- Cochrane "Big One" running immensely. 'All claims made by executive head as to machine fulfilled. Attracting much attention; millers and mill experts from all over the States, from New York to California, are here and unanimously endorse it.

SOLOMON GREENHOOT. GEORGE PRESTON.

The foregoing dispatch, which reached us Thursday morning, needs no comment; it tells its own story and that story is of triumph for the plucky Escanabans who put in their good money to lift the company out of the hole in which it was left by the death of Gov. Macdonald and to retain its works in our city: of triumph for the persistent and indefatigable head of the company, V. E. Fuller, and of One" itself. It will make its way, now, and the next thing to look for is an enlargement of the works. With its value recognized and acknowledged by the millers, no anticipation can outrun the probable event.

3,003,632 Tons is the footing the shipments of tron ore from Escanaba during the season of '89, which closed with the departure of the steamer Hiawatha on the evening of Dec. 4. The heaviest shipper is the Chapin mine, which has sent out 500,-XO5 tons, Norrie coming next with 287,275 tons and Superior following with 220,266 [in should be mentioned that Norrie shipped also from Ashland and its output is greater than that of the Chapin, and that Superior shipped via Marquette over 54,000 tons]. A tabulated statement, by mines, of the product of the district for the year, including shipments by "all rail," will be given at the close of the year. The outgo by lake from Marquette was 1,396,-335 tons (an enormous amount to have been handled with the South Shore equipment), and from Ashland 1,462,149 tons.

A POSTAL card addressed to "the editor who furnishes the poorest copy" was by some libuloes, civil service, mugwump holdove put into our mail. It should have gone, as every one knows, to Marquette. It was a neat card, though, and a good "ad" for the typewriter manufactured by the party which

THE FIREMEN, following their established custom, wil give a bal masque on New Year's eve at the Opera house. Costumes will be provided and will be on exhibition, for selection, long enough before the day to enable every one to be suited. Prices as usual and no pains spared to make the occasion pleasant. We shall have particulars next week.

WE ARE ASKED almost daily "what about the new railroad," and can only answer that we have no means of knowing more about it than our neighbors. Mr. Willis is pushing the engineer work upon it and is now near Iron River, and to toquiries makes answer that it will be built, and at once. We believe

WINTER is likely to be dull : why not have a lyceum? And an ice rink would help, and draw, Mayor Miller don't want another term [His head is level there] but he friends say he must be re-elected. THE SESSION of the council Tuesday eve ning was enlivened by the presentation of a bill by Alderman Stonehouse for $250 for ittee of the council during the summer. A similar bill, for about the same amount, had been presented at a previous meeting by Alderman Moe and allowed, and the senior Alderman from the 4th ward was not willing that his services, which he insisted occupied as much time and were of at least equal value with the city as those of the Alderman from the 3d, should be overlooked. The bill was re jected but not until it had caused in the minds of the Aldermen an uncomfortable suspicion that their action upon Alderman Moe's bill had been hasty at the best and possibly tilegal, a feeling that is shared by many persons outside the council room. A commun received from the telegraph company repre sented by Mr. M. Pollasky asking for per mission to occupy the streets with its poles and wires and the city attorney was instructed to draft an ordinance conferring the privilege. Mr. White, by permission, called the attention of the council to some unfinished business and suggested that it might be served with a mandamus unless it acted; to which the city attorney replied that it had acted by laying the claim of Mr. White's clients on the table and said that no further action was necessary. Whereupon Mr. W. departed and the counci braced itself for the shock of the mandamus The city fathers then, after attention to sundry routine matters (among which was the receptance of the printed ordinances and the au diting of our bill therefor), adjourned.

THE MESSAGE of President Harrison is good document; is a "president's message" such as the constitution provides for, not a thesis on a particular subject by a doctrinaire whose hobby the subject happens to be, like those which have been audressed to the two congresses next preceding the one which as sembled last Monday. It makes a full state? ment of the condition of the country, first, and recommends a revision of the tariff with an eye to protection of all American industries, the reduction of internal revenue, the enact ment of laws against "trusts," liberal pensions to disabled veterans, subsidies in the form of payments for mail service to aid in building up our merchant marine, the enlargement of the navy and such action as may be necessary and practicable to secure to the colored race the rights granted it by the amendments to the constitution. And we hope and believe that congress will act, effectively upon his recommendations which are but a reiteration of the declared intention of the party which placed him in the position he holds and made him its spokesman. We repeat-it is a good message-and is such because it is soundly and broadly republican.

JOHN SOURWINE finds the path of journal istic glory beset with pitfalls and bordered with brambles. Hear him, in the last number of the "People:"

We stop the press to oil it, and also to extract one chewed up thumb from the right hand which became entangled in the measley machinery. We are now sitting in a reclining position and thirst no more for fame. We are willing to sacrifice health, wealth and our mother in law for journalistic glory, but no more thumbs. We are content to burn midnight oil, use big scissors, wrestle a pen as big as a pump handle, accept invitations to feasts festivals and free lunch counters, or anything on earth to be an editor, but we are cussed i we can ever get just recompense for the member fed to the machinery as above stated Tell that red headed kid to turn the crank.

MESSRS. SAMUEL ELLIOT, of Sack Bay, a pioneer of that township and a man well known and highly esteemed in the county at large, died on Friday morning, November 20. He had been in bad condition for more than a year, the result of a paralytic attack, and his death was the result of another seizure. He had on Thursday partaken, with his family, of the Thanksgiving dinner and had retired at the usual time in no worse condition than for the days preceding but was found unconscious by Mrs. Elliot at midnight and died at 3 a. m

A PARTY of persons interested in the Cochrane R. M. Co : President Fuller, Messrs Greenhoot, Preston and others, departed on Tuesday last for Oxford, Oakland county, to see in operation the Cochrane train just put into operation in the "Craig mill" at that place, and make inquiry as to its success of the purchaser, Mr. Craig. Again we have to apolegize for a delay it the appearance of IRON PORT. The list of lands to be sold for delinquent taxes, which Herman Basil, seven years of age. our equipment has been adequate for heretofore, by the change in the law and form, ran us "out of sorts" and compelled a change of program at the last hour. The list must gothere was no dodging that-so a twenty four hour delay resulted. It won't occur again-

OUR NEIGHBOR POOL, noting what we said a week ago about radishes and cucumbers, was moved to suggest that Florida was at some distance and that toothsome things could be had from points of supply less re-mote, and did it by handing us "a mess" of tomatoes just ripened in his "Cabin Content" soil. Nice ones they were, too, and he has hereby, our thanks.

MASTER LYMAN BEGGs celebrated his eleventh birthday Monday evening at which time he entertained a housefull (we don't know how many) of his juvenile friends and received from them many tokens of friendship and good wili. That Master Lyman may live many more years-enough to enable him to become as good a man as his father, now in glory-is the prayer of IRON PORT.

N. B .- There will be a business meeting of the Union at Mrs. D. Thurston's, Monday evening, Dec. 9.

THE Ontonagon Herald, led into it by the misrepresentation of the Calumet, gives our City Council another such raking as it got from the Diamond Drill. When Brother Powers gets at the facts he will not take back a word of what he said, for hr said only the truth, but will say that his strictures were not applicable to the council of Escapsba, as he supposed, and will be careful in future how he trusts a statement found in the Calumet.

THE MONARCH has been busy since the big blow of Nov. 27-8. She was the first wrecker to reach the Tirga, on Gray's reef, and after releasing that craft towed her to Cheboygan. She assisted the Whitney, fast on the same reef with her consorts, and is now at work at the City of Ludington, on the Door county beach. Capt. Bartley is on his back at home, but Capt. Congress met promptly at noon of Monday last and the house was organized by the election of Reed, of Maine, as speaker, Edward Mc Pherson, of Pennsylvania, as clerk, A. J. THE Presbyterian society last Monday evening voted to call to the pastorate of that church the Rev. Owen Jones, who has filled its pulpit for two or three Sundays past. . Rumor has it that the choice is that of the younger members of the society, not of its pillars, and that "caucus" methods were practicedmore votes cast than there were persons present, etc .- all which we give as we get it, not asserting or denying. If half that is said is true the reverend gentleman would do well to refuse the offer.

FROM a Los Angeles paper we get a brief biography of Rev. Horace Perry, whose death we chronicled last week. He was born in Genesee county, N. Y., August 7, 4818, and was therefore in his 72d year when he died. His life work had been that of a Baptist clergyman and missionary in New York, Ontario and Michigan, and his character pure, devoted and engaging. Though many years an invalid he never ceased to work for the cause and the Master to whom he early devoted his strength, and died "with his harness on." JUDGE TOURGEE opened the lecture course last Monday evening with an hour's alk upon "the Race Problem." The house was well filled and the audience followed the speaker with close attention as he traced the "problem" from its beginning 280 years ago by the first importation of Africans and their sale to Virginian planters as slaves, through its constant growth and its ever varying phases until now, when eight millions of colored Americans, nominally freed by the arms of the -victorious forces of the union and nominally citizens by the fiat of the people expressed in the amendments to the constitution, are yet denied and defrauded of the freedom and citizenship which the people of America decreed, and declared that bloodshed, greater than any that has heretofore drenched our soil, is inevitable if the injustice is persisted in. He pictured, eloquently, the progress made by the colored race in education, wealth and numbers since its emancipation and combated the old idea that the race is naturally inferior to the white. and declared that it asked no favors-only a fair field, "a white man's chance." This question is a pregnant one and no person who listened to the speaker will fail to admit so much or to think more seriously of it for having heard him.

THE FIRST of a series of dancing parties to be given by the members of the Masoni bodies of our city at regularly recurring intervals during the winter came off on Thursday evening last at Opera Grand. It need not be said that it was pleasant, the Masonic parties are always that, and this one was no exception to the rule. Those who are bidden to the next (or any) of the series will do well, if they dance at all, to be present.

THE SECOND entertainment of the "lecture course" will be given, we are told, on Saturday evening, Dec. 21, and will be the first appearance in our city of Frank Beard, the humorist and caricaturist-the man of the "chalk talk"-of whose work the only question is whether his spoken or sketched withis tongue or his fingers-give the greater amusement. Fill the house, don't miss Beard's evening, whatever you do.

"THE 11.30 CLUB" inaugurated itself and the season of 1889 '90 by a "progressive enchre" party at the residence of Mrs. Jas-S. Rogers on Friday evening. We say "of Mrs." because the lady, in such affairs, is the more important personage, but "Jim" resides there, too, and counts one, generally. The 11.30 means that the club goes in for fun moderately, drops the cards (or whatever may be in the hand for the occasion) a half an hour before midnight in order to be ready for sleep when the whistle blows. Another commendable feature of the club regulations is that its evenings are for amusement, not "a feed," a point which the ladies who entertain it, from time to time, will appreciate. On the occasion referred to Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Farrell carried off the "merits" and Mrs. Rigney and Mr. Johnson captured the "de-

The conditions are:- The candidate must not be unactual resident of the Congressional District physicially sound, well formed and of robust constitution, and able to pass the examination.

CAPTUR AND CAPTIVE.

A Cheerful Story of the Amenities of War

The Fight and the Rout-Taken Prisoner A Warrior as Gentle and Honor able as He Was Brave-After

Would you like as interesting war story? We have it, and it reads like a romance. The story begins with the charge of Wilson's Western cav-airy on the Confederates around Columbus. General Howell Cobb's command occupied Girard, just across the Chattahoochee river, and the news came that Wilson's cavalry was bearing rapidly on the town, and that this dashing troop would reach Girard by about seven o'clock in the evening. They came on time and the Confederate forces, greatly outnumbered, and taken on such brief notice, were at immense disadvantage. The Fedoral cavalry had come like a cyclone, and the face of the earth was literally dotted with them. They held every point around the town and advanced from all directions. Before night they charged the Confederate forces, and in a few minutes the battle was on. Fierce was the struggle, as, locked almost in each other's lines, the two contesting forces fought for supremacy. But it was soon over; the Confederates could not hold out against the heavy odds, and retreat was the only escape from capture or annihilation. One after another the lines broke, and in the darkness of the night the Confederates found themselves absolutely disorganized, companies lost from their commands, soldiers from their companies, and every man struggling to keep out of the enemy's

"To the bridge!" was the cry. The scattered Confederates rushed to the bridge to escape to the Georgia side only to find it in flames! Some had gotten over in safety and many went through as best they could, fighting fire and picking their way through the sputtering timbers.

Among the last to pass the bridge was Second Lieutenant Charley Howell, of Company C, First Georgia Regimenta boy, scarce eighteen years of age. He was lost from his company and found himself a stranger among strangers, but the gray uniform he wore called a kind word from a strapping Texan who, like him, was a refugee, but had fortunately escaped on horseback, and had succeeded in bringing another horse with him, which he led.

"Want to ride?" said the Texan, adding hurriedly: "Better git up; we ain't got no time to spare!"

No sooner said than done, and over the road leading from Columbus toward Greenville, in Meriwether County, the little Lieutenant and the sturdy Texan jogged along together in the darkness of the night.

The Texan was on his way to Macon, where he hoped to join friends, and Lieutenant Howell was on his way home to Atlanta, and he wanted to get there by the most direct route, which accounted for his not accepting the generous offer of his companion to keep your horse and come on with me to Macon." They separated after a day's ride together, one continuing north toward Atlanta, and the otherleading a riderless horse toward Macon.

On the second day after the fight at Girard Lieutenant Howell found himself near Waverly Halt, in Harris

The sun was sinking over the mountains, which rise in that section as if by some error of nature, and the traveler, almost exhausted, was wondering where he would rest for the night. The road hugged a mountain stream, and a bend brought in full view a mill cozily nestled on its banks, while across the road was one of those oldtime Southern mansions, of immaculate white, with broad piazzas, and possessing an air of hospitality which seemed to say, "come in." Several ladies were about the yard, two in deep mourning, as soon appeared, for husbands who had gone to the war never to return. The gray coat at the gate attracted their eyes and opened their hearts. "Come in," they said, "we will do the best we can for you. You are hungry. We have but little left, but what we have we will share."

Soon the traveler's story was told. The party were seated on the broad piazza overlooking the mill, and the chirping of the crickets, the monotonous hum of the water playing with the mill-wheel, and the noise of a gentle wind toying with the limbs of the towering oaks, lent an air of solemnity to the occasion.

There are sounds of the pattering of horses' hoofs!

In another minute the bend is rounded and two horsemen, magnificently equipped and in full uniform of Federal cavalry, hastily dismounted at the gate of the mansion!

"The Yank es! The Yankees!" screamed the ladies, in consternation. The riders had promptly "covered" the young officer with their revolvers. and, advancing toward the house, one of them in Captain's uniform, said:

"Have no four. ladies; we will not harm you." Then turning to Lieutenant Howell, the speaker continued: "You surrender?"

"I must; I am unarmed."

"You are a rebel?" "I'm not call id such our way, but if the term suits you, all right."

"You wear a Lieutenant s stripes, I see—they take 'em young down here." "Not too young to fight."

"Well, come on, we will have to take you in charge," and the three

ing and the prisoner following on foot.
In this way they left the old mansion, turning southward. Soon the Captain turned to his prisoner with the remark: "You will find it hard work to keep up with us on foot; hadn't you better get up behind John?" motioning to his attendant. And get up behind John he did, and in this way they rode for several hours.

Late in the night Captain Louthan, for it was Captain J. W. Louthan, of the Seventeenth Indiana Cavairy, his attendant and prisoner, reached his command, about seventy-five men, who had been detailed as scouts after the Columbus fight In the meantime the Captain had said to his prisoner that if he would promise not to attempt escape he would be treated properly and be protected in camp from any trouble. The promise made, the young Lieutenant felt easy. When they joined the command of scoute the soldiers around the camp-fires eyed the prisoner—the only one in campainquisitively, and a burly Pennsylvantan remarked, the Captain having

"What do you want with that little rebel? We'll just have to kill him to get rid of him?"

"Captain." said the prisoner, next morning, "they are talking about killing me; am I to be protected?" "Who talked about it?" the officer

"That man there," pointing to the Pennsylvanian who had made the

"Dang you," said the officer, "don't you know that this is my prisoner, and I will shoot the man who touches him?"

To the prisoner he said: "I have your promise that you will not try to escape. I will take you at your word. We are going from here to Macon, and may get into several skirmishes on the march. A horse will be provided for you, and when we get to fighting you must keep to the rear."

On the march to Magon the scouts fell into several warm skirmishes, and Captain Louthan was always in the front. "He was as brave a man as I ever saw," said Mr. Howell in speak-ing of him. "He was a hard fighter, and always kept in front of his men. Whenever we stopped on the march at houses along the road he was as gentle and as kind to the ladies as any man could be. He would say to them in assuring them that their fright was unnecessary: 'Madam, these men shall do nothing that your own soldiers would not do. You will oblige us with something to eat, and I trust you will not consider it plunder on our part. It is one of the exigencles of

At this time the Federals held Macon it was the week that Lee surrendered-and a thousand Confederate prisoners were under guard in a large cotton warehouse in that city. Cap-Macon; and his single prisoner fell into the warehouse with the other prisoners. A day and a night he stayed there, almost suffered, poorly fed, and scarcely cared for at all. On the second day Captain Louthan, an officer of the day, saw him through one of the warehouse windows, near which he was standing, and exclaimed: "Why, I fo got about you. You must get out of that?" The Captain elbowed his way through the jam of prisoners and telling him to "come along," led the prisoner out and carried him to his tent on the bank of the Ocmulgee.

"You will stay here," he said, "and with the promise that you will remember that you are my prisoner and will report here three times a day at meals, I will relieve you of guard."

On the third day the Captain remarking that the "trouble was about over," asked his prisoner if he would accept a parole. "I can get it for you, and you can go home and Heaven prosper you.

And thus it was that Lieutenant Howell finished his war experience and returned to Atlanta.

And now for the after war part of the story!

Naturally, Mr. Howell, no longer Lieutenant, has often wondered what became of the brave Federal Captain to whose kindness he was so much indebted.

Four years ago, while on a trip through the West, he concluded to go to the meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic at Minneapolis, hoping to find some trace of him there. But he could hear nothing.

Several weeks ago, in casual conversation with Mr. Ira M. Swartz, with Captain Jacobs in charge of the work on our new army post, something about the story was mentioned.

"I think I can find him," said Mr. Swartz, and find him he did, at Dunkirk, O., to which place Mr. Howell at once wrote him. A reply came as "I received your letter some time ago; was glad to hear from you. I recollect the time that I was out scouting and picked you up. I am truly glad that you sound me out and wrote to me. * * * I would like to come down to your place and see you and visit some of the battle-fields. I would also I ke to artend a reunion of Wheeler and Forest's cavalry. The last two years of the war the principal fighting we dilwas with them. I do not belong to the Grand Army of the Republic, as I live about five miles from town, and it is too far for me to attend the mietings. I send copy of the Kinton Democrative the your letter to me. My political faith is Democratic. Hasing to hear from you soon. I remain, yours really. soon, I remain, yours 'ruly,

SUPERIOR ERINTING AT REASON-

FACING THE FIRE.

Miss Janey's Self-Sacrifice and Its Reward

"She's a cry-baby!" said Tom. "I hate girls that's always weepin". She was 'fraid the fire would catch us Just as though I couldn't take care of one girl." Tom was ten and Dell seven, and he domineered over her in a most aggravating manner, but she couldn't stand that and turned on him, stamping her foot passionately.

"Tom Earle, you're the awfullest story fibber. You know I wasn't afraid for us, but, oh, Janey," turning her dirty woo-begone little face to the older sister. Dolly went over to the big ravine, and I most know she will be burned up, 'cause she is so poky.

She was the best friend I had; and I slapped her just dreadful this morning 'cause she wouldn't give me the biggest piece of candy. Oco-ve if Dolly dies I'll die too; I know I will," and burying her face in Jarey's damp dress she wailed in a most Golorous fashion.

"Come, Dell, dry your eyes. I'll take you and Tom home and then go after Dolly. Here, Tom, put Dell on in front of me and you climb on behind. Brete won't like it, but I guess he'll have to stand it. What possessed Dolly to go home by the ravine? It's a mile out of her way."

"We didn't want her-to go that way, but she said there was a nest of cotton-tails down there and she wanted to take them home," sobbed Dell.

"The hateful little city flirt," broke in Tom. "I was going with her to carry 'em home if she'd go havers. and she said she didn't like to go with barefooted boys. And I told her she didn't haf to. I don't care nothin', for girls, no how," he added de-

Janey was too busy with her thoughts to answer, and the sure-footed Brete soon took them home, where Mrs. Earle gathered the children to her heart with an inward prayer of thanks-

Janey only paused long enough to dip the blanket once again in the trough, then spreading it full length over Brete she jumped on his back and called to Tom to bring her the

"What in the dickins are you going to do now. Jane?" asked the irrepressible as he obeyed her order.

"I am going after Dolly Landia." "Janey, daughter," said the mother, tremulously, putting out a restraining

"No, mother," said Janey, decidedly, "I must go. Just think, it might have been Dell, you know; I won't be in much danger. If the fire comes too close I have my wet blankets, and if I am surrounded I can cover up in them and turn Brete loose. I have my matches to use in case I can."

As she rode away she felt the wind changing, thus bringing the fire more directly to the ravine, towards which she was speeding, and at the same time menacing the little home. She looked back just once and the fleeting glimpse was never forgotten. The sun, like a great yellow ball lazily sliding down the western sky, was flooding the prairie and far-distant hills in mellow light. Away to the north the trees on Ash creek stood out green and tall, and east of them lay the blackened prairie over which the flames had just swept; behind her lay the little farm with its broad acres of ripened corn, while just before her, each moment lessening the distance, leaped and roared the prairie fire, writhing and twisting through the taller grass like so many flery serpents. Between it and her lay the old Santa Fe trail, grass-grown now and a weak barrier to such an element. Slight as it was it mattered not to her. for she had to cross it to reach the ra-

Setting her teeth hard, she urged Brete on, crossing the trail and heading for the ravine, which was only a few rods away. The fire was perilously near, but just before her she saw the small figure of a child scrambling over the bank and knew it was Dolly. Brete was snorting and almost unmanageable from fear, and just on the edge of the ravine a blazing tumble weed borne on the wind fell in front of him. He gave a frightened plunge, which sent both horse and rider rolling to the bottom of the deep gully. Half stunned by the fall, Janey attempted to rise, but found it impossible because of the pain in her ankle. At her side lay the faithful pony, his head doubled under him and neck broken. Dolly, with her dinner-basket held tight in her hand, was half rolling, half sliding down the bank after her. "Oh, Miss Janey, I was so afraid somebody wouldn't come and my rabbits would get burned; just see 'em," and, d awing aside the napkin, she showed Janey three little cotton-tails nestling in the tiny basket. "You'll take care of us now, won't you, Miss Janey?" she asked, confidingly, as she put the napkin carefully back. "Dear child." returned Janey, tenderly, in an agony of pain and grief for her dead pony. "Til do my best for you. but you must do just as I tell you. Can you unbuckle Brete's girth?" "I'm 'fraid to; he's so dead."

Janey smiled a little bitterly. "Weil, perhaps I can do it," and working her way to his side, she unfastened the girth and by much tugging pulted the blanket off, the tears running down on his pretty mane. A shrill scream from Dolly roused her from her bitter reflections.

"God help us, then," thought the ful.-N. Y. Evening World.

poor girl as she called Doby to her. "Now alt down on this blanket and when the fire comes close to you, you must cover all up with it. If you swallow any of the hot air it will kill Dolly began to cry as she gingerly seated herself on the wet blanket. It's so nasty and damp, Miss Janey," she

"Be thankful for that. The fire is so close I can hear it crackling. I am going to burn a little of the grass around us." Working her way a little distance she lighted a match and set the grass blazing. It swept merrily up over the bank, and when it would have eaten in toward the child, sho beat it out with one of the blankets. At last, with white, drawn face, she crawled to Dolly. The air about them grew close and hot and burning grass fell all over them. The land here was low and the grass was mixed with blue stem, a species of grass that grew several feet high and made intense heat. With the feeble strength at her command, Janey brushed the burning particles away till Dolly, screaming with fright, sprang into her lap, leaving both exposed to the fiery bath. By main force Janey held the frenzied child down and drew the blanket over them, but Dolly's frantic struggles made them slip, leaving Janey's head and shoulders uncovered. Her hair crisped and singed and her hands blistered; her face grew hot, then cool, and then all was dark. "Am I dead?" asked a weak voice from among the pillows.

"No, daughter, nor near it now, thank Heaven; but you must not

"But what makes my voice sound so queer and what alls my head? Where is my hair?" persisted the thin little

"Gone up in the charlot of fire, Jane," answered Tom, coming in just

"And Dolly?" she gasped, as the awful day of trial came to memory. "Doll's all right; a heap sight better off 'an you are. I tell you we've been having a time with you the last six weeks. "Six weeks! Oh, Tom, is this Oc-

"You bet; the last day at that." "And I didn't go to school after

There was a piteous tone in the weak voice that Tom couldn't stand. "Mother, I'm going to tell her," he cried, impulsively. "She must promise to keep perfectly quiet, then.' "Indeed, I will be quiet, mother. Now, Tom, tell me quick, all about

"Well, to begin with, you hadn't got half a mile away when Colonel Landis came riding up on the lookout for Dolly, but before he got to the trail and he knew it was no use to go on. Just as quick as the fire passed the men from Lane's and Colonel Landis started out to hunt you. Dolly had started home, but the ground was hot and burned her feet and she was crying. and, jiminy crickets! what a uglylooking young 'un she was. Her face was as black as my pup. We found you down in the ravine and thought you was dead, sure. Your curls was all burned off, and your evebrows and lashes and your face and hands all blistered. Poor Brete was pretty badly burned, too. You broke your ankle in the tumble. Colonel Landis brought, you home, and here you've been for six weeks, 'screeching: 'Dolly, dear, you'll get burned.' I took care of her, after all," concluded Tom, loftily, "and she had to ride on a mule, too; it most killed her." "And the corn?" questioned Janey. 'All burned, and mighty near took the barn, too," "Poor father." sighed Janey, softly. "Poor nuthin'. Why, Jane, you're a regular heroine, and Colonel Landis is going to send you to school three years! Fact! He's got it all fixed, and he's given father three cows and built us another stable, and there's the spankin'ist black pony in the stable all saddled and bridled, all fit for a fight." "Tom, you're exciting Janey," remonstrated the gentle mother.

"And he's yours, and Colonel Landis says if he was to give you his gold. mine in Arizona it wouldn't pay you for saving Doll's life. What did you say, mother?" grinned Tom, as he danced a jig about the room, satisfied to quit his story.

"What does it all mean, mother?" gasped Janey, in wild-eyed amazement. Tom had rattled his story off so fast that the weak brain hardly comprehended the half that had befallen hez

"It is true, just as Tom has to'd you. dear," replied her mother, "and here is Colonel Landis to see you.

"Words are a poor return for all you have done for me, Miss Janey, but I wanted to thank you in person for saving to me all that makes life worth living. Dolly is all I have in the world, my one treasure, and I shall not forget that you risked your life for her. I brought the little maid with me today. She wanted to see you very much, she said."

"I just wanted to tell you, Miss Janey, that the rabbits weren't burned a tinty bit, and I've got 'em every one right now, but they're pretty big. I'll give you one all for yourself, even if you did make me sit on a nasty, wos blanket."

Mrs. Janey Landis has that rabbit yet. It is stuffed, however, and occupies a prominent place in her cabines, and, strange to relate, people do say that she makes an excellent stepmother. In her palatial city home. "Oh, Miss Janey, the fire is most however, there are no prairie fires to fight, for which Calonel Landls, Dolly and Mamo: Janey are dutifully thankLOUIS SCHRARS

HOYT and Dingwall go out of the Soo News and Chase Osborn "plays it alone." Luck to them and "more power" to Osborn,

MR. PARNELL is missing and his friends are very anxious, He has secluded himself on previous occasions but never for so long a time nor when engagements of so much importance were pending.

CONGRESS at its next session should make an appropriation to build and maintain a lighthouse and fog signal on Whale Back reef. This is one of the most dangerous shoals on the lakes, and as these waters are traversed by many a craft during the season of navigation something ought to be done to avoid disaster. Nearly every season one or more yessels are either wrecked or disabled at that point .- Advocate, Sturgeon Bay.

HURRAY! We make progress. The Mining Journal has got so far as to justify its assault on Roosevelet by accusing him of being out of step with the administration, and as to say "Darn a mugwump, any how." It is welcome to work off its superfluous bile in Nov. 28. windy diatribes about IRON PORT if it only makes progress towards sound republicanism That's the purpose we have had in view all the time, and we rejoice, and coho its echo-"Darn a mugwump."

PRESIDENT CLARKE, of the water power, did not arrive at the Soo as was expected. It is understood that he is making negotiation for the sale of the water power to another systicate. Several gentlemen were in the city during the week and their mysterious movements attracted much attention. Their actions, of course, trause the people to the thought that they were here in the interests of the water power. It is not at all unlikely, as they spent a good deal of their time looking over the canal and the city in general. The Democrat does not look for any. new developments at present, but is satisfied that the present syndicate who control the canal, will never build it, but that they will be succeeded by men who have the means to build an enlarged canal.-Democrat, Sault

ONE WHO KNOWS gives the following con cerning the connection with the liquor trade of some of the women who, in the W. C. T. U. convention at Chicago, were so exercised spring upon the defence in the Cronin murabout "the vice presidents saloon,"

"One of the leading ladies of the convention is the wife of a wholesale druggist, who Four of the members are wives of retail druggists who sell liquor under a regular license. Eight of the members are wives or daughters of men who own property that is let to be used for liquor saloons. Two of the members own interests in steamboats on which liquor is sold over a saloon bar. Two of the members own property in which are public houses of prostitution. The headquarters of the convention in Chicago was located in a hotel that furnishes liquor to its guests to drink

The adage about "people who live in glass houses" would seem to apply.

JEFF DAVIS is in a bad way financially and a movement has been started in the south for his relief. He is said to be about $40,000 in debt and it takes about all his income to pay interest. The Nashville American and other Davis worshippers appeal to "all who chershi fond memories of the lost cause and reverence the name and character of its great leader," to take stock in the "Davis Land Co.," which is a company formed for the purpose of real izing $100,000 from some unmarketable land owned by Jeff in Arkansas. Inis course is pursued so as to make it look more like a bus. ness than a charitable transaction.-Tribune,

It is late, too late to do Jeff any good, this movement. His race is run, but we think a bit better of the men who wore the gray for their kind remembrance of their old leader, and hope they will pull his estate out of the slough of bankruptcy so that his daughter may not starve. He went down with them, and was too old and too stubborn to make his peace with the conquerer and start anew as did they; he served them for nothing and, though he served them badly, did all that be could for them. Let those who were in the wrong with him take care of him and his now

IT IS SIGNIFICANT of the rapid effacement from the public mind of the lessons of many years of the history of our country, that the opinions of Mr. Jefferson Davis upon a ques tion either of economic policy or of constitu tional law are again esteemed, at least by some sort of political sect, as likely to instruct the sublic or aid a party. Otherwise his recent expression in Belford's Monthly of the opin ion that a Protective Tariff is unconstitutional would not be republished in the most widely circulated of the Free-Trade Democratic journals. A very few years ago Democratic Free-Traders meekly sought to ally their doctrine with the names of Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Henry Ward Beecher and a few other apostles of human freedom who were supposed to lean toward the free importation of competing foreign products where they would displace American labor. Now, how ever, either from a consciousness of growing strength or other cause, Free-Traders accept ardently the more congenial leadership of the arch-apostle of race-slavery. This is as it should be. Free-Trade, sace-slavery and national

THE UNPRECEDENTED spectacle is presented week fully justify them. It is estimated that lake, Ashland and Two Harbors, will approxi 000 tons has been covered by season charters MONTHOMERY, of the Sunday Sun, was at $1 35. The Escanaba charters, made thus far are about 250,000 tons and the rate is $1.-55. That considerable quantities of ore have been engaged by farnace concerns, there is ittle doubt, but the bulk of sales thus far has been made to Chicago parties, notably the Illinois Steel Co. There are now in abeyanco sales aggregating more than half a million tons ore, chiefly for Pittsburgh, but the contracts have not been closed, and the price, for that reason, cannot be quoted. Everything points to a boom for 1890, and no one question that the output for next season will reach 9,000,000 tons. Later,-We are enabled to tate that, within the past two or three days, the Norrie has fixed its next season's price at $5.50, at Cleveland, and sold large quantities of ore on this basis, at the same time covering its lake freights for 1890. Of next year's product, 300,000 tons have been placed for Chicago consumption, but as this is sold at the nines, and the buyers are the Chicago steel makers who are interested in the Norrie, this part of the sales, of course, has no effect on the market. It is the surplus sales, above recorded, that are of great interest to the iron men at the present time. -Iron Trade Review,

THE Minneapolis Tribune building was burned Saturday night last and in it or in endeavoring to escape from it a dozen or more persons lost their lives, among them Milton Pickett, assistant city editor of the Pioneer Press, James F. Igoe, and Walter E. Miles-Associated Press operators, Edward Olson, president of the university of South Dakota; W. H. Millman, commercial editor of the Tribune, and Jerry Jenkinson and Robert Mc-Cutcheon, printegs. The building was a fire trap. One narrow stairway, one elevator and one fire escape were the means of exit from the upper stories, and each and all were useless and impassable before the occupants of the upper floors were aware of their danger. All this was known, had been brought to the attention of the owners and the city authorities by the labor organizations, but nothing was done. These men were murdered and the owners of the building and the city authorities must share the condemnation therefor. Un fortunately their consciences only can punish them—the law and human justice is power-

AT THE LAST MOMENT when it could have been introduced as evidence a surprise was der case by the introduction of two pocket knives taken fron Dan. Coughlin when be was arrested which were identified as having It seems incredible that Dan. Coughlin should have been so fatuous as to retain in his possession such articles, but the knives were taken from him, with other articles, by the officer who made his arrest and very positively identified by Mr. Conklin as having been given by him to Cronin. If the jury is not "fixed" Coughlin has banged himself by that

THE PERSONS in arrest charged with the robbery of the bank at Hurley-Baker, the saloon keeper, his mistress. Lou Thayer and the assistant cashier-age examined separately. Baker was examined first and much damaging evidence brought out. He will doubtless be held for trial, and the assistant cashter can hardly be in better case-some one gave away the combination of the vault lock and only he and the cashier had it. The woman is expected to squeal.

MARINETTE taxes the coming year amount to $69, 985.46; a large sum, but we have got the worth of it in fire department, paving, sidewalks, electric lights, and other improvements. Two thousand men will leave the city for the woods very soon. The board of education refused to close the schools on account of diphtheria. The doctors support their action on the ground that the children are safer in school than out .- Eagle, Mari-

MUGWUMP papers make haste to say that President Harrison's message is "commonplace." Fact 100; He is talking about the common interest of the common people of the United States. He has no hobby to ride-no pet panacea to recommend-does not pose as the one man who "knows it all" and must be listened to and his advice acted on under penalty. But "d-n a mugwump, any way."

GEN. H. B. CLITZ disappeared, it will be remembereo, about a year ago, and it is supposed that he threw himself into the river at Niagara Falls, that being the place where his trail vanished. His family last week presented his will for probate and the question whether the instrument is or is not operative is the thing to be decided.
