

TO HOLD MEETING

ANNUAL SESSION OF ESCANABA BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION HELD NEXT WEEK

President J. E. Hyrns, of the Escanaba Business Men's Association, yesterday issued the official call for the annual meeting of the association to be held at the Elks temple on Tuesday evening Apr. 16. As a special feature of the meeting W. H. Welsh, official lecturer of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, will appear at the meeting and present stereopticon views of the agricultural districts of the peninsula. The slides have been especially prepared to show actual conditions in the peninsula district and as a number of the scenes were taken in this part of the peninsula that are certain to be interesting.

An election of officers for the coming year will be conducted at the meeting and reports of officers of the work accomplished in the past year will be received.

RAID IS CONDUCTED

Believing that an effort was being made to pry up the lid placed some time ago on Escanaba's red light district Sheriff T. J. Curran and Chief of Police Andrew Iverson last night conducted a systematic search of all the houses on Thomas street and placed under arrest six women and four men. The man arrested is Oliver Harkness, who recently was released from jail after serving a sentence for being a vagrant. The women were taken from three different places and some are said not to be regular inmates, one being a married woman, whose husband is employed at a local factory.

BARN IS DESTROYED

During the electrical storm that swept this district early yesterday morning a bolt lighting struck a barn at the farm of O. O. Follo, at Fayette and the structure was burned to the ground. Several head of cattle and horses in the barn were burned to death, making the loss a particularly heavy one for Mr. Follo. The barn was one of the best in that portion of the county and in addition to the stock held a quantity of hay and farm machinery.

Following the striking of the bolt the fire spread rapidly through the structure and all efforts to save any of the stock or machinery proved to be futile.

Whether or not any insurance was carried on the structure by Mr. Follo could not be learned last night.

LIGHTNING HITS FLAG POLE AT LOCAL SALES STABLE

During the severe electrical storm that swept over Escanaba early yesterday morning the lightning struck a flag pole on Hessel's sales stable, but did no damage to the building. The bolt shattered the top of the pole and splattered the staff nearly to the building when it apparently crashed off into the air.

Yesterday morning's storm was the first of the season accompanied by violent thunder and lightning. Although accompanied by a sharp fall of rain the total fall was not heavy registering .15 of an inch at the weather station.

Rene Marchand returned last night to DePere to resume his work at St. Robert's college after enjoying the Easter vacation at the home of his parents here.

TAKE BODY TO COOKS FOR BURIAL

The body of Theodore Lang, who died at the county hospital here on Tuesday night, was taken to his former home at Cook's Mills yesterday morning in charge of George Gray who came to the city for that purpose. Funeral services will be conducted over the body at Cook's Mills this afternoon.

ARBOR DAY DESIGNATED

GOV. CHAS. S. OSBORN YESTERDAY ISSUED PROCLAMATION TO PEOPLE OF STATE

Gov. Chase S. Osborn of Michigan by special proclamation designated Friday, May 3, as Arbor and Bird Day to be observed throughout the state.

Following is the proclamation issued by the governor:

By legislative enactment the Governor is authorized to set apart one day in each year to be known and observed as Arbor and Bird Day.

The following essay is by Hon. L. Whitney Watkins, State Senator from the tenth district, author of the law:

"The importance of Arbor and Bird Day as a most potent factor in the enlargement and conservation of our natural resources and in the higher place of culture and refinement which always accompany an awakened public interest in Nature, cannot be over estimated. It is surely a mark of finer intelligence which turns the mind of man away from our artificial humdrum mode of life to the Creator's restful offering of trees and birds and flowers in the open forum of Nature's haunts.

"It is gratifying to note the increasing interest and enthusiasm with which the people of our State celebrate Arbor and Bird Day, making it an event of enduring value and importance in our commonwealth. Splendid has been the work of superintendents and teachers in our schools, of the women's clubs, of our farmers' and city organizations, in encouraging the planting of trees and the protecting of the wild birds that find home and shelter among their branches. The public spirited work of these men and women will exert a lasting influence upon the rising generation and will insure among the masses a higher standard of public conscience and personal integrity and honor than ever before.

"It is recommended that groves and orchards be planted near the public highways and that lawns be adorned with trees and shrubs; that birds be encouraged and protected by setting up boxes and sections of hollow trees in advantageous places for their nests. Every effort should be made to stop the ruthless destruction by the gun and axe in the hands of the thoughtless."

Therefore I, Chase S. Osborn, Governor of the Commonwealth of Michigan, do hereby issue this my Proclamation, designating May 3, 1912, as Arbor and Bird Day throughout the Commonwealth and earnestly urge its observance.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State, this ninth day of April, in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve, and of the Commonwealth the seventy-sixth.

(Signed) Chase S. Osborn,
By the Governor: Governor,
F. C. Martindale,
Secretary of State.

ROOSEVELT SWEEPS MAINE

(Special to the Morning Press) Bangor Me. Apr. 11—In the longest and most turbulent session on record in his state for such a gathering the Republican state convention today elected ten Roosevelt delegates to the Republican national convention to be held in Chicago. By securing the endorsement of today's convention Roosevelt has made a clean sweep of Maine, the district delegates all being instructed to oppose the renomination of President W. H. Taft.

ELKS ENJOYED A FINE MEETING AT THEIR HALL

Easily one of the most enjoyable and enthusiastic meetings in the history of the Escanaba lodge of Elks was that of last night when officers elected for the coming year were formally installed and following which a class of candidates was received into the order. The complete installation ceremony was carried out last night and with a large part of the membership present, proved most impressive. The new form initiation ritual was also used last night with excellent effect.

Following the business and ceremonial meeting a social session was enjoyed, being concluded with the serving of refreshments.

DEBATING SOCIETIES HOLD LAST MEETING

The final meeting of the debating societies of the Escanaba High school will be held this evening. In addition to the carrying out of an enjoyable program officers will be chosen for the coming year.

Members of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Methodist Episcopal church will hold a sale of home made candles at the Hill drug store this afternoon and evening.

ROOSEVELT FORCES BOLT

TURBULENT SCENES MARKED MICHIGAN REPUBLICAN CONVENTION YESTERDAY.

(Special to the Morning Press) Bay City Mich., Apr. 11—Pandemonium broke out and finally a violent division of the Taft and Roosevelt forces marked the Michigan Republican convention here today. After a vain effort to gain control of the convention and seat contesting delegations from Wayne and Calhoun counties the Roosevelt forces left the regular convention and held a rump meeting at the hotel.

Both the Taft and Roosevelt factions will send delegations to the Republican national convention in Chicago.

With Robert H. Shields of Houghton, chosen by the Taft forces as temporary chairman and with Roosevelt forces naming Truman Newberry, of Detroit, for the same position, a riot was narrowly averted in the convention when each of the opposing temporary chairmen attempted to call the convention to order. A din arose in the hall that completely drowned the voices of the two men. W. D. Goddon, of Midland, a violent Roosevelt supporter sprang to the platform, while the "smult" was at its height and attempted to speak. Jack Cramer, publisher of the Marquette Chronicle, and a member of the Taft central committee, sprang at the speaker and hurled him from the platform. Hundreds of delegates surged forward to mix in the battle of fists but were held back by members of the police force and militia in the hall.

Following that incident the Roosevelt forces gave up the convention to the Taft men and adjourned to the hotel where their rump convention (Continued on Page Eight)

POPE IS NOT DEAD

Washington D. C. Apr. 11—Through the misinterpretation of a cable message sent out from Rome an unfounded report was circulated throughout the world today that the Pope was dead. The error was corrected after the first report had been given much publicity. At the Vatican today it was said that there was no change in the Pope's condition.

CARD PARTY OF TUESDAY EVENING TO ATTRACT MANY

Marked interest is being aroused in the card party to be given by members of the Altar Society of St. Joseph's church at St. Joseph's hall on Tuesday evening of next week. The event is the first arranged to be given at St. Joseph's hall since the close of the Lenten period and many people will take advantage of the opportunity to attend the first card party arranged in the city in the after Lenten season. Particularly elaborate plans are being made by those in charge of the affair and a delightful evening is anticipated for all of those who are present.

YOUNG MAN WILL LOCATE IN DETROIT

Edward Krueger, a popular young man of the city, will leave Escanaba early this morning for Detroit to remain permanently in that city where he will take up his position as draftsman. For several years he has been employed by the Escanaba Manufacturing Company as a butterdish machine wireman. For two years he has served as janitor of the Emanuel German Lutheran church and was prominent in the work of the young people of that congregation. He has a host of friends in the city who will regret greatly his decision to leave Escanaba.

MARINETTE MAKES PLANS

WISCONSIN CLUB IN LOCAL LEAGUE PUTTING GROUNDS IN SHAPE FOR SEASON

Active plans are already under way in Marinette for the coming league baseball season. The ball park is being placed in condition for the opening of the schedule and when work is completed Marinette will have an ideal park.

Of work that has been started the Marinette Eagle Star says:

J. J. Schleibs is having the baseball grounds at the State street park placed in condition for the opening of the season, and other work preparatory to the coming season is being done.

"Dick" Murphy is actively engaged in recruiting players. Any home men who aspire to "make" the team will be given tryouts. They will have a fair shake with outside men if they are fast enough for the team. Murphy now has a line on some good men who will be here before long for tryouts. Meekan, the former Oconto twirler, will undoubtedly be one of the pitchers, or at least he will be given a tryout. He made a wonderful record at Virginia City, Minn., last season, and he is thought to be fast enough for the talent that will be engaged for the new league. He is also a favorite with local fans. Who the second pitcher will be is not known as yet.

Marinette will play a number of exhibition games, probably with Niagara, Iron Mountain and other semi-pro teams in this locality, before the league season opens. These exhibition games will prove good training for the local team and will also give the fans a line on the players. Prospects now are for one of the best seasons of baseball the city has ever had.

BASKET SOCIAL IS ARRANGED

Members of the Young Peoples Society of the Norwegian Lutheran church have made complete plans for a basket social to be served at that church this evening. A short program and several unique features will be introduced at the social of tonight and a large number of patrons are expected to attend.

TELLS OF CEREMONY

W. B. ERWIN WRITES PRESS OF SULTAN'S PROCESSION WITNESSED IN CONSTANTINOPLE

W. B. Erwin, of this city, who is spending the winter abroad, has written an interesting letter to the editor of the Press of an impressive ceremony witnessed by him while in Constantinople. The ceremony is called the Selamlik, or the procession that accompanies the Sultan when he goes to the mosque to pray.

Mr. Erwin in Rome at the time of writing the letter, expected the privilege of an audience with the Pope and following which he intended to leave for Florence, Lucerne, Interlaken and Paris.

Following is the letter received by the Press from Mr. Erwin:

As I expect while here to have an audience with the Pope, the thought has occurred to me that you might be interested in another ceremony that I witnessed while in Constantinople namely the "Selamlik," or the procession which accompanies the Sultan, when he goes to the Mosque to pray.

Later I will tell you what I saw at the Vatican. Perhaps in explanation, I should say that the Sultan (officially) only prays once a week, namely on Friday, the Mohammedan Sunday. As it is an important function, thousands are on hand to watch him pass from the Yildiz Kiosk (Palace) to the Mosque, a distance of about 1000 ft. We engaged a carriage and were on hand in the street through which he was to pass an hour before 12. Fully 5000 soldiers were massed in the roadway leading from the Palace to the Mosque. Such a variety of uniforms, of muskets, of strange faces! The pick of the Sultan's army are in his body-guard and his immediate attendants at this function, are the most aristocratic of Constantinople men who consider it an honor to so attend the Sultan at the "Selamlik." These men were mounted on fine Arabian horses, probably 100 in the body-guard.

Finally came the Sultan's carriage, a handsome Victoria, drawn by cream colored horses, with gold mounted harness.

The Sultan did not appear much different from most Turks, rather stout, a man about 60, very gray, dressed in an ordinary morning suit (European fashion) but with the "fez" or red cap. As he passed he continually waved his hand in salute in answer to the cheers of the soldiers and the people looking on.

After passing and entering the Mosque, the soldiers were massed about it, and everything became quiet—the onlookers retiring. After an hour (so I was told) the Sultan returns to his Palace, and the most important ceremony of the week in Constantinople is ended.

As the Sultan is the head of the Mohammedan religion, occupying the same position as the Pope does to the Catholic religion, I have thought that perhaps you would be interested in hearing about this ceremony.

Yours sincerely,
W. B. Erwin.

INGHAM COUNTY DRY SAYS LATEST FIGURES

Lansing, Mich., April 11—Consternation reigned among the liquor men of Ingham county yesterday afternoon when the result of the canvass of supervisors showed the county to have gone dry by 23 votes.

In copying the result of the vote in the first precinct of the Fifth ward of this city, the inspectors reversed the wet majority and as the figures now stand Ingham county is dry. However, there will be a recount and it is expected that the wet majority will stand.

WILSON IS CRITICISED

(Special to the Morning Press) Trenton N. J., Apr. 11—That the relations between Gov. Woodrow Wilson and the Republican senators and assemblymen of the state legislature, have reached the breaking point was made apparent today. President Prince of the senate today gave out a statement signed by all of the Republican senators and assemblymen in conference, scathingly criticizing Gov. Wilson. In the statement it is asserted that he is neglecting his duties to the state in an effort to further his interests in a presidential campaign and is giving practically no attention to the duties of his office of governor.

CALL IS ANSWERED

Following a stroke of apoplexy, with which he was stricken two weeks ago, Jules Russell, one of the pioneers of Delta county and well known to a host of people in this district, passed away yesterday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Burgeon, at 308 South Sarah street. From the time that he was stricken until death came Mr. Russell had been unconscious and for several days the end was expected. Early yesterday morning he breathed the last surrounded by members of his family.

Mr. Russell was 88 years of age, having been born in New York state Jan. 1, 1824. He remained at his birthplace until 1861 when he moved to Canada where he purchased a farm. Twenty-five years ago he disposed of his interests in Canada and came to this district, settling at Ford River. Six years ago Mr. and Mrs. Russell moved to the city and shortly after that time Mrs. Russell passed away and since then Mr. Russell had made his home with his daughter.

He is survived by five sons and three daughters, who are: John Russell, Rhinelander Wis.; Joseph Russell, Escanaba; Daniel Russell, Masonville; Peter Russell, Ford River; Alex Russell, Ashland Wis.; Mrs. John Connelly Escanaba, Mrs. Charles Burgeon Escanaba and Mrs. John Goodman of Saginaw.

Mr. Russell had a wide circle of friends throughout this district and to all the announcement of his death will come as a severe shock.

Funeral services will be conducted over the body at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock on Saturday morning, Rev. Father Barth officiating. Interment will be at St. Anne's cemetery.

WILL COACH COLLEGE TEAM

"GENE" CONNELLY WILL DRILL BASEBALL TEAM OF ST. VIATOR'S COLLEGE AT KANKAKEE

"Gene" Connelly, captain of the Escanaba baseball team for a portion of last season and signed as third baseman of the local squad for the coming season, yesterday signed a contract to serve as baseball coach for St. Viator's college at Kankakee Ill. Mr. Connelly will leave for Kankakee on Sunday evening and will be engaged with the college team for about five weeks, returning here in time to take up his job with the local team when the I. P. W. schedule is opened.

By coaching the college team Connelly will be able to reach a prime condition before returning here to play with the locals and the position in addition offers many advantages.

Connelly graduated from Notre Dame University last June and was one of the stars of the baseball squad of the school and it was because of the prominence gained by him in baseball circles at Notre Dame that he was offered the position of coach at St. Viator's.

WRITING AN EXPOSE

San Francisco, Apr. 11.—Abraham Ruef, convicted political boss of San Francisco, now serving a sentence of fourteen years in San Quentin penitentiary, has begun in the San Francisco Bulletin a series of articles which he declares will constitute a complete expose of the men accused with him in the graft prosecutions but not convicted. "Without reservation," he says, "I shall relate my action and the parts played by others."

Ruef goes back ten years, when he first gained recognition from influential men. The first period is abridged by a single sentence: "A few years later found me associated with the tools and messengers of the railroads." The beginning of his association with a leading railroad official is told succinctly: "He began to court me. I could get passes and favors from him. For the first time I dined at his home." The publication of the articles was precipitated by an editorial in a San Francisco newspaper April 4 which characterized Ruef as a "human hyena" and condemned the agitation for his release.

Directors of public utility corporations and railroads, public officials and politicians are named by Ruef in his prologue and he declares he will show how money was promised and paid. "Since the heavy doors of the state prison closed behind me," he says, "I have given much consideration to the events and influences which ended so ignominiously a life full of hope. I believe much good can come from a straightforward statement of my experiences. I have determined to make such a statement. I shall give all important facts and events, including those leading up to and embracing the San Francisco graft prosecutions."

Here Ruef mentions the granting of a franchise to a street railway company and declares he will show how money was paid for the privilege. "I shall give a full account of the famous Santa Cruz convention, which nominated Governor Gillette," he continues, "and of all my conferences in relation thereto." He begins his narrative with a confession of repentance. He says, in part:

"With others I co-operated in selling out the city of San Francisco and so I am in a prison cell. It has taken these stone walls, this area, six by ten, where the only light or air is that which comes from a narrow wicket, to bring me to a full realization of this betrayal. I started life buoyantly. When I left the university I had the usual high ideals of that period. How and why my life flew so wide of its goal I now am determined to trace and to write in detail in the hope that it may prove of public benefit and make amends for what society has lost by my work. I shall write without extenuation of myself or those who co-operated with me."

Ruef tells of becoming disgusted with politics and having decided to devote himself exclusively to law. He refers to two railroad "fixers": "For ten years I was associated with these two men," he continued. "I wrote their platforms. I made their nominating speeches. I quit from time to time and joined the independent reform movements, only to learn that they were controlled by the same big interests. I drifted with the machine."

NEW YORKER IS MURDERED; POLICE ACCUSE THE WIFE

New York, Apr. 11.—Walter J. Snyder, thirty-seven years old, managing editor of the periodical "Sports of the Times," was found dead in the bathtub of his apartment today, with four stab wounds near his heart, by two bellboys who were called into the room by his wife, Mrs. Mary S. Snyder. She was arrested later and charged with homicide. According to the police Mrs. Snyder said he was holding a pair of seven-inch scissors in her hand when her husband attempted to embrace her and the scissors accidentally penetrated his body.

GARY ROASTS WISCONSIN "U."

Madison, Wis., April 11.—Universities generally, and the University of Wisconsin in particular, are severely criticized by State Superintendent of Schools C. P. Cary, in a statement issued today, for alleged failure to give proper attention to the students in the regular college courses.

"Our own state university," said Dr. Cary "is more fully submitted to the theory of looking after the interests of the one in ten or fifteen who already have college diplomas than is any other state institution with which I am acquainted."

Universities generally, he says, unduly magnify the importance of post-graduate study and research work.

"The course of American education," the superintendent says, "is the Ph. D., which may be secured by a student only by remaining at a university three years beyond the regular four-year course. These graduates are then called 'specialists.' But the world is not eager for their services. As the president of a great university remarked a few years ago, 'You can get such men by the carload for $1,000 a year.'"

ZEMO MAKES ASTONISHING ECZEMA CURES

Every day ZEMO gives relief and cures men, women and children in every city and town in America whose skins are on fire with torturing ECZEMA rashes and other itching, burning, scaly, and crusted skin and scalp humors.

ZEMO and ZEMO (ANTISEPTIC) SOAP, two refined preparations will give you such quick relief that you will feel like a new person.

We give you three reasons why we recommend and endorse ZEMO and ZEMO SOAP for all skin and scalp eruptions.

- 1st. They are clean, scientific preparations that give universal satisfaction and are pleasant and agreeable to use at all times.
- 2nd. They are not experiments, but are proven cures for every form of skin or scalp affections whether on infants or grown persons.
- 3rd. They work on a new principle. They do not glaze over the surface, but they penetrate to the seat of the trouble and draw the germ life from underneath the skin and destroy it. In this way a complete cure is effected in any case of SKIN OR SCALP ERUPTION. Endorsed and sold in Escanaba by the Groos Drug store.

RESULT EXPECTED, SAYS TAFT BUREAU

Washington, D. C., April 10.—Representative William B. McKinley, director of the Taft national headquarters, today issued the first official comment from the Taft side upon the presidential primary in Illinois.

"The result in Illinois was not unexpected to those familiar with the situation," said Mr. McKinley in his statement.

"The issues which occupied the attention of the people of the state were so peculiarly local as to cause the presidential issue to be lost sight of so far as President Taft was concerned. I say this advisedly and for this reason: Mr. Roosevelt recently invaded the state and devoted the major portion of his addresses to subjects which had no relation whatever, for the most part, to the issues on which the Republican party must meet the Democratic party in November.

"Furthermore, the question discussed by Mr. Roosevelt in his speeches had little to do with the actual issues which he has raised between himself and Mr. Taft. In other words, Mr. Roosevelt participated in the campaign in Illinois with all the freedom of a full-fledged citizen of the state and met and talked to voters of Illinois on the subjects which were uppermost in their minds—namely state issues.

"The participation of eight candidates for the Republican nomination for governor resulted in the complete breaking down of all party organization," says the statement, "and new alignments were brought about."

"These new organizations Mr. Roosevelt was able to reach by personal contact, an experience which President Taft could not enjoy," says Director McKinley.

"The result in Illinois has no bearing whatever on the outcome of the presidential contest in the Republican party, except insofar as it expresses the desires of Illinois based on purely local issues.

"I have never, in any public statement, claimed a single delegate from Illinois in the Chicago convention and I have never included in my calculations when I have said, repeat edly, that President Taft will have more votes in the Chicago convention this year than he had in 1908 when he received 702 votes. I repeat that prediction now and am absolutely confident of its vindication.

"In no other state in the Union are conditions existing where Mr. Roosevelt can make the same kind of a campaign as he did in Illinois. To the voters of other states he will have to confine himself to the national issue, including his proposal of the recall of judges, and the third term issue. These are the issues which affect not one state, but forty-eight states, and they cannot be buried by any local issues existing elsewhere."

GETS SCHOLARSHIP AT ILLINOIS U.

Appleton, Wis., April 11.—Paul W. Ivey, one of the most prominent seniors at Lawrence college, has received notice from the board of trustees of the University of Illinois that he has been granted a scholarship in that university for post-graduate work in history and economics.

Mr. Ivey has been prominent at Lawrence since his freshman year. He was graduated from the high school at Ishpeming, Mich., but now resides Grayling, Michigan, from which city he came to Lawrence four years ago. He was a member of the victorious freshman debating team his first year in college, and was a member of the Lawrence debating team which defeated Albion, Mich., last year and debates against Albion again on Friday night.

For the last two years he has represented his class in oratory and last year represented Lawrence in the state oratorical contest. He is a member of the student senate, of the Mace, Tau Kappa Alpha and Sigma Tau fraternities was manager of the Lawrence team last year and is manager of athletics this year.

He was awarded the scholarship at Illinois through the recommendation of the Lawrence faculty.

WHAT CONFERENCE DID AT SATURDAY'S MEETING

Professor George Ehler of the University of Wisconsin and A. Alonzo Stark of the University of Chicago are deposed from membership. Ohio state admitted to the conference.

The dual representation system introduced by the presidents was turned down.

The conference is to be made up of one representative from each school. Athletic director of persons receiving remuneration from the physical departments are denied a seat in the conference.

Water polo is placed under the ban as a conference sport.

A committee on rules is to be appointed to establish a football code for conference schools.

The conference is to refer all discussions of technical matters to committees of experts to be picked from the athletic heads at the various institutions.

The conference is to decide on all scholastic questions.

Freshmen were denied all particulars in intercollegiate contests between first-year teams.

A committee is to investigate charges that inducements are offered athletes to enter school and that men are supported after entering.

MOTHER HOLDS BODY OF LITTLE SON FOR A WEEK

Davenport, Ia., April 11.—After having mourned in secret for more than a week over the dead body of her son, Albert, Mrs. Wilhelmina Falkenkamp today attempted to buy a coffin without telling the undertaker what it was for. An investigation by the coroner found the body so badly decomposed as to be almost unrecognizable. The woman is in custody for observation as to her sanity.

FIND CRAZED WOMAN HYSTERICAL AT BIER

New York, April 11.—Louis G. Parma, an aged musical director of the New York Conservatory of Music, in Harlem, died suddenly today, evidently from natural causes, but under weird circumstances which puzzled the authorities. His body was discovered in a locked room at the conservatory where a woman also was found suffering from a mental strain and who was later taken to a hospital for observation. Her identity has not yet been established.

The attention of occupants of the building was attracted to the director's room by peals of hysterical laughter issuing from it. When the door was broken in the body of the man lay on a bed which was literally covered with paper and clothing. Beside the body sat the hysterical woman. Her hair had fallen about her shoulders and she was talking incoherently to herself. Later at the hospital she continued to talk disconnectedly and failed to make her identity known.

The mystery deepened as inquiry as to the identity of the woman in the case was prosecuted. To the housekeeper at the conservatory she was known as "the woman of mystery." She had lived for years at the conservatory and was always believed by Mrs. Mary Clinton, the housekeeper, she said, to be the professor's wife. They rarely appeared in public together, and the woman, to the best of her knowledge, had never left the room alone. The coroner said he had been informed that during the eight years the musician had occupied the house the woman had been his companion.

Mrs. Clinton, who discovered the professor's dead body, gave a vivid description of the scene. The room was in frightful disorder, she said. The center of the floor was blood-stained and on the bed was the professor's body. The "woman of mystery" was moaning and attempting to talk. Several times she was heard to say: "I can't eat eggs today. They will be good tomorrow."

Other tenants in the building knew little of the professor and nothing about a black-haired, sunken-cheeked young woman who occasionally was seen peering through the window of the front room on the second floor or walking with Parma at night.

TREASURY HEAD TO PROPOSE SMALLER-SIZED PAPER MONEY

Washington, April 10.—Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh will recommend to congress soon that the paper money of the United States be substantially reduced in size and every denomination made uniform in design.

It is contemplated to make all notes 6x6-1/2 inches, a reduction of one-third in size, the present denominations being 7.25x3.04 inches. The proposed plan would reduce the number of designs for United States notes and gold and silver certificates from 10 to 9.

Secretary MacVeagh estimates that the changes would result in a saving of more than $600,000 annually.

SHOW DESIGN TO FOREIGNERS

Charles Y. Knight, celebrated inventor of the sleeve valve motor bearing his name, recently paid The F. B. Stearns Co. of Cleveland, a flattering compliment in connection with his purchase of one of the Stearns-Knight chassis which he has taken to Europe to show designers there the improvements worked out in the Stearns shops.

Mr. Knight says: "Permit me to congratulate you on the wonderful success of the Stearns-Knight car in the hands of hundreds of users who are now operating it. I am hearing nothing but the most flattering reports regarding their behavior, and I do not hesitate to state that no concern which has ever taken up our motor has more conscientiously prepared itself for its design and manufacture."

Our chief engineer, Mr. Thomas, and his foreign mechanical experts, have just returned from Cleveland, and after careful inspection of your methods, materials and the operation of your motors, agree in the conclusion that we can make no suggestion for the improvement of your product, either in design, material or workmanship. I have never seen greater thoroughness employed or care exercised in the construction and testing of my motor, even abroad. I myself, after thorough investigation, do not hesitate to confirm their statement, that no manufacturer has ever produced a Knight motor, the workmanship or operation of which is more perfect, or more satisfactory."

FRECKLE - FACE BETRAY ALLEN TO GET $1,000?

Hillsville, Va., April 11.—For two days the outside world has received no direct information concerning the movements of the detective force which is seeking Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards along the North Carolina boundary.

Everybody here is much interested in the report that a kinsman of the fugitives has offered to betray them for a reward. Those directing the search refuse to admit that any success has attended their efforts to buy the secret, but a well defined story is in circulation to the effect that a member of the Allen clan has agreed to tell the hiding place of his relatives for $1,000 and a promise of protection from publicity.

THE QUEST OF GENTLE HAZARD

Being the Adventures in Love and Chivalry of Lord Richard Jocelyn
By H. M. EGBERT

(Copyright, 1912, by W. G. Chapman.)

A FRUSTRATED ALLIANCE

In the bedroom of his apartment on Madison avenue, New York, Lord Richard Jocelyn was struggling into his dress clothes, and his face wore an expression of as much dissatisfaction as he ever permitted to appear there. When he had brushed his hair and settled his white tie he took up a letter from his father, the cause of his distress, and re-read it slowly.

"My dear Richard," wrote the fourth viscount from his home at Stockton, England, "you have now been six months in America and have not succeeded in your quest of a bride who shall restore to the much depleted family income to its pristine size before we had radical ministries in power and doles for the laboring classes at the expense of the landed gentry. Nor have you displayed any evidence that you are likely to succeed in such an attempt in the near future. And meanwhile the sands of my patience are running out, and what will disconcert you more, I fear, the allowance that I am making you must shortly come to an end.

"I have, therefore, Richard, picked out a bride for you. She is Miss May Jerrold, the daughter of the Pittsburg millionaire, who owns a magnificent house in Fifth avenue, New York. The family have recently been visiting England, where I met them. I have entered into a tentative contract with the mother, and you will do your best to bring about an engagement now that they have returned to America. You will be warmly welcomed, and there is little doubt that, if you are not lost to all sense of duty, Doubtless with Manor will see a new bride next year."

Upon the table lay a second missive, an engraved card, announcing that Mr. and Mrs. Jerrold requested the pleasure of Lord Jocelyn's company to dinner that evening.

Lord Jocelyn had paid one visit to the Jerrolds and it had not pleasantly impressed the young Englishman. He had found May Jerrold a plain-featured, rather worldly girl, and the father a nonentity, socially speaking, ruled by the mother, a pompous personage, who, in language hardly veiled, had suggested that the exchange of the title for the Jerrold wealth would be in the best interests of both families. As to the wealth, there was no doubt of its existence. Though he had recently been implicated in some rather speculative transactions in Wall street, Jerrold pere was reputed by conservative judges to worth fifty millions.

"I suppose that there's no help for it," Lord Jocelyn sighed. "I've got to get spliced. Tonight I shall warm up to the Jerrold girl, and soon after a decent interval—two weeks, say—I shall ask her to be my bride."

He struggled into his overcoat and passed out of his apartment and down the stairs. A crawling taxicab loomed up out of the mist. Lord Jocelyn entered, and some twelve minutes later emerged at the threshold of the Jerrold home.

The guests were for the most part already assembled in the drawing room when he entered. Mrs. Jerrold came forward to meet him with affected enthusiasm, and after he had shaken hands with her daughter, introduced him to some of those nearest.

"Prince Von Mitfohlen, I want you to meet Lord Jocelyn," she said.

The prince, a tall, slender young man of military bearing, bowed stiffly and looked at Jocelyn curiously. "A real prince, Lord Jocelyn," whispered Mrs. Jerrold with evident self-satisfaction. "He's in the 'Almanach de Gotha.'" Lord Jocelyn—Mr. Henry Doane.

The latter was the antithesis of the prince; a short, round, jovial American of the successful business type, who grasped Jocelyn's hand warmly. A few more introductions were effected, and then the servant announced dinner.

"You are to take my daughter down, Lord Jocelyn," said Mrs. Jerrold, and May Jerrold put her small gloved hand upon his arm and accompanied him down the stairs. The drawing room was at the top of the second flight; at the top of the first was a large conservatory, the entrance guarded by two antique sets of armor, each posed, lance in hand, as though to warn all persons away who had not serious business within. On the ground floor was the dining room, lavishly decorated with pictures of all shapes and sizes, most of which bore the names of old masters and had been skillfully copied for the American purchaser in Brussels.

The dinner passed off quietly, the attention of the guests being concentrated rather on the vicissitudes than upon one another. On the other side of Jocelyn's companion sat Prince Mitfohlen, an old fellow who seemed to devote much of his conversation to Mrs. Jerrold, and that she listened with more enthusiasm than she displayed toward himself, Jocelyn felt disconcerted; he seemed to read a secret understanding in their words and gestures. When the ladies departed, the consciousness that he had in no wise pressed his suit or even created friendly relations was increased by the prince's evident self-satisfaction and the slightly patronizing-tones in which he addressed the Englishman.

When at length the gentlemen entered the drawing room Mrs. Jerrold, beckoning Lord Jocelyn into a corner, approached the subject in hand in the most direct way possible.

"I understand, Lord Jocelyn," she began, "that a mutual attraction has sprung up between yourself and May." Lord Jocelyn was too confused to find a suitable answer, but evidently Mrs. Jerrold expected none.

"We were so entranced by your dear father," she continued enthusiastically. "He is such a peerless gentleman, Lord Richard. And before we left he begged that we would find you in New York and take you to our hearts. Yes, those were his very words."

The lady was looking at him with an expression of the utmost and most complacent benevolence.

"And I may tell you, in confidence, Lord Richard," she went on, "that May had more than friendly feelings for you. But she is shy, poor girl, and not quick at expressing herself. Take a mother's word, Lord Richard; go and find her and discover for yourself what sentiments she entertains. I believe," she ended, glancing around her, "that you will find her in the conservatory."

Lord Jocelyn rose obediently. As he left the room he felt his face grow red with shame at the ingenueness of the trap that had been set for him. At the bottom of the flight he heard whispers coming from among the palms in the conservatory, and passing between the two armored figures, he suddenly found himself face to face with May Jerrold and Prince von Mitfohlen. So quickly he came upon them that he could have sworn he saw the prince's right arm in peculiar proximity to the lady's waist; but as he drew near both started up with an expression of embarrassment and stood facing him nervously.

May Jerrold broke the silence. "Have you seen father since dinner?" she asked the prince. "He was crazy to talk with you about buying some hunting dogs. You ought to find him in his library."

The prince took his dismissal with good grace. He bowed to the lady and then to Jocelyn, a slightly supercilious smile hovering upon his lips as he caught the latter's embarrassed glance. Then he was gone, and May Jerrold sat down again and made room for Jocelyn upon the seat beside her.

Jocelyn sat down nervously, mute in humiliation and shame. How was he to begin? What was he to say? There had never been any but the most formal relations between himself and this young woman. Presently he raised his head and found Miss Jerrold looking into his eyes. There was a peculiar greenish light in hers, at once fascinating and repellent.

"Your mother said that—you would be here," he stammered. "I don't know how to begin to talk to you, Miss Jerrold—I—"

The answer was the most unexpected thing that had ever happened to Jocelyn, for, without a word, the young woman laid her head upon his shoulder and burst into tears. Then, as he began timidly to ask the cause of her distress, finding that she only sobbed more bitterly, he was tempted to place one arm around her and, with the filmy handkerchief she carried in her hand, to wipe away her tears.

Jocelyn had never noticed before how pretty May Jerrold was. Her hair, which had at first appeared to him to be of a plain red, displayed unguessed gleams of gold and bronze under the lamp light; her greenish eyes revealed wonderful depths; her red lips were not five inches from his own. And suddenly Lord Jocelyn realized that he loved her. He bent forward and kissed her lips.

"I love you, May. Do you love me?" he whispered; and, though the question had been asked many times before by many men, it possessed a novelty that positively thrilled him.

"Yes," whispered Miss Jerrold. "Then you won't cry any more? Why are you crying, dearest?"

"O, it's so shameful," she murmured. "To be bought and sold."

"Sold?" reiterated Lord Jocelyn, his heart thumping tumultuously.

"To you," she murmured, resting comfortably in his arms that now enclosed her. "Did you think I was sold to you, dearest? It was this consciousness that it was all a matter of bargain between you and me."

"Dearest May," answered Jocelyn fervently, "if I had not loved you I should never have—"

"Never have what, Richard?"

"Asked you to be my wife, as I do now," said Jocelyn. "Will you marry me, dearest?"

"Yes," whispered Miss Jerrold, hiding her face in his coat. "But—but you really love me?"

"I loved you from the first moment I saw you," replied Jocelyn, and he meant it sincerely. For his disgust had been completely obliterated in this sudden revelation of feeling, and he knew only that he loved this wonderful creature with the alluring eyes, and that he had always loved her, even against his own knowledge.

"May, dear, there is one thing I want to ask you about," said Jocelyn presently. "It's about that prince."

"What, Mitfohlen?" asked Miss Jerrold, laughing softly. "You're not jealous of poor Mitfohlen?"

"A little," Jocelyn confessed.

"Poor fellow, I am so sorry for him. Only a short half hour ago he asked me to become his wife. He has been desperately in love with me for months."

"And you refused him?"

"Of course. Didn't I love you?"

What answer was returned—if there was any—is not recorded. But when, half an hour later, Jocelyn conducted Miss Jerrold back to the drawing room, his heart beat loud in triumph and his head swam with his happiness. But he said nothing to Mrs. Jerrold, though he saw her eyes bent upon his own inquiringly. For, before they left the conservatory, May had said:

"Richard, one favor I beg of you. Let us keep it secret until next month. I have my reasons. Do you want to know or will you trust me?"

"I trust you—till the end of time," he answered, raising her hand to his lips.

"Then I shall tell you, Richard," answered his fiancée. "It's because of Prince von Mitfohlen. Poor fellow, I want to break the news first to him, and gently. He will be inconsolable. I fear that he may commit some rash and irreparable act."

Jocelyn was home again. He was seated in his dressing gown, puffing up clouds of smoke out of his favorite meerschaum, but his sheer happiness overwhelmed him. At last he could endure the secret no longer, and rang his bell.

"Talbot," he said, when his middle-aged servant entered, "I am engaged to be married."

"Yes, sir," answered Talbot respectfully.

"Confound you, Talbot, why don't you congratulate me?"

"Which I do, sir, from the bottom of my heart," Talbot replied, laying against his impulse to rush around to his fiancée's house, and he could never leave his apartment, but his feet bore him in her direction. But at last the night of the dinner arrived. When Jocelyn was shown into the drawing room he was surprised to find nearly as many people assembled as on the last occasion, and, notable among these, Prince von Mitfohlen, who greeted him with a calm patronage which showed only too clearly that he little anticipated the blow that was in store for him. May Jerrold was radiant, and there was the mother-in-law smile twinkling upon Mrs. Jerrold's mouth as she shook hands with him.

"Welcome, dear Lord Jocelyn," she said, beaming on him.

"Why have you not called on us this whole week? I have a dreadful punishment in store for you. Can you guess what? I am going to let you take me into dinner."

"Dinner is served, madame," announced the butler at the door. Mrs. Jerrold placed her hand upon Lord Jocelyn's sleeve and he led her down the stairs. Half way down he heard May's voice whisper behind him. He turned, to see his fiancée following upon the arm of Prince von Mitfohlen, who met his gaze with an insolent, supercilious stare. Lord Jocelyn chuckled to himself; he could not find it in his heart to harbor resentful feelings toward this young man who was to receive so staggering a blow so soon. May had certainly arranged her plans with ingenuity.

But after dinner he was disillusioned, for the party resolved itself into a series of bridge games, in which both May and the prince participated. And this diversion lasted during the entire evening, so that, when at last the guests arose to go, Jocelyn was chafing with rage. The destined interview between his fiancée and the prince had not occurred, nor had he had a chance to speak with May during the entire evening.

And he must speak with her. The thought of departing without any further understanding was intolerable to him. As the guests moved, laughing and chatting, toward the door, a darling plan flashed through his mind.

The back door of the conservatory opened upon the courtyard in the rear of the house, through which he could find his way to a side entrance and emerge upon the street. Why should he not conceal himself somewhere till all the guests were gone, waylay his fiancée and snatch a hasty good-bye that do? We couldn't live on a dollar a day."

"Why, that guy from England hasn't much more to his name."

"He has an allowance from his father, and the estates are pretty near fifty thousand acres, Harry. They must be worth something."

"But, listen, Maisie, you won't be happy with him, will you? You don't love him?"

"Do you think so?" May Jerrold inquired, kissing him. "Does this look like it?"

"Then what the dickens—"

"See here, Harry, we've got to be sensible. Father won't stand for you and that's all there is to it. He says I've got to get a title and a fortune both, or he'll know the reason why. First, there was the prince, and I thought he was all right until father discovered his family haven't a red cent to their names. They're just a lot of cheap skates making a splurge. So then we looked up the Jocelyns carefully. They aren't rich, Harry, but the estates are not entailed. And once I get my fingers into their money-bags—why, dear, I'll square those debts that have been worrying you. And then—"

"Well, what?"

May Jerrold burst into tears. "Don't think me horribly mercenary, Harry," she sobbed, "but don't you know, father's lost every penny in the Northwestern bank?"

"It's true, then?" cried Doane.

"Every penny, and he's got to go to work again and make another fortune. Harry, we're living on borrowed money now. And I've got to have somebody who can support me as I've been accustomed to. Harry, I must marry Jocelyn. There isn't any way out."

"And afterward?" said Doane busily.

May Jerrold looked up at him and, though she did not speak, there was a glow of meaning in her eyes, for Doane laughed and, bending down, kissed her.

Then Lord Jocelyn stepped out of the suit of armor. His face was ghastly white and there were deep furrows under his eyes, but he carried himself with a composure of his caste. May Jerrold started back and with a low cry collapsed into Doane's arms.

"I'm sorry," said Jocelyn simply. "I fear that I have made a great mistake. I do not know how I can ever forgive myself for having forced this lady into an engagement when all her inclinations were so clearly set elsewhere. Have you anything to say to me, sir?"

his hand upon the region of his stomach. "When is it to be, sir?"

"I don't know, Talbot—next month, perhaps. Then we shall return to England."

"Yes, sir. Will you wear your black boots or your tan ones tomorrow, sir?"

"Get out," cried Jocelyn, throwing a pillow at his servant's head, which Talbot dodged nimbly. "Unfeeling beggar," he muttered, as the man withdrew; "he doesn't believe me. But this time it's real. O, Dick Jocelyn, if ever you knew what love meant you know it now."

And he went to bed and dreamed all night long of May Jerrold.

In the morning he received a letter from his fiancée.

"We are to give a little impromptu dinner on Thursday week," she wrote. "Will you join us? Prince von Mitfohlen and Mr. Doane—you met him—will be here, and I shall then try to break the news to the prince as gently as possible. So if you see us alone together you mustn't be jealous, dearest, and you must not follow us."

There was a postscript. "You must not come till then. Mother must not suspect. She cannot keep a secret, and if she even guessed the prince would learn of it and perhaps shoot himself."

That was the hardest week of self-restraint that Jocelyn had ever spent. A dozen times a day he fought parting, then leaving her in the methad indicated so as not to alarm the house? And what so good a hiding place as within one of the suits of armor at the conservatory entrance?

Jocelyn lived by impulse, and no sooner had the idea come to him than he proceeded to adopt it. Hiding far away from Mrs. Jerrold in the drawing room, he proceeded to the bottom of the flight. Then, hastily raising the breastplate of one of the armored figures, he crept into the hollow within. The refuge served his purpose effectively. He waited till he heard the last carriage roll away, and then—

May Jerrold came down the stairs. With her was Henry Doane.

They approached the conservatory together and halted at the entrance, under one of the palms. And, staring incredulously through the lowered vizor of the armor, Lord Jocelyn saw Doane's arms embracing his fiancée, saw her arms fold themselves round his neck and saw them kiss.

Every word of their conversation was distinctly audible.

"So you've definitely asked the English jay, Maisie," asked Doane.

"You've said good-bye to the Dutchman?"

May Jerrold nodded.

"Say, Maisie, is it all fixed?" asked Doane, pleadingly. "Isn't there one tiny chance for Harry? Don't you love me, dear?"

"Of course I do, Harry, but what

"Indeed I do, sir, from the bottom of my heart, sir. Which, if I might make so bold, Lord Richard, there ain't no young woman as I've seen yet as measures up to what you might expect in the way of matrimony, sir."

"Hold your tongue, Talbot, I say, Talbot, do you know what gives me the keenest satisfaction that this affair is broken off?"

"Which I do not, sir," Talbot replied.

"I'd hate to think what my father would have said when he found out that father-in-law had gone busted. That's all. Leave my slippers under the radiator. Good-night, Talbot."

ENJOYMENT AT SAD PLAY

Sensitive Girl's Weeping, However, Resulted in Most Startling Change of Complexion.

"I brought two handkerchiefs," said the girl, whose hair was done up in an exaggerated psychic knot. She spoke proudly as one who makes it known that she has thoughtfully prepared for all emergencies.

"Wish I had," said her friends, enviously, as she jingled her chatelaine bag into a safe place. "Eva said this play was perfectly exorcising and there wasn't a dry eye in the house—though how she could swear to that I don't see, for, of course, she couldn't go around looking at everybody, could she? That's what I don't like about Eva—you can't depend upon what she says."

"I really oughtn't to go see a play like this," said the girl with the psychic knot, shaking out handkerchief No. 1. "I'm too sensitive! I sympathize so with others and it just breaks my heart to—"

"There goes Sadie," said her friend in a shrill whisper, clutching her arm. "Down the side aisle—with the feather. Doesn't she know that willows have gone out? Who's it with her?"

The girl with the psychic knot turned solemn eyes upon the questioner. "If it isn't Tom!" she got out. "And the last time I saw her she said that she'd never have anything more to do with him if he was the last man on earth!"

"Wait till I get hold of him!" gurgled the girl with the chatelaine. "Didn't I call him up yesterday and ask him to drop in this afternoon and we'd take a walk—and didn't he say he was sorry, but he had to work? Slighting me for Sadie! I bet she ast him to bring her to the matinee today! I'd never hint such a thing if I died for it! Of course, most any man if you ast him to go walking would suggest dropping in to see a show or something, but that's his business."

"I'm going to get some chocolates," said the girl with the psychic knot. "Yes, I am—you got some the last time. I like these soft, squishy ones, don't you? There goes the curtain!"

"I simply can't talk," declared the girl with the psychic knot, at the end of the first act. "I never was so affected in my life. It was all I could do to keep from crying and I didn't want to because I know this act couldn't be half as sad as the rest and I didn't want to get started so soon!"

"What'd I tell you?" triumphantly whispered the girl with the chatelaine five minutes later. "Ain't it just heart-rending?"

"D-d-don't t-talk!" sobbed the girl with the psychic knot, sopping her eyes. "It is perfectly awful, it is so sad! I can't stop the tears!"

"I knew you'd like it," pursued her friend in a satisfied tone. "Listen to that!"

"It's just dreadful!" wept the first girl. "W-w-will you g-g-got m-m-my other handkerchief, dear? I am so blinded I can't see!"

"Try to control yourself," said her friend, sympathetically.

"M-most people c-c-could," replied the weeping one, "but I am so tender h-h-hearted! Isn't it nearly over? I never saw anything so beautifully sad, did you?"

"Aren't you glad you came?" demanded her friend. "If it hadn't been for me you'd have gone to that old comic thing instead of to something where you really could enjoy yourself!"

"Mercy, I'm glad that act's over!" said the weeping one, giving her face a final dab.

As the lights went up there was a startled scream from the girl with the chatelaine bag, and every one near turned around to look. Then they laughed. The girl with the psychic knot sat red-eyed and unconcerned.

"I thought something awful had happened to you at first," said the girl with the chatelaine bag. "People's hair turns white from grief or shock, so I thought complexion might change the same way—in your excitement you've been mopping your face with the hand you held the chocolate creams in, instead of the one with the handkerchief!"

"Beetles That Grow Mushrooms. Scientists have known of mushroom growing ants for a long time and it was generally believed that the ant was the only insect possessing sufficient intelligence to make a successful mushroom farmer. Prof. J. Houwer, the French entomologist, has found that a certain wood boring beetle known as the bostrychide is as familiar with mushroom cultivation for home consumption as the ant.

Professor Bouvier discovered that the beetles bore holes in wood and half fill them with a prepared fungus which makes an ideal mushroom bed. The garden is carefully spawmed and tended and in course of time the mushrooms appear. In this way the beetle provides itself with a food sufficiently tender for its feeble jaws."

"Talbot," said Jocelyn, as he entered his apartment, "I have changed my mind. I am not going to be married after all."

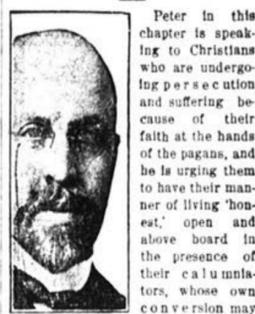

"Yes, sir," replied his servant respectfully.

"Congratulations, Talbot."

Salvation Through Christ

By Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.,
Dean of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness; by whose stripes ye were healed: For ye were as sheep going astray; but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls.—I Peter 2:24.

Peter in this chapter is speaking to Christians who are undergoing persecution and suffering because of their faith at the hands of the pagans, and he is urging them to have their manner of living honest, open and above board in the presence of their callumniators, whose own conversion may be brought about by it. He teaches that Christians should submit themselves to those in authority over them, whether governmental or industrial, for the Lord's sake, and they should do it even in the case of those masters that are not good and gentle, but "forward." In the course of the argument he adduces the example of Christ, who, although without sin, was reviled, but did not revile again, and whose sufferings were carried to the extent of the cross. The description of these sufferings is fourfold, each one of the four particulars illustrating a different aspect of the salvation men may receive through him.

The Strange Law of Tokyo.
First, he tells us his sufferings were substitutionary. "Who his own self bare our sins in his own body in the tree," it is not long ago since there was an ordinance in Tokyo, Japan, to the effect that no foreigner could take up his residence there without providing for himself a native substitute, who, in the event of his violating any law, would suffer the penalty in his stead. As soon as he arrived the question would be put to him, "Who stands for you?" Jesus Christ stands for all who put their trust in him.

In the second place, he tells us that the design of Christ's sufferings was that men "might live unto righteousness," that is that they might become enabled to live that kind of life set before them in the preceding verses. I know a lad who, when he does anything very questionable and his conscience begins to trouble him, always asks his mother, "Will that keep me out of heaven?" If the answer is in the negative he is satisfied. But the salvation of Jesus Christ is not for the purpose merely of getting into heaven, but of living right at the present time.

The Croquet Ball.
There used to be a rule in croquet that when you struck your opponent's ball you were "dead" upon it so far as that play was concerned. The Christian believer may be said to be represented by the ball, while sin is the mallet in Satan's hand. Sin has struck the believer once in the person of his substitute, Jesus Christ, and can not strike him again. When Christ died, he died to sin in the sense that it could never again bring him to the place of judgment, and it is the teaching of the New Testament that the believer died in him in the same sense. It is this fact which sets the believer free to live a life of righteousness, and it is the apprehension of it as a fact through the Holy Spirit, that communicates the power and inspiration to him so to live.

The third thing Peter tells us about the sufferings of Christ is their necessity. "Ye were as sheep going astray." Travelers in the Orient tell us that the tendency of a sheep is always to go farther and farther astray; and so man, if left to himself, never will return to God of his own accord. No process of education or evolution will ever bring him there. Man is not a member of a rising but a falling and a falling race, and he who delays to receive the son of God now will be farther away from him tomorrow than he is today. Hence the urgency of the gospel invitation that "now is the accepted time, today the day of salvation."

Finally, he teaches us the result of Christ's sufferings. "Ye are now returned to the Shepherd and Bishop of your Souls." "Returned" signifies that man in Christ is brought back to that place of fellowship with God he enjoyed before the fall. Indeed, his fellowship now is on a surer foundation. There was a contingency in the case of the first Adam, but there is none in that of the second. The latter has kept the law as well as paid the penalty for those who receive him, and their restored condition is thus eternally secure.

Let me exhort you therefore to receive the Saviour by a definite act of faith today, that the peace of God may become yours—the peace that springs from the knowledge that your sins are forever put away. And thus receiving the Holy Spirit as the further gift of God, you will have power to live a life of righteousness unto him.

TOO MUCH AVOIRDUPOIS KILLS A MAN AT BOSTON. HE WEIGHED 850 POUNDS

Boston, Mass., April 10.—The abnormal weight of 850 pounds attained by Abraham Sodekon caused his death today from fatty degeneration of the heart.

Four weeks ago, when taken ill, Sodekon weighed 434 pounds. During his illness it is estimated that he gained weight at the rate of twenty pounds a day.

ROSS NOT IN RACE

Muskegon, Mich., April 10.—It has been stated that Lieutenant John Q. Ross would become a candidate for governor provided Governor Osborn would quit the field.

Mr. Ross has announced decisively that he will not be a candidate, but that instead he will seek a renomination to the office he now holds, where he's not expected to have opposition.

"I don't believe that I can afford to spend the time between now and the August primaries in the campaign," said Mr. Ross. "I can't afford to make the race."

CALUMET FIRE COSTS A HUNDRED THOUSAND

Calumet, Mich., April 10.—The Bolla building, on Eight street, Red Jacket, a four-story sandstone building, this evening was gutted by fire.

The loss is estimated at $100,000. Only the stone walls remain standing.

The fire is believed to have originated from a defective electric light wire. The loss is largely covered by insurance.

The building was occupied on the first floor by the E. M. Lieblein whole sale grocery house. The remaining three floors were flats.

Two women were sick in bed—Mrs. Ruttenberg and Mrs. Corneller—and they were gotten out of the building barely in time to save them.

The block was the property of Mrs. Bertha Bollman. Five fire departments fought the fire, but not one of them had a leader lengthy enough to reach to the top of the building. Largely for that reason the flames gained great headway.

"THE GAMBLERS"

Charles Klein's "The Gamblers" will receive its first local presentation at the Peterson opera house on Sunday, April 14.

In this play Mr. Klein has taken gambling as his theme, not the petty kind, but that which is done in seven figures on Wall street.

John Emeerson, an old school financier who hitherto has been satisfied to count profits by the thousands, is induced by an ambitious son to raise the stakes to millions.

The big financial interests of the country, seeing a new competitor, try to crush the Emersons. The young man in his effort to resist the powerful enemy breaks a Federal law and both father and son and their partners face prison sentences.

All but the son are saved by the intervention of a woman. She symbolically, is gambling for happiness.

BANKER HAD TOO MANY FAMILIES

New York, Apr. 11.—Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum has signed a decree of separation in favor of Bertha W. Wolf and against William Wolf, a banker, in the employ of C. B. Richard & Co.

Mrs. Wolf declared that her husband admitted he was the father of two families, and that he wanted the children of his two families to be friendly with each other.

She said that on one or two occasions he brought two children with him and introduced them to her children as their brother and sister.

IRON TRADE REVIEW

Cleveland, O., April 10, 1912.—The Iron Trade Review tomorrow will say:—The United States Steel Corporation is operating this week at the highest productive rate in its history.

It is putting on steel-making capacity wherever it can. While leading independent companies are not as actively engaged as the Steel Corporation, some of them are showing substantial gains.

This is particularly true in the east where mills are now operating at about 85 per cent of full capacity.

The Lukens Iron & Steel Co. is among those which have increased their output rapidly during the past week.

The Alan Wood Iron & Steel Co. has put on another open-hearth furnace, making 7 out of 9 in operation, and is about to blow in its large blast furnace.

One large eastern concern reports that during the last week it received almost a record number of orders.

The sales of lake ore during the past week have been very heavy and from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons have been placed.

The pig iron market shows increased activity and some hardening of prices. In eastern territory inquiries for from 30,000 to 40,000 tons of steel-making irons are pending.

A steam pump company has purchased 10,000 tons of foundry grades and it is in the market for from 4,000 to 5,000 tons additional.

A soil pipe maker has added 3,000 to 4,000 tons to a recent purchase. In the Buffalo market, sales of various grades have amounted to nearly 50,000 tons.

In the Pittsburg district, about 50,000 tons of basic has been sold and inquiries are pending for about an equal tonnage.

Heavy specifying on contracts for subway material in New York, amounting to 50,000 tons, has begun, and a new contract for 1,600 tons has been awarded to the American Bridge Co.

Railways have been placing orders at a moderate rate for equipment and for rolling stock and rails. Production of rails in Pittsburg continues at a very high rate.

The Lackawanna has decided to use a concrete construction for its viaducts near Scranton, Pa., and will require 2,400 tons of re-inforcing bars.

If steel construction had been adopted, nearly 20,000 tons of steel would have been required. The Chicago & Great Western is in the market for from 7,000 to 10,000 tons of shapes.

BOSTON MARKETS

The local market was again very active today. Granby, Copper Range, North Butte and Lake Showed heavy buying all through the session.

The advance in Range being especially noticeable, Mayflower and Old Colony were weaker, apparently because holders were selling out to get into other specialties which are moving faster at present Granby is fulfilling all expectations and was the stronger stock on the list today.

It was rumored that the heavy buying of Range to day is preliminary to a ten point advance in that stock.

NEW YORK MARKETS

Politics and Wheat crop advices in connection with the aggressiveness of the element operating on the selling side were the factors which contributed mostly to the unsettlement of the stock market today.

We believe the present unsettlement and reactionary tendency is to be considered as only natural in view of the recent sharp advances and in view of the fact that labor controversies are becoming acute, but conservative purchases on a scale down of the standard issues should prove profitable and moderate turns accepted owing to the fact that the market has become more of a two sided affair than heretofore, and reactions likely to occur quite frequently.

STRONG LINES FROM "THE GAMBLERS"

The woman who loves a man is not afraid of him.

A reformer doesn't hesitate to corrupt a man in order to prove that corruption exists.

The instinct for mercy is stronger than the mere desire to do right.

Whether life is a tragedy or comedy to me depends on the way I look at it.

You are stern, strong, unbending and unyielding. Final qualities for a statue, James, but not for a husband.

Of course you are right. You are always right, even if you are not you have the horrible faculty of being able to prove that I am wrong. That is the penalty I pay for being the wife of a clever lawyer.

All the government asks is a victim. Politicians at Washington are satisfied if they can show reformers, informers and muckrakers that they do send a rich man to prison now and then, at the Peterson on Shnday April 14.

You will look a good while before you find a better medicine for coughs and colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only gives relief—it cures. Try it when you have a cough or cold, and you are certain to be pleased with the prompt cure which it will effect. For sale by Farrell & Lohmiller and Groos Drug Store.

DESTRUCTION BY FIRE OF THE EQUITABLE LIFE BUILDING

The first "sky scraper" erected in the city of New York, resulting in a loss of $18,000,000. One billion worth of securities and cash are in the vaults buried under thousands of tons of ice and debris. Nine persons, including Battalion Chief Wm. J. Walsh, are dead, and twenty one others injured. Zero weather with a sixty-mile-an-hour gale blowing from the bay renders the work of the firemen particularly hazardous. The high pressure streams have but small effect upon the flames and the intense cold freezes the water as soon as it reaches the building.

MONUMENT TO BJORNSON IN PROJECT LAUNCHED BY MINNESOTA NORWEGIANS

Minneapolis, April 11.—Norwegian residents of Minnesota have formed an organization to erect a $10,000 monument to Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the poet, during the centennial celebration of Norway's freedom in this city on May 17, 1914. The celebration will last one week and seventy thousand Norwegians from all parts of the country are expected to be present. The statue of the poet is to be pre-ented to the city and probably will be placed in one of the parks. A fund of $1,000,000 also is being raised by the Norwegians of America to be presented to Norway at the time of the celebration, with a four-volume history of the Norwegians in the United States.

Don't be surprised if you have an attack of rheumatism this spring. Just rub the affected parts freely with Chamberlain's Liniment and it will soon disappear. Sold by Farrell & Lohmiller and Groos Drug Store.

TWO HEROES SAVE LIVES

Boston, April 11.—A group of tired hungry passengers of the Merchants & Miners steamer Ontario which was driven ashore burning on Montauk Point, L. I., early today, arrived here late today from New London, Conn., where they were landed by a tug. Most of them were without baggage. Some had dressed so hurriedly in the excitement that they had scarcely sufficient clothing.

When the Ontario was run ashore she carried 32 passengers, 22 first and second cabin and 10 Italians in the steerage. All but two of the passengers were brought to Boston. Despite their trying experience they took the situation philosophically.

"It was an unavoidable misfortune," said one, while others declared they believed no one was to blame. There was no panic, except among the steerage passengers, who not understanding English could not be calmed by the ship's crew into the saloon. Some of them insisted on running on deck and a few tried to climb the masts, thinking the ship was going to sink.

"The woman," said H. W. Sanborn of Dover, N. H., "behaved better than the men, in my opinion, and they are deserving of much praise. Of course we all got a little excited, but who wouldn't? I was sleeping in the state room next to that of the wireless operator, Herbert Ingalls, of Lynn, Mass., and right on the other side the fire was raging. About 2 o'clock I awoke and looked out at the weather and saw people running out on the deck crying. 'The ship is afloat,' I thought it was a fire drill, but the next minute smoke enveloped us and I realized it was no joke.

"If there were any heroes on that boat they were Ingalls, the plucky wireless operator and Chief Engineer Disney. Both of them stuck to their posts until their duty was done, and they were mostly responsible for our safety.

One of the busiest men on the boat was Purser James. He assisted in awakening passengers. He also aided in calming the Italians, who were bordering on the hysterical.

WIND PERILS AND THEN SAVES

Marinette, Wis., April 11.—Thirty-two hours after a heavy wind has set them afloat on an ice floe in Green Bay George and Frank Drew were blown ashore at Chambers island Sunday more dead than alive. The men, who are lighthouse keepers on Chambers island, started for shore over the ice Saturday when a heavy wind detached a floe and swept it out into the bay. Search for the marooned men proved unavailing. During the night shifts in the wind piled the lost floe on the island. The Drews say the floe was driven through Devil's gap into the "Big Lake" and then northward until the shore could hardly be seen. Then, on Easter morning, the wind shifted to the northwest and sent the floe through the gap and back to Chambers island.

STORK LIKES THE UPPER PENINSULA

According to the February issue of the monthly bulletin of vital statistics, copies of which were received yesterday from the secretary of state, the upper peninsula had an unusual high birth rate in February, and the death rate was lower than usual. There were 497 births and 290 deaths, a rate for births on each 1,000 population of 24.8 and for deaths of 19.3. The birth rate was 4 per cent higher than the average rate in the state and the death rate was 4 per cent lower than the average. Marquette county had a birth rate of 26.6 and a death rate of 12.9. Keweenaw had the highest birth rate of any county in the upper peninsula, its percentage being 42.6, while its death rate was among the lowest, being only 7.6.

Houghton county, as usual, led all others in the number of births occurring during the month, its total being 170, and Marquette county had 107. Dickinson came next, with sixty-seven births, and Gogebic was next with sixty-five. Houghton county also led in the number of deaths, its total being seventy-two, compared with fifty-two in Marquette county. Delta had the third largest number, thirty-eight.

There were 3,384 deaths in the state. This was a decrease of 156 compared with January. As usual, tuberculosis was the cause of more deaths than any other disease, the total in the state being 246. Of this number the upper peninsula had twenty-six. Out of a total of 290 deaths in the upper peninsula, seventy were of children under one year of age; seventeen from one to four years, inclusive, and sixty-seven were of persons of sixty-five years and over. Pneumonia was prevalent in the upper peninsula during the month, causing eighteen deaths, while twenty-two met death by violence.

DAMAGES SECURED BY INJURED WORKMAN

Green Bay Wis., Apr. 11.—John Dufrene of this city, who was struck by a train on the Wisconsin & Northwestern Railway company line in the yard of the Bird & Wells Lumber Co. at Wausaukee, has secured $1,500 in a settlement arranged by Attorney James H. HIGH PRAISE FOR PRESIDENT TAFT

Washington April 11.—Secretary of the Interior Fisher, in an interview today, urged the renomination of Taft which is issued as a statement of the Taft national headquarters.

"I believe the nominee should be Taft; first, because he believes in popular government, to be achieved through principles representative of democracy, by means of which alone genuine enduring popular government can be secured for the people; second, because he has demonstrated constructive ability at a time when constructive statesmanship was needed as never before since the republic was founded; third, because, upon principles which he has advocated, and upon the progress he has achieved, the Republican party must stand at the election.

"His whole ambition has been to render disinterested and effective public service. In spite of misunderstanding, misrepresentation and abuse he has demonstrated courage, patience and ability to make definite progress, both in legislation and administration. He has shown he is more interested in curing evils than in denouncing them."

Fisher said his appointment was not sought, but offered under circumstances that imposed no political obligations of any kind.

Webster's Cherry Balsam for Asthma

GREAT relief will come to asthma sufferers from Webster's Cherry Balsam because of the mild, harmless, sedative it contains, which relieves the irritating and tight feeling in the chest. Also because of its antiseptic ingredient which sterilizes and purifies the air passages and makes breathing easier.

Webster's Cherry Balsam also relieves coughs, colds, hoarseness and various bronchial affections. It is an improved, scientific cough syrup, containing the good points of the newest physician's remedies. But it is not a "cure all." In serious cases of bronchial and lung troubles a doctor should be consulted.

Webster's Cherry Balsam is sold in two sizes, 25c and 50c. Your money refunded if you are not satisfied with results after a fair trial.

Our forty years' experience as manufacturing chemists has taught us how to make Webster's Cherry Balsam so good that we can absolutely guarantee it.

Under the Webster trade-mark and guaranty are sold sixty different articles, including most effective remedies for all such human ailments as do not require a doctor's household remedies that should be in the medicine cabinet of every family, also pure toilet preparations.

Your druggist has them or can get them for you.

CIVIL WAR

FIFTY YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

March 18, 1862.

The Confederate steamer Nashville escaped from Beaufort, N. C., and evaded the close blockade of the Union vessels. The Nashville had recently been dismissed from the harbor of Plymouth, England, and slipped into Beaufort through the same careful guard.

The ship Emily St. Pierre, ostensibly bound for St. Johns, N. B., but which showed no colors, was captured by the blockading squadron off Charleston, S. C.

Colonel Dwight, with a portion of the First regiment of the Excelsior brigade made a reconnaissance between Dumfries and Fredericksburg, Va. One small company of Confederate pickets were driven in, but a second force that was encountered was not molested. Colonel Dwight's men found a deserted camp and helped themselves.

Arquia Creek was evacuated by the Confederates during the night. Previous to leaving the Confederates burned the wharves and town.

General Pope, commanding the Union position at New Madrid, trapped a Confederate gunboat in front of a masked battery and sunk it. He had previously permitted four of them to pass the first battery, which left them between two.

March 19, 1862.

General Lovell, C. S. A., issued the following order at New Orleans: "Hereafter no exemptions from military service duty will be allowed permanently, except in case of minors or persons physically unable to do service. Applications for the release of those at work for the government must be made to this department in the form of certificates from the owners or foremen of the shops, when an order will be issued to the commanding officer of the camp to which the applicant belongs to grant a furlough of a certain number of days, which can only be renewed by a subsequent certificate and order from these headquarters."

Some bridge builders captured by the Confederate Morgan in a cavalry raid on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, having been released, returned to Louisville, Ky.

The Ninety-seventh regiment of New York volunteers, under command of Col. Charles Wheelock, passed through New York city for the front. The Ninety-seventh was practically a private regiment, having been organized by Colonel Wheelock at considerable personal expense. He paid more than $9,000 out of his own pocket, much of which went to the families of the men enlisted for their support while the heads of the families were gone.

March 20, 1862.

Governor Curtin of Pennsylvania issued a general order complimenting the Fifty-first Pennsylvania for gallantry at the action at Newbern, N. C., and at Roanoke. The regiment, which did not acquire great distinction in the engagement at Bull Run early in the war, was held to have redeemed its reputation, and the names of the two latest battles were ordered embroidered on the regimental battle flag, where no mention was made of Bull Run.

Loyal citizens of Jacksonville, Fla., met and protested against the action of the convention that had declared Florida in secession from the United States of America, asserting that no state had a right to secede, and declaring that they were deprived by the convention of their rights as citizens of the United States.

The meeting was encouraged by a proclamation issued the same day by Federal General Sherman, in which the general stated that the troops of the United States had come to protect loyal citizens and their property, and enable them to prosecute their government, and promised that all loyal persons returning to their homes and taking up their usual course of life would be protected in their constitutional rights. The sole desire and intention of the government was to maintain the integrity of the Constitution and laws, and reclaim the states revolting from the national alliance to their former prosperous condition.

March 21, 1862.

Petty warfare continued in Missouri. An expedition of Union soldiers under Captain Stevens, on the way to Indian Creek, near Kettleville, Mo., was informed that a band of Confederates had planned to meet at a certain house that night. Captain Stevens, surprising the place early in the morning, captured nineteen prisoners and 1,000 pounds of bacon that was intended for the Confederate army. Among the prisoners were three of the rank of captain.

Two new military departments were constructed. One of them comprised all the country that might be occupied by General Butler, with headquarters wherever they happened to be, and the other comprised Georgia, Florida and South Carolina, under General Hunter.

Gideon Welles, secretary of the navy for the United States, issued a formal acknowledgment of the services rendered by the United States frigate Cumberland, which had lately been sunk by the Merrimac in Hampton Roads.

A naval skirmish at Mousquito Inlet, Fla., was disastrous in a small way for the Union sailors involved. Lieut. A. H. Budd, U. S. N., Acting Master Mather and three Jackies were killed by the Confederates. Washington, N. C., was entered by a Federal force under General Burnside. The Union soldiers landed from gunboats, and marched through the streets with banners and a band, expecting to arouse Union enthusiasm. The few people who had remained in the town were silent spectators of the scene.

March 22, 1862.

Provisional Governor Johnson addressed a meeting of mixed Union and southern sympathizers at Nashville. He presented the northern view of the war for the benefit of his southern hearers in such a calm and dispassionate manner that he made a considerable impression on secessionists, who had been with him in politics before the outbreak of the war.

A day of long range artillery firing between Confederate and National batteries at Cumberland Gap resulted in no casualties. A national reconnaissance in force left Camp Cumberland Ford the day before, and moved up to Cumberland Gap in the afternoon, halting when they began to feel the enemy's pickets. In the morning the Union soldiers opened the noise with a skirmish line, which called down the artillery practice of the Confederate batteries. The Union battery soon replied, and the firing continued until night, without result, as the batteries were not within range of each other.

The Sixth Kansas fell in with Quantrell near Independence, Mo., and forced him to withdraw, after a severe fight, in which the Federals lost three killed and the Confederates seven. The Confederates destroyed the bridge across the Little Blue river.

A reconnaissance of the Sixty-first New York, passing down the railroad from Manassas toward Warrenton, Va., were fired upon by a detachment of Stuart's cavalry. The infantry attacked with vigor, and the cavalry made off. No damage was done on either side.

March 23, 1862.

In an engagement of dimension near Winchester, the Federal forces under General Shields, reinforced by Colonel Donnelly with General William's first brigade, defeated a force of five thousand infantry and seventeen guns under General Jackson. The fight, which had been going on the night before, with the advantage with the southerners, was renewed in the morning, and swung back and forth until late in the afternoon, when the Federal reinforcement determined the issue of the day. General Jackson withdrew without loss of prisoners or discipline. The loss was heavy on both sides. The Confederates lost 840 killed, wounded and missing, and the Federals 665.

The prize schooner Cora, laden with cotton, which escaped from Apalachicola a few days before, was brought to Key West by a crew from the U. S. gunboat Pinola, Lieutenant Crosby commanding. The Cora gave the Pinola an exciting chase for more than two hours, and did not leave until shells began to pop between her masts. She had on board 208 bales of cotton.

Moorhead City, N. C., was occupied by a Union force under General Parke of General Burnside's force. The town was deserted of Confederates. A squad passed over to Fort Macon with a flag of truce to demand a surrender, but the southerners refusing to give up, the squad returned, and General Burnside ordered an investment of the place.

A national force raided the Confederate pork market at Nicholas Landing, Tenn., and made off with 1,500 pounds of fresh pork and 45,000 pounds of cured hams and shoulders.

March 24, 1862.

Postmaster General Blair of the United States strapped tighter the muzzle that had recently been put on the northern newspapers by the taking over by the war office of all telegraph lines and the censorship of news dispatches. The following notice was issued to postmasters throughout the Union: "The secretary of war now regulates the transmission of information by telegraph, affecting the conduct of the war, in order to prevent the communication of such information to the rebels. It is also thought necessary by the secretary to put restrictions on the publication of facts of this character, however derived, and the aid of this department is requested for this purpose. You will, therefore, notify publishers not to publish any fact which has been excluded from the telegraph, and that a disregard of this order will subject the paper to be excluded from the mails."

Wendell Phillips, attempting to speak at Cincinnati, was egged by the crowd, which finally grew in violence until it became a mob and precipitated a fight in the body of the hall. Phillips was removed by friends amidst threats of a coat of tar and feathers.

Emancipation bills took up the session of the United States senate. A vote on a bill by Senator Davis providing for the colonization of liberated slaves resulting in a tie, was lost by the vote of the vice-president.

The gunboats Tyler and Lexington exchanged shots with a Confederate battery near Eastport, Tennessee. No damage was done.

Two boat crews from the Federal war boat Yankee, going ashore to remove guns left by the Confederates at Shipping Point, on the Potomac, were driven away by a body of cavalry after securing two guns.

COD FISHER EVER CALM

FRANCIS HARBOR, LABRADOR

IN the conditions surrounding the industry of cod fishing there is a fascination for the fisherman that takes him back year after year. And most interesting of all is the fisherman himself. I am not certain, writes W. Lacey Amy in the Toronto Globe, but it really seems to be his supreme indifference to everything but the fish that makes him so attractive.

I have wandered in and out among them where they do not see a visitor in a month; I have seen them empty a boatload of shiny cod that equaled a fortnight's ordinary catch; I have watched them lift a large horse into a tiny skiff where nothing save prayer appeared to offer any hope of its reaching its destination; I have helped them carry into the steamer's hospital men sick unto death, and have bade "good luck" to a patient returning from the hospital legless and helpless in life's fight; I have handed out food to the starving from the steamer's stores, and have heard them refuse to accept well paid work until the cod ran again. But I have never seen a cod fisherman excited.

The nature of the fisherman's life is strenuous enough to relieve him of the necessity of overexertion to prevent falling asleep in inopportune moments. Although it requires but a small cloud and a tiny clap of thunder to keep him from the fishing grounds, scarcely a week passes that he is not forced to meet the terrible machinations of storm and wave to compass his destruction. In his dizzy bobbing little boat he fights the sea, the most pathetic of men against the most relentless of nature's forces.

Open Waters in June. The fact that he cannot swim seems not to throw into his struggle any sign of fear; so long as a plank holds between him and water he can weather anything that blows. In the early spring, long before the cod begin to run, he risks his life a thousand times across the treacherous ice floes in chase of the seal. In May, while the winds are still icy, he makes a few extra trips in herring off the Magdalen. A month later the Labrador fisherman may succeed in catching a few salmon if the ice is open. But when the cod run there is nothing but cod, except of late years, when the Magdaleners have taken a liking for mackerel, however scarce they be.

Around the Magdalen islands and at Gaspe there is an interval of lobster catching that means money, but along the Labrador coast there is nothing from July until the ice forms again in October but cod, or, as they call it, "fish." The Magdalener is a motley fisherman—herring, cod, mackerel, haddock—but the Labrador fisherman lives, sleeps and smells of fish.

His home is in Newfoundland, the many quaint towns of the east coast sending out almost all their men to the north country just as soon as the ice opens a little in June. Early in that month the fishing schooners start on their long run down the coast, dodging through the ice fields, running into port in face of a storm or a threatening ice floe, and trusting more to Providence than to aught else for their safety.

It is a fearsome run, that first trek northward, staking wooden bottom against grinding, inexorable ice, and many a Newfoundland home is empty from a losing risk. But the seemingly indolent, passive fisherman is willing to take the chances to secure an early choice of fishing ground. All summer through he spends his days on the water, his evenings splitting the day's catch, and his nights in the makeshift shacks that are deemed sufficient covering for the three or four months season in that northland.

As few women now venture north, the fisherman must perform all their own work in the treatment of the fish. They are unable to leave the fishing to attend to the drying, with the result that many of them tempt the fate of a winter sail along an inhospitable, deserted coast by remaining north until the middle of November, spending the last few weeks in carefully utilizing every ray of sunshine to make the best sale for their wares. And then the fight back through the ever thickening ice and increasing storms is worse than the spring run.

Oddities of Fishing Villages. A fishing village is the quaintest, raggedest spot on earth. City planning does not even reach the location of the house or the road rights. In the Magdalen islands, where the land is more level and there is soil enough to make it a consideration, the fish houses are placed with some common regard for a roadway. The bait and tackle and other odoriferous material are kept in the lower story, and the family sleeps, dines and sits in the single room above.

In Labrador there is no such thing as a road to consider. There has never been a horse nor an ox to use it, nor has a traveler attempted to make one settlement from another by any other method of transportation than a boat. There is practically no soil, the bare, uneven, mountainous rock sinking abruptly into deep water. The fish houses are built wherever a ledge of rock offers a foothold, and a staging of rough poles projects from the water by a rickety ladder work of poles, perhaps ten, perhaps forty feet high.

In Newfoundland the fishing villages are clustered so closely to the water's edge that the village is built upward instead of horizontally. A fisherman could spend his whole life at his work without touching ground. Up the side of the cliff the stagings, fish houses, paths, cod flakes and houses will run, occupying, as at the battery adjoining St. John's, not more than forty or fifty feet or horizontal surface for a large village. Land residence is an unfortunate necessity that is simplified to its limit.

There the fishermen live and die as their fathers did before them for generations. Their work, their homes, their lives, they themselves, will always be absorbing to the visitor with a love for the picturesque. Indifferent and phlegmatic they may appear, but they take chances that would mean certain death from heart failure or rashness to the most active. And through all their trials and perils they go on fishing, never really satisfied with the catch or conditions, but thoughtless of any other occupation than the catching of the cod.

MEET DEMAND FOR ODD SHOES

Manufacturers and Dealers Prepared for Need, and There is No Difficulty in the Matter.

When a one legged man buys a shoe the dealer sends to the factory for a shoe to match the one left remaining. In these days of the use of machinery in every process of their manufacture shoes are made with the utmost exactness and precision and it is easily possible to mate that remaining shoe with the greatest nicety in size, style, material and finish.

Few people have feet exactly alike, commonly the left foot is larger than the right, so that one shoe may fit a little more snugly than the other. Commonly, however, people buy shoes in regularly matched pairs, the difference in their feet, if it is noticeable to them at all, not being enough to make any other course desirable.

But there are people who buy shoes of different sizes or widths. In such cases the dealer breaks two pairs for them, giving them, to fit their feet, one shoe from each. In such cases the dealer matches up the two remaining shoes, one from each of two pairs, just as he would where he had broken one pair to sell one shoe to a one legged man.

But a man doesn't have to be one legged or to have feet of uneven sizes or shapes to make him ask the dealer to break a pair of shoes for him. Here was a man with two perfectly good feet who came into the store where he was accustomed to buy and who wanted on this occasion one shoe. Traveling in a sleeping car his shoes had been mixed up with others and he had got back one of his own and one of some other man's; a fact which he had not discovered until he was too far away from train and station to make return and setting things right possible; and now he came in to buy one shoe to match his own.

Woman's Wit Saved Situation. While a crowd of several hundred men and women lined the banks of the Park river, Hartford, Conn., offering futile suggestions for three hours one recent afternoon, as to how to rescue a poor little puppy that had become marooned on an ice floe, the water had frozen on his hair and he yelped piteously as he ran sniffling at the open water on all sides of his ice island. Human Society agents were attracted by the crowd and got long planks with which to bridge the water to the shore. The puppy started over it, only to fall in to the water, from which he scrambled back onto the ice floe. Then a woman solved the problem. She ordered the men to strap two planks together and sent her own pet dog across the planks to fetch a stick which she threw onto the floe. After she had repeated this twice the lonely terrier understood and cautiously followed the other dog to shore and safety.

HOT IRON IS NOT SUFFICIENT

Mistake to Assume That Ordinary Home Process Will Destroy Tubercle and Other Bacilli.

The widespread idea that the process of hot ironing acts as a disinfectant has been scientifically tested at the Berlin Institute for Infectious Diseases. Linen cloths were saturated with water containing tubercle bacilli, cholera vibrios and other germs and then ironed.

It was found that generally speaking germs of the spore family resisted even the highest temperature practicable, 482 degrees Fahrenheit, while a temperature of 300 degrees, which is considered the average heat of the domestic flatiron, has only a very slight germicidal effect, if effective at all. At this lower temperature tubercle bacilli at all events, remained as virulent as ever.

Ironing on both sides of the cloth, as might be expected, gave better results than treating one side only, but the test was considered as showing conclusively that for germ killing purposes a heat of not less than 460 degrees was indispensable, and even then some germs would survive.

STUFFED STEAK ALWAYS GOOD

No Better Way Than This of Preparing the Poorer Quality of Beef for the Table.

Take a thick cut of round steak, make a dressing of the following: Fifteen crackers rolled not very fine, one tablespoon of butter, one egg, hot water to moisten until soft, pepper, salt and savory to flavor to taste. Place steak on board, put the dressing on it in a pile and the steak around it. Sprinkle with salt. Heat an iron kettle and put a tablespoon or two of lard or drippings in it, then cut up three onions (good sized) and five or six small carrots. Let them cook for a few minutes, then put in the meat roll and brown on both sides. Then put in a little water and let cook very slowly for two hours. A delicious gravy can be made by thickening the gravy with flour and adding more water. When using a gas stove more water will usually have to be added during the cooking.

Baking Powder Bread.

One quart of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of sugar, two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half of a medium-sized cold well-baked potato and water, milk or equal quantities of each will be needed for this recipe. Sift thoroughly together flour, salt, sugar and baking powder, rub in the potato, add sufficient liquid to mix rapidly and smoothly into a stiff batter or soft dough. This will require about one pint of liquid. Turn at once into greased loaf pan, smooth the top with a knife dipped in melted butter and bake immediately in a moderate oven about one hour.

German Dumplings.

Half a pound flour, five ounces butter, three eggs, a little salt, one bit of cream, one ounce of sugar, one ounce of yeast, rind of one orange rubbed on a cube of sugar. When the fermentation of the paste has taken place let it be laid on the pastry board. Knead into a dozen small rolls; place in a deep saucepan about an inch apart from each other. As much warm milk must be placed over them as will cover their surface, and as soon as they have risen to nearly twice their size they will be done.

How to Make Raw Eggs a Treat.

The white of one egg, beaten stiff, slightly sweetened and piled on crushed fresh fruit in a sherbet glass. The firmness of the fruit juice makes the egg not only more palatable, but more digestible. A few drops of lemon juice or any flavoring extract may be added to the egg if desired. The yolk of the egg may be very satisfactorily used for a small cup custard. Very fine for an invalid.

Banana Ruffles.

Slice bananas in halves lengthwise. Pour over them a sauce made of one cup of brown sugar, two tablespoons of cream, butter the size of an egg. Stir over a fire till dissolved. Boil till it hairs, add one teaspoon of vanilla, remove from stove, beat slightly, pour while hot over bananas. Pile whipped cream on top and serve.

Imitation Egnogg.

Thoroughly beat up an egg with a slack tablespoonful of sugar—doing this in the glass in which the "nog" is to be served. Then fill the glass with hot milk and grate nutmeg on top. This is very nourishing and almost always inviting to the children who at times take a distaste for solid food.

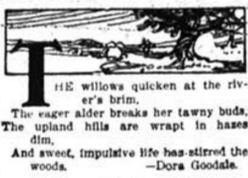

Date Suet Pudding.

Mix together one cupful of finely chopped suet, one pint of fine bread crumbs, one cupful of dates (stoned and cut fine), one cupful of sugar and one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, nutmeg and baking powder. Add four eggs beaten until very light. Pack in a buttered mold and steam for four hours. Serve with liquid sauce.

Charlotte Russe.

One-half of a box of gelatine, soaked in a very little water 20 minutes; add three-quarters of a cup of pulverized sugar, one tablespoon of vanilla, pour boiling water to make a cupful, and strain. Stir into a dish lined with sponge cake.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

GOOD THINGS.

A most appetizing breakfast dish is toast with a white sauce generously seasoned with cheese and poured over it.

Vermicelli added to a white sauce or a tomato sauce is another good dish for luncheon, on toast. If there is a daughter or son away at college, a chicken or small turkey, or duck, roasted in a paper bag, and sent packed in a new one, to be used in warming it up if desired, will cause a son or daughter to "rise up and call his mother blessed."

Another dainty for that box of goodies is a nice cake. One that will keep moist for several days, is the most satisfactory.

The layer cake of three layers, the middle one of fruit and spices, put together with orange filling is especially inviting, and it will surely not last long enough to dry.

Home made candy and some of mother's good cookies, with a package of thinly-sliced dried beef, should not be forgotten in packing the box. A jar or two of jam will delight the heart of a boy, and his friends will appreciate it as much as he.

Date cookies are another choice addition. Bake oatmeal cookies and put them together with stewed dates that have been seasoned with lemon juice.

One has the individual taste to help decide what is best to send in the box.

The following is a cake that many would find too expensive, but for such an occasion it will add to the pleasure. If the pocketbook is deep enough:

Macmillan Cake.—Take two cups of powdered sugar, one cup of black-berry jam, one cup of sweet milk, two-thirds of a cup of softened butter, five eggs or the yolks of twelve, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, spices to taste; mix all together and bake in layers. Put together with raisins and nuts and boiling frosting.

SOME sow the seed, then sit and wait. For suns to shine and rains to fall, And mourn the harvest comes so late Or fear it will not come at all.

PAPER BAG DISHES.

These recipes are by Nicolas Soyer, the chef of the Brook's club, London:

Hare or Rabbit, Roasted.—Stuff and truss a rabbit in the ordinary way. Sprinkle well with flour and rub with cream, butter or drippings. Place in a greased bag with seasoning to taste. Place on the oven rack and bake forty-five minutes in a hot oven.

Stewed Hare.—Cut up the hare in small pieces; salt and pepper it to taste, add a little apple and fat bacon, one large onion finely chopped, a tablespoonful of flour and a bunch of sweet herbs. Mix together, add a quarter of a cup of stock and put all together into a buttered bag. Allow forty minutes in a hot oven.

Veal and Ham Pie.—Make a good paste for a pie, lay in the meat, well seasoned, and the crust; moisten the ends and corners, folding to cover the meat. Place in a greased bag and bake an hour if the pie weighs three pounds.

Stewed Kidney (Lamb).—Clean and cut up several pieces, not too thin; add salt and pepper to taste, and a teaspoonful of flour for six kidneys. Add a little tomato, mushrooms, a small piece of onion chopped, and a little chopped parsley. Mix all together carefully, slide into a buttered bag and bake in a very hot oven for eight minutes. The onion may be removed before serving.

Broiled Sheep's Kidney.—Skin the kidney, season and dot with butter, place in bag and cook ten minutes. Chops of lamb are most delicious roasted in a paper bag. All the seasoning may be put on before putting them into the bag, except the addition of a little butter, if it is needed, on serving.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

When cooking cabbage, onions or any of the highly flavored vegetables, leave the dish uncovered while cooking.

After preparing celery for the table, save the tops and small bits for soups and stews.

The green tops of horseradish will grow again if planted.

For colds, a few drops of turpentine, four or five, on loaf sugar, will break up a cold in one night. If the cold is in the head, a good greasing of the nasal passages and the outside of the nose with carbolated vaseline is a great relief.

A severe cold on the chest may be relieved by a good greasing of lard and turpentine, one part turpentine to two parts lard.

Cough Medicine.—Boil two ounces of flax seed with a quart of water. Strain, and add two ounces of rock candy, a half pint of honey, the juice of three lemons. Boil all together until well mixed. Let cool and bottle. Two tablespoonfuls, taken hot, is a good dose.

Another fine cough cure is sliced onions. Sprinkle with sugar and put into the oven in a granite dish to cook. When the onions are dark brown the sirup will be ready to use. A glass of warm milk taken before retiring is a good sleep producer.

Hot milk is a good drink to take before starting out into the cold, as it warms and nourishes at the same time.

Beets are fattening, and they are a food which should appeal to the thin woman.

Do not leave meat wrapped in paper. The meat is not only flavored by the paper, but the paper will absorb the juices of the meat.

When making French dressing, a small piece of ice in the salad bowl will make dressing thick and well blended.

The water in which a mutton stew is cooked or a leg of lamb boiled is a good basis for a soup.

Had but been given the power of human speech, What is the lesson that, from lowly places, Each tender, fragrant voice to us would teach?

Perchance in tones like tinkling dewdrops sighing, What their lives tell, their velvet lips would say: "Forget life's trials that are round thee lying, And be the brightest in the darkest day."

HELPFUL HINTS.

To make ham tender, parboil and put to cook in a fireless cooker. Before serving, fry quickly until a golden brown. It will be tender, moist and altogether nice.

If a little vinegar is added to boiling fish it will keep it from falling to pieces. This will serve for cooking eggs in water, too.

A nice idea to follow, if boards are plenty, is to keep one especially for use in chopping or shredding onions. Burn a round letter O in the back and it will never be used for any other material.

An unusual combination for salad, but a good one, is sour pickles, peanuts and peas served with any desired salad dressing on lettuce, using a little onion juice in the dressing.

Another salad combination which is very delicious and most attractive in appearance is pears, almonds and candied cherries for garnish, using the French dressing.

Salad Dressing for Lettuce Sandwiches.—One egg yolk beaten light, add four tablespoonfuls of melted butter, half teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of vinegar, red pepper to taste; stir without cooking. Spread on bread without butter. Place a piece of lettuce or a slice of cucumber on each for a sandwich filling.

Add a few almonds to a potato salad to add to its food value and make it more palatable.

Nellie Maxwell.

A Billion Hellos.

In round numbers the system of the New York Telephone company consists of 526 central offices, 383,000 subscribers lines, 795,000 subscriber stations, 17,050 private branch exchange switchboards, and 35,900 local and toll trunk lines connecting the various central offices. During the year 1911 we handled approximately 985,000,000 originating calls, of which about 470,000,000 were trunked to a second central office, thus involving the employment of a second operator in handling these calls. These figures represent an increase of approximately 9% per cent over the originating traffic handled in 1910. Telephone Review.

TIGES DOWNED IN OPENER

Cleveland O., Apr. 11.—Cleveland opened the American League season here today with the Detroit Tigers in one of the most sensational games ever staged at the Cleveland park. Traveling eleven fast Innings the Naps nosed out the visitors 3 to 2. Mitchell was on the mound for the locals and held the hard slugging Tigers to five hits. The veteran Mullin was sent in for the visitors and although he was found for seven hits defeat to win but miserable support in the eleventh allowed the winning tally to be scored.

The Score: R. H. E.
Cleveland 3 7 2
Detroit 2 5 4
Batteries: Mitchell and Easler; Mullin and Stange. Umpire Perrine.

COOMBS SHOWS GREAT FORM IN FIRST GAME

Philadelphia Pa., Apr. 11.—Jack Coombs showed wonderful form in the opening game of the season today when he held Washington to four hits and won against Walter Johnson 4 to 2. Coombs pitched a wonderful game throughout the nine innings. Opposing was Johnson, star pitcher of the Senator's staff who allowed but six hits but his support was not up to snuff in the pinches.

The Score: R. H. E.
Philadelphia 4 5 2
Washington 2 4 4
Batteries: Coombs and Lapp; Johnson and Alsmith. Umpires O'Loughlin and Westervelt.

YANKS NOSED OUT BOSTON SPEED BOYS

New York Apr. 11.—Boston nosed out the Yanks 5 to 3 in the opening game of the American League schedule here today. Wood, on the mound for the visitors, was inflexible in the pinches, allowing but seven hits that were scattered. Caldwell, was slammed for eight drives several of which were bunched.

The Score: R. H. E.
Boston 5 3 2
New York 3 7 2
Batteries: Wood and Nunamaker; Caldwell and Street. Umpires Connelly and Hart.

WALSH TWIRLES THE SOX TO AN EASY VICTORY

Chicago Ill., Apr. 11.—Ed Walsh twirled the Sox to a brilliant victory over the St. Louis Browns in the opening game of the American League schedule here today. The count was 6 to 2 with the visitors never being a chance for a lookin for a hit.

The Score: R. H. E.
Chicago 6 9 1
St. Louis 2 7 1
Batteries: Walsh and Sullivan; Lake and Stephens. Umpires Evans and Egan.

DETROIT'S SLUGGING TRIO MUCH FEARED

Ball players who have worked with and against Outfielder Perry, late of Providence, but now with Detroit, says this youngster can whale the ball with the noisiest sort of oclat. Most of those pick him to hit about 800 from the jump, and if their dope comes through the Tiger outfield will be the hardest hitting array that ever fired a multitude of shots at a retreating slabman.

Take them together from 1911, Cobb, Crawford and Perry, and the combined average at bat for the triumvirate stands at 382. Which, as averages go in this day of ball playing grace, is fair enough.

BUSH READY TO PLAY WITH TIGERS

Cincinnati, O., April 11.—Owens Bush, shortstop of the Detroit American league baseball team, who has been a holdout, reported to Manager Jennings today.

Just before the time for starting the game with the Cincinnati Nationals Manager Jennings stated that Bush had not yet signed a contract. Jennings said he expected to use Oscar Vitt, the recruit shortstop, in the opening game Thursday regardless of what action Bush may take about signing.

Detroit, Mich., April 10.—Owner Charles Navin of the Detroit American league baseball club when informed that Shortstop Bush reported at Cincinnati today, stated that he had no knowledge of the latter's intention to join the team at Cincinnati and had heard nothing from Bush for some time.

It is understood Bush refused to sign his contract because it called for $300 less than his 1911 stipend. His poor hitting was said to have been the cause of his decreased pay and Navin would not state whether the club had met Bush's terms.

M'GRAW GIVES OUT SEVEN REASONS

New York, April 11.—"With an even break in luck the Giants should be a better team this year than last," says Manager John J. McGraw. "I cannot say, however, that the other teams are stronger or weaker, because I have not seen them. Picking pennant winners before post time is useless. Claiming titles before they are won has never been one of my fallings.

"There are seven reasons why the Giants may fail to repeat. They are the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Boston clubs.

"To win a championship some luck and a lot of other things are required. We always hope to avoid accidents, and to guard against them by carrying capable second string men. I hope to have classy substitutes for every position."

Why He Was Late.
"What made you so late?"
"I met Smithson."
"Well, that is, no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."
"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling and he insisted on telling me about his stomach troubles."
"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"
"Sure, that is what he needs." Sold by Farrell & Lohmiller and Groos Drug Store.

CUBS DOWNED BY CINCY REDS

Cincinnati O., Apr. 11.—The National league was opened today with a hard hitting but clean fielding game in which the Chicago Cubs fell the victims of the locals 10 to 6. King Cole went to the mound for the Cubs to defend the honor of the visitors and after wavering and faltering was driven to the woods, a total of 14 drives being counted by the locals. Smith was hit freely but was given mid season support.

The Score: R. H. E.
Cincinnati 10 14 0
Chicago 6 11 1
Batteries: Smith and McLean; Cole and Archer. Umpires Johnstone and Eason.

GIANTS CRUSH DODGERS BY BIG SCORE IN FIRST

Brooklyn N. Y. Apr. 11.—The New York Giants opened the National league season here today by delivering a crushing defeat to the locals, winning 18 to 3. Rube Marquard showed midseason form today going the entire distance and allowing but six hits. Rucker was far off color as were all of the Brooklyn twirlers who were hurried in quick succession to the mound the Giants garnering 18 blows in the session.

The Score: R. H. E.
New York 18 22 2
Brooklyn 3 6 2
Batteries: Marquard and Meyers; Rucker and Phelps. Umpires Klem and Bush.

BOSTON SLAMS PHILLIES IN SEASON'S OPENER

Boston Mass., Apr. 11.—Boston slammed the Phillies star twirler Alexander to all corners of the lot in the opening game of the season today and trimmed the visitors 7 to 4. The locals connected for 12 safe drives in the session while Purdue went the full nine innings allowing nine hits.

The Score: R. H. E.
Boston 7 12 1
Philadelphia 4 9 1
Batteries: Purdue and Kling; Alexander and Duoin. Umpires Rigler and Fineran.

CARDS SHUT OUT THE PIRATES IN FIRST GAME

St. Louis Mo., Apr. 11.—The Cardinals got a running start in the opening game of the schedule today when they trimmed the Pirates by the shut-out route 7 to 0. Harmon held Clarke's sluggers to four well scattered hits while the locals piled in Camnitz's benders for a total of 13 safe drives.

The score: R. H. E.
St. Louis 7 13 1
Pittsburg 0 4 1
Batteries: Harmon and Bliss; Camnitz and Gibson. Umpires Brennan and Owens.

HUGHIE STILL HAS PEP

Hughie Jennings isn't going to lack pep this year. It was feared for some time that the ginger of the auburn-haired leader would have been neutralized by the onslaughts of the winter but there is nothing to the fear.

Hughie has shown worlds of pep in the exhibition games. That there will be the same fighter on the lines when the season starts who held sway last year must be conceded. Hughie is especially strong on the dance stuff this year. He is pulling off steps that are entirely new to everybody including himself. The spring waltz is his latest. It is given to the accompaniment of a two-bagger at the needed time. It is named from Hughie's resemblance to the article referred to as he pirouettes up and down.

HERRMANN SEES BRIGHT OUTLOOK

If 1912 doesn't prove baseball's banner year, I shall be disappointed, says August Herrmann, chairman of the National Commission.

Baseball has not reached its full development, not by a great deal. No man can say what its limitations are. I do not think the prediction of A. G. Spalding, that baseball will one day be the world's sport, is too rosy, although this is a long way off.

The new agreement of the major and minor leagues has brought about a more harmonious understanding that cannot help improve the game. This agreement has improved the position of the players, the man who plays the game and this means, in turn, a more thoroughly satisfied public, never forget it is the public really makes the national game.

One sign of the times is the splendid new fields and the housing accommodation for patrons, in major league cities. Rome, when spectacles were the life of the people, never dreamed of such places. Her games and gladiatorial contests were staged in less pretentious enclosures than the new homes of many clubs.

The stands in Cleveland, Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, Chicago, Detroit and Boston indicate the progress of the game. Thousands who remained away rather than submit to discomfort and dirt will attend the game regularly. Everything that can be done to make surroundings attractive to men and women, has been provided and the modern ball park is as comfortable as a theatre.

The calibre of young players who have come into the major leagues this year is, seemingly, large and the race should be close. Clubs which last season were dangerous have been strengthened in their weak points and anticipate a red hot struggle until the final day.

Last year was disastrous for several minor leagues, due chiefly to the feeling of prosperity and the desire to forget salary limits. Managers learned a valuable lesson and this season will avoid the errors which made trouble. With good weather the minors should be as prosperous, in comparison as the major leagues. I shall be very much surprised if any National or American league club makes a runaway race. In fact, each league is more evenly balanced than ever before and that any one of four or five teams is apt to win the pennant in either league.

JOHNNY KILBANE, FEATHER CHAMP, IS A GOOD CITIZEN

Cleveland, O., April 11.—Johnny Kilbane to every Clevelander, whether fight fan or businessman, is a whole lot more than a fighter. While the fight fan acknowledges him as the best of all the little fellows, it is for his finer qualities that he is loved.

Among other things which is interesting him just now is an uplift movement in the interest of the "newsies" and messenger boys of his home city. These boys hold Johnny as their hero, and his influence is being made effective for good.

For months the businessmen of this city have been alive to the necessity of some constructive work in the interest of the boys who have to earn money on the street in the capacity of messenger boys and kindred lines of work. Conditions are perhaps no worse here than in other large cities, but for the sake of Cleveland's future citizenship it is necessary to protect the boys of today.

In this work Johnny Kilbane is to play an important part along with Tom Gavigan, another fighter. Both of these men have influence with the boys, as the boys always feel complimented when spoken to by the fighters, and their minds are easily influenced by any suggestions from them. Kilbane is showing in Milwaukee this week.

FORMER ENEMIES NOW COBB'S BEST FRIENDS

New Orleans, La., April 11.—Ty Cobb is a very popular player with his own teammates. The situation was not always thus, however. It was only a year ago last fall, that Nap Lajoie received a telegram of congratulation from ten of the Tigers when it was believed that Nap had won the American league batting championship. They did not like Ty then, but he won them over during the 1911 campaign.

Ty's character seemed to develop rapidly during the last year and his personality was such that his former enemies became his most intimate friends. And practically every man on the team now swears by Ty and says that not only is he the world's greatest player, but also one of the grandest fellows connected with the game.

WANTS $9,600 FROM JACK JOHNSON

Chicago, April 11.—Jack Johnson world's champion pugilist, will be prosecuted by the United States government for smuggling unless the sum of $9,600 is paid as a penalty for secretly bringing, according to the government allegation, a diamond necklace into this country from Europe without paying duty. The treasury department charges that he smuggled a diamond necklace valued at $6,000 into this country when he returned from watching the coronation processions of King George in London.

BIG BONUS FOR MEN WHO GIVE UP PILLS

Monroe, La., April 11.—Six hundred dollars in cash is the bonus offered by Hugh Jennings to every member of the Tigers who will stop smoking cigarettes. Naturally this applies only to those who "have the habit" now and not to any athletes who might wish to acquire it for financial purposes.

"Cigarettes put a curse on every ball player who uses them," says Jennings. "No use to argue it with me—I know a man can not be at his best physically if he keeps hitting the paper pipe. In the old Orleole days Willis Keeler and I were roommates. Keeler smoked cigarettes. Finally he concluded that they were injuring him and he cut them out substituting cigars. When he quit the cigarettes his batting average picked up something like 100 points.

"I know if several members of my team would throw the cigarettes away they would benefit themselves and the team. That's why I offer $600 bonus.

BURNS WON PENNANT FOR TIGERS IN 1909

Cincinnati, O., April 11.—Detroit really owed Bill Burns a job. In 1909 the last of the Tigers' fat years, Burns pitched Jennings' team into the American league championship. Bill was then a member of the White Sox club and was sent to the mound in the second game of a double header against Philadelphia. He beat the Athletics in this game and the defeat cost Mack's men the pennant. They had lost the first game. Burns returned to Detroit with the Tigers and White Sox. His work had been good during 1909 and Jennings then wanted to secure Burns for his club.

ICE FIELDS ARE BREAKING

The reports from the regular and display stations of the Weather Bureau and Meteorological Service of Canada indicate that the warm weather of last week has softened the ice in all of the lakes and the conditions are more favorable. In Superior the field of ice extends from Duluth eastward to within two miles of Two Harbors, east of this open water extends beyond vision; over the central and eastern portions the fields are extensive, but more open water is showing and the fields are breaking up. In Whitefish Bay the ice remains solid. In St. Marys river the channel is open to near Six Mile Point, but remains firm over the southern portion. In Green Bay the ice is beginning to honeycomb. In Lake Michigan the fields have moved out from the southern portion and very little ice is reported from the islands south to Chicago. More open water is showing to the north and east of Beaver Island and also at the Straits there is some open water but the conditions have not changed materially. In Huron the fields have moved off the west shore and very little ice is visible. The extensive field over the southern section moved out of view on the 6th. The ice continues to run out of Lake St. Clair. In Erie the open water is reported over the western half of the lake; the fields continue over the eastern portion. In Ontario the fields are combed to the eastern half of the lake and are beginning to break up and move freely with the wind.

In comparison with the same period last year there is more ice reported in all of the lakes.

The usual details follow:

LAKE SUPERIOR
Duluth: Ice in harbor has softened rapidly during the week and is now unsafe; much open water in the western half of Superior Bay; out side ice is honeycombing and water is showing in places on the surface.
Two Harbors: Some broken ice in the harbor; the lake field extends from two miles west of here to Duluth; to the east open water extends beyond vision.
Washburn: Some open water appearing about the docks.
Ashland: Thickness of harbor ice

25 inches; it is shifting and becoming dark.

Port Arthur, Ont.: Harbor ice 34 inches in thickness; no change in the ice field; it has not moved any.

Houghton: The ice has become rotten during the week with open water around the bridge. Portage Canal: Canal open from Portage Lake to life-saving station. The fields are moving with the winds. Eagle Harbor: Ice in harbor averages 28 inches in thickness; the field ice is moving with the wind and some open water is showing. Portage Entry: Open water is showing in the river; the bay ice is honeycombing. Baraga: The bay ice is becoming rotten and breaking along shore.

Marquette: Ice in harbor intact; the bay and lake ice moved out Saturday night and broke up, and afterwards returned; open water now visible to north and northwest.

Grand Marais, Mich.: Thickness of ice in harbor 28 inches; it is beginning to honeycomb; the offshore winds have moved the ice fields out beyond vision to the west, and 10 miles out to the east; open water off Deer Park 10 miles wide, with the ice field beyond.

Sault Ste. Marie: The river in the channel is open from the rapids to near Six Mile Point; the remaining ice is thinner and honeycombed.

LAKE MICHIGAN
Gladstone: Thickness of harbor ice 27 inches with about 2 inches of slush on top.

Escanaba: Thickness of harbor ice 24 inches; it is intact, but is softening and honeycombing.

Green Bay: River clear of ice on 4th; channel in bay open to Grassy Island light; ice solid in bay and extends beyond vision.

Plum Island: The ice to the west of the island about 24 inches and decreasing; no ice visible to the east of the islands; tugs fishing from Detroit Harbor.

Sturgeon Bay: The tugs forced a passage from the canal to the bridge on the 4th; the ice in this and in Green Bay is 24 inches in thickness; the ice is honeycombing rapidly.

Chicago: The ice near this shore began to break up on the 3rd; on the 6th no ice was visible.

Mackinaw: Ice broken and moving about from this point to two miles west; the ice to the east and west of this shows no sign of breaking up.

LAKE HURON
Mackinac Island: Mall steamer Lotus from St. Ignace landed passengers and mail one mile from shore on Saturday; the channel is open; the ice to the east from the dock may drift out any time.
Port Huron: The ice ran out of Black river on the 31st as far as the Grand Trunk bridge, and the remainder went out on the 5th; St. Clair river is open; the southerly winds from 3rd to 6th moved the ice field in the lake for the first time since January 16; the field moved beyond vision by the morning of the 6th.

LAKE ST. CLAIR AND DETROIT RIVER
The ice field in the lake has been running slowly out of the lake during the week; the southern portion of the field is about 7 miles from the mouth of the lake. The river is open to Lake Erie.

LAKE ERIE
Toledo: The last of the ice in the river ran out on the 2nd; the southerly winds of the last four days have moved all the ice out of Maumee Bay.

Sandusky: The brisk southwest winds of past four days have driven the ice out of the bay which had been clear since Friday and lake is now clear of ice as far as vision extends. Vermilion: The ice fields have moved out beyond sight.

Lorain: No ice visible at this port. Cleveland: The harbor ice disappeared on the 4th; lake ice gradually moving off shore since the 4th; on the 7th the southern edge of the field was about 10 miles from shore.

Port Stanley, Ont.: No ice in harbor; fish tugs operating, report no ice in sight.

Ashabula: The ice is going fast; considerable open water visible.

Conneaut: Harbor open, some open water visible during the week; ice is softening.

Erie: Harbor clear of ice; more open water visible and the fields are breaking up.

Buffalo: The open space at the mouth of the lake and entrance to harbor is larger; the ice along the outer breakwater is breaking up; the main body of the lake ice is becoming black and honeycombing.

LAUNCHING UNUSUAL

(Special to the Morning Press)

Chicago, Ill., April 11—For the first time in many seasons all games scheduled to be played on the opening day of the major leagues were pulled off today according to program. In every city in which games were scheduled for opening the season in the National and American Leagues almost ideal weather conditions prevailed.

In past years it has been the experience of baseball promoters to have from two to three of the first games scheduled, postponed on account of rain.

BIG FIRE SEEN ACROSS THE BAY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Watchman employed on the local ore docks at this port report that immediately after the heavy electrical storm swept over this district on Wednesday night, a huge blaze was seen leaping up from some point on the Bay de Noc peninsula. The fire continued until near morning when it appeared to have burned itself out owing to the treacherous condition of the ice no farmers crossed from the Bay de Noc peninsula to the city yesterday and as there are no telephone facilities into the district, the nature of Wednesday night's fire could not be learned.

JOHN LAUSCHER TO BE CANDIDATE

That there will be a merry fight this fall for the different county offices was further shown yesterday when John Lauscher announced that he will enter the race as a candidate for the office of register of deeds on the Republican ticket. Mr. Lauscher is a popular young man of the city who during the past year was employed by Grinnell Brothers. He spent several years at Cornell and in other parts of the county, thus possessing a wide acquaintance in all parts of this district. Mr. Lauscher is qualified for the office and announces that he will make an aggressive campaign for the post from this time until the primaries are held.

tion was conducted and full list of delegates to the national convention was named. The regular convention also proceeded with its business and without friction named a full list of instructed Taft delegates to the national Republican meeting.

Former Senator Albert Beveridge, of Indiana, who was scheduled to deliver the keynote address for the Roosevelt forces in the convention, went to the convention hall with Chairman Shields and in the tumult that followed, was guarded by two police officers to protect him from injury. Finally he declined to deliver his address before either convention and left the city in a high state of dudgeon.

In spite of the assertion from Chairman Shields that the meeting was not a legal one the state central committee met last night and named Robert H. Shields of Houghton to act as temporary chairman in the place of Truman Newberry, selected by the Roosevelt forces for that position. The committee also voted to seat the regular Taft delegates to the convention from Wayne and Calhoun counties, from which contesting Roosevelt delegations were sent. The Taft forces through the action of the committee gained possession of the convention hall during the night and retained possession this morning. Only delegates showing dards signed by Secretary Paul H. King, of the central committee, were allowed to enter; the hall and thus the Roosevelt forces were held out side and kept away from the building by police and militiamen. A crowd of hundreds of people gathered with the disgruntled delegates without the building and set up a din that was almost equal to the turmoil inside among the leaders of the two factions.

The convention of today will go down in history as one of the most turbulent ever held in the state.

HOLD BODY HERE FOR FOUR MONTHS

DANCING PARTY WAS ENJOYABLE

After four months the authorities have been unable to find any trace of the relatives of John Willette, a woods man, who died at the hospital here on Dec. 7. Believing that relatives would ultimately claim the body it was taken to the undertaking rooms of J. A. Allo where it was embalmed and is still in a perfect state of preservation. So perfect has the work of embalming been carried out that not the slightest change has taken place in either the features or the body of the dead. It is asserted by Mr. Allo that the body will remain in its present condition for all time.

For rheumatism you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. Try it and see how quickly it gives relief. For sale by Farrell & Lohmiller and Groos Drug Store.

A dancing party that had many enjoyable features was that given by members of the Protected Home Circle at Clark's hall last night.

The party was a strictly invitational affair and was attended by a large number of guests all of whom thoroughly enjoyed every part of the program of the evening. The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion, furnishing a delightful background for the party. A pleasing musical program was given and the dancers at frequent intervals during the evening showed their pleasure by enthusiastic encores.

RECEIVERSHIP FOR ROMADKA COMPANY

Milwaukee, Wis., April 11—Upon application of three creditors United States Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger this morning named the First Savings and Trust company receiver for the Romadka Bros. company, a Milwaukee leather goods manufacturing concern with a factory and two retail stores in Milwaukee and one retail store in Cleveland, O.

According to the attorneys for the creditors, liabilities of concern are approximately $200,000, while the involuntary bankruptcy petition filed this morning sets forth that the assets are about $100,000, consisting chiefly of manufactured goods and raw materials.

The order signed by Judge Geiger closes the plant and retail store immediately, and they will not be permitted to operate except upon special application of the receiver. The trust company furnished a $10,000 bond.

The petition was filed by the Louis Sigbert & Bros. company, New York, Archibald G. McBride, New York, and the O'Bannon corporation, New York. Attorneys for the company this morning argued for permission to continue to operate both the plants and the retail stores, but this was denied by Judge Geiger.

The company, it is said, has been pressed by creditors before, and a year ago secured a one year extension of some of the claims. It is maintained that in the meantime they have been making an effort to get in shape to offer a settlement and were, at the time of the filing of the petition, nearly ready to offer 35 cents on the dollar.

One of the claimants is Goodman & Co., Chicago, which has bills aggregating $14,000, while the Sigbert company and the O'Bannon corporation, petitioners, claim $7000 and $600 respectively.

LEGISLATURE IS FINALLY ADJOURNED

Lansing, Mich., April 11—Final adjournment of the legislature took place at noon today. Representative Raudabaugh of Lansing presided as speaker in the house. Lieutenant Governor Ross and Senators Bradley and Walters were the only members of the upper house present.
