for the U. S. building here before the close of his last term. Part of a N-W ore train was ditched yesterday a mile south of Negaunee, and the track obstructed by the wreck for some hours. The Franco-Canadians of Marquette county will celebrate June 24, St. John's day, at Champion. The epidemic of measles at Ishpeming, which had nearly died out, seems to have taken a fresh start.—M. J., 26th.

Consumption Surely Cured.
To the Editor—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I will be glad to send two bottles FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl St., N. Y.

Brace Up.
You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with Headache, you are fidgety, nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap, bad whisky, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alterative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of Liver and Kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at J. N. Meads Drug store.

Rev. O. S. Brooks
Says that his little girl was troubled with malaria very severely and that since he gave her Sulphur Bitters, he never thinks of leaving New York for his summer resort without a few bottles, for they always cure his family, and are far superior to quinine.

THE STATE.
At the sheep shearing festival of the Eastern Michigan Association there were sheared five fleeces, from two-year-olds, weighing from 24 to 28 pounds. There was nobody there that wanted wool placed on the free list, though. Kraatz, who was paralyzed by a shock from an electric light wire, got a verdict of $10,000 against the Brush company in the Wayne circuit court but the company will go to the supreme court with the case.

Prof. Bailey has accepted a call to Cornell and will go with her next fall.
Michigan railroads earned over eleven millions in January and February, an increase of more than half a million over the same months of '87.
The state board of agriculture gives Prof. T. C. Abbott, in consideration of his long and faithful service to the agricultural college, indefinite leave of absence and pay at the rate of $1,000 a year.

The sale of the fine stock at the Ag. college was not well attended, prices were low, and the sale was stopped when ten head had been sold.
An ancient earthwork, circular in form, has been discovered near Lather.
The boring for oil at Fennville has been suspended after reaching 1,500 feet without a sign of oil.

While Inspector Draper of the Ionia prison was going through that at Jackson the other day he lost his wallet. It was found, however, and returned to him.
Policeman Sneed, of Lawton, was too quick with his gun, shooting a tramp named Gannon fatally. It is Sneed's second homicide and he will probably serve a time at Jackson, to teach him patience.
The Jackson county court house gives lawyers and jurors the ague.

Grand Rapids has a spasm of virtue and is raiding the gambling dens and brothels. Last week, perhaps two.
Coldwater schools closed for two weeks because of an outbreak of measles.
The Coldwater gas well is done for, the rope broke and the tools are at the bottom of the hole.
Peter Robinson, born at Aberdeen, Scotland, died at Port Huron last week at the age of 94 years. His last illness was also his first.

Albion college has 50 new students this term.
Work on the tunnel at Port Huron is now vigorously pressed and the tunnel will be completed—bar accident—in twelve months.
Whooping cough is killing the little ones in Barry county.

Contracts have been made for clearing, fencing and fertilizing an experimental farm in the "pine barrens" near Grayling, by the state agricultural board.
Hillsdale college boys set out thirty trees on Arbor day—one for each Hillsdale man who fell in the war of the rebellion.

The Michigan Pipe Co. will put in water works at Ovid and have them ready for the water in sixty days.
Chamberlain, of Three Oaks, could go out to Australia at public expense but won't miss the chance of taking a whack at his brother granger, Cyrus G. Luce, next fall if he never sees Australia.

Mumps and measles keep the children out of Grand Haven schools.
A Calhoun county man forty years old has never fired a gun, been a fishing, ridden on a railroad or kissed a girl. Might as well not have lived at all—saved money by it.

The West Michigan Fruit Growers' association will hold its annual meeting at Benton Harbor May 30 and two days following.
A three day encampment and reunion of the Soldiers and Sailors of Northwestern Michigan is to be held next month at Traverse City.
Ida Poland died just after having been released from the state reform school for girls at Adrian and her people charge her death upon the discipline of the school and demand an investigation.

Lenawee county republicans are first in the field with their delegation to the state convention—instructed for Alger.
Frank Egan, deputy secretary of state, lost two daughters, 7 and 9 years old, by diphtheria this week.

Adrian saloon keepers will keep right on, though the county voted "dry," until they are closed by course of law.
Tim Donovan was 6 feet 7 in stature, so it took him a long time to get drunk, all over; but he succeeded finally and then it took him still longer to get sober.

Dick Trevellick is trying to drive Armour's meats out of the Detroit markets but does not meet with much success.

"MAY GOD BLESS YOU!"
A Boston Paper-Hanger's Trouble and How He Got out of it—Plain words from the Sunny South.

When we are in trouble we cry for help. When we are relieved we often forget to be thankful. But not always. Mr. W. W. Griffin, of Trout Creek, St. Clair co., Ala., writes: "I had a bad attack of chills and fever. My system was full of malaria. For two years I was scarcely able to work at all. Some times my heart would palpitate for two hours at a time. My legs would get cold to the knees, and I fully expected to die. In September 1881, I bought a bottle of Shaker Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Curative Syrup, of your agent, Mr. R. M. King, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt better, and in a short time was able to go to work. May God bless you for the good you have done."
Mr. Wm. J. McCann, 99 Randall St., Boston, writes "Six months ago I began to throw up my food after eating. I thought I was going into consumption. I soon began to have pain in the chest and stomach and sides. I got little sleep and woke all tired out. I lost five pounds in four days. I began using Shaker's Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Syrup, and when I had finished the sixth bottle I could eat three square meals a day, and go to sleep the minute I struck the bed. I am a paper hanger by trade, and have worked every day since I took the second bottle, and gained eighteen pounds. I ought to be thankful and I am."

This remedy opens all the natural passages of the body, expels the poison from the blood and enables nature to rebuild what that disease has destroyed. Shaker Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Syrup, is sold by all druggists, or send to the proprietor, A. J. White, 54 Warren Street, New York.

JAMES MORGAN.

"In Silk Attire."

When our grandmothers wanted to be "dressed" they invariably wore Silk. Old-fashioned, maybe; smelling of lavender, doubtless; but certainly invested with impressive dignity, and lending an air of state to the most ordinary occasion. Ample in folds, their dresses "stood alone," with an appearance of severe grandeur to which no other material could ever hope to aspire. And no material ever has successfully competed with Silk. True, the silk dress has been much modernized, but it's silk all the same; and, at our marvellously close-trimmed prices, every woman in the land can easily afford to wear them. See:
Colored SILK SURAHs worth at least one yard, 75c
Black SATIN RHADAMES, worth a dollar a yard, 75c
Black-and-White CHECK SURAHs, extra heavy, 85c
Colored All-silk SATIN RHADAMES, in every new shade, worth $1.15 a yard, 87 1/2c
Elegant PLUSHES, desirable and novel shades, worth $1.00 a yd. 75c

Should your fancy pitch on the blacks or black-and-whites, recollect that these can be worn, in the present day, without anybody imagining that you're in "funeral garb."

LEGAL.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
Terms of court for 1888 and 1889.
I do hereby appoint the terms of the circuit court in the twenty-fifth judicial circuit of Michigan for the years A. D. 1888 and 1889 as follows: viz.:
In the County of Delta, on the first Tuesday in January, the second Wednesday in May, the last Monday in August.

In the County of Iron on the second Wednesday in January, the first Tuesday in May, and the second Wednesday in September.
In the County of Menominee, on the fourth Monday in January, the second Tuesday in April, the first Tuesday in September and the second Tuesday in November.
In the County of Marquette, on the second Monday in February, the third Monday in May, the third Wednesday in September and the first Monday in December.
Dated, Oct. 25, 1887.
C. E. GRANT,
Circuit Judge of said Circuit.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas def-ult has been made in the payment of a certain mortgage executed by Mary M. De Beque to Malcom M. Aird, dated the fifth day of December, A. D., one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, which mortgage was recorded in the register's office of the county of Delta, state of Michigan, in Liber "K" of mortgages, on page 99, on the 15th day of December, 1885; and which said mortgage was duly assigned, and recorded in Liber "K" of mortgages, on page 75, Aird to Jennette Lee Aird, by a deed of assignment, dated the eleventh day of January, A. D., one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, and recorded in Liber "K" of mortgages, on page 75.
And whereas there is now claimed to be due upon said mortgage the sum of five hundred and fifty-six and fifty-four hundredths dollars, as the date of this notice, and no proceedings at law or in equity having been taken to recover the principal sum or interest, or any part thereof, now therefore, notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:
The south-west quarter of the north-east quarter and the south-east quarter of the north-west quarter of section sixteen (16) in township thirty-eight (38) north, of range twenty-three (23) west, situated in said county of Delta, will be sold at public auction at the front door of the court house in the city of Escanaba in said county, that being the place of holding the circuit court for the said county, on the thirtieth day of April, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to make the amount then due on said mortgage and the costs of these proceedings.
Dated this first day of February, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.
F. D. MANN,
Attorney,
JENNETTE LEE AIRD, Assignee.

ORDER OF HEARING

STATE OF MICHIGAN,
County of Delta,
Probate Court for said County.
At a session of the Probate Court for said County, held at the Probate office, in the city of Escanaba on the 21st day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.
Present, Hon. Emil Glaser, Judge of Probate.
In the matter of the estate of Thomas Morgan, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Mary Morgan praying that a certain instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be admitted to probate, and that the execution of said will be committed and the administration of the estate of said deceased be granted to Mary Morgan the executrix in said will named.
Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 21st day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the legatees and heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Probate office in the City of Escanaba, Michigan, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.
And, it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice of this order of the court, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Escanaba Evening News, a newspaper published in said county, three successive weeks previous to the day of hearing.
EMIL GLASER, Judge of Probate.
(A true copy.)
EMIL GLASER, Judge of Probate.

ORDER OF HEARING

STATE OF MICHIGAN,
County of Delta,
Notice is hereby given, that by an order of the probate court for the county of Delta, made on the 13th day of April, A. D. 1888, six months from that date were allowed for petitioners to present their claims against the estate of Emily Gardgie, late of said county, deceased, and that all creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said probate court, at the probate office, in the city of Escanaba, for examination and allowance, on or before the 13th day of October next, and that such claims will be heard before said court, on Monday, the 21st day of June and on Monday, the 21st day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of each of those days.
Dated Escanaba, Mich., April 13, A. D. 1888.
Emil Glaser,
Judge of Probate.

IRON PORT.

ESCANABA, MICH., APRIL 28, 1888.

W. C. T. U.

BY THE LADIES OF THE W. C. T. U.

[Pledge of Temperance Union: "In the full belief of the existence and power of Almighty God, and acknowledging our accountability to Him, we solemnly promise that we will not make, buy, sell, use, furnish or cause to be furnished to others as a beverage any spirituous liquors, and by all just means in our power to banish the use of intoxicating liquor from our land and to advance the cause of temperance."]'

The W. C. T. U. meets regularly Wednesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. H. L. Mead.

Last week we mentioned the fact that Judge Waite dissented from the decision allowing railroads to carry alcoholic liquors into prohibitory Iowa, but had not space to give the opinion. We here give the main points in it, as they embody important principles. After quoting the Supreme Court's decision in the famous "Cattle cases," in which state law forbidding bringing Texas cattle into the state, because of liability to spread Texan fever, was declared unconstitutional, but at the same time it was held that if the law only aimed at diseased cattle it would not have been unconstitutional, the dissenting opinion signed by Chief Justice Waite, Justices Harlan and Gray, continues:

"It seems to us that the decision just rendered does not conform to the doctrines of the foregoing cases, and may impair, if it does not destroy, the power of a state to protect her own people against the injurious consequences which are admitted to flow from the use of intoxicating liquors. There is no difference, in effect, between the power to prohibit the sale of an article, and a power to prohibit its introduction. It is admitted that a state may prevent the introduction within her limits of rags or other goods infected with disease, or of cattle or meat or other provisions which, from their condition, are unfit for human use or consumption; because, it said such articles are not merchantable. But suppose the people of a state believe, upon reasonable grounds, that the general use of intoxicating liquors is dangerous to the public peace, the public health, and the public morals, what authority has congress or the judiciary to reverse their judgment upon that subject, and compel them to submit to a condition of things which they regard as destructive of their happiness, and the peace and good order of society? If, consistently with the constitution of the United States, a state can protect her sound cattle, by prohibiting altogether the introduction within her territory of diseased cattle, she ought not to be deemed disloyal to that constitution when she seeks by similar legislation to protect her people and their homes against the introduction of articles which are, in good faith, and not unreasonably, regarded by her citizens as 'laden with infection' more dangerous to the public than diseased cattle or infected rags. It is not a satisfactory answer to these suggestions, to say that if the state may thus outlaw the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and exclude them from her limits, she may adopt the same policy with reference to articles that confessedly have no necessary or immediate connection with the health, the morals, or the safety of the community.

"Now, can it be possible that the framers of the Constitution intended whether congress chose or not to act upon the subject, to withhold from a state authority to prevent within her midst articles or commodities, the manufacture of which within her limits she could prohibit? Does the mere grant of the power to regulate commerce among the states (to congress) invest individuals of one state with the right, even without the sanction of congressional legislation, to introduce among the people of another state that which, by statute, they have declared to be deleterious to their health and dangerous to their safety? It is inconceivable that the well being of any state is at the mercy of the liquor manufacturers of other states." Upon another branch of the subject the judges say: "Congress never having acted upon the subject declaring what shall and what shall not pass between the states as interstate commerce, even if congress, under the power to regulate commerce, had authority to declare what shall or what shall not be subjects of commerce among the states, that power would not fairly imply authority to compel a state to admit within her limits that which in fact is, or which, upon reasonable grounds she may declare to be destructive of the health, morals, or peace of her people. The purpose of committing to congress the regulation of commerce is not defeated when a state employs appropriate means to prevent the introduction into her limits of what she lawfully forbids her own people from making. It certainly was not meant to give to citizens of other states greater rights in Iowa than Iowa's own people have. But if this be not a sound interpretation of the constitutional provision in regard to commerce among the states, if intoxicating liquors are entitled to the same protection as ordinary merchandise, etc., the former decisions of this court would seem to show that such laws of the states are valid, even where they affect commercial intercourse among the states until displaced by federal legislation, or until they come in conflict with some act of congress." While it is true that Chief Justice Waite did not write this decision, he did sign it, and leave it as his dying testimony, in favor of effective prohibition of the liquor traffic. For this his name will be revered when those of the Justices giving a contrary opinion will be forgotten.

PERSONAL.

—James H. and Mrs. Morrell have visited at Chicago this week.

—Peter Mallman, of Isabella, was a visitor at our office Tuesday.

—John Hagerty was here Thursday, as round and jolly as ever.

—Miss Annie Moynhan is in charge of the millinery parlors at Burns'.

—Clifford is coming—will be here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next.

—County Clerk McColl visited the eastern townships this week, going on Wednesday.

—Miss Stone, of the high school, was called home Thursday by the illness of her sister.

—Harry Farley, advance agent for Clifford, nice fellow too, billed the town Wednesday.

—Miss Sarah Murray, of Belle Plain, Iowa, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. B. D. Winegar, here.

—Dr. Tracy went south Monday for a little rest and to meet Mrs. Tracy, homeward bound.

—Adam Reis visited us (and "chanked" our treasury with two big silver dollars) on Wednesday.

—George W. Douglas, of Barkville, was booked (and presumably fed) at the Oliver on Tuesday.

—Mr. Dimock started for Minneapolis yesterday, so, for the present, we must run our own show, unless it will run itself.

—Ed. Ellsworth arrived at home on Saturday last. He will not return to Blair, where he has been located, and may be called to duty nearer home.

—Messrs. Cochrane and Fuller, patentee of the flouring machinery that we are to build in the new shops and his legal adviser, arrived last Wednesday.

—Jimmy Moran has quit rattroading and gone into a real estate and insurance business at Ashland. Hope he'll "clean up" and get out before the boom lets go.

—Mr. Burt, chief engineer of the Northwestern, was here Tuesday and went north, accompanied by Sup't Linsley, to look after the work of extension west of Ishpeming.

The Devil Fish Described By Hugo.

Is not a more tenacious monster than malaria, whether it takes the form of chills and fever, bilious remittent, ague cake or dumb ague. Like the octopus of the story it clasps the victim in its tentacles, and folds him closer and closer in a horrible embrace. Attacked with Hostetter's Bitter's, however, it gradually relaxes its tremendous grip, finally abandons it, and the quondam sufferer liberated at last, rejoices in the sense of new born freedom, engendered by the restoration of complete health. Dyspepsia, too, and constipation, those old and remorseless enemies of the human family, give ground and are finally driven from the field by this Napoleon of remedies, the greatest and purest in the family pharmacopoeia. Rheumatism succumbs to it, so do kidney troubles. The nerves, when overstrained, regain quietude and vigor by its aid, and the ability to rest tranquilly and eat with a zest are increased by it. Resort to it in time and avoid unnecessary suffering.
