NEGAUNEE NOW COMES

ANCIENT BASEBALL ENEMY OF ESCANABA TO BE NEXT VICTIM.

Two of the most interesting baseball games played this season at South park will be those of Saturday and Sunday when the Negaunee team will come here for the regular series. Negaunee now holds the position at the top of the league with a percentage of but eight points in the lead of Escanaba. Escanaba has won one more game than Negaunee but also has lost one more game than the league leaders thus giving Negaunee fractional lead which a meeting between the two warring clans only can best be settled. The Negaunee team will come here on Saturday morning and two of the biggest crowds ever to witness ball games in this city are expected to be present.

Escanaba lost the first game to Ishpeming on Sunday when Scanlon pitched in prime form but lost through errors back of him and had the team played behind the big southpaw in standard form Escanaba would now be seated well at the top of the percentage column. The advantage of Negaunee, after losing two straight games this week and two to Ishpeming the previous week end is infinitesimal and Negaunee's claim to the top position is only by the narrowest margin possible.

HOSTETTER GOES BACK

Thinking that the Marquette Delta County league was but an amateurish aggregation Art Hostetter, former star catcher and supposedly standard twirler of organized baseball lasted quick at Ishpeming on Sunday. He held the box for Escanaba for but half an inning when it was determined that his "deceiving" slants were not deceivers and he was quickly hoisted. In addition Hostetter's estimate of the league was materially boosted. He took transportation to Milwaukee after Sunday's game, saying that he would return when he has achieved form.

NEW BATH HOUSE PROVES POPULAR

Since the opening of the new Municipal bath house on the South shore near the east end of the city park, bathing has become one of the popular pastimes with especially the young people of the city. The bath house although small is up-to-date in every particular. There are seven dressing rooms for men and seven for women and in addition there are two fine shower baths. The water in front of the bathing pier is only about two and one half feet deep so that the youngsters may go off the end in safety. Bathing is a popular pastime and farther where the water gradually deepens to almost any depth desired.

ALPHAS DOWNED BY RAPID RIVER

By the score of 3 to 2 the Alphas baseball team of this city was downed by the classy Rapid River aggregation at Rapid River Sunday afternoon. Nolden was on the mound for the local boys and held the upper bay slingers to 5 hits while Forest who did the twirling for Rapid River was touched up for 6 bingles. Both Minor and Gfavelle who were recently released by the W-I league were in the game for Rapid River. Perow and Raascho were behind the bat for the Alphas and Rapid. According to members of the home team all three of the winning tallies were made on bad errors.

VISITING PASTOR CONDUCTS SERMON

Members of the Congregational church at Wells were given a decided treat Sunday morning when the Rev. William Walker of South Haven conducted the services. He also preached at Gladstone Sunday evening. Mr. Walker has been visiting at Gladstone for the past few days and expects to remain there for about six weeks. During his stay there he will conduct services at the same places every Sunday.

TAKE VOWS TOMORROW

At the Crystal Falls Catholic church tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock Miss Patricia Corcoran, daughter of the late John J. Corcoran of this city will be married to Mr. George J. Neumann of Chicago. Miss Loretta Corcoran of Crystal Falls, will attend the bride as honored maid and Albert Neumann of Chicago, brother of the groom will serve as groomsmen.

An elaborate wedding had been arranged for the couple but owing to the death of the uncle of the bride all plans have been changed and the wedding will be a quiet affair.

The happy couple will leave Crystal Falls tomorrow evening for an extended wedding trip through the east and after which they will make their home in Chicago.

The groom is engaged as credit man for the William J. Wrigley company of Chicago, a responsible position with that firm and is a young man who has brilliant prospects for the future. The bride spent her early life in Escanaba but since the death of her father has made her home with her uncle, James Corcoran at Crystal Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Meara and daughter Miss Charlotte O'Meara will go to Crystal Falls to attend the wedding.

VISITOR FALLS IN DEAD FAINT ON THE STREET

Becoming suddenly unconscious while walking east on Ludington street about 5:30 last evening, Daniel Hall a shingle sawyer from Hermansville fell to the sidewalk in front of the boarding house and saloon conducted by S. Pichette at 1213 Ludington street and sustained several bad cuts about the face. Several pedestrians who saw the accident rushed to his assistance and carried him in to the Pichette place, thinking that he had expired. However it was seen that there was still life and Dr. H. W. Long was immediately called. Before the doctor arrived the victim of the unfortunate accident had begun to regain consciousness and was alright in a few minutes.

When questioned by the physician the victim said that he had never been subject to fits of any kind and that he had not been drinking. Mr. Hall sustained a severe cut on the right side of his face directly under the eye and the right side of his mouth was badly cut. Several teeth were also knocked from his jaw.

SUNDAY OUTING WELL ATTENDED

A large number of Escanaba and Gladstone people took in the excursion to Marinette and Menominee Sunday on the steamer "Bon Ami" given under the auspices of the Escanaba city band. The boat left the Stephenson dock promptly at 8:30 o'clock and arrived at Menominee after a pleasant trip about 1 o'clock. The day at the twin cities was ideal and many of the excursionists spent the day about the streets and pretty parks of the two cities. On the return trip the boat left Menominee about 8 o'clock and arrived here about 1:30. For the convenience of the Gladstone people the local traction company had a special car at the foot of Ludington street to take the upper bay out to their home.

PASTOR IS TO RESIGN

REV. CARL HOGNANDER WILL DELIVER FINAL SERVICE SUNDAY.

Rev. Carl Hognander will deliver his final sermon, as pastor of the Swedish Mission church of Escanaba, at that church on Sunday. Rev. Hognander presented his resignation to the congregation some time ago and it will take effect next Sunday. His successor has not yet been chosen but it is expected that another pastor will be secured within a short time. Although resigning from the pastorate of the local church Rev. Hognander will not leave Escanaba for several months. He intends to take a long rest of several months to recuperate his health which has not been good since he suffered from an attack of typhoid fever. Rev. Hognander is a vocalist of marked ability and will accept a number of concert engagements in the surrounding district after the close of his present pastorate and will respond to funeral and wedding calls during his residence here.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

It is expected that a monster crowd of fans and fanlets will be attracted to South tomorrow afternoon and evening when the Hopkins Brothers womans team will play the local leaguers in a double header. The second game on Wednesday evening will be of particular interest as it will be the first game ever played in Escanaba by electric light. The traveling team carries its own electrical light equipment and reports from other cities where they have appeared assert that the night games are equally as interesting as the day contests. The touring team has a number of star women players and their performance here will be watched with great interest.

MANY FANS TO ISHPERING FOR SUNDAY GAME

A crowd of nearly 200 Escanaba baseball enthusiasts went to Ishpeming on Sunday to witness the double header event in that city between the locals and the Ishpeming squad. The performance of the locals in the first game was a big disappointment to local fans but the farcical second game of five inning made amends for the day's sport and allowed the tourists to return home well pleased with the day's outing.

INSANE HOSPITAL IS OVER CROWDED

Probate Judge Judd Yelland is in receipt of a letter from Dr. E. H. Campbell, medical superintendent of the Newberry State hospital for the insane, stating that the institution is very crowded with patients at present and asking that only the worst cases from Delta county be sent there for treatment.

The letter, copies of which are being sent to all probate judges of the state, stated that the capacity of the institution is 700 patients and that the number now being treated is 885. At the last session of the legislature that body made an appropriation for the building of a new addition to the hospital, but the governor cut the bill and consequently the institution will be forced to go without the much needed addition.

An ordinary case of diarrhoea can, as a rule, be cured by a single dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This remedy has no superior for bowel complaints. For sale by Groos Drug Store and Farrell and Lohmiller.

GLADSTONE LOSES TO FLAT ROCK

After fighting desperately for 11 innings the Gladstone Tigers went down to defeat before the Flat Rock team at Flat Rock Sunday by the score of 11 to 10. It was by far the best game that has been played on the Flat Rock grounds this season. The batteries for the winners were Clameau and Barrow and Thompson while Hognlund, Borough and Davis did the heavy work for the Tigers.

BANQUET FOR MASON

Charles D. Mason of Gladstone will be the guest of honor next Friday evening at a banquet given by the Gladstone Lodge, 163, K. of P. Mr. Mason will leave soon for a new position in Cleveland and the banquet is to be given as a farewell affair. It is planned by the Gladstone lodge to include the local body as guests and already several men from this city have been asked to speak.

Among those who are to give addresses are J. C. Jennings and Rev. Frederick Spence of this city and G. R. Empson and Dr. George Bjorkman of Gladstone. The program will consist of speeches and music and will be given in the Gladstone theater. Following the banquet and program a dancing party will be given to round out the evening.

MANY LOCAL FANS AT GAME SUNDAY

That the base ball bug has hit Escanaba and hit hard was shown by the immense crowd that went from this city to Ishpeming Sunday to take in the double header in that city. ## C & N W LEAGUE GAMES SUNDAY

In the first game of the Northwest league Sunday the Round House team cleaned up on the Machinists in 11 innings 11 to 8. The game was one of the best that has been played in the league this year. The batteries for the Roundhouse were Moreau and Gibbs and for the Machinists Beauchamp and Dugenor.

In the second game between the Bollermakers and the Storekeepers, the former were forced to forfeit the game 9 to 0 because their pitcher blew up in the third inning and they did not have a reserve man. The standing of the teams is as follows:

The condition of Lambert Peterson and Gideon Hartman, the two men who were caught under a caveln on Saturday afternoon at the site of the new Kratze building, was such that yesterday they were able to be about the streets but not at work.

The two men were buried under a heavy bank of sand which fell before they were able to get out of its way. Only the prompt work of their fellow laborers saved their lives.

NEW RECORD ESTABLISHED

A new record for automobiles between Escanaba and Marquette was established by Charles Brandenburg in a Kissel Kar on Sunday when with six passengers in his car he made the distance in three and one quarter hours. Except for a short distance above Trenary the road was found in excellent condition and the big tour in a Kissel Kar on Sunday when with aly fast time. Those in the auto party were: T. J. Burke, J. W. Waldstrom, William Northup, Charles Strom, Claude Farrell and William Dockery who went up to witness the baseball game. Aside from the short stretch of road in Marquette county the only bad spot encountered on the entire trip was within the limits of the city of Gladstone along the bay shore immediately before reaching the big hill upon entering Gladstone proper. All of the members of the party are enthusiasts over the excellence of the roads encountered upon nearing Marquette.

REILY ASSERTS HE COULD NOT GET BATTED BALL

Oliver Reily, who it was reported misjudged a fly ball in center field during the game against Ishpeming on Saturday and which fact resulted in the loss of the game to Ishpeming, strenuously denies the report and asserts that he had no chance of getting the ball. He asserts and is supported by those who witnessed the game, that he made a strenuous effort to reach the ball but it was batted far above his head and was unable to reach it.

Reily announced yesterday that he will probably present his resignation to the local management at once and return to Chicago. In spite of the fact that Reily's hitting has been a disappointment to the local fans he has been one of the most popular members of the local team and all fans have been pulling strongly for him to boost his hitting and strike the stride which made him known as one of the hardest hitters in the Chicago semi-professional leagues. He has been unable to develop that form this season however much to the disappointment of those who have been pulling strongly for his success with the local team.

MASHER IS JAILED; PRACTICE TO STOP

A young man in a slightly intoxicated condition was arrested Saturday night by the local police for insulting several young girls about the streets. He spent the remainder of Saturday night and Sundays in the city jail and yesterday morning was arraigned before Justice Linden and given a fine of $5 and costs. As he did not have the ready cash he was sent back to the city bastille for a short sojourn.

Chief of Police Iverson stated yesterday that the stopping of young girls by "mashers" on the streets of the city has come to be a too regular thing and that he had instructed his men to arrest any "masher" whom they found to be stopping young women on the local streets.

MOVE TO RAISE PULPIT SALARIES

New York, Aug. 21.—At last there is a movement among the many large Protestant churches in the east to take up seriously the question of ministers' salaries. In the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches the feeling has been growing for some time that clergymen's salaries, as a rule, are too small to enable them to maintain self-respect and be free from worry—two things very necessary to good parish work.

Two recent occurrences have added to the interest taken in the question. One was the employment of the Rev. Dr. J. H. Jewett of Birmingham, England, by the Fifth Avenue Baptist church at a salary of $12,000 a year. The other was the announcement that the Rev. Robert A. Brown of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Rahway, N. J., has resigned and that one reason for it was inadequacy of salary. He quit the Methodist ministry to become assistant rector of St. Bernard's Episcopal church at Bernardsville, and to take charge of the chapel at Basking Ridge. Only a few years ago his salary was $3,200 a year. It had gradually dwindled until at Rahway he was getting only $800. However, the Rev. T. A. Conover, rector of St. Bernard's, was assured by Mr. Brown that the cost of living had nothing to do with his leaving the Methodist church.

"One of the reasons why the salaries of ministers should be sufficient to enable them to escape worry and anxiety," said the Rev. H. Paul Douglas, secretary of the American Missionary society, at Twenty-second street and Fourth avenue, "is that to do the best work a man's mind should not be centered upon his own personal affairs. The average annual salary of a minister in the United States is about $663—hardly living wages, as affairs are in America today. Congregations want to be proud of their minister and want him to live as well as the average middle-class families of the parish at least. He is expected to maintain a respectable appearance before the enemy I might say. Also he is expected to contribute something toward the charity and religious work that the church is interested in.

"The self-respecting minister is averse to making a personal appeal to his congregation or to the members whom he is supposed to spiritually lead. Some ministers, it is true, in desperation at the sight of suffering in their own families, do make such appeals, but it injures their self-respect and confidence and must be humiliating.

"Many bright, splendid men who would be of great good to the church if they could be kept in the work leave the ministry to engage in business rather than make a personal appeal for higher wages. Such men often make brilliant business men and are always a loss to the church. On the other hand, the men who take their places are apt to be of an inferior stock. So the ministry loses both ways.

"In making the average salary of the ministers of continental America $663 the census department probably counts into the lot the clergymen of many sects that do not believe in paying their ministers a salary, and so the actual average of the larger towns and cities would probably be better than the figures quoted.

"Of the 186 denominations in continental United States, 15 have no regular ministry and 69 either pay no stated salaries or made returns to the census man which were not complete enough to warrant tabulation. The Unitarians pay their ministers a higher average salary than any other denomination, the average being $1,653. The denominations next in order are the Protestant Episcopal church, $1,242; the Universalists, $1,238; the General Convention of the New Jerusalem in the United States of America, $1,177; the Reformed church of America, $1,170; the United Presbyterian Church of North America, $896; the Congregationalists, $1,042; the Christian Catholic Church in Zion, $1,037; the Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church in North America, $1,098.

"But I think God the time is coming in America when things will be better for the minister—that better salaries will be paid. Things are moving slowly in that direction now and should be helped along."

Frederick E. Bauer, superintendent of the children's department of the Department of Charities, in Fifty-Ninth street, said:

"I have never known but one minister to apply to the department of charities for aid for himself. This minister was a colored preacher who had a large family and had not permanent work. I think it is wonderful that clergymen get along respectable on the small pay that so many of them receive. A few years ago a commission of charitable workers in this state studied into the question of salaries and decided that a workingman could not live decently and take care of a family on less than $750 a year. I think that he could if he was sure of his pay. But there are the ministers many of them, living on far less than that and keeping up a good appearance and even finding something to send to the heathen."

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS WAR.

Owners of gas driven automobiles, do not affiliate with those who use steam driven cars, and the latter are not allowed in their speed meets. It is claimed that the reason is that there are so many more of the former, that they do not respect the inferior number. There is no dispute between them as to the merits of golden grain belt beers, which fit the taste of every car driver alike, and lessen the fatigue of driving, by their nerve tonic effect.

Cuts and bruises may be healed in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. It is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation. This liniment also relieves soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains. For sale by Groos' Drug Store and Farrell & Lohmiller.

DECIDED NOT TO DIE

Poet Declines to Quit With Work Unfinished.

Supposed to Be on His Deathbed, Joaquin Miller Says He Will Live to Finish Life Record Volume.

San Francisco.—Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, sits once more on the doorstep of his cabin on The Heights, his wild, mountain estate across the bay from which he overlooks San Francisco and the Golden Gate, and to name which he coined a new-spelled word. To see and talk with him today makes the statement that he is a septuagenarian and was pronounced but recently afflicted with an incurable illness seem impossible. For Joaquin Miller today is every whit as much "the grand old man of the mountains" as he was twenty years ago, when he earned the appellation from Queen Victoria on his one and only visit to England.

"Why I Decided Not to Die" might well be the title of an additional volume to the set of the six which the poet has been spending the last three years in preparing. For his own tale of his fight with death, as he told it to a reporter recently, is altogether as romantic and as virile in its significance as anything this civilization-hating writer ever penned.

"The Heights" is about as accessible as Mount McKinley. Its ascent involves toiling up an almost precipitous trail which winds about the mountain for a full three miles from the end of the car line below. Joaquin (no one who ever met him could call him Mr. Miller) has no love for visitors, particularly eastern tourists who consider "The Heights" in the same class as Golden Gate Park and Chinatown, and who invariably attempt to make the trip. At numerous points along the trail are rudely lettered signs stuck up on trees, informing climbers that the path grows steeper and the view less interesting with every foot of ascent.

To friends the aged poet is a host of hosts. From the moment he catches sight of a friend—from his seat in the peever-shut doorway of his "bedroom" cabin, where he spends a greater part of each day—until he finally permits such a visitor to leave his hospitality is comparable only to that kind which long since vanished even in this land of the far-famed Spanish hospitality. Joaquin's "bedroom" cabin, like the other six little shacks scattered at irregular intervals over an acre or two of the top of the mountain, serves only as one room. Similarly the "parlor," the dining-room and the kitchen are each individual cabins. One walks almost a mile when Joaquin shows one through his "seven-room house."

Joaquin Miller at seventy years of age and scarcely clear of the shadow of death is possessed of a sense of humor as original as those other characteristics which have won for him a reputation as being unique in this day of ready-made individualities. In keeping with his life-long habit of scoring the customary is his building with his own hands the great crematory, a pile of stones thirty feet high on the highest point of his mountain, on which his body is to some day to be placed and the ashes to be scattered to "the four winds."

STUDENT HAS WON FORTUNE

Practiced 21 Professions During the Past Seven Years—Now He Is Worth $250,000.

Minneapolis, Minn.—After seven eventful years, in which he not only regained a fortune of $50,000 lost in unwise business ventures and also added to it $200,000, which he now expects to spend in touring Europe, Hardy Sundberg, who left Minneapolis with his patrimony in his pocket to seek his fortune, has returned. He found the fortune he went to seek only after practicing 21 distinct professions.

Seven years ago Sundberg was a student in a Minneapolis theological institution. He came directly to Minneapolis from the University of Stockholm to fit himself for the ministry.

At different times, according to Mr. Sundberg, he has been real estate broker, lumberman, farmer, street car motorman, salesman, machinist, merchant, preacher, engineer, veterinarian, watchmaker, carpenter, surveyor, journalist, cook, bushelman, painter, schoolteacher, doctor, oculist and stock broker.

LEAGUE LEADERS DOWNED TWICE

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 21.—With both teams fighting hard every inch of the way, Marquette won from Negaunee yesterday, 3 to 2, thus making a clean sweep of the series. It was just the kind of a game that keeps a crowd on their toes every minute. Both pitchers were hit freely and were in a hole almost every inning. Each had twelve men left on bases, which shows how both pitchers and players tightened up in the pinch. Marquette's victory was due to Mahoney's wildness and his inability to keep his hits as well scattered as did Caesar, the Marquette southpaw who opposed him.

As in Saturday's game, a great deal of abuse was heaped on Umpire Connolly, which was the one thing to mar the two games, and which must be stopped some way if the public is to continue to support the league as it has done this season. It happened that Connolly had an unusually large number of close decisions in both games, and while there may have been room for argument in some instances he showed no partiality as between the teams, and the conduct of some of the players deserved their being benched and fined.

There were men on bases in every inning, except the first half of the ninth, when the Negaunee hitters were retired in one, two three order. Once a man got first, however, the pitcher tightened up and, with four exceptions retired the side before a score was made. Caesar allowed a hit every inning except the ninth, and in the eighth the league leaders got to him for three bingles and a run. Marquette bunched hits off Mahoney in the second, fourth and sixth innings, but he managed to wiggle out of the holes before much damage was done.

Summary and score by innings:

Marquette.		Negaunee.

FREE LIST MEASURE SCORED BY MR. TAFT

Washington, Aug. 21.—In a message vetoing the farmers' free list bill, President Taft today after an extended review of the measure, declared that "the same reason which impelled me to decline to sign the wool bill controlled me in the case." The president summarized his objections to the bill in these terms:

"First. Because it should not be considered until the tariff board shall make reports upon the schedules in effect.

"Second. Because the bill is so loosely drawn as to involve the government in endless litigation and to leave the commercial community in disastrous doubt.

"Third. Because it places the finish product on the free list, but retains the dutiable list the raw material and the machinery with which such finish product is made, thus putting at a needless disadvantage our American manufacturers.

"Fourth. Because, while purporting to put agricultural implements, meat and flour on the free list, to reduce their price to the consumers, it does not do so, but only gives to Canada valuable concessions which might be used by the executive to expand reciprocity with that country in accordance with the direction of congress."

THE SCHOOLMA'AM GIRL

By MICHAEL J. PORTER

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Gideon Rush noticed the girl before they reached Chicago, though he was a shy, hard-working young man who had really noticed few women in his day.

But even Gideon could be pardoned for looking again at the "schoolma'am girl," as he quaintly nicknamed her.

None but a school teacher would have that air and that poise. And she was so young and so good to look at that Gideon was reminded of little girls who played at various games, like keeping house, and going visiting, and teaching school. She was a school teacher, and yet the title wasn't distinctive enough. It did not classify her. She was all girl, too—young and sweet and happy. So "schoolma'am girl" it was.

Gideon, who was going out to Oregon to grow apples, saw that the schoolma'am girl had a ticket much like his own—a green one as long as his arm.

Was she going west, too, maybe to Oregon? But no; that was impossible. He would lose her at Chicago, where she would change to one of the other hundred trains that shuttled away in every direction.

It was dark when they rumbled into the bedlam called Chicago. She seemed so little and alone and grave—some of her bright cheerfulness had departed—that Gideon said a regretful farewell with his eyes. And she answered the same way.

Gideon hurried into the sticky mid-summer night, because everyone else was hurrying; found a modest restaurant in the glare and clutter; hurried through a meal and trotted back to the great station as the uniformed men at the gate was bawling his train.

He found his tourist sleeper. Half-way down the aisle he paused, de-

"But see here, what mamma says about a young man from home, who has only been in Edensville two years." She unfolded a letter and read: "Abram Howitt is doing splendidly. He is the only money-lender in town, and is one of the rich men now. He is building a beautiful home and is very helpful to your father and me. You would not know him for the same Abram. He inquires every day when you—" She broke off abruptly.

Gideon winced inwardly. "I wouldn't do as a money-lender," he replied; "too much sympathy for the other fellow. I've had to borrow, myself."

Constraint fell with that, and Gideon went to the smoking compartment and sat himself down, gloomily, in a corner.

"Of course," he chided; "I might have known some rich man would want her. I'm surprised she ever got away from New England without being married." With that he watched a vague and delightful dream which had come into his life in the past 48 hours fade as the light of evening faded on the distant mountains.

The rich Mr. Howitt stalked into their conversation and spread himself around like a wet blanket frequently; after that Gideon tried to avoid him, and so did the schoolma'am girl. But he was evidently a character not accustomed to being ignored. It was patent to Gideon he had nominated himself to be the husband of little Miss Serena and that, furthermore, Serena's parents were eager to ratify the nomination.

Once, when they were looking over some of the girl's snapshots they came to a man posing under a tree, a man with his hat tilted knowingly back, unaware that he showed a forehead from which the hair was receding. He had an upturned, oily-looking black mustache, and wore a satisfied smirk.

"Who's that?" demanded Gideon. "That's Mr. Howitt," returned Serena.

"Why, he's old!" cried Gideon, with fierce triumph. And then he leaned forward to look into her eyes. "Sun, don't marry him! He—"

"Mr. Rush!"

For the first time Gideon felt the weight of the icy school teacher tone. The humbled Gideon sought refuge in the smoking compartment, where he stayed until bedtime.

Next morning he recalled with a start that they were but 14 hours from Gillesburg. He sought Serena. The schoolma'am girl was encased in the manner which he knew strange teachers adopt at an institute. She was painstakingly polite and painfully friendly, and as impersonal as the multiplication table. For once, Mr. Howitt did not get into the conversation.

Even at dinner, a dining car extravagance on which Gideon insisted because it was to be their last meal together, the girl's armor remained in place.

The hours passed inexorably. All-most before he could believe it, the whistle screamed, the brakeman cried "Gillesburg!" and Gideon was standing in the aisle, saying goodbye to Miss Blythe.

So with a heart sore and rebellious he descended into the soft darkness of the little town, suitcase in hand. Mechanically he fumbled in his pockets for his trunk check.

The engine was taking water. Gideon walked forward, for one more look at the schoolma'am girl. Her seat was toward the middle of the car on the other side. The platform was high, and, by standing on tiptoe he could just see her.

Her head was turned away; chin on hand, she was looking out into the darkness. There was a droop to her put all like the young woman who had bidden him a cheerful goodbye a few moments before. Stealthily she dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief.

Just then the train started; so did Gideon. He rushed up the steps of the car, treading on the toes of the conductor, and nearly knocking over the porter, dropped his suitcase in the vestibule, and marched up the aisle.

"Sun," he said, quietly, and sat down beside her.

She turned, with a sudden catching of breath. There was joy in her dewy eyes. Unconsciously she stretched out her hand and Gideon took it in his own.

"Oh!" she sighed, with a tremulous smile. "It seemed so lonesome. But the train—we're leaving Gillesburg. Where are you going?"

"With you," he replied, simply. "But—" she struggled to release her hand. "You can't!" Her eyes fell on the trunk-check between his fingers. "Your trunk's back there—your orchard! Why, Gid—"

"We will come back to them, like the schoolma'am girl," he said, "when the honeymoon's over."

"Bimbling, she let her hand lie in his.

Its Tendency. "I went in this nature study business to get a line on the honey bee."

"Of course, you know that line is always busy."

KNOWN TO ANCIENTS

Cold Storage by No Means Modern Invention.

Facts Prove That Chinese Were Familiar With Practice Centuries Ago, and It Is in Universal Use There Today.

One is constantly impressed afresh with the truth of King Solomon's saying that there is nothing new under the sun. If there was anything in this world well recognized as of recent origin, it was cold storage, for the preservation of foods of one kind or another. But now it turns out that the Chinese were familiar with the principles and practice of cold storage many centuries, and probably thousands of years ago.

Dr. Frank N. Myer, plant-hunter for the department of agriculture, made an interesting study of this subject recently. He finds that the Chinese have a method of keeping grapes from one year to another—an idea certainly unknown to ourselves—by storing them in deep, dugout cellars, where they are kept cold by placing baskets of broken ice among the baskets of fruit.

It is a common practice of fruit merchants in China to keep perishable fruits in fresh condition by the use of large and very thick earthen jars. A quantity of broken ice is put in the bottom of each jar, and upon this is placed a woven wicker basket, in which the fruit is kept. The jar is closed with a wooden cover, which often has a strip of felt around it, to make the insulation as complete as possible. Dr. Myer says that it is remarkable how well this simple contrivance serves its purpose.

Of such importance is the cold storage business in China, for the preservation of a great variety of foods, that enormous quantities of ice are gathered in the neighborhood of towns and villages in the winter time. It is considered so precious that every obtainable bit of it is collected, even when it is as thin as half an inch. The mode of storing it is primitive enough, but highly satisfactory, the buildings used for the purpose being of baked mud with very thick walls. Such material, being a first-class non-conductor of heat, serves admirably the end in view. Indeed, it is said that these Chinese ice houses are much better than ours, so far as the keeping of their contents goes.

Mean Trick on Minister.

A clergyman is not supposed to have his worldly sense developed to the point of making bargains, and, this being generally recognized, he is rarely neglected in the way of fees. Imposing upon a clergyman not only seems creditable on the face of it, but is seldom undertaken on account of its ease. Here is one of premeditation. A marrying couple applied for the services of a minister, the man carrying a bird cage. At the conclusion of the ceremony the man said: "I haven't any money to give you, but I would like to present you tomorrow with a fine parrot which can do most anything." The minister expressed a satisfaction which he may not have felt, and the new husband continued: "This parrot will have to have a cage. I have a brand new one here, which just suits, and I will sell it for $5." The parson bit and paid the price, and—usual wind-up—the bridegroom never came back with the parrot.—Chicago Evening Post.

No Cause for Alarm.

One of the cars of a suburban train which came into the Grand Central terminal a few days ago had its usual complement of early morning passengers, but many of them were standing, although a number of seats were unoccupied. The conductor, unable to account for the cause, asked one of the standing men why he didn't sit down, and was told that the child sitting in the center of the deserted part of the car had the whooping cough. The child was coughing, and the mother, blind to the small panic created by the youngster's evident distress, was slapping the little one's back vigorously. She was the last to leave the car, and when told how the child's malady had frightened the other passengers, she said: "Whooping cough nothing; the kid swallowed a piece of chewing gum!"—New York Tribune.

When the Crowd Looks.

Along the packed streets, with sun-baked faces and tense looks, a crowd of people is hurrying. Eagerly, keenly, they jostle by each other, and elbow their way forward. Their eyes are strained, as are the eyes of gold hunters. And gold hunters, in truth, they represent as they pour along the narrow, swarming roads.

Suddenly a babel of voices stays them, and their thoughts change instantly. Yes, every single thought in that vast mass of humanity! The millionaire rubs shoulders with the tramp. The clerk's sleeve brushes that of the manager. The grid-seeking tide is arrested.

A clatter, a gasp, a delirious murmur of "Ah!" And then, as the old bus horse staggers to its feet the human throngs resume their hurrying way.—Answers, London.

One Chance.

"Let's all change our pleas to 'guilty,'" said one of the defendants. "It's our last hope."

"Hope? How'd you figure that out?" "Why, we've led so much now that the court might not believe us."—Judge's Library.

For Late Summer

FORESHADOWING already what we may expect for the coming fall season, the hats for late summer indicate that we shall have many bonnet-like shapes, tall crowns and large hats few in number as compared to small and medium-sized models. Outing hats for July and August are of felt in white or light colors, such as Alice blue, champagne and the season's beautiful pink tones. These are either all felt or felt and hemp combinations and are trimmed with scarfs, bands, soft draperies of chiffon and wings or ribbon. They are exquisite and, it must be confessed, fragile in the matter of keeping clean. But they remain presentable for some time and are cleaned with fine sandpaper. Everywhere the floating white veil accompanies these cool-looking creations of the milliner. The veils are of lace, in several varieties, in coarse silk nets and in chiffon. They are all attractive and add immensely to the attractiveness of the hats and the complexion, for they are worn either over or off the face.

One of the cone-shaped hats, of which we may expect to see numbers during the fall season, is shown in the illustration. It is trimmed with a full ruche of silk "pinked" at the edges and laid in quadruple box-platings. Velvet fruit, like plums, cherries or even apricots, set in these ruchings make a trimming chic and striking. Velvet fruit, in fact, is developing so much popularity that it will probably stay with us and add a charming note to winter millinery, and hats made of felt in the shape pictured here are quite like to be trimmed in the same way.

A model of black hemp, with a moderately tall crown, is also shown. It is calculated to pave the way for extremely high-crowned models, or crowns trimmed extremely high, which Paris says, are to be a vogue for winter. This soft-crowned model makes use of the feather band about the brim edge and is finished with a cluster of upstanding plumes at the back. An ornament made of plaited ribbon finishes the trim, poised on the crown at the right side.

AFTERNOON DRESS.

Peacock-blue Irish poplin is chosen for our model. The plain skirt has a row of satin-covered buttons sewn part way up the seam at right side of front.

The bodice has a yoke of white tucked nylon over peacock blue; a braided or fancy-silk waistcoat surrounds the yoke. The sides are of material; they are carried down over the top of sleeves, which have fancy cuffs edged with nylon trills.

Hat of peacock blue straw with a puffed crown of nylon to match, and trimmed below by a wreath of pale pink roses.

Materials required: 4 1/2 yards poplin 42 inches wide, 3/4 yard tucked nylon, 1/2 yard silk 20 inches wide.

Apron Pockets.

Sew the pocket of your apron on the inside, a little in from the right-hand edge. Nothing will drop from it then, it will stay clean and a great deal can be carried in it, without showing any ugliness.

TO PREVENT SAGGING SKIRTS

Have Garment Properly Prepared Before It Is Turned Up to Be Hemmed.

Summer dress skirts when made of thin material will always sag after they are hemmed and finished if care is not taken to prevent it. A good way to do so is to have the skirt sagged first before it is turned up to be hemmed.

This is done after the skirt is completely finished excepting the hem, from the band to the final fitting and the last look and eye is in its place. The skirt is now hung in a closet or, better still, put upon a full-length dress form raised from the floor by placing it on a box, and the bias portions of the gores weighted so they will stretch to the fullest extent.

After several days of this strain the material will have sagged to its fullest extent, and the hem may be measured and turned up. Anything will do for weighing. The smallest weights from the kitchen scales, put in temporary coverings of muslin and pinned on, are excellent. Any other small objects of uniform heaviness will do for other weights.

A Curious Fashion.

The latest models in skirts or in costumes with attached skirts and waists show the skirt decidedly shorter in front than at the back, a difference which, in the walking length, is very noticeable. Even ballroom gowns are cut on the same lines.

"Shows the embroidery on the front of her socks and hides the darts in the heels," said a male critic of one of these gowns, and his cruel remark accurately describes the style.

"Why such an untidy fashion should have come from Paris at a season when all the crudeness of spring has usually been eliminated from its garments is a puzzle, but here it is, nevertheless, and many frocks that would otherwise have been graceful have been marred by it.

Sashes.

One of the greatest aids in varying the white summer gowns is the use of the sash, which is the style as much as ever.

The velvet sash of the winter is superseded by the pastel colored moires and the lighter chiffon ruches, black in color, as an edging, this finished with black chenille fringe and flowers of the same at the ends, some being decorated with wreaths of gold roses at the ends in place of the other decoration.

These are some of the newer fashions that seem at once to become popular, as they are shown in some of the most exclusive shops.

MUST EAT IN PRIVATE

Primitive Tribes Are Opposed to Public Banquets.

See Shame in Taking Nutriment Before Others—Peculiar How Remnant of Superstitious Fear Has Been Passed Down.

In some primitive tribes, eating is regarded as something to be ashamed of. Karl von der Steiner, the celebrated explorer, was looked upon as a very ill-bred person by the natives of South American forests because he ate in the presence of others. The original ground of the shame associated with eating is a far of evil spirits. The feeling of shame is not in-born in mankind and it assumes very different forms in different regions. A remnant of the superstitious fear connected with the act of taking food appears in the ejaculation "Pro-sit!" which, in Germany, is religiously uttered by the companions of a man who is about to take a drink. This Latin verbal form, the general meaning of which is "may it be beneficial," is now understood simply as the expression of a wish that the drink will agree with the drinker's constitution, but it originally connected the hope that the drink had not been bewitched.

These statements are made by a writer in Hygiene, who adds that the division of labor between men and women was originally, and still is among primitive peoples, much more sharply defined than it is at present in civilized countries. This sharp division of labor brought about a separation at meals. The Eskimos have separate dishes for the two sexes, and a man would be deeply ashamed to eat with women. It is possible that the decoration of plates and cups was designed to serve as a counter-charm, as well as an ornament. When the fear of demons had passed, the custom of eating in private which that fear inspired was sometimes maintained by force of habit, so that eating in public came to be regarded as a shameful breach of good manners.

That Reminds Me.

"That Reminds Me" on an invitation added a spice of novelty to an afternoon given for a company of elderly ladies.

The guests told stories, reminiscent or otherwise, as they were all old friends, and it made the occasion a most delightful one.

This is a capital idea for a grand-mother's party: Use all the old-fashioned things obtainable, have a nose-gay of pansies (for thoughts) at each place and serve this deliciously old-time supper: Cold ham and chicken, creamed potatoes, tiny baking powder biscuits, tomato pickles, branched peaches, baked cup custard, rolled jelly cake, tea, with cream and sugar. Have a centerpiece of sweet Williams or any other old-fashioned flower obtainable. Have small butter plates, a castor in the middle of the table, or two of them, one at each end. Pass buttermilk in the afternoon in thin tumblers—of, better still, in goblets.

Union of 69,000 Teachers.

The National Union of Teachers of England and Wales, which is "neither an incorporated professional institute nor a trade union, but combines the best features of each, with certain functions peculiarly its own," is the most wonderful organization of teachers in the world.

Beginning with a modest group of 400 in 1870, it now enrolls a membership of more than 69,000 teachers, nearly three-quarters of all the certificated teachers in the country. The conference is relatively rarely attended by members in their individual capacity, but practically all the people one sees there are sent as representatives from the various local associations, in accordance with a formal scheme of representation. Even this brings together a gathering of some two thousand people.

Could Not Honor "Likes of" Carlyle.

Among the many distinguished men who have refused honors was Thomas Carlyle. Disraeli offered him in the queen's name the Grand Cross of the Bath—"a distinction," wrote Froude, "never before conferred upon any English author, with a life income corresponding to such a rank." Carlyle declined the honor, but he was deeply touched by the compliment, the more so as he had frequently attacked Disraeli in his writings. Most readers will probably agree with the verdict of the Chelsea "bus conductor who said to Froude: "Very proper of the queen to offer it, and more proper of him to say that he would have nothing to do with it. 'Tisn't they who can do honor to the likes of he."

The Deadly Foreign Submarine.

Apropos of the numerous accidents that befall foreign submarines, Lewis Nixon, the shipbuilder, said at the Union Club in New York:

"Two French government officials were once discussing naval affairs. "To what account," said the first, "have our new submarines, the X and XI, best be charged?"

"To the sinking fund, of course," was the reply."

Crossing the Continent.

"Have a drink?" "I see you are a stranger. It's against the law to drink on a train in this state."

"Have a cigarette, then?"

"Thanks, we are just in time for a cigarette. You can't smoke 'em in the next state we cross."

CUSTOMS FRAUD IN PORT OF NEW YORK

CAPTAINS OF INDUSTRY AND A METROPOLITAN BANKER INVOLVED IN SCANDAL.

WOMAN HAS AMAZING CAREER

Diamond Smuggling Case Shows How Helen Dwellie Jenkins "Trimmed" a Millionaire for $500,000—Uncle Sam After Several Rich Men.

New York.—The developments in the vast smuggling plot which was disclosed when Collector Loeb, through Detective Richard Farr, acted in the cases of Nathan Allen and John R. Collins, the millionaires charged with falling to declare $300,000 worth of jewels belonging to Mrs. Helen Dwellie Jenkins, indicate that the half has not been told.

A couple of years ago there was a robbery in a New York hotel and following it a young woman, Mrs. J. W. Jenkins, reported to the police that $300,000 worth of jewelry had been stolen. A little later she said that the valuables had been recovered through a private detective agency. The customs authorities, who endeavor to keep posted concerning every large diamond collection in the country had never heard of the Jenkins collection and suspicious that some of the valuables might have been imported without having paid duty to Uncle Sam, started an investigation. The result is that information incriminating Nathan Allen, a wealthy leather manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., and John R. Collins, a millionaire coal man of Nashville, Tenn., has been placed in the hands of United States District Attorney Henry S. Wise and will be brought to the attention of the next federal grand jury. Allen was intimate with Mrs. Jenkins and while in Europe with her and accompanied by Collins bought her many thousand dollars' worth of valuables which paid no duty. It was while investigating this case that Richard Farr unearthed the other conspiracy and the jewel-smuggling affair that was first known as the Jenkins case, then as the Jenkins-Allen case, and as the Jenkins-Allen-Collins case, is now said to have been really inspired by a New York banker, who had perfected an "underground" route for smuggling in jewels and other valuables. The more that is known of the activities of Helen Dwellie Jenkins, the fascinating East side girl for whom two financiers of wide reputation ran the risk of jail by smuggling into the country, it is alleged, $300,000 worth of gems, the more remarkable does the woman appear. That she was able to twine men of affairs, and even officers of the law, around her slender fingers and obtain for the asking vast sums, which she spent with a lavish hand, is becoming more and more apparent.

Helen Dwellie Jenkins, banker, who had perfected an "underground" route for smuggling in jewels and other valuables.

That Helen Dwellie has been able through some strange gift, to play upon the hearts of men as a musician plays a harp, is not only proved by her own statements but by the police and private detectives with whom she has come in contact. Once under her spell they gave with a freedom that suggested hypnotic influence, and not once until the game was played a bit too far with Nathan Allen, the multi-millionaire leather merchant of Kenosha, Wis., did one of the "angels" rebel. Mrs. Jenkins admits Allen spent $500,000 on her inside of 18 months.

Mrs. Jenkins' maiden name was Helen Fuld and at the age of fourteen she married a man named Dwellie and for some time they lived happily in Detroit. Then her husband went to New Orleans and she obtained a divorce. It was Collins of Memphis, Tenn., who is mixed up in her case who gave her the name of Mrs. Jenkins. He was a friend of her family and about the time she had obtained her divorce was reading a book telling of the adventures of the Widow Jenkins. In a facetious way he began calling her Mrs. Jenkins and it was under that name that she was introduced to Allen, who himself assumed the name Jenkins. He installed her in a palatial residence in Chicago and in 1909 made an European tour with her. Collins was with them most of the time and it was while they were in London that the New Yorker imparted the information how the customs service at New York might be evaded.

LA FOLLETTE IN SPEECH SCORES SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—A bill to define the extent to which "reasonable" restraint of trade shall be permitted under the Sherman anti-trust law was introduced in the Senate today by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin and discussed by him. The bill specifies that whenever a combination, trust or conspiracy is shown to exist, the burden of proof that the combination is not "unreasonable" shall rest upon the party who contends that the restraint is "reasonable." The bill defines the specific methods of restraining trade; under which it shall be held that such restraint is unreasonable. These include combinations to prevent the purchase of articles from other corporations, discrimination by a trust against certain buyers and the granting of special prices, attempt to present competition by "unfair or oppressive methods of competition."

Senator La Follette said the incorporation of the word "reasonable" into the Sherman act came as a distinct shock. "The supreme court has amended the Sherman act," he said. "It matters not that Congress has refused for years to change this law; the court has done it and made it apply to 'unreasonable restraint' of trade. "It is clear usurpation of power by the supreme court. He said the court had "yielded to the importunities" of those who wanted the act amended, and had changed the law after Congress had refused to do so.

"The change was made after the new members had been put on the supreme court bench, and all the new members of the court fell on that side of the line," said Senator Owen of Oklahoma. Mr. La Follette agreed with Mr. Owen. He said he did not expect action on his anti-trust bill at this session but hoped to have it discussed before the regular session in December. Empty seats that greeted Senator La Follette during his speech, drew from him the prediction that many of them would be permanently vacated by their present owners. "I made the same prediction five years ago," said Senator La Follette, "when empty seats greeted my effort to call attention to the subject of railroad rate regulation and ten of those seats have been vacated since that time."

Dark Smoke No Fun. Funny thing about smoking! If a man were compelled to puff a good cigar with his eyes shut, the operation would lose its zest. A man who had undergone a slight operation upon one of his eyes had to stay in a darkened room for a week with his optics bandaged. After a few days his doctor told him he could take a gentle smoke if he liked. He jumped at the chance and to his amazement found it afforded him not the slightest pleasure. To be sure, men often smoke in the dark, but there's always the rosy glow of the lighted end to be seen and the faint outline of the cloud of smoke in the air. There's no more fun in a sightless smoke than a saltless egg or a kiss upon your own hand. What's the psychology of it?

Smart Youth. "Tommy, what did you do with that penny I gave you for taking your medicine?" "I bought a bun with one halfpenny, ma, and I gave Jimmy the other half to drink the medicine for me."

John is Up to Snuff. On returning from his trip around the World, General Grant was asked as to the greatest sight he had seen, and said: "A Jew trying to beat a Chinaman without being able to do it." The Jew has gained less foothold in China than any other country.

Generous Proportions. The length of the nose of the statue of Liberty is four feet six inches. The distance across the eye is two feet six inches. The right arm, which holds the torch, is forty-two feet long.

BOSTON MARKETS

The whole list of rails and in dis-trails was heavily sold again today. In spite of encouraging stock news, stocks poured out from all points. After the first two hours, the reaction was checked but no rally issued, Shannon was strong and in good demand, but Arizona Coml and Corbia were weak with heavy liquidation. Arizona Coml bonds sold down to 35 and looks as if the property would have to be re-organized and that the stockholders would not get much. Corbin is well provided with money and has a fair speculative chance. The other copper acted well and showed little change.

NEW YORK MARKETS

Despite the reported settlement of the labor difficulties in England, The stock market was extremely feverish and generally lower during the session. The action of U. P. in reducing its working force to the extent of 2000 men was taken to indicate that liquidation of labor in this country was likely to occur somewhat sooner than many anticipated, and the effect was rather disturbing to stock market sentiment. It is true that sentiment in wall street is often carried to the extreme for which reason the security market may act temporarily contrary to the existing pessimism which is apparent in all quarters, but nevertheless we are rather inclined to the view that operations in the buying side should be conducted conservative basis until it becomes evident the stock market is receiving support of the investors of the depressions.

Bones Stronger Than Solid Oak.

The wonderful power of our structure has been tested scientifically to show how that hollow bone bears strain. A very small bone, only one square millimetre (.0155 square inch) in diameter, will hold 33 pounds in suspension without breaking, while a piece of the best oak of the same thickness will hold up only 22 pounds. The bone is, therefore, half again as strong as the solid oak, thus showing that nature is economical in the weight given to bones, making them hollow, and at the same time makes them stronger than if they were solid and much heavier. The principle has been recognized in mechanics, engineers using hollow steel tubes in stead of solid to meet great strain.

His Garter Upside Down.

The late duke of Devonshire, who was very careful in everything, once entertained King Edward VII. at a ball at Devonshire house, which was the talk of London. As his majesty went away, he complimented the duke on the magnificent manner in which everything had been done and the way in which the evening had passed off. He said he could not suggest any change for the better, save in one little thing, which he hoped his grace would not mind his mentioning. "What is it, sir?" inquired the duke with much anxiety. "Pray tell me." "You have got your garter on upside down," replied the king.

Sarcastic Direr.

"Did you like your dinner?" asked the waiter. "Like it?" ephosed the guest. "Why, it made me feel like a boy again." "Thank you, sir," smiled the waiter. "We aim to please in every detail, sir, and if you—" "Yes, like a boy," continued the enthusiastic guest as if he had not noticed the interruption. "Spring lamb we had. I ate it. And if that was spring lamb I am still a boy. You have cut many years from my life."

"OPERATOR" IS EXPLAINING

The telephone operators are working hard these days. For they have changed the system of calling numbers, and the people on the outside have not yet learned its intricacies.

"Two double naught two," did you call. Call again, or the operator will reprove you, and tell you that the new rule is "Two, 0, 0, two."

And then when you said "Thank you central," she again corrected you and told you that her name is 'operator.'

So be careful, and say nothing unless you say it correctly, for the whole force of the Bell Telephone company is behind that maiden who answers you so demurely over the wire. And if you say two, naught, two," you are violating the rules on one of the biggest corporations in the country and you are one of those who live in the past and are not familiar with the latest and most up-to-date requirements.

So call her "operator" instead of "central," and say "Two hundred," instead of "two double naught," or you will offend a young woman who will of course, be deeply sorry, but who will nevertheless tell you how to do it rightly, to your deep mortification of course.

TURTLE RETURNS AFTER MANY YEARS

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 18.—After an absence of more than half a century and long mourned as dead, Sammy, a pet land turtle that long ago passed the century mark, returned to his home at the farm of John Allen, Chestnut Hill, where the hard-shelled pet of Mr. Allen's father received a warm welcome. The turtle crawled wearily to the doorway of the Allen home appearing glad to return after his fifty-seven years stroll. Mr. Allen discovered on the turtle's back the initials "J. A." with the date 1854, which were carved by Allen's father in that year. The older residents remembered Sammy in their boyhood days and had no difficulty in identifying him as the pet of the neighborhood more than half a century ago.

CLEANS STREET TEN YEARS WITHOUT PAY

New York, Aug. 21.—Hugh Connors, fifty years old, of 231 East Forty-Fifth street, has a hobby. After his day's work and his supper are done he takes a broom that he bought himself and goes out and sweeps both sides of Second avenue from Forty-fourth St. to Forty-sixth street. First he cleans off the sidewalk, casting the sweepings into the gutter. Then going into the roadway he begins at the middle and sweeps toward the sidewalks and gathers the stuff into little heaps.

To prevent the wind from scattering the dust he brings out a watering can which he owns and wets down the heaps so that they may remain intact until the street cleaning carts come around in the morning. "I know of my own knowledge that he has been doing this for ten years or more. It is his hobby." Alderman Thomas F. Baldwin said to Magistrate Herbert in the Yorkville court where Connors was a prisoner.

Connors never sought employment on the city street cleaning force or did he ever ask the department for so much as the price of his broom. He is a laboring man and is said to be of steady habits. But many of the sweepers neighbors hold that it is immoral to work for anything but money. They remonstrated with Connors, but it was no use. His custom has been to go out at 11 o'clock at night. It took him two hours to do his nightly job. He was sweeping away when Alexander Brennan, a young plumber of 847 Second avenue, came along. The plumber was a bit unsteady on his feet.

"Hey you! What do you mean by taking the bread out of another man's mouth? S'pose we all work for nothing, who's going to pay the rent?" said the young man to the sweeper.

Then Brennan seized the broom and after a short struggle got it away from the sweeper and threw it into the street. The sweeper picked it up. Then the plumber again tried to take it away from him.

While the two were struggling Policeman Zelaha of the East Fifty-first street station, who had been watching them, arrested both. The plumber is a husky young man and objected to being arrested. His objection was overruled by the policeman, who had his night stick with him.

The policeman charged both with fighting in the streets, but when the magistrate questioned him he said that Brennan had done all the fighting.

The magistrate was inclined to let both go when a man among the spectators demanded that something be done about Brennan's cut head.

"The policeman says Brennan fell down, but I saw him hit Brennan with his club," said the man. The witness declared that Connors was deserving of chastisement for working for nothing, and Brennan began talking in the same way.

"I had intended to let you go, Brennan, but because of your attitude and that of your friend I will fine you $300 said the magistrate, and he discharged Connors.

SLIGHT CHANGES MADE IN FOOTBALL RULES

New York, Aug. 21.—The official football guide for 1911, issued today, contains many changes and aspiring candidates will have to put in considerable time mastering the letter and spirit of the new rules. The intermission between the first and second and third and fourth periods is shortened, barely allowing time to transfer the ball when it is put in play immediately.

A new ruling appears in forward passes. Formerly the penalty of an incomplete forward pass was measured from the spot at which the pass was made, generally six or seven yards behind the scrimmage line. The new rule measures from the spot of the preceding "down."

HERE AND THERE IN THE STATE CAPITAL

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 21.—"Land values in the state are constantly on the increase, as is being demonstrated by the sales the state land department is having," said Land Commissioner Huntley Russell to the News today.

"We have just returned from holding a sale in Cheboygan county, and some of the land sold as high as $18.80 per acre. What do you think of that for land that has been deeded to the state years ago for non-payment of taxes? This same land that we are now selling for from $10 to $18 per acre was formerly sold as low as $1 per acre, and that not many years ago. Now the state has no land for sale at the paltry sum of $2 to $3 per acre.

"I think one of the things that has helped the price of land in these sales is the fact that the sales are now being held at the county seats in which county the lands are located. In former years one big sale was pulled off at Lansing and land sharks from Chicago and other points came in droves and purchased state lands merely as a speculation. Actual residents of the counties where the lands for sale were located were many times not in a position to pay their expenses to Lansing, and then they did not like the idea of dressing up and coming to the state capitol and bid in opposition to the land sharks with high collars and patent leather shoes. Under the present system these farmers can step to their own county seat and bid on the land for sale, and as a rule the land sharks are not making the rounds of the counties.

In a letter which he is sending out to all Michigan corporations, Auditor-General Fuller is calling their attention to a state law which holds them liable for the amount of the inheritance tax upon the transfer of all shares of stock standing in the name of a decedent transferred to any person, until a certified copy of an order determining that the inheritance tax has been paid, from a judge of probate or else the production of a receipt from the county treasurer showing the tax to be paid.

Auditor Fuller says that he is satisfied that the state is annually losing thousands of dollars in the collection of its inheritance tax, and that hereafter collections will be made against the corporations issuing the stock unless they comply with the law. Of course, the law applies only to inheritance stock and it will be now up to the corporation to protect themselves or else be confronted with a claim for payment of taxes from the state.

There are about 8,000 corporations in the state, and Auditor Fuller believes that the state will be many thousands dollars ahead.

SCIENCE MADE BRAIN NORMAL

How Girl of Impish Impulse, in Young Womanhood a Thief, Has Been Permanently Restored to Moral Strength.

SCIENCE has reclaimed another person from the crime world, closed a chapter of wildness and converted an irresponsible into a human being of moral strength. In the awakening of Jeannie Gordon, through the professional ministrations of Dr. H. N. Rowell, a girl who was a runaway and later a thief has been restored to society. Her disturbed brain for years whirled her out of the domestic orbit and she was heading for state prison when the surgeon's knife and the mental healer saved her from herself.

SLIM shadow with a shock of tumbled brown hair and eyes that were lighted with a fever fire came up from out the parched grass at Sanchez cattle ranch, near Tia Juana, Mexico, one afternoon as the yellow sun's burning rays lay slant the red mesa land. The copper faced cowboys, sitting at the door of their shack, looked up with astonishment at the haggard little stranger. They saw a bare five feet of frailty in soddy worn shoes and trousers, with wrists no bigger than two fingers, hands of a child and a face that didn't seem to belong to the rest of the shadow.

"Long way from home, sonny, ain't yuh?" asked one of the men, who had left a real name in the east and become "Poker Chip Charley" for cow-punching purposes, "and a bit hungry, too, I guess; eh?"

And without waiting for an answer they took the shadow in and seated it at a table and fed it all it could eat, which is a hospitality denied none in the land of longhorns. A week thereafter the shadow lay upon a cot in the big ranch house, with a bandage about the temples and the delicate heart pumping so feebly that only the trained ear of a nurse, who had been brought up from Tia Juana, could hear it.

"How did it happen?" she asked. "Why, miss," said "Poker Chip Charley," "the youngster called himself the kid cowboy, and he wanted to hook a leg on the friskiest horse on the ranch just to show us what he could do. So, miss, we give in and put him aboard Dulcie, which ain't no horse for a kid to ride, but he did ride him, the kid did. Never saw anything like it, but the kid wa'n't beefy enough to stick, Dulcie bucked and the kid landed on the head."

Kid "Cowboy" a Girl.

That night the boss of Sanchez ranch went out to the cowboys' shack with a bit of news. The kid cowboy was a girl, an innocent little runaway from the states. Her name was Jeannie Gordon. Right here, as well as anywhere, the opening chapter of this girl's strange life may be told. It may be called the chapter of her moral sleep, as the other chapter is properly called that of her awakening.

Jeannie Vivian Claire Gordon—story-book sort of name, but rightfully hers by birth and christening—became an orphan in her infancy. Her parents were West Virginians. They left the child in the care of a kind hearted nurse, who took her to California. When Jeannie had grown into knee-length pinstriped Jodge and Mrs. Lillian Barclay of Los Angeles took a liking to the bright-eyed little one and adopted her. They rechristened her Ferris Barclay and she took her place as their home as a daughter.

By the time she had grown into early teens she was seized with a stronger wanderlust. It would not let her rest. She seemed bewitched by the ever-moving light of some will-o'-the-wisp. Powerless to control herself, she fled one day to Long Beach, where in boy's clothes that she had contrived to borrow, she found work in a bowling alley. A police alarm was sent far and wide. The girl read it, but did not return.

A woman probation officer, much taken by the pretty child, discovered her disguise and she was taken back to Judge Barclay's home, and with a solicitude for her future they placed her under the kindly tutelage of the sisters at a convent.

Her brain having been set awright in some strange way, and in its wild working having cast her out of the domestic orbit, she was now beyond control. She cut out the look of a door that imprisoned her and, heedless of danger, she slid down a drain-pipe from a third-story window and scaled the convent walls. Taking to the highway she reached the open country before dawn. She found a companion of her own years and sex and together, dressed as boys, they roamed through southern California, living as tramps and learning how to ride the slant-hipped ponies on the ranches like vaqueros.

Again the hand of authority fell upon the shoulders of the flyaway child, and she was carried back under restraint to the home which she had abandoned.

The ingenuity of a mind keyed to the abnormal is more than a match for a perfectly sane person. Even while Judge Barclay was planning anew for the girl's welfare she was wafted away like a thistle-down in the wind. This time she was carried far across the border into the wild country of Mexico and to the ranch beyond Tia Juana. Her voluntary return to Los Angeles after this wide swing in the open was inspired as is now known, to a temporary restoration of those faculties which guide the moral. She went at once to Judge Barclay's home. She was calm and penitent. Mrs. Barclay had died while the girl's last escapade was running its course, and the judge was in no mood for a reconciliation with one given to such wild vagaries. He did not know the girl was irresponsible. He received her formally, if not cordily, gave her a letter to the manager of the canneries down at San Jose and money for her immediate expenses and transportation, and sent her from his door with a good wish for her happiness somewhat severely expressed.

Jeannie dressed in boy's clothes, became a thief.

Became a Thief. The girl's erratic path of wild childish adventure at this moment diverged into one pitifully crooked and criminal. Jeannie became a thief. She stole things without reference to their value or her needs. When she wanted anything, or thought she did, her cunning mind directed her ready fingers to the place where it could be found. It was not long before she began taking things she did not want—knick-knacks which she threw away or left in hiding places on the premises, there to be found by others.

In San Francisco, whither she drifted with light fingers, working along the way, she was arrested. Because of her tender years and the evidence that her form of criminality was far removed from the sordid she was sent to St. Catherine's home. In a week she was out and roaming to the youth in boy's clothes. Then, as medico-criminal records have shown in other cases, the switch controlling the nerve wires of this girl's brain became set for a brief return to the normal. She changed absolutely. These who did not know attributed it to the influence of tracts and such moral teachings as is given collectively to inmates of institutions, including jails. They were not aware that it was periodic, and quite incidental.

During this mental lull much of her gentleness and girlhood sweetness and charm for the time returned. Mr. Thurnherr, a young Berkeley business man, met and fell in love with her and made her his wife. Before they had returned from a brief honeymoon the switch was on again, intensifying her cunning and making her boldly criminal where before she had been cautious.

As Kleptomaniac. One evening as he sat reading and she embroidered, he fell asleep; quick as a cat she slipped out of the house and into a neighbor's, where she stole some pretty articles of no use to herself.

"Where have you been, my dear?"

"The kid cowboy was a girl—a runaway."

asked the husband, waking as she returned. "I just ran over to Mrs. —'s to show her my embroidery," was the quick reply. "She is anxious to work a pattern like it."

It was about this time when some silverware which she had stolen and buried was found, and the young wife was under arrest, that Dr. H. N. Rowell, who long had watched her career from a distance, stepped actively into her life. All the stories he had heard concerning her pointed to tendencies and gave confirmation to his suspicions that her abnormality was an incident that could be corrected.

Surgery Put to Work. He made a plea for her probation and became her bondsman. With the consent of the authorities, as well as that of herself and her husband, he took the young woman—she is now only 23 years old—under his professional care.

Dr. Rowell's theory was that after the pressure on the brain was relieved, a systematic daily hypnotizing of his patient would cure her. Her sensitive subconscious mind was to be instructed to forget the past that had now ceased to be vital and turn toward the perfectly new future and all its possibilities.

Victory for Science. The young woman recovered from the nervous shock of the operation in a darkened room, being rigorously treated for weeks along the lines of mental suggestion in which Dr. Rowell so firmly believed. She was afterward transferred to the country, where the same mental training was continued. The result seems to be a totally new personality. Old friends of Mrs. Thurnherr, who knew the girl when she was a very handsome, slim, brown-eyed tomboy, hardly recognize this gentle, large-eyed, delicate young woman as the hoydenish girl they used to know.

At first it seemed as if the strenuous surgical and mental trial she had been through was to influence her but temporarily. But it is beginning to be evident that the old Jeannie Gordon is as dead as the little Barclay girl who ran away so many years ago in a ruffled apron and became a boy.

Mrs. Thurnherr is interested in things she never cared about before, never thought of or appeared to notice. Always strikingly pretty in a boyish way, and with unusually beautiful, pleading hazel eyes, the young woman has an expression like that of a child taken to sea the ocean for the first time—a sort of rapt wonder. And now that the awakening has come after all these years, and the child of impish impulse and the girl whose brain reeled her always toward the vortex have ceased to exist, she remembers it as one recalls an ugly dream phantom. "I am not the same girl at all," she says, with eyes that look straight into yours—eyes that are soft, honest, sincere. "It used to be so strange. I lived a nightmare—a wild, uncertain existence which was as bereft of orderly sequence as the jumble of impossible things through which we drift in unhappy dreams. Oh, how different it is since the change came. The world seems so much quieter, and now I can rest. Without half trying, I can be good like other people."—New York World.

CHICAGO WAITER GETS TIPS TO THE AMOUNT OF $50,000

Juan Muller, maitre d'hotel at the Hotel La Salle, is the most to be envied head waiter in Chicago. Juan is preparing to return to Switzerland, his native land, for the first time since he came to this country in 1896, with $50,000 in real money saved from tips.

The last mentioned species of tips is the kind Juan always went after. He has made a study of the art. It is his profession, and his progress in the chosen line speaks for itself. Forty-six thousand dollars saved from tip earnings in Chicago hotels and $4,000 saved in the same profession at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York is the extraordinary record of this phenomenal waiter.

The tipping system, which in many instances has degraded the true profession, causing a decrease in hotel receipts, is upheld by Muller. "Always be on the job and forget yourself," is the motto of this capitalist.

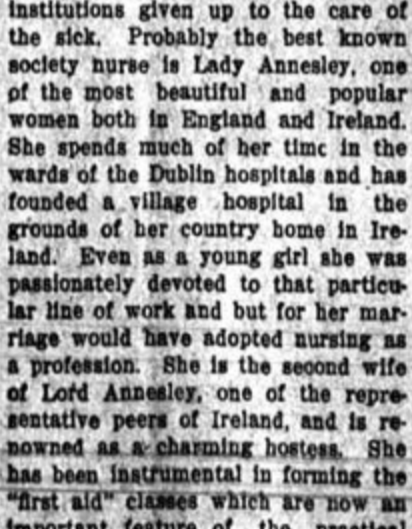

"When I first went into the business," says Muller, "I made a thorough study of human nature. I took note of how other waiters made themselves disliked by patrons. I observed the scowl on men's faces and the look of irritation when a waiter persistently hovered about the table. That was a lesson I never forgot and the one which meant success for me."

"If there is any one thing more than another which a patron detests it is the self-evident greedy intentions of a waiter who is constantly lifting up the water bottle, shifting the dishes, smoothing out imagined wrinkles in the tablecloth at the immediate right of the diner, and making himself conspicuous and his wants evident. That kind of service never makes a hit in any hotel, and while the waiter who practices it usually gets a tip, it is small and a disgrace to the real profession."

"Human nature" is the same the world over, and when a person thinks your sole desire is to get his money he dislikes you, and in the waiting profession to have the good will of your patrons is essential to success."

Juan Muller is thirty-five years old. He was born in the northern part of Switzerland and came to New York at the age of twenty. For four years he was employed as head waiter at the Waldorf-Astoria, and in 1900 he went to Chicago. Besides saving $50,000 he has purchased a home on the north side of Chicago.

A LEADER IN THE PRESENT CRAZE OF ENGLISH SOCIETY

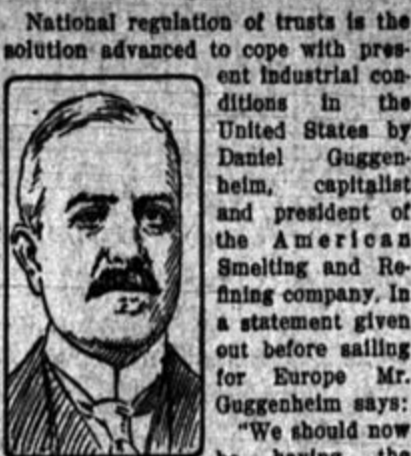

Just at present English society circles are greatly agitated over the latest fashionable craze, that of nursing. The aristocratic London women who do not go in for this decidedly practical art are few and far between. Queen Alexandra herself having repeatedly evidenced a decided interest in various institutions given up to the care of the sick. Probably the best known society nurse is Lady Annesley, one of the most beautiful and popular women both in England and Ireland. She spends much of her time in the wards of the Dublin hospitals and has founded a village hospital in the grounds of her country home in Ireland. Even as a young girl she was passionately devoted to that particular line of work and but for her marriage would have adopted nursing as a profession. She is the second wife of Lord Annesley, one of the representative peers of Ireland, and is renowned as a charming hostess. She has been instrumental in forming the "first aid" classes which are now an important feature of the practical side of society life in London.

Work of Dust Storms. Seaward-flowing waters are not alone responsible for the denudation of soils. Those who have watched dark dust storms approaching will be interested to know that estimates of solid material suspended in the air from 180 to 128,000 tons per cubic mile of air where such storms are prevalent. The neologist Udden, taking conservative values and using fairly accurate data for the number, velocity and duration of the dust storms in the western states, concluded that "on the average about 350 million tons of dust are carried 1,440 miles each year, thus doing in this region alone about 1,225 billion miles tons of transport." The dust whirls run each an average of 218 miles.

Summer Sincerity. She—Then you never told any other girl that you loved her? He—No, indeed; the others have got it in writing!—Fuss.

MILLIONAIRE CAPITALIST FAVORS TRUST REGULATION

National regulation of trusts is the solution advanced to cope with present industrial conditions in the United States by Daniel Guggenheim, capitalist and president of the American Smelting and Refining company. In a statement given out before calling for Europe Mr. Guggenheim says: "We should now be having the greatest prosperity of any country in the world, because of our enormous resources and because we are healthy in those things that go to make a country prosperous. But every so-called 'captain of industry' is supposed to be a criminal, liable to prosecution. Investigations galore are being conducted by the department of justice, not because the department knows that our corporations are doing illegal acts, but to protect itself from congressional criticism. The Supreme court has rendered decisions that the country has been waiting for a long time; nevertheless, the officers of the larger corporations do not know where they are at. This is the cause of so many of our large industrial not making expenditures which would start the business wheels in motion."

"In making comparison with the way that business is done in the countries abroad I do not find that the officers of corporations are prosecuted because of their co-operation with each other or of making combinations or of syndicating their products. On the contrary, in Germany, where they are now and have been so prosperous, there is hardly an article of importance that is not syndicated. The government itself not only permits the syndicating of these products, but lends itself in many cases as a partner to these syndicates, and it permits the syndicates to conduct their business in such a manner as will bring the greatest returns. There everything is done to permit stabilizing of prices. If in our country we attempted to do such things persecution would commence and we would be looked up in the light of criminals."

"I believe if we had a competent government board, comprised of men who would study business conditions, it would be very useful in the development of our industries. It should have the power to permit or prevent a combination or syndicating of products, according to conditions that obtain, and it could regulate matters so that the best interests of all the people of America would be served. Such a board, with power, I believe would improve our business conditions enormously, not only in the direction of export business, but home business as well."

LEADING DRAMATIC CRITIC VICTIM OF HEART DISEASE

Franklin Fyles, for 30 years dramatic editor and critic of the New York Sun, died recently of heart disease. He was born in Troy, N. Y., 64 years ago, and started newspaper work in that city while a boy. He became a reporter on the Sun when only 20 years old and five years later became dramatic critic. About 8 years ago failing health compelled him to leave the Sun and since then he had supplied dramatic criticisms and notes to 25 or more out-of-town papers.

When Franklin Fyles was 20 years old he was editor and owner of a small weekly paper in Troy, N. Y.—the place where a considerable part of the country's collars are made. Troy, despite its classic name, is not a center of literary activity and Franklin Fyles, after a struggle in which he spent all of a slender inheritance, was obliged to give up the intellectual siege of the collar makers. He decided to try his fortune in New York, and it was in preparation for this venture that the last issue of his badly wilted weekly was edited.

Three "stories" were written, each with the idea of capturing the admiration of a New York editor, so that he would give young Fyles a job. The first story was very high-browed and dignified, and dealt with the political situation in New York at the time (which is seldom very high-browed). It was to attract the attention of Hugh Hastings, owner of the Commercial Advertiser. The second story, for the special benefit of Amos J. Cummings, managing editor of the New York Sun, was a lively description of a negro camp meeting. The third effort was a humorous effort in imitation of Brick Pomeroy of the New York Democrat. All three editors fell for the scheme, and Fyles went to work as an editorial and dramatic writer for the New York Sun, a position he held 25 years.

It was as a dramatic critic that Franklin Fyles became famous, but he also wrote a number of plays himself. Perhaps the most successful of these was "The Girl I Left Behind Me," written in collaboration with David Belasco. Other plays from his pen were "Cumberland," "The Governor of Kentucky," Mr. Fyles was also the author of several selections of short stories and one book on the stage.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

SECRETARY TO KING GEORGE

Forty years in one job is not a bad record, yet this can be claimed by Lord Knollys, King George's private secretary, whose retirement is now imminent. He began his duties with the late king when Prince of Wales and has been the secretary of his son and successor. He originally intended to give up his arduous duties at the death of the late king, and it was well understood that he merely stayed on in order to "train in" Sir Arthur Biggs, upon whose shoulders the responsibilities of the royal secretaryship will now fall.

Such a post requires not only hard work, but a keen knowledge of the world, combined with tact, judgment, decision and memory. It has been said of Lord Knollys that no one could hope to undertake his task with a tithe of the success which now attaches to it.

The royal correspondence alone would frighten the average man. About 500 letters a day are addressed to the king, and the majority of these are attended to by Lord Knollys, assisted by the under secretaries. No correspondence is more varied than that received by the king. It is a peculiarity of the English court that no matter on what subject you address the occupant of the throne, you almost invariably get a reply.

However, Lord Knollys is far from being merely a letter-writing machine, for this constitutes quite a small part of his work. He has to keep the king informed of all the engagements, to arrange his journeys, to keep him posted in all that is going on in the outer world, and to have at his finger ends the important news of the day.

Apart from his secretarial duties Lord Knollys was an intimate personal friend of the late king, and perhaps no one appreciated the dead monarch's real generosity and kindness of heart as did his private secretary.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE BROKE

Mrs. Theodore Perry Shonts, mother of a duchess and wife of an American millionaire, recently found herself in Paris unable to leave her apartment, which she must vacate at once, according to the lease, on account of not having money to pay the usual charges made when a tenant quits.

Mrs. Shonts rented an apartment on the Avenue Hoche several years ago at an annual rental of $3,500, exclusive of taxes and other charges which would run the figures much higher. Obeying an urgent, imperative summons from her husband to return to America, she gave notice that she would not renew the lease when the time expired.

The difficulty with her husband caused him to stop sending the usual remittances and when a bill for $400 was presented by the landlord to pay for damages done to the apartment during the term of the lease, Mrs. Shonts found herself without money and unable to pay the amount. H. G. Archibald, her attorney, taking compassion upon Mrs. Shonts in her predicament, advanced the necessary money and drew on Theodore Shonts to reimburse himself. His draft was returned unpaid, with the notation by Shonts that he sent money to his family when it was wished, and "did not want any interference from outside parties."

For some time the Shonts have been estranged, due, it is alleged, to Mrs. Shonts' desire to mix with European nobility and to live abroad. Since it became known that Mr. Shonts had stopped supplying his wife with means it was rumored that she had threatened to sue for divorce. Mrs. Shonts denies the latter allegation.

A WIRY LITTLE AMBASSADOR

James Bryce, ambassador of Great Britain to the United States, is one of the youngest old men in official circles in Washington. He is past 70, and yet he is as active, physically and mentally, as though he were 30 years younger. In the winter when other men go about with throats muffled up and overcoats buttoned snugly about them, Ambassador Bryce is frequently seen walking briskly down Connecticut avenue with no wrap outside his frock coat. Cold has no terrors for him and he stands the heat equally as well. Some time ago he had an appointment with Secretary Knox at the state department about noon, and at that hour the thermometer hovered about 100 and mounting higher. But on the stroke of the hour in bustled Mr. Bryce, looking cool as a cucumber, ready for business and apparently not worried over the oppressive temperature that wilted people generally. Mr. Bryce is just as active mentally as he is physically and he is interested in everything. No subject is too large or too small to attract his notice and in this manner he has collected a tremendous fund of information upon every conceivable topic.

CHOSEN RULER OF THE ELKS

John P. Sullivan of New Orleans was chosen grand exalted ruler of the Order of Elks at Atlantic City, N. J. He is a member of New Orleans lodge No. 30. Shortly after he joined the lodge he was elected esteemed lecturing knight. While holding that office he gained the name of "Thanopsis" Sullivan, because of his magnificent voice and his mode of delivering Bryant's poem.

The third year of his membership Sullivan was elected exalted ruler of the lodge, and on the night of his installation he declared that it was his ambition to get a new home for No. 30. There was not a dollar in the exchequer and the membership was about 700. At the end of Sullivan's second year as exalted ruler of the lodge New Orleans lodge had a home that is second to none in the country, and a membership in excess of 1,700.

Sullivan is a man of magnificent physique, standing six feet three inches in his stocking feet, and weighs 250. He was a West Point cadet, but left the military academy to study law. When the Spanish-American war broke out, Sullivan, who was lieutenant colonel of the Washington Field Artillery, volunteered with his command to go to the front. When the war was over he resumed his law practice at New Orleans.

MANY PHENOMS HAVE BLOWN UP

"Every club in the American league has at least one player of whom great things were expected, or who started well, but petered out. This is a great season for exploded phenoms," says the Cleveland Press.

Wise old Connie Mack stands out as the manager who was fooled worst. Connie was stung on Lefty Russell, for whom he gave Baltimore $12,500. Russell was a sensation in the Eastern league last season, but the step from a fast minor league to fast company was too much for Lefty.

Jack Lively started like a wonderful pitcher for the Tigers, but has fallen by the wayside.

Gene Elliott and Otis Johnson, Yankee infielders, failed to deliver the goods after showing brilliant form in the spring.

Chris. Nummacker, young Red Sox Catcher, looked like a sure star the first three weeks of the season, but catches now only when Bill Carrigan isn't fit.

LOCALS WIN AND LOSE

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug. 21.—Escanaba and Ishpeming broke even on the four-game series played Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Union Park grounds. Ishpeming won Friday and Escanaba Saturday. Ishpeming took the first game yesterday by a score of 4 to 2, and Escanaba copped the second, a five inning contest, by a score of 11 to 7.

The first game yesterday was a brilliant exhibition. It was largely a pitchers' battle between Scott and Scanlon. Scott allowed but three hits, and Scanlon seven. In the ninth inning Aronson hit safely for three bases and Flath singled. These two bingles, together with an error by Geelan, gave the visitors two scores.

Ishpeming scored in the first inning when McCrory the second batter up, hit for two bags. Clark went out, Lindquist to Scanlon, the latter covering the sack on a grounder that was hit down the first base line. Geelan singled, scoring McCrory.

Escanaba got one man to first in the second on an error by Flynn and in the fourth Aronson hit for two sacks. In the fifth Scott walked two men, after two had been retired. Olmsted reached first when Geelan booted his grounder, this filling the sacks. Scott then fanned Ohlin.

Ishpeming sent one man across the plate in the seventh and two in the eighth. Mooney opened the latter inning and flied out to Lindquist; Scott flew out to Ohlin and Ray reached first on an error by Ohlin. McCrory singled, Burke in left field booting the ball, permitting Ray to score. Clark hit for two bases scoring McCrory. Clark was retired when he attempted to reach third on the hit.

SECOND GAME A BATTLE

The second game of the double header was the heaviest slugging match seen on the Ishpeming grounds this season. All of the pitchers seemed to be in bad form, and each team used three men in the box. Hostetter, who joined the Escanaba team yesterday morning, and who was at one time a star in the big leagues, started in the box, but was pulled out before the first inning ended, Nolden taken his place.

In the first Ray went out on a fly to Olmsted. McCrory reached first on an error by Ohlin and was brought home when Clark hit for three bases, Geelan and Flynn both singled, Clark scoring on Geelan's single and Geelan scoring on Flynn's hit. Hostetter was then derricked. Nicholls hit into right field and was caught out. Hagel singled, and Flynn scored when Connelly threw wild to third. Mooney walked and Hiltonen went out first, when he hit a grounder to Lindquist.

Nolden was touched for three hits in the third inning, which, with two errors, gave Ishpeming two runs. Love pitched the last two innings, only three men facing him in the fourth, but in the fifth he was touched for singles by Geelan and Flynn, the former scoring on Flynn's hit.

Hiltonen retired the first three batters up in the first inning, but in the second, eighth of the visitors faced him, four of them securing hits, Lindquist a two-bagger and Burke a three-bagger. In the third McCarthy went in the box but his arm was sore from the previous day's work and he had no speed. He was hit for three bingles in the third and seven in the fourth. In the third no runs were scored, but in the fourth seven tallies were brought in. Flynn pitched the fifth inning and retired the batters in one, two, three order, fanning Olmsted, the first man up.

CRYSTAL FALLS MAN IS KILLED

Of the death of officer Arthur Noyes of Crystal Falls, The Diamond Drill says:

Arthur Noyes, of Crystal Falls, a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Noyes, of this city, was found dead in bed at 5 o'clock last Saturday evening. Mr. Noyes was a night policeman and had retired early in the day for his usual sleep. At about ten minutes before his regular rising hour, his wife on a visit to the bedroom found him sleeping peacefully and not wishing to disturb him went out on the rear porch to do some sewing. While thus engaged, she heard a muffled pistol shot but did not know that the report came from the bedroom and on going there saw her husband still lying in bed, both arms raised and the right hand grasping a revolver. The bullet had entered the right temple and shattered the brain, but he lived for two hours after the accident.

Just how the unfortunate affair happened will ever remain a mystery. Two theories are advanced: one being that he was toying with the gun. It is known that he was always careless in handling firearms and had often been warned in that regard; another supposition given credence among townspeople is that the accident was done during a nightmare.

Arthur Noyes was 31 years old and had made his home at Crystal Falls for three years. He had been on police duty for the past ten months and made a model officer. He belonged to the local lodge of Knights of Pythias and was also a member of the Young Men's Club.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon and was conducted by the lodge, with the seventeen members of the club acting as honorary pallbearers.

WAPPAUN OFFICIALS FRUSTRATE A PLOT

Waupun, Wis., Aug. 21.—A raid was made today on the cells of all the prisoners in the state penitentiary, after the authorities had received a hint of a coming wholesale rising of convicts to free everyone in the institution.

The raid disclosed about 250 weapons of various description, there being about 155 knives alone. The prisoners were held in the chapel while the search was made.

A negro murderer had eight saws in his cell, fashioned into broad-bladed knives.

CLAIM BASE ON BALLS IS AS GOOD AS A HIT

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 21.—"A base on ball is as good as a hit," is a statement known to each coacher in the land. It is not the truth, but it is an approximation of truth. A hit will, as a rule, advance, while a pass may leave him where he was or advance at best chance one base.

Sheckard of the Cubs, Huggins of St. Louis, Devore of the Giants, Dan-iels and Hemphill of the Phillies and Hooper of the Red Sox are all conspicuous among the lead-off men for their ability to wait it out.

Huggins, perhaps, is the greatest of the group. He led the National league in drawing passes last year by a big margin. His ability is partly due to his small size, but there are, of course, other factors as well. Huggins is one of the shortest men in baseball and he also hugs the plate. He will wait out till the last possible minute before offering at a ball and he almost never goes after the bad ones. Topsy Hartsel is another player whose size is extremely useful to him in drawing passes. In fact it is for this purpose almost entirely that he is used. He is no longer much of a hitter or fielder, but when Mack sees a pitcher beginning to waver in his control he often sends Hartsel to get him up in the air. Many of the Athletics' games have been won by the little fellow's ability along these lines.

It is ability as a waiter which puts Cobb head and shoulders above other men who hit the ball for almost as high an average. Wagner and Lajoie do not like to wait. They will reach out for wide ones with men on bases in the desire to drive the ball for extra base hits. Joe Jackson is also a notorious offender in this respect. Of course, such a method sometimes turn out well, but it smacks a bit of grandstand playing and is not the best sort of baseball.

INJURED YOUNG WOMAN TELLS OF HER CASE

Late in last spring an unscrupulous person living at Osler forged the name of the Morning Press' regular correspondent at that place to an item telling of the marriage of Miss Florence Chenail of that village. The item was wholly without foundation and in spite of the efforts of agents for the Morning Press in attempting to discover the identity of the writer all efforts have failed.

The following letter from the young woman who was injured by the publication of the item was received by the Morning Press yesterday:

After waiting for the results of your further investigation into the matter of the malicious report of my marriage to one, Henry Rocheford, I deem it necessary to make a personal refutation of the slanderous news item appearing in the issue of June 8th.

It is hardly necessary for me to state that the originator of the falsehood did not consult me before sending in the news item over the forged signature of the regular correspondent, but boldly attempted to belittle and stain my reputation through the columns of your valuable publication.

Since I received your communication stating that you would do all in your power to discover the guilty party or parties, I have been patiently waiting the outcome as it is my earnest desire that the vilifiers of my good name shall receive the severest punishment that the law can administer.

It is a great consolation to me and the only satisfaction I have had so far to know that you will continue to make a diligent search for the identity of the offender. And you may be assured that my family and I will render every possible assistance in bringing about the discovery of the unscrupulous slanderer.

Thanking you for your efforts in the past and wishing you immediate success in future efforts, I am,

Sincerely yours,
FLORENCE CHENAIL,
Osler, Mich.

The party came through from Hancock with but few stops and after a short stop left for Detroit by way of Marquette, Fond du Lac, Milwaukee and Chicago. ## CONDITION STILL VERY CRITICAL

The condition of Mrs. W. L. Hill, mother of James Hill a Chicago and Northwestern engineer, who was found at the home of her son 524 Ogden avenue last Tuesday morning in an unconscious condition following a stroke of apoplexy, is still very critical. The aged woman is still unconscious and has taken no nourishment since the stroke. Last night very little hope for her recovery was entertained. Mrs. Hill is past seventy years of age and has been a resident of Escanaba for the past 30 years and has a host of friends in the city and county.

CAPT. LAVINE IS INCENSED OVER REPORT

When Capt. Lavine of The Commercial "Near Champlain," was shown "Pap" Hodsons article in Monday evening's edition of The Daily Mirror, he appeared somewhat irritated, not to say sarcastic and almost shouted at the reporter, "Cut out that patter Cap Hodson was prepared to prove an alibi for his entire team last Wednesday, knowing that his line up meant for his team certain defeat."

"You can say for me, that our dates ahead for the next two months, when we finish our Commercial league schedule, are all booked-excepting Thursday next, and if they are prepared to get down to brass tacks on Aug. 24th, we will 'reduce that swelling' and we wont use cold compresses at that. Its my private opinion however that our professional friends will be holding consultations in various parts of the country at that time.

Capt. Lavine was considerably confused by the item appearing in last night's issue of the Mirror and it was not until friends came to his assistance that he was able to decipher the real meaning and make active preparations for a battle on Thursday which fact was supposed to be conveyed in the article of the evening publication.

RISES TO ALTITUDE OF 11,678 FEET

Chicago, Aug. 21.—The officials of the international aviation meet late tonight issued the following statement:

"Lincoln Beachey, in a Curtiss bi-plane, rose to an altitude of 11,578 feet, or 3,529 meters today. This figure will be subject to a slight addition as a result of the vapor pressure, which will be ascertained by the weather bureau. This is positively a world's record. Major Samule W. Raeber, a government expert, made careful measurement of Beachey's barograph and pronounced it correct."

MAN WHO LOST LEGS IMPROVING AT THE HOSPITAL

The condition of Marshal Forest, who had both limbs crushed under an engine in the ore yards on Saturday afternoon, was yesterday reported to be favorable. The patient was in excellent physical condition and rallied strongly from the effects of the operation when both legs were amputated. He is being cared for at the Delta county hospital and will remain there until the wounds about the stumps of his limbs are completely healed.

OUTING WAS MUCH ENJOYED

The outing party that the yacht Calanthe took to Stoughton Sunday reports the best time they ever had, the captain, officers and ladies of one of the ore boats was of the party and the way they enjoyed the occasion was pleasant for them to remember.

An Escanaba joker 'or pin head tried to mar the return trip by scaring the ladies into life preservers and nearly succeeded in causing hysterics among some of the ladies by his foolishness.

The Calanthe also took the Alpha ball team to Rapid River.

RIESS TEAM WINS FROM SOUTH SIDES

By the decisive score of 10 to 4 the Reiss Cal company's base ball team won from the South Sides. The batteries for the Reiss team were McCarthy and McCauley; for the South Sides, Arenson, Ruebens, Klinger and Arenson and Groth. The Reiss team which was organized this spring is a classy aggregation and so far this season has lost but one game. They are open for games with any of the strictly amateur teams of the city.

GOMEZ GEIS RID OF BITTER FOES

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 21.—Jose Maria Villaverde, managing editor of the paper Cuba and his nephew, Manuel Villaverde, an editorial writer on the Cuba, were seized today at the residence of the former, placed on board a steamer and deported to Spain.

The Cuba has been continuously assailing the government of President Gomez, and today, acting under a presidential decree, a squad of police visited the residence of Senor Villaverde and demanded admision. This being refused, the police battered down the door, seized the two Villaverdes and, without giving them time to make any preparations, rushed both on board the steamship Alphonse XIII, which sailed this evening for Spanish ports.

A presidential decree issued this evening regarding the deportation denounced the Villaverdes, who are Spaniards, as pernicious foreigners actively hostile to the Cuban government and hence subject to deportation. The action of President Gomez is unprecedented. The Cuban constitution does not invest in the president the authority to order any person deported.

The elder Villaverde was one of the most prominent Spaniards in Cuba. American in Danger. It was rumored here tonight that the government intends to take similar action against E. D. Stevin, editor of the American Weekly Advocate, which is a strong advocate of American annexation.
