NOT A POLITICAL TRICKSTER.

The day after the Maine election Col. Roosevelt announced his pleasure in the results, asserting that the Republican candidate for governor, Mr. Haines, had written him before the election asking that no fight be made on him by the third terms, and promising to come out for him for president after the state election.

Mr. Haines, however, is entitled to be heard. He says that he never has indicated that he would support Col. Roosevelt, and that he does not propose to. In fact his health is so bad, he says, that he will not be able to take any part in the presidential campaign. "My physicians," he added, "demand my absolute retirement from any further public contests at the penalty of being blind if I do not."

THE LOWLY CENT.
Of the 25,000,000 coins struck off by the United States mint in the month of August, 22,000,000 were of the relatively insignificant cent. There is a significance in the fact. The cent is coming to be more carefully considered. Time was when a dime was the common medium of exchange. That was in the years succeeding the Civil War, but dime savings banks have not been unknown or unpopular in recent years, and dime contribution boxes, posted here and there for one charitable enterprise and another, are still readily recalled. Then followed the period of the nickel, which is still with us. A nickel is tossed out, or was, without reflection, but the demand for the humble cent in the currency of the nation indicates that a change is taking place. It is no longer the nickel, but the cent, which is to have a place in the common affairs of life. And some day, after the rule of the cent, we shall be ready for the half cent. It may be for better or for worse. There is something to be said on either side, but the tendency is inevitable. The dime, the nickel, the cent, the half cent. It must come to that eventually.

BOSTON MARKETS

The market today was broader and stronger than any time since the advance started and has every indication of breaking up into a Bull market next week. The Bank statement was very good and money rates gradually eased up. We understand some small blocks of copper metal sold this week at 18 cents and we look for the price to rule around 18 from now on which means higher prices for coppers.

NEW YORK MARKETS

Pronounced rising tendencies characterized the trading today. The bank statement was better than anticipated and it has been quite often said authoritatively that some of the south African gold arrivals in London on York. The market at present appears to be reflecting a change for the better in monetary conditions and also the satisfactory fundamentals which have been the subject of favorable discussion for quite a period.

DETROIT TRIAL IS SENSATION

Detroit, Sept. 21.—Testifying for the prosecution today at the hearings of the seventeen aldermen and himself, charged with conspiracy to defraud the city, former Councilman Clerk Edward B. Schreiter asserts that on July 9 he received a mysterious letter from Chicago in which the writer declared a $10,000 fund had been raised in an effort to ruin Schreiter and members of the council politically and financially.

Schreiter's declaration was the sensation of the hearing. He testified that the letter was signed "a friend" and that it specifically mentioned himself and Thomas Glinnan, president of the council, and hinted that other aldermen were in danger of being the victims of a so-called political plot. Schreiter and Glinnan are among the eighteen city officials alleged to have been implicated in a plot to demand several thousand dollars from the Wabash railroad in return for municipal favors. An operative for a detective agency who caused the arrest of the officials has already testified that he posed as an agent of the railroad and succeeded in either bribing the off-cial or procuring their promises to accept bribes before he sprang the trap which resulted in their arrests.

According to Schreiter's testimony at the hearing today, he destroyed the mysterious letter, after having shown it to Alderman Thelsen, one of the councilmen on trial. When asked to state its contents as best he could from memory, the former council clerk said the writer urged him to meet him at a Chicago hotel to learn further details. Schreiter said he did not answer the summons.

CIVIL WAR FIFTY YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

September 2, 1862.

The government at Washington was seriously alarmed by the consequence of Pope's crushing defeat at Bull Run.

The greatest excitement existed in the cities of Cincinnati, O., and Covington, and Newport, Ky., over the continued advance of Gen. E. Kirby Smith with a large Confederate force.

The Confederate sloop John Thompson was captured by the United States bark Restless.

There was a fight at Morgansfield, Ky., between a force of Union cavalry and a body of "guerrillas."

September 3, 1862.

Discussion of the merits and demerits of McClellan as a commander, occasioned by the posting of a bulletin announcing that the Confederates were advancing on Baltimore via Leesburg.

News was obtained from four Confederate soldiers captured by Major Kemper of the Tenth New York cavalry.

Winchester, Va., was evacuated by the national troops under General White.

Colonel Shackford, at the head of a force of Union troops, had three desperate encounters with a band of Confederate partisans near Grigger's Lake, Ky.

September 4, 1862.

One hundred and ten Confederate conscripts, taken by Major Wheeler several days before when on their way to Richmond to be enrolled in the Confederate army.

The Confederates burned three bridges over Benson creek, on the Louisville and Frankfort railroad.

President Davis of the Confederacy issued a proclamation setting apart Thursday, the 13th, as a day of prayer and thanksgiving to Almighty God.

A Union foraging party near Cumberland Gap got into trouble with a band of Confederates, from which they escaped by sheer fighting.

Frederick City, Md., was evacuated by the national troops, after they had burned the hospital and commissary stores.

Ravenwood, Va., was entered and occupied by a force of Confederate partisans, who destroyed a large quantity of wheat and private property.

The Peace Society of London, England, issued an address to the people of the United States, urging that the time had come when an attempt should be made to arrest the destructive conflict that was being carried on.

The Confederate bark Fannie Laurie was captured off South Edisto, while trying to run the blockade.

September 5, 1862.

The Confederate schooner Rising Sun was captured while attempting to run the blockade at the mouth of the Potomac by the National U. S. S. Wyandott.

Poolesville, Md., was taken and a detachment of Massachusetts cavalry stationed there was captured by a Confederate force under General Stuart.

Benton Bridge, the Confederate general in command at Sparta, Ala., issued the following order, complaining of his army: "Comrades: Our situation is full of danger, with the Confederates...

rank. To secure the fruit of this condition, we must press on vigorously. "Abolitionists, your state is re- deemed, Tennessee, your capital and state is almost restored without firing a gun.

Gen. J. S. Morgan, commanding Union forces at Key West, issued an order directing that negroes be put to work in the quartermaster department.

September 6, 1862.

Olathe, the county seat of Johnson county, Kansas, was sacked by a band of Confederate irregulars under the famous Quantrel.

A fight took place near Cacapon bridge, about 17 miles from Winchester, Va., between a body of Union troops under command of Col. McReynolds.

A party of Confederate cavalry, numbering 400, attacked the outposts of the command of Gen. Julius White.

The city of Frederick, Md., was entered and occupied by the Confederate force under General Lee.

Fort Abercrombie was attacked by a force of Indians, who were driven off after a severe fight.

Washington, N. C., was attacked by a large force of Confederates, who were finally repulsed.

Fort Abercrombie was attacked by a force of Indians, who were driven off after a severe fight.

There was tremendous excitement in the north, and especially in Pennsylvania and Washington.

A party of Confederates under Captain Bowles, son of the president of a Louisville bank.

Governor Robinson of Kansas, alarmed by the presence of Indians on the border and the bands of Confederate partisans throughout the state.

Instructions from the United States war department notifying adjutants and officers connected with the draft and volunteer activities in the north.

GUN AND AN EXTRA ACE STOPS GAME

"Lucky" Stranger's "Show-down" Brings Rain of Bullets and Players Flee.

HOLDS 4 ONE-SPOTS

Kentuckian's Ire is Aroused When Another Falls From Sleeve, and Five Men Are Wounded—Chair is Also Used in the Melee.

Hammond, Ind.—Barring the fact that five men were wounded, all the furniture was broken up and bullets flew like hail.

All those present held good hands. In fact, such a lot of good poker hands being dealt at the same time was almost unheard of by most of the players.

This fact might not have been commented upon, however, had not James Phillips, a lanky Kentucky visitor, noticed another peculiarity of the game.

One of the "lucky" players had opened a pot and drawn three cards. Phillips drew one card and filled a flush.

"Let's see what you've got," said Phillips, "seeing" the raise.

"Four aces," said the "lucky" player, exhibiting his hand.

But that was not the most remarkable feature of the hand. Two of the aces were hearts.

"Got any more aces?" asked Phillips, dryly.

The possessor of four aces angrily waved his arms to show that he could not be trifled with in that way.

That was enough for Phillips. He picked up a chair and threw it at the Edward Brooks, a horse trader, was disappearing through a smashed window when Phillips drew a revolver and fired at him.

FRENCH ARMY TESTS OUT

Percentage of Illiteracy is 2.79 and 6,540 in Service Have University Degree.

Paris.—The result of the annual investigation into the degree of education possessed by men serving in the French army has been published.

The class of 1910, at present with the colors, numbers 301,467. Of these 8,412 can neither read nor write.

The proportion of illiterates remains the same as in the previous year—namely, 2.79 per cent.

The department of the Nord sends the greatest number of illiterates—9,47, as compared with 751 in the previous year.

The KITCHEN CABINET

THAT will have a cake out of wheat must needs tarry at last grinding.

IMPORTANT SUGGESTIONS.

The one who presides over the kitchen must learn to take scrupulous care of all utensils.

If one has ever tasted fish in a dish of choice preserves that has been opened with a can opener not properly cleaned after it has been used.

All utensils subject to rust should be carefully dried before putting away.

The ice cream freezer is often utterly ruined by allowing the salt water to stand in the pan.

Stoves and graters are best cleaned with a small vegetable brush.

The Dover egg beater will soon be useless if put into the water, cogs and all.

Cracker crumbs used for covering of dishes when baking are better if melted butter is used than if bits of butter are dotted over the dish.

Bread crumbs are better for covering food for frying than cracker crumbs, which are more absorbent.

Milk will not scorch so easily if the dish is rinsed in cold water before using.

To polish windows, dip a cloth in dry starch and rub over the glass, then polish with a dry cloth.

Coffee Jelly.—Cover a half box of gelatine with a half cup of cold water.

A S MUCH of beauty as preserves affection. Of modest diffidence as claims protection.

A docile mind, subservient to correction, A temper led by reason and reflection.

A COLLECTION OF SANDWICHES.

An unusual way of serving olives at teas and receptions is to cut the olives from the stones, chop fine and mix with salad dressing.

There is something about a sardine sandwich which is especially appetizing.

Veal Sandwiches.—These are almost as good as chicken and if the veal can be cooked with some chicken bones or a little chicken stock.

Egg and Curry Sandwiches.—Put through the fine knife of the meat chopper three yolks of hard cooked eggs and a teaspoonful of bread crumbs.

Ham Sandwiches.—Put a pound and a half of ham, cold boiled, and a small sour pickle through a food chopper.

MR. TAFT TO IGNORE CONGRESS' WISHES

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 21.—President Taft tonight made public a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Franklin MacVeagh, taking open issue with congress on the question of a federal budget and directing all heads of government departments or independent agencies of the government to make their estimates of revenue and expenditures for the fiscal year in conformity with the budget plan.

budget system, is unconstitutional. He said that no other great nation in the world is without a budget system, pointed out that only through this method can accurate estimates be made for the country's benefit of how the people's money is being expended; and scored the efforts of congress to prevent its adoption. In his letter, he says: "Authority is granted for the expenditure of a thousand million dollars each year without any thought as to where the money is coming from. This is done on the theory that there will be no deficit—congress has been doing what has been called 'surplus financing.' While the constitution makes congress responsible for money raising as well as for appropriations, responsibility for borrowing has been shifted to the president by empowering him to procure loans to meet deficits in case a deficit may result.

"I state my position in order that you may understand the reasons for urging that you co-operate with the commission on economy and efficiency in the preparation of such financial statements and summaries as will enable me to place before congress and the country for the first time in our history a clearly stated and understandable businesslike proposal which will enable congress and the country to think in terms of what it is that the government is doing, what it is that the administration proposes to do. With this accomplished, the people may then judge for themselves whether the proposals sent to congress are in the interests of public welfare and as such should be supported."

GOOD TIMES ARE SURE TO LAST

New York, Sept. 21.—William E. Corey believes that the country is in for a period of lasting prosperity. "Prosperity," said Mr. Corey, "is evidence not only in this country but in Germany and Great Britain. The steel industry, which is taken by many as the safest barometer of business, is in a flourishing and substantial condition. Orders for steel are coming in in excess of the capacity of the mills, and the industry will enter the new year with well filled order books and with prospects that 1913 will establish a new high record in output.

"In line with other branches of business, the copper industry is enjoying an unexampled period of activity, with indications that consumption will continue on the increase for a long time to come. Visible supplies of copper are smaller than they have been in a decade, and all the increase in output this year will be consumed. As a matter of fact consumption has been running in excess of production, and this, together with the fact that all mines are operating to capacity means that the price of metal will be maintained around its present level for a long time to come. "The electrical development of the country and the new uses to which copper is being put, one of which is its growing use as an alloy with steel, account for the rapid increase in consumption of the metal. I do not believe there will be any great increase in copper production for several years, due to the fact that at present there are no large prospects under development. "The revival of business in general is a natural sequence of restricted consumption over the last several years. The promise of large crops has strengthened confidence and consumers are anxious to replenish depleted stocks. "I believe Mr. Wilson's election will do more toward strengthening confidence and establishing commerce and industry on a more sound and healthy basis than the election of either Taft or Roosevelt. I am in favor of a gradual reduction in the tariff, on what might be termed a sliding scale, until, say, in five years there would be no tax on the actual necessities of life."

TAKES SEVENTH WIFE AT AGE OF 71

Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 21.—William Stokes, 71, was married here Monday for the seventh time. Mrs. Emma Gasway, a one time widow, of 54 years, was the blushing bride. "Yes, I am 71, years old," Stokes told the clerk at the marriage license window. Did you ask if I had ever been married before? Oh, yes, six times; all of my wives have died, and I hope this time I'll have no bad luck. I intended to get married last Friday, but Emma was afraid of the doctor's hoodoo. No hoodoo means no fact is, I believe it would have brought us good luck."

VICTORY FOR WILSON PREDICTED BY CLARK

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 21.—The Democratic state campaign was opened today by Champ Clark, Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Senator-elect Dillie James, Governor McCreary and others. Special trains had brought from all parts of the state crowds that participated in a parade and later in a barbecue at Woodland Park, where Speaker Clark discussed the tariff, high cost of living and the Democratic presidential nominee, predicting victory for Wilson.

"It is needless to tell you," said Mr. Clark, "that Woodrow Wilson was not my first choice for President, but nevertheless he was nominated, and he is as much my candidate as he is of any other Democratic betwixt the two seas."

"I am too seasoned a soldier not to accept the fortunes of war with fortitude. Some hypercritical newspaper men have complained that I did not exhibit great joy by reason of his nomination. Why should I? What would they have? I wired him my congratulations. I visited him once at his request and gave him such information as he desired."

"I visited him again at the request of members of the House and introduced them to him en bloc with friendly remarks."

"I refused to try to crowd him out of the limelight by being interviewed in extenso before he could deliver his speech of acceptance."

"I made three speeches for him in Maine, one in Massachusetts and three in Missouri."

"It must be these critical scribes expected me to turn siphon or hand-springs or to dance a Spanish fandango or a Highland fling to show that I was immensely tickled at being defeated for the presidential nomination by the closest shave on record—by what you Kentuckians denominate a 'Georgetown graz.'"

"Wilson and Marshall were nominated and will be elected. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will see to that." Mr. Clark believed the colonel would split the Republican vote and give the Democrats victory. Then the tariff would be revised and the cost of living reduced.

FIGHT DEATH SUIT IS BEGUN

A special term of circuit court was opened at the Green Bay court house by Judge S. D. Hastings yesterday and one of the cases to be tried before a jury is that a Sebastian Parmentier against W. J. McGinnis, et al., in which plaintiff will endeavor to recover $10,000 for the death of his son, who died following a boxing bout at the Eagle's nest over a year ago. The case will be taken up Thursday it is believed. The defendants in the action are Green Bay officials and men who were in the audience, the promoter and ring officials.

The case of the Rahr Sons Brewing company against Perry Thompson, et al, was started today before a jury. The action is instituted to recover money alleged to be due the Rahr company for rental of the former Cook hotel saloon and for liquor. L. A. Calkins represents the company and John A. Kittell the defendants.

Judge Hastings took the case of Jacob Strum against the Green Bay and Depere Mutual Fire Insurance company away from the jury yesterday because the question involved was for the court to decide be contended.

JENNEY AGAIN HEADS BANK AT DOWAGIAC

Ravenna, Mich., Sept. 21.—E. Burt Jenney, former owner of the Ravenna Merchants and Farmers' bank, a private institution, who has been filling only a minor clerical position in the Dowagiac State Savings bank of which he was formerly president and treasurer, since it was closed last spring by the state banking commissioner, has been re-instated in his old position and is again head of the Dowagiac bank, according to word received by his friends in Ravenna.

The bank was closed following the discovery of forged paper in the institution. A few weeks later it was permitted to re-open under new management, Jenney's father backing his son and becoming head of the bank. The elder Jenney died about two months ago.

State banking Commissioner Doyle, apparently satisfied that everything was all right at the Dowagiac bank and that it would be safe in Jenney's hands, has given permission to have him resume his old place. The bank is thought to be stronger than ever before.

LAJOIE CLAIMS JOHNSON IS BETTER THAN WOOD.

"Walter Johnson is far and away a better pitcher than Joe Wood," said Larry Lajoie, than whom there could scarcely be a better judge of pitching.

"Wood has been pitching 'way beyond his ability this season, simply because he has had a great team working with him. There never was and I doubt if there ever will be as great a pitcher as Johnson. He simply has so much stuff and speed that if he turned loose his hardest throw with his stuff on it, no catcher could get down in time to receive the ball."

"Every ball he throws has stuff on it. Some of the hops his fast ones take are bigger curves than the biggest the average pitcher has. I've seen him throw balls up to the plate that didn't look larger than a pinhead. Wood is a good pitcher, all right, but he is simply not in Johnson's class, nor is anybody else."

"Wood broke into the league from Kansas City against us in 1908, in Boston. There was a little house out in center field and we had about seven men who were hitting around .300."

"Wow! What a grand reception he got! First, we'd knock a brick out of the chimney, then a few shingles of the roof, then we'd shatter a window pane. We had that little house ready for the wrecking crew to cart away when we got through."

PARTED PAIR GO UP IN AIR; FIND CLOUD'S SILVER LINING

New York, Sept. 21.—The domestic troubles of George Beatty, the eviator, and his wife were swept away by the breezes at Hampstead fields, Minn., when Beatty and his wife took a trip together, far up into the clouds. They came down like true lovers.

About two weeks ago Beatty was accused of striking his wife. Justice Buhler gave him one month in which to make up with her.

As Beatty was in his hangar, Mrs. Beatty came along with a tall blonde man. The suit case he carried was quickly dropped when he saw Beatty coming toward them and there were friendly greetings all around. The man left and the couple went up in the air.

STATE TAX MEETING BEGINS AT DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21.—The Michigan State Tax conference the outcome of efforts of the board of commerce, the common council and others to find an equal taxation basis for Michigan and to form a Michigan taxpayers' association if the conference so desires, opened in the council chamber in the city hall this forenoon. It was stated that 26 counties and 36 cities were represented at the conference. Alderman George Field, of Detroit, nominated for permanent chairman J. D. Leland, of Corunna, president of the Michigan State association of Farmers' clubs. He was elected unanimously. "Taxes would not be burdensome if everyone were to contribute his proportionate share," said Chairman Leland in his address.

"I take it that the prime motive of this conference is to find the way to make taxation a matter of equality to all."

There will be no session this afternoon, the delegates being given a motor ride about the city. Running up and down stairs, sweeping and bending over making beds will not make a woman healthy or beautiful. She must get out of doors, walk a mile or two every day and take Chamberlain's Tablets to improve her digestion and regulate her bowels. For sale by all dealers.

The PHANTOM OF THE OPERA

by Gaston Leroux

Author of THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM and THE PERFUME OF THE LADY IN BLACK. Illustrations by M.G. Kettner Copyright 1911 by The Bobbs-Merrill Company

SYNOPSIS.

Consternation is caused on the last night that the Opera is managed by Deblenne and Poligny because of the appearance of a ghost, said to have been in evidence on several previous occasions. Christine Daae, a member of the opera company, is called upon to fill a very important part and scores a great success. Count de Chagny and his brother Raoul are among those who applaud the singer. Raoul tries to see Christine in the dressing room, but is unable to do so and later discovers that some one is making love to her. She emerges alone, and upon entering the room he finds it empty. While the farewell ceremony for the retiring managers is going on, the Opera Ghost appears and informs the new managers that Box No. 5 is reserved for him. Box No. 5 is sold with disastrous results. The managers receive a letter from the Opera Ghost calling attention to the error. Christine Daae writes Raoul that she had gone to visit the grave of her father. He goes also, and in the night follows her to the church. Wonderful violin music is heard. Raoul visits a graveyard. Raoul is found next morning almost frozen. Moncharmin and Richard investigate Box No. 5 and decide to see the performance of "Faust" from front seats of that box.

"Has Cesar been stolen?" cried the acting-manager. "Cesar, the white horse in the Profeta?" "There are not two Cesars," said the stud-groom dryly. "I was ten years at Franconi's and I have seen plenty of horses in my time. Well, there are not two Cesars. And he's been stolen." "How?" "I don't know. Nobody knows. That's why I have come to ask you to sack the whole stable." "What do your stablemen say?" "All sorts of nonsense. Some of them accuse the supers. Others pretend that it's the acting-manager's doorkeeper." "My doorkeeper? I'll answer for him as I would for myself!" protested Mercier. "But, after all, M. Lacheneil," cried Richard, "you must have some idea." "Yes, I have," M. Lacheneil declared. "I have an idea and I'll tell you what it is. There's no doubt about it in my mind." He walked up to the two managers and whispered. "It's the ghost who did the trick!" Richard gave a jump. "What, you too! You too!" "How do you mean, I too? Isn't it natural, after what I saw?" "What did you see?"

"He is a friend of the government representative!" Mercier ventured to say. "And he takes his vermouth at Toronto's with Lagrene, Scholl and Perlestein, the lion-hunter," added Moncharmin. "We shall have the whole press against us! He'll tell the story of the ghost; and everybody will be laughing at our expense! We may as well be dead as ridiculous!" "All right, say no more about it." At that moment, the door opened. It must have been deserted by its usual Cerberus, for Mame Giry entered without ceremony, holding a letter in her hand, and said hurriedly: "I beg your pardon, excuse me, gentlemen, but I had a letter this morning from the opera ghost. He told me to come to you, that you had something to . . ."

her place at a moment's notice. When Carlotta heard of the astounding reception bestowed upon her under study, she was at once cured of an incipient attack of bronchitis and a bad fit of sulking against the management, and lost the slightest inclination to shirk her duties. From that time, she worked with all her might to "smother" her rival, enlisting the services of influential friends to persuade the managers not to give Christine an opportunity for a fresh triumph. Certain newspapers which had begun to extol the talent of Christine now interested themselves only in the fame of Carlotta. Lastly, in the theater itself, she celebrated, but heartless and soulless diva made the most scandalous remarks about Christine and tried to cause her endless minor unpleasantnesses. When Carlotta had finished thinking over the threat contained in the strange letter, she got up. "We shall see," she said, adding a few oaths in her native Spanish with a very determined air. The first thing she saw, when looking out of her window, was a hearse. She was very superstitious; and the hearse and the letter convinced her that she was running the most serious dangers that evening. She collected all her supporters, told them that she was threatened at that evening's performance with a plot organized by Christine Daae and declared that they must play a trick upon that chit by filling the house with her, Carlotta's, admirers. She had no lack of them, had she? She relied upon them to hold themselves prepared for any eventuality and to silence the adversaries, if, as she feared, they created a disturbance. M. Richard's private secretary called to ask after the diva's health and returned with the assurance that she was perfectly well and that, "were she dying," she would sing the part of Margarita that evening. The secretary urged her, in his chief's name, to commit no imprudence, to stay at home all day and to be careful of drafts; and Carlotta could not help, after he had gone, comparing this unusual and unexpected advice with the threats contained in the letter. It was five o'clock when the post brought a second anonymous letter in the same hand as the first. It was short and said simply: "You have a bad cold. If you are wise, you will see that it is madness to try to sing tonight."

"It seems there's a plot got up by Christine Daae's friends against Carlotta, Carlotta's furious." "What on earth . . ." said Richard, knitting his brows. But the curtain rose on the kermesse scene and Richard made a sign to the stage-manager to go away. When the two were alone again, Moncharmin leaned over to Richard: "Then Daae has friends?" he asked. "Yes, she has." "Whom?" Richard glanced across at a box on the grand tier containing no one but two men. "The Comte de Chagny?" "Yes, he spoke to me in her favor with such warmth that, if I had not known him to be Sorall's friend . . ." "Really? Really?" said Moncharmin. "And who is that pale young man beside him?" "That's his brother, the viscount." "He ought to be in his bed. He looks ill." The stage rang with gay song: "Red or white liquor, Coarse or fine! What can it matter, So we have wine!" Students, citizens, soldiers, girls and matrons whirled light-heartedly bleating. She has no experience, no training." "Gentle flows, he ye there And tell her from me . . ." The viscount put his head under his hands and wept. The count, behind him, viciously gnawed his mustache, shrugged his shoulders and frowned. For him, usually so cold and correct, to betray his inner feelings like that, by outward signs, the count must be very angry. He was. He had seen his brother return from a rapid and mysterious journey in an alarming state of health! The explanation that the count asked Christine Daae for an appointment. She had the audacity to reply that she could not see either him or his brother. "Would she but deign to hear me And with one smile to cheer me." "The little baggage!" growled the count. And he wondered what she wanted. What she was hoping for. She was a virtuous girl, she was said to have no friend, no protector of any sort. . . . That angel from the north must be very artful! Raoul, behind the curtain of his

before the inn with the figure of Bacchus for a sign. Siebel made her entrance. Christine Daae looked charming in her boy's clothes; and Carlotta's partisans expected to hear her greeted with an ovation which would have enlightened them as to the intentions of her friends. But nothing happened. On the other hand, when Margarita crossed the stage and sang the only two lines allotted her in this second act: "No, my lord, not a lady am I, nor yet a beauty, And do not need an arm to help me on my way." Carlotta received with enthusiastic applause. It was so unexpected and so uncalled for that those who knew nothing about the rumors looked at one another and asked what was happening. And this act also was finished without incident. Then everybody said: "Of course, it will be during the next act." Some, who seemed to be better informed than the rest, declared that the "row" would begin with the ballad of the King of Thule and rushed to the subscribers' entrance to warn Carlotta. The managers left the box during the entracte to find out more about the cabal of which the stage-manager had spoken; but they soon returned to their seats, shrugging their shoulders and treating the whole affair as silly. The first thing they saw, on entering the box, was a box of English sweets on the little shelf of the ledge. Who had put it there? They asked the box-keepers, but none of them knew. Then they went back to the shelf and next to the box of sweets, found an opera glass. They looked at each other. They had no inclination to laugh. All that Mme. Giry had told them returned to their memory . . . and then . . . and then . . . they seemed to feel a curious sort of draft around them. . . . They sat down in silence. The scene represented Margarita's garden: "Gentle flows in the dew, Be message from me . . ."

hands that veiled his boyish tears; he thought only of the letter which he received on his return to Paris, where Christine, fleeing from Ferris like a thief in the night, had arrived before him: "My Dear Little Playfellow: "You must have the courage not to see me again, not to speak of me again. If you love me just a little, do this for me, for me who will never forget you, my dear Raoul. My life depends upon it. Your life depends upon it." "YOUR LITTLE CHRISTINE" Thunders of applause, Carlotta made her entrance. "I wish I could but know who was he That addressed her, If he was noble, or at least, what his name is . . ." When Margarita had finished singing the ballad of the King of Thule, she was loudly cheered and again when she came to the end of the jewel song: "Ah, the joy of past compare These jewels bright to wear!" Thenceforth, certain of herself, certain of her friends in the house, certain of her voice and her success, fearing nothing, Carlotta flung herself into her part without restraint of modesty. She was no longer Margarita, she was Carmen. She was applauded all the more; and her debut with Faust seemed about to bring her a new success, when suddenly . . . Faust had knelt on one knee: "Let me gaze on the form below me, While from yonder ether blue Look how the star of eve, bright and tender, Hungers o'er me, To love thy beauty too!" And Margarita replied: "Oh, how strange! Like a spell does the evening mad me And a deep languid charm I feel without alarm With its melody surround me And all my heart subdue."

MRS. LUTHER H. GULICK LOVER OF OUTDOOR LIFE

Every summer, Mrs. Luther M. Gulick, foremost among women outdoor lovers in America, closes her city home, and joyfully flies her to the forests to become a tent-dweller for the space of six months. The time seems all too short to her, for she not only enjoys the delights of nature herself, but sees that thirty girls enjoy them too. In short, Mrs. Gulick, knowing what outdoor life means, or should mean to a girl has instituted a sort of summer camp for girls up in Casco, Maine, which camp is probably one of the most unique in the world. "With the exception of two years, I have really lived in tents whenever it was possible, all my life," says Mrs. Gulick; "and no one who has not undergone the same experience, can even imagine what it means. To sleep under the stars on a bed of pine boughs—to build your own eyrie in a tree-top, to sit by the camp-fire in the evening with the soft howl of the owl in your ears, and the sighing of the pine branches all around, you—to flash through silver water like a fish, bend your own canoe around rocky bends of headlands in search of undiscovered country—there is no life or pleasure in the world so natural and free. Every year my husband and I go on what we call our annual wedding trip; and every year we are assigned to the bridal room on steamboats or railways, as we are usually taken for a newly married couple on account, I suppose, of my brand-new outing togs. He is as devoted as I, to outdoor life and sports, and we have brought up our family of three daughters and one son to feel the same."

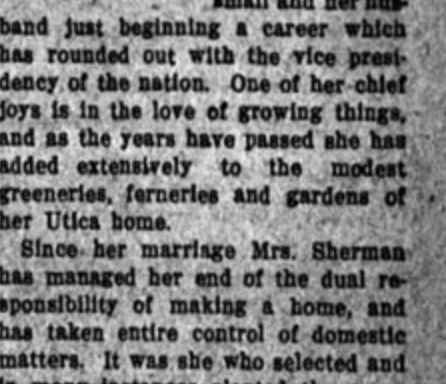

Mrs. Gulick, however, has introduced a new-old spirit into the outdoor life. She feels that much of the old, wild romance of America passed with its first dwellers—the Indians—and she has set herself in a measure, the task of restoring and cultivating this spirit in her summer camp. Thirty girls become members of this camp every summer, and they preserve as far as feasible, the traditions and customs of those Indians of the olden days. Each girl has her buffalo robe, her ceremonial dress, her moccasins, her symbolic beads. They sit in council on the last day of the week, often on the banks of a sinning stream, with only the rustling of the tree branches to break the silence, until their voices rise in the chanting of the Omaha Tribal prayer. The council fire is lit in true Indian fashion—by the rubbing of sticks—which ceremony is performed by one of the maidens whose buckskin dress, hair in two heavy braids, fastened only by the embroidered bead band across the forehead, and soft-stepping moccasins, make her a veritable daughter of the forest, after which comes the roll-call, each maiden responding to her musical Indian name. Mrs. Gulick, wearing her own ceremonial robe with its beads and embroidered symbols of outdoor sports in which she has acquired herself with honor, rules the camp.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

LADY MARJORIE MANNERS BECOMES MARQUIS' BRIDE

Bow low to her—Lady Marjorie Manners, eldest daughter of the Duke of Rutland, is now the Marchioness of Anglesey! After ten years of suspense this "most beautiful girl in the kingdom," as Queen Alexandra called her, was the other day married to one of England's richest peers. Lord Anglesey has a real $1,000,000 a year. What is something more, he is considered the handsomest man in all the house of lords. He has been in this country several times, always after big game. London society—and this includes very many Americans—is all upset about the newest betrothal, quite the most important of the year. It is the greatest surprise of the season now ending. Desiring dowagers have been angling after Anglesey ever since he came so unexpectedly into his marquisate and his millions in 1906, and all but one of them are now beaten. Anglesey was only a cousin of the title—and the money—when it all suddenly came to him. That bejeweled young fop, the fifth Marquis of Anglesey, was his cousin. Crazy about clothes, actresses and display, he knew not how to enjoy the great wealth which was his. He died suddenly at Monte Carlo, and his body was flung into the suicide's patch awaiting orders from England. Finally it was shipped there in a plain deal packing case, and only a score of persons attended the quiet funeral of the young man who had a million a year and didn't know how to spend it properly. And so to plain Charles Paget, his cousin, went the money and the title. This young chap was cast in a wholly different mold. Good-looking, clever, fond of life and people, he had spent his modest nineteen years in all simplicity. He found his vast estates—40,000 acres make up his domain—quite encumbered. Even then they were worth $400,000 a year in income to him, but careful management has put them back where they were when his eccentric cousin inherited them. Today they are worth half a hundred million dollars and bring him in two hundred thousand pounds sterling a year income, which is the American equivalent of a million dollars a year. Lady Marjorie was born in a tent near Las Vegas, N. M., when her parents were spending a vacation there in 1883. The bride is two years older than her husband.

VICE-PRESIDENT'S WIFE ACKNOWLEDGES MANY FADS

Mrs. Sherman, wife of the vice-president, acknowledges many fads, and says that the more varied the interests woman has in life the younger she keeps. In the past 10 years she has possessed more leisure for such occupation as flowers, books, patriotic and philanthropic work than in the days when her children were small and her husband just beginning a career which has rounded out with the vice presidency of the nation. One of her chief joys is in the love of growing things, and as the years have passed she has added extensively to the modest greenhouses, ferneries and gardens of her Utica home. Since her marriage Mrs. Sherman has managed her end of the dual responsibility of making a home, and has taken entire control of domestic matters. It was she who selected and in many instances planted the many choice trees, shrubs and flowers that fill the well-planned gardens, and it is she who attends to the house plants and their transfer into winter quarters. For years Mrs. Sherman made it a habit not to go to Washington until after Christmas, in order that she might give undivided care to the plants removed from the grounds and distributed through her home and placed in the greenhouse. For years also she discouraged her husband in getting a Washington home, for the reason that her plants and flowers are such an essential part of it that she could not conceive a pleasant environment without them. Among the large and influential group of New Yorkers resident in Washington she is held in particular esteem, and is in a way a sort of dean and arbiter of social affairs for them.

Obliged Him. The panhandler met the prosperous man in the "corridor of the office building." "I am down and out," whined the panhandler. "Can you help me?" "Yes," replied the prosperous man. "Just press that button on the elevator there and the operator will take you in and up."

"I Saw, as Clearly as I Now See You, a Black Shadow Riding a White Horse."

"I saw, as clearly as I now see you, a black shadow riding a white horse that was as like Cesar as two peas!" "And did you see after them?" "I did and I shouted, but they were too fast for me and disappeared in the darkness of the underground gallery." M. Richard rose. "That will do, M. Lacheneil. You can go. . . . We will lodge a complaint against the ghost." "And sack my stable!" "Oh, of course! Good morning." M. Lacheneil bowed and withdrew. Richard formed at the mouth. "Bottle that idiot's account at once, please."

celved, she never had one couched in such threatening terms. She thought herself, at that time, the victim of a thousand jealous attempts and went about saying that she had a secret enemy who had sworn to ruin her. She pretended that a wicked plot was being hatched against her, a cabal which would come to a head one of those days; but she added that she was not the woman to be intimidated. The truth is that, if there was a cabal, it was led by Carlotta herself against poor Christine, who had no suspicion of it. Carlotta had never forgiven Christine for the triumph which she had achieved when taking

"By the way," said Moncharmin, "you know that Mother Giry is going to lodge a complaint against you." "With whom? The ghost?" The ghost! Moncharmin had almost forgotten him. However, that mysterious person did nothing to bring himself to the memory of the managers; and they were just saying so to each other for the second time, when the door of the box suddenly opened to admit the startled stage-manager. "What's the matter?" they both asked, amazed at seeing him there at such a time.

As she sang these first two lines, with her bunch of roses and lilacs in her hand, Christine, raising her head, saw the Viscount de Chagny in his box; and, from that moment, her voice seemed less sure, less crystalline than usual. Something seemed to deaden and dull her singing. "What a queer girl she is!" said one of Carlotta's friends in the stalls, almost aloud. "The other day she was dying; and tonight she's singing

AMBASSADOR O'BRIEN'S FINE HOME IN ROME

Ambassador O'Brien has provided himself with a home in Rome that is worthy of the representative of a power like the United States, but he could not do it if he was not almost as rich as Rockefeller. Be it understood that in Rome the ambassador of a great country is scarcely recognized and loses much prestige if he lives in a modern house or villa residence. In Rome there are many magnificent old palaces, rich with paintings and tapestry and century-old furniture, which can be rented; but, oh, the cost of it. The French ambassador occupies the Palazzo Farnese, a national monument in itself; the Austrian ambassador lives in the Palazzo Venezia, a stronghold so called because it belonged to the republic of Venice; the ambassador of Spain has the Palazzo di Spagna, which for centuries has housed grandees of that country; the German ambassador has the Palazzo Caffarelli, which from the heights of the capitol frowns over the Eternal City below; the Japanese ambassador lives in the historic Palazzo Altieri, erected in 1670. Mr. O'Brien has signed a contract to occupy a gorgeous apartment in the Palazzo Barberini, the most imposing structure of the Renaissance, begun by the great architect, Maderno, in 1634, and finished by the ubiquitous Benini. The palace is more than royal and is surrounded by one of the most magnificent gardens in Rome, full of stately pine trees and sweet-scented orange groves.

Difficult Languages. "So they are married?" "Indeed, yes." "They must have needed an interpreter." "Why?" "The talks prof and he talks base."

Point to Remember. It was the ballet master who spoke. The occasion was the rehearsal in London of the Walpurgis scene in Gounod's "Faust." He chided: "Ladies, ladies, take yer hands off yer lips, yer dancing on 'ampened' with yer dancin' in 'all.'"

Beneficial Language. "Nothing is better for a man or woman than to have a good heavy sleep."

PHILS BEAT CUBS TWICE YESTERDAY

Philadelphia, Pa., Sep. 21.—The Phillies cleaned up on the Chicago Cubs in both games of a double bill today, taking the first game 3 to 2 and the second 5 to 3.

GIANTS TAKE TIGHT GAME FROM PIRATES

New York, Sept. 21.—The Giants took a tight game from Pittsburgh 2 to 1 today when Tesreau performed in shut out form for the locals while Camnitz was being slammed hard.

BOSTON CLEANS UP ON THE CINCY REDS

Boston, Mass., Sep. 21.—Boston trimmed the Cincy Reds in a one sided game 13 to 2 today. Donnelly pitched great ball for the locals while Fromme was pounded off the slab.

BROOKLYN SLAUGHTERS ST. LOUIS CARDINALS

Brooklyn, N. Y. Sep. 21.—Brooklyn slaughtered the St. Louis Cardinals 12 to 0 today by pounding Geyer off the slab and accumulating a total of 16 hits in the game.

RUCKER HAS HAD HARD LUCK STREAK

It is queer how often the fates sometimes favor some men over others, and this is never more graphically illustrated than in baseball.

The fans are not quite through marveling over the greatness of Rube Marquard as a pitcher and there is no questioning that greatness. He won nineteen straight with a wonderful baseball club behind him, a team composed of men who can hit, run and think.

Old Nap has always been there whenever it came his turn, whether he had control or not, for Brooklyn hasn't had an army of reserve men to shoot to the firing line every time a heavier grew wobbly.

Then again there hasn't been a wonderful team back of Nap Rucker every time he started. He hasn't always had eight men in the game with him who could hit, run and think.

But it is seldom that Nap is out-pitched, and he is never soundly walloped, at least not to the extent of sixteen hits.

RACINE MAN PEEVED BY OSKOSH VICTORY

In this week's issue of The Sporting News a Racine writer, Earl Pritchard writes as follows concerning the season just finished by the Wisconsin-Illinois league.

"After being in rehearsal for the past five months, the sterling drama, 'Bought and Paid For,' produced by the Wisconsin-Illinois league, under the stage direction of the Oshkosh club with Joe Killian as chief property man, has been given the public for approval.

"Oshkosh, with its willingness to spend, is no doubt entitled to the first position. No one begrudges it the honor. Killian played consistent ball all season, and had to work hard to get a winner, even though he did have a bank roll at his disposal.

"The fans of Racine are satisfied with second place. Billy Fox showed us good ball and every quarter thrown into the box office got value received. We can but look to next season and hope to repeat or even better this year's record.

JACK JOHNSON MAY ACCEPT GO

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Jack Johnson's wish that he be allowed to adjust himself to his loss was recognized yesterday by W. C. J. Kelly, representative of Hugh McIntosh, the Australian promoter.

Kelly declared that McIntosh was determined to bring Johnson to Australia, where two tilts for the championship would be held. He says he wants Johnson to return with him October 22, that he may be ready to battle on boxing day, December 26.

Johnson declared last night that he had not given the ring or any of his other business a thought since the death of his wife and that he would not consider any offer of any kind for another week at least.

TIGES BEATEN BY NEW CHAMPS

Detroit, Mich., Sep. 21.—The new pennant winners of the American League trimmed Detroit 11 to 4 today by pounding Willetts to all corners of the lot and piling up a total of 14 hits.

BROWNS BEAT ATHLETICS IN LOOSELY PLAYED GAME

St. Louis, Mo., Sep. 21.—Errors at critical stages of the game allowed the cellar champs to trim the pennant winners of last season by a score of 4 to 3.

NAPS BEAT THE YANKS IN TEN INNINGS

Cleveland, O., Sep. 21.—It took ten innings for the Naps to trim New York 5 to 4 today in a loosely played game.

SERIES WILL GIVE EACH MAN FORTUNE

With the increased seating capacity at Fenway Park, upon which a gang of carpenters is now engaged, and which will, upon completion, provide practically the same accommodations as will obtain at the Polo Grounds in New York, it is expected that the players' share in the coming world's series between the Red Sox and the Giants—for these are the two teams that are but certain to take part in the series—will split up among themselves close to $160,000.

In other words, each member of the winning team, upon the pro rata basis prescribed by the national commission for the division of receipts, will receive not far from $5,000. The members of the losing team will get about $3,400 apiece, providing the assumption regarding the receipts proves correct.

Under the rules laid down by the national commission to govern the world's series the players, decided upon by the commission as eligible to share in the money division, are entitled to 60 per cent of the receipts of each of the first four games after 10 per cent of the gross has been deducted for the national commission.

An article that has real merit should in time become popular. That such is the case with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been attested by many dealers. Here is one of them. H. W. Hendrickson, Ohio Falls, Ind., writes: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best for coughs, colds and croup, and is my best seller."

DOES NOT LIKE CLOTHES WASHED IN FOOD UTENSILS

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 21.—Declaring that he could stand the absence of clean linen on the bed, but was compelled to register a protest when his wife washed the baby's clothing in the cooking utensils, James Everett, a well known sporting man, brought suit for divorce against his wife, Myrtle Everett, for absolute divorce.

Everett further complains of his wife's sister sleeping in the same bed with them, saying that his wife insisted that they all sleep together.

In her answer to her husband's allegations Mrs. Everett denies his charges. The Everetts were married on March 3, 1910, and separated September 10, the same year.

MEN TO TRAIN AT ANN ARBOR

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 21.—For the first time in years the preliminary practice of the Michigan football team is not to be held at Whitmore Lake and the real reason for this change is that the new $39,000 club house at Ferry Field offers such complete accommodations for the men that it seems idle to consider any other place for the early drill.

Yost's first remark on looking over the list of men who would be on hand, was: "It is the poorest outlook of years," and there surely seems to be plenty of reason for the coach's opinion. The material is light and in the main inexperienced, while the new game is going to necessitate heavier men than has been needed since the "Reformation."

One thing is going to work to the advantage of the Wolverines this season and that is that there will be plenty of coaches to assist Yost. Frank Schulte, guard on the '03, '04 and '05 teams, and since then the coach at Ypsilanti Normal and for the last two years athletic director at Cape Girardeau College, will be the first assistant coach at Michigan.

WORLD'S SERIES TO BEGIN OCT 6

New York, Sept. 21.—The world's series baseball games are to begin on Monday, October 7. This date is said to have been tentatively agreed upon by the national commission, which meets here next Wednesday to draft the plans for the games.

The Boston club has already won the pennant, and the Giants expect to win within the next ten days. The playing season of the Boston Red Sox and the New York Giants closes on Oct. 5, and one day's rest before the big games is deemed sufficient.

TY COBB VISITS DR. WILSON; SAYS HE HOPES NEXT TIME TO SEE HIM IN WHITEHOUSE

Detroit, Sept. 21.—One of Governor Woodrow Wilson's visitors after he reached his hotel here tonight was Ty Cobb, baseball player, extraordinary, with whom the governor had expressed a desire to shake hands before leaving the city.

"I have not seen you since we were together in Georgia, except that I have seen you play ball many times since then," said the governor. "Well, governor, the next time I see you I hope it will be in the White House," replied Ty Cobb.

ESCAPES FROM THE MARINETTE LOCK-UP

Tearing the boards from the floor and crawling on his hands and knees until he reached an opening in the foundation wall, an unknown man placed in the city lockup of Marinette on the charge of drunkenness the first of the week escaped and has disappeared completely. It is said a statutory charge was also to have been lodged against him when he was to have been arraigned in court.

The man was picked up in the city park on charge of drunkenness and taken to the lock-up near the fire station where men arrested for inebriation and vagrancy are often incarcerated while awaiting arraignment. He was placed in the city "lock-up" last night by Chief Cook. When an officer was sent to the pen next morning to escort the man to the police court he found the cell empty and a few planks gave information of what had happened.

Evidently the man had sobered near morning and recognizing his surroundings decided to vacate. Two or three boards were torn from the floor. Crawling through the aperture thus provided he was enabled to travel on hands and knees to an opening in the foundation through which he made his silent exit. Though the man was a resident of Marinette, he decided to receive his mail elsewhere, and departed without leaving a permanent address. As the man was far from a "desirable citizen," few flags will be raised to half mast in lamentation of his leave taking, providing he stays away.

SPOOK HAUNTING RAILROAD BRIDGE

Peshtigo Times: Peshtigo has a mystery for some person of a little more than ordinary daring or nerve to solve. It is a "spook" this time, the apparition appearing several times to belated pedestrians going home in Frenchtown by the railroad bridge route. It takes on the shape of a woman who appears in the center of the bridge to greet the oncoming victim with a stony stare. Two young men have already been confronted by the uncanny stranger, and they walked back up town and hiked around by the city bridge to get home. It is not known whether they are the victims of practical jokes, but the thing will probably be exploded with an explanation one of these days.

The "spook" referred to in the above article upon investigation proved to be a young lady, wearing a white shirt waist, who was on the railroad bridge that evening, accompanied by an escort.

MAYOR PROPOSES TAX ON OCCUPATIONS

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—Mayor Rudolph Blankenburg sent to the city council today a message remarkable for its unusual recommendations for increasing by taxation the revenues of the city. His recommendations include:

A graded tax of from fifty cents to $1 on all occupations.

A tax on the total value of all household furniture and furnishings above $300.

A tax of $1 on each $1,000 worth of goods manufactured in the city.

A tax of twenty-five to fifty cents a horsepower on all motor vehicles, in addition to the present state automobile license fee.

A tax on overhanging signs and on vaults under sidewalks.

Rental for the use of conduits in the streets.

Banks to pay an increase of one-half of one per cent on deposits of city money. The rate is now two per cent.

A tax on the physical properties of public service corporations.

The mayor said that if his recommendations were adopted, the city's borrowing capacity would be increased eighty-seven million dollars.

SHOWERS ARE TO CONTINUE

Probable showers is the weather prediction for Escanaba today according to the forecast issued last night by Observer V. E. Jaki.

Of general weather conditions Observer Jaki said:

The pressure has remained generally low throughout the upper Plains States, the Mississippi Valley and upper Lakes since yesterday morning, and unsettled over the middle northern states, and extended south to the Gulf states, during the past 24 hours. The principal depression is now over the upper Mississippi Valley and western Lake region, indicating continued unsettled weather for this vicinity for the following 36 hours, with rain tonight and probably Sunday. The weather has remained fair generally in the West, and over most Atlantic States, and temperature changes have been slight over all portions. Some temperatures near freezing, however, are reported from mountain districts. The winds locally will be moderate to brisk to southwest.

WOMAN WITNESS BESTS A LAWYER

Chicago, Sept. 21.—A choice in the use of applied slang balancing between those expressions favored by Miss Rose Moody, prosecuting witness against Dr. Thomas J. Balhatchett, and J. H. McNeilly, wealthy caterer, and the vocabulary of slang used by Percy Bishop, attorney for McNeilly, was the basis yesterday for one of the most novel battles ever staged.

The contest had its beginning when Miss Moody declared during the examination by the attorney: "Youse was always giving me instructions."

Attorney Bishop shivered as though a file had been scraped across the teeth of a buck saw.

"Don't—don't use that word youse," he shouted, and turned to the jury for their approval. "It is slang, and none of us here use that sort of talk. Besides, it grates on my nerves."

Girl Witness Has Revenge.

Miss Moody bit her lip and her eyes sparkled in anger.

"Now," continued the lawyer, "did you not believe that you had the goods on McNeilly? Didn't you tell people that you had the goods on him?"

The previous shiver of Attorney Bishop was nothing compared to the one produced by Miss Moody.

"Oh," she shouted, "to think that I should be subjected to such terrible slang! I'll have you understand, sir, that I—I am not in the habit of using such words. They grate upon my nerves and—besides I don't know what you mean."

This time the lawyer bit his lips.

"Leg Pulling" Greek to Her.

"Oh, very well," he sneered. "I'll content you with real English. Didn't you think that you had successfully pulled McNeilly's leg? Didn't you tell people that you had pulled his leg?"

"Some day, murmured the girl sweetly, "I may grow used to the slang of our streets—the kind of slang that you just have used. But just now, Mr. Bishop, I am not sufficiently familiar with it to understand your meaning."

"Think real hard and try to find some words of English with which to express your meaning," and she smiled in apparent patience at the red and angry face of the attorney.

Bishop still was red with embarrassment when court was adjourned until Monday.

TALKING WOMAN DECLARED INSANE

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—After working over Mrs. Alice Hillard for more than thirty-six hours in an effort to make her stop talking, physicians at the Pennsylvania hospital gave up the task as hopeless and ordered her removed to the Blockley asylum for the insane. Mrs. Hillard's condition has been diagnosed as acute insanity. The center of speech in the brain has been affected and control of the vocal organs thereby destroyed. It is believed her condition is due to an accidental blow at the base of the brain received three years ago.

GAS PLAN SLOW SO SHE SHOOTS SELF

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Inhaling gas proved too slow a death for Mrs. Mary Barna, 24, and in desperation she obtained her husband's revolver and fired a bullet into her head. She died almost instantly. The shooting occurred in her home at 9347 Cottage Grove avenue.

Frank Barna, her husband, was in blacksmith shop at the rear of the house. He heard the report of the revolver and ran into the house. He found his wife dead.

Despondency over ill health is believed to have been the cause of the woman's act. She is said to have told a friend that she "might as well be dead as to be in agony all the time."

R. McCaskill of Bark River was in the city yesterday on business.

Our Bank is a National Bank

A National bank must operate under STRONG RESTRICTIONS for safety, laid down by the Government at Washington. Before the U. S. GOVERNMENT granted us a charter to do a banking business, they satisfied themselves that there was both money and character behind our bank. They wanted to INSURE the safety of our depositors.
