

BULL MOOSERS IN SESSION

ADDRESSES DELIVERED HERE LAST NIGHT BY SPEAKERS FOR NATIONAL PROGRESSIVE PARTY.

Bull Moosers of Escanaba last night gathered at the city hall when rousing addresses were delivered by Pros. Atty. W. J. McDonald, of Houghton, county and Dr. R. H. Latchaw, of Chicago. The auditorium at the city hall was comfortably filled with nearly 300 men last night when the meeting was opened and during the addresses of the two speakers considerable enthusiasm was aroused.

Atty. McDonald, who is the National Progressive Candidate for congressman in this district, last night in addition to delivering a strong espousal of the cause of Theodore Roosevelt, paid a number of high compliments to William Jennings Bryan, for whom he said he voted in 1896. The speaker asserted that while Mr. Bryan was in control of the National Democratic convention in Baltimore his fight was directed against the political bosses more than to secure the nomination of any one man.

He asserted that Mr. Wilson is smaller than his party and that his hands are firmly tied against the accomplishment of any reforms by the reactionaries, should he by any means be elected as president.

Mr. McDonald hailed Theodore Roosevelt as the savior of the nation, the man alone on whom the people can depend to get a square deal, taking the direction of the governmental affairs from the hands of the bosses and restoring that power to the people. He repeated Mr. Roosevelt's statement that this country must be made a good place for all people to live in and not a place for a few people to live in.

Mr. McDonald severely scored the press of the country, claiming that

SEARCH FOR A SISTER

Efforts are being made by Chief of Police Andrew Iverson to locate relatives in this city of Victor Lindquist who was killed near the city of Detroit, Minn., Friday last week. It is thought by the Detroit authorities that the dead man has a sister living in Escanaba, but Chief Iverson up to last night had been unable to locate the woman.

Following is a letter received by Chief Iverson from Charles McGregor, coroner of Wayne county:

Dear Sir: One Victor Lindquist, was run over and killed near here yesterday afternoon. I have been advised that he has a sister living in your city. I do not know her name, or can I find out whether she is single or married.

He has only been here a short time—and no one seems to know the name of a single relative. He left his clothing, trunk, bank account, etc., in Duluth, but I do not know who he left it with.

His mother lives at Luleo, Sweden, her name I do not know.

If you cannot reach the sister by phone, or through your local directory perhaps if you have the facts published in your local papers, it may assist in locating her.—Charles McGregor, Coroner.

BIG ELECTRIC SIGN IS DELIVERED HERE

The firm of Young & Fillion yesterday received a large electric sign that will be placed in position at once at the front of the firm's place of business. The sign is constructed in the form of an inverted "T," with the cross bar at the top spelling out the word "Shoes." On the stem of the sign will be the word "Clothing," and with the firm name at the bottom. The sign when placed in commission is expected to be one of the most attractive.

THEIR ESCAPES THROUGH FRIENDS

Charged with stealing $18 from Albert Dault, Andrew Anderson was arrested on Saturday night and yesterday was arraigned before Judge C. D. McEwen. Employers of the young man came to his rescue and after refunding the money to the man, from whom it had been stolen, paid the court costs and secured the release of the defendant.

WHEEL IS DAMAGED

In a collision between an automobile and a bicyclist in front of Kratzke Brothers' store at noon yesterday, Lambert Peterson, a carpenter, was slightly bruised and his bicycle was demolished. The automobile was driven by John Christie, who was running east on Ludington street. Two wagons obstructed the street on the right side of the pavement and Mr. Christie turned over to the left side to pass them. Peterson was riding a bicycle in the space between the car tracks and on seeing the automobile turn from behind the wagons, turned his wheel toward the curbing. The auto and the bicycle came together with the rider of the wheel dismounting just as the crash came. The front wheel of the auto passed over the bicycle badly damaging the wheel. Mr. Peterson was thrown to the pavement but escaped without serious injury. The injured man was attended by Dr. Louis Kratzke immediately after the accident and in a short time was able to walk to his home.

PIONEER TO REST

A large number of the old residents of Escanaba together with a host of friends and relatives will this morning attend the funeral of Patrick Finnegan, pioneer citizen of Escanaba, at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Father Barth will officiate at the service. Interment will be at St. Joseph's cemetery.

Those who will serve as pallbearers at the funeral are: James Kennelly, A. J. Henry, John Dineen, Timothy Magher, John O'Meara and Charles Maloney.

The announcement of the death of Mr. Finnegan, who had been a resident of Escanaba continuously for nearly a half a century, was received with deep regret by a host of people throughout Escanaba and today many people will attend the funeral to pay their final respects to his memory.

OHIO WOMAN TAKES HER OWN LIFE

Dayton, O., Sept. 23.—Rather than live in a house painted blue, Mrs. Sadie McDonald, aged 30, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid.

Mr. McDonald, who is the proprietor of the Blue Front cafe, thought it a happy idea to paint the front in blue and letter it with the sign: "Leave your blues on the outside with the paint."

Neighbors declare that Mrs. McDonald had frequently said that she would kill herself unless the house was repainted some other color. The McDonald residence is located above the cafe.

ANNUAL PRAISE SERVICE ARRANGED

The annual praise service of the First Presbyterian church will be held at the parsonage at 208 Douman avenue Thursday afternoon. A literary program will be rendered and refreshments will be served and a delightful afternoon is assured all who may attend.

ESCANABA GIRL SHOT

YOUNG WOMAN WHO MADE HOME HERE FOR YEAR, MURDERED AT VINCENNES, IND.

Miss Lucile May, formerly a resident of this city, was shot and instantly killed at Vincennes, Ind., late on Saturday night by Thomas Harry Davies, a former English wrestling champion.

Miss May's mother served as a member of the White Stock company at what was formerly Ben's theater in this city.

Miss May was then a child and attended school here for a year. She returned here on a number of occasions after the White Stock company closed its engagement at the local theater, and visited with friends.

Last season Miss May was in Escanaba as a member of the "Millionaire Tramp" company.

She was shot down and instantly killed as she entered a restaurant at Vincennes, with her mother. The murdered was promptly arrested and when placed in a cell hanged himself with a towel, the body being found on Sunday morning.

A press dispatch telling of the murder of the former Escanaba girl, says:

Thomas Harry Davies, former English wrestling champion, known in sporting circles as Harry Hector, late last night shot and killed instantly, Miss Lucile May, a pretty ingenue with a stock company, just as she and her mother, Mrs. Helen K. May, took a seat in the Savoy restaurant.

This morning Davies' body was found swinging in the bull pen of the Knox county jail from a rope he had improvised from a towel.

Davies told reporters when first arrested he had planned the killing for four months and that her refusal to marry him was the cause. This was substantiated by a letter from the girl written Sept. 12 at Paris, Mo., in which she told him good-by forever, making reference to the allegation that he cruelly deceived her in not telling her until lately that he had a wife and daughter living at Bridgeville, Pa.

A brother of the murdered girl, Robert May, a theatrical manager of East St. Louis, is here and to-morrow will accompany the body back to Paris for the funeral. Davies' halls from Chicago and Oklahoma City. In the latter city he first met Miss May three years ago, when she was but 15 years

URGE USE OF LIBRARY

The Proper Use of the Public Library, was the subject of an address delivered before the public school teachers of Escanaba at the regular monthly meeting of that body yesterday afternoon, by Miss Elsie Vander Hagen, librarian at the Carnegie public library. The address carried with it an appeal to the teachers cooperate with the librarian in making the public library of greater value and good to all of the people of the city. In addition Miss Vander Hagen's address was filled with many interesting thoughts that held the attention of the teachers throughout the session.

YOUNG WOMAN TO BE LAID TO REST

Many sorrowing friends and relatives will attend the funeral of Miss Gladys Starrine at 2:30 o'clock today at the Swedish Lutheran church.

The pall bearers who have been selected to carry the body to its final resting place are: Edward McDonough, George Peterson, Alfred Grant, Walter Taxford, Edward Olson and Ray Conner.

The ushers chosen are: Alvin Carlson, Henry Peterson, Gene Nelson and Victor Anderson.

Relatives and friends from nearby cities and towns are gathering to attend the final ceremonies of this afternoon.

BLOOD BERRY MAN GOES TO HOUGHTON

Ira Hartnett, who was in Escanaba last week attending the Northern State Fair, advertising Blood Berry Gum, left yesterday for Houghton, where he will attend the Houghton County fair that is to continue throughout this week. Mr. Hartnett distributed a large quantity of gum at the local fair and will carry out a general advertising campaign in the Copper Country.

FISHERMEN DEFRAUDED

MAN WHO "STUNG" DELTA COUNTY COMMERCIAL FISHERMEN ON TRIAL IN CHICAGO.

(Special to the Morning Press.)

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 23.—The government today placed Nathan Fisher on trial before Judge Carpenter on charges of perpetrating frauds on fishermen in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and other states. He is charged with paying for fish with worthless checks. Fisher was indicted at the July, 1911, term of the grand jury on a charge of devising a scheme to defraud fishermen by means of the United States mail. The government prosecutors allege that he conceived a "get rich quick" scheme with fishermen as victims by advertising that he had organized an extensive fish company under the name of the Great Lakes Fish Company, with headquarters in the Union Fish Market, North Union and West Lake streets. Fisher received large shipments of fish, according to the charges, and then sent worthless checks to the fishermen.

FR. BARTH TO SPEAK

Rev. Father Barth, pastor of St. Patrick's church, will leave today for Stephenson, where on Wednesday he will deliver an address at the annual Cloverland Fair in that city. Father Barth was formerly pastor of the Stephenson church and has a host of friends throughout that district. The subject of his address will be "The Dignity of Agriculture," and in which he will make a plea against the desertion of the farm by the young men.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson and Thomas Smett returned to their homes in Chicago on Sunday night after spending the summer in this city.

Mr. Johnson and Mr. Smett were members of the local league team during the past year and both have returned to Chicago to resume their regular work. Mr. Johnson is employed by the Adams Express company in Chicago, while Mr. Smett conducts a set of bowling alleys in that city. Mrs. Johnson, who is an accomplished vocalist, made a host of friends in Escanaba during her short stay here. She appeared in a number of programs that were arranged for different events and delighted all with her delightful voice and manner.

LITTLE FRIENDS GUESTS AT PARTY

Master Theodore Wickman entertained at the home of his parents at Wells on Sunday afternoon in honor of his sixth birthday. Ten of his little friends were present and Theodore pleasantly entertained them for the afternoon. After the games had been played a dainty luncheon was served after which the guests departed wishing their little friend many happy birthdays.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION

MEMBERS OF LOCAL TEACHING FORCE WILL GO TO IRON MOUNTAIN OCT 3 and 4.

A large number of the members of the teaching force of the Escanaba public schools will go to Iron Mountain on Oct. 3 and 4 to attend the annual convention of the Upper peninsula Educational Association.

Of the coming teachers meeting when many of the teachers from all of the principal cities of the upper peninsula will gather at Iron Mountain, the Tribune Gazette of that city says:

Arrangements for the annual meeting of the Upper Peninsula Educational Association, which will be held in Iron Mountain October third and fourth, are being completed. Over a thousand visiting pedagogues are expected, and the convention will be one of the biggest occasions in the history of the city. For seventeen years the teachers of northern Michigan have gotten together once a year to talk over new methods and improve on old ones, and now the convention is the big event of the scholastic year.

There will be six sessions a day, two each morning, afternoon and evening, and at each session a speaker of national reputation will make an address or conduct a round table. The speakers have been secured at great expense, which will be met by the members of the Association themselves, chiefly in the form of membership dues. Membership is open to any one interested and in cities where the conventions are held it is customary for many of the residents to join. The fees are fifty cents for ladies and one dollar for men. This membership fee gives admission to all sessions and each of the paid lectures in the evenings.

Among the prominent speakers who will be present are: Earl Barnes of Philadelphia, President Fess of Antioch College, Ohio, Miss White-man of Pittsburg and Dr. Ott of New York.

Supt. Amidon and Commissioner O'Hara, together with the corps of helpers are succeeding splendidly in their preparations for the entertainment of the visitors, and there is no reason why this year's session should be one of the banner meetings of the association.

CASE IS SETTLED

I. N. Bushong, of Gladstone, whose auto ran over and killed the son of David Farley of Wells at Wells crossing, has settled the cost out of court for the sum of $1,750.

The Farley child was playing in the road at the curve at Wells when the Bushong automobile hit the boy and killed him. The driver did not see the little fellow until it was too late to stop the car.

Frank Green, the driver who struck the child, has always been known as an exceedingly careful driver and both he and Mr. Bushong were deeply grieved over the accident and have aided the grief stricken parents in every possible way since the fatal accident.

ONE FAIR BOOTH WAS OMITTED

A booth at the county fair that through an oversight escaped mention, was that of the Cleary Brothers' Company in the north wing of the building. The booth was attractively decorated for the event and throughout the fair unique souvenirs were given out to the fair patrons.

During the fair the firm of E. C. Wickert & company gave away a total of $300, three pound sacks of flour, at an expense of $400 making the fair advertising campaign of that firm among the most expensive of all the exhibitors at the big county show.

M. and Mrs. Soren Johnson and son were over from Gladstone last night.

BUILD BOAT HOUSE FOR NAVAL VESSELS

The work of building a boat house was commenced yesterday morning for the two new cutters for the use of the Naval Reserves which were unloaded Sunday.

It has been rumored that all lake reserves will go to the big review in New York and the Escanaba lads are in hopes that this place will be included in the list.

CHAPTER HAS FINE MEETING

Members of Delta chapter, Royal Arch Masons, last night were benefited by a school of instruction, conducted at the Masonic Temple by Horace S. Maynard, of Charlotte, grand lecturer of the order in Michigan and M. C. McGee, of Crystal Falls, past grand high priest of the grand lodge of Michigan.

Following the school of instruction which was attended not only by the members of the chapter in this city, but from a number of surrounding points.

An elaborate banquet was served and a delightful program of toasts was carried out.

Among the members from outside the city who were present were: Norman Fox, J. M. Forshar, Dr. Husband, George Nicholson, of Manistique, and F. W. Good and W. A. McClinchy of Nahma.

SQUIRRELS PROTECTED

State game wardens will take action to carry out the provisions of a state law, under which squirrels are protected until 1914. It is reported that boys about the city are shooting squirrels and the heavy penalty provided by law for that offense is likely to be inflicted on the first offender that is caught.

The penalty for the violation of the state law on this subject is a fine of $25 or a long term in jail. Clues to some of the offenders have been found and those guilty may shortly find themselves up against an unpleasant proposition.

Until recently, squirrels have not been common in this city, but they seem to have multiplied wonderfully during the past year and they are found in the shade trees in all portions of the city.

HELD FUNERAL YESTERDAY MORNING

The body of James McCarthy who passed away at the home of his parents on Rose street after a prolonged illness, was laid to rest yesterday morning at St. Joseph's cemetery after impressive funeral services at St. Patrick's church. A large number of the friends and relatives of the young man attended the services and accompanied the body to its last resting place. Among the relatives and friends of the family who came from outside cities to attend the funeral were: John H. Powers, Milwaukee; Mrs. J. A. Penson and Miss Elizabeth Lane, of Ishpeming; Mrs. Abrahamson and daughter of Lilly Lake Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Powers of Wilwaukee and Thomas Lane of Lathrop.

ELABORATE PLANS ARE BEING MADE

Particularly elaborate plans are being made for the presentation of the Nation's Festival, at the Peterson opera house on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week for the benefit of St. Anne's church of this city. No pains nor expenses is being spared to make the event one of the most successful home talent affairs ever arranged in this city.

CONTRACT AWARDED

JOHN S. LINDSAY WILL BUILD MONSTER WAREHOUSE IN THIS CITY FOR BRAUNS & VAN

The contract for the construction of a large warehouse for the Brauns & Van Company, wholesale commission dealers in fruit, feed, flour and sundries, was yesterday awarded to John S. Lindsay. The building will be of fireproof construction, 50 by 100 feet in dimensions and will be built at the foot of Georgia street facing on Langley street. The building will abut the Northwestern yards and a track will be laid along side of the building, on which may be placed four cars for unloading at one time.

Arnsen Brothers of this city, were the architects who designed the building and that firm will represent the company in the construction of the structure.

A number of bids were submitted for building the monster warehouse and that of Mr. Lindsay was found to be the lowest when the proposals were opened yesterday. Work is to be started at once and the structure completed as quickly as possible.

The firm of Brauns & Van is an Iron Mountain concern, which a few years ago established a branch in this city under the management of Jesse Owen. Through the energy and constant work of Mr. Owen the firm's business in this city has developed to mammoth proportions, making Escanaba one of the central distributing points for the concern.

The company has occupied quarters in the 500 block on Ludington street since the establishment of the concern here and the need for more room and better facilities has long been felt. The new building is especially designed for the use of the company in its business and when completed will offer a perfect home for the big distributing concern.

DELEGATES TO LEAVE

Members of the Delta county delegation to the Democratic State convention will leave tonight and to-morrow for Grand Rapids where they will attend the Democratic state convention, which will convene there on Thursday.

The upper peninsula will have from eighty to ninety delegates in the state convention and they are prepared to fight to the last ditch against the adoption of a tonnage tax plank in the state platform. J. W. Helme, candidate for lieutenant governor, is advocating this plank, but in view of the fact that Woodbridge N. Ferris of Big Rapids, candidate for governor, and members of the state committee are opposed to it, the local Democrats feel that their opposition will not be in vain.

At the recent state tax conference at Detroit, experts along all lines of taxation were unanimous in their opposition to specific taxes and their support of the ad valorem system as the only reasonable basis of taxation, and the influence of these opinions is expected to bear heavily on the delegates at the convention.

Upper peninsula Democrats are refusing to support Helme because of his attitude on this issue, which is so vital to upper peninsula interests.

SURPRISE PARTY WAS ENJOYED

J. Ammel was surprised by a large number of friends at his home on South Jennie street on Sunday evening, the event being arranged in celebration of his birthday anniversary. Mr. Ammel had no hint of the arrangements being made for the party and his surprise was complete when a big company of friends and neighbors took possession of the home early on Sunday evening.

The evening was delightfully spent with music and games and following the program refreshments were served.

SPRECKELS WILL AID GOV. WILSON

Columbus, O., Sept. 23.—Coincident with the opening of the Democratic campaign in Ohio today, Gov. Woodrow Wilson gave his hearty approval today to the formation in New York of the Wilson National Progressive Republican League.

The governor and Rudolph Spreckels, now in New York, in charge of the movement, exchanged the following telegrams made public today by the nominee:

"Gov. Woodrow Wilson, Columbus, O.:

"Eastern headquarters of the Wilson National Progressive Republican league were today opened in the Metropolitan building, New York. Our league was founded by Progressive Republicans who hope to save the progressive movement that was started some years ago in the Republican party, but which is being betrayed by the organization of Col. Roosevelt's third term party.

"Under these conditions you alone deserve the support of true Progressives who place principles above partisanship. Our membership is wholly Republican, but we feel justified in voting and working for your election since the candidate of the Republican party does not represent the Progressive majority in that party and Roosevelt's candidacy is hopeless and only serves to divide our Progressive forces.

"Rudolph Spreckels."

Gov. Wilson replied: "Your telegram telling me of the formation of the Wilson National Progressive Republican league gave me the deepest gratification and encouragement. The action you and your associates are taking seems to me truly patriotic. The progressive forces of the nation ought not to be divided. No more attachment to a party name should now separate men whose purposes and convictions are united for a common object. The formation of the league seems to me one of the most reassuring indications of the temper of thoughtful men. May I not convey to you my congratulations on your own part in the movement?"

"Woodrow Wilson."

MOTORIST KNOCKS CAR OFF TRACK

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 23.—Knocking a street car from the track with the impact of his motorcycle, when he tried to cross ahead of the car, and himself escaping injury except bruises, was the experience of C. D. Davidson, motorcycle policeman early today.

Davidson and his cycle were on a tangled with the front of the street car that it required half an hour to extricate him.

How to the street and avoid danger.

MONEY STOLEN IN BIG ROBBERY

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Part of the $272,000 loot that robbers got from the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B. C., has been recovered by the Chicago police, according to an admission of Assistant Chief of Police Schuetler today.

How much of the money was recovered, the police refused to say, but it was intimated that the amount was large.

It is believed the loot of the banks robbery was hidden by two thieves, who escaped after they had beaten a policeman into unconsciousness when he attempted to arrest them single-handed.

Captain John J. Mahoney and Lieutenant Bernard J. Burns, who will be required to answer charges preferred by the chief of police before the civil service commission for permitting the bank bandits to escape, returned to the city today.

They went on a furlough shortly after their unsuccessful attempt to capture the thieves and returned at the expiration of their leave of absence.

Lieutenant Burns made a statement tonight, in which he declared that a woman was responsible for the escape of the bank robbers. He said that when he went to a South Wabash Avenue saloon it was in response to information received that two men had been spending money freely in the place and they were believed to be thieves.

Burns declares he did not know who the men were or anything about the Canadian robbery at the time. He said the attempt to capture them was the result of a circumstance over which he had no control.

"After being in the place for some time," he said, "one of the men became suspicious of me and remarked that he was going for a walk. I did not want to take a chance on his getting away, so I drew my revolver and covered both men and said that if they took a walk it would be with me. I had the men covered and would have arrested them or shot them dead, if it had not been for a woman who was in the place. The moment I drew my revolver she leaped on my back like a tigress and held me while the men beat me into insensibility."

A man said to be a go-between is reported to have informed the police today that there were four instead of two of the robbers in the saloon when the police went there to make arrests and that they were negotiating to buy immunity from arrest when they were surprised by the appearance of Lieutenant Burns on the scene.

According to the story circulated, a police officer discovered that the four robbers were hiding in Chicago and demanded $100,000 as the price of his silence. Under the plan said to have been suggested, each of four police officers were to receive $25,000. Two of the robbers, it is said, had agreed to pay that sum for protection, but the other two refused, declaring the amount demanded to be exorbitant.

While the negotiations were pending, there was a leak, according to the story and Captain Mahoney and Lieutenant Burns learned of the presence of the robbers in the Wabash Avenue saloon and attempted to capture them.

Assistant Police Schuetler admitted tonight that two men are under arrest in Chicago in connection with the Canadian robbery. The two are being held at an outlying station and were questioned at length during the evening. Whether the men are the two who assaulted Lieutenant Burns and escaped is not known.

WOMAN WRITES OF THE U. P.

Mrs. Carpenter Kendall of Chicago a special writer for the publicity department of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, is in the upper peninsula making a complete tour of the country for securing data for special catalogues that are to be circulated by the railroads which she represents.

Mrs. Kendall comes to the upper peninsula through the influence of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau. Excursions are to be made to mines, timber lands, exceptional farms and any other places that will furnish copy. Mrs. Kendall will be assisted by Colonel Mott, who will help her to secure such information as will be of most value and interest.

Few, if any, medicines, have met with the uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The remarkable cures of colic and diarrhoea which it has effected in almost every neighborhood have given it a wide reputation. For sale by all dealers.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT!

OUT OF HIS ELEMENT

It's just the kind of a night for a swim in the lake," said Kenneth to his sister. "What do you say to a little ride first? I can drop you off somewhere for a call and then pick you up on my way home from the beach."

"Just the thing," agreed his sister with alacrity. "Take me over to Mrs. Winship's, as I promised her that I'd drop in to see her guest, and this is the only chance I'll have."

Kenneth donned his bathing suit, added a few accessories, including trousers, sweater and tennis shoes, and then got into the automobile with his sister. After short drive through the park he stopped at the Winships.

"Now, you be ready when you hear the horn," he admonished her. "A wet bathing suit with a sweater over it isn't the most comfortable thing in the world, and don't let them ask me to go in. Say that I'm—well, anything—only don't let them see me."

"Just toot the horn three times," said his sister, "and I'll fly out before they have time to ask questions. You aren't exactly an Apollo after your evening swim, and it would really be a reflection on me if anybody should see you."

Time went quickly after Kenneth arrived at the beach. Therefore, he remained in the water so long that he was chilly when he drew on his sweater and trousers over the wet bathing suit. When he stopped his machine in front of Winship's house everything was dark.

He tooted the horn loudly three times and waited. After an interval he tooted the horn again three times and waited. Then he tried to decide whether he should go on home or get out and ring the bell. Finally, emboldened by the darkness of the house and impelled by brotherly duty, he ran up the steps and gave the bell a sharp ring.

After a moment he heard voices, and lights began to appear in the front part of the house. In another moment Mrs. Winship appeared at the door with Kenneth's sister beside her.

"We've all been out on the back porch," announced Mrs. Winship. "Do come in. We were waiting for you to join us in a little supper, although your sister here has been unkind enough to think you couldn't be persuaded to stay."

Kenneth glared at his sister as he entered the brilliantly lighted hall. "I'm afraid I can't," he began nervously. Then he paused, speech failing him as he caught sight of his disheveled self in the mirror. "I have been—"

"I told Mrs. Winship that you would have come with me, but that you were detained by a business appointment," quickly put in his sister, giving him a warning glance.

Just then Mrs. Winship's guest, in a dainty lingerie frock, came into the room. Kenneth squirmed in his wet bathing suit as he was introduced to her.

"I really must apologize for my appearance," he started in again. "Now, don't say a word," interrupted Mrs. Winship. "We know you young business men don't have time to do everything, and we're glad to have you just as you are. Why, how wet your head is!"

"Yes, I've been working with the machine," explained Kenneth gibbly. "It was warm work and I feel as if I had been in a shower bath."

He cast a reproachful glance at his sister as he was led away to the supper table. There his physical discomfort interferred materially with his appetite. This fact, together with a violent fit of sneezing which seized him, called forth Mrs. Winship's solicitous inquiries as to his health.

After a rather strained period at the table Mrs. Winship suggested that they look over some views she had in the library.

In the confusion of rising Kenneth whispered to his sister: "Let's run for it!"

"I'm afraid we'll have to go," said she apologetically to their hostess. "Kenneth isn't feeling well."

"No, not exactly," corroborated Kenneth, sneezing again. "It's too bad that Cora's brother isn't more robust," commented Mrs. Winship when the automobile departed with the callers.

LATEST NEWS IN THE WORLD OF FINANCE AND TRADE

BOSTON MARKETS

The market today was again broad and active with higher trading more general and it seems that the public have at last entered market on a more extensive scale. In the local market East Butte and Pond Creek were the strong active features. Amal and Anacosta were quite active in New York market, but did not score advances made elsewhere, although par is confidentially predicted for Amal, within next few days and the buying is said to be first class. Most of the selling agencies have withdrawn from the copper metal market at anything under 18 cents and we believe this price will rule strong within next few days. We look for higher prices on all the copper stocks and believe the bull market will be carried higher before any reaction of account sets in.

NEW YORK MARKETS

Despite heavy realizing the stock market continued to show advancing tendencies, and sentiment was cheerful and it is felt that while money rates continue firm from the balance of the year, still the situation from that angle is well in hand. A sharp reaction is not unlikely at almost any time, but we still believe that the general trend of the market is upwards. Assessment called on Oneco of $1. Payable Oct. 10th.

SOO MAY PURCHASE GREEN BAY ROAD?

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 23.—Negotiations, it is said, are under way for the purchase by the Soo road of the Green Bay & Western, the Kewaunee, Green Bay & Western and the Ahnapee & Western railroads. It is said that officials of the Soo line made a trip of inspection over the three roads and that fact has given color to rumors relative to the proposed purchase.

That a direct line from Canada to Chicago is sought by the Soo officials is said to be a fact. It has been reported that the Soo line absorbed the Wisconsin & Michigan road between Peshtigo and Iron Mountain and has been negotiating for right of way between here and Oneco, also that the property on the bay shore bought by John March may be used for terminal facilities. The Soo officials plan an entry into the Menominee iron ore fields, it is said.

FERRIS AND WATKINS IN DUEL ON STUMP

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 23.—Speaking from the same platform Professor W. N. Ferris and L. Whitney Watkins, democratic and progressive nominees for governor respectively, forgot state issues in their eagerness to attack and defend Roosevelt Ferris did the attacking and Watkins did the defending.

It proved great entertainment for the crowd.

Ferris charged Roosevelt with being linked with the bosses and cited George W. Perkins, whom he called king bee of the country's trust promoters.

Watkins hurled the charge of bosses back at his friend, declaring that Wilson had been elected by the aid of Tammany hall and charging that his nomination was secured only through the aid of the bosses.

Three candidates for congress, followed and their remarks caused as much entertainment as the main bout between Ferris and Watkins. Albert Beebe, democratic nominee for congress charged Congressman Hamilton republican, with having been linked with cannon in the past.

Hamilton replied by challenging his opponent to show anything that would prove such association.

Then George M. Valentine, progressive candidate, accused Hamilton with talking for half an hour and not telling whom he supported for president.

"That is not so," interrupted Hamilton.

"Who are you supporting for president?" cried Valentine.

"I'll vote the republican ticket," declared Hamilton amid cheers.

"Well, at last we have smothered you out," yelled Valentine, and the crowd laughed.

Hero Worship of Gun Men Latest Craze of Women of High Caste

GUNMEN and women of some of our best families breaking bread together!

Women of genteel breeding leaving homes of luxury to associate with murderers and thieves! Women whose names stand for all that is respectable, women reared in the most refined surroundings seeking out the unsavory dives of the underworld and actually paying for the privilege of pressing, red-stained hands, whose chief occupation is pressing the trigger!

Puts a strain on the imagination to conjure such a picture, but photographic reproductions of such scenes would have been possible scores of times in the last six months if the principals in the strange meeting of social extremes had been willing. This newest and most startling phase of metropolitan life, so far as the good woman is concerned, is not an outgrowth of the recent murder which centered the searchlight of publicity on the desperadoes who have put murder on a commercial basis.

The fact—that is the most charitable thing to call it—had its inception early in the new year during one of the periods when the "gun men" were carrying on running fusillades in the crowded streets of the great east side. It began in a drawing room just off Fifth avenue one night late in January, when a young woman, surfeited with society, opera, travel and attentions of uninteresting young swains, ventured the opinion that "it would be awfully interesting to meet one of those 'gun men' face to face."

Start of the Newest "Fad." One of the young men of her set, anxious to curry favor, as well as to make good his boast that he knew police officials who had the open sesame to the sorts to arrange such a meeting. That's how it began. The party, including the young woman and several of her friends, under escort of several well known young men, left the young woman's home about midnight. The chauffeur was directed to a saloon not far from Chatham square where the police make their first stop after a crime has been committed.

In the dim light permissible in back rooms that evade the excise law by keeping open after hours these well bred girls shook hands with criminals of the worst type, men who take murder and arson contracts every day in the week, men who have been able to cheat the death chair time and again through their own cunning and the powerful assistance of the men and women of the underworld.

Encouraged to talk by liberal retainer, these murderers regaled their visitors with crime after crime which they had committed. Some more daring than the rest told of men they had killed for hire and the price that had been paid to them. The women went death white during these recitals and one of them was on the verge of fainting several times from sheer fright. Her companions, and even her vicious entertainers, told her there was nothing to fear. It was broad daylight when the car got back to the Fifth avenue district.

Provided New Sensation. "The most exquisite terror I've ever had," was the way the young woman who organized the party expressed herself when asked about it. Little by little the story of the adventure got out among the friends of the participants and it was not long before another "seeing the gun men" party was organized.

Women who have been present at these affairs say they provide the only genuine thrill left to those whose sole aim is to find new sensations. Not the least interesting, as well as amusing, feature of the nocturnal pastime is the readiness with which the "gun men" and thieves appreciate their value as criminal exhibits. A ten dollar bill and liberal refreshment would insure the visitors a pleasant chat with one of the aristocrats of thuggdom. Now the introductions and gatherings are arranged beforehand for a certain price.

"Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie," "Whitey Jack" Lewis, "Dago Frank" and the other "gun men" accused of having filled Rosenthal with lead had attained the prominence of "stars" in the drama staged by the underworld for the gratification of morbidly curious women. Indeed, they were commanding such fancy prices for handshakes and a few hours' conversation that their companions now refer to them as "suckers" for giving up a good income to take a chance on the chair.

Hard to Understand. By this time you are trying to figure out the answer. Why should the well bred girl or woman want to breathe the same air with such vile creatures? It's a riddle to those who are acquainted with the facts, as it will be to those normal men and women who are now learning of the situation for the first time.

Do not dismiss the matter with the statement that they are silly matinee girls. They are not. The matinee girls demand good looks and at least a sham bravery in their idols. These municipal outlaws have neither good looks nor courage to recommend them. They are cowards of the very worst type.

This is proved by the fact that they seldom go "man hunting" alone. They travel in bands of five or six. A careful search of the police records fails to disclose a case in which they gave their victims anything like an even chance. Four of them riddled the unfortunate gambler whose sensational killing has had the city by the ears for weeks. Time and again these craven cowards have used innocent children as shields in their street battles. No matinee girl would waste a thought on such apologies for men.

The women who have been worshipping at the shrines of these criminals and making profitable their idle hours are of a far different type than the so-called silly matinee girl. They are women of supposed refinement and assured social position, women who have reached the point where matinee idols bore them. They will tell you they are interested from a psychological standpoint.

Satiated. Seek Something New. A few of them are telling the truth, but the majority of those who have been among those present at the five o'clock (a. m.) "teas" have never shown the slightest interest in such matters up to the present time. In this case, as in many others, the word psychological is an excellent alibi for those who favor the unconventional.

Most healthy minded persons will ascribe this latest slant of some feminine minds to the same mental equipment which induces a woman to send flowers to a murderer. Right in line with the craze to meet well known and popular murderers (at the prevailing rate for an introduction) was the intense interest betrayed by many respectable women and girls sojourning in the Catskills when they learned that the alleged assassins of Rosenthal were in that vicinity. Detectives who were detailed to hunt the criminals returned with stories of how the women had besieged them to put the criminals on exhibition if they were captured.

Above All Other Pastimes. Golf, tennis, boating and all the other vacation pastimes were neglected while many of the weaker (?) sex discussed the delightful possibility of exchanging conversation with a real, honest and truly murderer. Photographs of the hunted men printed in all the newspapers, were criticized from every angle, and there were numerous tiffs between girls, who had disagreed as to the beauty qualifications of "Gyp the Blood" and some of his companions in flight. When these women learned that "Whitey Jack" Lewis had been caught and brought to this city without their getting the opportunity of meeting him they expressed their opinion of the detectives in forcible language.

Popularity of "Gyp the Blood." Because of his willingness to "hit the pipe" for the entertainment of visitors "Gyp the Blood" is said to have commanded a better price than any of the other criminals. He is a victim of the optum habit, and was wont to joke over being well paid for indulging in his favorite pastime.

"What do I think of them?" repeated one of the criminals who had been asked for his estimate of his uptown admirers. "Plumb dippy," he replied. "Most normal persons will be inclined to indorse that pithy opinion." —New York Herald.

PREPARING FOR ACTUAL WAR

Large Sums of Money Expended for Models Destroyed as Object Lesson for Gunners.

Near Okehampton, England, the other day a dummy village that had been especially built for the purpose was blown to pieces by shell fire from a battery of heavy guns placed some distance away, the object of the curious and costly experiment being, of course, to find out exactly what would happen to a real village in similar circumstances, says Pearson's Weekly.

The idea, which is not exactly a new one, was borrowed originally from Germany, where some very elaborate experiments on similar lines have been conducted. One of these involved the construction of an exact model to scale of the great Fortress of Spandau. The model was not a toy, but a real fort in miniature, covering over four acres of ground and costing $675,000 to build.

Walls, bastions, glacis, redoubts, were all solidly and substantially made. A powder magazine, in which some scores of barrels of powder were stored, was placed in exactly the same position as the real powder magazine occupied in the real fortress. Even the "money tower," wherein is kept at Spandau, ever since 1874, the sum of $6,000,000 in coin for the purpose of immediate use in case of war, was duplicated, and dummy "treasure chests," filled with steel ingots, were placed inside it. When all was ready the bombardment commenced. The guns used were real cannons, but they were fitted inside the bores with inner "jacket" tubes, so as to admit of miniature shells being fired at the miniature fortress.

Four hundred shots were fired, but the magazine remained unexploded, although every effort was made to demolish it. The money tower, however, was wrecked and the "treasure" was scattered in all directions.

A far more elaborate experiment, also conducted by Germany, was made in 1869, when Bismarck and Wolke together were planning to attack France. A scale model of Paris was built, with the fortifications and principal buildings all carefully marked out. These were then bombarded at various distances, and the effects carefully noted.

As a result, when the real Paris came to be bombarded in grim earnest some two years later, the German artillerymen were able to place their shells within the doomed city exactly how and where they liked, having previously got the ranges by experimenting on the model.

It will doubtless surprise many people, too, to learn that similar tactics have been adopted by Germany as regards England. Large-scale models of the fortifications of Portsmouth, at all events, were constructed and blown to pieces by shell fire some little time back on a lonely spot in the island of Rugen, in the Baltic sea, and doubtless other experiments of a like nature have been carried out.

Nautical Distinctions. "How do you tell the difference between a yacht and a sailboat?" said the girl with the inquiring mind. "By looking into the pantry," replied Captain Orest. "It also carries plenty of refreshments and cigars, she's a yacht. If it's mostly white victuals she's a sailboat."

ANSWER FOR A NERVOUS MAN

Finds Out What Was Turned in at Lost Department of Railroad—Probably Not His.

A tall, nervous-looking man entered the department in the railroad station where lost articles are kept. "Anything turned in here today?" he asked of the man at the desk. "There was no reply. "I say, has anything been turned in here today?" he repeated in a louder tone of voice.

"Yes, sir," calmly replied the man at the desk, without raising his eyes. "Well, why couldn't you say so? I've lost an umbrella. "I heard you, sir. "You heard me? Well, why can't you tell me what was turned in?" "Well, sir, a man was in here this morning who turned his toes in. They wouldn't happen to be yours, sir, would they?"

Not to Be Thought Of. "No, I cannot consent to be your wife. I have been told that you are temperate. "Darling, if you will be mine, I'll promise never to drink another drop as long as I live. "Yes, but you wouldn't keep your promise. "I would, I swear it. "If you can quit why don't you do so, even if I refuse to be your wife? "That wouldn't leave me anything to promise the next girl."

An Endless Job. "Who are those fellows over in the corner?" "They are Socialists. "They seem to be engaged in a very earnest discussion. "Yes, I suppose they are trying to invent new theories of government. "I thought they had plenty of new theories. "They did have, but the rest of the people have caught up with them, so they've got to invent more in order to keep ahead."

The Motor Murder. "What's your hard luck story, ho-bo?" "I was a prosperous restaurant keeper in New York. But that last murder ruined me business. "As to how?" "After that, every time an automobile rolled up to me door, me patrons all rushed out at the back."

TOO MUCH SO. Dorothy—Why don't you invite Vivian to your bridge whist parties? I understand she plays remarkably well. Estelle—Yes; she does play remarkably well. That is the reason we don't want her.

True to Form. When half way across the lake between Chicago and St. Joe Mr. Makin-brakes chanced to meet an old acquaintance. "Why, Miss Gumwell," he said, "where did you—er—get aboard this boat?"

An Office Ultimatum. "Son, we have a new typewriter. "Yes, dad, and she's a peach. "I know she is. Now I have no objection to your falling in love with her, but that back correspondence must be brought down to date first."

Not So Foolish. "You give all your money to your wife? Bah! You haven't much sense. "Oh, I don't know. I think I'm improving. I gave it to the bookmakers for years."

Prepared. "Three of the girls in that family have brought suits for breach of promise, and all have gained their suits. How do they manage it, I wonder?" "Keep away from that house. Their father has had a dictagraph installed in the parlor."

The Winsome Widow. "She says her heart is buried. That she can never love again. "And only yesterday I heard her beating intently to a nut with side whisks who was telling her that she looked beautiful in black."

EFFECT PRECEDES THE CAUSE

Clever Edinburgh Clergyman Meets His Match in Examining Student on Classes Attended.

The Rev. Dr. Ritchie, of Edinburgh, although a very clever man, once met his match. When examining a student as to the classes he attended he said:

"I understand you attend the class for mathematics." "Yes." "How many sides has a circle?" "Two," said the student. "Indeed! What are they?"

What a laugh in the court the student's answer produced when he said, promptly: "An inside and an outside." The doctor next asked: "And you attend the moral philosophy class also?"

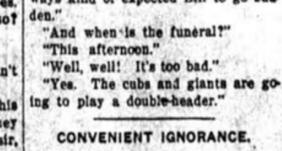

"Yes." "Well, you doubtless heard lectures on various subjects. Did you ever hear one on cause and effect?" "Yes." "Does an effect ever go before a cause?"

"Yes." "Give me an instance." "A barrow wheeled by a man." The doctor hastily sat down and proposed no more questions.—San Francisco Herald.

Too Bad. "So your brother Bill is dead? I'm mighty sorry to hear it, old man. How long had he been sick?" "Only about a week. But we always kind of expected Bill to go sudden."

"And when is the funeral?" "This afternoon." "Well, well! It's too bad." "Yes. The cubs and giants are going to play a double-header."

CONVENIENT IGNORANCE.

"How can you tell whether your automobile is going faster than the law allows or not?" "I can't tell. That's one of the beauties of it."

A Familiar Legend.

"I ought to have some legends connected with the place," said the landlord. "They bring trade, legends do. There needn't necessarily be any truth in them, you know."

"Stick to the legend that you are running a first-class hotel," advised the guest. "That legend will catch a few suckers every year."

Horrors of Journalism.

"Here's an item," observed Rivers, who was looking over the exchanges, "to the effect that the king of Sweden raises prize dogs on his farm."

"I suppose he uses them," suggested Brooks. "To drive his Stockholm." "After which the rattle of the typewriters broke out afresh with great violence."

Style Card Limitations.

Regatta—Have had to borrow some money, have you? Well, you're a short story writer, all right.

Percolium (with some bitterness)—Yes—and I can't use that one, either; they'd never let me stick a hyphen between 'never' and 'writer!'"

No Help for It.

The Dorkins family had spent a month at a summer resort. "John," said Mrs. Dorkins, with every indication of profound sorrow, "we'll have to stay here another month. Here's a letter from Mrs. Jipes, and she says they've just sold the street in front of our house."

In the Railway Mail Car.

"Here's a letter directed to Golf. Is there any such station?" "Yes; there's one in Illinois, one in Ohio, and I think one in—"

"But this is addressed to Golf, Wis." "O, that's easy; send it to La Crosse."

Entertaining Him.

"Mr. Spooner, I think I like you better than any of the other fellows that come to our house." "Why so, Bobby?" "Cause when you give sister a box of candy she always turns it over to me."

A Rare Event.

"I met Spenders just now." "Yes." "He told me he was on his way down town to pay a bill."

"Ah! Do you suppose the moving picture rights would be worth anything?"

William McIntosh, the "Scotch Indian"

HE was half Scotch, half Indian, wholly scoundrel. His mother was a squaw of the "Creek nation." His father was a Scotch trader and soldier. The son took the name WILLIAM MCINTOSH. But he remained with his mother's people and was made a Creek war chief.

The United States was eager for more of the Creek lands. McIntosh stood high in the Creek councils. He could be of use in managing "treaties" for the despoiling of his people. He willingly accepted the government's offer and secretly became its paid agent. It was a highly profitable bit of double-dealing—for a time.

Fifteen million acres of Creek land were soon after transferred to the United States. McIntosh reaped a rich harvest by this "treaty." But it ruined him with the Creeks. They made no open threats against the traitor; but they simply met in council and re-enacted his own former law, making any such future transfers punishable by death.

In 1824 McIntosh received a large cash offer for his services in a plan for ceding 10,000,000 more acres of the Creeks to the government. The majority of the Creeks fiercely protested against this glaring robbery. John C. Calhoun, secretary of state, declared that it was cruelly unjust. President Monroe laid the treaty before the United States senate. And, after John Quincy Adams' inauguration, it was approved. A letter in which McIntosh had offered bribe money to one of the Creek officials to side with the government was discovered by the Indians. This proved the wily half-breed's treachery past all question. The Creeks—using his own old law as a death warrant—declared McIntosh's life forfeited.

This time McIntosh was really alarmed. He retired to a fortified house at Milledgeville and surrounded himself with a strong guard. The Creeks went about the traitor's execution in a quiet, business-like way.

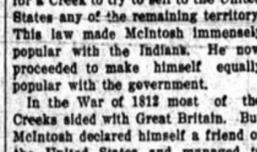

On the night of May 1, 1825, one hundred of them surrounded his house. They sent orders to his guards, servants and family to leave the place at once. Then they burned the house to the ground. McIntosh, dashing out through the flames, was shot dead.

No punishment was inflicted on McIntosh's slayers. The question of vengeance was brought before President Adams. But, for everybody's sake, it was deemed best to let the affair drop. It was a scandal the administration did not care to make too public.

Ivan The Terrible, "Heavy Villain" of Russia's Drama

A RUSSIAN boy of fourteen, after a childhood of misery and ill-treatment, was a carefully educated by his relatives in the art of cruelty. For three years this horrible education lasted. He with his own hand as long as he could strike a blow. Then he ordered his ferocious troops to continue the slaughter on them.

He was taught to enjoy robbery, plunder, torture and killing. He was made to win his teachers' applause by galloping at full speed through Moscow's crowded streets and trampling helpless women and children to death under his horse's iron-shod hoofs. The boy was Ivan IV, of Russia, known as "Ivan the Terrible."

A thousandth part of such cruelty as his would have set any nation, in late days, into a flame of revolt. But the sixteenth century Russians looked on their czar as a god, and bore meekly whatever outrages his maniac brain might choose to inflict upon them.

Ivan mounted the throne in 1533, at his father's death. He was but four years old at the time and was for the next ten years wholly in the power of brutal nobles who ruled the court. Then when he was fourteen a political clique made up of his relatives came into power and proceeded to teach him to be more a fiend than a human being. When Ivan was seventeen he had a vision, or trance, in which he believed an angel warned him to lead a better life. He obeyed—more through fear and superstition than from religious zeal.

Remorse for this murder hastened Ivan's own death. Surrounded by quacks and "magicians"—a prey to superstitious terrors—now repenting his cruelties, now feverishly planning fresh atrocities—the tyrant wore on the last three years of his vile life, dying in 1584.

Russia was least civilized of all European lands. Its early history was one of needless bloodshed and merciless conquest. The rulers were called grand dukes, until Ivan the Terrible became the first czar. He took the title of "czar" because that was the Russian form of "Caesar," a title applied to Rome's emperors. ("Kaiser" is another form of the same word.)

As the years went on Ivan's insane fear of conspiracy and assassination grew stronger. Falsely suspecting his eldest and ablest son of plotting with his foes, he struck the young man dead with a blow of his iron staff.

For the next 13 years Ivan was a model ruler. He did much for his people, was gentle and wise, and gave promise of an ideal career. The noblest influence in all his life was his lovely wife, Anastasia. He loved her and was guided by her advice. In 1568 came the change that made him an object of dread.

When at length he was well again his whole nature had changed. It is probable sorrow and illness had affected his brain. In any case he rose from his sick bed more like a wild beast than a man. He was filled with fear of fancied conspiracies. To crush these imaginary plots he slew numbers of noblemen, along with their entire families. He devised tortures too repulsive to be named. Among the mildest of these was the turning loose of wild dogs and bears among throngs of innocent people.

The city of Novgorod incurred his displeasure. He marched against it with an army and massacred 60,000 of its inhabitants. He had the prisoners herded in an inclosure and slew them

Mgr. Bolo, in his lecture one recent afternoon on young girls and marriage, in Paris, said: "In America, I have heard that engaged couples often go for a long voyage together. It is an excellent idea, though for France I should advise a chaperon. Let the young girl take a sharp pencil, an notebook, and take careful note of how her future husband meets the little worries and inconveniences of traveling. For if in things important man shows himself as he would like to be seen, it is in small things that he is really himself. Do not marry a man of whom you know little. Remember always that fiances are the most delightful of liars."

He Advantages. "Why," asked the foreign suitor, "you prefer this plain American to a man of titles?" "So is he a man of titles," replied the fair young heiress, "and his title have this advantage over yours, that they can stand an examination by guarantee and trust company."

Many a man has been known to have a train of thought.

ance with the Ordinance relating thereto, and the said owner has neglected to comply with my request. Respectfully yours, CARL E. ANDERSON, Street Commissioner.

Ald. Smith, supported by Ald. Johnson, moved that the report be referred to the Sidewalk Committee. Motion carried.

Escanaba, Mich., Sept. 11, 1912. To the Honorable, the Mayor and Common Council, City:

Gentlemen: The Second Annual Northern Michigan State Fair will be held under the direction of the Delta County Agricultural Society, at the Fair Grounds at Escanaba, on September 17-20 next.

The conduct of the fair itself entails an expenditure of two thousand dollars or more, and as you are no doubt aware, the Society is building a permanent and substantial exposition building which will be in use for this fair, at an expense of about seven thousand dollars.

The Society is desperately in need of funds with which to carry out the fair successfully. The Society has been in existence several years, and during that time has accomplished results of great benefit to the county and city. We believe we are entitled to the good will of the city officials, and to such financial support as the council may see fit to give.

The following reports were read: Escanaba, Mich., September 16th, 1912.

To the Honorable, the Mayor and Common Council, City.

I hereby respectfully report the statement of the City Scavenger duly filed with me showing the amounts of the costs or expenses incurred by or in behalf of the City of Escanaba, in removing or abating certain nuisances on the lots or parcels of land situated in the city of Escanaba, and described in said statement, to wit:

Ald. McColl, supported by Ald. Jaeger, moved that the reports be accepted, and the Mayor and Clerk be authorized to issue an order in payment of the amount due George Hogan for making water connections.

Motion carried by the following vote:

Ayes, Ald. Powers, O'Hanley, McColl, Cantlin, Jaeger, Long, Folio, Pryal, Wood, Smith and Johnson.—11.

The following resolution was read:

WHEREAS, The Street Commissioner has filed with the City Clerk an itemized statement of the amount of labor and material, and the cost of same required for the construction of sidewalks in front of certain lots and premises in the City of Escanaba, and that certain moneys have been expended by the City in payment of such work and labor, for which the owners of said lots and premises are liable, which statement is duly certified to by the Street Commissioner and has been reported by the City Clerk to this Council; and

WHEREAS, The City Scavenger has filed with the City Clerk an itemized statement duly certified by him of the amount of costs and expenses incurred by or in behalf of the City of Escanaba for certain scavenger work performed by him under the provisions of Ordinance No. 106, and the amount of such costs or expenses having been reported to this Council by the City Clerk; and

WHEREAS, The Street Commissioner has filed with the City Clerk an itemized statement duly certified by him of the amount of labor and material and the cost of same required in making water connections with certain lots and premises in the City of Escanaba, which said statement has been duly recorded to this Council by the City Clerk. Therefore, be it

We would, therefore, respectfully request that your honorable body give favorable consideration to the question of making a donation out of the general funds of the city, to the fair society, either for its building fund or to defray expenses of the fair this year.

Inasmuch as the Society has proven to the people of the county and city that its projects purpose to advance the material welfare of the city and county, there can be no petty quibble as to the legality of a city donation, in view of the objects of the donation.

We trust the time will come when the fair will be self-sustaining, but at the present time it is in need of help, and we believe that the council should appropriate at least five hundred dollars, but of course, we shall be very grateful, indeed, for any contribution, irrespective of size.

Very truly yours, The Delta County Agricultural Society.

JOHN M. MILLAR, President.

IRA C. JENNINGS, Vice-President.

PETER JENSEN, Treasurer.

TORVALD E. STROM, Secretary.

Ald. Johnson, seconded by Ald. Jaeger, moved that the communication be accepted, and said request be referred to the Finance Committee.

Motion carried.

City Engineer, D. A. Brotherton, submitted the following report:

Escanaba, Mich., Sept. 17, 1912. To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council, City:

Gentlemen: Regarding the difference in the cost of the Hartnett avenue pavement as provided in the original plans and specifications, and as agreed upon between the Street Committee and the Delta Contracting Co. I find as follows:

After the contract for improving Hartnett avenue was awarded to the Delta Contracting Company, the St. Committee decided that it would be for the best interests of the city to make some changes in the manner in which the concrete paving was to be constructed and with the City Engineer met the contractors and agreed to change the plans and specifications as follows:

- (1) The contractors to use Roughen's Street Gauge or its equal in place of the ordinary template.
(2) To use special wedge plates in place of the 1/4-inch steel plates.
(3) The expansion joints to be 4-inch wide instead of 1/2-inch and 40 feet apart instead of 25 feet.
(4) The longitudinal joints on each side of the street railway to be omitted.
(5) The concrete to be placed between and one inch below the ties of the street railway.

The stipulations in the agreement are being carried out except that it was found impracticable in most places to dig out an inch below the ties. Extra concrete to an average depth of 4 1/2 inches is being placed between the ties.

I find that the concessions of the city in placing the joints 40 feet apart instead of 25 feet and in omitting the longitudinal joints on each side of the street railway is as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. Includes 22,412 ft. Baker Placing at 6c—$1,344.72; Labor placing same—112.00; 1,743 gals. asphalt filler at 9c—156.87; Labor heating & placing same—168.00; Total—$1,781.74.

The cost of the stipulations as carried out by the contractors is as follows:

CRISES MAY BE REACHED IN AFFAIRS

Belfast, Sept. 23.—23.—A step that many persons believe will bring about a crisis in Irish affairs was taken here Monday, when delegates of the Ulster Unionist Council met to decide upon the actual terms of the solemn covenant to which all loyal Ulstermen are expected to pledge themselves.

Stories of an armed rising, of the seizure of the Belfast post office, and the like, have gained great currency as the date for the proclamation of the covenant approached, but all well informed persons agree that the circulation of such stories has been for political effect only.

Tumult may follow the signing of the covenant, but according to the best authorities obtainable it is not the design of the leaders of the movement to provoke disorder. The signers of the covenant will simply pledge themselves, if a Home Rule Bill becomes law, not to acknowledge the parliament in Dublin, not to obey its laws, and to pay no taxes to it.

It is expected that the Privy Councilors will first sign the covenant and that the covenanters who take the pledge will number from a half to three-quarters of a million. The women of Ulster as well as the men will be associated with the agreement. A special pledge has been framed where by the women undertake to "stand by our men folk in carrying out the solemn league and covenant pledging uncompromising opposition to the present conspiracy whereby it is proposed to drive Ulster out of its cherished place in the constitution of the United Kingdom.

The implicit confidence that many people have in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is founded on their experience in the use of that remedy and their knowledge of the many remarkable cures of colic, diarrhoea and dysentery that it has effected. For sale by all dealers.

SENDS HUSBAND INTO THE JAIL

London, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Mark Wilks, whose husband is in jail because she refuses to pay her taxes, is credited with discovering a new and formidable weapon for the suffragettes. The suffragettes are generally women of property and they will follow Mrs. Wilks' example immediately, it is said.

The plan will work only in the cases of husbands whose wives have independent incomes. Nor will it work in cases where the husbands pay taxes on their wives' incomes. Some husbands, like Wilks, haven't enough money to pay their wives taxes. Suffragette husbands who can pay are counted on to refuse to do so. Thus will a large portion of the Englishmen with suffragette wives be in jail shortly.

Under the married women property act a husband has no jurisdiction over his wife's property and income. Under the income tax he is responsible for her taxes. If the taxes are not paid, the husband, not the wife, is imprisoned. Mrs. Wilks refused to pay her income tax—$185—and her husband was locked up. He will spend the rest of his life in prison unless his wife pays or the law is changed. When at liberty he is a teacher in Clapton.

The PHANTOM OF THE OPERA

By Gaston Leroux

Author of THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM and THE PERFUME OF THE LADY IN BLACK. Illustrations by M.G. Kettner Copyright 1911 by The Bobbs-Merrill Company

SYNOPSIS.

Consternation is caused on the last night that the opera is managed by Deblenne and Poligny because of the appearance of a ghost, said to have been in evidence on several previous occasions. Christine Daae, a member of the opera company, is called upon to fill a very important part and scores a great success. Count de Chagny and his brother Raoul are among those who applaud the singer. Raoul tries to see Christine in the dressing room, but is unable to do so and later discovers that some one is making love to her. She emerges alone, and upon entering the room he finds it empty. While the farewell ceremony for the retiring managers is going on, the Opera Ghost appears and informs the new manager, M. Moncharmin, that he is reserved for him. The managers receive a letter from the Opera Ghost calling attention to the actress, Christine Daae, who writes Raoul that she had gone to visit the grave of her father. He goes also, and in the night follows her to the church. Wonderful violin music is heard. Raoul visits a graveyard.

"It's you, Raoul, who say that? You, an old playfellow of my own! A friend of my father's! But you have changed since those days. What are you thinking of? I am an honest girl, M. le Vicomte de Chagny, and I don't look myself up in my dressing-room with men's voices. If you had opened the door, you would have seen that there was nobody in the room!"

"That's true! I did open the door, when you were gone, and I found no one in the room."

"So you see! . . . Well!"

The vicomte summoned up all his courage.

"Well, Christine, I think that somebody is making game of you."

She gave a cry and ran away. He ran after her, but, in a tone of fierce anger, she called out: "Leave me! Leave me!" And she disappeared.

Raoul returned to the inn feeling very weary, very low-spirited and very sad. He was told that Christine had gone to her bedroom saying that she would not be down to dinner.

Raoul dined alone, in a very gloomy mood. Then he went to his room and tried to read, went to bed and tried to sleep. There was no sound in the next room.

The hours passed slowly. It was about half-past eleven when he distinctly heard some one moving, with a light, stealthy step, in the room next to his. Then Christine had not gone to bed! Without troubling for a reason, Raoul dressed, taking care not to make a sound, and waited.

Waited for what? How could he tell? But his heart thumped in his chest when he heard Christine's door turn slowly on its hinges. Where could she be going, at this hour, when every one was fast asleep at Perros? Sottily opening the door, he saw Christine's white form in the moonlight, slipping along the passage. She went down the stairs and he leaned over the balustrade above her. Suddenly he heard two voices in rapid conversation. He caught one sentence: "Don't lose the key."

began almost to run and continued from the stalls on the left, they found hastening until she came to the church."

Q. "Was the gate open?" R. "Yes, monsieur, and this surprised me, but did not seem to surprise Mlle. Daae."

Q. "Was there no one in the churchyard?" R. "I did not see any one; and, if there had been, I must have seen him. The moon was shining on the snow and made the night quite light."

Q. "Was it possible for any one to hide behind the tombstones?" R. "No, monsieur. They were quite small, poor tombstones, partly hidden under the snow, with their crosses just above the level of the ground. The only shadows were those of the crosses and ourselves. The church stood out quite brightly. I never saw so clear a night. It was very fine and very cold and one could see every thing."

Q. "Are you at all superstitious?" R. "No, monsieur, I am a practicing Catholic."

Q. "In what condition of mind were you?" R. "Very healthy and peaceful, I assure you. Mlle. Daae's curious action in going out at that hour had worried me at first; but, as soon as I saw her go to the churchyard, I thought that she meant to fulfill some pious duty on her father's grave and I considered this so natural that I recovered all my calmness. I was only surprised that she had not heard me walking behind her, for my footsteps were quite audible on the hard snow. But she must have been taken up with her intentions and I resolved not to disturb her. She knelt down by her father's grave, made the sign of the cross and began to pray. At that moment, it struck midnight. At the last stroke, I saw Mlle. Daae lift her eyes to the sky and stretch out her arms as though in ecstasy. I was wondering what the reason could be, when I myself raised my head and everything within me seemed drawn toward the invisible, which was playing the most perfect music! Christine and I knew that music; we had heard it as children. But it had never been executed with such divine art, even by M. Daae. I remembered all that Christine had told me of the Angel of Music. The air was The Resurrection of Lazarus, which old M. Daae used to play to us in his hours of melancholy and of faith. If Christine's Angel had existed, he could not have played better, that night, on the late musician's violin. When the music stopped, I seemed to hear a noise from the skulls in the heap of bones; it was as though they were chuckling and I could not help shuddering."

Q. "Did it not occur to you that the musician might be hiding behind that very heap of bones?" R. "It was the one thought that did occur to me, monsieur, so much so that I omitted to follow Mlle. Daae when she stood up and walked slowly to the gate. She was so much absorbed just then that I am not surprised that she did not see me."

Q. "Then what happened that you were found in the morning lying half-dead on the steps of the high altar?" R. "First a skull rolled to my feet. . . . then another . . . then another . . . It was as if I were the mark of that ghastly game of bowls. And I had an idea that a false step must have destroyed the balance of the structure behind which our musician was concealed. This surprise seemed to be confirmed when I saw a shadow suddenly glide along the acrosty wall. I ran up. The shadow had already pushed open the door and entered the church. But I was quicker than the shadow and caught hold of a corner of its cloak. At that moment, we were just in front of the high altar; and the moonbeams fell straight upon us through the stained-glass windows of the apse. As I did not let go of the cloak, the shadow turned round; and I saw a terrible death's head, which darted a look at me from a pair of scorching eyes. I felt as if I were face to face with Satan; and, in the presence of this unearthly apparition, my heart gave way, my courage failed me . . . and I remember nothing more until I recovered consciousness at the Betting Sun."

CHAPTER VI.

A Visit to Box Five.

We left M. Firmin Richard and M. Armand Moncharmin at the moment when they were deciding "to look into that little matter of Box Five."

on the left. Then they made their way through the front rows of stalls and looked at Box Five on the grand tier. They could not see it well, because it was half in darkness and because great covers were flung over the red velvet of the ledges of all the boxes.

They were almost alone in the huge, gloomy house; and a great silence surrounded them. It was the time when most of the stagehands go out for a drink. The staff had left the boards for the moment, leaving a scene half set. A few days of light, a wan, sinister light, that seemed to have been stolen from an expiring luminary, fell through some opening or other upon an old tower that raised its pastebord battlements on the stage; everything, in this deceptive light, adopted a fantastic shape. In the orchestra stalls, the druggist covering their jostled like an angry sea, whose gurgling waves had been suddenly rendered stationary by a secret order from the storm phantom, who, as everybody knows, is called Adamastor. MM. Moncharmin and Richard were the shipwrecked mariners amid this motionless turmoil of a calico sea. They made for the left boxes, plowing their way like sailors who leave their ship and try to struggle to the shore. The eight great polished columns stood up in the dusk like so many huge piles supporting the threatening, crumbling, big-bellied cliffs whose layers were represented by the circular, parallel, waving lines of the balconies of the grand, first and second tiers of boxes. At the top, right on top of the cliff, lost in M. Laneprey's copper ceiling, figures grinned and grimaced, laughed and jeered at MM. Richard and Moncharmin's distress. And yet these figures were usually very serious. Their names were Isis, Amphitrite, Hebe, Pandora, Psyche, Thetis, Pomona, Daphne, Clytie, Galatea and Arethusa. Yes, Arethusa herself and Pandora, whom we all know by her box, looked down upon the two new managers of the opera, who ended by clutching at some piece of wreckage and from there stared silently at Box Five on the grand tier.

I have said that they were dis-laughing like madmen, we ran to Box Five on the grand tier, went inside and found no shape of any kind."

Box Five is just like all the other grand tier boxes. There is nothing to distinguish it from any of the others. M. Moncharmin and M. Richard, ostensibly highly amused and laughing at each other, moved the furniture of the box, lifted the cloths and the chairs and particularly examined the arm-chair in which "the man's voice" used to sit. But they saw that it was a respectable arm-chair, with no magic about it. Altogether, the box was the most ordinary box in the world, with its red hangings, its chairs, its carpet and its ledge covered in red velvet. After feeling the carpet in the most serious manner possible, and discovering nothing more here or anywhere else, they went down to the corresponding box on the pit tier below. In Box Five on the pit tier, which is just inside the first exit nothing worth mentioning either.

CHAPTER VII.

Faust and What Followed.

On the Saturday morning, on reaching their office, the joint managers found a letter from O. G. worded in these terms:

"My Dear Managers: "So it is to be war between us? "If you still care for peace, here is my ultimatum. It consists of the four following conditions:

"1. You must give me back my private box; and I wish it to be at my free disposal from henceforward."

"2. The part of Margarita shall be sung this evening by Christine Daae. Never mind about Carotta; she will be ill."

"3. I absolutely insist upon the good and loyal services of Mme. Giry, my box-keeper, whom you will re-instate in her functions forthwith."

"4. Let me know by a letter handed to Mme. Giry, who will see that it reaches me, that you accept, as your predecessors did, the conditions in my memorandum-book relating to my monthly allowances. I will inform you later how you are to pay it to me."

"If you refuse, you will give Faust tonight in a house with a curse upon it."

"Take my advice and be warned in time."

"Look here, I'm getting sick of him, sick of him!" shouted Richard, bringing his fist down on his office-table. Just then Mercier, the acting-manager, entered.

"Lachenel would like to see one of you gentlemen," he said. "He is a man that his business is urgent and he seems quite upset."

"Who's Lachenel?" asked Richard. "He's your stud-groom."

"What do you mean? My stud-groom?"

"Yes, sir," explained Mercier, "there are several grooms at the opera and M. Lachenel is at the head of them."

"And what does this groom do?"

"He has the chief management of the stable."

"What stable?"

"Why, yours, sir, the stable of the opera."

"Is there a stable at the opera? Upon my word, I didn't know. Where is it?"

"In the cellars, on the Rotunda side. It's a very important department; we have twelve horses."

"Twelve horses! And what for, in heaven's name?"

"Why, we want trained horses for the processions in the Juive, the Profets and so on; horses used to the boards; it is the groom's business to teach them. M. Lachenel is very clever at it. He used to manage Franconi's stables."

"Very well . . . but what does he want?"

"I don't know; I never saw him in 'He can come in."

M. Lachenel came in, carrying a riding-whip, with which he struck his right boot in an irritable manner.

"Good morning, M. Lachenel," said Richard, somewhat impressed. "To what do we owe the honor of your visit?"

"Mr. Manager, I have come to ask you to get rid of the whole stable."

"What, you want to get rid of our horses?"

"I'm not talking of the horses, but of the stablemen."

"How many stablemen have you, M. Lachenel?"

"Six."

"Six stablemen! That's at least two too many."

"These are places," Mercier interposed, "created and forced upon us by the under-secretary for fine arts. They are filled by proteges of the government and, if I may venture to . . ."

"I don't care a hang for the government!" roared Richard. "We don't need more than four stablemen for twelve horses."

"Eleven," said the head riding-master, correcting him.

"Twelve," repeated Richard.

"Eleven," repeated Lachenel.

"Oh, the acting-manager told me that you had twelve horses!"

"I did have twelve, but I have only eleven since Oscar was stolen."

And M. Lachenel gave himself a great smack on the nose with his whip.

"My Heart Gave Way, My Courage Failed Me."

ressed. At least, I presume so. M. Moncharmin, in any case, admits that he was impressed. To quote his own words, in his Memoirs:

"This moonshine about the opera ghost in which, since we first took over the duties of MM. Poligny and Deblenne, we had been so nicely steeped—Moncharmin's style is not always irreproachable—had no doubt indeed by blinding my imaginative and also my visual faculties. It may be that the exceptional surroundings in which we found ourselves, in the midst of an incredible silence, impressed us to an unusual extent. It may be that we were the sport of a kind of hallucination brought about by the semi-darkness of the theater and the partial gloom that filled Box Five. At any rate, I saw and Richard also saw a shape in the box. Richard said nothing, nor I either. But we spontaneously seized each other's hand. We stood like that for some minutes, without moving, with our eyes fixed on the same point; but the figure had disappeared. Then we went out and, in the lobby, communicated our impressions to each other and talked about the 'shape.' The misfortune was that my shape was not in the least like Richard's. I had seen a thing like a death's head resting on the ledge of the box, whereas Richard saw the shape of an old woman who looked like Mme. Giry. We soon discovered that we had really been the victims of an illusion, whereupon, without further delay and predecessors did, the conditions in my memorandum-book relating to my monthly allowances. I will inform you later how you are to pay it to me."

"If you refuse, you will give Faust tonight in a house with a curse upon it."

"Take my advice and be warned in time."

WHO WHO

THINKS MARKETING ONE OF LOST ARTS

Many influential and prominent women of New York city are actively co-operating with the city commission in furthering the adopted plan for the creation of public markets. Among the most enthusiastic, who is waging a systematic campaign for the creation of such a system, is Mrs. Elmer Black, the international peace advocate.

"Our plan now before the city authorities is a feasible one," said Mr. Driggs, "and one which both Mr. Miller and myself have given months of study in this and other countries. We are asking for five blocks, convenient to all lines of transportation, Little West Twelfth street. The plan would cost around $3,500,000 and the buildings about that much more."

"Such markets are certain effectively to reduce the cost of living and at the same time encourage farming interests. As it is now, the actual loss to farmers is great, especially in such cases where, because of congested freight conditions, owing to inadequate handling facilities, the stuff is allowed to rot before it reaches the market."

Mrs. Black, who has made a comprehensive study of foreign markets, declared that the American woman, if she wants earnestly to help reduce the cost of living, must follow the example set by her European sister and go to market.

"Marketing is practically a lost art in the cities of this country," she declared. "Women will shop for half a day for a yard of ribbon at a bargain sale, and then rush to the delicatessen or little nearby grocery, or perhaps use the phone to get their food supplies."

JUDGE SWANN ON THE "INNER CIRCLE"

"They worship no God save graft, and they bow down at the shrine of their idolatry!"

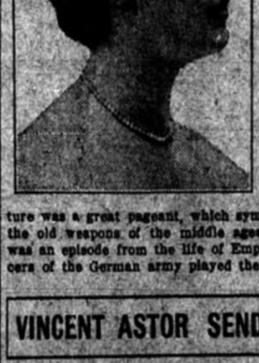

In these words Judge Edward Swann of the court of general sessions in New York, summed up the police situation. Judge Swann has been a careful and patient student of the police system for many years. He has upon numerous occasions seen fit to speak about police matters from the bench.

He has listened, with astonishment at times, to the testimony given by policemen and police detectives at the trials of men charged with being common gamblers. And upon more than one occasion he has heard the foreman of a jury return a verdict of "Not guilty" in gambling cases where the district attorney had to rely almost exclusively upon the testimony of policemen and their stool pigeons.

Judge Swann was asked if in his opinion and from information that had come to him in his official capacity gambling houses and disorderly resorts could exist unless the police stood for such places and for the violation of the law.

"You cannot make me believe that such resorts could run wide open, or run at all, for any length of time, unless the police knew about it," he said. "I wish to say right here that the police department is as a rule made up of a lot of honest, courageous, fearless men. I am very fond of the every-day policeman. But in this present inquiry that has been brought about by the brutal murder of Herman Rosenthal it is shown that graft exists in the police department today."

MAKES BIG GIFT ON KRUPP CENTENARY

In honor of the centenary of the great Krupp works at Essen the company has donated $3,500,000 to be distributed as gratuities to the 70,000 workmen, as welfare funds for citizens of Essen, and for the army and navy.

Dr. Syden, the Prussian minister of commerce, who attended the celebration, announced that a large number of orders would be conferred on Krupp employees by the emperor.

Frau Bertha Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, the richest woman in Germany, whose wealth is estimated at $70,000,000, was hostess to kings.

The celebration, for which preparations have been going forward for nearly two years, was attended by Emperor William at the head of a brilliant galaxy of his fellow German sovereigns, generals, admirals and civic dignitaries.

The festivities lasted an entire week and were of a most imposing and memorable character. The chief feature was a great pageant, which symbolized the substitution of firearms for the old weapons of the middle ages. The principal scene of the pageant was an episode from the life of Emperor Maximilian I, and 250 retired officers of the German army played the parts of knights.

VINCENT ASTOR SENDS ROSES TO J. J. VI

According to the announcement given out by Dr. Cragin, the Astor family physician, John Jacob Astor VI is getting along beautifully. The lusty infant's mother is also doing well. As for the little heir, he is phenomenally healthy and picking up weight amazingly.

The servants of the great Astor mansion at Sixty-fifth street and Fifth Avenue continue in a state of strenuous activity receiving presents for the heir and multitudes of messages of congratulations for the mother.

William Vincent Astor acknowledged the arrival of a half-brother by sending a Fifth Avenue florist to send Mrs. Astor a magnificent bunch of American Beauty roses. Other members of the Astor family have also sent flowers and presents.

There was also a telegram from Vincent Astor congratulating his step-mother. The young heir of the American branch of the Astor family, who may have a legal battle on his hands to defend his $100,000,000 inheritance from partition in favor of the late-born heir, is mothering on the ground his mother, Mrs. Ave. William Astor, and his sister, Mrs. . . .

Women Students in Berlin

The educational statistics of Berlin show that the number of women students is increasing there. The theological department alone shows a falling off, there being only one woman registered, while there were several last year. Besides the 258 women who attend lectures without matriculating, there are 12 women in the school of jurisprudence, 172 medical students and 658 in the department of philosophy. There are in all about 1,115 women students, of whom the majority are in the philology and history departments. The record shows that many of the important professors have student daughters and that these do not, as a rule, aim to perfect themselves in the branches taught by their fathers. Among the representatives of the medical class is the daughter of Dr. Reichen, mayor of Berlin, who has matriculated in the department for the study of German.

Questions and Answers.

A school teacher sends us a few more queer answers from recent examination papers in the graded schools.

"What did the Constitution do for our country? It gave the president a head."

"Name a useful domestic animal and describe its habits. The cow. He lives in a barn and don't have to have any habits."

"What is yeast? Yeast is a vegetable lying about in the air and kicking itself onto anything."

"If you were traveling across a desert, where would you choose to rest? On a rock, chair or bed."

VETERAN HESS KEEPS UP STREAK

Boston, Miss., Sept. 23.—Veteran Ott Hess again today showed shut out form and trimmed the Cincy Reds 7 to 0. Bugs opposed the come back pitcher of the Boston Staff and was clouted hard.

The score: R. H. E. Boston 7 12 0 Cincinnati 6 7 4 Batteries: Hess and Hariden. Suggs and Severoid. Umpires: Brennan and Owens.

BROOKLYN DOWNS THE ST. LOUIS CARDS EASILY

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Knetzer whirled the Dodgers to a 7 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Cards today. The visitors tried out a recruit who was clouted freely and given poor support.

The score: R. H. E. Brooklyn 7 8 1 St. Louis 2 5 3 Batteries: Knetzer and Miller. Grenier and Wingo. Umpires: Rigler and Fineran.

THE RED SOX TO 9 FAVORITES OVER GIANTS

New York, Sept. 23.—Baseball followers judging from the wags that have been made in the financial district on the approaching world's series, favor the Red Sox to defeat the Giants. It was reported today that there is little Giant money to be had in the Wall street section. Odds of 10 to 9 on Boston to beat the Giants were recorded today.

SUNDAY'S GAMES.

American League Chicago, Sept. 23.—Washington won both games of a double header by scores of 6 to 3 and 4 to 1. Scott's wildness, coupled with opportune hitting, gave the visitors the first, while the second game was won by bunching hits.

St. Louis, Sept. 23.—Philadelphia hit St. Louis' pitchers hard and timely today and ran the bases to suit themselves, while St. Louis was unable to hit the opposing pitchers when hits meant runs. Philadelphia winning two games, 8 to 2 and 4 to 1. Darkness ended the second game in the 7th.

BRAVE ACT WON PROMOTION

Brakeman's Brave Deed Appropriately Rewarded by Superintendent Who Saw It.

"About three years ago," said a railroad superintendent, "I received an engine of a new pattern on my division, and I took it out myself on a special trip, to see if the new ideas were practical. I picked out a first-class engineer and fireman to accompany me, and we were whizzing along at a sixty-mile gait, when we saw a little girl on a single track bridge ahead. As the shrill shriek of the whistle reached her ears she started to run, and then, realizing the impossibility of escape by flight, she sprang to the side of the structure, and, with a cry of fear, leaped into the water, twenty feet below. As the little girl's form struck the water the figure of the fireman whirled through the air, and after her. The stream had been swollen by recent rains, and the current was swift, so that the fireman had a vigorous struggle before he caught her dress, and when he reached the shore he was almost exhausted. As he came up the bank with the girl in his arms (the train, of course, had been stopped) we gave him three cheers and a tiger, and he only replied to it with the remark, 'Christopher Columbus! but that water is cold!' The crowd clapped in a neat little purse, and when I got to my office I made him an engineer. I think he deserved the promotion."

WHAT BECAME OF 3 FIGHTING JACKS

It doesn't seem like twenty years ago since three great battles for three fistie crowns were fought at the New Orleans carnival. And yet it is a week more than than a score of years since John L. Sullivan, Jack McAuliffe and Jack Skelly, "the three fighting Jacks," lined up against Jim Corbett, Billy Meyer and George Dixon, John L. Sullivan, then the most popular boxer in the ring, carried a ton of money on him at 3 to 1. Corbett wasn't supposed to have a look-in against the mighty John L., but he trimmed him to the intense surprise of millions of people—some of whom are wondering at it yet. And John L. didn't get a dollar out of it. He installed the entire purse of $25,000 should go to the winner, much to his subsequent disgust.

McAuliffe and Meier fought for a purse of $10,000 and a bet of $5,000 a side, which McAuliffe won after a hard battle. Dixon and Skelly fought for a purse of $17,500 and a bet of $5,000 a side. Dixon won this event because Skelly's nose had been broken two days before by one of his own sparring partners, and Dixon was "wised up" to it. Dixon kept popping in on Jack's poor bugle from the tap of the bell. The pain became so intense that Skelly was nearly frantic. He fought wild and Dixon, the little black marvel, kept the featherweight crown.

Dixon went the pace and died a few years ago without a button to his shirt. A drinking fountain was erected to the little fellow's memory, but it was suddenly sidetracked and nobody seems to know where it reposes now.

Sullivan slammed around for several years hitting the high spots and trying to lap up all the red-eye in the market. One day he climbed aboard the waterwagon and strapped himself on tightly. "He'll fall off and get killed, intirely—he'll fall that hard," said One-Eyed Connelly when the news went far and wide that John L. had mounted the waterwagon. But the Big Fellow stuck tight. He has a nice estate at North Abington, Mass. He paid off thousands of dollars of foolish debts he contracted during his volcanic spree, and he is believed to have $100,000 to the good.

Jim Corbett lives at Bayside, L. I. works right along on the stage and has amassed a fortune reported to amount to nearly $200,000. Billy Meyer has also prospered. He is in business in New Orleans, and Jack Skelly is making money hand over fist in high-toned irrigation parlors in Yonkers.

Jack McAuliffe hasn't saved a dollar but he isn't missing a trick. He is well clothed and well fed and he buys a drink in his turn—so that will be all today about the "Three Fighting Jacks" and the three men they faced twenty years ago.

CHANGE IN EXAMINATIONS

New York Sept. 23.—A ruling of great interest to country banks was laid down today by Comptroller Murray in an address to a gathering of National Bank Examiners. On and after October first Murray said he desired that at the examination of country banks the board of directors be convened and an examination of assets made in their presence. He has notified banks of this by letter.

MRS. ASTOR AND BABY ON WEEK'S OUTING; BOTH WELL

Bernardsville, N. J., Sept. 23.—Mrs. John Jacob Astor and her millionaire baby are here for a week's outing. Both are in the best of health. It is declared. The baby had his first photograph taken before leaving New York for this place. Only four copies of the picture will be printed one for his grand parents, one for his mother one for Vincent Astor and one to be retained by the photographer. The infant was a month old on September 24.

TAFT MAY GO TO HOT SPRINGS

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 23.—Plans for President Taft's vacation here were changed today and it became known that the president probably will remain in Beverly only until Oct. 20. He had intended staying at Parramatta until a few days before election and then, closing up his summer home, go to Cincinnati to vote.

According to the new plans, the president will leave Beverly with Mrs. Taft for Hot Springs, Va., late in October. He will vote in Cincinnati and return to Hot Springs for a long stay, probably remaining there until a few days before congress convenes, in December.

WOMEN WILL SEEK D If woman's suffrage is adopted at the November election, women not citizens will be seeking naturalization papers the next time there after an examination is held, provided of course they desire citizenship. This raises an interesting situation which is explained by a well posted Marquette attorney.

When a woman marries, she assumes the nationality of her husband. Therefore any woman who marries an American citizen, whether he was born here or naturalized here, becomes herself an American citizen, regardless of where she was born. Therefore such women would not be forced to become naturalized, but would be permitted to vote if her husband were eligible to the ballot.

On the other hand if an American woman marries a man not an American citizen, she loses her citizenship. A case in point is that of the American girl who last week married a Chinese student at Ann Arbor. That woman, so far as citizenship, is concerned, is a Chinese now, and could not vote if suffrage were granted, because Chinese cannot become citizens. On the other hand, should her husband die, her citizenship would revert to America automatically without any process of law whatever, and she then would be permitted to vote.

In the case of unmarried women of foreign birth, they would have to go through the same process of law as a man in order to secure the ballot.

SOCIALISM AND CRIME KEEP PACE

Berlin, Sept. 23.—Socialists are fond of proclaiming that their creed furnishes a complete substitute for religion and for morals as taught by religion in its law-abiding effect upon the people. German socialists, moreover, have asserted that crime is due largely to the illusion and hypocrisy of religion, and that it decreases as socialism advances.

That contention is disproved by a series of statistical figures just made public, which show that criminality in Germany has increased in rapid ratio with the spread of socialism. In Prussia, where the socialist vote increased from 7 per cent, in 1884 to 26 per cent in 1907, criminality increased from 1,023 per 100,000 population to 1,355.

In Berlin, where there has been a socialist increase of from 34 per cent to 66 per cent, in the same period, criminality has increased from 1,216 to 1,622. In the Rhine province the socialist increase from 7 per cent to 20 per cent, has been accompanied by a growth in crime from 878 to 1,270.

In Bremen, where the socialist vote rose from 23 per cent of the total population to 51 per cent, criminality jumped in the same period from 1,295 to 2,101. In Posen, on the other hand where the socialist vote is only 1 per cent, crime shows a decrease from 1,579 to 1,449. In Saxony, where socialism increased from 35 per cent to 58 per cent, criminality shows but a slight increase, 928 to 960.

In all Germany the socialist vote in the period named has increased 29 per cent and crime 20 per cent. The statistics quoted show that instances of bodily injury inflicted increased 50 per cent throughout the empire, while robbery, larceny and swindling increased 75 per cent, with a particularly large growth in strong socialist centers as against a comparatively small increase in places where religion is still a strong factor.

While it is not asserted that the increase in criminality is due to the spread of socialism, it is declared by students of these figures that they do show that socialism has failed to prove, in Germany at all events, that it is equal to or an adequate substitute for religion as a moral and law enforcing factor in the welfare of a nation.

AS THE WHEELS TURN MYSTERY INVOLVED THAT HAS PUZZLED THE WISEST.

Railroad Man Describes Queer Things, but Cannot Attempt to Explain Them—Does the Edge Go Around the Axle?

"The wheel that turns under the locomotive or the car has a long and queer history," says a writer in the Railroad Man's Magazine, but the mystery is still with us, and whirrs its hundred question marks before our eyes every minute of the day.

Of course every one believes that the edge of the wheel goes around the axle. But does it? Take the end of any spoke near the tire, or any part of a still, windless night fasten a candle to it; then back off till nothing can be seen but the candle flame.

"Let the wheel revolve slowly, free from the ground. The candle flame makes a circle of fire all right, and goes around the axle. Now lower the candle until it rests on the ground and start ahead. The flames suddenly stops going in a circle and begins to make a wavy line, first high and then low. It goes around nothing at all.

"Men with clear minds can perform the experiment satisfactorily by tying a handkerchief around the tire in daylight, but to do this takes a keen mathematical imagination, because the eye is confused by other moving objects and is not able to see the handkerchief free from these other influences.

At night the candle flames alone can be seen, so that is perhaps the best time to try the matter out. Tie a torch to a locomotive driver and then send the engine slowly back and forth while the observer is off some hundred feet distant in the dark. The torch does not move in a circle.

"Now we will say that a man has just performed this experiment. He has seen with his own eyes that the torch does not go around anything at all, but that it simply goes ahead somewhat like a flying machine rising and falling to the wind, coming to a dead stop at its lowest point and going twice as fast as the engine when at its highest point. Well and good.

"Without touching anything on the first engine, just board a second engine and ride back and forth and watch that torch, or candle flame. This time it goes around the axle. Leave the second engine and stand still on the ground and the flames at once begins the wavy lines. Why is it? No one knows.

"The fact that the bottom of an engine wheel always stands still is more easy to learn than the fact that the top of the wheel moves just twice as fast as the train, but this can be proved easily with a piece of board.

"Take a piece of board, say ten feet long, and lay one end on top of the wheel. Now move the engine forward two feet and you will find that the board has gone ahead four feet. Just twice as far as the engine. Lay down the board and tie two pieces of string to the wheel, one at the top and the other at the bottom, where it rests on the ground. Now run your engine forward two feet and see what happens. The bottom string has moved forward too, but not nearly as far as has the top piece of string, although the ends were even at the start."

Took His Train Through.

During a strike in the coal regions a Hocking Valley coal train was stopped by the strikers about a quarter of a mile from a wooden bridge. The leader of the strikers told the engineer that he must not pull that train through, and the engineer declared that he would. "Come down, Jim!" cried one of the strikers. "We know you too well to harm you. We have a keg of powder on that bridge, and when the boys see you coming, they are going to light the fuse." "All right," replied the engineer, grimly. "I've promised to pull this train through, and through she goes." With these words he opened the throttle and the train dashed on. The strikers saw the train coming and lit the fuse. On and over the bridge the train went; as the last car cleared the structure bang! went the powder, and the bridge was blown to splinters. The fuse was a quarter-inch too long.

British Locomotives.

Although the British locomotives, limited as they are by the narrower clearances of tunnels, bridges, etc., have never reached the size of locomotives in America, there has been a steady growth in dimensions, and some of the latest engines are extremely powerful. Thus 10 of the Atlantic type, built for the East Coast Scottish express use, have a total heating surface of 3,465 square feet, and a grate area of 27 square feet. The barrel of the boiler is 5 feet 6 inches in diameter and 15 feet 10 1/2 inches in length. The tank has a capacity of 4,125 gallons of water and 5 tons of coal. The total weight of the engine alone is nearly 90 tons.

CONVICT PROVES TRUSTWORTHY

Grand Rapids, Sept. 23.—Although the prison door of Ionia reformatory has again swung on Bert McCellan, who is serving a two-year sentence for robbing the express office at the Union Station the model prisoner is happy, as his visit to his home has been the means of saving the life of his year-old baby, whose critical illness gained the prisoner a week's parole from the reformatory.

One week ago yesterday Gov. Osborn gave McCellan his release from the prison in order that he might come to Grand Rapids to visit his wife and child. The attending physician said that there was little hope of his recovery and local business men who had interested themselves in McCellan petitioned the governor to grant the man a week's parole in hopes that the father's visit might be the means of saving the child's life.

Last night McCellan took the train back to Ionia, with the assurance of the physician that his child would recover.

McCellan was permitted to leave the reformatory on his honor, and not once during his parole was he under the surveillance of the authorities. The local police department did not even know where the family lived.

On his way to the station last night McCellan stopped in to see some of his former friends who had known him when he was working in the city.

"Of course I hate to go back, but I told them I would be back at the end of the week, and I am going," McCellan told his friends. "It is certainly hard to leave my wife and child but I would not violate the trust the governor put in me." He found it hard to keep back the tears when he bought his ticket to Ionia but true to his word, he took the train, although he knew he was not guarded.

McCellan has been a model prisoner since being confined at Ionia and his term of five years has been shortened to two. He hopes to be released the first of the year.

Mrs. Kate Henry and son, Alfred, are visiting at the O'Brien home on Ayer street.

Mrs. Fred Fillion and son, Leo, of Foster City are visiting with relatives in the city.

GLADSTONE TIGES BADLY BEATEN

The Escanaba & Lake Superior baseball team on Sunday defeated the Gladstone Tigers at the Wells grounds by a score of 13 to 4. E. Johnson and Murray formed the battery for the visitors while Hogland and Bergstrom made up the battery for the Gladstone aggregation. Johnson struck out 13 men and allowed but six hits, while Hogland was pounded for 13 hits and whiffed six men.

CLOSE UP WORK AT FAIR GROUNDS

The booths at the fair grounds have been almost entirely vacated by the merchants and little is left of any value to be removed.

Until yesterday five officers had been maintained at the fair grounds, but today all of them will probably be removed and the Northern Michigan State Fair will be closed until another year.

BULL MOOSEERS IN SESSION

(Continued from page One.) The minds of the people of the country are being poisoned by the doctrines preached by the newspapers that have been bought up. He asserted that for years the bosses have named the officers of the nation and that the time is now ripe for a new deal and a square deal for the people and which, he claimed, only could come through the election of Theodore Roosevelt as president. The speaker feelingly referred to the "Rough Rider" as the only real friend of the common people that had been developed in the past generation and generously predicted for him a sweeping victory, not only in Michigan, but throughout the nation.

Dr. Latchaw following with a general espousal of the cause of the National Progressives, taking up the different planks of the Bull Moose platform and explaining their meaning and intent to the audience. Like Mr. McDonald, the address of Dr. Latchaw was well received and generously applauded by the audience.

CELEBRATE HIGH MASS

Solemn High Mass will be celebrated over the body of Mrs. Frank Hamacher, at St. Joseph's church at 9:30 o'clock this morning, when it is expected that scores of people will gather to pay their final respects to the memory of the worthy woman.

Rev. Father Julius will celebrate the mass and will be assisted by Rev. Father Barth, of St. Patrick's church as deacon; Rev. Father Buchholtz, of Negaunee, sub-deacon, and Rev. Fr. Leo, master of ceremonies.

A great many beautiful floral offerings have been received at the home, speaking eloquently of the esteem in which Mrs. Hamacher was held and the general sorrow that was caused by her unexpected death.

The announcement of the death of Mrs. Hamacher, coming from Marquette, where she submitted to an operation on Thursday, proved a terrible shock to many people in all parts of the city. The body was received in the city on Sunday evening and was taken to the family home at 1101 Ludington street, where it will lay in state until the hour of the funeral this morning.

Among the outside relatives who have arrived here to attend the funeral are the brothers of Mrs. Hamacher, from Green Bay and Mrs. Mary Borth of Green Bay, mother of Rev. Father Barth and at whose home she is a guest.

GIVE REMAINING EXHIBITS AWAY

A charitable idea has been decided upon for the disposition of the farm truck that was left unclaimed at the fair grounds.

All exhibits of this nature will be given to the Salvation Army to be distributed among the poor of the city which will probably be of material aid as it is reported that there is a large amount of vegetables to be disposed of.

REPUBLICANS TO DETROIT

Members of the Republican delegation to the state convention of that party left the city on Sunday evening and last night for Detroit, where the convention will open today.

The interest of Delta county people will center in the action of the convention today on the candidacy of Auditor General O. B. Fuller, who is a candidate for renomination at the session of this afternoon.

ESCANABA GIRL SHOT

(Continued from Page One) old, where he operated a skating rink. He later was successful in the hotel business. Among his letters were three addresses to his wife, Mrs. T. H. Davies of Bridgeville, Pa., containing deeds to 160 acres of land in Maricopa county, Arizona, a $100 bill, four travelers' checks for $200 each issued by the Valley Bank of Phoenix and a deposit note for $250 in the same bank.

Across one envelope was written: "Enclosed find $100, also suit case and trunk if you want to claim them." Also, "Am sending you two envelopes which I bequeath to you with all my worldly goods. Best to you and Nora (the latter his daughter). Tom."

Another letter addressed to his brother, James Davies of Vancouver, B. C., stated: "Dear Jim, and all of the dear folks: I'm sane and have figured for four months on this. If I can do you any good in the other life I'll try. And if there is anything in spiritualism you'll hear from me. Good-by all. Tom." "Enclosed find $200 I owe you. Also write Fern (Davies' wife) care Charles Schneider, Bridgeville, Pa., and see if she got the money I sent her and also deed to land in Arizona."

Disposition of Davies' body will await word from his relatives.

FOUND DEAD IN ROOM

Lying face downward on the floor of his room the lifeless body of Delis Porter, was found at the home of Valentine Sauter, in the Danforth Settlement yesterday morning. Mr. Porter was about 53 years of age and had been employed at the farm for the past year. Although he had not enjoyed good health for several weeks he appeared to be in a particularly jovial mood when he retired to his room on Sunday evening. Shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Sauter heard him walking about the floor of the room but thought nothing of the matter. When he did not appear when breakfast was ready one of the members of the family went to the room to call him. He was found lying dead on the floor.

Dr. P. C. Dube, coroner, was called and after making an investigation found that death was due to an attack of heart failure. The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of J. A. Allo.

Mr. Porter had no relatives residing in this district but it is thought that members of his family live at Northville Mich., and the authorities of that place have been notified to inform the members of his family there. Funeral services will be conducted over the body at the undertaking rooms of J. A. Allo this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. P. B. Ferris, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. Interment will be at Lakeview cemetery.

FINE MACHINE IS INSTALLED

Kratze Brothers have just installed in their office one of the latest models of the Wales' Adding Machines by which the office work is greatly simplified. The machine has a split keyboard and is arranged with keys for the months and dates to do statement work. The machine also has a set of keys for the different departments and which feature of the contrivance is used to show the sales distributor. The new machine, with the complete equipment gives to Kratze Brothers one of the best office systems in the county.

The Ladies of St. Paul's German Lutheran church will give a supper next Thursday evening in basement of church, cor. Jennie and Jacob Sts. from 5 to 8 o'clock. Price 25c. You are invited. 268-31.

CHILD IS BITTEN BY STRAY DOG

The four-year-old son of Officer Otto Scheriff was severely bitten by a dog at Hale street and Harrison avenue yesterday morning. The child was standing at the street corner when he was attacked by the animal, which was finally driven off by two women who appeared.

The lad was rushed to a physician's office where his injuries were attended to and it is not thought that any serious results will follow.
