START ACTIVE WORK TODAY

GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT OF COMPANY THAT IS TO BUILD HOTEL WILL COME HERE WITH CREW TO-DAY

A telegram was received in the city yesterday announcing that Fred R. Baker, general superintendent of the Guaranty Construction Company of Chicago, to whom the contract for building Escanaba's new hotel has been awarded, will arrive in Escanaba this morning with his crew of men. The company's building equipment was delivered here on Monday and will be unloaded as soon as Mr. Baker and his crew reach the city this morning.

Mr. Baker will bring with him to Escanaba heads for different departments of the construction work and all of the men possible to push the work on the building will be secured in this city.

It is planned to push the work on the new structure as fast as possible and from the time of the arrival of Mr. Baker today, Escanaba's new hotel, that is to fill a long felt need, will go up rapidly.

PLAYERS IN ACTION

Members of the St. Joseph's school and the Alpha baseball team will clash at South Park on Sunday, with favorable weather conditions prevailing. In what will probably prove the final ringing down of the baseball curtain for the season of 1912 in Escanaba. Practically all of the best amateur players of the city will be in the game with the two teams, and the management of the local league squad will be in attendance with a view of getting a line on players who may be available for next season's league team.

It is probable that Garland, star pitcher of the St. Joseph's team staff, will do the hurrying for that squad, while the selection for mound duty for the Alphas will be between Nolden, Hess and Jimmie Smith.

The St. Joseph's players have once this season beaten the Alphas, the former team claiming the amateur championship of Delta county, but the game Sunday is arranged to give the Alphas another chance for revenge from their younger opponents.

WOMAN WHO WROTE CHECKS IS DEAD

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 25.—Miss Mary H. Russell, who during twenty-five years of service in the city comptroller's office is said to have written checks totaling more than a billion dollars, died today in a north side drug store. Miss Russell was seized with a heart attack while on the way to her home. Miss Russell had been given a two months' leave of absence and had prepared to go to Kenosha, Wis., today. Grief was said to have played a part in the death of Miss Russell, who was the oldest woman in extent of service employ by the city. Two of her sisters died within the year and last week her eldest and most intimate friend in the comptroller's office died.

ENGINEER CHIEF IS COMING HERE

A special meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of Escanaba will be held at their hall at 2 o'clock this afternoon, that the members of the order may meet M. W. Cadle, of Cleveland, assistant grand chief engineer of the order. The high official will arrive in the city this morning, according to a message received by Chief Engineer William Finnegan, of the local lodge, and immediately after the receipt of the telegram arrangements were made for the special meeting of this afternoon.

CITY ATTORNEY ILL WITH TYPHOID

The rumor that City Atty. Spencer was threatened with typhoid fever was proven a reality yesterday morning when the family physician called at the Spencer home and conducted a careful diagnosis of the case. The city's legal affairs will probably be placed in some other local attorney's hands until the recovery of Attorney Spencer.

DEBT IS GROWING

TOTAL OF CITY'S BONDED DEBT, EXCLUSIVE OF PROPOSED SEWER BONDS IS $183,500.

According to a statement that has been prepared by City Clerk A. J. Peplin, the total bonded indebtedness of the city of Escanaba, exclusive of the $80,000 bond issue authorized at the spring election this year to allow the construction of a trunk sewer through the western portion of the city, is $183,500. The total bonds that have been issued for the city to carry out different public improvements amount to $275,000 and of that amount there remains unpaid $183,500. The issue that was authorized last spring for sewer construction work raises the city's bonded debt to $263,000 and with the issue that is now proposed by the council to complete the big trunk sewer, if it is carried will raise the bonded indebtedness of Escanaba to $311,000.

Following are the bonds issued and now outstanding as shown by the books of the city clerk, exclusive of the $80,000 issue authorized last spring.

LOCAL LEAGUE MEN ARE SOUSING BALL

The sensation of the inter-league series between Duluth and Oshkosh has been the hitting of McAuley, former third baseman for the Gladstone team of the Upper Peninsula-Wisconsin league and Dutch Persch, formerly of the local baseball squad. Both McAuley and Persch finished the season with the Superior team of the I.-C. league and joined the Duluth squad for a barnstorming trip that culminated in a series with Oshkosh, winners of the Wisconsin-Illinois league pennant. Both Persch and McAuley have been hitting the ball like fiends in the inter-league series against the Oshkosh twirlers while neither established enviable records in the local league following the impression to be gained that the local league this season was far faster than either the Wisconsin-Illinois or the International in which the two players participated through the remainder of the season.

MAY PLAY FOR THE JUVENILE PENNANT

Members of the Company C baseball team, St. Patrick's Boys Brigade, last night issued a challenge to the baseball team representing the Knights of King Arthur for a series of three games by which the juvenile championship of the city may be determined. No demand is made by the challengers either as to the dates on which the games shall be staged or the place where the series will be played.

DEFNET DRAY HAS A NEW ENGINE

The F. J. Defnet motor dray now has a new four cylinder Flanders engine to replace the old two-cylinder Packard engine and yesterday was given its first tryout, and passed through the test very successfully. The engine was installed at the Edwards garage.

NEGLECTED TO GET KEYS

ESCANABA LAD ARRESTED AT GLADSTONE MAKES QUICK ESCAPE.

Because of the fact that the Gladstone police neglected to take a bunch of keys from the pockets of an Escanaba lad, when he was arrested in the Upper Bay City on Monday for speeding a motorcycle and placed in the city lockup, he unlocked two doors and made his escape from the city jail. When officers went to take him to the police court on a charge of exceeding the speed limit of that city, it was found that the prisoner had flown. He did not appear in Escanaba yesterday and it is thought that he has escaped from the district.

The young man, who had been employed for a time at the Third Ward livery stable, rented a motorcycle from Edward Bolger Tuesday afternoon. He made the run to Gladstone and it was while speeding on the main street of the Upper Bay City that he was arrested. He was taken to the lockup and placed in a cell while his machine was placed for safe keeping at the fire station. He carried a bunch of keys in his pocket and as soon as the officers disappeared he found keys in his possession that would open both the inner and outer doors of the jail. He quietly made his escape and great was the amazement of the Gladstone officers when they went to the lockup later in the day and found that their prisoner had made a clean escape.

STEEL FRAMES IN POSITION

Steel frames have been placed in position for the roof of the new Swedish Lutheran church, which is under the course of construction at Mary street and Wells avenue.

The walls of the building have now been constructed to a point to allow the placing of the steel roof girders in position and the work of placing the roof on the structure will be started at once while the several steeples and gables that are to adorn the structure are being rushed upward. By placing a roof over the building at once it will be possible to undertake the interior work shortly, when unfavorable conditions cannot interfere with the progress of operations, allowing the final completion of the building but little later than first agreed upon when the contract was awarded.

HIGH ARMY OFFICER COMING TO CITY

Col. Stephen Marshall and son, Capt. Marshall, of Minneapolis, will visit Escanaba and conduct a special meeting on Thursday night, Oct. 3rd, at 8 p. m. Col. Marshall is the head of this province of the Salvation Army and it is indeed a privilege to hear him. He is a wonderful speaker and has had much experience in the army work. The Captain feels highly favored by his visit.

Captain Marshall is an excellent cornetist, has also acted as a singing evangelist. He has recently had charge of the army work in Wausau, Wis. Everyone is invited to attend this meeting at the Salvation Army hall, 823 Ludington St.

The deceased had been ill several months prior to her death.

AUXILIARY WILL CONDUCT A SALE

A rummage sale will be conducted by the Young Women's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian some time during the month of October.

CHILD WAS CARELESS

Crossing Ludington street in the middle of the block, directly in front of a heavy trucking team, Ina Peterson, nine-year-old daughter of Andrew Peterson, of 907 Escanaba avenue, collided with a motorcycle, ridden by F. Villemure, of the West End Cycle Works. Mr. Villemure had his machine under complete control and stopped within two feet. The little girl was thrown to the pavement but escaped without serious injury, being able to go to her home alone.

The little girl was on her way to her home from school. When directly in front of the Cleary building, near the Georgia street crossing, she stepped from the sidewalk into the street directly in front of a team, belonging to the N. A. Bink Company. The driver pulled up the team just in time to miss striking the little girl. Mr. Villemure was riding east on Ludington street, at a slow rate of speed. He was just passing the Bink Company's team, riding near the car tracks, on the south side of the street, and did not see the little girl, until she jumped in front of the horses and landed directly against the side of the motorcycle. Mr. Villemure made a record stop of the machine and picked up the little girl who ran crying to her home.

WINTER WEATHER HITS CENTRAL WEST

Decided winter weather conditions swept the central west yesterday, causing the hoisting of a northwest storm warning signal in Escanaba yesterday afternoon and prediction for a sharp drop in the temperature here today. Freezing temperatures were reported yesterday as far south as the northern boundaries of Oklahoma and New Mexico and as far east as the western portion of Minnesota, Nebraska, the Dakotas and the Missouri river.

A heavy snow fall was reported in the Dakotas, Wyoming, Colorado and the western portion of Nebraska. Yesterday afternoon Observer Jaki received instructions to expect a storm warning for a heavy disturbance over northern Michigan, increasing in intensity and with a southwest gale shifting to the northwest. According to the prediction issued last night by Observer Jaki, the mercury will drop sharply this morning but with the storm gradually clearing during the day. Of general weather conditions, Observer Jaki says:

A storm area, central over north-eastern Minnesota, covers the upper Mississippi Valley and upper lakes this morning, and is followed in the west by an area of high pressure and cold clearing weather. Temperatures of freezing or slightly below, extend over the eastern Rocky Mountain slope and Plains States as far south as Colorado and Kansas, and snows fell in the Dakotas, Western Nebraska, and eastern Colorado. General rains fell over the upper Mississippi valley and the lake region since yesterday morning, and temperatures have remained about seasonable throughout the east. Colder weather however, is predicted for this section. Rain, with brisk and probably high south wind, will continue in this vicinity tonight, followed by northwest wind and clearing weather Thursday.

The Misses Marguerite and Madeleine Greenhoot, daughters of ex-Mayor and Mrs. Solomon Greenhoot, will leave tonight for Washington, D. C., where they will enter the National Park Seminary, as students.

Mrs. William Clark of the Soo is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Blanchette.

JOY RIDERS NEAR DEATH

GUSTAV LARSON AND PARTY OF FRIENDS HAD MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

Gustav Larson, of the Main hotel, and three passengers in an automobile driven by him, escaped death by the narrowest margin early yesterday morning the auto collided with a railing constructed along a high embankment, leading to the approach of the bridge over the Ford River at Hyde, and plunged over the side into the ditch.

The auto struck the end of the railing, which had been recently erected to prevent rigs from going over the side of the steep embankment. A heavy piece of timber 4x4 inches in dimensions, that formed the top of the railing, struck the windshield on the driver's side as the car dashed forward at a high rate of speed. Crashing through the windshield, the timber caught the driving wheel and snapped it off in the hands of the driver. Passing Mr. Larson the timber caught Mr. Molin's clothing at the right side and stripped him to the skin on that side. Piercing the back of the front seat the timber ran through the back and punctured the heavy sheet of iron at the rear and protruded well into the tonneau of the car. After slicing off eight heavy cedar posts as if they had been matches the car lurched down the ten foot embankment on its nose and was brought to a sudden standstill. All

BULL MOOSE ON THE TRAIL

Dr. John R. H. Latchaw of Chicago and Atty. W. J. McDonald, of Houghton, who gave impetus to the Bull Moose sentiment in Escanaba at a meeting held here on Monday evening, are now conducting a tour through the principal cities of the peninsula.

Open to engagements after Nov. 5, is giving particular attention in the present tour to the Bull Moose platform, while Mr. McDonald is building up his fences for his congressional race.

SHOWING WAS GOOD

COL. MOTT OF DEVELOPMENT BUREAU, ENTHUSIASTIC OVER IMPRESSION MADE AT STATE FAIR.

Col. C. W. Mott, manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, has returned to the peninsula from Detroit, where he attended the Michigan State Fair. Col. Mott took a collection of upper peninsula products to the state fair and which attracted a great amount of interest from lower peninsula farmers who were in attendance.

The colonel was greatly pleased with the upper peninsula exhibit at Detroit, but declares that next year's display will surpass it, the experience gained this year being of great value.

The potato exhibit from the upper peninsula attracted much attention, the colonel said. Many farmers who visited the fair, and there were hundreds of them, asked to be shown the Jersey Reds and then tried to rub the skin off, but in no case could they budge the outer covering of the tubers this showing that the potato was sound inside. Colonel Mott declares that there were no potatoes shown that could compare with the upper peninsula consignment. The grasses and grains also came in for praise, the alfalfa sent down being the best at the fair, while the exhibit of clover was the envy of every dairyman who examined it. The threshed grains

M'GEE GOES BACK TO CRYSTAL FALLS

"Jack" McGee, who served as a member of the Gladstone baseball team for a portion of the season and later going to Ishpeming where he finished at the top of the batting list for that team in the Iron Copper Country League, will go to Crystal Falls where he will take a position for the winter. Since the close of the schedule in the Iron Copper Country league, McGee has been playing with the Crystal Falls squad in the Iron-Dickinson county league and aided that team in landing the pennant.

He has been visiting with friends in Escanaba for the past few days and will go to Crystal Falls to remain this morning.

NORTH STAR MEMBERS INVADE GLADSTONE

A large part of the membership of the local lodge was represented in the delegation that went to the upper bay city last night. They were met at the car and escorted to the Wassa hall where a ceremonial session was carried out and following which an elaborate banquet was served.

REPUBLICANS OPTIMISTIC

DELEGATES TO STATE CONVENTION SCATTER FOR HOMES, CERTAIN OF VICTORY FOR PARTY IN MICHIGAN

(Special to the Morning Press) Detroit, Sept. 25.—A general feeling of optimism permeated the delegates to the Republican state convention as they scattered from the city to their homes today, following the convention of yesterday. Yesterday's convention was a veritable love feast, where heated clashes had been expected and today there was a feeling of certainty among those who attended the convention that the internal strife in the Republican party in Michigan is at an end and that all factions of the party are now to get together and roll up at the November election, Michigan's normal Republican majority.

The resolutions adopted deal with recent legislation enacted by the party. They favor a comprehensive investigation of all state institutions, oppose the employment of prison labor on private contracts, favor the acquisition of prison farms and the employment there of the greatest possible number of convicts, favor the initiative and referendum on legislative questions, urge a more vigorous policy in the improvement of state highways and submit a proposal that the automobile license fees be paid to the

YOUNG MAN ARRESTED

Robert Thiel, of Pentoga, Wis., who was arrested here less than a year ago on a charge of passing forged checks and who was turned over to his father upon the settlement of the charges against him, was arrested in Escanaba again yesterday morning while attempting to pass a forged check. The sheriff at Pentoga was notified of the arrest and he will arrive in Escanaba this morning to take charge of the youthful prisoner.

Thiel is now on parole as the result of his escape of less than a year ago, and it is now expected that he will be returned to the reform school at Green Bay to serve out his sentence.

USE AUTO MOMEY FOR ROAD WORK

"A great number of important changes are suggested in the Michigan state laws by the Michigan Good Roads association, which closed its convention at Kalamazoo recently," said a local automobilist today. "Resolutions were passed recommending that a state law be enacted which would make available all automobile license money for road repair work. A law was also suggested which would compel railroads to build better crossings and maintain better roads up to the crossings wherever highways have been improved.

"The convention also recommended a larger appropriation of the state highway department, the money to be used for awards. At present the reward fund has been exhausted. Good roads aggregating 680 miles have been built this year and there are at present on file applications for 600 more miles. It will require a much larger appropriation than given by the last legislature to take care of the new applications. The delegates believed that a new law should be enacted which would permit villages and townships to bond for highway improvements. A legislative committee was also appointed.

FAIR STORE HAS EXHIBIT

Herman Salsky and two assistants, George Cobb and C. W. Olmsted, of the Fair Savings Bank, left yesterday morning for the Cloverland fair at Stephenson with their auto well laden with souvenirs that they expect to give away at their booths. Mr. Salsky returned last evening while the other two gentlemen will remain until the fair is closed.

TRADES STOMACH FOR AN APE'S

Paris, Sept. 25.—Trading his old and worn-out stomach for the new and healthy one of an anthropoid ape, Pierre Laurent, after resting a few days in the hospital, today tested his new digestive apparatus by becoming intoxicated.

The surgical operation, performed by Dr. Rouilles at the Hospital of Agen, is the sensation of Paris. The famous surgeon took the entire stomach from the young farmer and when the organ was found to be worn out it was replaced by the complete stomach of the anthropoid.

His stomach which was from an ape two years old, fitted so perfectly into the 27-year-old interior of the patient that it withstood the surcharge of liquor without a protest.

Dr. Rouilles speaks with certainty of the benefits of his surgical discovery and is preparing a paper to be presented to the Academy of Medicine on the subject.

PROFESSIONAL CROOK DECEIVES HUSBAND

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Leading the life of a criminal and associating with criminals part of the time, and then living with her husband and associating with his friends as a respectable woman, Mrs. Emma Krawl, 25 years old, successfully kept her criminal record concealed since their marriage nine years ago.

Her husband, Walter I. Krawl, is an employe of the Chicago City Railway company. The woman was fined $25, and costs, by Municipal Judge Wells, at the South Clark street court on account of disorderly conduct, having been arrested in a State street department store by Detective Edward McGuire, who charged that she was a professional pickpocket.

According to the record of the bureau of identification, the woman, in 1908 served four months in the county jail on a charge of larceny, and two years later she was arrested in a department store and fined $1 and costs. Her record started at the early age of 16, when she was first arrested in a department store.

Mrs. Krawl pleaded with Judge Wells to let her go so that her husband would not find out about her previous life, but the judge was obstinate, the woman having been before him less than three months ago on a similar charge.

SNOW FALL IS EARLIEST IN YEARS

Huron, S. D., Sept. 25.—An intermittent fall of snow in northern South Dakota throughout the day developed into a steady fall tonight and covered the ground with a white blanket. The fall is the earliest in years. With the snow came a decided fall in temperature.

Sheridan, Wyo., Sept. 25.—General Manager G. W. Holdredge, of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, is snowbound in a cabin near the summit of the Big Horn mountains, forty miles from Sheridan, and is unable to get out, according to information here. The snow on the mountains is four feet deep, and it has been snowing all day. Mr. Holdredge owns a summer cabin on the banks of a lake. He went there for a fishing trip.

DOUKHOBORS WILL SETTLE IN U.S.

Denver, Sept. 25.—The Doukhobors of Canada are coming to the United States to cause the laws of the Western provinces. A large colony will settle in Colorado.

All those interested in the life and progress of the Russian Quakers, known as the Doukhobors, whose fifty settlements are scattered over Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, and British Columbia, have been aware for some time of trouble between the colonies and the local authorities, due to the officials' resolve, to "convert" them into the fold of the British allegiance, and the Doukhobors' gentle, but adamant, resistance to all attempts to impose any sort of an outward semblance to loyal British subjects on them.

The Doukhobors came to Canada on an understanding, which was effected on their behalf by Leo Tolstoj and other sympathizers, that they would be left free to live in their own light, which does not recognize either "subjects" or human powers that be, and no authority over mankind other than that of God. And for the first eight years or so they were not interfered with.

Win Success in Wilds. But when the Doukhobors emerged triumphant from the somber wilderness of virgin forests and deserts of western Canada, with nature subdued stretching at their feet in beautiful vistas of fields and orchards, the British authorities sat up and took notice.

So long as the Doukhobors were buried in the throes of their pioneer work their customs and their communal life did not matter. But no sooner had they settled down to comparative rest and started in arranging their social life into system embodying their dogma in practice than trouble began.

All sorts of pressure was brought to bear upon the colonists, from coaxing propositions to open coercion. It was pointed out to them that they were likely to forfeit their land on the ground of non-compliance with the letter of the law on land patents. The regulations provide for a patent being granted to the settler at the end of three years, during which time he must cultivate at least fifteen acres of his quarter section.

True to their co-operative principles, the Doukhobors cultivated one great tract at the center of he land allotted to them, 2,000 homesteads of 160 acres each, equal to fifteen acres for each settler.

When they came to ask for their title they did not ask for individual patents, but for the whole price. They surely met the spirit and the object of the law, but there was no provision made in the law, the authorities said, for the communal method of cultivation, combining so many quarter sections into one huge tract of property.

So the authorities held up their title and finally came forward with a thinly veiled ultimatum to either become British subjects or forfeit the land. The Doukhobors gave up the land without a moment's hesitation. It is ten years now since the Canadian government gave the Doukhobors their land in western Canada—320,000 acres—which at the lowest valuation must be worth $10 an acre now.

The Doukhobors retained their freedom and fifteen acres to a homestead. It was nothing new for them to contend with official coercion. And they are not afraid of work. Their names implies that their religion lies in struggling—"apirit wrestlers" would be a literal translation, albeit somewhat bemuddled their meaning. About 2,000 of them remained on what was left of their land, and the others went far off into British Columbia, where they purchased 10,000 acres at the junction of the Columbia and Kootenay rivers.

The land is now all but completely paid for, and the accumulated wealth of the new settlement counts yell up into the second million—in houses, factories, livestock, sawmills, grain mills, agricultural machinery, all of which is assessed and taxed to the full value. But this is as far as the Doukhobors will go in their recognition of political authorities.

Tip Philosophy. "Pink, I'm afraid you are wasting your time brushing my hat. I don't seem to have anything smaller than a $10 bill." "I kin change dat all right, boss." "Then you don't need the tip. So long, Pink."—Chicago Tribune.

USE UNUSUAL METHOD TO END THEIR LIVES

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 25.—The double suicide of Miles C. Folsom of Los Angeles and Thelma Bartee of San Diego, who plunged off a seventy-foot precipice late last night in an automobile, was discovered by a party of National Guardsmen returning from an auto ride today. They found the bodies, crushed and bleeding, at the bottom of the embankment. According to a letter left by Folsom, he was infatuated with a Los Angeles chorus girl, who is said to have spurned him because of his alleged habits. In a letter found on the body of Mrs. Bartee, signed with her name, it was stated that she loved Folsom better than her own life; that she had placed his happiness above everything and that she had tried to bring him and his sweetheart together. Falling in this, the note said, she had decided to accept Folsom's invitation that they both end their lives, as she preferred death to life and grief over his unhappiness.

NEWTON DOUGHERTY IS INDICTED AGAIN

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 25.—The grand jury today returned fifteen indictments for forgery, embodying 645 counts, against Newton C. Dougherty, former head of the Peoria schools, now living under a parole to a Chicago publisher. Directly after the report of the grand jury had been read to Sheriff Grant Minor, a deputy sheriff started for Chicago to arrest the former noted educator.

The indictments are based on evidence heretofore unknown to the state's attorney. They are based on script found in old records and are for the years of 1889 and 1889. The script was founded by Prosecutor Scholes and Sheriff Minor a few days ago, tucked away in the school records in a package marked "1883."

The indictments resulted from the action instituted by Dougherty at St. Louis and in Wisconsin, in which he is seeking to regain certain land given over in trust to the school board's agent several years ago, at the time his defalcation was discovered. The land was given to cover any shortage or debt due and the bill in Dougherty's suit alleges that his plea of guilty satisfied the school board and the members never tried to determine whether he owed the board any amount.

The first indictments against Dougherty were returned in 1906. He was at that time superintendent of the Peoria schools and by a series of forgeries which covered several years is said to have obtained nearly a half million dollars of the Peoria school fund. The expose was first brought to the attention of the school officials by a young bank clerk who insisted that Dougherty was obtaining money on script made out to school teachers, janitors and others who were not employed by the school board.

An investigation proved that the irregularities had been worked successfully for many years. Dougherty, when confronted with the evidence, did not wish to stand trial and pleaded guilty. He was given an indeterminate sentence in the Joliet penitentiary and had served nearly six years when he procured his release on parole.

CLOVERLAND SETS NEW RECORD

"It is well worth noting that cheese made at Brimley, in Chippewa county, scored highest in the state; that the largest yearly amount of milk and butter from one cow was obtained near Marquette, and the purest market milk which the world has any record of was produced at Sidnew in Houghton county, says Leo, M. Geismar, superintendent of the State Experimental farm at Chatham.

Such high achievements would scarcely be possible were it not for the greater nutritive value of the forage crops the abundance and purity of water, and the invigorating effect of the superior climate of the upper peninsula.

"There never was a time in the history of our country when the sentiment in favor of development of our farm lands was greater than it is today. It is a fact attested by abundant proof that our farm lands are advancing in price and going up higher and higher from year to year. It is a sure thing that farming lands will never be cheaper, but will gradually go up higher, as time passes into the future.

"Lands that were easily available and could be easily tilled, prairie lands, that were in a high state of fertility and that bore abundant crops, were eagerly sought from the beginning. On the other hand, lands that a decade ago were looked upon as of unfavorable location and undesirable, and in many cases worthless, are today being sought by many. Even lands located in the dry belt of our country—the west—are now being looked up, to furnish homes to a large population of intelligent and enterprising farmers."

"The soil of the upper peninsula of Michigan is particularly adapted to the cultivation of crops, such as sugar beets, potatoes, cabbage, beans, tomatoes, celery, carrots and onions. Shall grains, corn and grasses grow in abundance up here. Strawberries and all fruits, such as apples, cherries, currants, gooseberries, and raspberries, are being grown with profit and success, particularly in the 'quick soils' of the peninsula. It is the rapid growth and considerable moisture in the soil that makes for luscious good flavored, sappy, fine colored fruits.

CHEAP FIREWORKS ON A BATTLE FIELD

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 25.—Because of statements that have been circulated by the press in regard to the Lissener-Harlan indictment at the political meeting addressed by Harlan and Bede earlier in the week, Francis J. Heney has given out a formal statement in relation to it, as follows:

"The so-called 'trailing' tour of John M. Harlan and Adam Bede, who are making speeches in the wake of Mr. Roosevelt, is having apparently about as much effect as an exhibition of cheap fireworks on a recent battle-field. The mixed audiences showed a marked inclination to jeer, and there had been a recurrence of incidents grotesque and even humiliating.

"In Los Angeles last night the audience of Harlan and Bede, such as it was, consisted of about one-third Taft adherents, one-third Progressives, and the remainder Democrats. Bryan's name when mentioned received much more applause than Taft's.

"Harlan's abuse of Governor Johnson aroused the wrath of the audience, who checked him with their calls and hisses. Toward the end of his speech he stated that the Steel corporation went to Roosevelt to secure license to commit crime, and added that he (Harlan) did not know any one to whom he could go for such license, and addressing the audience, said 'Do you?' In reply some one in the audience called out 'Meyer Lissener.' Lissener is chairman of the Progressive state central committee.

"To this Harlan responded somewhat to the effect that pawnbrokers did not do such things in Chicago. Then Lissener called out, 'How about your friend Lorimer?' In reply to this question Harlan said 'Lorimer is not an issue in this campaign.'

Falls to "Call Bluff."

"At this point Harlan raised his hand and tried to quiet the audience, which had become turbulent, and said, 'I want to speak to Mr. Lissener.' The audience quieted down and Harlan said, pointing his hand toward Lissener, 'I understand you are Mr. Lissener. I want you to come down on the platform and talk this over with me,' emphasizing the word 'platform.'

"Lissener at once proceeded to the platform amidst great applause. When Lissener reached the platform it was immediately apparent from Harlan's demeanor that he had not expected Lissener to 'call his bluff.'

"From that point Harlan lost ground rapidly. When Lissener stood facing Harlan a few feet Harlan asked Lissener to take a seat, which Lissener, of course, refused. Pandemonium reigned for several minutes and Harlan finally declined to face the issue. He closed his speech hurriedly amidst cat-calls and repeated questions from the audience to tell about Lorimer.

"Bede's speech was only vaudevillian and attracted little attention. As following Roosevelt, the whole performance was little more than a jest."

PRELUDE TO GREAT IRISH REBELLION?

London, England, Sept. 25.—On Saturday Oct. 28, the Unionists of the northern counties of Ireland propose to register their formal defiance of home rule. Gathered in halls and market places, even in churches, the men of Ulster will sign a covenant pledging themselves never to submit to any government from Dublin which may be imposed upon the country by the Asquith-Redmond home rule bill passed in the house of commons.

"Ulster Day" is the designation chosen for this remarkable political document. According to its promoters, it will prove a shall of determination so solemn and impressive that the British cabinet will hesitate long before attempting to enforce its scheme for the part separation of Ireland from the United Kingdom.

The signing of the covenant may prove the prelude to a great rebellion, or it may be a flash in the pan. Two years at best must elapse before home rule can begin to be established, because the house of lords can hold up the bill for that time. The present drift of political dealings indicate that the Liberal party may go out of office within that period.

Great political meetings in Belfast seldom pass without collision between Orangemen and Hibernians. Winston Churchill escaped being mobbed when he addressed a home rule rally there this summer only through strong police protection with soldiers in reserve.

Keep in the right and avoid danger.

LOVE GERMS AND HERO WORSHIP COINCIDENTAL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—A lot of the idiosyncrasies of young girls and budding debutantes, their susceptibility to love affairs and their romantic notions generally, among other things, were explained to several hundred mothers today by Dr. Eleanor C. Folkmar at the exhibition hall of the Congress of Hygiene and Demography.

Dr. Folkmar said that many times girls cannot help these little things, when they are crossing the border line to womanhood. The fault is with nature, not with the belles, she admitted. They should be gently repressed.

Dr. Folkmar, who is, a stoutish lady of middle age, told her sisters to denude their daughters of pretty shoes and corsets. She condemned especially the brand of corset which conduce to the "wasplash waist."

Of the activity of the love germ in the budding belle she said:

"The period of passage from girlhood to womanhood is the period of self consciousness, of early love affairs, of hero devotion, worship or devotion to ideals and religious enthusiasm. These things are in part results of the changes they are undergoing, physically.

This is also the period of bad tempers and the use of slang and profane words. During this period girls should not be allowed to wear corsets or high heeled shoes. Neither should they be allowed to use stimulants, not even tea or coffee. They should get plenty of sleep and not be allowed to go much into society or take part in strenuous pastime.

"They should get nine hours sleep in the open air. There are many cases of nervous wrecks, women unfit for the duties of the home, because their lives were too strenuous at this period. Corsets and high heeled shoes were not made for girls under 18 years. One of the most vexing problems of this period is the corset. Every girl wants to wear one.

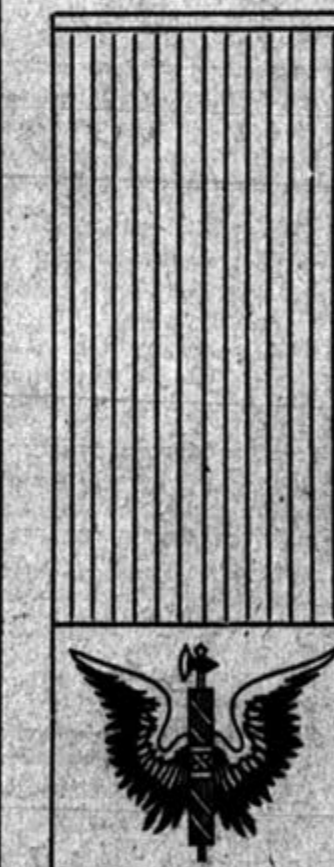

Few, if any, medicines, have met with the uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The remarkable cures of colic and diarrhoea which it has effected in almost every neighborhood have given it a wide reputation. For sale by all dealers.

YOUNG EAGLE IS CAPTURED ALIVE

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 25.—An employe of the Lake Independence Hotel at Big Bay had the unusual experience Sunday of capturing an eagle single-handed, and without the use of weapons.

The bird was first seen while his captor was walking through the woods, about half way between Big Bay and Birch. It was roosting on the trunk of an uprooted tree, and evidently was asleep.

At the opening of the encounter the man was badly scratched and scurred by the bird, and he testified that his strength was remarkable. While eagles are not commonly seen in this part of the country, at least not in recent years, there seems to be a family of them that have made the territory northwest of Marquette their home for a long time.

GOV. WILSON TALKS ON BOSSES AND TRUSTS

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 25.—Governor Wilson came here today for the first time since he became the presidential nominee of the Democratic party.

It's against the law to have a crowd at the polls," said the governor as he came out of the voting booth.

The students obeyed and the governor mounted the steps of a church and talked about the bosses and the trusts.

"The boss, merely as a political organizer," the governor said, "is not dangerous; merely as a manager who commands the organization and gets out the vote on polling day he is not to be feared and he is an almost necessary instrument of politics."

"I have known some of these gentlemen personally and I know exactly how they work. They haven't any politics at all. That is the point and there is no difference between a democratic boss and a Republican boss because neither of them is working for his party."

Washington, Sept. 25.—It was practically decided today that President Taft, in the near future, will issue an executive order, placing all fourth class postmasters in the classified service.

That the President would take this step, his first act toward putting in to practice his often expressed belief that all Government offices below the grade of Cabinet members should be removed from the influence of politics and placed under the civil service, became practically certain today, after a delegation of postmasters, returning from the annual convention of the association at Richmond, Va., had been received at the White House and by Postmaster General Hitchcock.

After discussing the matter briefly with the delegation, President Taft referred the Executive Committee to Mr. Hitchcock for further consideration of the matter.

In the entire country there were 49,672 fourth-class postmasters at the end of the last fiscal year.

KID M'COY ASKS FOR $200,000

Brussels, Sept. 25.—"Kid" McCoy filed a claim with the Belgian government today for $200,000 damages.

McCoy was arrested in London, July 26, at the request of the Ostend police who accused him of complicity in a theft of jewels from the princess of Thurn and Taxis, at a hotel there a few days before.

Referred To Hitchcock

After discussing the matter briefly with the delegation, President Taft referred the Executive Committee to Mr. Hitchcock for further consideration of the matter.

In a few days Mr. Hitchcock will submit to President Taft a formal recommendation that the petition be granted and the President is expected to act promptly and favorably upon the recommendation.

The PHANTOM OF THE OPERA

By Gaston Leroux

Author of THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM and THE PERFUME OF THE LADY IN BLACK. Illustrations by M.G. Kettner Copyright 1911 by The Bobbs-Merrill Company

SYNOPSIS.

Consternation is caused on the last night that the Opera is managed by Deblenne and Poligny because of the appearance of a ghost, said to have been in evidence on several previous occasions. Christine Daae, a member of the opera company, is called upon to fill a very important part and scores a great success. Count de Chagny and his brother Raoul are among those who applaud the singer. Raoul tries to see Christine in the dressing room, but is unable to do so and later discovers that some one is making love to her. She emerges alone, and upon entering the room he finds it empty. While the farwell ceremony for the retiring managers is going on, the Opera Ghost appears and informs the new managers that Box No. 5 is reserved for him. Box No. 5 is sold with disastrous results. The managers receive a letter from the Opera Ghost calling attention to the error. Christine Daae writes Raoul that she had gone to visit the grave of her father. He goes alone, and in the night follows her to the church. Wonderful violin music is heard. Raoul visits a graveyard. Raoul is noted next morning almost frozen. Monchamrin and Richard investigate Box No. 5 and decide to see the performance of "Faust" from front seats of that box. Carlotta, who sings the leading part in "Faust," is warned to give the part to Christine. Carlotta, feeling her voice in the middle of the song and the main chandelier crashes down, killing a woman and wounding many.

Raoul dressed in frantic haste, prepared to forget his distress by flinging himself, as people say, into "the vortex of pleasure." Alas, he was a very sorry guest, and leaving his brother aghast, found himself, by ten o'clock in the evening, in a cab, behind the Longchamp race-course.

It was bitterly cold. The road seemed deserted and very bright under the moonlight. He told the driver to wait for him patiently at the corner of a near turning and, hiding himself as well as he could, stood stamping his feet to keep warm. He had been indulging in this healthy exercise for half an hour or so, when a carriage turned the corner of the road and came quietly in his direction, at a walking pace.

As it approached, he saw that a woman was leaning her head from the window. And, suddenly, the moon shed a pale gleam over her features.

"Christine!"
The sacred name of his love had sprung from his heart and his lips. He could not keep it back. . . . He would have given anything to withdraw it, for that name, proclaimed in the stillness of the night, had acted as though it were the preconcerted signal for a furious rush on the part of the whole turnout, which dashed past him before he could put into execution his plan of leaping at the horses' heads. The carriage window had been closed and the girl's face had disappeared. And the brougham, behind which he was now running, was no more than a black spot on the white road.

He called out again: "Christine!"
No reply. And he stopped in the midst of the silence.
With a lack-luster eye, he stared down that cold, desolate road and into the pale, dead night. Nothing was colder than his heart, nothing half so dead; he had loved an angel and now he despised a woman!

Raoul, how that little fairy of the north has trifled with you! Was it really, was it really necessary to have so fresh and young a face, a forehead so shy and always ready to cover itself with the pink blush of modesty in order to pass in the lonely night, in a carriage and pair, accompanied by a mysterious lover? Surely there should be some limit to hypocrisy and lying!

She had passed without answering his cry. . . . And he was thinking of dying; and he was twenty years old!

His valet found him in the morning sitting on his bed. He had not undressed and the servant feared, at the sight of his face, that some disaster had occurred. Raoul snatched his letters from the man's hands. He had recognized Christine's paper and hand-writing. She said:

"Dear:"
"Go to the masked ball at the opera on the night after tomorrow. At twelve o'clock, be in the little room behind the chimney-piece of the big crush-room. Stand near the door that leads to the Rotunda. Don't mention this appointment to any one on earth. Wear a white domino and be carefully masked. As you love me, do not let yourself be recognized."
"CHRISTINE"

CHAPTER IX.

At the Masked Ball.
The envelope was covered with mud and unstamped: it bore the words, "To be handed to M. le Vicomte Raoul de Chagny," with the address in pencil. It must have been flung out in the hope that a passer-by would pick up the note and deliver it, which was what happened. The note had been picked up on the pavement of the Place de l'Opera.

Raoul read it over again with fevered eyes. No more was needed to revive his hope. The somber picture which he had for a moment imagined of a Christine forgetting her duty to herself made way for his original conception of an unfortunate, innocent child, the victim of imprudence and exaggerated sensibility. To what extent, at this time, was she really a victim? Whose prisoner was she? Into what whirlpool had she been dragged? He asked himself these questions with a cruel anguish; but even this pain seemed endurable beside the frenzy into which he was thrown at the thought of a lying and deceitful Christine. What had happened? What influence had she undergone? What monster had carried her off and by what means? . . . By what means indeed but that of music? He knew Christine's story. After her father's death, she acquired a distaste of everything in life, including her art. She went through the conservatoire like a poor soulless singing-machine. And, suddenly, she awoke as though through the intervention of a god. The Angel of Music appeared upon the scene! She sang Margarita in Faust and triumphed! The Angel of Music! . . . For three months the Angel of Music had been giving Christine lessons. . . . Ah, he was a punctual singing-master! . . . And now he was taking her for drives in the Bois!

Raoul's fingers clutched at his flesh, above his jealous heart. In his inexperience, he now asked himself with terror what game the girl was playing? Up to what point could an opera-singer make a fool of a good-natured young man, quite new to love? O misery!

This did Raoul's thoughts fly from one extreme to the other. He no longer knew whether to pity Christine or to curse her; and he pitied and cursed her turn and turn about. At all events, he bought a white domino. The hour of the appointment came at last. With his face in a mask trimmed with long, thick lace, looking like a pierrot in his white wrap, the viscount thought himself very ridiculous. Men of the world do not go to the opera ball in fancy-dress! It was absurd. One thought, however, consoled the viscount: he would certainly never be recognized!

This ball was an exceptional affair, given some time before Shrove-tide, in honor of the anniversary of the birth of a famous draftsman; and it was expected to be much gayer, noisier, more Bohemian than the ordinary masked ball. Numbers of artists had arranged to go, accompanied by a whole cohort of models and pupils, who, by midnight, began to create a tremendous din. Raoul climbed the grand staircase at five minutes to twelve, did not linger to look at the motley dresses displayed all the way up the marble steps, one of the richest settings in the world, allowed no facetious mask to draw him into a war of wits, replied to no jests and shook off the bold familiarity of a number of couples who had already become a trifle too gay. Crossing the big crush-room and escaping from a mad whirl of dangers in which he was caught for a moment, he at last entered the room mentioned in Christine's letter. He found it crammed; for this small space was the point where all those who were going to supper in the Rotunda crossed those who were returning from taking a glass of champagne. The fun, here, waxed fast and furious.

Raoul leaned against a door-post and waited. He did not wait long. A black domino passed and gave a quick squeeze to the tips of his fingers. He understood that it was she and followed her:

"Is that you, Christine?" he asked, between his teeth.
The black domino turned round promptly and raised her finger to her lips, no doubt to warn him not to mention her name again. Raoul continued to follow her in silence.

He was afraid of losing her, after meeting her again in such strange circumstances. His grudge against her was gone. He no longer doubted that she had "nothing to reproach herself with," however peculiar and inexplicable her conduct might seem. He was ready to make any display of clemency, forgiveness or cowardice. He was in love. And, no doubt, he would soon receive a very natural explanation of her curious absence.

The black domino turned back from time to time to see if the white domino was still following.

As Raoul once more passed through the great crush-room, this time in the wake of his guide, he could not help noticing a group crowding round a person whose disguise, eccentric air and gruesome appearance were causing a sensation. It was a man dressed all in scarlet, with a huge hat and feathers on the top of a wonderful death's head. From his shoulders hung an immense red-velvet cloak, which trailed along the floor like a king's train; and on this cloak was embroidered, in gold letters, which every one read and repeated aloud, "Don't touch me! I am Red Death stalking abroad!"

Then one, greatly daring, did try to touch him . . . but a skeleton hand shot out of a crimson sleeve and violently seized the rash one's wrist; and he, feeling the clutch of the knucklebones, the furious grasp of Death, uttered a cry of pain and terror. When Red Death released him at last, he ran away like a very madman, pursued by the jeers of the bystanders.

It was at this moment that Raoul passed in front of the funeral masquerader, who had just happened to turn in his direction. And he nearly exclaimed:

"The death's head of Perros-Guirec!"
He had recognized him! . . . He wanted to dart forward, forgetting Christine; but the black domino, who also seemed a prey to some strange excitement, caught him by the arm and dragged him from the crush-room, far from the mad crowd through which Red Death was stalking.

The black domino kept on turning back and, apparently, on two occasions saw something that startled her, for she hurried her pace and Raoul's as though they were being pursued.

They went up two floors. Here, the stairs and corridors were almost deserted. The black domino opened the door of a private box and beckoned to the white domino to follow her. Then Christine, whom he recognized by the sound of her voice, closed the door behind them and warned him, in a whisper, to remain at the back of the box and on no account to show himself. Raoul took off his mask. Christine kept hers on. And, when Raoul was about to ask her to remove it, he was surprised to see her put her ear to the partition and listen eagerly for a sound outside. Then she opened the door ajar, looked out into the corridor and, in a low voice, said:

"He must have gone up higher." Suddenly she exclaimed: "He is coming down again!"
She tried to close the door, but Raoul prevented her; for he had seen, on the top step of the staircase that gesture, she hung out her two arms, which fixed a barrier of white flesh against the door.

"In the name of our love, Raoul, you shall not pass!"
He stopped. What had she said? In the name of their love? . . . Never before had she confessed that she loved him. And yet she had had opportunities enough. . . . Pooh, her only object was to gain a few seconds! . . . She wished to give the Red Death time to escape. . . . And, in accents of childish hatred, he said:

"You lie, madam, for you do not love me and you have never loved me! What a poor fellow I must be to let you mock and flout me as you have done! Why did you give me every reason for hope, at Perros . . . for honest hope, madam, for I am an honest man and I believed you to be an honest woman, when your only intention was to deceive me! Alas, you have deceived us all! You have taken in a shameful advantage of the candid affection of your benefactor herself, who continues to believe in your sincerity while you go about the opera ball with Red Death! . . . I despise you!"

And he burst into tears. She allowed him to insult her. She thought of but one thing, to keep him from leaving the box.

"You will beg my pardon, one day, for all those ugly words, Raoul, and when you do I shall forgive you!"
He shook his head. "No, no, you have driven me mad! When I think that I had only one object in life: to give my name to an opera wench!"
"Raoul! . . . How can you?"
"I shall die of shame!"
"No, dear, live!" said Christine's grave and changed voice. "And . . . good-by. Good-by, Raoul."

The boy stepped forward, staggering as he went. He risked one more sarcasm:
"Oh, you must let me come and applaud you from time to time!"
"I shall never sing again, Raoul!"
"Really?" he replied, still more satirically. "So he is taking you off the stage; I congratulate you! . . . But we shall meet in the Bois, one of these evenings!"

"Not in the Bois nor anywhere, Raoul; you shall not see me again."
"May one ask at least to what darkness you are returning? . . . For what hell are you leaving, mysterious lady . . . or for what paradise?"

"I came to tell you, dear, but I can't tell you now. . . . You would not believe me! You have lost faith in me, Raoul; it is finished!"
She spoke in such a despairing voice that the lad began to feel remorse for his cruelty.

"But look here!" he cried. "Can't you tell me what all this means!"

Curaca, the most important of the Dutch West Indies, is without fire insurance and a fire department, though the island has a population of over 50,000. The buildings in the town are all of stone, hence this happy condition of affairs. Recently the first sawmill was installed, being furnished by an American firm. "It is hoped," says a consular report, "that this will not increase the erection of wooden buildings and necessitate insurance and a fire department."

Bunting Thoroughly Tested.
In very truth a modern battleship does, in modern phrasing, carry some bunting. About $150,000 is spent by the United States navy for flags each year. Every case of bunting costs the government $50; every roll costs $11.25. The bunting comes from Massachusetts. Every piece is subjected to the most severe test. It must weigh five pounds to every forty yards and stand the weight test of seventy pounds to two square inches. It is steeped in salt water for six hours and then exposed to the sun for the same period of time. If after this treatment it continues to be bunting of a distinguishable color it is pronounced fit for service.

Will Try to Outlive All Others.
The oldest member of Parliament in the world, the Hungarian deputy, M. Joseph Madarast, who is now in his ninety-ninth year, issues a denial of the statement that he is about to retire into private life. M. Madarast says that he means to retain his mandate till he has completed his one hundredth year, if not longer. He carries a list of all the centenarians in the world constantly with him, and marks them off as they die. He is determined to outlive them all, and some day to have the distinction of being the oldest man in the world.

Practically Immune.

Appeal to National Pride.
The Italian wrestler Bruglio was proceeding cautiously, says a writer in the Chicago Evening Post. He was feeling his opponent out, stalling him off with various poses and not showing that during his attack that the crowd likes. Most of them were silent, but one adviser, seated far away, kept yelling to him to "take a chance." This seemed to make no impression with repetition, he shouted finally: "Take a chance, you wop lobster. Come on, take a chance."

West No Place for Consumption.
Physicians in all of the eastern states will be asked by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to stop sending consumptives in the last stages of tuberculosis and without sufficient funds to the southwestern part of the United States in search of health. While it is impossible to tell accurately how many consumptives there are at present living in the states of Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, southern California, and western Texas, it is probable that no less than ten per cent of the 6,000,000 people in this territory have tuberculosis themselves, or have come to the west because some member of their family have had it. Every year, the health authorities estimate, not less than 10,000 consumptives, hopelessly diseased, come west to die. For these cases, the climate of this section of the country can do nothing, and they are compelled to die in strange surroundings and thousands of miles from home and friends. The National Association points out further that from 60 to 60 per cent of these advanced cases are too poor to provide the proper necessities of life, and they are either starved to death, or compelled to accept the meager charity which this part of the country affords.

Mr. and Mrs. Pillsbury were walking from their summer home near Cohasset to the "Promontory," a high point from which an excellent view of the whole valley can be had. Mrs. Pillsbury had a 30-30 carbine. Suddenly she saw a large bear coming down the hill about forty yards away. "It's a bear, shall I shoot it?" she shouted to her husband. Pillsbury answered in the affirmative and his wife asked, "Where shall I shoot him?" "In the head," came the answer. "With deliberate aim the woman fired, hitting the animal square in the right eye, killing him instantly, and the weight of the carcass was estimated at 300 pounds.—Chico Cor. O'TOOLE WINS FROM CARDINALS

The score: R. H. E.
Pittsburg 4 9 0
St. Louis 0 3 2

UMPS TO HAVE BASEBALL GAME

Chicago, Sept. 25.—"Lade's and gemun, batters fer today are Dineen and Evans for the American league, Eason and Rigler for the National."

Can you imagine Umpire "Mubby" McGraw yelling this out and Umpire Clark Griffith standing complacently near first base waiting for the game to start?

Well, plans are under way for staging a game between the umpires of the American and National leagues, to be played the day before the world's series starts. The proceeds will be turned over to "Bull" Perrine, former handler of the indicator who is seriously ill on the coast.

A tip to this effect was given out this afternoon and it was said the affair will be a go. Among those who have the affair in charge is Bill Evans now officiating here at Comiskey park.

The idea is to stage the fray at whatever park the world's series starts, and there will be plenty of time for the umpires selected to officiate at the Brown-Cardinal and Sox Cub series to reach their respective posts after the combat.

It is understood that both president of the Nationals and President Ban Johnson of the American league have been asked for permission to give the benefit. Likewise that McGraw and Griffith have been approached with a view of having them umpire.

THE PETERSON

"The Balance" is the name of a great drama, by Harry Graves Miller, which will present for the entertainment and approval of theatre-goers here on Wednesday Oct. 2. It is confidently predicted that this play will prove the dramatic sensation of the present theatrical season. The management has secured a very strong cast of players and given the production an elaborate scenic equipment. William Owen, the well known actor and producer was engaged at a large salary to stage and produce the play. Bearing these facts in mind the management is very proud to announce the forth coming production of this wonderful play. "The Balance" has received the endorsement of many of America's leading dramatic artists, such as Henry Miller, Robert Mantell, Donald Robertson and others. "The Balance" is the appropriate title of the play which strives in an heroic way to establish a new Justice for American womanhood. It is a convincing prayer for the single standard of morals for the sexes. How woman is still held in bondage is told in "The Balance" the most daring play of the century. If you see the performance you will never forget it. It contains a life-long lesson.

'STUCK' FOR $15 EACH BY AGENT

A party who signs himself "R. S. T." writes to the Menominee County Journal of Stephenson telling of a supposed graft game that has been worked by book agents in the locality. The letter says:

"In the spring of the year 1911, a man appeared in our midst representing himself to be in search of material for a geographical survey of every farm, section and township in Menominee county. There was an explanation given that the material was to be consolidated in book form and offered for sale at $15. Every farmer visited was requested to sign his name on a sheet of paper along with other names with the express understanding that such signature did not necessarily bind him to the purchase of any of the books. A further proof that no contract existed for the purchase of any books was the fact that in no case was any farmer furnished with any duplicate of a contract to purchase a requirement of law which every business man is entirely familiar with.

"Now, within the past week the company issuing the books has commenced deliveries. Farmers who never had any intention to contract for the purchase of the books and never signed any agreement are having the books thrust upon them. To induce some of the farmers to sign the advance agent informed some of them that their signature was merely to show that he had visited their farm and obtained the description of the land from them. On the strength of this the delivering agents are demanding payment from the farmers bullying and threatening them into payment by any means possible. In cases where cash is scarce they have induced the farmers to execute notes to their favor.

"This means actual hardship to some farmers. Hall and rain has caused considerable damage to crops and every dollar is needed, hence $15 expended for a book which they did not contract for, which they have no earthly use for means actual privation. As one poor deluded fellow expressed it: 'I would rather have a bag of flour for my $15 than a book, neither I or my wife can read.'

"Is it not possible to do something for the farmers who have been so badly fooled? It looks on the face like a clear case of misrepresentation and perhaps an opinion in your columns will carry sufficient weight to call their hand.

GERM AFFECTS THE JOY RIDERS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—Young men and women who are addicted to "joy riding" becoming afflicted with "neuroinfectious" in the opinion of Dr. John P. Walker of Walla Walla, Wash., one of the delegates to the international congress of hygiene and demography, in session here.

"Its cure, so far as medical research is able to determine," said Dr. Walker, "is strict confinement in the country for about a year and not even the sight of an automobile in that time.

"I have made special trips to New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington and investigated a large percentage of the joy-riding cases brought under the notice of the police. In each case I have seen young women who were nervous wrecks.

"Wild-headed young men drive their machines through the streets at twenty miles an hour, narrowly missing and sometimes hitting the other vehicles they pass. The automobiles are usually filled with girls, who are frightened half to death, but who seem to be fascinated by the 'sport.' This sort of thing every night or so will make a nervous wreck or anybody in a year's time."

AUTO TIRES ARE MADE OF WHISKEY

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Emperor William of Germany rides in an automobile, the tires of which are made from whisky, according to Dr. H. A. Bernson, head of the chemistry department of Heidelberg university, who, with 300 other scientists, is in Chicago to attend the sixth annual congress of applied chemistry.

He declared that rubber has been made from whisky for several years at experimental laboratories in Germany, and that recently a set of automobile tires, made from the alcoholic beverage, were presented to Emperor William, and that he is now using them on one of his private automobiles.

According to Mr. Bernson, the process of manufacture is quite intricate. By special process of fermentation the scientists increase the amount of fusel oil in whiskey, then extract the oil and use it in place of the raw gum that is tapped from rubber trees.

LONGER HUMAN LIFE IS OBJECT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—Longer human life is the object of the Fifteenth International Congress on Hygiene and Demography which will begin a week's session here tomorrow modern sanitary science, from all over the world, to the number of 450, will appear on the platform to exchange information as to the more important accomplishments of recent years in prolonging life in their respective countries and sections and to make plans for the future. Health officials and semi-public institutions, including immense business organizations, are planning to help put in to practical effect in this country the more important reforms that will be suggested.

Germany, France, Great Britain, Holland, Norway, Austria, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland are among the 27 government sending official delegates to the Congress. Men prominent in health work in the United States are on the program, including health officials of the Federal Government and of many of the states and cities. American universities and colleges which make a specialty of medical research and preventive medicine also are largely represented. Besides the 450 participants in the program there will be several thousand others, including many visiting health officials, in attendance upon the nine sections of the Congress which which meets simultaneously.

The Congress is beyond question the most important meeting of sanitarians ever held in this country. An unusual opportunity will be afforded for comparing American methods of protecting human life with those of other countries. The contributions of those European countries in which the average length of life is considerably longer than in this country will be especially valuable.

Many agencies will be at work to utilize for the benefit of this country the vast fund of material that will be produced by the 450 speakers at the Congress. Side with the public health officials will be found representatives of various institutions seeking health knowledge that may be practically applied to bring about less disease and more life. The interest of these institutions in the health movement is largely of a business character. They act on the theory that better health and longer life mean improved industrial and economic conditions. Among them is the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, which will be represented throughout the Congress by its general counsel, R. L. Cox of New York and by its health committee composed of F. W. Jenkins, Birmingham, N. Y., chairman; J. R. Clark, Cincinnati, O.; W. F. Dix, New York; J. L. English, Hartford, Conn.; J. K. Gore, Newark, N. J.; Dr. A. S. Knight, New York; E. S. Scott, Springfield, Ill. The companies in this Association have in force about 25,000,000 out of a total of 33,000,000 life insurance policies issued in the United States. They frankly state that their interest in the Congress is chiefly commercial for they believe that as a result of its activities a better mortality rate will be experienced among policy holders in this country.

Particular attention will be paid by the Association's committee to the addresses and discussion dealing with the control of contagious diseases, including typhoid fever, diphtheria, cerebrospinal meningitis, tuberculosis, etc.; the sanitary aspect of public water supplies, including the sanitary control of water sheds, the purification of water by storage, water purification in Europe by biological methods; water sterilization by chemical methods and the disposal of sewage and wastes by the various processes now carried on in European countries. Where it is shown that other countries obtain better results than the United States does in any given situation, the committee will try to learn the reason therefor. Such results may be due to the kind of law or regulations adopted, to the character of the officers enforcing the law, to the quality of public sentiment or to some other cause or combination of causes. When the cause is once ascertained steps will be taken by the life insurance interests to help in applying it or some proper modification of it to the situation in this country. It is expected, of course, to do this kind of work through cooperation with the various constituted authorities, in the nation, the states and the municipalities.

GIRL ARRESTS MAN WHO CRITICIZES CUT OF HER SKIRT

New York, Sept. 25.—Bessie Kaplan, an athletic 18-year old girl of the Bronx, arrested a young man in a Brooklyn "L" car and personally haled him to the New Jersey avenue court, several block away.

There she charged him with having brought public humiliation to her by making comments on the tightness of her skirt, which were heard by other passengers. He gave the name of Max Chasowitz, and was held in $500 bail.

"Look at her," Chasowitz is alleged to have said in the car. "I'll bet she walks like a chicken."

The young man continued to make like remarks. The other passengers giggled at Bessie's mortification. Then the girl seized her annoy by the collar and pulled him off the train.

"What are you going to do with me?" asked Chasowitz astonished.

"I'm going to lock you up," replied Bessie. "It's pretty how-ry-do when a girl can't travel in this city without having a loafer like you comment on her clothes."

Chasowitz attempted to break away when the pair got to the street. A crowd soon gathered, however and assisted the girl.

REMARKABLE HOAX WAS DISCOVERED

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 25.—A remarkable hoax complete in every detail and executed in such a way as to defy discovery at the time, was perpetrated upon the Los Angeles newspapers at midnight when the double suicide of Niles Folsom, a Los Angeles attorney, and Selma Bartee of San Diego was announced. The perpetrator acted with guilty knowledge, according to the authorities and a vigorous search is being made by them today.

The story said Folsom and Mrs. Bartee leaped to death in an auto which Folsom had driven over to Tongo pass in the San Monica mountains. Folsom is alive and well in this city and Mrs. Bartee is said to be in San Francisco. Folsom declared he had no idea who the perpetrator of the hoax could be. A man giving his name as Mason, a member of the national guards, first gave the report of finding the bodies but the real Mason declared he was not in the mountains and knew nothing of the affair.

The bogus Mason is now being sought by the police. Folsom, who is living with his mother at 1115 Third street, San Monica, today said: "The published account of my supposed suicide must have been inspired by some person who wished to do me harm. I have no enemies that anyone I know would cause such an article to be published. It is a fact that I know the chorus girl and I also know Mrs. Bartee, mentioned in the account.

"My relations with both of these women were purely that of friendship and neither of them considered me other than a friend. At the time I was supposed to be engaged in carrying out this suicide pact I was home in bed. It was said that I drove the machine at full speed over the cliff. This is dramatic, but it is not based on any facts. I cannot even drive an automobile.

PROHIBITIONISTS NAME COPPER COUNTRY MAN FOR AUDITOR GENERAL

Lansing, Sept. 25.—The Michigan Prohibitionists, in state convention here, today nominated the following ticket:

Attorney General—Seth B. Terry, of Durand.

Auditor General—William J. Reynolds, of Larium.

Secretary of State—Alfred Lowther of Detroit.

State Treasurer—John Boreland, Sr. of Imlay City.

Justice of the Supreme Court—W. H. D. Fox, of Mt. Clemens.

J. D. Leland of Corunna was nominated for governor at the August primaries.

"We declare," says the platform adopted, "that all local option and non-partisan effort is not only inefficient but detrimental and wrong in principle, in that it has educated the people wrongly to think that a political party is not necessary to procure and enforce prohibition laws. Prohibition laws without their administration discredits prohibition and postpones accomplishment."

SHOWING WAS GOOD.

The exhibit of apples from the upper peninsula was hardly satisfactory to the colonel. What there was was excellent, but the exhibit was small. The vegetables as a rule were not very good this year, the superabundance of rain accounting for this. The fruits were either not ripe yet or had been allowed to get over-ripe, but in another year the development bureau hopes to be able to have chemists preserve some of the smaller fruits and so show the rest of the state what the upper peninsula can produce in this line. The great possibilities of the upper peninsula as a dairying country could not but appeal to every one who viewed the exhibit. Colonel Mott said, the fine grasses proving that as a dairying country "Cloverland" is unexcelled. Colonel Mott has a plan in mind for making the Northern Michigan potato famous, giving it a reputation in its line equal to the Washington apple. Mr. Mott explained that the medium-sized first-class potato was in great demand now for what the big restaurants termed "fancy bakes." The potatoes grown in the upper peninsula all these requirements without much sorting, the colonel said, and it was his plan to have them put up in air-tight cartons, enclosed in crates, and shipped to the big markets. The best retail houses would be the concerns that would handle them and they would appeal to the class of trade that wants the best at any price. Once they had used the Northern Michigan kind, Colonel Mott believed it would be difficult for them to go back to using the other kind, and in time the upper peninsula would acquire the reputation of growing the very best potatoes to be found anywhere.

of the occupants of the car were thrown out when the auto hit the bottom of the ditch but none of them injured. Neither the girl sitting at Mr. Larson's side in the front of the car nor the couple in the rear seat were in any way injured.

Mr. Larson with his companions had been out for a drive through Ford River and were returning to the city. At Hyde the auto party overtook Arvid Moline with his Ford roadster.

Just before reaching the approach to the Ford River bridge Mr. Larson pulled out and attempted to pass Mr. Moline. He did not see the railing of the high embankment and caught the railing squarely on his side of the car. That the driver was not instantly killed and other occupants of the car seriously injured is considered remarkable.

Two teams of horses were first secured in an effort to pull the car back to the roadway, but the effort failed and yesterday morning a crew of men from Slater's garage went to the scene of the accident and after considerable difficulty pulled the car from the ditch. It was found that the body of the car was badly wrecked but the engine was not injured in the least and the auto was brought to the city under its own power.

The wrecked auto is a Kissel Kar recently bought by Mr. Larson from J. F. Sullivan.

credit of the highway fund.

The principal speaker at the afternoon session of the convention was Warren G. Harding of Ohio. His remarks were brief, but he took time to congratulate the convention upon its attendance, the enthusiasm displayed and the reports that he had heard of the political situation throughout the state. Other speakers were Amos Musselman, candidate for governor, and John Q. Ross, candidate for lieutenant governor.

Previous to the convention there had been many rumors that a heated contest would come up between Governor Chase S. Osborn, who was a delegate from Chippewa county, and the "Old Guard" Republicans who have criticised him recently because of his statements with reference to the presidential candidates. The expected trouble, however, did not take place. Governor Osborn was present when the meeting opened, and he sat on the platform with the speakers. He made no speech and he left before the convention adjourned.
