COMIC OPERA next week.

BORN, in this city, on Monday, May 28, to Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Hughitt, a daughter.

AFTER a month of delay the Mirror is es tablished in its new house on Dousman street. GEORGE McDonald lost his little daughter, four years old, by membranous croup, last Sunday.

THE Cochrane Roller Mills Co. has taken the rooms over Squire Northup's office to serve as its headquarters until its own build-

WITH the Lotus, Lucile and North Star starting up the bay, the Corona passing out and the Dove arriving, the harbor looked lively at six last Sunday evening.

OHENRY BLACK, formerly in the employ of the C. & N. W. and a resident of our city and more lately on the Duluth & Mineral Range road, in the Vermilion iron country, died Sunday,

THE Mirror "never backs"-law breakers in the council room are patriots and deserve praise; law breakers at the ore docks are scoundels and deserve punishment-it has said it, and that ends it.

Jo. HESS' barn was on fire last Saturday night about eleven-set ablaze by tramps, no doubt-but the boys got a stream on it promptly and prevented its destruction. Damage $200 or less.

A LOCAL BOARD auxiliary to the American Building and Loan Association of Minneapolis, has been organized during the week. C.C. Stephenson is president, O. V. Linden secretary and John Christie treasurer.

O'HARA, who attempted to abuse Lainey's little girl, is held for trial at the next term of court and probably booked for Ionia of Jackson. He gets off easy, at that; we don't understand why Peanuts did not kill him.

DFINCH is getting his wires into shape and proposes to have his hello business going today. For the present the headquarters and exchange will be in the same building with 'Squire Frost, on Dousman St. just south of

THE FINEST bouquet of arbutus we have seen this year (as beautiful, indeed, as we ever saw) was received on Saturday last and for i we are indebted to our friend, Mrs. Julia Burt. of Whitefish, who will please accept our sin-

RAIN, a steady downpour from eleven until five, prevented the playing of the proposed hall game last Sunday and kept people in doors. The services at the rink, commemorative of the struggle for the life of the Nation were attended by but a handful.

Too MANY shows just now for all of them to make money. Roberts cid not clear expenses with his good company last week, The boys are saving their dollars to take in the circus. But circus or no circus, everyone should hear the operas next week.

FORREST is not yet able to appear against the Mollies who assaulted him and the case must wait. It does not induce to activity or energy to drive a pick between a man's ribs and Forrest must be excused, but it is wrong that the men should be at liberty for a day.

For summer justice, right off the ice, apply to Squire Frost, whose office is in the little building at the rear of Dimock & Co's office, fronting on Dousman street. But it you're on the wrong side of the book and find yourself frostbitten don't blame us, we're only giving you the facts,

. WE DID NOT get on to it at the time, not was it a fact of great importance, but it was a fact nevertheless, that Sheriff Provo lost those "poker chips". Somebody pried up a window, crawled into his office and carried them off. The window was too narrow or they would probably have taken the tables, too, to complete the outfit.

For disorderly conduct on Sunday last four lads, of twelve or thereabours, named Rich, Cleary, Glazier and Burns, were haled before Justice Glaser on Monday and fined $5 and costs each. Rich and Cleary paid (or payment was made for them) but Glazier and Burns tarry for seven days with Sheriff Provo, in the cage. Burns and Glazier paid next day, and shake the jail.

OKE MOVES, if the market is dull; 250,000 tons for the first month of the season is not bad; the same rate will make the shipments tion. Price low and terms easy. Inquire at from Escanaba for the season a million and three quarters, and it is not improbable that the rate may improve and our shipments reach the figures of last year though such a result is not hoped for as to the whole district. port takes a larger proportion of the trade every year.

> NEXT Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings June 5, 6 and 7, the Boston Comic Opera Co., will be at Opera Hall presenting on the opening night "Olivette;" on June 6 'Mikado" and closing June 7 with "Chimes of Normandy," Opera hali should be crowded to ee this company for it is about the best one we ever had in the u. p. Diagram at J. N.

WM PINCHIN, superintendent of the Jackson Iron Company's business at Fayette, one of the oldest citizens of that place and one of the most widely known men on the east side of the county, died at four o'clock last Thursday moraing. As we write we know only the fact, communicated by the captain of the Harris, who came across to notify Capt. Mitchell and the company. But we happen to know that Mr. P. has suffered quite severely of late with a difficulty of breathing and infer that the attack which carried him off was a return in more violent form of that difficulty. We hope to be better informed before we go

We learn further concerning the death of Mr. Pinchin that on Wednesday evening he complained of a slight pain in the chest but did not regard himself as ill and retired at his usual hour, after which nothing is known except that Mrs. Pinchin was awakened about four Thursday morning and found him unconcious and that his death took place before Dr. Gelzer, who was called at once, could reach him. The funeral will be held this, Saturday, morning at Fayette, and attended by the members of Delta Lodge, A.F. & A.M. of this city, to which Mr. Pinchin belonged. Capt. Colwell tendered free transportation, on the Stewart, to all who wished to attend.

THE outbreak of violence among the ore trimmers which had been looked for since the opening of navigation, occurred on Monday, but not in the manner which was expected. Richardson's gang refused to trim a ship on Saturday because he had conceded a reduction in price from four to three and a half cents per ton, and he therefore settled with the men and employed others. On Monday, with his new men, he went on board the Monohansett to trim her cargo whereupon the discharged men followed, attacked and drove off the new ones. wounding three of them-Thiere, Forrest and Barry-and performed the work themselves. Upon information by Richardson warrants were issued for ten of the assaulting party who were arrested and held in jail Monday night and brought before Justice Glaser Tuesday morning. At that time three of the ten made such a showing for themselves that they were discharged from arrest and seven, James Rogers, John and Anthony Gallagher, Tully and Maurice Coll, John McGraw and Charles McAuley, were held to bail in $300 bonds for their appearance for examination when Forrest shall be able to give evidence. He is wounded by blows with a pick and it may be several days before he can be present to testify. The charge is assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than the crime of murder, and conviction will send the men to penitentiary. We fancy the trouble is overfor the time being, at any rate.

THE BODY of a man was found affoat in the basin between Nos. 1 and 2 ore docks last Tuesday and Coroner McFallewas notified summoned a jury, and made such Inquisition as was practicable. The body was that of a large man, had been so long in the water that decomposition was far advanced and indentification by the features impossible. The dress was that of a laborer and in the pockets were found a purse containing two receipts issued by the postoffice at Masonville for registered letters and the name thereon, John Peterson, was assumed by the coroner and jury as that of the man whose body lay before them and concerning whom they say he came to his death by drowning and further say not.

THE PARADE on Memorial day was the best we have ever had-the Sons of Veterans, the G. A. R. post, the Firemen, the Germania society, the Institute Jac. Cartier, the Equitable Protective association, the school children, and many citizens marched, to music by the E. F. C. and E. S. T. (or city) bands, from the corner of Tilden avenue and Ludington streets to Lakeview cemetery where the programme was carried out-speeches (by Messrs. Royce and Macdonald) music, decoration of graves, etc., and returned. The weather was all that could be desired and the town was

THE Leviathan was here Monday. She had been working at the wreck of the Blazing Star, which Capt. Grummond bought of the underwriters for $900, and found it hardly worth wrecking. The local wreckers had stripped her of everything detachable and the sea had pounded her bottom all to pieces. About 100,000 feet of cull lumber was got out of her hold-twice as much having been corraled by the islanders-which, with some blocks, etc., recovered at Washington Harbor, is all Grummond has to show for his invest-

FRANK BANUIER, a track hand in the employ of the Northwestern in the upper yard, on Thursday morning stepped out of the way of an approaching train which he saw and immediately in front of one on the track upon

THE CIGAR MAKERS did not "come out whole" on their party Wednesday evening for the best of reasons-they gave a two dollar dance for one dollar-but they covered themselves with credit, all the same, and showed that they knew how to give a good party. Meads, reserved seats 75 cents; general ad- Next year, when their anniversary comes ound, they will reap their reward.

THE board of review heard the complaints and remonstrances of those who thought they were over-assessed and did, we have no doubt, substantial justice, albeit the figures were very little changed.

THE BALL GAME on Memorial day was not very exciting one; six innings only were played and the score at the close stood sixteen to nothing in favor of the home club. The boys from the "coming" town must practice more if they hope to get games from our nine, and they say they will. They're not the sort to be content with the record of Wednesday. HENRY DELIN not only got silly, noisy, offensively drunk, but he must forsooth thrust the fact under the nose of Justice Glaser by his ship on Fighting Island and running into parading about the courthouse in that condition and he got off mighty easy, under the circumstances-with a fine of only $5 and costs-which he found means to pay. Next time, perhaps, he will keep away from the precincts.

BEFORE Justice Glaser, on Thursday, James McCauley was found guilty of disorderly conduct, with a six-shooter, fined $25 and costs. the alternative being 45 days in the cage. On same day same magistrate assessed Theodore Pepin, for having been drunk and disorderly, without the gun, $5 and costs, in all $11. which he found means to pay and evade the

ANDREW LARSON, a Skandinavian immigrant who arrived here a couple of weeks since, disappeared from the house of his brother in this city last Saturday, May 26, and is supposed to be wandering, insane. He is 25 years old, about 5 feet 5 in height, blue eyes, brown hair, a small dark mustache. Had on a brown, soft hat with high crown, light color ed cotton coat and pants, faded, and shoes with iron plates on the heels. Any information concerning him will be thankfully re ceived by Louis Erickson, p. o. box 400 Es-

THE LOGS are coming out of the Whitefish all right; the west branch drive is down and Mason's logs, out of Pole Creek, were at Haymeadow Creek Monday and are now in boom. Dunham & Thurber's logs, 1,500,000 feet, in a towing boom and almost ready for a start down the lakes, went adrift Sunday the n, as we hear the tale, having curely fastened, to a single pile which drew out. The North Star and Shipman gathered them up the next day, and the greater portion were recovered, though some of them ran by here and possibly escaped altogether. THE GAME LAW must be obeyed or there will be trouble as long as Capt. Stratton is charged with its enforcement, and the sooner the fact is recognized the fewer will be the cases like those which came before 'Souire Waldo, of Masonville last Saturday, in which James Ackley, James Larabee and Peter Sholts were each fined $100 and costs for taking fish by methods forbidden by the law-the first named for using a seine with a mesh less than 31/2 incl es and the two latter for spearing in the rivers. The law is for the preservation of the fish and the public good and good citizens will respect it; those who do not will "catch

THE QUIET and good order of our suburb up the bay was disturbed on Wednesday in a manner which called for the interference of the peace officers. Some citizen found it nec essary to the proper discipline of his family (so we hear the story) to thrash his wife and her remonstrances induced the village marshal to take a hand in the proceedings, whereupon there was shooting and rather close callsbullets touching the heads of the marshal and his asssistant -and the crowd came hither on Thursday under escort of Sheriff Provo. Up to the time we go to press, however, no hearing has been had from which we could get a clear understanding of the affair.

GLADSTONE was jubilant Monday over the first transfer of flour from rail to lake at that point-a consignment of 3,500 sacks (280 pounds to the sack) made from Manitoba wheat and going to Glasgow, marked "for drawback" so the owners could recoup their outlay of import duty on the wheat from which it was made. It was taken by the Tacoma, of the Lehigh Valley fleet, enroute from Chicago, with corn. The flour shed is nearly completed and is capacious, 504 feet by 82; a coal hoist and transfer apparatus 500 by 316 feet on the ground is begun and will be pushed to completion as rapidly as may be; a building for general merchandize storage and transfer 180 feet by 110, east of the flour shed, is the next to go up and Mr. Dunbar was busy "setting the pegs" for it when we were there. Between the coal hoist and the flour shed a space of 35 feet or so gives room or a water station. Of improvements to the city we noticed some : The bank building is a tasty and, for a wooden one, a solid, well which he stepped, which he had not seen nor built house. Scott & Mason are hunting for heard and which knocked him down and a new location, further west, and will, as soon passed over him. He loses a leg and is at the as they get it, put their big house on wheels and roll it up where the crowd is. "There is no boom," we have the local paper for so much, but there is growth. It is not yet the eading town of the u. p. nor do we think it ever will be, but a good little town we do look or and hope to see at Gladstone.

The steamer Rosedale cleared from London for Chicago, via the Canadian canals, May 24. Duluth was ice-blockaded May 25.

The Monteagle took in a cargo of wheat, 50,200 bushels, from elevator H. at Duluth, in 49 minutes. Best time on record.

The Lehigh wet 6,000 bushels of corn, 3,000 bushels of oats and 700 barrels of flour when she went to the bottom of lake St. Clair. The United Empire gave up the attempt to get into Port Arthur, after receiving a good deal of damage, and made the run to Duluth. Capt. Gordon, of the Clarion, loses his command in consequence of the grounding of and sinking the Mongaugon. Capt. Jones and the W. T. Company got even with Byrns and the Union, on the down trip. The Hudson was the first to leave Chicago, but the Captain "took it easy" until the Tioga overtook him, at Detroit, and then the fun began. The vessels were in about the same trim, both had full cargoes, and each skipper was anxious to win but only one could and that one was Jones-the Hudson beat the Tioga from Detroit to Buffalo forty-five minu-

That so many otherwise attractive, polite, and particular people afflict their friends by the foul and disagreeable odor of their breath; it is mainly caused by disordered digestion, and can be corrected by removing the cause, by using that pure medicine, Sulphur Bitters. -Health Magazine.

Merit Wins. We desire to say to our citizens, that fo years we have been selling Dr. King's New Disvovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Buckley's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. J. N. Mead Druggist.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

-A lot in Denver that was purchased by an early settler for five dollars and a revolver sold the other day for ten thousand dollars.

-European specialists have made the curious observation that acute rheumatism is more prevalent in dry than in rainy weather.

-The ostrich farms at Los Angeles, Cal., have been quite as remunerative as a show for curious sight-seers as from the sale of feathers.

-The heirs of a merchant of Monson, Mass., received the other day thirty cents sent by a man in Pennsylvania, who wrote that they were to pay for four apples that he took from the merchant's store when he lived there forty years ago.

-A brace of famous dueling pistols, exhibited in a bar-room in Sumter, S. C., were owned by General E. W. Morse, and have been in use in a dozen or more duels, including the famous Cash-Shannon meeting, when Colonel Shannon was killed.

-A New York society woman had a ball dress made of white satin which before making had been run through the press of one of the great dailies, so that her costume was the news of the day. She won the prize for the most novel costume.

-It is an interesting fact in connection with the work of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals that the seals of the Society were designed and engraved by the late Frank Leslie, who was one of the earliest sympathizers with Mr. Henry Bergh in his humane undertaking.

-A gentleman of Baltimore probably owes his life to a parrot. The cries of the bird awakened him at three o'clock in the morning. He discovered that his house was on fire and barely had time to arouse his family and get them out before the building was completely wrapped in flames.

-A French bachelor advertised for wife. A typographical error changed his age from thirty-seven to eightyseven, but it made no difference, for he received two hundred and fifty applications from ladies ranging from the age of sixteen to sixty, and all promising love and devotion to the rest of his existence.

-At Jonesboro, Ga., a man entered a store the other day and wanted to pay for a suit of clothes which he had purchased there twenty-eight years before. The merchant didn't remember the man and had no account against any person of his name, but the stranger insisted that he owed the bill and paid it with interest. -It is related that one of the pages of the United States Supreme Court once found under the chair of a member of the court noted for his absentmindedness, and who had gone on a trip out of town, a slip of paper on which was inscribed: "Mem. Thing to take along: One pair of socks, one shirt, two collars, one pair of cuffs, one

-Twenty years ago Enoch Hall, of Morven, Ga., picked up the seeds that an orange eater had dropped and planted them in a little box. A few months afterward he moved to Indian river, and the little orange sprouts were carried along and set out. Today one of the spronts is a tree fifteen inches in diameter and bears 2,500

-Morning Light is the name of a very young Indian who recently arrived in New York. He first saw the light of day in midocean, having been born on the voyage across from France on the steamer La Bourgogne. His parents are full-blooded Spirit Lake Chippewa Indians, who were members of the Buffalo Bill Company. As he was born under the French flag France may claim him as a subject.

-Our mail collectors find in the iron boxes along the streets all sorts of papers and articles which have been put in by some hand from whose motions the mind has become detached for a second. A glove, a pair of spectacles, a deed, a mortgage, a theater ticket goes in, and on goes the person, holding on to the regular letter which should have been deposited. This is called absent-mindedness, but is a brief lunacy."-Scientific American.

-One of the most interesting curiosities in the United States is a piece of mosaic from the floor of the temple to Astarte, built by the Romans at Carthage, which is preserved in the National Museum at Washington. It is two thousand years old and represents a yellow lion in the act of killing a horse. Eyes, teeth, blood spots and all are depicted by bits of stone. The fragment is about seven feet square, and is valued at twenty-five thousand

-The cheese for excellence with high livers is Roquefort. It is French and made of goat's milk and herbs. It is very rich, and is served just before coffee at dinner. Roquefort is almost a religion with French epicures, and is equally well thought of by a little animal probably first cousin to the American "skipper." This little animal is also part of the French epichre's religion. If the cheese does not contain him it is looked upon with suspicion as his discrimination is very fine. Two years ago a man named and was singing at his carpenter bench in Paris, when M. Hartumann, the music publisher, chanced to be passing. M. Hartmann stopped, and learned that the singer did not know one note of music from another, but mann sent him to the best schools. That poor carpenter is now M. Bernard, the favorite French tenor at the Paris out of pine boards for year.

PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL

-Senator Hoar has received the degree of LL. D. from Harvard, Amherst, Yale, Williams and William and Mary's.

-A New Yorker who in prosperous days had made a study of diamonds and was a fine judge, turned his knowledge to profitable account and is to-day the successful buyer for a large diamond house.

-An Englishman who had spent £10,-000 in feeding and clothing the poor of Liverpool, disguised himself and went among them, and he speedily found that such of them as did not guy him for an idiot were satisfied that he was a

-Mr. Vanderbilt is going to form a great collection of articles of bric-abrac. He has secured the services of an experienced instructor to aid him in judging what to purchase, and it is said that he has already expended upwards of half a million dollars on his new collection.

-Jeff Davis claims that it was at his suggestion the crown of feathers was substituted for the liberty cap upon the statue which adorns the dome of the capitol at Washington. He objected to the liberty cap as the accepted emblem of the freed slave, whereas our people were born free and had maintained their freedom.

-A dealer in men's furnishing goods in New York says that clergymen are among the most fastidious of his customers. They always choose the finest material. Silk underwear made to order at a great cost is a favorite thing with them. Famous or wealthy men, he says, as a rule, care least about dress. Wall street men dress most brilliantly and actors most showily.

-Senator Bowen went to Colorado from Arkansas ten years ago, broken in health and poor. One night he won one hundred dollars at poker and gave. it to a prospector for a grub stake. As a result of this adventure he gained the Little Annie and Golconda mines, which have paid him as high as ten thousand dollars a day in hard cash. A conservative estimate places the ore in sight at $2,500,000.

-Senor Don Jose Llulla, who died in New Orleans the other day at the age of seventy-three years, was a Spanish soldier of distinction. He was rewarded for his bravery with the golden cross of the order of Charles III., but a reward which he appreciated more than the King's cross was a portrait of himself worked in silk with women's hair-the jet black hair of Spanish ladies who had cut off their tresses for the purpose of honoring him.

.-John Battersby, who in his day was the thinnest living skeleton in the show business, began to gain weight immediately after being thrown out of a wagon near Frankfort, Pa., some fifteen years ago. His lightest weight was fifty-two pounds, and after the accident he gradually began to increase in avoirdupois until he had fattened out of the business at one hundred and thirty pounds. His wife, Hannah Battersby, weighs six hundred and thirty pounds.

-"I want a strong man for the place. What was your last occupation?" "I was a carver of spring-chickens in a down-town restaurant."/ "Take off your coat and go to work at once."-Boston Gazette.

-Gentleman (reading the placard on the wall in a barber shop)-"Why, how is that, Jim? Shaves fifteen cents, on Sunday twenty-five cents.' Why have you begun to charge extra for Sunday?" Jim—"Dun jined the church, sah."—Santa Barbara Press.

-"Your honor," exclaimed a lawyer, in the heat of argument, "if you knew the plaintiff as I know him, you would admit that a more envious, more grossly ingnorant, vainer, more intolerant man does not breathe!" The judge (severely)-"Mr. B., you forget-yourself."

-When I grow up I will be a man, won't I?" asked a little Texas boy of his mother. "Yes, my son. If you want to be a man, you must be industrious at school, and learn how to behave yourself. "Why, ma, do lazy boys turn out to be women when they grow up?",-Texas Siftings.

-Elderly spinster-"I can't see why you young girls should be so absurdly timid. You can't walk a block after dark without being in an agony of fear, thinking that somebody may be following you." "Do you never look back to see if some man is following you?' "No. What's the use? It wouldn't be my luck."-Lincoln Jour-

-Tramp (politely)-"Madam, will you be kind enough to give me something to eat?" Lady-"I'm sorry there he had a beautiful voice and M. Hart- isu't a thing in the house, except a erust; but if you want that you can have it." Trump (with courtly bow) - If it is the upper crust, madam, I Opera House, and is making more will be pleased to receive it; otherwise, money in a week than he could saw I hope you will parton me if I decline."

LESTER WALLACK was given a benefit last week in New York and the box had $21,000 in it. The play was Hamlet, with a wonderful cast: Booth as Hamlet, Barrett as the ghost. Mayo as the king, Joe Jefferson as the grave-digger and the other parts each filled

"MONT," of the Sunday Sun, complains that he can't keep printers because of the sawdust in the water. The Sentinel, L'Anse wants to know how that is-it never knew a print that could tell whether water had saw dust in it or not; who ever had any use for the fluid, even to find fault with it.

DR. FOLEY may be appointed bishop of Detroit but the announcement that he had been so appointed was, at any rate, premature and probably untrue. A dispatch which should have read "If Foley is appointed," etc., lost the "if" in transmission and so appeared to assert his appointment. Archbishop Elder does not think he is the man.

"BROADSTOAD" was the Lest stagger the state editor of the Free Press could make at the name of Braastaad, the Ishpeming feed and flour merchant. The same light of journalism announces that graduates of a high school "are endeavoring to form an alumni." Freetrade in the vernacular would be a good thing for him-that is if he has the wherewith to acquire it at any price.

THIRD party managers are now claiming that they have votes enough this year to defeat the republican party in Michigan. This is equivalent to saying that they propose to turn the state over to the democrats if they can. It is needless for them to make that confession. Everybody knows that this is just what they are trying to do. Should they succeed what would be gained for temperance?-Tribune.

THE Cleveland Iron Trade Review gives "actual steaming time" of an ore carrier between Ashland and Cleveland at 59 hours. whole distance; or, taking into account the lower rate of speed unavoidable in the rivers, not less than fitteen miles an hour in all the clear water. SAM RANDALL, when he took the floor to give the Mills bill its death-blow, needed more time than the rule allowed and Mr. Mills objected to any relaxation of the rule in his favor-a course natural enough, as Randall was punching holes in his work till it looked like a riddle-hoping to choke him off. It was not successful, though; republican and liberal democratic members who had claims to the floor gave Randall their time and Mills had to take his medicine, to the last bitter drop

THE MILLS are all working again, double turn to make up for lost time. Howard Mc-Kinzie was cleaning his revolver when it let go and sent a bullet through his foot. THERE is to be a contest for second place at the St. Louis convention. There are many aspirants, between whom there is, for republicans, there is little to choose (barring Col. W. R. Rosecransour "Old Rosy," of the fighting record; of Corinth, Iuka, Stone River and the campaign for the capture of Chattanooga-pleases us. We entertain a lively hope of beating the ticket, no matter who is behind Grover, but if it should prove a fallacious hope, if providence still visits us and our country with a chastening hand, we can bear the punishment the bet ter for the good luck of our old commander and friend. THE PRETENDED PRIENDS OF Mr Blaine hould repent, in sackcloth and ashes, the course of action that has compelled him to write the following letter. It is just what every true friend of that great American expected of him under the circumstances, and reflects added laster on his name, but the men whose quibbling over his former letter comshame and disgrace-by it:

PARIS, May 17, 1888.—Whitelaw Reid, Esq., Editor New York Tribune—Dear Sir: Since my return to Paris from Southern Italy, on the 8th inst., I have learned (what I did not before believe) that my name may yet be presented to the National convention as a candidate for the presidency by the republican party. A single phrase of my letter of Jan. 25, from Florence (which was decisive of everything I had the personal power to de cide) has been treated by many of my most valued friends as not absolutely conclusive in ultimate and possible contingencies. On the other hand, friends equally devoted and disinterested, have construed my letter (as it should be construed) to be an unconditional witholding of my name from the National convention. They have in consequence given their support to eminent gentlemen who are candidates for the Chicago nomination, some of whom would not, I am sure, have consented to assume that position if I had desired to rep resent the party in the presidential contest

"If I should now, by speech or by silence, by commission or omission, permit my name in any event to come before the convention, I should incur the reproach of being uncandid with those who have always been candid with me. I speak, therefore, because I am not willing to remain in a donbtful attitude. I am not willing to be the cause of misleading a single man among the millions who have given me their suffrages and their confidence. The issue of protection is incalcuably stronger and greater than any man, for it concerns the prosperity of the present and of generations to come. Were It possible for every voter of the republic to see for himself the condition and the recompense of labor in Europe, the party of free trade in the United States would not receive the support of one wage worker between the two oceans. It may not be directly in our power as philanthropists to elevate the European laborer, but it will be a lasting stigma upon our statesmanship if we permit the American laborer to be forced down to the European level. And in the end the rewards of labor everywhere will be advanced if we steadily refuse to lower the standard at home.

Yours very sincerely, "JAMES G. BLAINE."

THEY HAD IT in Milwuakee; they had it, bad, in Chicago: they are now convalescent, dens in the northern peninsula." Now, there are brothels in the counties this side of the straits (or in some of them, we don't know of one in this county), and they are infamous places, occupied by infamous people (most of whom are graduates of the schools of infamy in the cities named), but the stories of their horrors as depicted in the Journal are without foundation. Were they not, however, the scripture concerning the "beam" and the "mote" applies: There is more of that sort of wickedness, ten times over, in the city in which this sensation-mongering, backbiting Journal is published than in all the northern peninsula, and we are getting a trifle weary of this stone-throwing by people whose residences are composed entirely of the material of our windows. There are "woods cribs" wherever there are large numbers of men engaged in lumbering operations and removed from the influences of home and family-there are "calico cooks" on the lakes-but the cities reek with prostitution; in them are the traps set for the unwary and unfortunate-from them the proprietors of the "woods cribs" recruit their forces, and the city papers should look to their own purlieus before they attend

IT WILL BE noted that the Iron Trade Review takes a very pessemistic view of of the prospects of the ore and iron trade this season and it must be confessed that the outlook is not bright; but when it is seen that the "Colby * has no royalty to pay" it may occur to the reader that its information is not accurate and its deductions not, therefore, to be absolutely relied upon. In another article, peaking of the cost of transportation of ore, it supposes a steam carrier "makes four voyages a month" from Ashland to lake Erie- a supposition about 50 per cent out of the way -and so invalidates the "figuring" by which it reaches the conclusion that the cost of handling ore is 42.42 cents per ton, and disturbs the confidence of the reader again. If it is as badly informed about matters at that end of the line as it is about matters at this, its predictions need scare nobody.

GEN. SHERIDAN has been very ill during the week past, so ill that on Sunday and Monday his life was despaired of; but as we write; on Wednesday, is mending and hope revives. His trouble is, however, one that can scarcely fail to prove fatal in the near future, a failure of the valves of the heart to properly perform their functions and consequent deterioration of the blood, with an hourly danger that the overworked organ will give our altogether. It need hardly be said that the general bears his suffering and faces the future as a soldier should, calmly and cheerfully, or that the sympathy of the America people is with him. The senate on Tuesday passed a bill reviving the grade of general for his benefit and the bill has previously passed the house.

Another difficulty set in Wednesday night and the general was saved from death by suffocation only by the promptest and most energetic measures and, though that danger was passed, the patient lost much ground and is very low, and hope is faint. His death is not announced yet-Friday noon-but can hardly be deferred past Sunday.

Nonsense; the ball game would have been played here had the grounds been in order. The Star is off-way off. Peter Shipley [Our P. S] has bought out Graves and gone into but the Detroit Journal has caught it and is the draying business. Water still too high now threshing over again the thrice threshed for log sorting (52 inches above low water) Lewis' idea of how to handle the liquor trade: "If I could make the laws for the regulation of the business, I would apportion the number of saloons in a community to the population, limiting each 2,000 people to one saloon and having no more than four saloons in Marinette. I would make the license $2,000, with a forfeiture for the slightest breach of the law. I would allow no gambling of any kind within the saloons, and if dice throwing was allowed, I would take away the license at once. With a law of this kind, the licensed dealers would obey the law and aid the police officers in its enforcement against others. This, I believe, would be nearer prohibition than any so-called prohibition law could possibly bring us, and would result in better order."-Eagle, Marinette.

FOUR MONTHS ago it was stated in these columns that the outlook for the season did not justify the hopeful anticipations of the mining districts, and an estimate of the 1888 output was at that time put at 3,500,000 tons, nearly a million less than the record for 1887. Events have fully justified this prediction, and it may be said-regretfully, but none the less truly-that the present season will prove a failure to all the iron interests, ore, furnace and carrier. The causes leading to this opinion are of a character too well known to require elucidation; but, while there may be differences of opinion as to the factors that led to the suspension of business, there can be no doubt as to the result. The total sales to datealways a matter kept "under the hat"-are by competent judges estimated to be less than 700,000 tons, while at the corresponding period lest year, no less than 3,000,000 had been covered. The persistent refusal of the furnace interests to purchase any ore, except in dwindling quantities, and their offer for large lots at prices which the ore producers cannot make and live, has resulted in the determination on the part of the owners of the Germania, Ash land and Aurora mines, on the Gogebic range, to suspend mining; and if the market does not show early signs of a reasonably strong demand, to shut down altogether. It is said that sev eral large consumers of Gogebic Bessemers are maintaining an attitude of what an Amercanism calls "bluff," with a view to still further depressing an already weak market. While the miners may be willing to risk the depletion and consequent depreciation of their properties to make a small margin, they don't see their way clear to workst a dead loss, and so the indication point to the cessation of operations in the quarter referred to. The three above in the quarter referred to. The three above named have stock piles aggregating about 150,000 tons, and thesincerity of the producers in their resolution to suspend operations is attested by the fact that they are letting go of some charters, obtained at extraordinarily low rates. The Colby is said to be a trifle better off, having less labor and no royalty to pay for, but even here there is a dearth of sales, and little prospect of speey improvement. Hard ores do not appear to find a better market than is the case with hematites and the condition of affairs is thoroughly unsatisfactory.—Iron Trade Review, May 24.

That declaration is as base and as baseless

a slander as ever was uttered. There is not a word of truth in it. The lumber operators, individuals and corporations, fight the whisky trade away from their camps and locations by every means in their power and so far from renting buildings or furnishing liquors endeavor, diligently, to prevent the sale of iquors to their employes. They do not act thus from the highest of motives, perhaps, but they do so act and Mrs. Obenauer can not bring an instance-not a solltary one-in support of her charge. She had been talking about Seney, and the rum-holes and brothels there, and her charge is practically against the "Chicago," "Weston" and "Manistique" compenies, and to one who knows anything about the personnel of those companies and the policy they pursue, is merely ridiculous, but if allowed to go uncontradicted would find credit with many who do not know Mr. Weston and his associates or their employes in the management of their properties. Mrs. Obenauer should be called upon to retract her statement and the W. C. T. U., which employs her, should caution her-she will do harm rather than good by such loose talk.

WITH ALL the eminent qualifications of Gen. Alger for the position of our standard bearer and candidate—his faultless records as soldier, business man and state executivehis large-handed and well-considered benevolence-his unquestioned soundness on all points of the party creed and his unassailable integrity, he has one more; he is a winner; everything he puts his hand to is a success. Nor does he win a scratch, as does his opponent (should he be nominated). He, the opponent, became governor of his state not because a majority of its people preferred him but because the dominant party would not submit to dictation from Washington. Gen Alger was selected to beat the coalition which had snatched the governorship of Michigan from David Jerome and bestowed it upon Josiah Begole, and he beat it. His victories are not presented to him by the blunders of the enemy, as Grover's have been, but fairly won "by dint of brand and push of pike," and with him for a candidate the word will be "Forward, the whole line;" and we shall win though the enemy is entrenched, in the custom houses and postoffices. Give us Alger, and sound the charge.

Food Tests In New York Under the direction of the New York State Board of Health, eighty-feur different kinds of baking powders, embracing all the brands submitted to examination and analysis by Prof C. F. Chandler, a member of the State Board and President of the New York City Board of Health, assisted by Prof. Edward G. Love. the well-known United States Governmen chemist. The official report shows that a large number of the powders examined were found to contain alum or lime; many of them to such in extent as to render them seriously objectionable for use in the preparation of human

Alum was found in twenty-nine samples This drug is employed in baking powders to cheapen their cost. Such cream of tartar was also analyzed and found to contain lime and other impurities; in some samples to the extent of 93 per cent. of their

All the baking powders of the market, with the single exception of "Royal" (not including the alum and phosphate powders, which have not the virtue of even an impure cream of tartar), are made from the adulterated cream of tartar of commerce, and consequently con tain lime to a corresponding extent.

The only baking powder yet found by chemical analysis to be entirely free from lime and absolutely pure, is the "Royal." This perfect purity results from the exclusive use of cream of tartar especially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and on account of this great cost is used in no baking powder but the "Royal."

Prof. Love, who made the analysis of baking powder for the New York State Board of Health, os well as for the Government, says of the purity and wholesomeness of the "Royal." "I find the Royal Baking Powder composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates or other injurious substance. E. G. Love, Ря. D." It is highly satisfactory to the housekeeper of this vicinity, where the Royal Baking Powder is in general use, that the investigations by analysis in Massachusetts, New York, and Ohio, the only States that have thus far taken action upon this important subject, agree in classing it as the purest and most efficient baking powder in the market.

How to Be Plattographed to the Best Pos. sible Advantage.

"Only one person should go with child when it is to be photographed," said a camera artist. "Instead, several people are apt to accompany it," he continued. "The younger it is the more go to 'see the little dear when its picture is taken.' If it's a baby all the female relatives handy constitute them-Boha's sawaill, three miles from Charlotte, as burned May 24. Loss $6,000—no in neglect his business to be present at the ceremony. They all have to inspect the child, comment upon it, and, even if it is too young to understand what is said, manage to get it into a state of nervous fidgets before the operator ever lays eyes upon it. If the entire family think it is imperative to come to the studio with the subject, but one individual should be permitted to enter the operating room with it. Three or four persons in the room only serve to attract the youngster's atten-tion and lessen the chances of obtaining a good picture.

"No attempt should be made to get a child photographed in any but bright weather. The middle of the day is the best time for a sitting. Children should always wear light-colored frocks when sitting for pictures. Light tones harmonize with their complexions and photograph in less time than darker hues. Navy blue, seal brown, dark green, wine color, maroon and cardinal all take dark. Light green, brown, scarlet, gray and purple take light. Rose color, lavender, yellow and pale blue nearly white. In white material the cream tint is more desirable than pure white. Black silk or velvet take as dark as ink. "It is as easy to get good pictures of children as of grown folk if people would attire the little ones in suitable colors and simple style, not make them nervous before they reach the studio and leave them entirely to the operator after they are there. Grown people would secure more satisfactory pictures of themselves, too, if they'd trust more to the operator's judgment and less to their own. People ought tothink about the details of their dress and hair arrangement before they come in front of the camera. As a rule the more simple the attire and coiffure the more pleasing and natural the picture. Proofs should never be examined in a bright light, as they fade so rapidly. It's no guide to the photographer to send back two or three proofs with the message 'finish from the darkest one,' or, 'the lightest one,' for they are all

ALL ABOUT MUSTARD.

How the Seed Is Made to Furnish Oil and

"Where does mustard come from?" replied a wholesale spice dealer to a reporter's inquiry. "Most everywhere. It is of two varieties, One is white and the other is black. The first is called English, and the other masquerades under a score of other titles. The English is full of flour, lacks pungency and is seldom used alone. The other kind contains a large amount of oil, said to average 25 to 30 per cent. The best variety comes from Italy and is known as Trieste. There are many varieties of this kind grown in California, of every shade of quality; also in other States. That known as Kentucky is very pungent." "Do farmers generally raise it?" "If they don't it is their own fault. They can. It requires little or no cultivation, but most of it is not worth handling."

"How is it prepared?" "Usually by compressing the seed to extract the oil because the seed is much more easily worked when the oil is out, and because there is now a ready market for the oil as salad oil, it being in many respects equal to the best olive oil. To extract the oil requires very powerful hydraulic pressure, and a suitable press would cost from $1,500 to $2,000. Large dealers in the principal cities operate in the seed or crude stock and press it and supply the trade with what is known as mustard cake, formed by the process of extracting the oil, and which contains every thing except the oil-the same precisely as linseed cake. After this the pressed seed is separated from the bran to extract the flour. Pure mustard can not be ground in mills, and unless it is very much adulterated it can not be ground at all, on account of the oil retained in the cake. The usual process, therefore, is to take say 100 pounds and put a quantity of the broken cake in a pot or mortar and pound and sift it so as to extract about 50 per cent. The machinery used for pounding the mustard is a simple contrivance, called sometimes a stamp mill, being a battery of pounders ranging in number from two up to sixteen. The process is slow but very simple. After passing through the pounders the mustard cake-now reduced to the consistency of soft middlings-is transferred to a series of sieves, the fine falling into a recepta-cle below. This bolted flour of mustard is strictly pure, and is as pure as it is possible to make it from the stock you have used, whether it is good or

"Will you be kind enough to come at once to your business with me?"
"All in good time, boss. Pleasure first, business afterwards. Which bein' the case, mebbe you kin tell me how the gentleman

s as was waylaid t'other night?" A sudden gleam shot through the gloom of Lyman Childer's countenance. "It doesn't say much for you if that is the best you can do," he answered, coolly. "The friend you inquire for will soon be able to call on you, and will, I have no doubt. You should have made a better job of it." "Twasn't me made that try, boss. Ketch this kid nappin', will yer! But say! fer a nickel I could tell you the two as did-who'd do it over again, 'thout a mistake, if they had a leetle coaxin'."

CHAPTER X. AN UNEASY CONSCIENCE.

A faint smile dawned on the lip of Lyman Childer. He looked straight back into his companion's eyes without speaking. It was the latter who began to twist and redden uncomfortably.

"You're a regular gimblet to go through a body," he complained, "Why don't you say somethin't I don't like folks as takes it all out in thinkin'."

"Shall I repeat your own elegant remark of teaten this kid napping? My friend, you did not send the message which brought me to this hole simply to make that proposition to me. Keep yourself to the business which it will be 'greatly to my advantage to heer," the last quoted a trifle scornfully from an ill-written and ill-spelled message which had been placed in his hands that day. "Hush!" warned the other, with a giance around "Don't you call names about the place here There's no tellin' who might hear it. You ain't got no word about that missin' package o' your'n, I reckon?'

"I have not."

"Well, it's that I sent to see you about. Pre got onto the track of the cove what correlled it. If you here me for the job, I'll run him later the ditch—I'll corner him so tight that lies can't save him."

"Another detective in the field, ch?" still with that slight, mocking smile playing upon his countenance. "It is upon the principle of 'set a thief to catch a thief' that you offer yourself, I suppose!"

"Look y u, boss," said the man, impressively; "if you wor a't with me you couldn't say things like that here and get off scott free. Fur your own good, be a leetle quiet-An' now what do you say!"

"When I have any anxiety about that sokage, I will let you know, Mr.-What ball I call you?"

"Tom Riddle is my name. Red Tom is good enough handle for me." "Well, then, Red Tom, I respectfully in-form you that I have no need of your servcea. The regular detectives employed are

"Were you speaking for your friend or yourself when you made me your first offer on Bergman's account?"

Red Tom grinned. "I reckon either of us 'ud be good fur a job o' that kind. Tell you, boss, it 'll be worth your while to take me up. You kin give me a retainin' feenot here, I'll go outside with you. Then, if you wants me, you have only to send a let-ter in care of Mike Maloney, at this 'ere when he reached his home at a somewhat later hour-a visitor whom Carol had been entertaining, though she did not like the

"Hello, Childer; you take your time to getting around after business is over, it strikes me. Miss Carol tells me you have been playing the Good Samaritan, waiting on the sick. New role for you, isn't it! Looks as if it hadn' agreed with you,

"I had a long walk after leaving Carolbusiness. Is dinner waiting, sis!"

Carol slipped away to see, hoping their guest would not stay, but he did. He and Lyman appeared in the dining-room, chatting sociably. The latter had got rid of his annoyance at first seeing Ingot, and exerted himself to be the agreeable host.

They went into Lyman's room to enjoy a sigar when the meal was over.

"Cozy little crib," remarked Ingot. "You have things free and easy here, but I suppose you'll be changing your style of living now, and go for the high-and-mighty, more in the Everleigh style." "I shall not make any change, for a time, at least." "Well, I think that's the sensible plan. There's many a slip,' and dead folks are sometimes as contrary as living onesfound to have changed their minds at the last minute. "Hem! He gets a slice under it, I suppose. But it's better than being left out altogether. No chance for the Everleigh in that case, ch !"

"I don't know that there is a chance as

The moodiness which had been banished from Lyman's brow clouded it again. He was thinking of that afternoon visit to the wounded ex-messenger, and of Miss Ever-leigh's undisguised interest in the latter. lugot seemed to divine his thoughts.

"Oh, you're safe enough if you don't let Bergman cut you out. By the way, it's lucky for you I took a notion to your sister Carol instead of the charming Althea. Without being vain, I may say that I could block your little game there if I wished. It suits me very well as it is."

Was there any thing hidden under the words to make Lyman Childer im furtively and uneasily? The beot-keeper was apparently unconscious of his scru-

CHAPTER XL

A few days later Carol had a note from Miss Everleigh, asking ber to make the latter a week's visit.

"Tell your brother I am not selfish enough to take your prother? I am not seins a enough to take you away without expecting him to spend the evenings with us." ranone clatise of the amssive, and Curoi similed knowledgy to hersaif, thinking that this would make Lyman's consent certain, but much to ber dismay, Lyman seemed to regard the plan unfavorable.

"We must not presume too much upon her goodness," he said. "I think, Carol, we had better keep to our own quiet life."

"Now, brother Lyman, you don't think any thing of the kind. At least I don't. What would be the use of good fortune coming to us if we were not to take the pleasure of it! It would disappoint you as much as me not to go, and you know it."

"Would it disappoint you. Carol!" asked

"Would it disappoint you, Carol!" asked Lyman, almost wistfully. "Well, in that case, go. Ill see as to myself."

Carol was greeted most warmly by Miss Everleigh, and kept for a half-hour's chat in the room which was to be hers during her stay. Then they went down to the drawing-room, but Althea turned back at the door.

"Go in," she said. "You will find a friend of yours there. Excuse me a moment, please. I must lay out papa's dressing-gown and slippers. I really had no idea it was so late."

So Carol entered alone, and a young man who rose rather listlessly out of a deep lounging chair, flushed suddenly radiant in the genuiness of his surprise.

"So, you are the expected visitor!" he exclaimed. "How delightful! Do you know, I was half dreading the meeting with Althea's young lady friend, and felt inclined to beat a retreat without ceremony. am not drilled in the ways of society, as you probably know, and am very easily put out of countenance. You don't know what a relief-what a pleasure this is."

"I can imagine," laughed Carol, mentally deciding that he was handsomer for the state of invalidism he had passed through. He told her that he had been gaining every day, and only submitted to Althea's demands upon him because he had nothing definite in view-not that he felt the need of further rest.

Still, it was proved that he was not averse to petting, and the two girls vied in making the time pass pleasantly for him. Mr. Everleigh was well pleased at having the young man there; Norris caught his eyes on him new and then, with a speculative look in them, and the young man found himself blushing as he tried to decide what it meant.

"If it were not too presumptuous to suppose, I should say he thinks I am making love to Althea and is not averse to it; but then he would not be unkind to a coalheaver if she were to fancy him. Now, I know she is only kind to me as a sister is to a brother, but-but-I wish she did not show it quite so much at all times."

This thought came when Carol began to draw away from them in the evenings. Norris thought he read a suspicion of something which did not please her in her looks; and, in truth, Carol was disappointed that Miss Everleigh manifested no great interest in her brother as the days went by. Lytion, and when Carol made inquiries, Mr. Everleigh reported him steeped in business, taking more on his shoulders than there was any need, in fact, yet it was evident that the senior partner was pleased at the enterprise of his young associate.

However, toward the end of the week he came, and if he was annoyed at finding Norris there, he did not show it. The inevitable business was not out of his mind yet, apparently, for he and Mr. Everleigh retired to the study, and Norris was summoned to join them after the first half-hour. "I've been turning over an idea all week, and now that Childer is here, it is time to speak of it. We are bound to need extra nelp. You, Lyman, have just been showing me how we can extend our connections, but an iron man could not stand the work you are laying out for yourself. Now, here is Norris with nothing to do, and he is a lad I Why should we not take him in. give him a clerkship first, with the promise of advancing him to the cashier's place! I am sure we can't do better, nor, I think,

"There can be no doubt about the last." said Norris, gratefully, then looked searchingly at Childer in an effort to read his thoughts.

The younger partner had a set smile on his face, but beneath it Norris fancied he could detect reluctance and dislike, though what he said was mildly in favor of the

"Any one you recommend, Mr. Everleigh; of course will be satisfactory to me. In view of the future it will be well enough; still there is no hurry. Bergman will hardly be in working trim before the first of the

"I feel well enough now, so far as that is oncerned; but if I decide to accept your kind offer, I should prefer starting in at that time. I must pay Uncle Amos a visit meanwhile. He will not regard your offer as gratefully as I do, my dear sir, old friends though you are." "No. I forgot to mention that he called on me to-day. The new bee in his bonnet is making a great buzz. He wants to go into the detective business now himself; says he would not interfere with your case, so came to me for employment. He wanted the details of my loss of a year ago, and thought that something might be saved to me yet. By the way, the police have confirmation of the rumor that Edson is dead. The fellow was a rascal, and all but ruined me, yet I can't help feeling sorry for him. Pve always believed there was a bolder villain back of him. I don't think it was in him to concect and carry out that scheme alone. If you want work in the line that your uncle has laid down, Norris, there is that mystery for you to unravel. I dare say, if the truth ever comes to light, we will find that Edson benefited little by the money he took. I would give something to have the affair cleared up, if only to settle the morbid doubts that come to me sometimes. Being cheated once, I must go to fancying that I am at the mercy of thieves and traitors—another reason why I shall be glad to take you in, Norris. Supported by two such stout pillars as you and Lyman, I hope to get back my faith in human kind. Weil, well; your Uncle Amos has his little eccentricities, but a kinder heart—an honester soul—God never put in a man's body. But come, now that every thing is settled, let us join the ladies. They will think we have deserted them."

Taking it for granted that every thing was settled, he led the way out.

It was not through any intention that Norris Bergman's eyes were fixed upon Childer during the greater part of this speech. Some change of expression caught his sight first—a creeping pallor mounting under the dark skin and changing it to a dull, leaden hue, then a look that was flashed at him of defiance, resistance, fear Norris scarcely knew what-before he sank his teeth sharply into his lip, and brought back the color to his face by sheer force of will.

A cold shock ran over the nerves of the observer. His own eyes sank. A horrible suspicion went over him that Lyman Childer was the deeper villain behind the absconding cashier. The idea came and was dismissed in a moment, yet having been there it would come again.

Carol looked up at him invalingly as they sutered the parlor, and taking the seat by her side, he soon forgot the uppleasent impression the interview had given him. He felt that he could not entertain a doubt of any one near and dear to her, all the more that Lyman falled to send any scowling looks in their direction.

It was a perfect evening. Mr. Everleigh dered in his chair, and the young people striking cleven brought Lyman to his foot, and his sister followed him into the hall to help him on with his overcoat, and to see

"For I can't have you taking cold while I am away, Lyman. Now, aren't you repaid for letting me come!"

"Tell me one thing, Carol, was it to you, or Miss Everleigh, he was making love to from the first?" "I-I don't think it was to Althea," murmured Carol, with the red chasing into her cheeks, and Lyman faced the wintry night with a warmth about his heart which no wind could chill.

He had not gone a dozen yards when footsteps came up behind him, and a hand was laid roughly upon his arm.

"I've just got wind of what's up. Did you think you could go ahead with such business without ever taking me into considera tion. I thought I gave you a pretty strong inkling of what I wanted, and you agreed to it. Now, by gum! we'll get it into plain words, and see how far I can depend on

"I think you are exciting yourself very needlessly, Ingot," returned Lyman, contemptuously. "At any rate, don't raise a row on the street. Come to your plain words; I am willing to hear them, though I don't recognize your right to take me to task in this manner, no matter what you may mean." The other restrained himself with an effort, and went on more quietly: "You know very well what my idea is regarding your sister Carol. She's the daisy for me, and I won't have any one interfering with my chances. I dropped you a hint that I didn't want Bergman hanging around your house, and you as good as told me that you would do any thing but encourage him.

was fool enough to believe you, and now it seems that you find an easy way to get out of breaking your word. Nou don't encourage him, but you send her into the how where he is staying and keep your back turned till the mischief is done. Now, I tell you, I won't put up with any such dodges."

"I might ask, how are you going to help yourself, but there's no use quarreling where we don't really disagree. I give you my word, I did not know Bergman was there until to-night. If I had, I should have thought twice about letting her go."

Ingot was only half appeased by this ex-"I might believe that if it didn't smooth the way for you-give you an excuse to go much my fat is in the fire so your steak is all right; but I tell you, it's to be share and share alike with us. If I get Carol, you may have the fair Althea; if I miss her, I'll spoil your fun just for spite." Lyman made a gesture of impatience. TO BE CONTEXCED.

WHAT IS TIME? It Partakes Pre-eminently of the Marvelous and Incomprehensible.

Sometimes I have stood before the cleck

in yonder observatory and watched the hands as they approached the hour of midnight. Steadily the seconds glide away; twelve o'clock strikes, and I slip from today into to-morrow. Where has the day gone? Yea, where do these beating seconds go! So fleet-winged that ere we realize that they are here, they have flown, vanished into the dim past! Do they travel onward forever through universal space, as some have fancied our words and actions do? Might we by some magic overtake them and live them over again? Vain hope! They are gone irretrievably. Only the present is ours. What we give to that present as it passes will endure forever, but it can never be altered or recalled. Have you ever thought of the difference in this respect be-tween time and space! We are limited by the latter as well as by the former; we can be in one place only at a time; and if we speak of absolute space, perhaps we can never revisit the regions we are now passing through, unless the endowments of a future life enable us to track the devious course we are now pursuing; for owing to the motion of the solar system, it comes to pass that even at the end of the year we do not arrive at the spot where we were twelve months before, but strike out into before untrodden realms of cosmic space. But practically, as far as place has any interest for us, we are free to come and go at will. We can revisit old scenes and explore new ones, being only limited by earth's extent, but with time how different! Past seasons we can recall only in memory, future ones we can anticipate only through hope or imagination. So that time is more evanescent and, perhaps we might say, ideal conception than space. Both conceptions have, when we come to analyze them closely, many elements of mystery. But time par-takes pre-eminently of the marvelous. The fraction that is with us now we accept with out thought, but this infinitesimal fraction is linked by indissoluble bands to an eternity past and to an eternity to come. The fugitive moments are golden, for though we shall never see them again, they are building up for us character and destiny which shall last forever .- Sidereal Messenger.

Soak the bread in the milk while you beat the yelks and whites of the eggs separately, mix all together and cook as usual. When the omelette is set, pour over a glass of jelly or fine preserves of any kind and fold over. Spinkle the top with pulverized sugar and serve quickly.

Some idea of this extent of ple may be found in the calculation that if the big and little pies should be piled in one column, they would form a solid shaft of pie more than half a mile high. If half side by side, the line would extend over 1,5st miles. The weight is 16.000 tons a year.

HORSES FOR MARKET.

How They Are Classified and the "Points" Horses in the market are classified as Streeters, Feeders, Express, Draft, Drivers, Carriage and Coach. None are considered marketable unless they are strictly sound.

Streeters are mostly used by street railway companies. They must weigh not less than 1,050 pounds up to 1,200 pounds and be not less than four or more than seven years old. No restriction as to color, but it is necessary that they possess good bone and feet and the general appearance of a good, durable horse. The average price paid for them is $125 per head. This stock undergoes the most thorough inspec-tion, and all which are unsound or refuse to work, are returned to the Feeders are the draft horses wanting in dean, weighing 1,300 pounds and upward, and having frame and bone sufficient to carry about 300 pounds more fat. They are bought by those making it a business of feeding and fattening horses—mostly by firms in Ohio and Pennsylvania. They pay from $150 to $200 each, shipping them home and feeding from two to four months, making more money on one car than an ordinary dealer would by handling six or eight cars of horses. In November last there was shipped from my barn, sixteen feeders that cost an average here of $187.50 per head. They were shipped to Ohio, where they were fed until the last of February and sold to a New York buyer for $325 per head. Estimated cost of feeding, buying and shipping, was $45.60 per head, giving a net profit of $1,329.40 for the sixteen head. Good interest and wages for three and a half months' time!

To carry on this line of work, if winter, prepare a good warm stable, as your horse will not take on flesh unless kept warm. Select good sound geldings, weighing not less than 1,350 pounds, if thin in flesh, of good color, not less than three nor more than six years old, with plenty of bone, good frame, stocky build, short back, well coupled, and with ribs well sprung out. Avoid all others. Three quarts oats, 2 quarts shelled corn and 1 or 2 quarts dry bran three times a day at regular intervals, with a handful of meal once a day and a small allowance of hay, will increase your horse 100 pounds in 80 days, if an ordinaay feeder, and if continued 90 days, a horse will more readily bring $250 than $175 when thin. Turn them in a lot one at a time daily for an hour. Continue this up to within three weeks before marketing -no grooming being necessary. Now lead them out and give them a walk once a day, and give a thorough grooming after walking.

Draught horses must reach well up to 1,500 pounds and from that 1,800 and occasionally 1,900 to 2,000 pounds. A good draught horse weighing 1,500 pounds is worth $200, and for every 100 pounds of increase you can safely add $25. It was a common saying. "No foot no horse." Buyers overlook or purchase a horse with a poor foot when he possesses extra good bone, but I have never known one to purchase a horse having poor bone, on account of good feet.

Express horses are selected from the light draught class, choosing the smoothest, best quality and those of good action only, rejecting bad colors, such as dun. light sorrels, light grays, etc., and refusing those having a bald face, a glass eye or a white forefrot. They should be about 16 hands high, from five to six years old and from 1,850 to 1,450 pounds in market, which means from 1,450 to 1,500 pounds in the country. They bring from $175 to $225 per

Carriage and coach horses are the most difficult class to obtain, while the demand is constantly on the increase. Range, size, color, action and disposition are the necessary requisites. There being no established price, it depends largely on how well you please your customer's fancy, or how much he is willing to pay. If they are first-class, you can ask for them as much as it takes to buy 40 acres adjoining your farm, and not be considered out of reason.

Drivers cover quite a wide range, and vary in price from $100 to an almost unlimited sum, owing to style, action and speed. They are not marketable unless five years old, and well broken to harness. If used single, it is necessary to have size-from 1,100 to 1,200 pounds. In pairs, those weighing from 1,000 pounds upward are

I believe the best results, financially, will follow those who breed in the draft line, one of the many advantages being that you can almost grow them in two years, and if good colts at that age, you can find ready sale for them at very remunerative prices. I often hear men say that the draft-horse business is being overdone. Don't be alarmed at such foolishness. The day has not dawned; the infant has not avandoued its long dress, but has aler, in Pratrie Farmer.

-Beef Jelly .- Take about one pound of lean, juicy beef, cut it into small pieces, put into cold water and let soak for one hour. Then put on the fire with one pint of water, seasoning with salt, pepper and a little celery seed, and let it stew until reduced twothirds; strain on a few blades of mace. Serve hot

St. Crispin's Cohorts

"Nothing like leather." Well, probably not—that is, if it really be leather; but, now-adays, the materials of which many boots and shoes are made certainly is "nothing like leather"—nothing at all like it! Now, our SHOE DEPARTMENT is one on which we pride ourselves not a little. It's under the management of a thoroughly practical and wide awake disciple of St. Crispin, who sees to it that there are always to the front complete cohorts comprising every kind of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Footgear. The foremost favorites of all are

The Morgan Wearwells

($3.00) —a SHOE which is manufactured from carefully selected bright finish "Dongola" kid, spectally tanned for us; New York or opera toe last; sizes 21/2 to 7, each size coming in no less than six different widths, making a per-fect fit certain. The heels and edges shine like polished ebony, and the only off thing about them is the price-$3.00; by mail, 25 cents extra. Ladies can't understand the progress made in shoe manufacture till they've tried the "Wearwells" We struck the keynote in our Shoe Department some time ago, and now the music is merry and tuneful there.

TRY A PAIR. Our illustrated "Summer Supplement" is being sent to all country customers who have been in the habit of ordering by mail. Any one else interested in it, or in our illustrated Trunk and Satchel Price List, can get one of either or both free by writing to us.

A Stab in the Dark.

Some times fails of its murderous intent. The insidious and dastarply attacks made upon the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters by persons who wish to palm off cheap and fiery tonics as identical with it, or "the same thing under another name," or "equally as good," in most instances act disastrously upon the unprincipled traders upon popular credulity who attempt them, converting their speculations into ruinous failures. The Bitters is a pure, wholesome and thorough medscine, adapted to the total cure and prevention of fever and ague, bilious remittent, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, debility, neryousness and kidney troubles. Its every ingredient, C. & N. W. railroad. Town road on east unlike those in the imitations of it, is of an ascertained standard of excellence, and they by reason of their fiery properties, react injuriously upon the brain and nervous system. The Sells Brothers, Hippodrome

If there is anything in the way of immensity, grandeur and superlative general excellence in organizing their standard tented exhibition, which the Sells Brothers have not provided for or have neglected to procure it has not been made manifest by a visit. They have long en in the van in arenic entertainments, but not satisfied with merely "running with the hounds," they have determined this year to lead the pack, and have devoted the entire lead the pack, and have devoted the entire winter vacation to vastly augmenting and adding to the attractive features of their already formidable show and to disposing by auction all worn out, discarded and no longer servicable material and replacing the same with spicapan new paraphernalia and with never-before-presented specialties. The Roman Hippodrome, which forms but a quota of their attractions will revive in the memories the traditions of the turf and gladiatorial sports of the golden days of Rome, and will present thrilling and realistic duplications of the exciting pastimes of that classical period.
