

ENGINEER WILL COME

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL WILL INSPECT RAPID RIVER HARBOR TODAY. WORK IN GREATLY NEEDED

As the result of the work of Congressman H. O. Young representative of this district in congress, in setting in operation machinery in Washington that may result in the deepening of the Rapid River harbor, a government engineer will arrive in Rapid River today. The official will arrive at the Upper Bay town aboard the U. S. tender Manitowoc, and will conduct a survey of the bay between Rapid River and Masonville.

In the evening a public hearing will be held in Rapid River when the engineer will be offered a full array of facts of the town's present business resources advantages and prospects for the future.

The necessity that is offered for the immediate deepening of the harbor will be brought before the engineer in complete detail and it is confidently expected that a favorable report will be made by the visiting official to the authorities in Washington.

All of the people of Rapid River and the surrounding territory are intensely interested in the movement that has been started as on the success of the movement depends the degree of advancement that may be enjoyed by the Upper Bay town.

WILL SHOW LIVE STOCK

John M. Millar and Dr. E. J. Shevaller make an extensive trip through the county yesterday securing live stock entries for the county fair of next week. In the Rapid River and Perkins district President Millar and Dr. Shevaller found all of the farmers greatly interested in the coming fair and entries were secured for a number of head of livestock, which it is planned to make this year one of the big features of the annual county show. The work is to be continued through all parts of the county this week and it is firmly believed that the society will be able to offer a big showing of live stock of every kind when the fair is thrown open next Tuesday.

COUPLE HAVE PRETTY WEDDING

Easily one of the prettiest weddings of the season in Escanaba was that solemnized at St. Patrick's church yesterday morning when Miss Felicia McDonnell became the bride of Mr. William Settersten. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Bark and was witnessed by a large number of the friends and relatives of the bride and the groom. Miss Sadie McDonnell, sister of the bride officiated as honored maid at the ceremony while Mr. William Truckey of Iron River, served as groomsmen. Following the wedding ceremony members of the bridal party went to the home of the parents of the bride where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. To escape from a large party of attentive friends Mr. and Mrs. Settersten motored to Bark River and caught the south bound North Western train at that place. Not to be outwitted however several of the members of the party took the train from the local station and met the bride and groom when they boarded the train at Bark River. Both were liberally sprinkled with rice and finally sent on their way after the posters announcing the marriage had been circulated among the passengers. Mr. and Mrs. Settersten will spend their honeymoon in Milwaukee and Chicago and later will return to Escanaba to make their home here. The bride is a popular young woman of the city who has been employed at the office of A. R. Moore for the past few years. The groom is a pharmacist employed at the Hill Drug store and who like his bride numbers his friends by the score in this city.

PLEASURE SEEKERS TO ATTEND PARTY

It is expected that a large number of the pleasure seekers of the city will be attracted to the Armory hall this evening to attend the dancing party given by members of the Fraternal Reserve Association of Escanaba. An excellent musical program has been provided for and everything possible accomplished to make the evening enjoyable in all of its features.

REPUBLICANS IN SESSION

RULING PARTY IN COUNTY NAMES MEN TO ATTEND COMING STATE CONVENTION

Republicans of Delta county in convention at the court house yesterday selected delegates to attend the Republican State convention as follows:

Dr. A. H. Kimmond, Soren Johnson and R. W. Nebel, Gladstone; W. J. Clark, C. W. Malloch, T. E. Strom, H. J. Rushton, E. C. Voght, M. Harrington and R. W. Coolman of Escanaba and C. W. Kates and R. E. McLean of Wells.

P. R. Legg served as chairman of the convention yesterday and with C. W. Kates acting as secretary.

The convention was harmonious throughout the session being marked only for the unanimity of action on each question that was brought before the delegates.

Following are the resolutions presented to the delegates yesterday by the committee on resolutions of the convention and unanimously adopted:

The Republicans of Delta County, Michigan, in convention assembled declare our allegiance and fidelity to the principles and policies of the Republican party, and declare it to be the greatest agency through which to secure the greatest benefit to the rank and file of the people of this country. Its past history demonstrates that it has been the party through which the common people have obtained and secured their rights in the control of the governmental functions of the nation. For the last fifty years it has been in control of our government almost unbroken and during that period it has formed the governmental policies of this country. During that time it has brought to the people of this country greater prosperity and security than is enjoyed by the people of any other nation. It has maintained a protective tariff which has protected not only the infant industries of the country, which have been the means of the employment of labor, but it has protected the laboring people of the country from the competition with the cheap labor of other countries. It has protected the woolen and other products of the farm which has materially contributed to the prosperity of the farmer and laboring man. It has secured to this country a stable currency so that the American dollar is recognized and received for its full value the world over. During the control of the government by the Republican party it has been the period of its greatest prosperity and the last forty years is recognized and admitted by every fair minded person to have been the climax of our prosperity. At no other time in the history of the world has labor been so scarce and in such great demand. At no other period in the world's history has the farmer enjoyed such prosperity and obtained such prices for his products. In no

SERIES IS CERTAIN

ESCANABA AND ISHPEMING MEET NEXT WEEK TO DECIDE PENINSULA CHAMPIONSHIP

Negotiations were closed last night for a series of two baseball games between the local leaguers and the Marinette squad at Marinette on Saturday and Sunday and early in next week Escanaba and Ishpeming will open a series of games for the peninsula pennant.

Word was received last night from Ishpeming that the management of the Ishpeming team will hold a meeting this afternoon to definitely determine whether or not the club will back the Ishpeming team in the championship series and in the event that the management does not back the series the members of the Ishpeming league team will undertake the venture themselves.

The teams of Ishpeming and Negaunee are to meet in exhibition games on Saturday and Sunday and early in next week the championship series between Escanaba and Ishpeming will be opened.

Following the meeting of the Ishpeming management this afternoon the length of the series will be agreed upon and the dates for the games in the two cities will be fixed.

The Ishpeming team is being especially strengthened for the championship series, Pitcher Juul, of Calumet, already having arrived in the Hemetite City to remain until after the Escanaba games are staged.

That the local leaguers may be occupied until the championship series is opened games were yesterday scheduled for Saturday and Sunday with Marinette. The Badgers on Monday defeated the Chicago Union Giants by a score of 3 to 2, Marinette now having the fastest aggregation to wear the league uniforms of that city this season.

PIONEER VERY ILL

Patrick Finnegan, a pioneer resident of Escanaba and widely known through this portion of the peninsula is critically ill at the Delta county hospital. Mr. Finnegan's condition has slowly been growing more serious for the past two weeks and the patient has now been removed to the Delta county hospital that he may receive every possible care.

Mr. Finnegan's daughter, Mrs. F. G. Bradbury of Duluth and his son, Geo. Finnegan, of Eveleth Minn., have been called here because of the serious illness of their father.

ISHPEMING WANTED DAHLGREN TO JUMP

An interesting sidelight has been given the discussion in Ishpeming and Negaunee over the ethics involved when the right hander Dahlgren went to Negaunee last Saturday to appear in one of the games with the Negaunee team. Although Dahlgren was sadly off color and was pounded off the mound in the fourth inning of the battle started by him Ishpeming and Negaunee fans have amused themselves for the past few days by falling each other in general and Escanaba in particular all sorts of names. It now develops that the Ishpeming management, with the full knowledge that Dahlgren was under contract to the local club conducted negotiations with Dahlgren personally over the telephone in an effort to cause him to jump the local team and wear an Ishpeming uniform. All sorts of offers were made to Dahlgren by the Ishpeming management and players but no effort was made to communicate with the management of the team here. The management of the Negaunee team in seeking the services of Dahlgren conducted their negotiations with the local club officials with the result that both Dahlgren and Pressy were sent on the trip.

C. S. Sullivan will leave this morning for Marinette on business.

CHILD DIES AT HOME OF PARENTS

Morris W. Rucha, two months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rucha passed away at the home of the family at Flat Rock on Monday night. Funeral services will be conducted over the body of the babe at the Holy Family church this afternoon. Interment will be at the Holy Family church cemetery.

FIND SEASON DISASTROUS

The managements of the teams at both Ishpeming and Negaunee have found the present league season a most disastrous one. It is asserted that the Negaunee management faces a shortage of approximately $500 while the Ishpeming deficit is estimated at $500. Like the cities in the Northern league Escanaba found the season far from a satisfactory one from a financial stand point but the management here has been able to pay off all of the players and clean up all bills wiping clean the slate for the season.

It is now being contended in Ishpeming and Negaunee that far too much is being paid for baseball by the cities of the district and of that matter a correspondent says:

That baseball has been altogether too expensive this year is now conceded by the supporters of all the teams. The receipts of the games this year indicate that teams costing about $600 a month would be self supporting but when the salary list is striched from $1,300 to $1,500 a month there is no possible chance of breaking even. The receipts this year were at least 25 per cent smaller than last season, due to the unfavorable weather in July and August. The crowd at Sunday's game was the largest of the season, and the attendance Saturday was the largest weekday crowd of the summer with the exception of the Fourth and Decoration day.

Many Negaunee men express the belief that there will be no league next year, but others assert one should be organized. All agree that if there is a team the salaries of the players should be scaled down.

DOES THE SOO OWN THE W.&M.RY.?

Reports relative to the transfer of the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad to the Soo Line continue to fill the newspapers. The following is the latest. It appears in the Iron Mountain Press of recent date:

"Last Saturday Andrew Bjorkman received a letter from a Chicago business correspondent in which the statement was made that the Soo line had closed a deal for the purchase of the Wisconsin & Michigan road from John Märsch, and that the formal transfer would be made within a few weeks. The correspondent, who has confidential relations with a large banking concern, is in a position to secure inside information in such matters and would not deal in idle rumors, so it would appear that the report has foundation in fact.

"It is also stated that the Soo Line upon acquiring control of the Wisconsin & Michigan, will enter into active competition with the North-Western.

PRETTY PARTY WAS GIVEN LAST NIGHT

A particularly pretty party was that given by members of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Order of Railway Conductors at Clark's hall last night. The function was invitational in nature and was attended by a large number of the members of the organization and their friends. Members of the organization had been at work for the past ten days perfecting plans for the party of last night, the hall being prettily decorated for the occasion and everything possible carried out to add to the enjoyment of the guests of the evening.

IRON RIVER IS BOOSTED

COMMERCIAL CLUB LISTENS TO HIGHLY ENCOURAGING ADDRESS BY STATE GEOLOGIST

(Special to the Morning Press) Iron River, Mich., Sep. 10.—Following out its policy to constantly direct attention to the great agricultural and mining possibilities of the Iron River district, members of the Iron River Commercial club tonight brought to the city for an address before its members, Prof. R. C. Allen, state geologist for Michigan. The meeting was attended by practically all of the mining men and many of the business and professional men of Iron River, making the meeting one of the most successful and enthusiastic yet arranged by the club.

Prof. Allen spoke of The Natural Resources of the Iron River District, and gave particular attention to the agricultural opportunities that are offered here. He asserted that 76 per cent of the land in the Iron River district is well adapted to agricultural purposes and predicted a wonderful future for the entire territory. Prof. Allen called attention to the fact that less than 20 per cent of the lands in the surrounding district have been even partially prospected for ore. With the ore now in sight it was asserted by the speaker that constant mining operations can be carried forward for at least 100 years without the opening up of any new ore bodies.

Prof. Allen's address was thoroughly enjoyed by those present and at the close Prof. Allen was awarded a rousing vote of thanks for his masterly effort.

At the next meeting of the club Col. C. W. Mott, of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, will probably be secured as the principal speaker of the evening.

BACK FROM CONVENTION

W. J. Knorr, representative of the Escanaba lodge of Knights of Pythias at the state grand lodge meeting of the order at South Haven, returned to the city on Monday evening. After attending the sessions of the grand lodge Mr. Knorr visited in Grand Rapids, Detroit and Big Rapids.

Under instructions telegraphed to him on the final day of the convention from the local lodge and the businessmen's association to invite the grand lodge of Knights of Pythias to meet in Escanaba in 1914, Mr. Knorr issued the formal invitation but no definite action was taken on the matter by the delegates.

ESCANABA MAN INTRODUCING TIRE

Of the puncture proof tires that is being introduced by Charles Bellstrom of Escanaba the Marquette Mining Journal says:

J. J. Wentela, Charles Bellstrom and August Allen drove to Marquette from Negaunee yesterday in Mr. Allen's Oakland car. Mr. Bellstrom is the proprietor of a automobile tire repairing plant at Escanaba. He is an agent for a company that is manufacturing a "puncture proof" inner tube, and he is trying to interest Marquette county people in a plant that is to be established at Escanaba. The tire is made of pure rubber, and is cemented to the inside of an unopened tube of thick rubber. The tube is then bent inside out, and the inside edges are sealed. The rubber is constantly under a strain, it being held in by the canvas, which forms the outside of the tube. This tube can be placed in any ordinary casing, and a nail can be pounded into it after it is inflated without any loss of air. The strain on the thick rubber causes the holes to close air tight. The party drove several miles into the tire on Mr. Allen's car, which is equipped with the tubes, as a demonstration.

PLAN ENTERTAINMENT FOR GLADSTONE

The Troubadour Orchestral Troupe will give an entertainment at the Gladstone theater on Thursday evening of this week and following the entertainment will furnish a program for a dancing party. The company is said to be one of the best traveling organizations of its kind and both the entertainment and dance should attract a large number of patrons from this city and Gladstone.

HOLD TEAM IN FEAR

ISHPEMING AND NEGAUNEE CORRESPONDENTS UNANIMOUS IN AGREEMENT THAT ESCANABA IS WHOLLY BAD

Desperate fear of Escanaba's baseball team was written in luminous paragraphs through both the Ishpeming and Negaunee pages of the Marquette Mining Journal yesterday. Two defeats scored this season by the local leaguers over Ishpeming and the slaughter that was recently staged by the Sand Splitters against Negaunee's exchamps, apparently for a time convinced the players and fans of the two cities that it would be unwise to book a series of games with Escanaba for the peninsula baseball championship.

In yesterday's issue of the Mining Journal the correspondents for that publication from both Ishpeming and Negaunee unanimously and vigorously agreed that the teams of neither of those cities should have "any truck" with Escanaba. It was generally and without a dissenting voice agreed that the players, management and fans of Escanaba made up as complete an organization of dyed in the wool villains, black legs and scoundrels as could be conveniently found gathered in any one community. It was the unanimous vote in both Ishpeming and Negaunee that to bring about any dealings whatever between either of those cities and Escanaba's gang of double dealing, double crossers would seriously contaminate an organization bearing the spotless, unadorned colors of the two delightful little villages.

All of the above, the correspondents offered as perfectly good reasons why Escanaba was not entitled to participate in a championship baseball series and the whole mess of ridiculous nonsense spread over numerous columns and pages in a desperate, undignified effort to cover up the fact that the only and single real reason that would prompt either Ishpeming or Negaunee to refuse to meet Escanaba in championship series is the most wholesome fear held by the players, managements and fans of the two cities that the team of either of those cities would be so drubbed and shown up by Escanaba that it is considered by far the better part the safest course to refuse to stage such a series.

The Negaunee correspondent let go of the following delightful little effusion.

The Escanaba management and players, by their attempted hold up of both the Ishpeming and Negaunee

WORK IS LAUNCHED

Members of the Kings Sons Society held their first meeting of the fall season, after enjoying a vacation from their work for the society during the summer, at the manse on Monday evening. A large part of the membership of the society was represented and a most enthusiastic launching was given the work for the new year. Reports submitted at the session showed the affairs of the organization to be in a particularly flourishing condition, the society having $150 in the treasury with which to inaugurate the new year's work. It was planned to elect a new set of officers at the meeting on Monday evening but that matter was deferred until the first meeting of next month.

TO BUILD LOG LOADERS

NEW COMPANY IS BEING FORMED HERE TO ENGAGE IN MANUFACTURE OF RAYMOND LOG LOADERS

A stock company will be perfected in this city within a few days to engage in the manufacture of the Raymond Log Loader, which machines up to this time have been constructed at the plant of the Chatfield Brass & Iron Works.

It is planned by the company to construct a factory at once on a site near the present plant of the Chatfield Brass & Iron Works on Stephenson avenue. Special machinery to allow the turning out of the log loaders in large numbers will be installed and skilled workmen will be brought here to carry out the work.

The Raymond Log Loader is now recognized among timber operatives as easily the most successful machine of its kind now on the market. A large number of the machines are now in use in this district and only recently the loaders have been introduced by Mr. Raymond in the southern timber districts, where several machines have already been shipped and a number of new order have been secured.

WOMAN HAS A BAD FALL

Miss Margaret Tolan, a sister of James and John Tolan of this city, fell headlong down a flight of stairs at the Colonial hotel yesterday and received injuries that for a time it was feared would prove fatal. She received a long cut across the forehead and numerous bruises. She was unconscious when found lying at the foot of the stairs and when a physician was summoned was taken to the Delta county hospital.

Miss Tolan opened a door leading from the kitchen at the hotel into the basement, thinking that she was opening a door leading into the private apartments of the proprietor of the hotel. Without looking she stepped through the door and plunged headlong to the bottom of the stairs.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR YOUNG WOMAN

Miss Oredia Johnson, who is to leave this week for Big Rapids to enter the Ferris Institute, was the guest of honor at a delightful surprise party given at her home at 200 North Charlotte street last night. The event was arranged wholly without the knowledge of Miss Johnson by members of the Young Peoples Society of the Norwegian Lutheran church, of which organization she is a member. Miss Johnson also for the past few years has served as organist at the Norwegian Lutheran church and the event of last night was arranged to demonstrate in a measure the appreciation of her associates for her work.

REWARD BRAKEMAN OF WRECKED TRAIN

Antigo, Wis., Sept. 10.—Harry A. Johnston, rear end brakeman on the train wrecked at Lyndhurst on Sunday, has received a letter of thanks for his services from W. D. Cantillon, general manager, and an offer of a two weeks' vacation on full pay and transportation to any point on the North-Western railway for himself and family.

SUPERIOR ORE DOCK STRIKERS ARE OFFERED 20-CENT RAISE WANT QUARTER OF DOLLAR

Duluth, Sept. 10.—The Great Northern railway today offered to compromise with its striking employes at the Allouez ore docks. The strikers, who went out yesterday, demanded an advance of twenty-five cents a day. The company has offered them twenty cents. The workers have been notified of the offer and have been told that if they wish to accept it they must be ready to start work at 7 o'clock Monday morning.

The Great Northern employes who are out number six hundred. Industrial Workers of the World agitators are believed to be behind the strike. The Great Northern has been shipping more than 100,000 tons daily from the docks and it is said a prolonged strike would mean the shutting down of many of the mines on the western Mesabi and would throw thousands of men out of work.

Railroad officials believe that the difficulty will be settled shortly.

other period of the world's history have the factories been so constantly at work in any country.

No other period in the history of this country, or in the history of any other country, have the people in general, and as a whole, enjoyed such activity and prosperity.

We are living in an age of progress and reform. As a natural consequence of the prosperity which this country has enjoyed, great industries have grown up, great accumulations of wealth have been made, and great combinations of wealth have been entered into.

On account of this general prosperity and industrial activity it has brought before the people great political, governmental and social problems to be solved.

These great problems in all civilized countries must be brought about through and by some political party.

Political parties are the only agencies through which the people must express their desires and opinion and assert their rights in reference to governmental and political policies; and they are the only agencies through which the people can secure their rights and have their policies carried out.

Political parties are absolutely necessary in a free and enlightened country. Destroy all political parties and the country at once becomes an absolute monarchy.

To have political parties there must be organization, because a political party is an organization. It is not a corporation nor an association formed by law.

It is simply an association or combination of people having the same or nearly the same political opinions.

To make a political party successful there must be leaders in every community. These leaders do not hold any permanent positions and do not receive any pay for their services, and are constantly changed by the political party.

It seems to be the custom of some politicians seeking political favors to call the leaders bosses and other similar names for the purpose of prejudicing the members of that party against their party.

Such an argument is not based on reason and is an appeal only to the ignorant and uninformed. It is the argument of the demagogue.

Through the Republican party the people have secured the right, not only to elect but to nominate all officers by direct vote of the people.

There is no executive officer of any importance but who must be elected by direct vote of the people and he must first secure his nomination by direct vote of the people.

The people do rule in fact in this country. Any candidate for any office, or any person claiming that the people do not rule, and continually degrading in favor of "The Rule of the People" are sincere and do not make such statements in good faith, but only for the purpose of creating discontent among the people for selfish purposes.

We recognize the need of certain reform. It must be recognized by the people in general that the need and cause of these great reforms have come upon the people within the last generation.

It is necessary to regulate, control and limit great combinations of wealth. No other people in the world, as far as history records, has had these great questions to solve.

It is natural that some mistakes will be made. These needed reforms should be brought about expeditiously and in such a way as not to retard or interfere with the existing prosperity of the country.

We claim there is no agency of the people which is more competent or more entitled to the confidences of the people than the Republican party. It has demonstrated this in the past by always carrying this country safe through every storm.

It has now placed the country upon the height of prosperity.

We approve of the administration of William H. Taft. No president or administration has been lied about and misrepresented as William H. Taft and his administration. No administration can point to the beneficial laws enacted in the same period of time. No person can point to anything which President Taft has done or failed to do against the interest of the common people. He was placed in office by and through the influence and political power of ex-President Roosevelt.

During his administration he has been and still is consistently carrying out the policies of the Republican party as declared and set forth in the Roosevelt administration; he has carried towards completion the great Panama Canal. He has vigorously and with great force enforced the pure food and similar laws; he has caused to be enacted labor legislation for the protection and well being of the working people, and as a part thereof caused to be enacted the Employers' Liability Act after a former similar act was declared unconstitutional, enacted by the former administration, and thus has secured to laboring people and those dependent upon them compensation for injuries and death by accident; after a century of agitation and after all former administrations had either neglected or failed to have enacted a law establishing Postal Savings Banks throughout the nation, giving every person an opportunity to deposit their money in the post-offices under governmental guarantee for the safe return of their money; after many attempts on the part of the former administration and after endless agitation on the part of the people he has caused to be enacted a law providing for parcels posts so that a large package weighing up to eleven pounds will be carried through the mail for a nominal price; he has established a non-partisan tariff commission which is maintained, enlarged and carried out, will remove the tariff question from the domain of policies and that the tariff will be revised on scientific principles, maintaining the principle of protection so that it will maintain a tariff high enough to equal the difference in the cost of production of articles at home and abroad. He has done everything possible to secure the enactment of legislation which will place the control of large interstate corporations under the control of a commission. This will secure to the government absolute control of such corporations; he has favored the conservation of natural resources and has placed them under the control of a cabinet officer, Secretary Fisher, who has the absolute confidence of the people of the nation. He has caused to be enacted a law limiting and regulating contributions to campaign funds so that the poor man shall have the same opportunity to run for office as a rich man. The administration of President Taft has been progressive in the extreme without risking the stability of the business interest of the nation and undermining the prosperity which we are now enjoying. President Taft has had to contend with two uncompromising extremes in Congress. With all this record in favor of the present administration, and with the recognized prosperity prevailing, there is no reason whatever which can be advanced or given for a change of administration at this time. To change the administration would be highly dangerous to the prosperity of the country. No political party offers to secure to the people any greater prosperity. The argument put forth by the two opposing parties is based upon prejudice. The accomplishments of the Republican party at this time challenges the administration and entitles it to the confidence of the people. There is every reason why the people should support the Republican party at this time. There is not one reason for voting against it.

Any person voting against the Republican party will be voting in favor of the Democratic party and because he does not vote the Democratic ticket will not change the effect of his vote. The Democratic party in their platform and declaration of the principles have declared a protective tariff unconstitutional and promise if they are successful in the election to do away with the great system of protection which has brought such great prosperity to the people. Their success means business disaster for the country the same as it did in 1892 when they commenced to carry out the same policies.

The national house of representatives has been in absolute control of the Democratic party for nearly two years and during that time they have shown a record of incompetency. They have passed what might be called free trade tariff laws, not for the purpose of honestly revising the tariff, but for the sole purpose of embarrassing the present administration for political effect. During the time the Democratic party has been in control of the house of representatives it has been a political body and not a legislative body. They have done nothing to further the best interests of the country at large but their sole purpose and efforts have been to tear down the great protective policy which has become a necessary part of our governmental policies, and upon which the present prosperity depends more than any other law.

We are in favor of a protective tariff high enough to measure the cost of production at home and abroad. This is absolutely necessary to those who labor and to the industries of the country. We are in favor of the governmental control of corporations carrying on an interstate business through a non-partisan commission. We are in favor of a revision of the tariff to conform with the report of the tariff commission. Copper range was one of the most active stocks in the local list today, advancing two points to 59 3/4, but reacting a point towards the close. The buying of this stock comes from people who appreciate that the mine is earning 5 to 6 a share at present and that there is very little probability of getting stock at cheaper prices before it has a decided rally. E. Butte was fairly active around 14 but showed little change. As a whole the copper market showed little life and scattered selling was noticeable all through the list, in spite of higher money rates, we feel confident that future of the coppers will show decidedly higher prices.

SAYS HE KILLED MAN SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Conscience stricken for seventeen years over having killed a man in St. Louis whose name he never learned, Patrick Haley, 57 years old, surrendered to the Chicago police today and asked to be sent back to the Missouri city to answer to a charge of murder.

"I have been dodging the police and suffering the tortures of an evil conscience and I can stand it no longer," said Haley. "I have not had a happy moment since I killed that man in St. Louis."

Haley said he quarreled with a man in St. Louis seventeen years ago and struck the stranger on the head, fracturing his skull. He said the man died a few hours later and that he fled from the city to escape arrest.

Haley said that four years ago he went to a Chicago police station while intoxicated and overcame by remorse and told the story of his crime, but the police paid no attention to him. Haley will be held until word is received from the St. Louis police.

DON'T JOSH THE SEA SERPENT

CAN the sea serpent be longer denied?
Is it the remnant of a monstrous species supposedly extinct, or some adventurer from the deep sea lair of a modern race of leviathans as yet undiscovered by science?

Such queries I have been flinging at some distinguished naturalists, with widely varying results, which I shall proceed to report at once, especially inasmuch as my investigation brings to light the scientifically established fact that August is our sea serpent month par excellence.

"I incline rather to believe than to unbelieve in the monster," Director Frederick A. Lucas of the American Museum of Natural History told me. "The biggest sea serpents we know of lived in the eocene period," says he. "Take, for instance, the zeuglodon. He would tally perfectly with some of the most sensational sea serpent descriptions which we hear year after year. The zeuglodon grew as large as 70 feet in length and eight feet in diameter. His head was small and pointed. His jaws were well armed with grasping and cutting teeth. Just back of his head he carried a pair of short paddles, not unlike those of a fur seal."

"He must have reared at least a third of his great length out of the water, to take a comprehensive view of the surroundings. His tail must have propelled him at a speed of from 20 to 30 miles an hour."

"Zeuglodon were once very numerous in the Gulf of Mexico, also the old seas of southern Europe. They have been called 'whalelike king lizards,' but in reality were mammals, not reptiles. The zeuglodon is usually thought to be the ancestor of the whale, but I think he died without issue."

One recent sea-serpent story in which Director Lucas takes some stock is that of the captain of the British ship Fly, who states that while becalmed in the Gulf of California, in 12 fathoms of remarkably clear water, some examples. Let us dispose of one of the most conspicuous pictures of the sea serpent yet printed. This is given in a work of Erik Pontoppidan, bishop of Bergen, Norway, who wrote more than a century and a half ago describing giant sea serpents and mermals, which he believed really existed. He being a godly man should not be distrusted entirely.

"This monster was represented with its front portion out of water and as having a large frill about its neck. Its tail was long and tapering, and ended in a spiral curve. From its mouth issued a jet of water or vapor. Now, certainly, such a form does not exist, but what was it?"

"Well, now let's look at the cuttlefish or squid. Some of these have been found as long as 60 feet. The tail of such a giant cuttlefish may have been taken for the head of this monster serpent, the fins of the tail corresponding to the frills described. The spiral tail might easily have been one of the great cuttlefish's curved arms appearing out of the water, and the jet of water might have been the siphon of the cuttlefish, by which it propels itself in the water. How much imagination would be required to add the unreasonable features of this picture?"

"What proved for a time to be the most successful sea serpent hoax on record, according to Dr. Gill, was perpetrated in New York by a pseudo-scientist, Dr. Albert C. Koch, in 1845. He exhibited on Broadway the skeleton of an alleged fossil monster which he named the 'hydrarchos' or 'sea king.' The remains, including the head and vertebrae, measured no less than 114 feet over all, and the people of New York, as well as of other American cities visited, were greatly excited over the discovery of tangible proof that the long-suspected sea serpent existed. But finally Prof. Wyman, a naturalist of considerable circumspection, examined the skeleton and discovered it to be a composite, including the bones of several zeuglodon he saw crawling over the bottom an extraordinary lizard-like monster, with long, serpent-like neck, short tail, and four flippers, like those of a turtle. The naturalist regards it as remarkable to say the least, that this skipper, who doubtless had never heard of a plesiosaur, should thus describe one with amazing accuracy, both as to form and probable habit. The director regards it as just as possible for the plesiosaur to survive as for some of our sharks, which date back to the same geologic period.

In the accompanying group of three gigantic sea lizards you will perceive in the left foreground the terrible elasmosaur, the most colossal and most serpent-like of all that ancient group. With its whale-like body, long and flexible neck, short paddles and serpentine tail it would answer well to popular descriptions of the sea serpent. Its tremendous size is attested by its vertebrae, some of which, now preserved, are nearly as large as those of the elephant. In the right background of the picture is its cousin, the mosasaur, of which no fewer than ten species are known to have inhabited this part of the world, six having been found in New Jersey. This terrible sea lizard attained a length of 40 feet. Its head was flat and pointed and its lower jaw was provided with an attachment of cartilage by which it could open its mouth to enormous extent in the same manner as the modern snake. The central figure in this group is another of these creatures known as the liopsa, a great kangaroo-like lizard which frequented the land.

"There are no monster sea serpents," was the emphatic reply of Dr. Theodore N. Gill, the distinguished ichthyologist of the Smithsonian Institution. "There is no animal of gigantic size now living in the sea which could be properly classed as a serpent or even a reptile."

"It is possible that a great selachian related to the frilled shark of Japan may be found in the seas. This would have an eel-like body, a fin back of the head and, if very long, would agree to some extent with descriptions of the 'great sea serpent.' As a matter of fact there was discovered not many years ago a small snake-like shark, resembling the great sharks of the Pacific."

"Do you regard all reports of monster sea serpents as pure fragments of the imagination?" I asked Dr. Gill.

"Most of the wonderful creatures made the subject of sea serpent stories doubtless are living animals of some sort," he replied. "I will give strung together. When last heard of by Dr. Gill this "sea serpent" was sold by Koch to the museum of Dresden. The accompanying photograph of the skeleton of a zeuglodon properly mounted has been furnished me by Dr. Gill, and was made from the unaltered specimen obtained by the Smithsonian some time ago from our southern coast.

The federal bureau of fisheries has been hunting the sea serpent ever since it was founded. Its second officer in command, Dr. Hugh M. Smith, United States deputy commissioner of fisheries, told me yesterday how he has personally followed to their lairs two or three of the most horrible of these creatures.

While scientists are not in accord on the question, Dr. Smith thinks that some circumstantial evidence recently gathered "will perhaps weaken the belief of some intelligent persons, who have heretofore denied the possibility of the existence at this day of marine monsters comparable to those of geological times."

A zealous champion of the sea serpent's reality is Dr. A. C. Oudemans, the well-known zoologist. After collecting all obtainable reports of sea serpent visitations along our eastern coast and throwing out palpable "cheats and hoaxes," he has obtained evidence of 66 such monsters reported between Newfoundland and Florida within a period of 135 years.

These monsters, he says, are migratory, and that they do not like cold water is shown by the fact that none has been reported along our coasts between November and January, inclusive, while only two have been seen during February, March and April. Their return with warm weather, however, is shown by the record of three in May, nine in June, seven in July and finally a round couple of dozen in August, which, as stated, is our sea serpent month par excellence. After this the visitations taper off—four in September, two in October and none in November. The fact that comparatively few of these monsters have been reported from our Pacific coast is, according to Dr. Oudemans, due to the fact that the greater ocean is far less frequented by ocean passengers rather than to the probable absence of such creatures from its waters.

The sea serpent is a great mammal most nearly related to the sea bear, according to this naturalist. In view of some zoologists the great zeuglodon was closely related to this same species, but its greatest known length, 70 feet, is far surpassed by the 350 feet attributed by Dr. Oudemans to his hypothetical creature, which, he says, appears to have a head resembling that of the sea lion, an eel-like neck, a hairy seal-like trunk with two flippers on each side and a tapering, pointed tail. The males of this species, like those of the seal, he thinks, are probably adorned with the mane which figures so persistently in sea serpent descriptions.

SINGING FOR THE "RECORDS"

Odd and Interesting Occupation in Which Men and Women Receive Good Compensation.

How many of those who on a summer evening listen idly to the music of the phonograph reeled off so easily and carelessly ever stop to think how these records were made or to wonder what were the emotions of the musician who poured sweet sounds into inanimate ears, without any of the inspiration of lights, flowers, beautiful clothes and an applauding audience?

Although it doesn't bring so much glory as singing at the Metropolitan Opera house, this business of singing for records is a very lucrative one. Caruso is said to have made $150,000 a year in this humble fashion, and a star of lesser magnitude may count on $2,000 annually, which means much more than it would if gained behind footlights, because the phonograph does not demand that its entertainers keep up with the latest caprices of fashion. In the beginning, however, it is rather trying.

"Stage fright is nothing to the feeling with which one confronts that awful horn," testifies a young woman who is now singing for those silent audiences, according to the New York Tribune, "and afterward, when the record is played and one hears every false note, every clearing of one's throat, even an audible swallow, it is a wonder any one ever had the courage to try again. Yet it is a wonderful experience, and one realizes as one never could otherwise how truly marvelous is the talking machine, the phonograph."

The room where we make our records is an absolutely bare, barnlike place, with a board partition at one end, dividing the room proper from the small space where the recording instrument is placed. The horn into which one sings is suspended from the ceiling and protrudes through an opening in the partition. Grouped around it are the musicians of the orchestra, seated on elevated chairs, their music hung in front of them on strings and weighted so as not to swing too much in any chance breeze. The instruments themselves are the strangest looking things, the violins, instead of the regular body, a hollow tube affair, in which are arranged the strings. The cellos are skeleton in construction—no sides and very slight wooden supports separating the top and bottom of the body. And to every instrument is attached an aluminum horn directed toward the large horn in the wall, to concentrate the sound wave.

"The singer is placed on a little platform directly in front of the large receiver, then when all is in readiness he or she slips down out of the way of the sound waves. A light gives the signal and the conductor, who is perched even higher than the musicians, starts the orchestra. At the side of the soloist is an assistant, who, when the orchestra begins, puts into the mouth of the horn a large extension, so as to catch more of the sound, and when the introduction is finished quickly removes it. Then the soloist, rising and standing quite close to the horn, sings. It is rather distracting, for one hears one's voice become at once concentrated and more vibrant than usual, and one must remember those dreadful little sounds which an audience would scarcely notice, but which the horn records relentlessly.

"On finishing the verse one steps down below the level of the horn. The assistant once more puts on the extension and keeps it in place until the second verse starts. This assistant is a most useful person, for those new to making records, for he sways one first forward when one is using the middle or low register, then back for the high notes. If the singer makes a mistake, he stops. If any thing goes wrong with the recording instrument a bell rings and all stop, to begin over again at a given signal.

"After the song is finished the record is played. One listens to see where it can be improved. Perhaps in places the orchestra is scratchy. If so, they rehearse the weak spots once or twice; then again they take their positions, await the red starting signal and try once more.

"The wax disks on which the records are actually made are behind the partition, and all about is a mass of what at first looks like fuzz or snot, but is in reality wax spun off by the needle. These wax imprints are sent to the factory—about four or five are made of each song—where a metal impression is taken from them. From this pattern the hard block records are manufactured.

A Heartless Man.
"What's the matter?" bawled husband.

"I think a bass had me by the toe, but he's gone now."

"Why couldn't you let him nibble what I got there?" demanded husband peevishly. "I haven't landed a bass this trip."

UNDER APPLE TREE IN OLD ORCHARD

Trespasser Was Not One of the "Seven Sleepers."

By CATHERINE COOPE.

Joan sped down through the riot of flowers to the foot of the garden path; there, she stopped to catch her breath before continuing on through the hawthorn lanes that led to the fruit orchard. Her wide garden hat had slipped from its nest of spun gold ringlets and her heart beat joyously with the pulse of spring.

She stood for a moment poised under the old ivy-covered arch that admitted her to the orchard and drew in long breaths of delight. The great garbled trees were weighted with blossoms and the air was heavy with the sweetness of their perfume.

Joan made a swift dart and with the agility of a squirrel climbed into the topmost branches of her favorite tree. There she sighed happily, then laughed at the shower of pink and white petals that her ascent brought down.

"Now I am monarch of all I survey," she told herself gleefully, and settled herself in the secure seat of a gardener had made for her.

Because their orchard was only a sixteenth part of the original orchard that had been the pride of the one-time Lamberth estate, it was not walled in, but merely inclosed by hawthorn hedges. Joan regretted that necessity had called for a division of the property, yet she rejoiced that the lot which her grandmother had purchased possessed the most beautiful tree in the entire orchard.

She gazed out over the vista of pink and white, and from her high perch could see the various winding lanes that divided the properties. Suddenly she leaned forward, her eyes focused upon a figure that was moving about among the private gardens.

"He must be trespassing," was Joan's mental comment. "I have never seen him before."

She watched him intently, half out of feminine interest for a masculine person and half because of the peculiar actions of the man. He stood quite still for moments at a time, apparently gazing at the wonder of the orchard, but suddenly he would dart toward a specific tree and make numerous circuits about its base.

"Now I Am Monarch of All I Survey."

Joan began to fear for his sanity and for her own safety. Certainly his actions were not those of an evenly balanced man. She felt reasonably sure that neither an insane nor a sane man would catch sight of her in her bower of thick foliage, but her heart beat rapidly.

"You never can tell," she told herself "what any man is likely to see." With considerable trepidation she watched the man drawing gradually nearer and nearer to her retreat. Would he or would he not venture within her grandmother's private orchard? Joan felt reasonably sure now that the trespasser was mentally unbalanced.

"He is coming in!" Joan caught a sharp breath and drew up into the branches of her tree. He seemed to catch sight of the great tree the moment he stood within the arch and made straight for it. As he came forward, Joan again drew a quick breath. The man was undoubtedly good to look at and his shoulders were big and broad. He had taken off his cap and the sun shone on a head of thick, red-brown hair. Joan's grandmother had a miniature of a man with just such a head of hair.

The girl in the tree-top sighed, partly because she felt a strong desire to drop twice down on the good-looking young fellow whose wanderings had brought him into her garden. "But I do not dare," she told herself and realized that her fear of the man had vanished. "I suppose his eyes are brown," Joan decided. She leaned forward cautiously and watched him prowling about the foot of the tree. Suddenly he threw himself down on the wide bench that encircled the tree.

"Discovered!" she heard him mutter, and peered down to see him draw a great knife from his pocket. He brandished it about and the blood in Joan's veins stood still. He opened the evil-looking blade and ran his fingers along it. Joan gripped the branches to keep from tumbling headlong out of the tree.

The man was silent for a moment, then he began very calmly to carve his initials in the bark of the tree. The blood in Joan's veins took up its course and she drew a long breath of relief.

"Rather nerry, however," she commented, forgetting that her grandmother abominated slang.

Evidently the young man had finished his carving for he returned his knife to his pocket and cast a glance about the orchard. Seeing no one about, he threw himself full length on the soft turf and prepared for a nap. "I certainly hope he is not one of the seven sleepers," Joan thought petulantly, "my left foot is already asleep—Oh-hi!" She uttered a half cry and tried to drag her foot from the crutch of the branch into which she had pressed it.

The young man below blinked his eyes in the sunlight, then sat bolt upright. His eyes, blue as the summer sky, gazed up into the branches of the tree as if an apparition had suddenly appeared.

"My foot is caught," cried Joan, accusingly, "and you did it!"

"It!" The man's breathless ejaculation brought the color to Joan's cheeks. She frowned.

"Besides," he continued, "you have been trespassing for the last half hour."

A slow smile dawned in the man's eyes, as if he were glad that he had been watched for so long a time. Joan blushed furiously at herself, then retreated behind a mask of light fabrication. "I suppose you were going to take some of the apple blossoms for a wedding or something—so I kept my eye on you," she finished, lamely.

"Not both eyes?" he questioned, with a merry look. He was suddenly serious. "But this is not getting your foot out of the branches of my grandfather's tree." He climbed up with a quick movement and placed himself beside her before Joan could gasp indignantly.

"Your grandfather's tree, indeed! It is my very own grandmother's tree and she did all her courting under it on that very branch," Joan informed the young man's back, "but she didn't marry the man."

He turned about, having extricated his ankle from the crutch and gazed back at her.

"In that case," he informed her, "it was your grandmother who jilted my grandfather because he lost all his money and had to sell the Lamberth estate."

"She did no such thing," retorted Joan. "She gazes at his miniature every day in this world." She cast a quick glance at him. "I know now," she exclaimed, "you look exactly like that miniature."

"My grandfather was very handsome," laughed young Lamberth; then growing serious again, he continued: "When he sent me to England he told me very particularly to look for this tree, which he said bore the best apples in the whole orchard, also to look closely to see his initials carved with those of the only girl he ever loved."

"When the estate was cut up into building lots," said Joan, taking up the thread of the story, "my grandmother made a bid for this special piece because it had that tree on it."

"I have carved my initials on it," said Lamberth, "and they look a bit lonesome." His eyes met her appealingly.

"We will go in now and have tea and a proper introduction from my grandmother, and after that we will discuss whose initials would look well entwined with yours."

"That discussion will be short. Come," he said, "give me your hands—I want to help you down from the apple blossoms."

WOULD RETAIN ART TREASURE

English Antiquarians Up in Arms at Prospect of Loss of Cromwell's Staircase.

London antiquarians are up in arms against a proposal to sell to wealthy Americans the famous carved staircase in what is known as Cromwell's house, Highgate Hill, a fine seventeenth century mansion, presented, according to tradition, by Cromwell to his eldest daughter Bridget.

Cromwell house is a red brick house faced with stone. A boundary stone in the adjoining wall bears the date of 1614, and this is generally accepted as the year of its construction. The house was occupied at one time by General Ireton, Cromwell's son-in-law, and it is suggested that it formed part of the dowry of Cromwell's eldest daughter Bridget.

The whole of the internal ornaments bear evidence of military occupancy. Unfortunately the greater portion of the drawing room ceiling was destroyed by fire nearly a century ago, but some exquisite woodwork has been revealed during recent renovation.

The main staircase, which is the immediate subject of concern, is of handsome proportions, and bears at its various corners beautifully carved figures of soldiers of the commonwealth period. The handrail is of distinctive molding, whilst the balustrades are rich with cleverly executed devices emblematic of warfare. Hand-somely carved oak pendants appear at intervals above the staircase.

GOES TO DIE IN THE DEAD'S HOUSE

California Lawyer Kills Himself in Undertaking Rooms After Careful Preparation.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Determined that his body should be sent to the right place with as little trouble as possible, Chester Guy Smith, an attorney having offices at No. 129 West Second street, walked into the reception room of an undertaking room late the other afternoon and shot himself through the head.

Although mortally wounded, the lawyer was still breathing when discovered by an attendant, and was hurried to the Receiving hospital, where an examination showed that the bullet had penetrated the brain and that death was a matter of but a short time.

After lingering on the verge of the grave for more than an hour, the patient gradually grew weaker and died without recovering consciousness. That the act was one of deliberation was indicated by a note found in his pocket which gave his name and requested that Dr. W. P. Millsbaugh of No. 427 Loughlin building be notified.

Despite a careful investigation on the part of the police no motive for the suicide could be discovered, although members of the family declared that the attorney had been working unusually hard of late and that his health had been undermined by financial worries.

With his wife, the attorney lived at the home of his father, C. H. Smith, No. 2317 Pasadena avenue. In speaking of the tragic end of her husband Mrs. Smith said that she had noticed that he appeared worried during the last few weeks, apparently on account of financial difficulties, but he had never hinted that he intended to take his own life.

The lawyer was about forty years old and came to this city from Buffalo ten years ago and at once began the practice of his profession. He was married about six years ago but had no children.

PARSON-STUDENT IS DUCKED

Refusal to Join Hazers in Nightshirt Parade is Taken as Grave Offense.

Waynesburg, Pa.—As a punishment for his failure to take part in the annual nightshirt parade of Waynesburg college students, Frank Weaver, a preacher with a local charge and a student at the college, was ducked in the lake in college park the other night in the presence of a big crowd.

Weaver was spending the evening with a young woman friend when the nightshirted students, to the number of 150, appeared at the house. With drums beating and hundreds of residents along the route of parade, Weaver was marched to the lake and ducked.

He is a member of the junior class, and when the annual nightshirt parade was announced, he declined to join in the festivities, and the students, after parading the streets, marched to the young woman's home and forcibly took the young preacher away.

At the conclusion of the ducking, Weaver scampered across the campus, his wet clothing clinging to him.

Wins Bet by Drowning.

Butte, Mont.—Nick Velky, a Macedonian switchman, wagered his friend T. Suski $10 that he could remain under the waters of the Country Club lake for 30 minutes. He won the bet all right, but he will never collect the money, for an hour and a half later his body was recovered in six feet of water near the shore, where it had become enmeshed in the shrubbery. Velky was unmarried and twenty-five years old. An inquest will be held.

Lemonade at Church.
Plainfield, N. J.—As a means of increasing the attendance at the mid-week prayer meetings in his church, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich of the Congregational church conceived the idea of serving ice cold lemonade at these services. This innovation was tried the other night for the first time and proved a grand success, there being a marked increase in the attendance.

ESCAPES DEATH IN SEA COW BATTLE

Texas Fisherman Has Fierce Struggle With 3,000-Pound Animal at Port Isabel.

STRUCK BY FLIPPERS

Companions Drag Injured Man into Boat and Then Capture the Mammal, Which Was Handicapped by Shallow Water at Laguna Madre.

Port Isabel, Tex.—An exciting encounter with a giant sea cow in the shallow water of the Laguna Madre, near here, furnished thrills for a party of Mexican fishermen who were trying to capture the amphibious animal. It was finally brought into subjection after a desperate struggle in which one of the men, Ramon Rodriguez, was struck by one of the flippers of the monster and severely injured.

It was brought ashore and placed on exhibition, attracting much attention among the people of this section. It weighs more than 3,000 pounds and is 12 feet long. It was kept alive for several days.

This sea cow is supposed to have come from the more southern waters of the gulf. It entered the Laguna Madre at the pass which separates the island from the mainland and was seen by the fishermen struggling in shallow water. The boat with three men immediately pulled off from shore to capture the animal if possible.

When they got close to it, Rodriguez climbed out of the boat and attempted to put a rope around the mammal's fins. It was while he was in this act that he received a terrific blow upon his body from one of the flippers. He was knocked senseless and would have drowned had he not been dragged into the boat by his companions. The rope was finally fastened to the deep water giant and Received a Terrific Blow.

It was towed ashore after a hard fight. Its enormous weight and strength would have been much more than the boatmen could have handled had it not been for the handicap of shallow water. This sea cow is the second that has been captured in the Laguna Madre near here during the last few weeks.

The animals are quite numerous along the coast 150 to 200 miles south of here. Their particular rendezvous seems to be at the mouth of the Soto la Marina river as well as in that stream. They live in either salt water or fresh water. Much sport is had by Mexicans in catching them in the Soto la Marina river, which is said to be their principal breeding ground along the more southern gulf coast. Ordinarily they are not vicious, but when cornered or aroused to desperation they will put up a lively fight.

One strange feature of their appearance in the waters along the coast is that they are usually accompanied by a school of sea devils. These latter inhabitants of the ocean are of monster size, frequently weighing as much as 4,500 pounds each. They are giants in strength and one of them, when harpooned, has been known to pull a load of 20 boats, each carrying two men and hitched together by means of ropes.

Hero in Hard Luck.

Davenport, Wash.—C. W. Eaton of Spokane was successful in stopping a runaway team two miles south of here at the risk of his life.

Eaton was auto riding with friends when a team was seen tearing down the road. He jumped out of the machine, caught the horses with one hand on each bridle and was carried, feet above ground, nearly 300 yards, sustaining slight injuries.

The farmer from whom the team had escaped came up and took the unways without thanking his captor, who lost a quantity of money from his pocket in the chase.

A Counter Current.

South Norwalk, Conn.—Because the cries of a neighbor's baby kept her awake several of the recent hot nights, Miss Sarah Davenport of Milton has purchased a phonograph and loaned a man to keep it going from 10 p. m. to 2 a. m., every night as a counter current at her neighbors.

ONCE STAGE ELF DIES IN WANT

The body of an aged woman, wasted by want and destructive habits was identified yesterday in the Chicago county morgue, as that of Carrie Meyers, twenty years ago a beauty of the stage and one of the queens of the night life of the downtown district, which in those days was fully as lively as it is now.

The woman is said to have been an intimate friend of the late Senator Thomas C. Platt and of his wife, Lillian Thompson Janeway Platt. She was sought after by many men of prominence and showered with jewels by those who sought her favor.

The woman died in the bridewell. She was taken there on Aug. 22, when she was arrested at Twenty-sixth and State streets. Her end was hastened because she was denied morphine to the use of which she had been addicted for years.

The identification was made by Charles Bell who in the days when Carrie Meyers was at the height of her popularity as a "front row beauty" of the "Black Crook" company was a stage carpenter at the old People's theater. He and the woman had been living together in an attic at 2523 South Wabash avenue.

"They had another companion, 'Kid' Morgan, a downtown gambler, who had had his own little day of prosperity during the time when Carrie Meyers' start was at its zenith. They were bound together by their common memories of the past and by their mutual craving for morphine.

Carrie Meyers' acquaintance with Platt's wife came through their association in the "Black Crook" company, Lillian Janeway was also one of the "front row beauties." It was while she was there that Platt saw her and fell in love. Later, when Platt sued for divorce, Carrie Meyers was sought for, but she had sunk to such obscurity by that time that she could not be found.

The woman's descent to poverty was as rapid as her rise to prosperity had been. She had early acquired the drug habit and it was chiefly this that pulled her down.

Carrie Meyers was born in Cincinnati, and at the age of 7 was left an orphan. At 15 she ran away from the orphanage in which an uncle had placed her and went to Toledo. There she learned to dance and sing. Two years later she came to Chicago, joined the "Black Crook" cast, and became one of the queens of the gilded youth of the period.

The fine that sent her to the bridewell was imposed by Judge Goring. It was only $10, but it might as well have been $1,000,000 for it had been years since Carrie Meyers had possessed $10 all in one lump. She began crying for morphine almost as soon as she reached the bridewell, and at the end of three days was in delirium. A physician was summoned, but could do nothing, and she died while he was attending her.

TO IMPROVE MICHIGAN FARMS

The United States government is anxious to instruct the farmers of Michigan in the business of farming, and with that object in view has appealed to the state board of agriculture to co-operate with it in placing field men at work in several districts to carry the work to the farmers first hand. In order to get the work under way a meeting has been called in Detroit on September 16, when the boards of supervisors of the counties and representatives of business men's associations are expected to be on hand and help work out the problem. It is probable that twelve men will be put to work in the state at a cost of about $50,000 annually. This work has been started in one or two places in the state.

The effort has been successful and the government is anxious to expand the idea until the whole state is covered by a corps of instructors who have the knowledge and ability to bring about improved conditions in crops and general farming methods. Farming is now being recognized as an exact science, and while a great many farmers appreciate and take advantage of this fact, there are thousands who continue to follow the old methods of their forefathers in handling the land, and in consequence reap corresponding returns. The introduction of more system and better methods in farming in general will result in a gain of many millions each year, and the federal authorities should be supported in their attempt to bring about better conditions. Being the leading agricultural state of the Union Michigan should take readily to the government and profit by it to the fullest.

DOCK STRIKERS REFUSE RAISE

Superior, Wis., Sept. 10.—Following a conference with D. M. Philbin, who has general charge of the ore business of the Great Northern railway, Supt. J. C. Morrell of the docks this morning announced that if the striking employees did not report for work tomorrow morning their places would be filled with other men. Arrangements are understood to have been already made for the importation of strikebreakers if they are needed.

There are about 500 men out at the ore docks. This morning there were not more than 12 men at work on the docks trying to do the work of the strikers. Boat crews which were at first put to work loading ore have been taken off and operations are practically at a standstill. There are fifteen boats laid up at the docks waiting cargoes. Four boats have been diverted to other docks since the strike started and more will be shifted unless the difficulty is settled shortly.

About half of the striking dock men are Finns, the remainder being Scandinavians and Belgians. The Finns form the backbone of the strike, it being reported that the majority of the employees of other nationalities are in favor of going back to work at the increased scale offered by the company.

Want 25 Per Cent Raise.
The men demand a general increase of pay amounting to 25 cents a day. This would make the pay of the day crew $2.50 for ten hours work, and of the night crews, $2.75 for ten hours.

At a meeting of the strikers held at Woodman Hall, Allouez, yesterday, Paul Shaw, general foreman of the docks was in attendance and informed the men that the company would grant an increase of 20 cents a day. This offer was rejected.

The strikers are also asking for double price for Sunday work. This the company refuses, offering time and a half.

The men also demand that certain of the foremen be discharged by the company. John Washburn of Dock No. 1, is the foreman whom the men are most desirous of having removed, they claiming that he is especially objectionable.

While the strikers have no organization it is understood that the fight against the company is being engineered by representatives of the Industrial Workers of the World, the same organization that was back of the strike of the package freight handlers several weeks ago.

No Trouble Threatened.
The average monthly wage of the day employees now approximate $70.50, while that of the night men is $77. The daily pay roll of the docks is approximately $1,200.

Thus far there has been no violence and there seems to be little prospect of any. Checkers and office employees on the docks have been commissioned as watchmen and the company is ready to swear in special agents in event trouble arises.

The strike is proving for reaching in its effect. Three hundred trainmen employed in the movement of ore from the ranges to the dock are out of work as a result of it and men are being laid off at the mines also. Until the strike ends there will be no empty cars available for loading.

About a hundred of the trainmen who are out of work were employed at Allouez, the others being on the ore dock runs. There are a dozen train crews laid up at Kelley Lake at the present time.

A meeting of the strikers is being held at Allouez this afternoon, Mayor J. S. Konkol was present to speak to the strikers.

The implicit confidence that many people have in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is founded on their experience in the use of that remedy and their knowledge of the many remarkable cures of colic, diarrhoea and dysentery that it has effected. For sale by all dealers.

MARINETTE GIRL TRIES TO SUICIDE

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Pauline Cody, of Marinette, Wisconsin, who attempted suicide by throwing herself into Lake Michigan Saturday night was discharged by municipal judge Williams today.

She promised to return home to relatives at Marinette. Mrs. Cody said she became despondent when she was forced to leave her husband a few months ago.

The Chicago Tribune printed the following story concerning Mrs. Cody. "A young woman started out for a gay night, as she expressed it. Soon things began to happen, and kept on happening until she found herself locked up at Hudson avenue police station. Before she got into a cell she had been deserted by her escort, had plunged into the lake in an effort to drown herself, and had been saved by three young men, only to figure in an automobile accident and later land in jail.

The woman first said she was Mrs. Pauline Noltie, 2320 White street, Marinette, Wis. Later she gave her name as Mrs. Elmer Cody and said she had deserted her husband in Moline, Ill., three weeks ago, when she came to Chicago. She had been living with Blanche Carter, 107 Indiana street, through whom she became acquainted with F. Milton, 24 East Indiana street.

"Early Saturday night the woman and Milton started out to tour the loop cafes. All went well until the woman let slip the information that she was a married woman and expected her husband in Chicago soon. Milton balked on accompanying her farther. Then the woman went to the lake at the foot of East Ohio street and leaped into the water after taking off a long gray coat.

"John Gannon, 442 Lincoln Park boulevard, saw her take the plunge and he jumped in after her. He seized her and held her head above water, but was having difficulty in getting

CAPT. JACK TO APPEAR HERE

Those who pride themselves upon their abilities as "crack shots" will no doubt receive an eye opener or two at the Northern State Fair here next week when the Fair management introduce "Captain Jack" O'Connell the most noted rifle expert in the country. "Capt. Jack" has mighty few equals in his style of shooting. He uses real bullets in direct rebuke to the "Shot"—cartridge humbugs of the various travelling shows. O'Connell has appeared before millions in every quarter of the globe while a member of "Buffalo Hills" famous show, he is a man of extra-ordinary ability with a ".22" caliber rifle, and some of his stunts are just a little short of the impossible. Small objects such as coins, marbles, dice—even lead pencils, are hit in midair. Shooting in various positions he cuts matches and even cards held edge-ways, etc. With a little "Ithaca" 51-4 No. "20" gauge shot gun he shoots under a tin can on the ground causing it to jump into the air, and catches it in the air with the second barrel, kicks up a can with his foot and catches it in the air with both barrels. Captain Jack is totally deaf and his entire right side is partly paralysed, but he is still a man of rare skill in the use of fire-arms. His shooting under such circumstances is wonderful in its rapidity and accuracy, and it will be worth coming miles to see him do his "stunts."

WEALTHY MAN MUST SERVE 15 MONTHS

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 10.—Falling in his appeal to the federal court of appeals, Charles L. Hyde of Pierre, banker and reputed to be the most wealthy man in South Dakota, must serve one year and three months in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., and pay a fine of $1,500, for using the mails for fraudulent purposes. Hyde was convicted by a jury before Judge Elliott of the United States court in this city in December last.

Evidence was introduced to prove that Hyde had represented that lots which he had for sale in the outskirts of Pierre would rise rapidly in price, and that he had induced many persons to invest their savings in those lots, which were of little, if any value. Evidence was given that he had informed investors by means of circulars, maps and letters circulated through the mails, that Pierre had a number of natural advantages, and that there were valuable minerals in its vicinity.

Hyde had been ordered by the court to surrender himself to the United States marshal within thirty days after the decision of the federal circuit court of appeals is filed in the federal court in Sioux Falls.

Foreign Experts Praise Northwestern Plant

Model Brewery of America, Located in the Great Golden Grain Belt, Where Best Barley on Earth is Grown.

THE GREAT NORTHWEST has come into its own, not only its large crops of the present year, but in one of the big results of the work of the farmers of this section. It is a known fact that good beer can only be made with barley. Fair beer that will pass in some families, is made with other grains, but for the real malt product, such as physicians recommend, the best of barley must be used for making the malt. Nor does extra fine beer-making depend upon foreign hops, for right in the great far northwest are grown the finest hops for many purposes in the world, especially for medicine where tonics are needed. It was natural, therefore, that by the help of the farmers, it should come to pass that the northwest should become famous for an exceptional quality and favor of old aged beer, and that credit has been given to Golden Grain Belt Beers by no less critics than experts from the home of beer, the lands of Germany and Austria. While much of this was due to the superior quality of the barley for which northwestern farmers secured and do secure, prices far in advance of wheat, it was necessary to perfect a model brewery in order to give a fair test to the home grown barley of the Golden Grain Belt. That test has been made, and the result is a widening demand for the Golden Grain Belt Beers, made from the products of the northwestern fields. And so great is the increase that the Minneapolis Brewing company asks the farmers of the northwest to grow more barley in order that there may be a plentiful supply. Many farmers are taking advantage of the help of the state farms and are selecting the finer varieties in order that they may get still more securing. The foxy farmer, these days, is the one who turns his fancy away from wheat as an entire crop, and puts in a goodly acreage of barley. He sees the difference in the steady high price of the brewer's grain. The Minneapolis Brewing Company has done more than its share in creating these high prices for northwestern barley. Many American brewers have made fun of its management because of the lavish way in which it has equipped the brewery at Minneapolis with every modern fanciful device for the making of pure aged beer. You must remember that there is a vast difference in beer. Old beer, properly lagered, is an assistant to health and digestion. Cheap, newly made beer is just the opposite and will give heartburn and sour stomach because it ferments in the stomach. Aged beer costs more to make because there must be immense storage capacity, perfectly sterile, and cooled to a fraction of a degree for months. Cheap, newly made beer can be made one day and shipped to the customer in a day or two after, the "sparkle" having been artificially given. That is why it can be sold cheap, although often it is sold for the same price as aged beer. So keenly did the brewmaster of the Minneapolis Brewing company watch the growth of brewing that, of late, Golden Grain Belt Beers have been given a place of honor among beers of the world. Foreign brewers, journeying through America, carried home with them, praises of the brewery where Golden Grain Belt Beers are brewed, as a model plant, worth studying in perfecting their own breweries. Furthermore, these experts gave handsome praise by stating that the Golden Grain Belt Beers were the best they had tasted in the west. At this Minneapolis brewery, where all Golden Grain Belt Beers are bottled, there is one of the few government tanks of the country, so that the beer is bottled direct from a sealed tank instead of being drawn from barrels. This gives a purer product and admits of greater age and hence better medicinal properties. Is it any wonder that every one connected with the Minneapolis Brewing Company are proud of their beer, and welcome strangers to visit their brewery at any and all times? When you come to Minneapolis, don't fail to visit the great model brewery of the Minneapolis Brewing Company where Golden Grain Belt Beers are brewed and aged. Guides will take you on the half-hour trip which you will say, when completed, was one of the most interesting of your lifetime. You will not be shown the very largest brewery in the world, but you will see one that is noted as being one of the most perfect. The latch string is out, and any time you are in Minneapolis you are welcome. You must come prepared to expect a fine trip. Courteous guides will explain every point, and you will learn why Dr. P. M. Hall, noted health commissioner, stated that the only way milk could be made safe to use, would be by adopting the kind of methods used in this great brewery.

MODERN VALJEAN
STARTS LIFE ANEW

Denver, Colo., Sept. 10.—There is a Jean Valjean in real life comfortably established on a homestead in Montana, and "Tom" Tynan, warden of the Colorado state penitentiary, is smilingly playing the role of Mgr. Myrie, Bishop of D.

Not recognizing his own prominent part in the performance, Warden Tynan gave the following history of the case—of course altering the name of the man who plays Jean Valjean.

Eight years ago this man—call him Jones—was sent to prison, for life for being implicated in a murder in a Colorado mining town.

The sentence was held to be much too severe, for the evidence at the trial did not show any degree of "mortal turpitude," to use the ancient phrase, that would justify society in sending a man to a life term in prison.

Jones is Paroled.

After serving a few years and making a record as a model prisoner, Jones was paroled. Under the terms of his parole he was not allowed to leave the state, and he was required to make monthly reports of his whereabouts to the officials of the prison.

This was before the present system of looking out for convicts had been well organized.

Jones soon found his life a great deal harder outside prison than it had been inside.

He got a job on a farm with a farmer who knew his history. The farmer was a shrewd bargainer with a chunk of flint for a heart. He figured that an ex-convict would have to stand anything, and proceeded to put his theory in practice.

He worked Jones at a pace and for a term of hours per day that only the young man's perfect physique enabled him to endure.

Quits Job; Is Outlawed.

Most men would have broken down under it in two months. Jones stood it for 18 months. Then he rebelled; in other words, quit his job.

He thought it would be easy to get another job. So, if you remember, did Jean Valjean.

Jones soon found out that there were no jobs to be had by an ex-convict.

Finally he determined to quit being an ex-convict. He violated his parole, dropped out of sight, went to Montana and took up a homestead.

He has been there more than two years and is liked and respected by all his neighbors.

Jones is one of the most popular men in the settlement, and his popularity is not of the hurrah order. It is based on a sense of his worth.

He courted a farmer's daughter in his new home. To her, and to her alone, he told the truth. He was an ex-convict. He was living under an assumed name.

The girl promptly declared herself willing to share that name, even though assumed, and added that she had always been interested in convicts, anyway.

Then, at last, the officers found him. They had been searching for him ever since he violated his parole, and now, in the hour of his apparent triumph, they came upon him.

Is Given Chance.

Luckily the officer who made the discovery gave Jones a chance to come back to Colorado without having the facts made public. Jones grasped at the opportunity.

He came back and told his story to Tom Tynan, new warden of the penitentiary. He found that the young man had led an absolutely straight life in his new home; that he was one of the best citizens in the settlement.

The final and deciding thing to Warden Tynan was that Jones had told the truth to the woman he wanted to marry.

"A man who has the nerve to do that must have good stuff in him," declared Warden Tynan.

So Tynan and the members of the pardon board got together. They made out a permanent parole for the young man, a parole that relieved him from the need of making reports and gave him the chance to live where he wished.

In this way they also avoided the publicity inevitable in the case of a newly applied for pardon. And it was just as satisfactory to Jones.

Jones has one back to Montana, where none of his neighbors is the wiser as to the occasion of his trip south. The wedding is soon to come.

It is rumored among the parole officers of Colorado that the first boy of this marriage is likely to be named "Thomas Tynan Jones."

DANGER NOT NUDE;
SHE WORE A VEIL

Pittsburg, Sept. 10.—Tiny Duchee, the dainty Mexican maid whose nude dance at the German society dinner in Bloomfield several weeks ago wrecked temporarily the domestic felicity of that staid community, was put on trial.

Four members of the German society who staged the party entered pleas of nolle pro tondere.

"It is not bad—the dance," asserted Tiny. "To the arrests it is most beautiful."

She thought the men at the dinner were so "artefectake."
 "Is it true," asked Judge Evans, "that you were unclad?"
 "Oh, not so, not so," said Tiny excitedly. "I wear the opaque veil—such a stible—" and she fingered the veil on her big hat.

When she did the Bull Moose dance, Tiny said she added to her costume a large pair of horn-rimmed goggles.

Tiny and her four fellow offenders were lectured by Judge Evans and divided the costs between them.

"It is too strict in Pittsburg—I must go back to New York," declared Tiny Duchee, as she left the courtroom.

WIFE, NOT KNOWN
SERVES A SUMMONS

New York, Sept. 10.—At the entrance to the Hotel St. Hubert in W. 57th street, a woman stood the other day hour after hour scanning closely the face of every man who went in or out. Finally an automobile drew up to the door, and after a few moments, a man stepped out of the hotel, leaning on the arm of a nurse. He was Adolph I. Davis, a prosperous business man connected with the Guggenheim smelting interests in Colorado and the East.

Before he could reach the door of the machine the woman stepped swiftly across the pavement and pressed a summons into his hand. Mr. Davis glanced casually at the server of the paper, then down at the paper. It was a summons in a suit for a separation brought by Mrs. Alma Davis.

The woman turned on her heel and walked hurriedly toward Broadway, while Mr. Davis thrust the paper into his pocket and climbed into the machine. He had not recognized his wife in the woman who had served the summons, so many years had gone since and she had made their home together.

In 1902, according to Mrs. Davis' complaint, he left her, after eight years of married life. Since then she and her little girl, now sixteen years old, have been supported by her mother, with whom she lives at 237 W 113 street, she said.

Mrs. Davis had heard that her husband had gone to Colorado and grown prosperous. From different friends she heard of his connection with the American Smelting and Refining company, and the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting company, and she heard, too, that he came East occasionally. It always seemed to her that he kept out of her way and all her plans to have him served with a summons in an action for a separation came to nothing. Finally she decided to serve the paper herself.

THE kidneys should filter out the waste matter and uric acid from the blood and deposit them. When they are weakened by hold, overwork, long illness or disipation, the poisons become lodged in the kidneys, bladder and urinary tract, causing many disagreeable symptoms.

Webster's Diuretic washes out the kidneys by causing a flow of water thru them, soothes and purifies the irritated mucous membrane surfaces. The kidneys are soon in their normal condition again and serious diseases are avoided.

In serious and advanced cases Webster's Diuretic is a great help, but a physician should always be consulted at such times.

PROGRESSIVES
TO CARRY STATE

Detroit, Sept. 10.—Governor Hiram Johnson of California, Progressive nominee for the vice presidency, was in an optimistic frame of mind today when he made his last three speeches in Michigan before leaving for Illinois to begin his campaign in that state.

"I bear you greetings from the Progressives of California," Mr. Johnson told a crowd at Port Huron late today, "and I am sure that after the November election you in Michigan will be able to greet California as a sister Progressive state. After a canvass of almost three days in Michigan I am sure that the Progressives will sweep your state in the November election. I am come to this decision after talking to all classes—politicians and laborers, artisans and millionaires."

The governor spent more time in Michigan than he has in any other state since he started with his Eastern campaign. With three days' time to interview Progressives from almost every part of the state, he made a close study of the situation. His statement today predicting success in Michigan was the first he had made about any state, except his own.

Governor Johnson made two speeches in Detroit and one at Port Huron. The first Detroit meeting was at an automobile plant, where several thousand men listened to him speak from an automobile in a street during half of their lunch hour. The trip to Port Huron was made by trolley and the speech delivered from the balcony of the courthouse to a large crowd. The third meeting was held in the Armory here tonight. In all of his addresses the governor paid fine tributes to Colonel Roosevelt. His references to the former president brought great applause.

Governor Johnson left tonight for Chicago, where he will arrive in the morning.

Paris, Sept. 10.—Louis Carl Robin committed suicide following the lines of his own book, "Technics of Suicide." He prepared for death with the utmost care. After taking poison and carefully noting the symptoms, he wrote: "At 11 o'clock I absorbed a gram of chlorhydrate of morphine. I tried two grams and ascertained a heaviness in the head, which shows that this dose ought to be sufficient."

FATHER'S SCALES AN AID TO LITTLE CUPID

How the Housekeeper Successfully Engineered Love Affair.

By J. T. GREENLEAF.

"Did you get any satisfaction about our marriage out of father this morning, Paul?" Brownie Weston asked her lover as they were pacing the broad piazza of the Weston home in the April dusk.

"Yes and no," answered the young man. "When I'm in danger of going to jail on account of my sharp practices or some woman ropes me into marrying her, you may have Brownie."

"That's father all over," she laughed. "How he does enjoy a war of wits, especially with you! Let's think about it, for I don't believe it's a wholly idle speech. Tell me something else that has happened today with you."

"Absolutely a gray blank in every respect. We've been hauling potatoes to the car for him to ship—but yes, there was one little thing that was interesting. Widow Atkins brought two bushels of the tubers, and when I weighed the outfit again it fell short 60 pounds, showing one bushel only."

"That's queer," the girl flashed. "What did you do?"

"Registered it for two bushels and gave her a credit slip accordingly."

"Then his scales are wrong," Brownie cried.

"If they are, he doesn't know it. He's the most obstinate, cantankerous, old—"

"Sh—sh—" the girl ordered, laying a slim, brown hand over the farmer's mouth, "you mustn't speak in that derogatory way of your future father-in-law!"

"A—mighty long way in the future," sputtered Paul, getting the obstruction to free speech in his hand as he went on; "but even then he's honest and square."

"I'm glad you think so, but I know him better than you do, and there's more in it than shows," she pursued.

"Tomorrow, every load you bring to him, you weigh at home and then weigh back the crates on your own scales and tell me about it when you come over in the evening."

"That's silly, darling," Paul declared. "If there's an inaccuracy he doesn't know it, and if it should turn out that he does, you and I couldn't catch him. I know there isn't. He's honest."

"You mind me, Paulie," the daughter of Hiram Weston ordered, "for there's something doing, I know. This reminder of Weston's own spirit was enforced by something that topped the young man's mouth."

The following morning a solid bit of humanity, Hannah Arbutnot, queenly, even in her dark blue calico dress said to Brownie:

"What's the matter with my baby?"

"Nothing new, dearie," replied the girl. "Just the old story—father won't let me marry Paul. He keeps jolly-ing us along. You know what a dear, trying mischievous old angel he is!"

"What's he done now?" asked the housekeeper, hitching her portly self up on the broad kitchen table and gathering Brownie in her strong arms.

A few words told the latest developments and then Hannah soliloquized:

"He said that, did he? You leave him to me. We'll see what your old-maid foster-mother can do for her baby. He wanted to marry me once, you know."

"When Weston drove in, tired, wet and muddy, that evening, Hannah caught a lantern and slipped out to the barn, saying as she closed the door:

"You give him his supper, little girl."

Toward the end of the satisfying meal, Weston remarked with his eyes fixed on the beauty of the girl:

"You remind me so much of your mother, Brownie!"

"That's a great compliment, father, for they say she was a handsome woman."

"She certainly was," he agreed; "but what's Hannah up to, taking care of old Kitty for me and all? She hasn't heard of my proposition to her, she's good boy lover of yours, has she?"

"What would she try to do if she had?"

"She might think I'd ask her to marry me, especially if you two got your heads together to beat an old man," he chuckled.

"But I'll never do that twice to the same woman!"

A light step on the porch took the girl to the door, and Paul was ushered into the parlor.

"Well, what about the weights?" asked the little lady at once.

"Each load was about 60 pounds short; but he don't know it, I'm sure," was the report.

"All right," she responded, with her eyes dancing with mischief. "I'll call him in and you tell him."

"I'll tell your father! I'd rather face a locomotive!" he exclaimed.

"But don't you think he ought to know it?"

"Why—yes. He certainly—" he stammered, as she called out through the open door into the dining room:

"Father, Paul and I don't agree about a matter and we want your advice. Hannah, you better come, too!"

"What is it all about?" Weston asked, going directly to Paul, who was as white as marble, his hands in a tremor. As the reply was slow in coming, there was a second demand: "Out with it!"

"Your—your—scales, Mr. Weston, are wrong, but I don't—"

"My scales wrong?" the older man burst out. "Why you young—your young—right in my own house—"

"I—I thought you ought to know it, sir," Paul babbled. Then he told his story.

"But I'm sure you didn't know it," he added.

"And you and Brownie aren't intending to use it in response to my proposition of yesterday?"

"Oh, no, sir. That wouldn't be fair unless you knew it. You're honest, sir."

"Well, sir, I did know it," said Weston, handing Brownie the round, iron disk that represents 300 pounds as a weight. "Turn it over, Kitten. See that little wedge of lead. That made the overweight that Paul found. I used it on his own outfit and the widow's, to see how far he was watching his own interest."

"Then may I have Brownie?" gasped Paul.

"Not much," cried Weston, "I'm in no danger of going to jail for sharp practices, am I?"

"May I say a word or two?" demurely asked Hannah.

"Sure," assented Weston, "I'm in the hands of the Philistines, but I'm too much for the whole of you."

"Please read that," said Hannah passing an old letter to Brownie.

After a minute of scanning the missive the girl said: "This is a proposal of marriage from Hiram Weston to Hannah Arbutnot, dated six years ago. Its concluding sentence provides that the offer holds good for ten years, as an evidence of good faith."

Looking Weston squarely in his eyes, Hannah declared: "And now I accept!"

Gathering the regal figure in his arms and looking at Paul and Brownie over the shapely shoulder, Weston cried:

"Roped! By thunder!" (Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

NOT HIS TIME FOR REVENGE

Circumstances Seemed Favorable for the Moment, but the Luck Would Not Hold.

Aboard the great ship the silence of despair reigned. She had struck on an uncharted reef, and, owing to the heavy sea, the boats had either been stove in against the ship's side or swamped in the attempt to lower. A stalwart passenger stole up to the captain's side.

"Do you think, sir," he asked, "that there is the slightest chance of our being saved?"

"Look here," said the skipper, in tones of disgust, "that's the sixth time you've asked me that question. Why, you great lubberly brute, I believe you're the biggest coward aboard!"

"S—sh! No, I'm not," protested the burly one. "But, look here. You see that old duffer standing by the rail? Well, he's my rich uncle, and all my life I've had to put up with his cussed cantankerousness. But if the ship's going down, and there's no hope, I'd like time to give him one good, sound kick to square the little account I owe him!"

COSMOPOLITAN SWITZERLAND

A SWISS VILLAGE

IF variety is the spice of life, then Switzerland indeed lives. Nowhere, probably, within the space of forty-five miles, can one find greater variety than along the shores of Lake Lemon, from cosmopolitan Geneva down to sleepy Villeneuve. Nowhere are the old and the new, the native and the foreign thrown in more striking contrast. That small Paris, Montreux, scintillates a stone's throw from Vevey, which suns itself on the mountainside, content with the simple life of three centuries ago. Its one narrow turning street twisting uphill, is crowded with old stone houses. Over many doors are cut dates 1661, 1720, 1778, and the old regime continues, untouched by the modernness of Montreux and Terriet.

The people of this enterprising little country have cleverly met the demands of the fashionable crowd of tourists who invade them all the year round. They have built magnificent hotels and pensions, smart shops and pretty tearooms; they have made mountain climbing easy by the funicular; they have made boating on the lake delightful. The old barque with slant sails has given place to the swifter launch; rowboats with striped awnings and cushions fly the flag of every nation. The bronzed boatmen sizes you up and pays you the compliment of putting your flag at the bow. In short, the Swiss have made their beautiful country attractive to the most fastidious traveler, but back of the alluring wares they offer in the way of most elaborate modern conveniences, they have strictly kept their own simple mode of living and their ancient customs.

Harvesting Quaint. What is more quaint, more picturesque, than the harvesting in autumn? Often on an evening we walked on the country roads among the vineyards. The sunset light touched lake and mountain, on every terraced slope the peasants were gathering and pressing the grapes; they laughing and singing echoed clearly through the stillness, and the red handkerchiefs knotted on the women's heads made a bit of color here and there; the men were bent double by the heavy "hottes" they carried on their backs. Every one was at work from the oldest to the youngest, for it is considered an omen of good luck if the entire family, from the grandfather down to the youngest babe, participate in the gathering and pressing of the grapes.

After seeing the making of the wine, you fancy you will never care to taste any again: The dirty hands that handle the grapes, the discolored "hottes" they are pressed by a dirty man and dirtier ladle, are bad enough. But when you see the mass of pulp and juice left standing at the roadside for a week or more in big uncovered vats exposed to the dust and swarms of flies, and dabbled in by all the ragged gamins who happen along, it is disgusting. And you don't feel entirely reassured that it all comes out in the fermentation, as the simple peasants hasten to tell you.

Switzerland is more beautiful than ever in the autumn. The wooded mountains rise abruptly from the lake shores are strongly colored in bright reds and yellows and deep browns. The orchards are laden with apples, chrysanthemum bloom in gorgeous profusion in every garden, and the vines de Canada has turned crimson on the walls. And the sunsets! They are exquisite beyond description! Besides the marvelous beauty of it, there is a something, I can't tell what, that gives one a feeling of perfect peace and rest in this country. A quieting hand seems to be over everything.

A Sunday in the middle of October is the day of national thanksgiving, when the Swiss return thanks for the good harvest. The churches are decorated according to the season, apples, grapes and vegetables of all kinds being used in place of flowers to adorn the interiors. During the long prayers of gratitude the air is apt to resemble that of the market place. In the afternoon a brass band goes about playing in front of the different churches, and all the world and his wife follow it until dark. So the day ends in cheerful good-fellowship.

Birds, Grasshoppers and Fish. A strong protest is being made in South Australia against the continual slaughter of geese, birds as the bill, the egret, cranes and spoonbills to supply the demands of milliners. The slaughter is objectionable not only as destroying some of the most beautiful and interesting creatures of nature, but according to the Journal of Agriculture, also as rendering South Australia ever more prone to plagues of grasshoppers, and is a prime cause of the decline of its fish resources. As the wading birds disappear, the crustaceans that destroy fish eggs increase in multitude.

REVEREND BRIGGS' CORNER IN DOGS

What Happened to a Preacher Who Sympathized With Dumb Animals.

By DAVID C. GALE.

"Some people have absolutely no consideration for dumb animals," remarked Rev. Samuel Briggs.

Mrs. Briggs looked up inquiringly. She knew that her husband was leading up to something.

"Now it says here in the paper," he went on, "that twenty-five dogs are to be killed tomorrow because the licenses haven't been paid. Think of it! Twenty-five dogs to give up their lives, simply because the owners are unwilling to part with the small sum required of them."

"Perhaps they belong to poor people who haven't the money," advanced Mrs. Briggs.

"I hardly think so. My experience with the world—" Mr. Briggs was always referring to his experience with the world. "It was a phrase he particularly liked. "My experience with the world has taught me that poor people, as a rule, have a tender love for their pets. They are willing to sacrifice a great deal for them. No, I fancy these dogs belong to people who have grown tired of them—to men who could pay but will not."

"How heartless!" exclaimed Mrs. Briggs. She never attempted to combat the superior wisdom of her husband.

"I have been giving careful consideration to the case of the dogs," he said. "It has occurred to me that there is a way to save them and set a good example at the same time."

"How?" His wife paused with the coffee pot in mid air.

"Pay the licenses myself."

"How much will it take?"

"I think I have heard it's a dollar a head."

The plan did not appeal very strongly to Mrs. Briggs. There were many things which she had contemplated adding to the furnishings of the house, and twenty-five dollars would be a great help. It seemed like a waste of capital to invest that amount in dogs.

Soon after breakfast Mr. Briggs was on his way to the office designated in the paper. He walked with the important stride of a man who is sure of himself, and he stood very erect as he stated his business at the desk.

"I understand there are to be some dogs killed today," he said.

"Yes," replied the clerk.

"It's about that I came to see you. I will pay the licenses."

"Which ones?"

"All of them."

"Going to start a dog farm?" asked the clerk, as the minister counted out the money and handed it over to the desk.

"I am working for the good of humanity," replied Mr. Briggs, with dignity.

So the clerk took down the address, and Mr. Briggs started for home. He thought it best not to say anything to his wife about the wanderers which would soon be housed beneath their roof; he simply told her that he had arrived in time.

After that there was work in the study to occupy his mind, and it was not until late afternoon, when Mrs. Briggs called up to him from below, that he was compelled to battle with the question again.

"Where do you suppose all those dogs are going?" she asked.

"The minister glanced out of the window. A tangled line of dogs was coming up the street, led by half a score of men—a veritable Uncle Tom's Cabin parade with little Eva left out.

And such a line it was! Even the most zealous dog-lovers would hardly have grown enthusiastic over it.

"Very likely they are coming here," he said, in an unconcerned tone as he could command.

Just then the door-bell rang, and Mr. Briggs went out to point the way to the barn.

"Put them right in there," he said to the man in charge.

"Loose?"

"Why, yes, I suppose so—only see that the door is fastened."

have in the house to feed them," he retorted. His nerves were beginning to feel the strain. "I don't think they are hungry, though. More than likely they will stop barking before long."

"And to a certain extent it came about as he prophesied. A little later the howling ceased and during the first part of the evening there was a period of blissful silence.

Or perhaps it would be nearer the truth to call it an intermission. Apparently they had paused to hold a consultation over their grievances. That being over, they commenced barking again with a vigor and freshness that was little short of wonderful.

"It sounds louder than it did this afternoon," exclaimed Mrs. Briggs. "Why don't you go out and try to quiet them?"

Ready to try anything, the minister went forth into the darkness.

"No wonder they make more noise," he said, as he re-entered the library. "If there are twenty-five dogs inside, there must be at least fifty outside. Very likely all the dogs within a radius of three miles are clustered around our yard."

"I don't see what we are going to do," sighed Mrs. Briggs.

Her husband was silent; he also failed to see what they were going to do. There would be no sleep in the house—he could see that—and it began to look as if there would be no end of trouble before the dogs were finally assigned to their permanent homes.

"You might open the doors and let them out," suggested Mrs. Briggs. "Probably every one of them would go to the place he came from."

"Do you think so?" asked the minister eagerly.

He had lost sight of the lesson he was going to teach. The original problem had been crowded out by a new one, and his sole desire was to rid himself of the roaring menagerie which was turning the night into a hideous dream.

"I'll try it," he declared.

Lighting a lantern, he made his way out to the barn and opened the stall doors. From there he went to the hen yard and swung back the gate. By that time the dogs were so thick that Mr. Briggs was surrounded on all sides as he moved toward the cellar.

At the hatchway there was more trouble waiting for him. The mastiff was naturally rather irritable, and his confinement had been bad for him—and, incidentally, for Mr. Briggs.

Since the minister was the first thing the dog saw when he came out, he began to pinch that gentleman's shins in a most aggravating manner. Mr. Briggs started off down the street on the run, with the mastiff after him—and with the other seventy-four dogs after the mastiff.

It was an exciting chase. They all enjoyed it—except Mr. Briggs. He was kept so busy dodging dogs and mud holes that he could give very little time to pleasure. Occasionally, too, one of the dogs would take a souvenir out of the wearing apparel, much to his chagrin and discomfort.

While all this was taking place, Mrs. Briggs was waiting for the return of her husband. She had heard the last departing yelp of the dogs. Then a refreshing quiet had settled on the house. Nor was that quiet broken by any step on the porch or rattle of the door knob.

It was broken instead by the ringing of the bell, and when Mrs. Briggs jerked back the door, hysterically, there were two men standing outside—a blue-coated individual, and what was left of Mr. Briggs.

"This man says he belongs here," said the policeman.

"Why, what has happened?" cried Mrs. Briggs.

"Don't be alarmed, my dear," replied the minister, smiling weakly. "I experienced some difficulty in getting the dogs started in the right direction."

He was still carrying the lighted lantern.

BLAME PLACED ON BANKERS

Recent Decision Puts Heavy Responsibility on German Promoters of Companies.

The supreme court of the Kingdom of Prussia has just decided for the first time the question of responsibility of bankers for misstatements regarding the financial standing of concerns through which customers are induced to invest and thereby lose their money.

The case in point had occupied the lower courts for years, with findings in favor of the great Schaafhausensche bank, which had been sued by shareholders in a defunct leather manufactory.

The main points of the supreme court's decision are: "The parties from whom the prospectus emanated, or they who circulated it, are liable for the damages of the persons who purchased the securities, provided the parties knew of the inaccuracy, or might have known such, if they had not been guilty of negligence." It was also held that the omission of important facts made the defendants equally liable.

"We can tell by trying," said the man.

Accordingly the dogs were conducted to their apartments, and the minister returned to his work.

Hardly had he settled down in his chair, however, before the sound of barking brought him to his feet again. There was only one at first, but the others were quick to take up the case.

"This is terrible!" cried Mrs. Briggs from the foot of the stairs. "What is the matter with them?"

"I suppose it is because they are in a strange place," Mr. Briggs was obliged to go below in order to make himself heard. "They'll probably quiet down after a little."

EVIDENTLY MENTAL WEAKNESS.

"Bunker has always impressed me as being a foolish kind of a fellow."

"I am surprised to hear you say that. I have always regarded him as a man of considerable strength of character and more than ordinary intelligence."

"I guess you don't know him as well as I do."

"Perhaps not."

"Just to show you that he's a weak sister, he's avia' up his money to send his two boys away to college when he might put it into an automobile."

A Protest. "What we want," said the cautious delegate, "is a safe, sane, conservative—"

"Wait a minute," interrupted his colleague. "I came here at considerable trouble and expense. And the first thing you try to do is to kill off the excitement and enthusiasm!"

To Increase the Production. "This paper says that experiments made in France show that by adding four cents' worth of peanut oil cake to a cow's winter feed her daily yield of milk can be increased by 10 to 15 cents," said the farmer's wife.

"Wonder how that would work out on our boss?" suggested the farmer.

Has Its Advantages. Gibbs—Waltham does not bring any more. Gibbs—Maybe not, but I guess he's making up some more than others.

"BUGGS" RAYMOND WAS MURDERED

Chicago, Sept. 10.—City detectives and attaches of the coroner's office today reported that a post mortem examination showed that Arthur L. Raymond, former pitcher, died Saturday as the result of a fractured skull and not from heart disease as was first supposed.

"Bugs" Raymond died as a result of an assault and his assailant will be under arrest by tonight, declared one of the detectives working on the death of the ball player. "Raymond was given a terrific beating, at the Eldon, Ill., baseball grounds a short time before his death and his skull was fractured then."

Saturday it was announced that Raymond had died of heart disease, aggravated by excessive heat. His body was found in a room of a down town hotel by a maid.

"HANS GREATEST IN TOWN"

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 10.—Hans Wagner has been voted "the greatest man in our town." It wasn't a jury of baseball fans that set the crown of laurel upon the brow of the grand old man who plays short for the Pirates, but a committee of men representing the biggest manufacturing and trading interests in the Pittsburg districts. A great train of steel cars will leave here this week on a trade extension tour. A moving picture plant will be part of the equipment, and in each city will be shown moving pictures of Pittsburg industries, but the only Pittsburg picture which will be flashed on the canvas is Hans Wagner.

HOLD TEAM IN FEAR

teams last week, spoiled all chances of post-season games with either nine. Negaunee feels that Escanaba "put one over," and Ishpeming feels much the same way. Manager Simons has announced under no circumstances will be given Escanaba a series of games, and the Negaunee management takes the same position.

Ishpeming made Dahlgren an offer of $50 to pitch Saturday's game. He practically accepted the terms, but later called up "Pop" Geelan by telephone and asked him if the offer could not be raised to $75, as Negaunee was after him, also. Mr. Geelan consulted Manager Simons, who declined to have anything more to do with Dahlgren, or the Escanaba team. The Negaunee management was then informed that Ishpeming had offered $100 for Dahlgren's services, and was asking if it would not raise the bid. The offer was increased to $125, with the understanding that both Dahlgren and Pressey be sent up. Not being satisfied with this, and the good price that was paid for the services of Lehr and Lindquist during the fair series, Dahlgren and Pressey were sent up from Escanaba by automobile, instead of by train, with the request that they collect $25.00 from the Negaunee management for the use of the car.

It looks to Negaunee people as though the Escanaba bunch wished the Ishpeming fans to pay part of their shortage on the season as the money demanded for the services of their players goes into the team's treasury and not to the players, who are still under salary. That the Negaunee people are indignant over the treatment accorded them by Escanaba is evident from the talk among the fans the past few days.

It is now agreed that Negaunee made a serious mistake when it had anything to do with Escanaba, as the work of their players was a complete disappointment. If the Negaunee men had been used instead of the outsiders the result of Saturday's game might have been different. One of the strong supporters of the team yesterday said that Negaunee had learned a lesson.

The Ishpeming correspondent concerning the matter speaks thusly:

The management, players and fans are unanimous in the opinion that Escanaba should not be taken on by Ishpeming for a series of post-season games. The action of the Escanaba management and team during the closing contests of the Iron-Copper County league disgusted the Ishpeming supporters of the game. The players here were informed by Captain Lehr that they were backing up Negaunee in their effort to win the pennant for purely business reasons. They thought that if Negaunee defeated Ishpeming in the pennant race, Negaunee would be the better drawing card for a post-season series.

SHIFTLESS MAN BACK WITH A FORTUNE

Houghton, Mich., Sep. 10.—After an absence of ten years, during which time his wife and family of seven or eight children were left to their own resources, Barney McEnany has just returned to his old home in Hurontown, near here, bringing with him a fortune estimated at $100,000. In consequence the family is holding a joyous reunion and all is forgiven. McEnany is doing everything possible to make up for the years of privation his family has suffered. He became prosperous through a mining venture in Canada.

Sixteen years ago McEnany brought his wife and several children to Hurontown. He failed to prosper, however, and became shiftless. His family increased as the years went by, and finally he left for parts unknown. During all of his absence, his family got no trace of him. A short time ago a friend who happened to be in Canada ran across McEnany and immediately informed his wife of the man's address. Communications followed and McEnany showed every desire to make retribution, which he was well able to do. He sent for his oldest daughters, who were employed in a Houghton laundry, paid all their expenses to Canada and entertained them lavishly, returning with them to Hurontown.

PARSON MAY RETURN TO PRIZE RING

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 10.—Rev. F. P. Wedge will return to the prize ring if barred from the Presbyterian ministry. The fighting parson is in Omaha this week, awaiting the meeting of the Kearney presbytery at Gothenburg next Tuesday, and while he feels that he has committed no crime against the church laws, is prepared to earn a livelihood for his wife and baby with the gloves in case he is barred from further church work.

Wedge has been offered matches in St. Joseph with Wildcat Ferns, Ray Bronson and Clarence English.

"I tried out with Battling Nelson at St. Joseph and found that I was in better form than ever before. I can't go back to carrying a hod for a living, and if the church decides to bar me, I will resume work in the ring," said the parson.

Wedge has written a book entitled "The Fighting Parson of the Barbary Coast." The volume will be published in a few days.

"In my story," says Wedge, "I tell how a newsboy made his way into the ring and from the ring worked his way through the state university of Nebraska and later became a graduate of the Omaha Presbyterian seminary and married a college girl."

J. B. McNAMARA UNDERGOES OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS; WILL RECOVER IT IS STATED

San Quentin, Cal., Sept. 10.—James B. McNamara, serving a life sentence here for murder in connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building, was operated on Friday for appendicitis. This became known today, with the announcement that he would recover.

McNamara was released from solitary confinement about six weeks ago, after the visit to the prison of several labor leaders who objected to his punishment for insubordination. For several weeks he complained of illness, and Friday it was found necessary to operate.

"McNamara is in no danger," said Warden Hoyle, tonight, "and will be out of the hospital in a few days."

MESABA MINE IS TOMB OF 3 MEN

Blwabik, Minn., Sept. 10.—The three men imprisoned in the Ruddy mine, near here, undoubtedly are dead. It was thought they were in the sub-level above the water, but when workmen reached that depth today the men were not there. They are on a still lower level and it is thought they are covered with six or eight feet of water.

The mine was flooded by a cloudburst on Wednesday of last week. The men who are supposed now to be dead would not heed the warning called to them by the other men when they left the mine. They declared they had a blast to make before they could leave the mine.

"FRATERNAL WOODMEN" BEATEN IN KANSAS

Judge Ralph C. Campbell in Federal court at Kansas City, Kansas, on August 26, handed down an opinion, holding that the dissenters of the Modern Woodmen of America had no right to use the word "Woodmen" in the name of their new order and no right to use the Society's funds, forms, laws, regulations, titles or designation. He issued an injunction prohibiting such acts, to which the defendants consented by filing their written recitations and confession. The order entered is to be made permanent on the first day of October term of court without further hearing or evidence.

prevents the new order from appropriating the membership, property or good will of the Modern Woodmen of America. Any new order that may be founded must rely on its own merits, members, funds and property.

The rule laid down by Judge Campbell is of general application. Under this rule, any members of the Society anywhere who may be dissatisfied are left free to withdraw and form a new society, but they cannot take the name forms and property of the Society with them.

The latest report is that the Kansas dissenters will attempt to organize as the "Kansas Fraternal Citizens." This will involve the calling of a new convention to which camps of the Modern Woodmen must not be solicited to send delegates.

Misses Eva S. Peterson and Hulda B. Peterson arrived in the city yesterday from St. Paul, Minn.

CABLE RATES ARE ATTACKED

Washington, Sept. 10.—Reasonableness of telegraph and cable rates was attacked today by William N. White and company, New York in a complaint against the Western Union Telegraph company to the interstate commerce commission.

The complaining concern contends rates are fixed arbitrarily, that the handling of the press dispatches at one fourth the rate charged commercial business, subjects the general public to "undue prejudice and disadvantages," and that the Western Union company has "bought up smaller companies and eliminated competition, in violation of commerce laws."

The New York concern asks reparation in the sum of $5,000, which it claims the telegraph company has collected in extra charges on cablegrams and telegrams.

Morning Press Printing Department work does the business bringing work.
