

BIB BOAT LIBELED

TEN THOUSAND TONNER TIED UP AT DOCKS HERE YESTERDAY BY U. S. MARSHAL.

The big ten thousand ton ore carrier Sheldon Parks, was tied up at the North Western dock yesterday by a United States Marshal because of the non-payment of bills for work on the vessel owned by the owners. The marshal came from Marquette yesterday with the libel papers and promptly assumed charge of the vessel.

Loading operations were suspended and the officer will remain in charge until a bond has been furnished by the owners for the payment of the amount of the libel.

When it will be possible for the owners to get the bond here is problematical, but it is likely that it will be several days before the vessel is released.

BODY OF YOUNG MAN RECEIVED HERE ON SUNDAY

The body of John Murphy, son of S. J. Murphy of this city and well known to many people here, who was drowned at Missoula, Mont., was received in the city over the North Western road on Sunday morning and was taken direct to the Murphy home on South Fannie street. With an escort of nearly 100 members of the Escanaba council Knights of Columbus the body was taken from the home to St. Patrick's church at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon and following a short service was escorted to its last resting place at St. Joseph's cemetery.

According to word brought to the city by Charles Ottenwaller, who came here with the body, representing the Missoula council Knights of Columbus the unfortunate young man was drowned while fishing in the Missoula river on July 28. The young man had gone from Missoula alone to a ranch to spend a short vacation. He went fishing in the river on July 28, and his body was not discovered until July 31, when it was found resting on a sand bar.

It was immediately taken to Missoula and after a short search his relatives here were located. Through a misunderstanding of information given him in St. Paul, Mr. Ottenwaller who had accompanied the body from Missoula to that city, became separated from his charge when it was shipped from St. Paul by the North Western road instead of the Soo Line. The body reached Escanaba on Sunday morning and Mr. Ottenwaller did not arrive here until yesterday morning.

Yesterday morning at 8 o'clock the formal funeral mass for the dead was said at St. Patrick's church by Rev. Father Barth and as at the short service of Sunday afternoon a large number of the sorrowing relatives and friends were present to pay their last respects to the young man.

The pallbearers who served at the funeral were: John Murray, Patrick Connolly, T. J. Burke, William Glavin, John Sheehan and William Mallette.

RECEIVER WILL GO TO ANN ARBOR

John Welch, former catcher on the University of Michigan team, is in receipt of a letter asking him to come to Ann Arbor to catch a game for the St. Thomas team of that city on August 16th.

The St. Thomas team is one of the fastest amateur aggregations in the lower part of the state and the fact that they ask Mr. Welch to make the trip for one game only, speaks well for his reputation as a receiver. He will leave for Ann Arbor Sunday night next.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Parker W. Crose, a nine pound boy.

Oscar and Karl Kraus returned yesterday morning from Chicago.

Miss Patricia Carlson has returned to her home at Alfred after a week's visit in the city.

NEW SOLICITOR FOR THE PRESS

Joseph LeClaire, one of the veteran printers of Delta County and known to many people throughout the county has accepted a position with the Morning Press as solicitor and collector. Mr. LeClaire assumed his new duties yesterday morning.

ARRANGE FOR FAIR

IMPORTANT MEETING OF COUNTY FAIR DIRECTORS WAS HELD YESTERDAY.

Members of the board of directors and township committees of the Delta County Agricultural Society yesterday morning completed additional plans for the big Northern State fair to be held here this fall.

The secretary was instructed to at once take steps to secure sufficient tents to house all of the fair exhibits and arrange proper enclosures for the stock pavilion. The tents will be brought here as quickly as possible that there may be no hitch when the opening days of the fair arrive.

It was voted by the directors yesterday to secure as many free attractions as possible for the fair and if it is possible no attractions will be booked for which an admission price will be charged within the grounds. It is the plan of the directors to make the fair one big show to be seen for the single price of admission charged at the gate and it is believed that the plan will meet with the approval of people in all parts of the county.

Arrangements are being made to secure a good band for the fair days and negotiations are pending for other free attractions that will bring a host of people here to attend the biggest agricultural show ever attempted in the upper peninsula.

WATSON MAN DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME

Stricken suddenly with heart failure at his home near Watson yesterday morning Leo Kolburger, well known to a host of people in Escanaba, answered death's call within 15 minutes. The body of Mr. Kolburger accompanied by members of his family together with relatives and friends about Watson will be brought to the city tonight. Lefttime arrangements for the funeral will not be made until after the arrival of the body here.

Mr. Kolburger was about 50 years of age and is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters. He was born in Austria and came to this country 33 years ago and has spent practically all of that time in this district. He located near Watson several years ago and engaged in lumbering and farming and had cleared an excellent farm in that district. He was known to a host of people in this city and to all of whom the announcement of his death came as a severe shock. He was a member of the Escanaba lodge of the Sons of Hermann and that organization will have charge of the arrangements for the funeral here.

RECEIVE NEWS HERE OF DEATH OF THOS. RYAN

Word was received in the city on Sunday of the death at Houghton on Sunday morning of Thomas D. Ryan, well known to a number of people in this city. Mr. Ryan was for several years one of the leading commission merchants of Hancock, but for the past eight years he has been ill, the end coming at his home on Sunday morning.

L. Schultz of Chicago is the guest of Dr. John Groos.

ESCAPE WAS VERY NARROW

FOUR ESCANABA MEN HAVE CLOSE CALL IN AUTO ACCIDENT NEAR NEGAUNEE.

Four Escanaba men and one Negaunee man narrowly escaped death near Eagle Mills, between Marquette and Negaunee late on Saturday night when the auto in which they were driving suddenly rammed a cow in the road, killing the animal instantly, running the car into the ditch and throwing all of the occupants from their seats far into the road.

The occupants of the car were: F. M. Olmsted, Isaac Schram, Dr. R. E. Hodson, Dr. E. T. Long of this city and Judge Thoren, manager of the Negaunee baseball team.

Mr. Olmsted was thrown 30 feet from the car landing in a ditch at the side of the road and sustaining severe cuts about the face and head. Other members of the party were also sent sprawling from the machine and escaped with minor bruises. That Mr. Olmsted was not instantly killed and other members of the party seriously injured, it is held, was due only to the fact that they landed in the mucky ground of a swamp at the road side and did not strike a hard pavement. In running into the ditch after ramming the cow the car missed striking a monster telegraph pole by less than six inches. All were forced to walk from the scene of the accident to Negaunee.

The members of the party left Negaunee after the game on Saturday to attend a meeting of the directors of the Marquette-Delta County Baseball club in Marquette. The business of the meeting was not completed until late and rather than wait for a train for the return trip they engaged an automobile. After passing Eagle Mills the road runs through a swamp where a magnificent macadam road has been constructed. The car was making good time in spite that a swamp fog hung over the road. Suddenly out of the fog, directly in front of the car appeared several cows crossing the road. Before the driver could gain control of the machine the auto rammed one of the animals and throwing the car aside into the ditch.

So great was the impetus of the auto that when it landed suddenly nose downward in the ditch all of the members of the party were hurled through the air for considerable distances and that none were seriously hurt is considered miraculous.

Of the accident the Mining Journal in its issue of yesterday said:

Ed. Smith, son of Jacob Smith, came to grief on the straight of way stretch of road west of Eagle Mills Saturday evening while driving his father's car, which contained several passengers. The car rammed a cow, and that it was moving at a lively clip is showing by the fact that the cow was killed and the machine throw into the soft muck along side of the road, the occupants being badly shaken up, but not particularly injured. The hood of the machine was buried deep in the mud and was badly damaged.

Yesterday morning, Edw. Bell, of the Pioneer Motor Company, superintended the rescue of the car. It was hauled backed to town by another automobile and is now in the repair shop. Had the accident occurred at another point on the road it might have been much more serious.

RECEIVE NEWS OF FRIENDS DEATH

G. A. Duggan yesterday received a message from Joliet, Ill., announcing the death of Peter Sharpe, whom he had known for 20 years and who was one of Mr. Duggan's closest friends. Mr. Duggan left at once for Joliet where he will remain until after the funeral. Mr. Sharpe conducted a large manufacturing plant at Joliet and was prominent in business circles in that city.

AUTO GOES INTO DITCH

Attempting to make a sharp turn in the road near the Traction Company's station at Wells on Sunday night Dr. L. P. Treiber of Bark River in his auto collided with a high sidewalk, wrecking the forward part of the machine. Dr. Treiber was running to Escanaba from Gladstone at a fair rate of speed and at the hair pin turn at Wells his lights failed to show the turn clearly and the machine bounced down a sharp incline to bring up suddenly against a high sidewalk. The radiator was caved in. The front wheels and axle bent and the lights broken off while one of the rear tires was ripped off. Luckily neither Dr. Treiber or any of the members of his party were thrown out and all escaped with a sharp scare.

TIP TOPS TAKE FOURTEEN INNING GAME ON SUNDAY

With the demon speed Jimmie Smith at his best the Tip Tops of Escanaba defeated the strong Gladstone city team on Sunday by a score of 4 to 3 after 14 innings of tight playing.

Smith held the hard clouting Gladstone batters to four hits in the fourteen innings having speed and curves to burn at every stage of the game. He was opposed by Calder who pitched an effective game but in the final allowed hits to be mixed with errors for the winning score.

The two teams tied up the score in the fifth inning and from that period until the fourteenth neither side was dangerous. The support of both pitchers at times was sensational in the extreme, plays being pulled off that looked impossible to the crowd of bleacherites who were present. The game measured up easily with any ever staged at the Upper Bay city grounds.

The Tip Tops scored three runs in the second and one in the fourteenth while Gladstone scored one in the third and tied up the tally with two runs in the fifth. The Tip Tops drew on triple, three two baggers and seven singles off Calder's delivery. Boylo was charged with one passed ball. Smith struck out seven gave four bases on balls and hit out batter. The total number of errors by the Tip Tops was four. Calder for Gladstone struck out 12 gave two bases on balls and hit out batter. Gladstone was charged with three errors.

LET'S BE REAL FANS

Luck has been breaking badly for the Escanaba baseball team in the last few games and the team is at the point where it must receive the staunch support of every blue-blooded fan in the city.

Anyone can be an enthusiastic fan when the home team is winning.

It takes a good fan to be a staunch rooter for the wearers of the local colors when the team is losing.

Escanaba is made up of hundreds of the best baseball bugs in the world.

Escanaba is the best baseball town in the upper peninsula and the fans of the city will now demonstrate to the remaining cities of the league that winning or losing, Escanaba enthusiasts are on the job ready to support and root for the men who are giving their best energies for the home team.

It must not be said that Escanaba supporters of baseball are fair weather fans.

It was must be shown that they can take a little matter of a few defeats philosophically and in a sportsmanlike spirit.

Mistakes may have been made by the players and mistakes may have been made by the management, but all are simply errors of judgment and every fan in Escanaba is prepared to stick to the belief that when the battle is over that little old league pennant will be dangling from the staff at South Park.

Over half of the games of the league schedule are yet to be played and when the home run stretch is reached, Escanaba will be visibly present, giving the other teams in the league a few important pointers on how the national game really is played.

LOVE MAKES STATEMENT

PITCHER CHARGED WITH "LAYING DOWN" IN GAME ASSERTS HIS INNOCENCE.

Leo Love, pitcher for the Escanaba baseball team, who it was charged by some deliberately "threw the Saturday game to Negaunee," strenuously denies that serious charge and asserts that in spite of appearances he gave to the team the best that was in him for Saturday's game. Love is badly broken up over the charge that he is innocent of the suspicion as any man could possibly be.

Following is Love's story of his part in the game:

"When I warmed up before the game I had a world of speed and I thought it was going to be a cinch in spite of the fact that my curves were not working. I went into the box and what was the matter I don't know for I had neither speed nor a curve. It was simply one of those things that a pitcher can't explain. I pledge my word of honor I did my level best to get something on the ball, but it simply wouldn't come. I went into right field from the box and anyone who has played baseball knows that without a little practice it is mighty hard for a man to go into the field and judge the balls that are batted out.

"When the ball was hit into the right field, I heard the crack but couldn't get my eyes on the ball. When I found it I had judged it as well as I could and when it was coming down I thought I was too far under and jumped back only to have it fall in front of me. I made as good an attempt to get it on the bound as any man could, and made a mess of it, I admit. I was taken out of the game after that and that action surely was justifiable, for I surely was off color and nothing that I could do would help matters.

"They said that I deliberately 'threw' the game but in the name of reason and common sense I would ask what benefit I could possibly have gained by such an act. Such a course would absolutely gain me nothing but on the other hand would so cloud my reputation that I would be forever ruined in baseball. I am in baseball as a business and for the sport of it and no man in the game ever hated a quitter more than I, and to 'lay down' as it is charged that I have done would be an act that could not be too severely punished. Of this preposterous charge I honestly and will forever maintain that I am as innocent as a newborn babe.

Some have said that I was "sore" because my brother was released. It is true that I felt bad when he was let go, but my allegiance to the Escanaba club has never faltered for one single instant. I understand that since this thing has happened it has been reported about the city that I said things about about me going to get even with the team for letting my brother go. Any statement purporting to have come from me making any such threat or anything resembling it is an unqualified lie. All I ask for is fair and impartial treatment and while I admit that I was a failure both in the box and in the field on Saturday I gave to the team the best that I had in me at that time and that was all that any man could do."

WON GAME FROM COAL DOCK TEAM

The Cleary Brothers team on Sunday morning at the Yellow diamond cleaned up on the Reiss Coal Company's team in a close game by a score of 8 to 7. Brunell and Logan formed the battery for the victors while McCauley and McCarthy waded up the battery for the Reiss Company's team.

HOOSIERS COME TODAY

CRACK ELKHART SQUAD WILL INVADE PENINSULA TO-DAY FOR LONG TOUR.

Members of the Elkhart Blues, in charge of Senator J. M. Proctor of Indiana, will arrive in Escanaba this morning to open a series of games with upper peninsula teams.

The first game in the north country for the Hoosiers will be staged this afternoon at 3 o'clock when they will stack up against the local leaguers at South Park and then will move north to meet the different squads of the Marquette-Delta county league, later invading the Copper country.

Having gotten all of the errors of which they are capable for an entire season out of their systems Escanaba's champs will demonstrate today that they can come back. No fan in the city more keenly felt the downfall of the local at Negaunee than the members of the team, who in one of those fits that is bound to strike every baseball squad on occasions, dropped two to the league leaders on Saturday and Sunday. Determined to show to the faithful fans of the city that the fiascos of Saturday and Sunday are past chapters in a book and but incidents in the route to the top of the heap, the locals will go into today's game determined to reinstate themselves in the good graces of the public and give to the Indians a warm and hearty reception to the peninsula district.

Today's game will be started promptly at 3 o'clock and with fair weather conditions prevailing it is expected that a monster crowd of people will be present.

ALPHAS PLAY RAPID TEAM TO THRILLING TIE

The Alpha baseball club of this city played the crack Rapid River team to a 13 inning 6 to 6 tie at Rapid River on Sunday. Both teams performed in great form throughout the entire distance of the extra inning battle and, when it was finally necessary to end the struggle because of darkness, the honors were even. In the third inning of the game Shannahan, catcher for the Alphas, received a foul tip on the end of the middle finger of the right hand breaking the bone. He was forced to retire from the game and D. Perrow went behind the bat and caught the remaining innings. In the fifth inning McPherson, pitcher for the Rapid River team, was badly spiked and was forced to retire. Thomas (taking his place in the box. Forest caught the entire game for Rapid. Nolden pitched the entire game for the Alphas and showed prime form in every inning. The game was conceded to be the fastest played on the Rapid River grounds this season.

MISSING YOUNG MAN FOUND AT DAM SITE

Gordon Links, for whom the police were looking yesterday because of a telegram from his mother, was located yesterday afternoon at the new dam site, where he has been working for the past couple of weeks.

The telegram came yesterday morning from the young man's mother, Mrs. G. A. Links, at Grand Rapids, stating that his grandmother had died and asking that he be found and sent to Grand Rapids at once. Mr. Links left last night for that city.

LOVE WILL PITCH GAME

LINEUP OF TEAM FOR GAME TO-DAY ANNOUNCED BY DIRECTORS LAST NIGHT.

Announcement was made by members of the board of directors of the Escanaba baseball club late last night that Leo Love will go into the box for Escanaba against the Elkhart Blues today at South Park that he may be given a chance to prove false the charges that were made against him in Saturday's game at Negaunee.

Love feels that he was aggrieved by the suspicion that was directed toward his work at Negaunee and will be prepared to twirl the game of his life today.

Whether or not he will be retained as a member of the local pitching staff will, it is understood, be determined by his work in today's game.

Love, pitcher; Coell, catcher; Lindquist, first base; Olmsted, second base; Connelly, third base; Aronson, short stop; Burke, left field; Riley, center field and Lantz right field.

CONVENTION OF YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY CLOSED

The annual meeting of the Young People's societies of the Swedish Lutheran churches of the upper peninsula came to a close last evening with a literary and musical program.

At yesterday's morning's meeting which was devoted entirely to business the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Rev. P. Norberg, Menominee.

Vice-President—Rev. E. Bernsten, Escanaba.

Secretary—Miss Lizzie Hanson, Menominee.

Treasurer—Miss Ovidia Johnson, Escanaba.

There was no meeting yesterday afternoon, the delegates all enjoying a trolley ride to a point near the Chemical plant.

One of the most enjoyable features of the meeting was the rendition of several tenor solos at Sunday morning's services by the Rev. H. M. Hendrickson of Minneapolis.

All of the visiting delegates will leave for their homes today.

DR. SHEVALIER LEAVES FOR A TRIP THRU EAST

Dr. E. D. Shevalier, city veterinarian and milk inspector, will leave this morning for Portland, N. Y., where he will visit with relatives for a short time. During his absence Dr. Shevalier will attend the American Veterinarians' convention in Toronto and will visit all of the large cities of the east in the state and through Canada. During his absence the practice of Dr. Shevalier will be cared for by Dr. McPhail.

ROAD ROLLER FALLS THROUGH OLD BRIDGE

While being taken across the old state road bridge leading to Gladstone on Sunday a heavy road roller belonging to the Solid Rock Construction company broke through the planking and blocked all traffic over the bridge. The roller was being taken slowly over the structure when the rear wheels suddenly dropped through the planking to the hubs.

Men with teams worked throughout the afternoon without being able to release the roller.

Yesterday blocks and tackles were secured and it was expected that the obstruction on the bridge would be removed by late last night.

SISTERS

By VIRGINIA BLAIR

Vicky was younger than Edith, but she seemed older. She had such an assured air, and a woman-of-the-world manner which seemed to set her beyond all youthful folly. It was only when she was alone with Edith that she showed the child in her.

"One of us has to seem grown up," she could explain to Edith, "and you are such a baby that I have to put on an extreme amount of dignity."

Edith smiled. "I am not such a baby," she said, "but you have more courage than I, Vicky; I do not believe that you are afraid of anything."

"Yes I am," Vicky admitted. "I am afraid of George Miller, Edith."

The color flamed into Edith's face. "Why—why should you be, Vicky?" she demanded.

"He always looks at me as if he could see through me," Vicky confessed, "and I feel as if I ought to be in short dresses and wear my hair in pig-tails."

"He does not make me feel that way," she said.

Vicky's short nose was up in the air. "Of course not, he's in love with you, Edith."

"I hope not," said Edith gravely. "Why not? Vicky demanded.

"Because I don't love him," was the response.

"And he loves you. Isn't that just the way of it? All the good things come to you and you don't want them, while I—"

Edith looked at her in astonishment. "Why, Vicky Osborn," she said, "don't see why you should care."

"I don't," said Vicky bravely. "But George Miller is too good to be hurt."

She said the same thing to the young man that evening when he came out white-faced from a talk with Edith.

"I want you to be happy, George," she said.

"You are a nice little thing, Vicky," he told her, "and we've always been good chums. But I cannot come here any more."

Vicky looked after him forlornly. "I couldn't tell him the truth," was her thought, "—that Edith cares for some one else."

She found Edith in tears on the porch. "I am not going to sympathize," Vicky scolded; "you ought to love him, if you don't."

"But there is Richard," Edith faltered.

"He cannot hold a candle to George," Vicky said.

"I believe you are in love with him yourself, Vicky."

Vicky turned on her, her eyes blazing. "Do you think I'd love a man who didn't care anything for me?"

But that night she cried herself to sleep, and in the morning she rose early and went for a walk through the garden and down the road which led to the river. Her big dog, Laddie, followed her. She talked to him on the pier while watching a fisherman drawn in the nets with the morning's catch.

"Edith has always had everything," she said. "She's the pretty one and the popular one. I wouldn't care, Laddie, if she loved George; I'd give him up, but it is such a pity to have so much devotion go to waste."

In silence she watched a boat shoot out from the upper rapids into a placid pond.

"It's George," Vicky said, and rose, ready for flight.

He saw her and waved to her. "Don't you want to go for a row?" he asked.

Vicky consented, and with Laddie in the stern they turned down stream. There was a little inn on a wooded point. There they had breakfast, telephoning to Edith that they would be back at noon.

All that morning George poured the tale of his troubles into Vicky's sympathetic ears. And Vicky listening, said within her soul: "It isn't Edith that he really loves, it's what he thinks Edith is."

Yet she dared bring him no disillusion, for she could not break faith with her sister.

When she reached home she found Edith in a fever of excitement. "Richard wants me to marry him," she said. "He has it all planned, we are to live in his college town and he will finish his studies and have me for his inspiration."

Nothing that Vicky could say or do could influence Edith, and so it happened that the young and irresponsible pair were married within the month, and thus Vicky was left alone. Since the death of their father and another the two girls had been chaperoned by an old aunt whose feebleness made her poor company for a young and eager girl. Vicky packed her things and went to the city. She took a small studio in an old building down town, and there she painted in company with a half dozen other artists.

There was one man, a Russian, who scrutinized her pictures and gave her valuable suggestions. "You have genius," he told her, "but your heart is not in it."

"I haven't any heart," said Vicky, whimsically.

"You had one once," he said shrewdly, "but it has gone out of your possession. Who is the man?"

Vicky shook her head at him. "There is no man," she said, stoutly. But that night when she went to bed she had a vision of George Miller.

She had not heard from him for a long time, but the next morning she wrote him a letter. It was a pitiful little document that held a cry of loneliness. Edith, she said, was busy with her new happiness—everybody seemed busy with their happiness, and she was trying to paint and be happy without Edith, without everybody. Wouldn't George come down as a cure for homesickness?

He came and found her so thin and white that he cried: "Why, Vicky, what is the matter?"

"Nothing," she declared, and on top of her declaration broke down and cried.

He tried her and went away with a picture of her forlorn little face blotting out the image of Edith's beauty. He came down often after that and one day he said: "I love you, Vicky. I want to take you home with me."

"It is pity, George."

"It isn't," he declared stoutly, "you are the one woman in the world for me."

She tried to believe him, but her heart whispered: "If Edith were not married, what then?"

Then like a thunderbolt came the news of Richard's death. Edith, heartbroken, went back to the old home and Vicky gave up her idea of a career and took up, once more, the life that they had led together. She said nothing to Edith of her engagement to George.

One day she took things into her own hands. She telephoned to George to meet her at the pier, and once more he rowed her down the river. And there Vicky set him free.

"But why?" he demanded, "don't you love me?"

She would not meet his eyes. "Edith—" she faltered. "In a little time she will have forgotten her sorrow for Richard—and then—"

"Do you think for a moment, Vicky," he demanded, "that I want Edith?"

"You loved her first," she said.

He leaned forward and took her hand. "Little child," he said, "it was not love that I gave Edith. I thought it was, because I was blinded by her beauty. But when she threw back to me, so lightly, the heart that she had won, when she had no sympathy, no feeling for the boy she had known all her life, I was disillusioned. It was your sympathy, Vicky, which made a man of me. It was your pity that revealed to me what you might be as a wife. The love I had for Edith, compared to my love for you, is as candlelight to moonlight."

"And Vicky was content."

INSANITY ON THE INCREASE

Number of Afflicted in the United States is Assuming Alarming Proportions.

The number of insane persons in hospitals in the United States on January 1, 1904, was not less than 150,151.

This was more than double the number of 1890, which was 74,028. From 1904 to 1910 the insane in hospitals in New York alone increased 26 per cent. It is safe to say, writes Homer Polk in the American Review of Reviews, that the insane now in hospitals in the United States number at least 200,000.

The population of Nevada and Wyoming in 1910 together is about equal to the population of the hospitals for the insane in the United States. The total annual cost of caring for the insane in the United States is in the neighborhood of $50,000,000 a year. About one-sixth of the total expenditure of the state of New York is for the care of the insane.

The New York State Charities Aid association has outlined and is carrying into effect a movement for popular education along scientific lines by sound psychological methods as to the causes and prevention of insanity. As one factor in this educational movement a short leaflet has been prepared stating in simple language the essential facts as to the causes of insanity so far as they are now known.

This leaflet is being printed by hundreds of thousands, and is being placed in the hands of men, women, boys and girls, through every form of organization willing to help in distributing it. It has been sent to every physician in the state, to the principal of every public school, to all clergymen, college presidents and faculties, superintendents of city schools, health officers, county school commissioners, secretaries of Y. M. C. A.'s to officers of labor unions, proprietors of factories, department stores, laundries, to city officials, officers of local granges, officers of fraternal orders; in short, to all the various types of organizations that are willing to promote such an effort for the public good.

Coinage in Northern Nigeria.

Shells still take the place of metal coinage in northern Nigeria. Lately a movement was set on foot to introduce a proper coinage, but as no action has been taken with regard to the demonetizing of cowries. They have never been legal tender in the strict sense of the term, but have been and continue to be accepted by the government in payment of taxes, and are still current among the natives.

The government is striving, however, to replace this unsatisfactory form of currency by British coin. The natives of Africa have a very decided preference for silver coins.

CHICAGO HEALTH EXPERT GETS NEW U. OF M. DEGREE

The honorary degree of doctor of public health was conferred upon Dr. William Augustus Evans of Chicago at the sixty-seventh annual commencement exercises of the University of Michigan. This is the first time this degree has been conferred at Michigan.

Dr. William A. Evans, as health commissioner of Chicago, transferred the department of health from little more than a name to one of the most useful branches of the city government. In scope and size it was increased three times. In the number of men and equipment it was doubled. In the matter of efficiency it became 50 to 75 per cent. better.

Among the new lines which Doctor Evans inaugurated, the Bureau of publicity and education probably stands foremost. He has always maintained that the chief work of the health department in its prevention of disease lies in the education of the people. The bureau published a weekly health story in popular style and distributed it throughout the city. A corps of lecturers was established by Doctor Evans, who invited the organizations of the city to avail themselves of the department's lecturers. He himself gave on an average one lecture a day throughout his term of office.

Probably the most discussed of his innovations in the department is his work on ventilation and impure air diseases, a subject formerly entirely neglected by the department. He showed that the impure air diseases, such as pneumonia, tuberculosis, and bronchitis, caused ten times the number of deaths as smallpox, diphtheria and scarlet fever, diseases which had formerly taken up the greater part of the efforts of the department.

Doctor Evans took up the question of tuberculosis not only from the educational side, but from the milk and housing side. He was instrumental in the establishment of the new municipal tuberculosis sanitarium. The ordinance requiring the milk sold in Chicago to come from cows tested for tuberculosis or else to be pasteurized came only after a hard fight by Doctor Evans.

The system of examining school children, which was formerly one merely for contagious diseases, was changed by Doctor Evans so that the children were examined for all physical defects. He brought to the department a squad of 60 nurses to work among the school children. Among the other things which he established was a contagious disease hospital for the treatment of diphtheria patients. He also established the Lake Michigan water commission, to prevent the pollution of Lake Michigan.

AUSTRALIA'S GOVERNOR IS ONLY 37 YEARS OLD

This is the "age of youth." Nearly every European monarch is a young man; nearly all the direct heirs are children. The British cabinet is the youngest that has ever been in office, and it has appointed the youngest governor general of Australia—Lord Denman, who will succeed Lord Dudley when he retires this year.

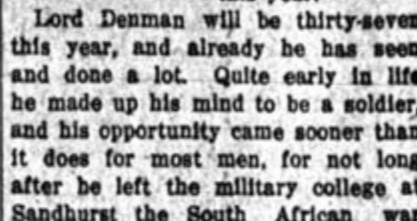

Lord Denman will be thirty-seven this year, and already he has seen and done a lot. Quite early in life he made up his mind to be a soldier, and his opportunity came sooner than it does for most men, for not long after he left the military college at Sandhurst the South African war broke out and he served as captain of the Middlesex squadron of the imperial yeomanry and saw much service, finally being invalided home after a wound received in a skirmish. When he was struck by the bullet he turned to his junior officer and said: "Lieutenant, take charge of the squadron;" then turned his horse and rode slowly to the rear. He was immensely popular with his soldiers and noted for the attention he paid to their comfort. On one occasion, after a long and trying march in the rain, he distributed six bottles of whisky which he had, among them.

Though the title was created as far back as 1834, he is only the third holder, having succeeded his great-uncle, who lived to an immense age. This old gentleman was a well known figure in the house of lords and noted for his persistence in promoting little bills of his own, of which no one took the slightest notice—one of them by the way, to give votes to women. His bills were invariably postponed for their second reading in six months' time, which is the house's technical way of shelving it, the date almost invariably occurring in the recess.

Besides being a keen soldier, Lord Denman is a man of strong political opinions, and as he has great ambitions he is likely to be heard more of later on. He is a Liberal, and when that party came into power received his first appointment as lord-in-waiting to the late king. He has also acted as deputy speaker and whip in the house of lords. His last appointment was that of captain of the corps of gentlemen-at-arms, the famous royal bodyguard which celebrated its four hundredth anniversary last year.

Lord Denman is peculiarly well fitted for the post of governor general of Australia.

Lady Denman, too, will be a great help to her husband, for she is as ambitious as he, a splendid hostess and possesses that tact and charm of manner which are so necessary in the position which she will hold.

Lord Denman will be thirty-seven this year, and already he has seen and done a lot. Quite early in life he made up his mind to be a soldier, and his opportunity came sooner than it does for most men, for not long after he left the military college at Sandhurst the South African war broke out and he served as captain of the Middlesex squadron of the imperial yeomanry and saw much service, finally being invalided home after a wound received in a skirmish. ## NEW COMMANDER OF NEW YORK STATE GRAND ARMY

After one of the most warmly waged contests in the career of the Grand Army of the Empire state Gen. George B. Loud was elected commander of that department at Niagara Falls.

General Loud is known as one of the most aggressive and successful fighters for the rights and against the wrongs of veterans in public employ.

When his appeal in 1909 to the commandant of West Point and subsequently to the secretary of war, to stop the desecration of Memorial day by the annual ball game played there by cadets and others, was refused, General Loud's terrific invective, which echoed throughout the country, stopped the game then and since.

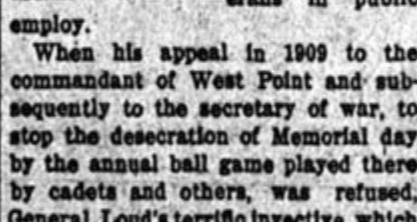

George B. Loud was born in Maine in 1845. His great-grandfather, Jacob Loud, and five sons served together in Washington's army. He is also a descendant of Elder William Brewster of the Mayflower. He enlisted at the age of sixteen on Company F, Forty-first Massachusetts, and served continuously till February 22, 1867, when mustered out a commissioned officer in the Tenth United States C. H. A., receiving also brevet commissions for wounds and meritorious services. He has been a member of the G. A. R. nearly forty-five years, in the departments of Louisiana, Massachusetts, Florida, Illinois and New York. For nearly six years he has been by unanimous reelections year after year the chairman of the Memorial committee of New York city's 46 posts.

General Loud was at one time a brigadier general of the state militia of Louisiana and acting state superintendent of education of that state; has been a lecturer of the board of education of New York city since 1898, and being nationally known as an orator he is in constant demand as a speaker on all occasions of a patriotic character.

Everybody's Secret.

He—Do you think we can keep our engagement a secret for a while?

She—Certainly, dear. Everybody has promised me they'll not say a word.—Judge.

WOMAN WEDDED IN SECRET TO HER RIDING TEACHER

A romance of but a few months' duration was culminated, so far as courtship goes, in the recent marriage of Miss Varvara I. Pulin, daughter of Prof. Michael I. Pulin, in charge of the department of electro-mechanics at Columbia university, to Hugh Willoughby, her riding instructor.

Miss Pulin, who is a remarkable beautiful Hungarian girl of twenty-one and prominent in exclusive New York society circles, is fond of horseback riding and, a brief time ago, upon coming into possession of a large fortune, went to the stables of a New York firm and picked out several fine saddle horses. Although a graceful and expert rider, she wished some special instruction and the manager of the concern arranged to give her lessons.

A native of Lexington, Ky., in that land of splendid horsemanship, Mr. Willoughby was known as a superb rider. He is of splendid build, possesses the frank and cordial manner of the south and is perfectly "at home" under any and all circumstances. It was almost love at first sight in the case of the Kentuckian and the society girl and it has been an open secret for some time that they have been devoted to each other. Professor Pulin did not approve of the attachment in the least and so, knowing that to ask his consent to their marriage was useless, the couple went from Professor Pulin's summer home at Norfolk, Conn., to Hoboken and were wedded by a justice. They left at once for Springfield, Mass., where a horse show was in progress and will go to Lexington. Mr. Willoughby has resigned his position with the New York firm and will go into business on his own account.

This romantic affair in some of its phases is not unlike the case of Mrs. Burke-Roche and the horseman, Estomy, details of whose marriage and subsequent divorce filled columns of the papers at different intervals not long ago. Friends of Mrs. Willoughby hope that her marriage will lack the stormy features which marked that of Frank Work's unlucky daughter.

For Mourning

CRAPE is an exquisite fabric which we almost wish might be used for other than mourning wear. But it has become so thoroughly established at the head of the list of those fabrics suited to mourning apparel that it will never be displaced. Crape is, in fact, in our civilization the insignia of mourning and is used in gowns and wraps as well as in millinery. Its weave and body make possible very beautiful effects in workmanship and mourning hats rarely are improved by decorations other than those made of crape.

For first mourning, hats of crape or crape and plain silk should be medium in size and carefully made silks are manufactured especially for mourning wear and are used in conjunction with crape in fine effect. Shapes for mourning millinery should be conservative in every way. No extremes of size, no noticeable eccentricities are good form. It is in neat and ingenious work that mourning millinery is pre-eminent.

The four hats shown here are examples of mourning of the highest order of excellence. The round hat, of black grenadine and crape, shows the crappe used as a border or finish with the body of the hat in grenadine. In this and all the other hats the trimming is made up of the fabrics.

A tongue made entirely of crappe has the coronet covered with narrow folds and a large buckle covered in the same way. The crown of the shape is covered with the crappe draped gracefully and apparently fastened to place by the buckle.

A turban shape, made entirely of rounded folds, is trimmed with a pair of wings made in the same way and mounted by means of a buckle of dull jet. The folds are cut in such a way that the rib runs across them on the straight, instead of diagonally.

One should test crappe when buying it, to see that it has been properly waterproofed. Since some manufacturers have so improved this fabric that rain and moisture, or even immersing in water, do not hurt it, it has become one of the most durable of materials. A small piece dipped in a glass of water will not "run" or discolor the water nor be affected by it, if it is of the durable kind and worth having.

SIMPLE DRESS.

This is quite simple and might be made in linen and embroidery, or cashmere and foulard.

The skirt is plain to about the knees, then has a deep band of trimming taken to foot.

The bodice has the upper part of trimming, the material being used for the lower part, which is taken up to neck at center of back and front, where a collar of the same finishes the neck; the cuffs and sleeve bands are also of this.

Hat of soft silk or tulle, drawn up with a ribbon.

Materials required: 2 yards 44 inches wide, 3/4 yards trimming, 60 inches wide.

LAWN AND MUSLIN FROCKS

Some Suggestions Regarding the Making of These Light, Airy Summer Dresses.

Ready-made lawn and muslin frocks sell from three dollars up. With home making it must be remembered that a soft material is needed for the tucking at the top of the skirt so as not to be bunglesome.

A neat all the little inexpensive wash textures that might be used for frocks, a word regarding the doctoring of black and white with color is in order. The shops are using edges of plain red or blue or green lawn, together with a line of plain black, on black and white wash frocks of all sorts, so, of course, the unmade materials are provided for private making. With a little coarse lace for the yoke and undersleeve edges, these lawn bands put on the bottom of the skirt and in some manner on the bodice transform a cheap goods into something that seems expensive. So treat the lawns in this manner, and at the same time try and keep the frock as long as possible without washing. For although accoutred tub colors, there are many summer dyes that respond with bad grace to soap and water.

Fall Lines of Children's Coats.

Buyers are well pleased with the fall lines of children's coats. The new materials brought out this season are so rich in themselves that it requires very little trimming to make the garments attractive, says the Dry Goods Economist. Rich Scotch mixtures, fancy chevrons and double-faced materials are among the season's novelties which promise to meet with great success. In the double-face fabrics the reverse side is frequently used for the trimming, and is either in a plaid or striped effect or in a contrasting color.

A Houseplant Item.

Houseplants of any kind that seem to need more life and energy will thrive by submitting it to a course of ammonia water applications, that is, the soil. Ammonia when diluted in the proportions that one makes it to wash windows is a fertilizer. Soap water is quite as good and a combination of soapy water and ammonia is still better. Give the poor houseplants a drink that is also food to them when you are about to throw into drain a material which they actually require to appear at their best.

To Freshen Suede Shoes.

It is a good plan to include a piece of emery paper in the household shoe cleaning outfit. When the suede shoes have been wet and the nap has become matted down a gentle rubbing with the emery paper will raise it and restore the velvetlike softness of the nap.

HERMIT AND ARTIST IN WEIRD WEDDING

DYNAMITE BLASTS AND INCENSE OF BURNED CEDAR BERRIES USED IN CEREMONY.

CUT OUT "HONOR AND OBEY"

John Otto and Miss Farnham Made One Before Rock-Hewn Altar on Ledge 100 Feet High—Devise Second Ceremony.

Grand Junction, Colo.—With weird and picturesque ceremony, preceded by a wedding banquet, cooked and served by the bride, and followed by a series of dynamite salutes to his bride and the American flag, Miss Beatrice Farnham, the Boston artist and sculptress, was married to John Otto, the trail builder, in the mountain fastnesses of Monument canon.

Out of deference to the minister, the plans for marriage on top of independence rock were abandoned, and the ceremony was performed on Grand ledge, 100 feet high. The Rev. F. A. Hatch, Congregational minister at Fruita, officiated and there were half a dozen invited guests.

The bride and bridegroom stood before an altar which they had fashioned from quartz and granite, under an arch of evergreen. In the rock the bride had carved the words "Truth, Honor, Love and Justice."

The usual ring service was used, but the clergyman omitted the words "honor and obey" from his questions to Miss Farnham, because of Otto's declaration that he did not believe in that part of the ceremony.

"What is the use of making women promise to honor and obey," he said, "when they don't have any intention of doing it. Half of the marriages performed simply force the woman to

He and I don't want my wife to make any promises she can't keep, for only so long as love lasts can marriage endure."

The marriage was solemnized by a double ceremony. To comply with the laws of the country, Otto secured a marriage license and was duly wedded by Rev. F. A. Hatch. The legal ceremony, to the mind of Otto, a professed atheist, and Miss Farnham, a free thinker, was not sufficient to "bind them in the holy bonds of wedlock," hence following the words which made them man and wife in the eyes of the law and the public at large, they climbed to the top of independence monument, 550 feet high, by a fragile ladder of iron spikes, and went through a fantastic ceremony of their own. They were alone on the top of the pinnacle and to the few spectators on the ground their actions could not be plainly seen.

It had been their plan from the first to have both ceremonies performed on the top of the monument, but no minister or justice of the peace could be secured in any part of Mesa county who would risk his life in this task for love or money.

Following the ceremony Otto burned incense to his wife in the form of cedar berries, which he sprinkled on the camp fire. Then the bride and groom together planted a young spruce tree, which they designated as their witness tree, and declared would grow as long as their love lasted.

Fought for Chum's Life.

Shenandoah, Pa.—While a number of boys were swimming in a Locust mountain reservoir, Anthony Mercavage, 14 years old, took a cramp and was sinking for the second time when John Scheffer, aged 19, went to the lad's assistance and saved him from a watery grave at great peril. He had to fight the drowning boy off until he got him by the hair, and then hauled him to safety.

Wed on a Hospital Cot.

Lancaster, Pa.—By permission of her physician, Miss Mary Klingman of Jacksonville sat up in her hospital cot for an hour to be married to the Rev. Border Levi Stanley of Shenandoah Junction. She came here to attend the ordination of her affianced husband but was taken ill and sent to the hospital.

Essentially American.

American civilization does not give off an artistic atmosphere, but America somehow does produce artists, who are Americans and retain their Americanism even in their art.

The death of Mr. Abbey calls attention to the recognition and distinction that he won. True he was rather more a great illustrator than a great painter; but at that he was a man of European fame, one of the figures of London.

Yet he retained his American individuality unimpaired. He painted Edward and Alexandra's Coronation but declined to paint that of George and Mary, because he had found intolerable the unpopularity and vanity of the peereesses who had sat to him and must the second time have sat.

There is an ostentations, free and unimpressed American who justifies his pilgrimage through Europe, and constitutes an unlovely sight. But the individualism which is unaffected, which marks the born American in Europe, which cannot but perceive that a king is a man, a Duchess a woman, just as is John Rockefeller or Mr. Astor or anybody else at home, is the essence of Americanism. It is its finest attribute, in fact, and it was preserved in Abbey, as it was in Whistler, as it is in John Sargent, painter of great ladies and great magnates.

SUGAR BEETS LOOKING GOOD

Menominee, Mich., August 7.—Sugar beets throughout the upper peninsula and the northern part of Wisconsin are in excellent condition and there is every reason to believe that the crop this year will be larger than ever before.

"I drove to Escanaba and back last week in an automobile and along the road I saw a great many fields of beets, but I didn't see a single field of poor beets," said Mr. McCormick. "I have never seen as good an average crop of beets at this time of the year in all my experience."

Phillip Noll, a farmer of Marinette county, was in the office at the time and he stated his crop is looking fine. "Sugar beets are about the only crop a man can rely wholly upon," said Mr. Noll, "and I for one am going to increase my acreage for next year to double what I have this. Some of my neighbors are going to do the same thing."

Mr. McCormick holds this as an illustration of the dependence that can be placed on the sugar beets in this territory. As it happens, the territory from which Mr. Noll comes was the hardest in the entire district for the company to work. It was at first hardly possible to get the farmers to raise beets. Now, however, they are beginning to raise them of their own accord.

The Menominee River Sugar company has contracted this year for the largest acreage of sugar beets in its history. More than 16,000 acres have been planted and as soon as the harvesting season comes, they will be hauled to the local plant and made into sugar.

While the acreage this year is large, it is expected that it will be still larger next year. This is especially true throughout that district north of the Menominee river, where Mr. McCormick understands that the acreage will be increased at least 100 per cent.

"The fact is, from the outlook at the present time, we will be asked to contract for more acreage than we can take care of," said Mr. McCormick. "We have already ordered seed sufficient for 14,000 acres in view of the outlook, and 14,000 acres will tax the capacity of the factory."

A number of changes are being made in the plant to take care of the increased acreage this year. Cuts and bruises may be healed in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. It is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation. This liniment also relieves soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains. For sale by Grocers' Drug Store and Farrell & Lohmiller.

BOSTON MARKETS

The market opened with a slight advance in prices this morning, but all bids were quickly filled and the whole list commenced to sag during the middle of the session. It was very dull and short covering caused a fractional rally at the close of business in the local coppers was practically at a standstill with certain of the stocks at good demand, notably North Butte around 21, Lake around 33 and Hancock around 34.

NEW YORK MARKETS

Although the forenoon trading was accompanied by distinct irregularity and a continuation of the pressure which has been noted during the past few sessions still a fair degree of firmness was in evidence in the afternoon and in the last half hour prices advanced sharply principally on short covering quite a few weak accounts were eliminated and the depression and the falling in the street was somewhat more cheerful. We would not be at all surprised should the recovery extend somewhat further, but believe offerings on the upturn will be quite heavy.

DICTOGRAPH AS A DETECTIVE

Recently Invented Instrument Plays an Important Part in the Ohio Bribery Trial.

Columbus, O.—In the trial of Rodney J. Diegle, sergeant-at-arms of the Ohio state senate, convicted of aiding and abetting the alleged bribing of a state senator, the state relied on a mechanical device, the dictograph, a highly sensitized telephone, for its strongest evidence.

The dictograph transmitter was sequestered in a detective's room in a hotel and a court stenographer in another room, reported the conversation in which it was alleged bribes were offered and accepted. For the first time in the history of detective work this curious machine was used.

A dictograph consists of a series of sensitive metal plates set in a hard rubber cylinder. In its elements it is a telephone transmitter magnified. Used in a business way it enables a man to sit at his desk in his private office alone and talk off his correspondence without the stenographer being present.

The detectives got some of the suspected men, separately and together, in a hotel room, a dictograph was under the sofa. A court reporter was at the other end. Word for word his nimble fingers recorded every word that was uttered. None but he and the detectives knew.

Nothing escaped the transmitter—not even the opening or closing of the door—and the stenographer transcribed everything which the little instrument reported to him. This report was admitted as evidence by the judge who presided at the trial. The inventor of the instrument is K. M. Turner.

In order to entrap the legislators who were suspected of receiving bribes, Detective Smiley acted as briber on the occasion when the dictograph was used and he and O. O. Walcott, the stenographer, were principal witnesses for the prosecution. The defense objected strenuously to Walcott's evidence being admitted, but the court ruled that it was corroborative of the direct evidence and was admissible.

Seemed to Give Him a New Stomach. "I suffered intensely after eating and no medicine or treatment I tried seemed to do any good," writes H. M. Youngpeters, editor of The Sun, Lake View, Ohio. "The first few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gave me surprise and relief and the second bottle seemed to give me a new stomach and perfectly good health." ### WOMAN'S STORY SHOCKS JUDGE AND AUDIENCE

Liberty, Mo., Aug. 7.—A tale of almost incredible cruelty was related in the court room of a justice of the peace here today, and as a result Lafayette Choat, a farmer, was held to appear before the grand jury on a charge of feloniously beating his wife whom he tied to a team of mules with which he was harrowing a large field.

The judge and a large audience heard the woman say that her husband had knocked her down, tied her hands behind her and forced her to walk with his mules while he harrowed six times around a large field.

Choat is thirty-one years old. His wife is twenty-eight. Although he can neither read nor write, he acted as his own attorney. Two small children of the couple played in the court room while the hearing was in progress.

Mrs. Choat testified that after her husband untied her from the mules so he could unhitch them, he tied her to a post.

"Then he took me to the house and slapped me," she added.

The woman said that when she was tied to the mules he husband frequently prodded her with a stick.

In cross-examining his wife, Choat asked:

"So you say to these people that I took you to the field and whipped you like a dog."

"Yes," she answered, "you whipped me worse than you would whip a dog."

"According to that I must be a bad man."

"You are. You have threatened to kill me with shotguns, razors and everything you could get your hands on. You choked me nearly to death a month before this child was born."

Choat then took the stand. He said he was working in the field when he saw his wife and two children going down the road with a man. He said he went to the road and the man laughed.

"My wife said she was going to the man. I told her she would not. She said she would. I hit her twice. I made her go to the field with me. I took a rope and tied it to her waist behind her and led her with me over the field as I harrowed. When I was through I tied her to a post and when the mules were unhitched I led her home and took the rope off."

THE COUNTY IN NEW DISTRICT

The passage of the apportionment bill through congress is of considerable local interest, as it foreshadows Delta county becoming a part of a congressional district when the legislature completes the task of redistricting the state to provide for thirteen instead of twelve members of the lower house from Michigan.

The present Twelfth district, according to the census of 1910, has a population of 325,000, which is in excess of the average population of the new districts, the new basis of apportionment in Michigan being 216,167.

The counties in the western end of the upper peninsula, including Ontonagon, Houghton, Keweenaw, Gogebic, Iron, Baraga, Marquette and Dickinson counties, have a total population of 215,791. As these counties are naturally grouped geographically and are devoted principally to the mining industry, they will naturally form a district by themselves.

This would leave Menominee, Delta, Alger, Luce, Schoolcraft, Mackinaw and Chippewa counties as the nucleus of a new district to be completed by adding a sufficient number of the counties in the northern end of the lower peninsula to bring the district up to the required total of 216,000.

The passage of the apportionment bill through congress also increases probability of a social session of legislature in order to redistrict the state prior to the congressional elections of 1912.

HERO BRACELET BESTOWED UPON MRS. LEPINSKY

Marinette, Wis., Aug. 7.—Mrs. Fred Lepinsky, wife of the store manager for the Peninsula Box and Lumber company of Menominee at Ellis Junction, has been presented with a properly inscribed hero bracelet for services rendered in the wreck of a St. Paul passenger train the evening of June 23, at the Dright mill switch near the city.

The presentation was made by a committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Local No. 297 of Green Bay, of which the engineer who was operating the locomotive of the wrecked train is a member. Mrs. Lepinsky is visiting in Chicago at the present time and bracelet was sent to her by mail.

Mrs. Lepinsky is a trained nurse. She was a passenger on the train, which had been deliberately wrecked, with her baby. Instead of becoming hysterical after the wreck Mrs. Lepinsky turned her experience as a nurse to good account in caring for Ferdinand Mas, the Menominee fireman, who was very badly injured. Physicians were hurriedly summoned, but Mas has since recovered sufficiently to be able to go to his home in Menominee.

The bracelet is inscribed with Mrs. Lepinsky's name and the words, "In recognition of heroic services," and is signed B. of L. E. The owner is undoubtedly very proud of the gift, and will treasure it as long as she lives. Mr. Lepinsky also greatly appreciates the thoughtful act on the part of the trainmen.

DYING GIRL IS TO WED BAT NELSON SAYS "HE'S BACK"

Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 7.—A wedding, during the progress of which the bride will be rapidly sinking to her death, is expected momentarily in Kokomo.

A physician constantly watches beside the bedside of Louise Herron, while in an adjoining room waits Lawrence Marks, her school boy sweetheart, who was objected to by her father and mother.

When the Herron child's parents told her young Marks must cease his attentions to her, they withheld their consent to the marriage, the girl crept from the house and taking a small rifle, fired a bullet into her body above the heart. A note written to Marks explained that she would rather die than be separated from him.

The girl's parents were grief stricken today and summoned Marks, declaring that if the physician at Louis's bedside announced that she was dying the marriage ceremony would be performed before life was extinct.

KILLED CHUM WITH A GUN

Sturgis, Mich., Aug. 7.—Freda Lueders, a 16-year-old girl, is dead as the result of the careless handling of a revolver by her friend Theresa McCarty. The latter was visiting Freda's sister, Erna, at the home of John Emaley and while in Erna's sleeping room discovered a revolver in the dresser drawer. Picking it up she pointed the weapon at Erna and said: "Look out, I'm going to shoot."

Erna dodged down at the words just as the weapon was discharged and the bullet went through a window of the room and struck Freda, who was passing at the time, entering her brain just above the temple. The girl died within half an hour. Her parents, three sisters and three brothers survive.

PATIENT CURED OF INSANITY BY SHOCK OF COLLISION

Newark, N. J., Aug. 7.—On the testimony of expert alienists that Frank Teeling, a patient in the insane hospital at Overbrook, had been cured of insanity by the shock of a collision between an automobile and a prison van in which he was being transferred, the court of special sessions here has ordered Teeling's release from custody.

Teeling developed symptoms of violent insanity while in jail on a drunkenness sentence and was ordered removed to the asylum. While he was being transported the prison wagon was run into by an automobile. After the collision Teeling appeared perfectly sane. Alienists declared that the physical and psychic shock cleared his brain. They believe further that Teeling will now be strong minded enough to resist the temptation to over-indulge in alcoholic drinks.

PLAYING DETECTIVE

By CLAUDINE SISSON

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Miss Cleo Gates was visiting her sister, Mrs. George Marshall. Mr. Marshall was general manager of the department store of Moses & Wainright. Therefore, Miss Cleo heard much shop talk. About the only thing that interested her, however, was the talk about shoplifters. The store was constantly troubled with them, and it was only at long intervals that one was caught, although a store detective was supposed to have her eyes everywhere.

One night when the manager came home to say that goods worth $300 had been lifted that day from under the nose of the store watchdog, who was a young woman of 25, and that she would be discharged at the end of the week, Miss Cleo announced, in a very serious tone:

"I am a natural born detective." A laugh greeted the words. "I have solved several difficult cases."

More laughing. "A year ago when this diamond ring was suddenly missing, father and mother said it was a case that would never be solved. After devoting one day to thought I walked into the kitchen and told the cook she was the thief. She broke down at once."

"That is she confessed," said Mr. Marshall.

"No, she did not confess. She turned red and white and burst into tears, and within an hour she skipped out."

"And the ring?" "I found it on the shelf over my lavatory. She, of course, had placed it there on finding that she was suspected. Father said the police couldn't have worked the case better."

"Keenest, brightest thing I ever heard of!" replied the manager. "If

Picked Up One After Another.

We only had you in the store we could fill a police station with shoplifters inside of a week."

The natural born detective felt hurt at the words and would say no more, although invited to relate some of her other cases. Her mind had instantly been made up to a certain thing, however, and next day she proceeded to carry her plan into execution. With no hint to her sister, who would oppose it, she made her way to the store of Moses & Wainright. She wanted to get an eye on the afternoon shoppers. She had a feeling that she could tell a shoplifter on sight. The criminal might be a well dressed woman with diamonds in her ears, and she might pretend to be at ease, but there would be a furtive look, a something in look or walk to give her away.

Miss Cleo passed from counter to counter, looking for guilty parties. She spotted and followed two or three about, but they seemed to receive a mysterious warning and kept heads off. There was one old dame who might have pocketed three yards of lace if she hadn't looked up and caught the girl's eye on her. Miss Cleo finally retired from the store with the feeling that if she had caught no arrest she had at least frightened a number of shoppers into being honest. At dinner that evening, she didn't feel so self-satisfied, however. Mr. Marshall reported that never had the shoplifters been so busy. There had been no less than seven cases right under the noses of the brightest salesgirls.

Should that report discourage a natural born detective? Not in the slightest. It should stimulate her to greater exertions. That's what it did in Miss Cleo Gates's case. She had been put on her mettle, and she would astonish her brother-in-law and others. Very few good looking young women who have set out to astonish folks have made a failure of it. It was back to the store the next afternoon for Miss Cleo. A bright thought struck her as she crossed the threshold. From all she had read and heard the shoplifting business was confined to her sex. The store detective had her eye on the women. Why not watch the men?

Miss Cleo saw a young man sauntering about. She first noticed that he was well dressed and had a fair face; then she saw he was looking about in what she considered a furtive way. Then he walked up to the jewelry show case and drummed on the glass. Then he went over to the perfumery counter and asked the price of a bottle of cologne. Thence he walked to the door and looked up and down, as if to see whether there was a policeman about or not. Being satisfied on this point, he walked back to the book counter, picked up one book after another, and finally walked off with one in his hand as bold as brass. It was a valuable book.

Miss Cleo should have stepped forward at this moment and laid her heavy hand on the shoplifter and made an arrest but her heart failed her. He would deny and resist. She would let him go and trail him and then report to her brother-in-law. She hadn't far to trail. With a quick glance up and down the street, the young man crossed. At the entrance to a stairway he paused a moment to look back, and then climbed the stairs. The girl had the criminal run to earth. She re-entered the store, was taken up to the manager's office, and astonished him with announcing:

"George, I have been doing detective work downstairs unbeknown to you or Sarah, and I have caught a shoplifter. He may be the head of the gang."

"You don't tell me! Where is he?" "Right across the road and up stairs. He can be arrested in five minutes."

"You'll have to come along and point him out."

"Oh, I'll do that."

At the store doors they picked up a detective. When the trio had crossed the street and the stairway had been pointed out, Mr. Marshall said to the girl:

"There are a dozen offices up there, and a studio or two, and we mustn't bungle this case. Sure you can identify your man again?"

"In an instant."

"I can't believe that any of these people are shoplifters. We'll look on Paul first and ask him what he thinks. Right in here."

They entered a studio. At a desk sat a young man with an open book before him. There were paintings on easels and paintings on the walls.

"Hello, George!" from the young man to Mr. Marshall.

"Hello, Paul."

"That is the man and there is the book!" exclaimed the natural born detective as she stood erect and pointed an accusing finger.

Ten seconds of intense silence, and then they broke into laughter.

"What—what does this mean?" demanded Miss Cleo.

"Mr. Paul Wainwright, this is my wife's sister, Miss Cleo Gates, in town on a visit. Mr. Wainwright is the son of his father, who is the Wainwright of our firm."

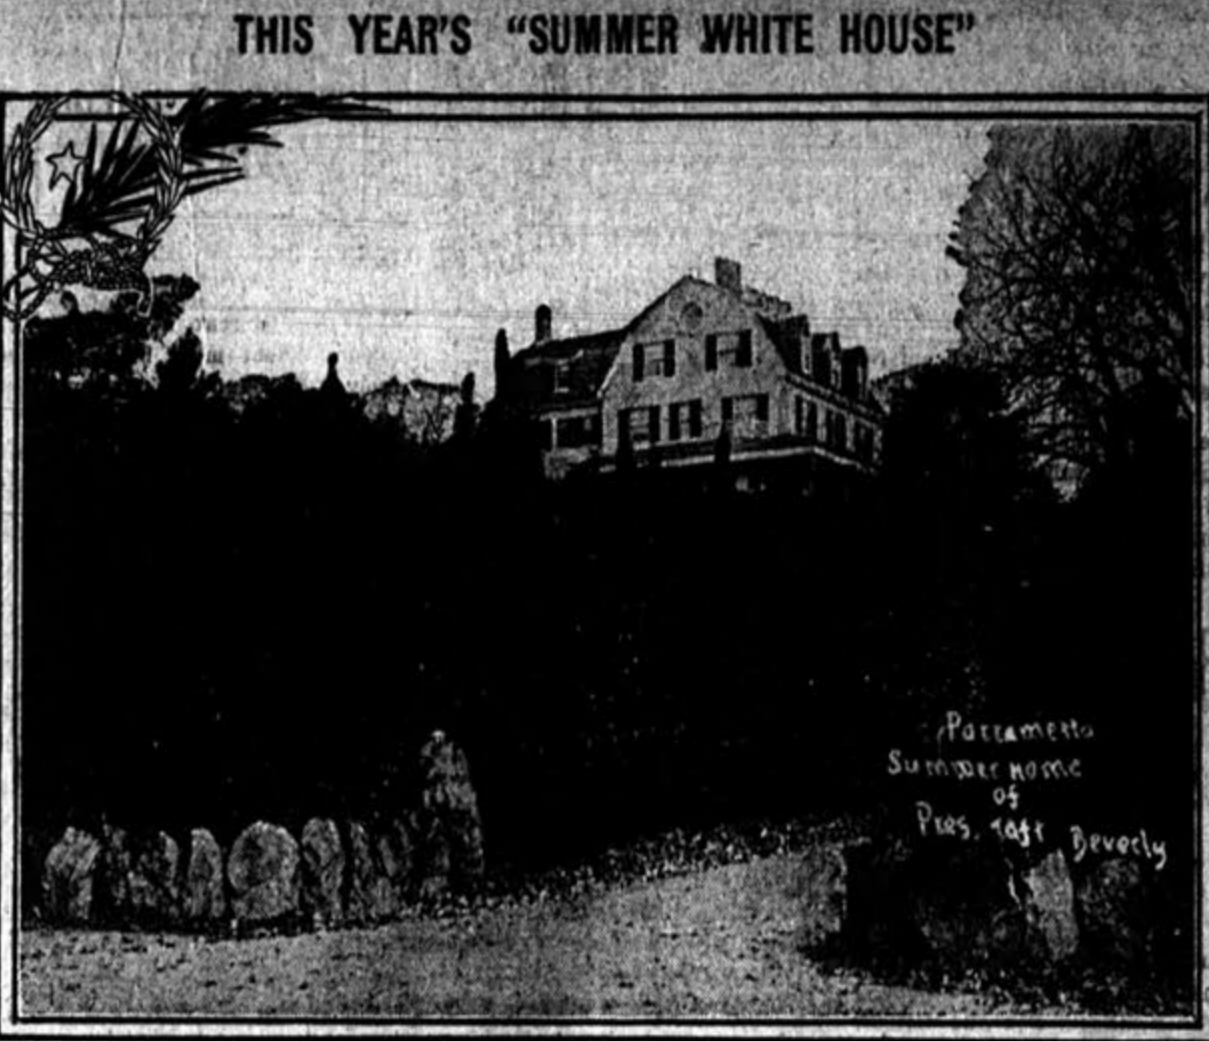

It took five long minutes to make it clear that Mr. Paul Wainwright had borrowed instead of shoplifted, and that there was nothing coming to him in the way of punishment, and there were apologies and "don't mention it" and somehow Mr. Paul got the idea that he must call on the young lady and talk the case over. He is calling yet.

Something About Dreams. Dreams are due to an increase of sensation and circulation over that which exists in profound sleep. Observations made upon patients with cranial defects show that when we are dreaming the brain is greater in volume than in deep sleep, and less than when we are awake. Thus this intermediate volume of blood would indicate that dreams are an intermediate stage between unconsciousness and wakefulness, and their incomplete and irregular intelligences would indicate the same thing. This increased circulation is usually due to sensory stimulation affecting the vasomotor center and causing a return of blood to the head, with resultant increased consciousness. Contrary to popular belief, dreams in themselves do not contribute to light or broken sleep in which they are present. Such a condition is due to the ever-present stimulus which, according to their strength or the degree of irritability of the cells, maintain even in sleep a varying degree of consciousness of which the dreams are merely a manifestation. Therefore the fatiguing effect often as so attributed to dreams is not due to them, but to the lighter degree of sleep and less complete cell-restoration which they accompany, and which are due to some irritation.—Fred W. Eastman, in the Atlantic.

Well Applied. William Dean Howells, the noted novelist, was talking at the Authors' club in New York about a charge of plagiarism that had been brought against Mark Twain.

"A big man like Twain stealing from a little man like Blank!" said Mr. Howells. "This, surely, is a case for applying the old Hindoo proverb: 'The plagiarist'."

The ass heard the lion roar, and cried:

BEVERLY, MASS.—President Taft's family already is settled in "Parrametta," which is the summer seat of government for this season, and Mr. Taft himself will be here as soon as national affairs permit him to abandon Washington. He came with the family, but could stay only two days. Mrs. Taft's health already is benefiting by the change, and the children are enjoying themselves immensely.

DONS WIFE'S SKIRT

Young Soldier Tires at Being Removed From Bride.

Disguises Himself in Female Garments and Successfully Makes His Escape From United States Army Transport.

San Francisco.—Here's a romance of the army transport service in which there are neither swords nor shoulder straps. It is a strictly proper story in spite of the fact that at the critical point the hero takes refuge in the heroine's skirts, during the absence, of course, of the heroine.

On the records of the transport Sheridan, which arrived here the other day from Manila, the hero is described as "C. R. Talerio, discharged soldier." After each name is this note: "Left ship at Nagasaki."

The Talerios were married in Manila just before the man received his discharge from the army.

They applied for transportation home on the Sheridan, and the best that an unromantic Uncle Sam could do for them was to provide Mrs. Talerio with cabin accommodation and her husband with a bunk in the steerage. Although out of the army, he was still an enlisted man for the purpose of transportation, and as such was barred from accommodation anywhere but on the troop deck.

Now, a honeymoon cruise is not much fun where the billing and cooing have to be done in accents loud enough to reach from the troop deck to the promenade deck, and in full view of an observing regiment of cavalry. By the time the Sheridan reached Nagasaki the Talerios came to the conclusion that honeymooning under such conditions were what Sherman said war was and they decided to leave the ship and go home by liner.

They were confronted, however, by another military bar to happiness. Although Mrs. Talerio, as a cabin passenger, was at liberty to go ashore, this privilege was denied the enlisted men, with whom her husband was classed, and armed sentries were posted at strategic points to see that the soldiers stayed on board.

Now comes the skirt act. In the confusion of arrivals at the Japanese port Talerio managed to make his way unnoticed to his wife's stateroom. When he came out his legs were draped in his wife's best skirt, his wife's cloak was around his shoulders and on his head a big picture hat formed a screen from which fell the heavy veil that hid his face. Out on deck he tripped and down the gangway to a waiting sampan. One of the sentries assisted him into the sampan and when Mrs. Talerio went down the ladder behind her disguised husband she heard the sentry remark, as he pointed to the figure in the picture hat:

"She has a hand like a ham."

The Talerios went to the best hotel in Nagasaki and engaged the bridal suite on the Japanese liner Nippon Maru.

42 inches Tall, Weighs 58.

Knockville, Tenn.—Joseph A. Carter, smallest adult in Tennessee, is dead at his home in Jefferson county. He was 73 years old, 42 inches tall and weighed 58 pounds. He served as registrar of Jefferson county eighteen consecutive years. He was a college graduate, bachelor and school teacher.

Man 8 Feet, 1 Inch Tall. Bridgeport, Conn.—The tallest citizen ever naturalized in New England has obtained his final papers. He is Capt. George Auger, 8 feet 1 inch tall, a native of Cardiff, Wales, and formerly London policeman. He has a farm near Fairfield, Conn.

CAPTURE TWO VICIOUS BIRDS

Two Immense Seafowl Caught After Struggle by California Fisherman—Made Fierce Fight.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Two vicious sea birds of immense size, entirely unknown to naturalists of this section, were caught off the pier at Long Beach, and will be carefully kept until possible identification can be made.

Chicagoans Commend Greeley, Colo. Farm to Raise Pest Destroyers—Idea Is Good One.

Chicago.—Chicago is interested in a new fly ridding device. The new scheme which has for its basis the utilization of the insatiable appetite of frogs and toads for the swarming summer pests originated in Greeley, Colo. It is there, according to a dispatch, that a man has a toad farm which is absolutely "flyless."

"Hundreds of toads and frogs on this unique farm," says the dispatch, "keep the place free from flies."

"Frogs and toads, I have found," Keeper Cy De Vry of the Lincoln park zoo said, "are the great fly eaters in the world. If Chicago had enough of them the flies would soon disappear. We have one big frog out here called Jumbo. He is from Florida and we feed him nothing but flies. We can't give him enough, and I am thinking of turning him out and maybe he'll rid the park of flies attracted by the other animals."

F. J. Burns, 340 West South Water street, who handles hundreds of frogs for live fishing bait, felt sure the idea would be a good one here.

"We have few toads here, but hundreds of frogs," he said, "and to watch them devour flies is a marvel. My little boy started to count how many disappeared in the mouths of a healthy collection of the animals one day and at last became bewildered in his mathematics. They will eat all they can get near. We have very few flies bothering us here."

THIS COUNTRY IS SUPERIOR

Cincinnati Capitalist Declares War Excellent in Every Essential Respect—Makes Comparison.

Baltimore, Md.—"If any man doubts that this country is not superior in every essential respect to all other lands, let him go abroad and make comparisons," said Mr. Frank L. Fern, a well-known Cincinnati capitalist, while in the city the other day. "Such an experience will prove of benefit, for it will open the eyes of the most confirmed American pessimist to the advantages of Yankee-land. If nothing else will do it, the experience on French and Italian railroads, where they charge you five cents a mile for inferior transportation facilities, will make one think of the infinitely swifter, cheaper and more comfortable trains of the United States."

"While I do not sympathize with some of the tendencies of the present day, I still maintain that we are far in advance of the nations of Europe and that to be born in Uncle Sam's country and to remain under his flag is the happiest human destiny."

Cafe Seats 20,000 Diners.

Berlin.—The new Zoological Garden restaurant, the world's greatest eating house, has been opened in Berlin in the presence of representatives of the government, the municipality, and a distinguished assembly of leading Berliners.

Ten thousand persons can sit down simultaneously beneath a roof. Open-air terraces for use in summer will accommodate 10,000 diners. Twenty thousand will be able to take a meal at the same time. There are 1,000 waiters, and the kitchen staff exceeds 500. The restaurant has its own laundry and owa bakery.

Balloon Drops Amid Fish.

Berlin.—A dangerous but successful balloon landing is reported from Altona, where the aeronaut, Wilson, fearing that his balloon would be driven by an adverse wind into the River Elbe, which is very broad at Altona, elected to come down in the middle of the city. He pulled the ripcord when the balloon was above the city market, coming down successfully and safely amid the fish dealers in the uncovered square.

Tree Cuts House in Two.

Bridgeport, Conn.—While the family of William Crates were about to retire the other night they were startled by a sudden, deafening crash as a massive tree fell from an adjoining yard and smashed through the roof. The tree cut the house in two, making a clean path through the garage and two bedrooms. The huge trunk can not be removed without practically tearing the house down.

Girl Walks in Her Sleep

Young Woman Anxious Over Result of Brother's Examination Wakes Up at Home of Teacher.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Imbued with the spirit of the evening when the probable results of the school examinations were the burden of expectant anxiety throughout Pittsburg, Miss Fronia Jennings, aged nineteen, daughter of E. C. Jennings of 329 Sycamore street, business manager of the South Hills News, carried her impressions through dreamland and woke up the other morning in a neighbor's house after a perilous sleep walk.

Miss Jennings had taken much interest in the fortunes of her brother Paul, aged thirteen, a pupil at the Mount Washington school, who betrayed much unrest the other evening because of the uncertainty of passing his "exam" for high school promotion. The family had discussed the subject freely during the evening and retired to await the news of the morning. But their slumbers were disturbed shortly after midnight by a message from the home of Miss Grace Hawk of 48 Natchez street, who is teacher in the Mount Washington school, saying Miss Jennings had reached there and had been carefully put to bed.

Miss Jennings had arrived at the Hawk home about 1 a. m., still traveling in slumberland, clad only in her night robe. Her first inquiry at the Hawk home was: "Did Paul pass?"

Miss Jennings' journey was not altogether roseate. She traveled about eight squares in her bare feet over a rugged path, twice crossing the tracks of the Mount Washington Tunnel car line, but says she feels no ill effects and was happy in the knowledge that "Paul passed."

Cafe Seats 20,000 Diners.

Berlin.—The new Zoological Garden restaurant, the world's greatest eating house, has been opened in Berlin in the presence of representatives of the government, the municipality, and a distinguished assembly of leading Berliners.

Ten thousand persons can sit down simultaneously beneath a roof. Open-air terraces for use in summer will accommodate 10,000 diners. Twenty thousand will be able to take a meal at the same time. There are 1,000 waiters, and the kitchen staff exceeds 500. The restaurant has its own laundry and owa bakery.

Balloon Drops Amid Fish.

Berlin.—A dangerous but successful balloon landing is reported from Altona, where the aeronaut, Wilson, fearing that his balloon would be driven by an adverse wind into the River Elbe, which is very broad at Altona, elected to come down in the middle of the city. He pulled the ripcord when the balloon was above the city market, coming down successfully and safely amid the fish dealers in the uncovered square.

<h3>Athletic Contests</h3>	<h3>Number of Games Should be Reduced All Around</h3>
By PAUL C. PHILLIPS, M. D.

BELIEVE thoroughly in intercollegiate sport, but, in general, viewing the number of athletic contests occurring between colleges throughout the country, I should say unhesitatingly to this question. The tendency of the last twenty years has been toward the increase of intercollegiate contests in each sport, and the addition of new sports, until the number has passed the normal for an institution of higher learning. Schedules of over 25 games in term time in any branch of intercollegiate athletics certainly transcend the laws of proportion in college life. The general public recognizes that.

Any reduction in schedules concerns the scholarship, the physical condition and the ideals of the men on teams and the ideals and finances of the student body. All these factors should be given due weight, therefore, in determining their length.

Of these scholarship, of course, stands paramount, but the views of athlete, manager, trainer and coach should receive due consideration and if possible a harmonious result obtained.

For training and coaching a team a certain number of contests are necessary. Sufficient financial returns come only from a number of games. The interest of the student body in the sport is maintained only by a modicum of exhibitions.

The ideal number of contests in each sport may be considerably less than that at present engaged in, but the reduction should not be made so suddenly as to lose the support of all concerned. History may be made too fast and have to be unmade. For instance, one may consider one game of baseball a week or ten in a season, the ideal for a college, but a reduction from twenty to eighteen the first year may be all that it would be wise to make. Schedules, however, should never be so long or require so many absences as to make special legislation on the part of the faculty for athletics necessary. This militates against the democracy of the college.

The "delayed varsity season" plan suggested by Mr. Derby, a former Harvard varsity football player, in the Outlook last fall has much to commend it, especially its fostering of widespread collegiate sport. It consists in allowing only about four weeks for the varsity season in each sport previous to which there shall be as many teams as possible—interclass, interfraternity and what not—in which the athletic material shall get conditioned physically, learn the game and be tried out for the varsity squad. Intra-collegiate games having concluded, an end-of-the-season varsity series concludes the schedule.

Pellagra is not hereditary. Pellagra is not contagious. Strong evidence points to the "sand fly" as the agent responsible for the transmission of pellagra to human subjects in Italy.

These statements are extracts from the reports of Dr. Sambon, who was sent by the pellagra investigation committee to Italy to investigate the pellagra situation there. There are more than twenty hospitals for the exclusive care of victims of pellagra in Italy, and Dr. Sambon carried his exhaustive studies into the provinces of Perugia, Rome, Padova, Milan, Brescia and Bergamo. He reports that the disease is endemic rather than epidemic, and that the centers of infection have remained the same for a century. He found that when a person affected by the disease moved into a non-pellagrous district no spread of pellagra occurred. He observed, however, that wherever pellagra was, there, too, was the sand fly, and that tillers of the soil who were most exposed to this fly were oftenest affected.

The sand fly is a midge, or gnat. Whether we have the same kind of sand fly in this country that Sambon studied in Italy the writer is not prepared to say; but he is informed by a state entomologist that we have with us in the south a small gnat-like insect called the sand fly. Our sand fly, however, seems to be largely restricted to the coast country, not penetrating very far inland, as a rule. The punky of the Adirondacks is one variety of said fly, also.

Dr. Sambon's theory is that the sand fly is the carrier of the parasites of pellagra, whatever they are. The fact that the parasite of pellagra has not been identified does not necessarily count against his theory, because no one now doubts the role of the mosquito as the carrier of yellow fever, despite the fact that the germ of yellow fever has never been discovered. Are we about to add the gnat to the mosquito as the distributor of a great disease?

All true southerners will pray that time may justify the sand fly theory of pellagra transmission and infection; for, like our beloved Joel Chandler Harris, whose tribute to the corn-meal dumpling is so full of charm, we hope long to cherish the hockeak and the pone.

I am glad that some one has a good word to say for the members of the unfortunate class whom custom stigmatizes as "bums." When people get a little virtue their first instinct seems to be to blacken the character of others in order to secure a contrast which can show up their own imaginary white wings. The first man they meet who is penniless or sick falls a victim of their virulent vanity.

No one who has seen life has missed the sight of some cheap braggart, elated with some little success, browbeating and arrogantly overpowering some poor fellow who happens to be less experienced, younger, older or otherwise at a disadvantage.

I, for one, believe that phenomenal success or failure is accidental. While undoubtedly one of average ability and average industry stands an average show of meeting with average success, it does not follow that a needy man deserves his misfortune or that a billionaire is excessively virtuous.

No polite man could sit at a table and devour all the good food in sight while others out of reach of the dishes sat fasting.

The excessively rich need not worry as to whether the extremely poor are or are not deserving and appreciative.

The giver gets his reward whether the recipient profits or not.

Negaunee	13	.722
Escanaba	10	.556
Marquette	8	.444
Ishpeming	5	.278

Negaunee, Mich., Aug. 7.—Negaunee had little difficulty winning its two games with Escanaba, taking Saturday's game by a score of 13 to 9 and Sunday's game by a score of 8 to 1.

The Negaunee stickers Sunday hit Scanlon more freely than he has been touched in any previous game since joining the Sandy City nine, they having secured twelve hits, one of them a three bagger by Raina and another a two base hit by Harley.

Mahoney pitched airtight ball for Negaunee, allowing but seven hits, all scattered, with the exception of two in the third inning, and he received glittering support, only two errors being charged to his teammates, one by Cullis, in the first inning, when he booted Aronson's ground hit, and the other by Swick in the ninth, when he dropped a ball fielded to him by Cullis.

The visitors secured their only run in the ninth inning, the tally being forced in, when Scanlon was walked with the bases full. Relyly was hit by a pitched ball, Connelly singled, advancing Relyly to second. Loell hit a grounder to Cullis, who threw to Swick in an attempt to retire Connelly, the baseman dropping the ball.

Lindquist, who has two home runs to his credit this season and who was unable to play both Saturday and Sunday because of an attack of tonsillitis, was called in to bat in the ninth in place of Lantz with the bases full, but Mahoney fanned him. Scanlon was then walked, forcing Relyly across the plate. Olmsted, who had secured three clean hits out of four times at bat, fanned, and Burke went out, Mahoney to Knutz, this retiring the side with the bases full.

Besides allowing twelve hits, Scanlon walked three men and hit Henderson with a pitched ball. Thompson, Escanaba's first sacker, had three errors, all of them inexcusable, while Olmsted and Loell each had two. The game started with Olmsted at short and Aronson at second. They changed places in the fourth, after Olmsted had booted an easy grounder.

Negaunee's outfielders had very little to do yesterday, Casey in the right field being the only one to have a put out, but Cullis and Swick had work in every inning, the former having seven putouts and three assists, while Swick had five putouts and four assists. The feature of the game was a catch by Henderson of Loell's foul hit near the grandstand in the seventh inning. The ball flew out of the catcher's hands on the first attempt to catch it but he reached it again while running at full speed.

CLOUTED BALL;
WON TWO GAMES

Marquette, Aug. 7.—Marquette made it two straight from Ishpeming Sunday, by clouting a victory off Scott with a total of thirteen hits, for five runs, while Caesar was holding Ishpeming safe the entire distance. The only run scored off Caesar was due to an error and he, as was the case with Dixon Saturday, should have had a shut out. In both games Ishpeming played a good fielding game, solid batting against the opposing pitchers giving Marquette its double barreled victory.

Scott was given one of the worst larrupings he has received this season, the Marquette stickmen getting ten hits in the first three innings. Marquette counted first in the second. Mack started out with a safe bingle, but was thrown out at second when Cy Young failed to connect. Young got a hit on a hard fly that Geelan tried unsuccessfully to handle. He went to second on Day's single and scored when Mooney tried to throw him out on third on an attempt to steal that station. The throw was a high one, and went out to McCrory, who juggled it long enough to let Young get safely home.

In the third, six of the Marquette players fattened their batting averages. Ryan started out with a single, and Riley beat a tidy bunt that he laid down the third base line, advancing Ryan to second. Tiffany connected for a stinging single, scoring Ryan. Riley was thrown out at third by Mooney. Mack placed a fly in Ray's territory and was caught out. Ray returned the ball to nobody in particular in the infield, and nobody in particular handled it and Tiffany who had stolen second, and advanced to third, beat his way home before the ball was recovered. Hynes, who had reached first on a fielder's choice, before Mack was up was scored by Young's single. Two other hits followed, by Day and Riopelle, but they were not productive of runs.

Ishpeming garnered its lone run in the fifth. After striking out Scott, Caesar walked Ray. McCrory hit safely, and Clark lined one to Riley who tossed the ball to Young at second. In his haste to get the ball away for a double, Young dropped it. Ray scored when Geelan hit to Riley, who threw him out at first. Caesar then struck out Flynn, ending the mischief.

In the eighth, hits by Mack and Riopelle added another run to Marquette's count. Caesar confirmed the excellent impression he made with Marquette fans a week ago. He was somewhat wild yesterday, walking four men, but he kept the hits he allowed well scattered and in his only one inning, the sixth did Ishpeming get two bingles off him. Caesar has steam, confidence and curves and promises to be a source of great strength to his team in the remaining games of the league series. The fielding of the team was fast in both games, even with due allowance for the boots.

THEY AINT "HITIN"

Speed? Take a look. They have got it to burn, At fielding they've got 'em all done to a turn. There is nothing comes near them that they cannot stop; They are in front of the bounder and under the pop. When they're out on the field you will say, "There's a team! Well, there's coming to you just another dream"— But the hell of it is they aint hitin.

At pulling the double and squeezing the pinches And cutting off men at the bags it's a cinch. At serving injunction on probable runs— Say—the cheese and the candy, the cake and the buns When they're on the defensive they're up on their pins, They are there with their feet and their needles and fns— But the hell of it is they aint hitin.

The pitching staff? Say! Can you equal it? Yes? Well, these's coming to you just another bad guess They have got all the speed and the curves to be had, They're as stingy as blazes in passing out walks, And at fanning 'em you must give 'em the chalks— But the hell of it is they aint hitin.

Catching? You'll find them right there with the whip When a daring opponent to second would slip; When a speed marvel dashes away rom the base He is out just as plain as the nose on your face. When the peg's to the plate they are there with the mitt, For allders' spikes do they care? Not a bit— But the hell of it is they aint hitin.

CAUSE OF GIRL'S DEATH IS STILL A DEEP MYSTERY

The cause of the death of Miss Anna Fredeen, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Fredeen of Norway, Mich., a station on the W. M. railway, is still a mystery.

The coroner's inquest was held last week, but neither of the two physicians who examined the body could state the cause of death. The girl was found in an alley and apparently had been dead but a few minutes. The only marks on the body were slight skin abrasions on the knees, undoubtedly caused by falling. Both physicians testified death was not due to assault or violence.

The only possible explanation was given by Dr. E. P. Lockart. He said that it is possible for a stroke of lightning to strike so near the heart as not to leave any mark on the body. An electric storm occurred about the time the girl was found, and this is generally accepted as the cause of death.

ENGLISHMAN THINKS FLAG A TOO COMMON SIGHT

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 7.—Prof. J. J. Findley, of the University of Manchester, England, spoke to the summer school students at the university here last night. His subject was "The School and society."

Professor Findley said that he thought the practice of flying the flag over the school houses every day, a custom which is compulsory in some states is not a good one. He declared that if it were only flung to the breeze on special occasions the children would have more reverence for it and a stronger spirit of patriotism would be instilled. He expressed the belief that when it is seen every day the flag becomes so common as to attract no attention and it does not have the proper effect on the young pupils.

UNDERTAKER'S ACT STIRS MESABA TOWN

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 7.—The village of Shisholm, Mesaba range, is greatly stirred over the birth of a twoheaded dady and its gruesome sequel. The child was born on July 31. to Mr. and Mrs. Arosta Najdukovich, Polish people, of Chisholm, and was perfect with the exception that it had two heads. It died a few hours after birth and was buried.

Yesterday it was learned that the body of the infant had been disinterred and was at the establishment of an undertaker, where it was being exhibited. The parents of the child today swore out a warrant against the undertaker for removing a body from a grave without authority.

WISCONSIN MOMESTEADER SOUGHT BY POLICE OFFICERS TAKES REFUGE IN SWAMP.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 7.—A special dispatch to the Sentinel from Marinette, Wis., says that a posse has surrounded John Bell, who is accused of assault and robbery and who after slightly wounding the sheriff and district attorney escaped into a swamp near his homestead west of Marinette. He will be starved into submission, it is believed.

ANTI LOCAL OPTION CHAMPION IS HERE WITH BASEBALL TEAM

Senator Proctor of Indiana, who arrived in the city last night with the Elkhart Blues, was the framer of the bill introduced in the Indiana legislature upon which local option was defeated in a number of Indiana counties. Notable instances of Indiana cities that went wet under the bill after being dry for several years were Goshen and Elkhart where the lines were closely drawn and a particularly stubborn fight made by both sides and with the wets winning by a safe majority in each city.

Savages Use Finger Bowl.

A student of manners and customs informs us that the finger bowl is not an invention of civilized peoples. On the contrary, the finger bowl is indigenous to the South Sea islands, though it does not follow that the western world has copied the east in this respect. The bowl which is passed after a meal in the house on a South Sea island is the half of a coconut shell, which is thrown away after being once used.

And He Will.

There are men who ask for a fairly square chance to do good work, and there are others whose only aim is to make it a "steady thing"—and the boss can take his pick.

The condition of Myrick Mead, who has been ill with typhoid fever at the Cottage hospital, is much improved.

GRINNELL BROS. ARE TO REOPEN MANISTIQUE STORE

Grinnell Brothers will reopen their branch at Manistique and install a full line of pianos, phonographs and player pianos at that place. Of the intention of the company to open a store there, the Manistique Courier-Record says:

Joe Gilbeau of Escanaba, the bustling representative of Grinnell Bros.' music house, arrived in the city early in the week for the purpose of securing a location for a store which his company intends to open here shortly.

Grinnell Brothers' instruments have become very popular with Schoolcraft county citizens and the company has enjoyed a large sale of pianos and other instruments here in the past and no doubt enjoy a continuance of the liberal patronage they have been receiving.

GOVERNOR SAYS ALL THE PEOPLE ARE BEHIND HIM

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 7.—Governor Chase S. Osborn was the guest of honor at the picnic by the C. & H. miners at the C. & H. park today. He arrived in Calumet this morning from Hancock, in time to appear in the parade and immediately following it gave the address of the day at the park.

Governor Osborn was given a great ovation when he appeared on the stand to address the miners and their families and the others present. He was cheered again and again, both when he appeared and when introduced by Chairman of the Day A. E. Petermann. His address was a talk with his auditors on the value of living and working in neighborly love for each other and all the world and of doing the best that is in one to accomplish what is right and good.

Governor Osborn, in his opening remarks at the park, speaking briefly on the great copper mining industry, said "But the children and the men and the women are the greatest assets of the community and of the state and nation. Without them, he said the great mines of this district would be valueless. They create a demand for the production of the mines, they work the mines, they are the men who operate, who finance and who do the humblest labor in the mines, a labor and work for all the world. We must not forget that while the mines themselves are great among the state's assets that the children, men and women are greater."

He spoke in a general way on the fine civilization in which the people of the Christian world live and said that "we must carry to all the world this civilization, for the Christian people are in contest with the people of other civilizations who comprise more than three-quarters of the people of the globe, and more than a billion people know nothing of our fine civilization."

Governor Osborn made a point of the fact that the state is now a united commonwealth and that the old line of rivalry and antagonism between the people of the peninsula has been eradicated "for we understand each other now better than we did before and are all working for a great state, for her good and for the good of the entire nation. "Charity begins at home," he continued, "and we must work first for the good of our community, our state and our nation and then work in loving Christianity for the peace and good of the entire world. The man who does not love and treat his wife well and his baby is not much of a man and the man who does not work for the good of his fellowman and for his community, state and country and for the ever-living God who sent us the lowly Nazarene to set up this beautiful example has something lacking."

The governor also spoke of the agitation for a tonnage tax, saying that it was agitated through the lower peninsula for political purposes but that now there seems to be a general understanding that the imposition of a tonnage tax would have worked an injustice on the mines and industries of the northern peninsula.

The governor stated that he feels that in his endeavor to give the whole state and all the people an honest and fair administration, he has all of the people behind him, "and I want all of you people, I feel that all of you people Republicans, Democrats, Socialists and whatever else you may be are with me in every honest effort to do what is right for the good of our state. I thank you for being with me," he said.

In conclusion the governor stated that he looked for fairness at all times between the employer and the employe and felt that such a state of affairs exists here, "and I want you people to be fair with each other and talk and argue it out like men," he continued. In his closing remarks he dwelt upon the beautiful purpose and object of the annual charity outing of the miners and said he hoped that such affairs would be continued each year.
