MR. BAKER STARTS.

Herbie Baker, speaker of the house of representatives, has actually started a campaign for election as United States senator to succeed Senator William Alden Smith.

It is not very likely that Herbie, who also presided at the rump Roosevelt convention in Bay City, will go very far after the start but it is fitting just the same to call attention to his sponsors. He is backed by the Booth syndicate of newspapers. This syndicate is headed by the Detroit News, and includes the Grand Rapids Press, the Muskegon News-Chronicle, the Flint Journal, the Jackson Citizen-Press, the Saginaw News and the Bay City Times and has rather close affiliations with the Adrian Telegram, the Port Huron Times-Herald and a couple of other smaller dailies.

It is quite an imposing array of journalistic force and it is out to beat William Alden, largely because the Grand Rapids Herald, which is owned by the senator, is a thorn in the side of the Grand Rapids Press. But the syndicate was hard put for a candidate before bringing out Baker. At least three men were taken up on the moun-

THE DOOM OF THE DEEP

By L. C. HODGSON.

Out of the fog and the shrouded night
 Leaps a shape of terror and freight,
 Rising hideous up from the deep
 To break with a shriek o'er the towers of sleep—
 And a reeling death rears over the foam—
 "I give ye the dungeons of death for home."
 The great ice bulk with a sudden wrath
 Grins with hate from its sunken grave,
 And smites it deep in the leering gulf.

Out of the chaos the reeking wall
 Of men and women whose faces pale,
 And whose hearts grow cold in the face of death,
 Shriveled and torn in the monster's breath!
 And the rich man's diamonds turn to dust,
 To laugh in his face and mock his lust,
 His gleaming treasures will never buy
 A glimpse of the sun in the next day's sky.

The peasant mother wakes from the dream
 That carried her on where the new lands gleam,
 And gives her again to a strong man's heart—
 The dream that the terror rives apart.
 Out of the deep with death at the wheel,
 Together the prince and the pauper kneel,
 And God looks down on the awful day
 That mixes the human in common clay.

Then out of the terror one blazing star
 Flames its light o'er the world afar,
 As man grows man in that awful hour
 And rises up to a God-like power.
 Sure and still in the fact of death,
 Men smile and say with their last pure breath
 "The women first!" and strong, clean hands
 Are clutched to follow the heart's commands.

Rich man, and poor man by his side,
 The toll and tenderness divide,
 The little child at his mother's breast
 Sleeps again, all fear unguessed,
 And mother and child go safely o'er
 The hungry sea to a sun-gilt shore.
 And the men, made brothers in sudden doom,
 Stand hand in hand on the brink of the tomb—
 And God looks down to see the clod
 That He made a man prove worthy of God.

Tears for the lonely hearts bereft,
 Tears for the women and children left,
 Tears for the dead in a sea-made grave—
 Whose requiem sobs o'er the wind-swept wave—
 But cheers with the tears—for our own poor sake—
 Cheers through the tears, though the sad hearts break—
 Cheers for the manhood born to be Bright as the stars of eternity!

Up with our cheers through the ransomed air,
 Cheers grown pure as the hush of prayer,
 That man in the face of death can rise,
 With steady hand and unflinching eyes,
 And thrill to the dream that made him man,
 Comrade with God in scheme and plan!
 O, brothers, the brave that went down at sea,
 Pledged their honor for you and me!

tain before the speaker was approached but they all refused to look at the world at their feet. In fact, they were mean enough to ask what the syndicate wanted in return for its support.

But Mr. Baker hasn't been so wary. He is already writing letters around the state and arranging for a press bureau. He says he is going to make a motor tour of the state preaching progression. Herbie ought to know about progression. He progressed from being county chairman of the Democratic party at Cheboygan into the Republican party when he found that he might garner much honor as a Democrat, but no office.

PRESIDENT TAFT DECIDES TO VISIT MASSACHUSETTS; MAY RAP ROOSEVELT, TOO

Washington, April 20.—President Taft will invade Massachusetts, the next big state to hold presidential primaries. The Massachusetts primaries will be held April 30. Close friends of the president expect him on this trip to break his silence under the criticisms of Colonel Roosevelt. Men in close touch with Mr. Taft believe he will not hesitate to mention Colonel Roosevelt by name, something which he has not done so far in his speeches, except in commendation.

TRAGEDY OF THE SEA COSTS $2,000,000

New York, April 20.—Accident insurance companies in this country and England stand to lose approximately $2,000,000, it was estimated today by insurance experts, as a result of the Titanic disaster. The loss, it was explained, will be doubled by reason of the so-called "double liability clause" which requires insurance companies to pay twice the amount of the death benefits where the policyholder loses his life while traveling on a public conveyance "propelled by steam or electricity."

Straight life insurance men were interested today by the discovery that on board the Titanic there was only one man who is on the "big" list of insured. He was George D. Wick, of Youngstown, O., and his name is not among those of the known survivors. Mr. Wick is rated as carrying $150,000 insurance, which would mean, it is said by insurance men, that his policies aggregate about $250,000, as the ratings usually public are at a minimum.

John Jacob Astor, according to the insurance men, has been conspicuous among men who do not carry life insurance, and the same is true of Benjamin Guggenheim and Isidor Straus.

LATEST NEWS IN THE WORLD OF FINANCE AND TRADE

BOSTON MARKETS

The coppers opened with a rush this morning and many specialties were noticeably strong. Indiana Granby and Centennial were the leaders. Politics are again becoming an important factor in the market and may have the effect of depressing prices early next week. We believe firmly in the metal market and think copper will have a further advance. Activity and speculation in the local coppers is increasing and we shall see a further rally all through the list next week.

NEW YORK MARKETS

The week closes with the majority having assumed a "waiting" attitude but with sentiment on the whole rather hopeful. Somewhat more attention is being paid to international politics and from a domestic standpoint, recent occurrences have not been entirely in keeping with the desire of those who anticipated a rather sharp rebuke to destructive radicalism. It is not improbable that developments in the fields of labor during the coming week will do much towards shaping the immediate course of the stock market as will also crop advances from both the cotton and winter wheat belts.

FIRE PREVENTION RULES FOR RAILROADS

Houghton, Mich., April 20.—The state game, fish and forestry department has demonstrated that between 75 and 80 per cent of the disastrous forest fires in Michigan in recent years are traceable to the carelessness of homesteaders and campers, according to John A. Higgins, the department's inspector of railroad locomotives and rights of way. A small percentage of the fires have been caused by sparks from locomotives and it is the duty of Mr. Higgins to see that railroads equip their engines with devices to prevent these fires.

Mr. Higgins is on a tour of inspection of the railroads of Michigan. He examines the equipment, the conditions along the right of way that might be changed as a measure of fire prevention and advises railroads how to prevent fires. He inspected the Copper Range railroad yesterday and found it one of the best equipped roads in the state in this respect.

The Copper Range some months ago went to considerable expense to equip its locomotive boilers with screens, screens are placed in the front of the boilers just before the entrance of the smoke to the stack. All smoke must pass through them and they permit no cinders to escape. It therefore is virtually impossible for a forest fire to be started by a Copper Range locomotive.

Mr. Higgins says that Warden Oates' department soon will have the fire inspection down to such fine point that it will be possible to trace directly to the responsible person the cause of any forest fire.

The inspector is preparing a report on his researches and it will be published by the department as a guide for the prevention of forest fires.

JOHN COOK DIES SUDDENLY

Marinette, Wis., April 20.—Mrs. Helen Cook, wife of Chief of Police John Cook of Marinette, died suddenly at 7:30 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. V. McComb, 1006 Ogdan avenue, Menominee. Heart failure was the cause of her death.

Mrs. Cook had been in poor health for the past month, but on Monday felt much improved and decided to spend a week or so at the home of her daughter in Menominee. Last evening shortly after the dinner hour she sat conversing with her daughter, Mrs. McComb, and her son, Ralph. She was suddenly stricken and before her children could reach her side, she had passed away, death being almost instantaneous.

Mrs. Cook was formerly Miss Helen Hanson of Cato, Wis., where she was born 53 years ago. Following her marriage to Mr. Cook the family removed to Marinette, where they have resided for the past thirty years. Of a kindly disposition and a devoted wife and mother, Mrs. Cook was beloved by a large circle of friends, who were deeply shocked to hear of her sudden death. Besides her husband, the deceased is survived by four daughters and two sons.

GRANT AS A CADET AT MILITARY SCHOOL

Washington, April 20.—Many army stories are told of Major General Frederick Dent Grant, but most of them have to do with his life as a cadet at West Point. Grant entered the military academy in 1866 and graduated in 1871. He was granted sick leave when he had been a cadet about seven months, and on his return to the academy he was compelled to join the class next in rank below that with which he had entered.

The general's roommate at the academy for some time was Colonel Chas.
W. Larned, who died recently and who was professor of drawing at West Point for more than thirty years. Other classmates were General Winfield S.
Edgerly, Colonel James Rockwell, who until the time of his death served in the ordnance department, and Benjamin Hodgson, who was killed in Reno's fight with the Sioux.

Grant was handicapped when he entered the academy by the fact that he was the son of a famous man. The cadets did not like to pay him much attention for fear that they would be accused of toadying, a feeling which was common in the older days and probably is common today. Grant was made the mark of considerable good natured hazing. He was a finehumored youngster, so his classmates say, full of fun, rather rollicking, and giving little promise of becoming the staid soldier and grave man that he was in his later years. In the class album of '70 is a group picture showing the class members. Every boy had his face pulled to the gravity of the occasion except Grant, who is grinning broadly.

The class which entered in 1866 reported in camp on July Fourth, just after a first classman had read to the assembled cadets, new and old, the Declaration of Independence. An oration by a cadet had followed and in its course a "glowing tribute was paid" by the boy orator to George Washington.

When the new cadets entered plebe camp on that Independence Day in upper classman, bent on having some fun with the son of Ulysses Simpson Grant, looked him up and asked him:
"Which do you think was the greater man, General George Washington or General Ulysses S. Grant?"

"Fred's answer blunt and quick was,
"Washington may have been the greater man, but my father was the greater soldier."

"Mr. Grant," said the upper classman, "to compare your father to George Washington in any sense is like unto the comparing of a plucked hen with the American eagle."

Then a fight started, but it was stopped almost instantly by some first class man because the place was too public for a fracas.

A day or two afterward the first classman intimated to Grant that it would be a pleasure to have him call immediately at the senior's tent. Grant went. There is a rule at the academy, which was a rule in Grant's day as well, that any cadet who asks another to perform menial work for him shall be dismissed from the service. The first classmate knew too much to ask his visitor outright to do anything of the kind, but here is the way which the voracious academy history says he went at it:

"I presume, Mr. Grant, that you have lived on a farm, and such being the case you undoubtedly have had rare opportunities to note the effect of the sun's rays on certain objects. Now if you had left a water bucket that was innocent of retention of a single drop of water, out in the sun the rising to the setting thereof, what do you think, sir, would be the particular effect upon that particular water bucket?"

"I think," said Cadet Grant, "that it would get warped and leaky."

"Very good, Mr. Grant; you show erudition beyond your years. Now if you will look at my water bucket you will see that it is dry as a chip. By the further exercise of your knowledge and observation, Mr. Grant, can you tell me by what means I may prevent the warping and leaking of my bucket?"

"Have it filled," said Grant.
"Very good again, Mr. Grant, but pray note that you said, 'Have it filled,' not 'fill it.' That necessarily means, Mr. Grant that someone must fill it for me. You have shown so much acumen that I fear to violate the terms of your prescription either in letter or in spirit, which I should do if I presumed to carry the bucket to the water tank myself."

Grant filled the bucket.

"When the plebe class of which Grant was a member, took up the study of trigonometry they were confronted with logarithms. The instructor the day prior to the first lesson told his charges to look at the table of the logarithms of the numbers from one to one thousand and "get a general idea of the thing." The next morning when the sections were forming to march to the academy building, a class mate asked Grant if he knew his lesson.

"Yes," said Grant, "I think so, all but those infernal logarithms."

It was found out later that he had blanketed his window and his transom to hide the fact that he was running a light, and had stayed up till revellie, trying to commit the table of logarithms to memory.

Grant's classmates say that while he was a cadet he had three or four flat fights and that he was always ready to engage in them when necessary. He had three encounters with some weeks' intervals between them in Fort Clinton ditch with an officer now retired as a captain, who in the Spanish war served as a colonel of a state regiment which was taken into the federal service. The story has it that each one of these fights was a draw, and that the two cadets agreed to call it square.

Grant was popular in the army.
Whether or not army officers approved of what Grant did in Chicago three or four years ago they say it was one of the finest acts of his life. In the uniform of a major general of the United States army he rode at the head of the temperance parade, afterward leaving the line to review it. It was his way of endorsing the temperance movement.
Personal liberty leagues and representatives of the liquor interests tried to get the war department to condemn Grant's act, but failed.

SURVIVORS ARE ON WAY HOME

Green Bay, Wis., April 20.—A telegram received by Dr. Robert E. Minahan here this morning from his brother, Dr. John R. Minahan conveyed the information of the safe arrival in New York of Mrs. W. E. Minahan of Fond du Lac and Miss Daisy Minahan, survivors of the ill-fated Titanic. That much of the telegram was gratifying but an additional sentence said there was no hope for Dr. W. E. Minahan.

The Minahan family here feel certain that Mrs. Minahan and Miss Minahan came off the steamer Carpathia in fairly good health, or they would not attempt the railroad journey west.
It is not known whether they will stop at Fond du Lac or come to Green Bay Sunday.

George E. Graham of Winnipeg, who is among those reported as missing since the wreck is a nephew of Mrs. Fred A. Wilson of this city. Mrs.
Wilson received a telegram this morning from Mrs. Graham who had gotten as far as Toronto before she learned her husband was lost. She was rushing to New York to meet him as she believed he was among those saved.
The name of Mr. Graham appeared in the list of survivors. George Graham was a buyer for T. Eaton company, a big department store in Winnipeg.

WAGE INCREASE IS A BOON TO MANY

Houghton, Mich., April 20.—As was announced yesterday, a 10 per cent increase in wages for the men employed by the Calumet & Hecla and its various subsidiary companies will go into effect May 1, this being in line with the policy of the management to increase wages for employees whenever the price of copper warrants. Rumors, that such an increase might be made in the near future had been in circulation for the past few days, based on the assumption that the advance in copper to sixteen cents a pound was something more than a passing flurry in the metal market and that a price higher than the average for the last three years might reasonably be expected for the future.

General Manager MacNaughton in an interview Wednesday night said:
"The Calumet & Hecla will announce tomorrow an increase of 10 per cent in wages for all classes of labor that were reduced Dec. 1, 1907. The raise goes into effect May 1 and it includes practically all our men. The increase likewise includes the men working for the various Calumet & Hecla subsidiaries."

Roughly speaking, this increase influences the monthly compensation of more than eight thousand men. The mines included are the Calumet &
Hecla, Tamarack, Osceola, Consolidated, Centennial, Ahmeek, Allouez, Superior, La Salle, St. Louis and Larium, as well as the working forces at the stamp mill plants, the smelters and exploration forces.

This important announcement will have a most beneficial effect, for it will make a great difference to all copper country business concerns, besides indicating the faith of the Calumet & Hecla in the stability of the copper metal advance.

THAW GETS ANOTHER CHANCE IN STRUGGLE FOR FREEDOM.

Albany, N. Y., Apr. 20.—A representative of the attorney general's office will appear for the state at the judicial inquiry into Harry Thaw's present mental condition at Brooklyn on Friday. The writ of habeas corpus was obtained yesterday by Thaw's attor-

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

One of the most startling changes
ever seen in any man, according to W.
B. Holsclaw, Claremont, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough" he writes "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was completely cured by ten bottles.
Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for coughs and colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Price 50 cents and $1.00.

PENSION PLAN FOR WESTERN UNION MEN

W. J. Fish, manager of the Ishpeming office of the Western Union Telegraph company, has received word from President Theodore Vall that the Western Union employees are to benefit by an old age and accident pension plan. In the letter containing the announcement Mr. Vall said: "It is my firm belief that all employees identified here by years of faithful service are entitled to some financial protection against the necessity of retirement, and it is the hope of this company that this beginning will lead to further protection.

A pension committee has been compiling statistics and analyzing conditions among the 30,000 employees of the company and at the meeting of the executive committee held recently their findings were formulated into the pension plan that will go into effect July.

The pensions will be graduated according to length of service and salary before retirement and except in cases of disablement 20 years of service are required. From 20 to 25 years 1 per cent of the average salary for the years immediately preceding retirement is multiplied by the total years of service; that is, an employee whose average salary was $100 in the ten years before retirement, at say 25 years, would get $25 a month. The scale then moves up, so that a man who got $25 a month after 25 years would get $40 after 35 years. All employees reaching 70 are to retire from service. No pension is to exceed $100 a month without special authorization of the executive committee, and none is to be less than $25.

MRS. ASTOR ROWED BOAT

New York, April 20.—The officer forced me to row until I thought my arms would drop off. All the time he sat with a sneer on his face, demanding that I row harder. Then to make his brutality complete, he ordered Mrs.
Astor, who is in a very delicate condition to tug at the oars.

"The survivors of the Titanic have nothing but the utmost contempt for J. Bruce Ismay. I will be glad to go before any investigating board, and tell it all I know."

This was the indignant statement today of Mrs. J. J. Brown, Denver, one of the heroines of the Titanic disaster, who rowed a lifeboat.

"I know of no words to express my indignation at the arrogance of the men in charge of the lifeboats," said Mrs. Brown.

"When Mrs. Astor came aboard our boat her husband was with her. 'Get out of here,' cried the officer in charge
'This boat is for the ladies only—'

"Mr. Astor explained that his wife was in a delicate condition and he would like to accompany her, but when the officer cursed him, he bowed very courteously and smilingly left the boat after kissing his wife goodby. The lifeboat started off with a number of seats vacant.

"Leader Straus and his aged wife came into the lifeboat. He, too, was ordered out and Mrs. Straus said she would remain with him, even if it meant death for both of them. 'We'll teach these rich Yankees that we are running things,' the officer in charge boasted as our boat left the Titanic."

Some astounding revelations as to conditions on board the rescue ship were made by Mrs. Lucien P. Smith, a bride of a few weeks, who was made a widow by the disaster.

She declared that there was plenty of room aboard several of the life-boats for more passengers. The few sailors in Mrs. Smith's boat did not take their turn at the oars, but let women with frail arms pull the craft along.

BROTHERHOOD OF ENGINEERS SENDS AN ULTIMATUM TO EASTERN RAILWAY MANAGERS

New York, April 20.—Warren S.
Stone, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, sent an ultimatum to the conference committee of Eastern railroad managers today, givengineers' demands for higher wages.

This followed a request for forty-eight hours more time made by J. C. Stuart, chairman of the conference committee, after Mr. Stone had sent a letter asking that the demands be granted by 8 o'clock tonight. This letter was the engineers' reply to the formal refusal of their demands by the railroad committee yesterday.

Tiny Evildoers at Bar of Justice

NEW YORK—Tears are as plentiful in the children's court as the ticks of the white-faced clock that looks at Justice Hoyt from the opposite wall.

The justice is a sympathetic man. Ten minutes in his court when he is trying children's cases will impress this fact on any one, except, perhaps, some parent who comes before him under the influence of liquor. It must be hard on a sympathetic man. Ten thousand cases a year are adjudicated in Manhattan. Probably 9,000 of these are brought by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Cases of grand larceny, highway robbery, burglary and petit larceny are decided by him every few minutes. He asks Michael why he has been absent from school 65 days since October 1; from a nine-year-old negro girl he tries to ascertain the real influence at work which renders her incorrigible from the point of view of her aunt, and makes her cry out that she wants to go back to her home in No. 7 Carline.

An intoxicated father, holding a baby in his lap, blubbers about how much he desires to reform, so as to be permitted to care for the three-year-old girl, whose mother is on the island, your honor, for drunkenness.

A German woman, with three children, four, six and eight years old,

"WHY WON'T YOU STAY HOME?" ASKED JUDGE HOYT.

says her husband has quit beating her now, at least he is more intermittent than he was, and that he gave her out of his wages $1.50 last week, which shows he means to do better. "So, if your honor please," she would like to keep on trying to keep the family together.

Nine-Year-Old Highwaymen.

Nine-year-old highwaymen stand before the judge and cry, their bravado gone. A sixty-two-pound burglar, not four feet high, says he took the $40 out of the ice chest of his employer's home and gave it to a man who told him to do it, and himself got only 25 cents of the swag. He, too, cries when the judge asks him why he did it.

The judge is so kind. He leans over until he is so close to the small culprit that only the culprit can, maybe, hear all that is said. It is, you know, a matter between man and man. The boy has no handkerchief, and uses his coat sleeves impartially.

The judge is trying to see a way out. He wants to give the hearing, under-ferd burglar another chance. The burglar would rather have another chance than $1,000,000. You can tell by the way he sobs when the judge asks him if he will forsake a life of crime and study his A. B. C's.

"Y-y-y-yes, j-j-judge," he sputters.

There was the usual aggregation of little folk, alone or accompanied by their parents or guardians, in the children's court a few days ago.

A boy who was worse than no help about the house, in that he was always staying away from home until he got into some new difficulty, stood before Judge Hoyt, charged with having broken the terms of his parole. His mother, a widow, neatly dressed, sat in a chair close by. It was suggested by an agent of one of the charitable organizations that the boy should not have another chance.

"Nothing is being done for you," said Justice Hoyt to the mother. "The boy does not help you in any way, and I understand you have a pretty hard time of it."

The mother began to cry.

"It would really be a help to me mother if the boy was sent away," interjected the agent of the charitable society.

Mother Still Had Faith.

"Oh, your honor, please don't believe it, your honor," sobbed the mother. "Don't send him away. I don't care what he's done, bless you, sir."

The boy was dry eyed. He changed to the left foot, seeming bored by his support hitherto supplied by his right. The judge said there was really no reason why he should not give such an imperturbable fellow another opportunity, that, apparently, he could be depended on to do no better than he had always done.

The mother wrung her hands and repeated: "I don't care what he's done, bless you, judge," oblivious to the legal aspects of the case.

And Justice Hoyt found a way to give him another chance. He paroled the boy for a month. The mother would have kissed reverently the justice's silk hat or walking stick, but neither was available. She tried to awaken something that she believed was within the boy. But her petting ways as she accompanied him out of the court room did not succeed in beautifying his features with even a hint of an appreciative smile.

A father had a two-year-old daughter in his lap. She was dressed in blue. He had iron gray hair and was probably fifty-five years old. He joggled the baby up and down on his right knee. The baby cooed, and when it looked at the judge for the first time laughed and then immediately became absorbed in pursuit of its father's right ear.

There appeared also a fifteen-year-old girl, the man's other daughter. She stood before the judge, dressed in black, from her French heels to her machine-made ostrich plume. The judge was informed that, although the fifteen-year-old girl a short time ago had a chance from his honor to reform and stay at home, she had not availed herself of it. Bad company appealed more to her.

"The girl is hopeless, your honor," said a woman investigator. "You can't get her to stay at home. Her mother has just died, no more than a week ago, and even then this girl wouldn't go home, even for a day."

The father, who was now holding the baby on his left knee, apparently in the hope that such a change in position would direct the tot's attention to something else than his right ear, and painfully conscious that his efforts had failed, asked the judge please not to be hard on her.

Seemingly Incorrigible.

"Why won't you stay home?" asked Justice Hoyt of the girl in black.

"Boo-hoo-boo-ooo-oh, judge, j-j-judge," responded the girl, flaunting a starched handkerchief with a deep black border, and the impression predominated that it had been bought for the occasion.

"She has told me, your honor, that she doesn't love her father. She won't stay home, judge," said the matron, "to help her father take care of this little baby here."

"Don't send her up, judge," pleaded the father with the iron gray hair.

"Goo-ooo-ooo-goo-papa!" again commented the baby dressed in blue, alternately digging its fist into the father's cheek and patting it.

"I think I ought to send this girl away," said the judge.

Tears coursed down the father's face.

"Some one can come in and look after this little child for you," the judge suggested, kindly.

"I done that, judge, I done that," the man replied, brokenly.

"What have you done?" inquired the judge.

"What you said, your honor. I've fixed it for some one to look after the baby here while I'm at work. It's mother died last week. It's all right, your honor. Don't put her away, judge."

The baby in his lap had just found its father's spectacles. The boy on his nose, which seemed to her as a funny place for spectacles, and the right ear immediately became a power to attract.

LOST MINES OF DESERT

LOOKING TOWARD DEATH VALLEY

ALMOST every mineral region has its stories of lost mines, but there is no place where there exists a better excuse for them than the great American desert. It is the lure of lost mines that has caused a great deal of the prospecting and exploration of the deserts in recent years, and in one manner or other you will find that a tradition of a lost mine is at the bottom of almost every important discovery.

The fame of Death Valley has been largely due to the fact that a number of glowing stories of lost treasure have centered about it since the earlier days of the first explorers who crossed its vast and mysterious wastes.

There is the well authenticated story of the "Lost Breyfogle Mine," which is known to many old-timers, and the golden lure of which has been a constant incentive to prospectors for half a century. Then there is "The Lost Gun-Sight," the story of which has spread far and wide and has become one of the permanent legends of the western mining world.

The "Lost Alvord," somewhere in the western verges of Death Valley, has about it a tang of romance like that of the Spanish treasures. And there is still another treasure story pertaining to the discovery of a mountain of solid black sulphurets of silver, somewhere in the southern Panamint, by a straggling party of immigrants, who made their way through that region in 1850.

These stories all give to that region a coloring and allurements that makes it worth while to here relate them.

The Breyfogle.

It was somewhere back in the early sixties when all the southwest was still an arid and sparsely settled country, that an early pioneer of the desert mountains, namely James Breyfogle, a prospector, made his way into the Death Valley region, and with the aid of a burro, was exploring and prospecting the Funeral mountains, on the eastern verge of the great, forlorn, desolate and mysterious valley of death. But the burros then were as burros now and inclined to stray away, as only burros can, and so one day when Mr. Breyfogle, like many prospectors before and since, had gone in search of his burro, he found himself lured on and on in the vain effort to locate the beast or distinguish it from other objects, he penetrated a vast, far canyon in the Funeral range, partly for purposes of prospecting and exploration and partly to determine if the burro might be found brounsing in there somewhere or seeking the company of other burros.

However he found no friendly or familiar object of the animate world, only the vast and sun-blackened, weather-beaten cliffs and crags and the gray and solemn sage and sand and the strewn debris of the hollows.

Finally he espied a lone willow tree in a ravine, and with the instinct of one accustomed to the deserts he knew that the willow was a good indication of water. Upon investigation he found that there was really a spring beside the willow, and what was more, that a big ledge of heavy, dark, rusty ore traversed the ravine just above. Breaking off some of the rock he saw that it was permeated with gold. The yellow, lustrous gleam of the metal everywhere in the half-corroded ledge quickly gave the lone prospector the conviction that he had discovered one of the greatest gold deposits ever known. He broke from the ledge a number of specimens and finally in the gathering dusk he resumed his way over the crags and ridges and after some hours of devious travel was again at his camp.

With a great resolve to get out to the settlements and thence return with companions and equipment, the lone prospector with such thoughts as would come to most men under such circumstances made his way across the rugged solitude, in the direction of civilization.

Just what befell at certain points on this journey seems not to have been remembered by Breyfogle—

TO SERVE FOR LUNCH

SOME SUGGESTIONS BY HENRIETTA D. GRAUEL.

Simple and Satisfactory Meal for Small Party—Proper Method of Preparing "Ladies' Cabbage"—Forms of Apple Dessert.

Lamb Chops, with Mound of Potatoes.—Mash the potatoes with butter, cream and seasoning. Shape in a mound and garnish with the lamb chops, which may be broiled or breaded. To broil the chops trim off the fat and place in a paper bag that has been oiled. Put into hot oven for 15 minutes. When done draw off the juice and make into gravy with thickened milk.

Ladies' cabbage is so named because it is a delicate dish. Boil a firm cabbage in two waters. Drain, quarter and let it get perfectly cold. Then chop fine. Add two beaten eggs, a fourth of a cup of cream, or a tablespoon of butter and a scant half a cup of milk. Bake in a covered buttered dish until heated through. Remove the cover and brown. Drawn butter may be served with this. Lima beans are best bought in cans this season. They only need to be heated, drained and served with butter, pepper and salt. Dried Lima beans may be soaked several hours and cooked in the fireless cooker.

Apple Charlotte.—Beat two cups of apple sauce with the stiff whites of two eggs to a high froth, sweeten and flavor. Heap in the center of a chilled glass dish and border it with lady-fingers or sponge cake. Send around sugar and cream with it. Another form of apple charlotte is to beat the yolks of two eggs and two tablespoons of cream into the apple sauce, flavor, and bake quickly until well crusted over. Cool slightly and cover with a meringue made by beating the whites of the eggs stiff and sweetening. Return to the almost cool oven and tinge a light brown.

Stewed apples with cream and cake is an old-time Sunday night sweet dish. Pare and core juicy pippins. Put a cup of water and one of sugar into a bake-dish. Lay in the apples, cover, and cook slowly until transparent. They may be turned once while cooking and at this turning cinnamon and nutmeg may be sprinkled over them, though this makes the apples a trifle dark colored. Set away still covered, on Saturday, to cool. On Sunday night empty into a glass dish and serve with home-made cake and cream.

A rich syrup to pour over baked apples is made with a cup of sugar, a half a cup of water, a teaspoon of almond, and a teaspoon of lemon juice, or a tablespoon of lemon juice, two tablespoons of blanched almonds, rolled or chopped fine, and equal amounts of chopped raisins, a little chopped citron, and a few candied cherries. Thicken the syrup to the right consistency with corn starch, add these, and pour over the baked apples.—Cleveland Leader.

Stain for Floor.

One of the most durable stains known, and not expensive, for either kitchen or dining room is made and applied as follows, says the Commoner: Have the floor perfectly clean, well scrubbed and dried, and for the average size room get one-fourth ounce of permanganate of potash, add to a quart of water and apply quickly to the floor, using a flat brush; repeat the process until as dark as you want it. When dry, go over it with one or two coats of boiled linseed oil and turpentine, in proportion of two ounces of turpentine to a quart of the oil, stirring well. Let the first coat dry before applying the second, and it will pay you to apply the second coat. After drying there will be no more scrubbing necessary, but it can be wiped up with clear water and a cloth, drying with another cloth.

Flavoring for Rice Pudding.

If a little melted chocolate or cocoa is stirred into the "poor man's" rice pudding a very appetizing variety will be given this standard household dessert. A reliable recipe for poor man's rice pudding, which young housekeepers usually find difficult to give the creamy texture, calls for three tablespoonfuls of rice, a quart of milk, half a cupful of sugar and a little salt. Put the pudding into the oven and as soon as a crust forms stir it down. Continue to do this for at least two hours—the slower the cooking the better. If the chocolate is not wanted, half a cupful of stoned raisins may be added.

Rhubarb Removes Rust.

Stew rhubarb in the usual way, making thinner, however, than usual and adding no sugar to it. Soak your rusted white clothes in it for three-quarters of an hour, then take out, rinse in cold water and pour boiling water over them to take out the purple stain of the rhubarb. (This will take out rust stains when everything else fails.)

New Material.

A new development of the toweling material is now being shown. On the back this has the same appearance as plique, while on the right side the little loops of thread are arranged in even rows. A heavy thread of black or dark color appears at intervals of an inch.

Exceptions.

"All the world loves a lover." "But not when he's holding a busy telephone for a twenty-minute talk with his turtle dove."

Exceptions.

"Don't you think the promiscuous kissing of babies is detrimental?" "Not if you are running for office."

LOOKING AHEAD

"I wish to get a permit to dig up the pavement on Main street," said the president of the gas company.

"Why, we can't give you that. There isn't any pavement in Main street."

"I know; but I want the permit so that we can dig up the pavement as soon as there is one."

BOTH WINGS DECLARE FOR SPEAKER CLARK

Peoria, Ill., April 20.—Mayor H. Harrison of Chicago and National Committeeman Roger C. Sullivan, each refusing any suggested basis of compromise, today continued their bitter fight for control of the Illinois Democratic state conventions and naming two sets of delegates from Cook county and the state at large to the Democratic-national convention.

There was selected but one set of down-state delegates, however, and the credentials committee at Baltimore will be asked to rule on the Cook county and state at large delegation only. The Sullivan convention named a complete list of delegates, but the Harrison convention did not have sufficient attendance of down-state delegates to warrant such action. The platform drafted by J. Hamilton Lewis and others of Chicago was adopted in both conventions. The platform pledges the delegates to support Speaker Champ Clark.

CHARGES FILED IN SCHWITZ CASE

Marinette, Wis., April 20.—Attorney J. H. McGillan of Green Bay yesterday afternoon at Madison filed with the governor charges of malfeasance in office against Sheriff A. E. Schwitz of this city. McGillan was appointed by Judge S. D. Hastings to draw up the charges.

The order to investigate reported illegal acts by Schwitz was served on District Attorney J. C. Morgan of Wausaukee by Judge Hastings in January. The district attorney replied that he was ill and asked the court to name an assistant to perform the work.

No date for the hearing of the charges was fixed when they were filed, but it is presumed the hearing will take place in Marinette. A Madison dispatch says Governor McGovern will probably appoint a commission to take testimony, and then decide whether or not to remove Schwitz on the record of the testimony.

Judge Hastings in his order for the investigation and filing of charges cited the allegations that Schwitz had voted his contempt-of-court in general, had misappropriated funds, deprived persons of their liberty without due process of law, collected fees for services not performed and other acts illegal and improper.

MUSIC IS TO REPLACE TALK

Superior, Wis., April 20.—"Will it be a shave or haircut, and what music would you like to hear while we are doing it?"

The above question will probably soon become the usual thing in the Commercial Barber shop, Paul Domsch, proprietor. Mr. Domsch is widely known for his novel ideas but his last is by far the most startling innovation yet attempted.

The concerts will be given on Saturday nights, from 7 to 10 o'clock. The first proved such a success that the concerts will be made a permanent feature.

SUBMITTED TO OPERATION YESTERDAY

Arthur Peterson of the firm of C. Peterson & Sons, submitted to an operation for appendicitis at the Delta county hospital yesterday morning. The operation proved to be a complete success and last night it was announced that the patient's condition was favorable for a hasty recovery.

ROBB ART STUDIO WILL OPEN TODAY

NORTHUP & NORTHUP

SUES RAILROAD FOR $10,000

A suit involving a claim of $10,000 for personal damages has been filed by William H. Gray of Kaukauna against the Chicago and North Western railroad.

The complaint states that while Mr. Gray was in the employ of the company as engine dispatcher at Antigo on January 19, 1911, he was struck by a locomotive owned by the company and sustained among other injuries, a fractured skull, severe lacerations about the face and body, a badly torn left arm and shoulder that has been permanently paralyzed incapacitating him from further work of the nature and at the same salary as that at which he was employed prior to the accident. Attorneys S. McMahon of Milwaukee and P. H. Martin represent the plaintiff, while Attorney Smart is counsel for the railroad company.

"My little son had a very severe cold I was recommended to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and before a small bottle was finished he was as well as ever," writes Mrs. H. Silks, 29 Dowling Street, Sydney, Australia. This remedy is for sale by Farrell & Lohmiller and Groos Drug Store.

Joseph Russell left last night for Spalding to spend Sunday with friends.

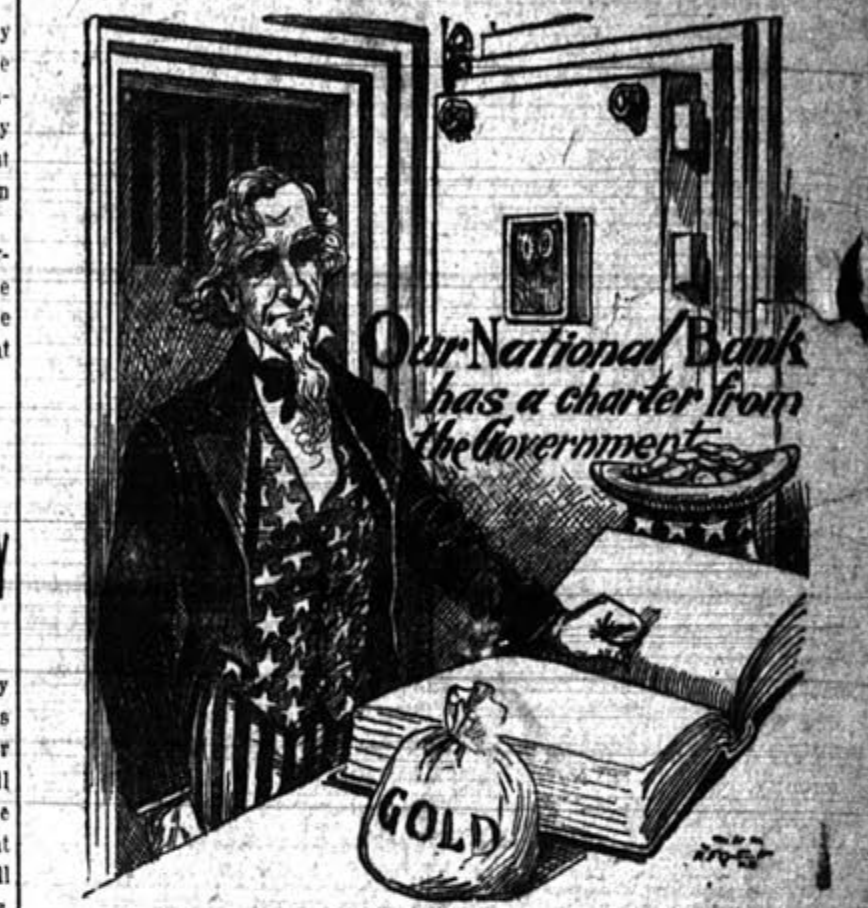

COASTING STEAMER ASHORE; ALL PASSENGERS RESCUED.

Halifax, N. S., April 20.—The coasting steamer Earl Gray went on the rocks two miles from Torrey river with seventy-five passengers and a crew of sixty late on Wednesday. Later all were taken off.

Its captain in a wireless report said the vessel is on a sandbar and it not leaking.

The steamer left Charlottetown, P. E. I., for Pictou, and lost its way in the fog. Because of the Titanic disaster there was apprehension here despite the captain's assurance that no one would be lost.

The steamer Minto later took off all the passengers and is proceeding with them to Charlottetown.

JENNINGS HAS FINE OPINION OF BURNS

"I expect Bill Burns to become one of the greatest left-handers the American league has known," declared Jennings, in the Detroit Journal.

"Burns has the ability; he has the baseball knowledge; he has the physical strength, and he has the experience. Everything is in his favor, and I am confident that he will be one of Detroit's most dependable pitchers this season."

"Burns has had a peculiar baseball life. First he was with Washington, then with Chicago, then with Cincinnati, then with the Phillies. He had varying success with each of these teams. He pitched wonderful games, but I do not believe he was understood."

"Burns has a peculiar disposition. I do not mean to say that he is eccentric or anything like that. But he isn't a fellow to jump every time the inclination meets him. He thinks about things. Occurrences that would upset the ordinary man do not disturb Burns. "That is the kind of pitcher we need many times. No matter what the situation, Burns is steady. He is never rattled, and he never loses his nerve. He will stick as long as anyone, and with him a game isn't over until the last man is out in the ninth inning."

"Burns was a fine pitcher when he was in the American league before it was seldom Detroit beat him. In Detroit he had just as good hitting then as any manager could wish. Yet our victories over Burns were ways of the tasteless kind. One run usually separated the winner and the loser. And Burns—the loser—was pitching for an acknowledged weaker club."

"Burns will be one of the regular pitchers. I do not believe there is any question on that point."

An Increasing Number of Out-of-Town Customers do their Shopping at this Store

Every day we note a big number of out-of-town people buying in this establishment who have frequented our store before. And we often hear such expressions as this from them:

"Somehow I never realized the size of the store and the amount and variety of the enormous stocks. And I am really surprised today to learn how much cheaper you sell goods than such a store—and so much lower in price than I have been used to paying. Then your place is so beautiful—it is such a pleasant place to shop, and the service is so satisfactory."

Such comments convince us that in the vicinity of Escanaba there must be hundreds who have an erroneous impression of this establishment because they have not made a practice of getting acquainted with our merchandise, and perhaps they are the very ones who should be our regular customers. To all such we desire to state that it is a cardinal principal with us that our prices shall be low as similar qualities are sold, that your shopping here means economical buying, plus manifold advantages of comfort, convenience and service offered by our continually improving facilities.
