HOUSE MAID BEING HELD

(Special to the Press.)
Freeport, N. Y., July 11.—Celia Coleman, a colored maid in the house of Mrs. Florence Carman, the woman in the Mineola jail, accused of murdering Mrs. Bailey on the night of June 30, has disappeared. It is said she is in the custody of negro detective and that she has admitted she saw the shooting of Mrs. Bailey. It was impossible to verify this but the rumor has excellent foundation. It is said the girl will testify she was in the pantry and saw the window break and then saw a woman step into the office and shoot. The identity of the woman incriminated by Celia is unknown outside of official circles.

CHICAGOAN WINS FLIGHT

(Special to the Press.)
London, July 11.—Lord John Carbery, while on his return flight in the aerial race from London to Paris and back today, fell into the English channel. He kept afloat with the aid of a life belt until picked up by a passing steamer. The race was won by Walter Brock, a Chicago aviator. His time from London to Paris was 3 hours 33 minutes. The return trip was negotiated in 3 hours 30 minutes. The distance in a direct line is 502 miles.

Noel Blissette, pioneer farmer and merchant of Danforth settlement was in the city yesterday enroute to Marquette, where he will visit with his grand children for a few days and from there to Mosinee, Wis., where he will visit with his brother-in-law, Stephen Bouquette an aged veteran of the civil war.

BOY SCOUT ENCAMPMENT POSTPONED LAST NIGHT

At a meeting of the Boy Scouts last night it was decided to postpone the encampment planned for Ford River next week. The postponement was made indefinite but will be staged sometime before the summer is over.

C. R. Welch left for a business trip to Perkins.

HOODOO IS ON THE JOB

GLADSTONE DROPS TIGHT GAME WHEN ERRORS FOLLOWED BY HITS

The hoodoo that has persistently followed Gladstone throughout the season, was on the job again yesterday and allowed the Upper Bay City team to lose a tight game to Negaunee 2 to 0. An error by Dumour, when he dropped Heidenson's fly to center at the opening of the fourth, led the way to the only scores of the game and they were made by Negaunee. When Heidenson was safe at first on the error, McAuliffe forced the runner at second. The next man up singled and Carlo fanned White for what should have been the third out, but Holman doubled and two runners crossed the pan for the only tallies of the game. Carlo clearly outpitched Lief, Negaunee's star young hurler, the Gladstone pitcher allowing but four hits, striking out 11 and giving but one pass to first. Lief was found for but five hits, struck out seven and gave no passes to first.

"Ducky" Stewart was unable to get into the game yesterday, but George Hirm did the backstopping and did a nifty piece of work. In addition to playing his position perfectly and pegging to second in great form, Hirm slammed out two of Gladstone's five hits.

Undismayed by yesterday's defeat, Gladstone's squad will go into the game of today with more pep than ever and Escanaba fans will join with Gladstone in a terrific and determined effort to drive the jinx out of that Gladstone ball field.

INSANE MAN SCARES AGENTS

Peter Kraft, an insane man, threw a scare into agents at the North Escanaba station of the Soo Line, when he came rushing into the waiting room early yesterday morning and attempted to hide under one of the benches. Witnesses overwrought from repeated robberies at that place the agents drew their guns and stood guard over the man until Sheriff Curran, who had been notified, could reach the place.

FIX BLAME ON THE MATE

SECOND OFFICER ABOARD STORSTAD, HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR EMPRESS OF IRELAND WRECK.

(Special to the Press.)
Quebec, July 11.—The collier Storstad is held to blame for the Empress of Ireland disaster in the findings of the wreck commission, handed down today. The commission holds that the disaster was due to the Storstad's change of course, ordered by the third officer without instructions from the first officer, who was in charge of the collier at the time. The Empress sank in the St. Lawrence, May 29, with a loss of more than 1,000 lives. The collier's third officer, who is responsible, is Alfred Tuftness. He was on the bridge when the crash occurred. "We regret" says the finding "to have to impute the blame to any one in connection with the lamentable disaster and should not do so if we felt any other reasonable alternative was left to us. We can come to no other conclusion that Tuftness' course in the fog as he undoubtedly did and that he was wrong and negligent in keeping the navigation of the vessel in his own hands and failing to call the captain when he saw the fog coming on."

With favorable weather conditions prevailing today a large number of Escanaba and Gladstone people will go to Maywood today to take part in the picnic arranged at that place by the Evening Star Society of this city. On the morning trips the Saugatuck will leave the Stephenson dock at 2 and 11 o'clock and in the afternoon at 1:30 and 3 o'clock, stopping at Gladstone on each trip up the bay. Returning the boat will leave Maywood at 5 and 7 o'clock. The Escanaba Military band orchestra will furnish a musical program at the pavilion throughout the day.

He was brought here, locked up and will be held until the Chicago officers arrive.

BRICK MASONS START WORK ON INTRICATE BUILDING FRONT

The entire crew of brick masons were yesterday started to work on the intricate front of the new Semer opera house. The front wall was about a third finished last night and the steel framework for the big canopy in the front was placed, giving the public the first real idea of how the building will appear when completed.

ATTENTION IS WANTED

The following statement was issued yesterday by the publicity committee of the Escanaba Woman's Club concerning the school election of tomorrow:
The Escanaba Woman's Club wishes to correct an impression which has gained some headway in regard to the election of members of the school board next Monday. In the effort which has been made by the Club to emphasize the necessity of having a woman on the board and in urging the public to vote for their candidate, Mrs. Margaret J. Frost, the idea seems to have been unintentionally conveyed in some quarters that only one candidate may be voted for. There are two vacancies on the school board and two candidates must be elected. Those who wish to register a vote for Mrs. Frost may also vote for one of the two men candidates. The purpose of the Woman's Club is to put a woman in one of the two vacancies and they urgently request every woman voter in Escanaba to register her vote on Monday. Election occurs between 9 a. m. and 8 p. m. Monday, July 13th. The First, Second, Third and Fourth Wards vote at the City Hall, the Fifth and Sixth Wards at the Washington School Annex and the Seventh Ward at Fire Station No. 3, North Escanaba.

AGED RESIDENT IS STRICKEN

Suddenly stricken with apoplexy at the home of the family at 922 South Sarah street, Mrs. Herman Leditke, passed away yesterday morning. Mrs. Leditke was known to a large number of people in Escanaba, having resided here for a number of years. The announcement of her death came as a shock to a host of friends. She was 67 years of age and is survived by her husband and one son. Funeral services will be conducted over the body at the Emanuel German Lutheran church at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon. Interment will be at Lakeview cemetery.

STARTS FOR VOTES; BREAKS A LEG

To start on a campaigning trip and to break his leg before he could board a train was the experience yesterday of City Clerk A. J. Peplin. Of course when Mr. Peplin breaks a leg it is not a painful accident, but only a troublesome one, for he can boast of two perfectly good, sometimes, artificial limbs. When a loop snapped off the top of his right leg yesterday he was forced to abandon a trip to Maple Ridge.

HAIL STORM SWEEPS DISTRICT SURROUNDING THIS CITY

A severe hail storm swept over the vicinity of Hardwood yesterday, doing considerable damage to the leaf crops of that district. On Friday afternoon a similar storm struck Stonington doing slight damage there.

Walter Wickert left last night for a week's visit at Chicago. Miss Jeannette Kallish who has been the guest of Mrs. M. Jacobs of Gladstone left for her home at Chicago last evening. Miss Exilda Papour of Cooks was in the city yesterday enroute to a visit at Spaulding. Mrs. M. Jacobs of Gladstone visited in the city yesterday. Miss Louise Perre of Cooks was in the city yesterday. Miss Laura La Chappell of Manitowish was in the city last evening, between trains, enroute to a visit at Chicago. Fenner E. King left for Lincoln, Neb., last evening, following a visit in the city with his parents, Supt. and Mrs. F. E. King. Mr. King is Superintendent of the Boys Division of the Y. M. C. A. of that city. Miss Anna Hendricks of Green Bay has returned to her home after a visit at Gladstone and in the city.

BOYS HELD UP BY BANDITS

FARMERS GOING HOME YESTERDAY AFTERNOON ARE "STUCK UP" BY HIGHWAY MEN NOTHING TAKEN.

While driving to their homes at Danforth, John and George Hauvaal were held up at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon near the National Pole yards by two highwaymen, who after finding that the lads had but little money on their person, allowed them to go. The Danforth boys left the city at about 3:30 o'clock for their homes and had proceeded as far as the swamp near the National Pole yards. They thought nothing of two young men coming toward them and were taken completely by surprise when they came opposite when one grabbed the horse by the reins while the other, covering the farmer lads with his gun, ordered them to alight. As the boys got out of the buggy one of the highway men said, "George, you came back here and help me search these fellows," and the man at the head of the horse, complied with the request. When it was found that the lads possessed but a small sum of money the bandits told them to get back in the rig and go home. The boys did so without a moment's hesitation. Sheriff T. J. Curran was at once notified and going to the home of the Hauvaal boys, secured an interview with them and then returned to the vicinity of the robbery. With Under Sheriff Adam J. Henry and Deputy Sheriff George Curran, a search was made of every building and shack for a mile around the spot where the robbery occurred. The officers went to the Soo Line station and waited until after the night train had gone in hopes that the bandits would make an effort to hold up the agent there but nothing occurred. However, a man armed with a shot gun was placed on guard at the station for the night as it is thought that an attempt at robbery will be made before daybreak. The officers worked until after midnight in the heavy rain and returned to the city early this morning drenched and unsuccessful. The highwaymen are about 18 and 22 years of age. One wore a brown suit while the other wore overalls, a dark coat and a white cap with the advertisement for some brand of flour printed on it.

GALLAGHER ADMITS IDENTITY OF MEN

When closely questioned in a cell at the county jail yesterday by Sheriff T. J. Curran, Dominick Gallagher admitted that the umbrella menders, who had worked in this city, were the men who shot Agent Cook at the Soo Line station when the station was robbed. Gallagher admitted having piloted the men to within a short distance of the station when they had forced him to return. They had told Gallagher that they were going to Gladstone.

PLAN ON A BIG OUTING NEXT SUNDAY

A number of Escanaba people are making plans to take part in the excursion to be given next Sunday aboard the steamer Saugatuck to Marquette and Menominee. All plans for the trip have been completed by the club of young men in charge and considerable interest has already been aroused in the event.

MORE FORGERIES COME TO LIGHT

More forgeries have been uncovered by Prosecutor T. E. Strom and other officers that took place in this city on July 4. Three checks were passed for $19 each at three local saloons on the Interlake Steamship Company. The checks were supposed to be signed by the master of the Steamship Ward Ames. A rubber stamp was used to print the name of the company. A good description of the men has been secured but they have not been located. Mrs. Winifred Burch and daughter, Mona, left yesterday for Petoskey, where they will spend the summer months.

SHOTS WERE FIRED NEAR THE WASHINGTON SCHOOL

ington school last night by residents in that vicinity who claim that shots were fired between two men at about 11 o'clock, but when the officers arrived on the scene no gunnery were to be found. A drunk was picked up as a suspect but he carried no gun and will probably be released this morning.

LEAGUERS CRACK BALL

(Special to the Press.)
Ishpeming, Mich., July 11.—Escanaba pounded out an 11 to 6 victory over Ishpeming today but not until after the locals had driven Garland to the woods after the first inning. Van Effen who took Garland's place on the mound pitched steady ball up to the eighth when he seemed to weaken but he finally ended the scoring after two runs had been tallied and went through the final inning in great order. Escanaba also did things to Ishpeming's pitchers, it being necessary to send three heavies to the lot to stop the hard hitting Sandy City crowd. Goulette, who started the game for the locals, lasted until the third inning when he was hoisted and Swanson pulled in from the field as relief man. The visitors got to Swanson hard in the fifth and in the seventh completed his rout. Red Mahoney was the final pitcher summoned and he stopped the visitors, letting them down in one two, three order in the final two innings. H. Aronson, Lantz, Bourke and Murray were the slugger stars for Escanaba, the first two getting three hits each and Bourke and Murray each driving out two. One of Bourke's was a three bagger while Aronson connected twice for two baggers and then slammed out a single. The score:

STORE EMPLOYE HELD FOR THEFT

James Novac was yesterday afternoon arrested by Chief Iverson and later arraigned before Justice C. D. McKewen on the charge of larceny preferred by the manager of the local branch store of the Wear-U-Well Shoe Company. Novac pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to the county jail for a term of 30 days. The arrest yesterday grew out of the suspicions of the manager for some time that the clerk was keeping the money from some of the shoe sales that he made. Yesterday he caught Novac when he was appropriating the money to his own use that he had received from a shoe sale. Chief Iverson was called, the man arrested and in justice court he pleaded guilty and was given the 30 day sentence.

AGREEMENT MADE PUBLIC

REBEL CHIEFS WILL NOT ATTEMPT TO BECOME HEAD OF MEXICAN GOVERNMENT. HUERTA TO QUIT

(Special to the Press.)
Torreon, Mex., July 11.—The long awaited report of the Villa-Carranza reconciliation conference was made public today. The most significant proviso, aside from the settlement of differences between the constitutionalists first chief and Villa is an amendment to the plan of Guadalupe, under which the present revolution has been operated. This amendment will prevent any military leader from becoming provisional president of Mexico and eliminates Carranza, Villa, Angeles or any of the leaders now in the field as presidential possibilities. According to the amendment, upon assuming control of the government at Mexico City, Carranza would call a congress of military leaders and representatives of the rank and file and this body would adopt a plan for holding elections and a program for what policies should be put into effect by functionaries who might be elected.

Washington, July 11.—Information was received from Mexico City by diplomats here that Huerta will resign within a couple of days in favor of Francisco Carbajal, the newly appointed minister of foreign affairs. It was learned that the appointment of Carbajal, who took office yesterday, is part of the general program by which it is hoped to make peace with the Constitutionalists. The Huerta delegates at the Niagara conference it is understood, have been waiting this move for several days. Carbajal was long a member of the supreme court in Mexico and was recently elected chief justice. It is believed that Carbajal will endeavor to arrange terms of peace which will be virtually terms of surrender.

ANARCHIST IS RABID

(Special to the Press.)
New York, July 11.—John D. Rockefeller was branded as a murderer by Alexander Berkman, an anarchist, before a crowd of 7,000 persons assembled this afternoon at Union Square for a demonstration in memory of 3 men killed by a bomb explosion on July 4.

"These men may have been murdered by agents of the capitalistic crowd," he said. If so John D. Rockefeller is responsible for their death. He has committed many murders. Or maybe the men were murdered because of their loyalty. They either were victims of a murder plot or are martyrs to the cause of liberty. I hope they were martyrs and were killed by a bomb they expected to use against the enemies of labor. We are now ready to resort to physical force. We will get our rights by bloodshed. We are advancing toward revolution." The crowd cheered Berkman's remarks and when he had concluded, gave three cheers for the dead men. The crowd was made up of professed anarchists, members of Industrial Workers, Free Speech League and kindred organizations. Seven hundred policemen surrounded the square.

SAVING AND WISE SPENDING.

In a period of high cost of living like the present, it behooves every man to look well to the purchasing power of his dollars, not only as indicated by market reports, but more particularly the skill and wisdom with which his dollars are expended. Over market prices he has little if any control, while the other is quite within his province to regulate.

The dollar a man spends should buy its full measure of value; the dollar he saves should earn its full measure.

We are not to get the notion that thrift is merely the saving of money, and judge a man's thrift by the number and frequency of his visits to the savings bank, forgetting that thrift is just as much proved by the way a dollar is spent as by the number of dollars earned. Spending is, perhaps, a finer art than earning; for all can earn, but few can spend wisely.

Given an equal income, some will live well and prosper, while others will run into debt. It is simply the knack of knowing how and when and where to buy, and having the cash to pay. Witness the very poor. They are miserably poor because they do not know how to spend their money. They buy the wrong things, buy too much, and buy things that are not worth the money. They buy things that are not worth the money. They buy things that are not worth the money.

Granted that a man is thrifty and has a surplus at the week's end, what shall he do with it? Buy a lot in some deserted section—a dollar down and a dollar a week for 50 years? Listen to the lure of the get-rich-quick-scheme and buy a 20 per cent stock? Buy a house and stop paying rent, and begin to worry? No, none of these—yet the right way leads straight to the savings bank for the safe profit and safety. And it is among these reasonable people are realizing this, as testified to by the very large saving deposits in the bank of the city today.

The savings bank and the savings departments of other sound banks were instituted for the small saver. Their fundamental purpose is to assemble the savings of the masses, invest them wisely and pay over a goodly share of the profits by way of interest-dividends to the depositors. In such an institution, he is on safe ground. He cannot, as a rule, go wrong. It is the beginning of good things for every man who will get the habit and keep it up.

Marsans, the stellar Cuban pitcher whose work made the Cincinnati club a pennant contender for a short time, has packed his grip and returned to Cuba. And Cincinnati is rapidly returning to its accustomed position in the vicinity of the tall end in the championship race. Ohio's big league clubs will soon be able to enjoy the companionship of misery.

It is asserted by New Yorkers that the tango has caused an increased demand for alcoholic drinks. But only on the part of the spectators surely isn't this an argument that more people should dance and fewer look on?

A prominent physician says that if people would eat less, they would never have appendicitis. It sounds reasonable. No man ever starved to death and had his appendix examined by the coroner.

Those astronomers who are going to Kieff, Russia, to watch the eclipse of the moon from an airship seem highly delighted with the prospect of getting a hairsbreadth near the lunar orb.

The United States commissioner of education is said to favor the gradual elimination of teachers' school teachers. The commissioner seems to be the sublimated type of the reactionary.

A Chicago university professor plans to weigh the moon. It is to be supposed that he has ascertained the specific gravity of the average cheese before starting in on this task.

CHAPTER XV.

I Meet My Double.

wise than claw at each other. After that first cry neither of us uttered a sound, but I closed in on him getting gro; he there until our bones rotted, and we also became earth. The hor-

His one object was to wrench himself loose, but my fortunate grip on his hair foiled this effort. Yet both his hands were free, the one clutching my throat; but, in those first breathless seconds, I could not locate the other. He was lying on his side, with right arm underneath. Fearful of a weapon, I let the fellow gouge at my throat with long ape-like fingers, while I struggled fiercely to expose the hidden hand. If it proved empty I knew I could handle the man; that I possessed the strength to draw him to me, to crush him into subjection within the vise of my arms. Straining every muscle I could bring into play, I succeeded in forcing him over onto his face. But he was a cat, wily, full of trick. In some manner he twirled his arm out of my grip. There was a flash of reddish yellow flame searing across my eyes, an awful report, like an explosion in my stunned ears. Where the bullet went I will never know, but I saw the man's face leap out at me from the darkness—just an instant of reflection, as though thrown against a screen by some flash of light—the unmistakable face of a negro.

Yet startled as I was by this apparition, his view of me had no less an effect. Even in that single instant of revelation, the hate in his eyes changed to fear, to uncontrollable panic; his lips gave vent to a wild cry, an exclamation in mongrel French, and, before I could stiffen in resistance, he recovered from my own shock, the fellow lunged his pistol at me, and jerked free. The flying weapon tore a gash in my scalp, but his haste and fear proved his own undoing. Half stunned as I was by the blow, I heard him spring to his feet, the dull crash of his head as he struck the hardwood slab of the low roof, and then the thud of a body on the tunnel floor. In his haste, his desperation, his strange fright, he had forgotten where he was, and attempted to spring erect. My head reeled, the blood from this new cut trickling down my cheek. The negro lay motionless in the darkness; I could not even distinguish his breathing, although I hesitated, listening intently, half fearing some trick.

What had frightened the fellow so? What had brought that look of insane terror into his eyes? It was as if he stared at a ghost, the very sight of which had crazed him. I mastered my own nerves, and crept forward along the passage, feeling blindly in advance with one outstretched hand, until it came in contact with the man's figure.

With clinched teeth, I touched the coarse hair with my fingers; then the forehead. The flesh retained some warmth; yet the feeling was not natural—it seemed lifeless. For the instant this appeared impossible. Why, he did it himself, he crashed his own skull against the slab. Yet I could not make the affair seem real, or probable. And a negro! I had seen few of the race, but had always been told they were of thick skull; but if this man was actually dead, his head must have been smashed like an egg-shell. And it was—I found the gash a moment later, the jagged edge of bone. The fellow was dead, stone dead; there was no heat to his heart, no throbbing in his pulse. Still dazed by the discovery, I ran my fingers along the roof overhead, hoping to find something there which would account for the mystery. No flat surface could ever have jabbed that wound. Ah! I felt it—the sharp point of a stake protruding between the logs. The poor fellow had struck that with sufficient force to penetrate the brain.

I conquered my abhorrence, and searched him, finding tobacco, a knife—an ugly weapon—flint and steel, a few coins, and some powder and rifle-balls. There were no pistol bullets, and the thought occurred to me that the smaller weapon probably did not belong to him; he had appropriated it elsewhere. I crept about, and across the body, searching for it in vain, but I found the rifle, and took time to test its flint, and load it.

I was still engaged at this task, blindly feeling about in the dark for everything needed, and always conscious of that dead body beside me, when I suddenly detected smoke—the puff of powder which still clung to the passage, but the acrid, pungent odor of burning wood. Even as I began to breathe the fumes they increased in intensity; the narrow tunnel filling rapidly with the smoke waves, and setting me to coughing. I realized at once what had happened. Mademoiselle's word of warning coming back to mind—they were burning the cabin, and through some orifice the smoke was being swept down into this underground passage. If there were no outlet, no way by which it could escape again to the open air, I must die there in that black hole, choked and suffocated. I might have there forever beside this hideous ne-

Even in my terror I clung to the negro's rifle desperately. The entrance leading forth into the cave-cellar must be closed, or the smoke cloud would never be so dense and suffocating. To open it might require strength, the blows of the gun stock. If I retained power to burst my way through I must hurry. Already I felt my head reel dizzily, my open lips gulping for air. I crept forward recklessly in the dark, brusing my body against the sides of the tunnel, actually feeling the thickening smoke swirl about me in dense clouds. I gasped for breath, and drew a bit of cloth about nose and mouth in slight protection. I was panic-stricken, overcome by sudden horror, yet some nature within compelled me to struggle on. Suddenly I came to a body lying lengthwise of the passage, the head to the south. This new discovery was a shock, yet seemed to affect me little.

I crawled over him, as though he was no more than a stone in the path, yet as one hand came down in the dark on the upturned face, I experienced a sudden thrill—the flesh was warm, the man lived. Barely had my numb mind grasped this helplessly, when my rifle barrel, thrust before me, struck the end of the passage, the faint sound of contact signifying wood. Not three feet extended between the man's head and this barrier which blocked us from the outside air. Desperate, half crazed indeed, not only by my own situation, but also by the memory of those bodies behind in the dark tunnel, I found scot knee-room in the small space, and fumbled madly about for some latch. The surface was of wood, roughly faced, but smooth, save for what might be a handle in the middle, a mere strip, bevelled to give finger-hold. I pulled at this in vain; then pushed with my shoulder against the oak, but the wood held firm. Weak as I was, and in so crumpled a position, I could bring to bear but small strength. To batter the door down was the only hope left; no matter what noise resulted, or the possibility of capture by the savages, I could not lie there and choke to death in that place of horror. Better any danger than such a fate. I drew back and struck, the power of fear giving strength to my arms. Again and again I drove the iron-bound stake against the hard oak. I left the center and attacked the sides, feeling the wood give slightly. Encouraged by this I redoubled my efforts, centralizing my blows on one spot, until certain the tightly jammed door was being driven from the groove. It was hot and stifling; the perspiration streamed from me; the smoke was suffocating, deadly. I gasped and choked, my head swam with dizziness. I felt my strength ebbing away; despair clutched me. Yet I struck—no longer with clear intent, but automatically, driving the heavy gun butt against the slowly yielding wood, with every pound of strength I had left. It seemed as if I had struck my last blow—I believe now I had; I believe my body fell with it—I cannot remember clearly—only I

I felt tempted to get outside, and discover where the raiders had gone; their trail might reveal much, if it could only be found before night came. I had straightened up, determined to try the venture when a movement below, and the muffled sound of a voice speaking English, reminded me of the soldier. Descending from out the darkness I could perceive little in the dark-girt cave-cellar. The red jacket was, however, sufficiently conspicuous to convince me that the man was sitting up, his back against the wall.

"I don't know who you are, friend," he called out heartily, "only you look to be white. By any luck do you speak English?"

"Not much of anything else," I answered, endeavoring to discover his features. "I'm of the blood."

"Ay! With a colonial twang to it, unless my ears lie. Is that the story? So! Then what in God's name are you doing here?"

I could not take the measure of the fellow, his face remaining indistinct in the shadows, but there was a reckless ring of good-fellowship in his voice which inspired me to frankness.

"I came this way with a message for the Wyandots. I belong to the garrison of Fort Harmar."

"An officer?"

"Yes."

"Holy smoke, man, but you certainly stumbled into a hornet's nest. Didn't you know all the north-west tribes have declared war? That it has actually begun?"

"No; it was in the hope of preventing such a catastrophe that I was sent. Word was brought us that the Wyandots would not join the confederation."

"Who brought such word?"

"Simon Girty. He bore a letter from Hamilton, and sought information regarding the disappearance of a Wyandot chief."

CAPE POPULAR FOR MIDSUMMER

All Styles Are Allowed Greatest Favor.

Designs of Every Nation Copied and the Colors Are Equally Varied—Chief Charm is That It Can Be Worn With Good Effect by Any Woman.

NEW YORK—One of the surprises of the season is the immense and universal popularity of the cape. Almost over night capes became the fashion. They made a tentative appearance at the spring races in Paris. Their possibilities were immediately noted by women on the lookout for the new, and presto! all over the civilized world where fashion holds sway, capes have sprung into being as the approved wrap for midsummer wear.

The kinds of new cape are legion. The designers have drawn on the costumes and customs of every nation for ideas, and at a smart race meet or country club opening Arabian capes, Bulgarian capes, Russian capes, Breton capes, English Inverness capes, Austrian military capes, American laplan blanket capes and Roman toga capes rub elbows, as it were, in merry and inconsequent confusion. Some capes are jaunty, others are stately, others severe, still others graceful and picturesque. And in color the new capes range from pure white through all the vivid, modish shades to dark mixed worsted and Scotch wool suitings, the heavier and more practical fabrics of course being used for utility capes for traveling, steamer and sport wear, while the dainty white broadcloth and pastel colored silk capes figure as delectable wraps, worn over dressy frocks at garden fetes, regattas and the like.

New Capes Universally Becoming. Any woman may wear a cape—that's the beauty of it. Nobody need bother to consider her lack of height or surplus of too, too, solid flesh, when the desire for a cape becomes consuming. One may select the sort of cape that best becomes one's height and weight and that is all there is to it. There are so many, many sorts of capes that everybody may be suited. Of course the short, plump woman—if she has a grain of sense—will not pick out a voluminous silk cape which, when the wind gets under it on a breezy lawn or boardwalk, will make her look like an ornated barrel; nor will she choose a stately, long cape to the knee which will require the height of a tall, willowy woman to carry off successfully. There are dozens of short capes, of cloth, of sponge, of silk, of gabardine, saucily cut and with graceful lines which are most becoming to small and short women.

Everybody has been thought of and planned for by the resourceful cape de-

Just the thing to slip on after a game of golf or tennis or for a spin out to the country club in a moor car, is this knowing sport cape of white vicuña, with belt and collar facing of green suede, and green ball buttons to match. The embryo sleeves are a smart feature, and so is the turnover collar fastened with a cord loop. This collar may be turned up when occasion demands. wake of this authoritative model. Mrs. McAdoo's cape is of clear cadet blue broadcloth, waistcoat and all—there is no contrasting color. The waistcoat crosses in surplice fashion and long sash-ends of the material, attached to the surplined fronts, pass around and knot at the back. These sash-ends are then brought forward again and are loosely knotted low at the hip. The cape has a rolling flare collar which fastens with a cadet blue cord over two buttons.

Whitely Capes Charming. Across the corridor of the Hotel Vanderbilt, at luncheon hour one day last week, sauntered a young woman wearing a cape costume that attracted a deal of attention because of its unmistakable Paris stamp. The young woman's frock was white—pure white broadcloth—and she wore white buckskin buttoned boots and a very small, very rakish black straw turban with a long, slanting wisp of a feather. Only the narrow skirt of the white frock showed, however, for from chin to hip she was enveloped in a smart white broadcloth cape opening over a waistcoat of copper colored and white striped silk. One side of the cape was tacked back over the shoulder to reveal a lining of blazing copper-hued silk, and in the buttonhole of the striped waistcoat was a cluster of copper nasturtiums.

For sport wear there are delectable capes of white corduroy and for semi-formal wear at the beach or country club—white cloth capes with long waistcoats of soft silk in color are very good style. Such a cape, recently worn at Tuxedo, was of white cloth with a waistcoat of jade green tango crepe. The waistcoat had two long points below the belt line and was crossed by a wide, soft sash of black pussy willow taffeta. Another cape near by, of light gray sponge, had a waistcoat of white pussy willow taffeta with a broad, flat collar of the white silk turning over on the cape. This cape also showed the soft, black taffeta sash across the front.

Red Riding Hood. The Red Riding Hood model is a favorite with all women. It need not necessarily be red—the lines, not the color, are the thing. This cape is circular in cut and falls gracefully from the shoulders, a flare collar of silk matching the lining turning back from the neck. Two long ties of soft silk—usually of pussy willow taffeta—are attached under the collar at the front. These ties are simply crossed over the bust and tied at the back of the waist in a loose knot—and one's cape is fastened. A white cape of this sort may have ties of various colors to match the gown attached beneath the broad collar by snap-fasteners.—Kansas City Star.

The Cape Keynote. A waistcoat, cunningly cut to form a part of the garment, makes the 1914 cape new and individual. Otherwise—or without the waistcoat—it might be taken for an 1890 cape, rescued from the attic trunk and treated to a good pressing to obliterate the wrinkles of time. The mothers of the generation now stepping to the fore—social status will count the fashionable military cape of the late '80s which—without the waistcoat—was very much like some of the smart and cool and one of these comfortable and convenient military capes and cadet blue was the favored color.

Now, lo and behold! here is the cadet blue military cape once more; and its popularity is increasing, for a cadet blue military cape forms one of the most interesting features of the latest White House touseau. For the new Mrs. McAdoo, late Miss Eleanor Wilson, such a cape was made by the New York firm who provided this important touseau, and it is safe to assert that many a graceful cadet blue cape will appear in the

The LAMB THAT WENT TO RULE

A lamb, from a hen one day. By a wolf with a gift, persuasive tongue. The lamb, it is only but to say. Had little of wisdom, but being young. "Till you give power, or the gray wolf said, 'If you will desert the quiet sea, whatever you say, they must all obey. You shall rule in the woods if you follow me.'" beasts roam. The lamb was given the right to rule. But it staked, ere long, for the fields of home. With their peaceful rills and their shadows cool.

The power of which the lamb had dreamed. Brought woes along that were hard to bear. And it longed to be on the quiet sea. To skip unknown and unburdened there.

Men long for the power that ripples bring. They strive to rule over the busy throng. They wish to order and sway as kings. To claim what to masterhood belongs.

But the happiest man is not the man who rules over grumbling ones below. The master must bear a world of care. That the common thousands may never know.

Is the Man Mad? Just cast your eyes around you today and ask yourself if you ever saw, sweeter, lovelier, daintier, more kissable, more beautiful, blonder, blonder, more bewitching, brunettes, more coquettish, tantalizing, Titian-haired Tessies, prettier, plumper, orange and strawberry-fed darlings than the mellifluous-mouthed maidens of Joyous Jacksonville!—Florida Times Union.

We must solemnly protest against this adulation of the "mellifluous-mouthed" maidens. If such there be, go mark them well. They deserve no encouragement.

A Notable Triumph. "You seem to be in a particularly happy mood."

"Yes. I had a piece of good luck this morning. I've been away, and came home on a train that was due at nine o'clock. Watching my chance, I smuggled my satchel out of the sleeper and into one of the day coaches, from which I escaped at a suburban station, without having to tip the porter."

Truly Wonderful. "He is a wonderful tenor, isn't he?"

"I can't say that I think much of his voice."

"Oh, I don't consider his voice anything remarkable, but he has succeeded in getting into grand opera without changing his name so as to make it sound Italian."

PUT TO THE TEST. "Consent to be mine," he pleaded, "and no task will be too great for me to attempt, no honor will be beyond my reach."

"Would you go through fire and water for me?"

"I would dare anything for you."

"Then get me that hornet's nest. I have just been thinking it would make such a pretty peck bonnet if it were covered with plush."

Frugality. The little toy dog is covered with dust. But that can be blown away. The little toy gun has acquired some rust. But otherwise it's O. K. So we'll bring them out of the attic once more.

And, precluding that both are new. And that neither has ever been used before. Present them to Little Boy Blue.

The Only Joy There Was in It. I don't let us keep our engagement a secret for at least six months.

She—A secret? The only reason I got engaged to you was that I thought it would be nice to have my picture on the society page.

The Bonds. "So you wish," asked the father of the beautiful heiress, "to assume the bonds of matrimony?"

"Yes," replied the titled foreigner, "if you will guarantee that they will pay regular dividends."

What's the Use? "I wish you would try my doctor. I am sure he could help you."

"Yes, but what's the use being healthy if one has to look as he has left you looking?"

Not for Them. Some people refuse to believe that there can be any kind of success which has to be worked for.

SYNOPSIS.

Joseph Hazard, on his way to Port Harmar, meets a dirty, renegade whose name has been connected with all manner of atrocities, also headed for Port Harmar, with a message from the British general, Hamilton. Hazard guides him to the fort. At General Hazard's headquarters Hazard meets Renee d'Auvray, who professes to recognize him, although he has no recollection of ever having seen her before. Hazard volunteers to carry a message for Harmar to Sandusky, where Hamilton is stationed. The northwest Indian tribes are ready for war and are only held back by the refusal of the friendly Wyandots to join. The latter are demanding the return of Wa-pa-tee-tah, a religious teacher, whom they believe to be a prisoner. Hazard's mission is to assure the Wyandots that the man is not held by the soldiers. Renee asks Hazard to let her accompany him. She tells him that she is a quarter-blood Wyandot and a missionary among the Indians. She has been in search of her father, she insists that she has seen Hazard before, but in a British uniform. Hazard refuses her request and starts for the north accompanied by a scout named Brady and a private soldier. They come on the trail of a war party and to escape from the Indians take shelter in a hut on an island. Hazard finds a murdered man in the hut. It proves to be Roul d'Auvray, a former French officer who is called by the Wyandots "white chief." Renee appears and Hazard is puzzled by her insistence that they have met before. Renee recognizes the murdered man as her father, who was known among the Indians as Wa-pa-tee-tah. Brady reports seeing a band of marauding Indians in the vicinity and tells them Simon Girty. Brady's evidence convinces the girl that there is a British officer by the name of Hazard, who resembles the American. They find escape from the island cut off. Reconnoitering around the cabin at night, Hazard discovers a white man in a British uniform and leaves him for dead after a desperate fight. The Indians capture the cabin after a hard struggle, in which Hazard is wounded. Brady saves Hazard from death at the hands of the savages and conceals him in the cellar of the cabin.

I got to my hands and knees, determined to discover for myself the nature of the passage. Any form of action was better than merely to lie there inert. I had to creep forward, and found barely room for the passage of my body. My wound still hurt sufficiently to make me cautious of every movement, and consequently my advance was slow. There never was blacker darkness; it was like a weight pressing me back, and the silence was like that of the grave. I could hear my own breathing, but my hands and knees made no sound on the earth floor. Whatever of savage fury was occurring above, no echo found way to where I burrowed below. To all appearance the tunnel ran in a direct line; at least I could discover no evidence of deviation.

I stopped to rest a moment, sitting cross-legged, my head barely escaping the roof. Suddenly from out that intense darkness before me, came a peculiar sound. Intensified by the long silence, and the contracted walls, I could not tell whether it was cough or groan. Something—man or animal—was certainly there in the tunnel hiding, crouched in the darkness, unaware as yet of my presence. Then it would not be an animal; it must be a man.

I got upon hands and knees again, slowly and with utmost caution, aware that if I was to escape notice I must advance as stealthily as a wild cat, the slightest sound would carry far in that gallery. I moved forward a yard, two, three yards, extending one hand out into the dark and feeling about carefully, before venturing another inch. Mine were the movements of a snail.

I had almost convinced myself there was nothing there, either brute or human; yet some instinct continually told me there was. I felt an uncanny presence, and an ill-defined sense of danger I could not cast off. I came to a pause, actually afraid to go on, my flesh creeping with strange horror. I crept on one knee, my face thrust forward as I stared blindly into the awful blackness. I even held my breath in suspense, listening for the slightest movement. Merciful God! Some one—something—was actually there! I could hear now the faint pulsing of a breath, as though through clogged nostrils; yes, and a meaningless muttering of the lips.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Struggle Underground.

I remained poised, breathless, huddled in the dark, hesitating. A dozen considerations flashed through my mind, as I swiftly decided what to do. I could scarcely hope to move backward without noise; nor, if I succeeded, would I be any better off with him still blocking the passage? There was nothing for it then but to come to hand grips. But the fellow, whoever he might be—whether white or Indian—was doubtless armed, while I was weaponless. To get him right was a desperate chance, yet a chance which must be taken. Fortunately I had him located, his heavy breathing being unmistakable, and evidence also that the man remained unaware of my presence. I shifted one foot forward to get firmer purchase, and then grasped for him through the darkness. My hand came in contact with a shoulder; then gripped a mass of long hair. He gave vent to a sudden cry, startled, almost inhuman in its wildness, struggling backward so quickly my other hand closed on air. But I held hard to what I had, dragged off my balance, feeling his fingers after my throat. There was no room for us to do other-know the wood gave way, and I fell forward into light and air, my face toward my body still in the tunnel.

Merciful mother! How I gulped in those first refreshing breaths; how the clogged lungs rejoiced. I glanced back into the tunnel, suddenly remembering the man who still lived. If he were out, the door might be forced back into place again, that volume of smoke suppressed.

I refastened the cloth across my face, and crept back into the tunnel until I was able to grip the fellow's arms. He was a large man, clothed as a white; I even thought I felt bristling on his forehead; and, as I drew him toward me by a mighty effort, the light streaming in revealed a red jacket.

I felt tempted to get outside, and discover where the raiders had gone; their trail might reveal much, if it could only be found before night came. WARNER'S FEATURES Presents
"The Mother Penitent"
IN THREE REELS

A gripping story of mother love cleverly enacted with a background of suspense, produced on the level of the famous "The Ranch," surpassing any previous production in which the adorable child actress, Baby Fanny, and the vivacious Elsie Albert have been featured. This dramatic story will set your pulses throbbing with its atmosphere of wholesome excitement and bring the unbidden tear with its pathetic scenes of realism. Just as "All the world loves a lover," so it can be said that "all the world loves a mother," and the mother in this story is a wonderful character who pays for her folly by becoming an Angel of Mercy.

"LEAH KLESCHNA"
Miss Carlotta Nilsson Gives Fine Portrayal in Famous Players' Four-Part Adaptation of Well-Known Drama.
By George Blaisdell.
The Famous Players added, on December 10, another picture to the lengthening list of its releases that leads in which are played by dramatic stars. Miss Carlotta Nilsson is the latest of these, and the play in which she chooses to make her screen bow is "Leah Kleschna," from the pen of C. M. S. McLellan. There was a wealth of appeal in the stage production; it thrilled and it stirred. If in the pictured version there is lacking the same high degree of interest it may without hesitation be ascribed to the large number of principals in the cast; to the greater difficulty of clearly following in the earlier stages of a picture more than four or five principals. Those who sharply watch the introduction of the characters as they appear in their frame of gold at the opening will have no difficulty. Miss Nilsson sustains the role of Leah. It is a fine interpretation. Her delineation of the woman who is reared as the daughter of a thief, who aids him in his marauding excursions, and who is brought to see the right through the guidance of the man she loves, alternates with strength and tenderness. Leah is a womanly woman. House Peters is Paul sylvain. Deputy of France, who first meets Leah at the Charity Bazaar, and who falls in love with her as she also falls in love with him. His work is finished and will command and hold the sympathy of his audience. Hal Clarendon is Kleschna, the father of Leah; Schram, the accomplice, is portrayed by Alexander Gaden. These two are vigorous and convincing. Vincent Sternord, an actor of much stage experience, as General Berton makes his debut in pictures and does well. Frank H. Crane is Raoul Berton, the young blood who turns crook, believing he can fasten his theft on Leah. Madeleine Traverser is Claire Berton, Anabel Denison is Carlotta and Eleanor Flowers is Sophie. The acting is even and praiseworthy throughout. J. Scarle Dawley is the producer.

There are many strong situations, one of them highly spectacular, some dramatic and several pictorial. The staging of the Charity Bazaar, where the two thieves had gone to rob but remained to rescue when the confusion started, is realistic. The scenes of panic as the crowds storm the locked door, the final releasing of the imprisoned persons from the smoke-filled rooms, the carrying out of the flame-riddled edifice constitute the feature of the first reel. A few of the scenes of dramatic force are the discovery by Paul of Leah in his home, where she has come to rob, and the later entrance of Raoul, where, spurred on by the discovery of a hand

IN FAR NORTHLAND

Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

BRIEFS FROM OLD COUNTRY

Interesting Items From the Three Scandinavian Kingdoms and Their Descendants.

By MARTIN W. ODLAND.

Denmark.

A Copenhagen dispatch says that King Christian has decided that the newest of his numerous residences shall be furnished in American style in every detail.

According to a report from Denmark's capital, the Danish policemen are threatening to strike because the new women police are started out at a greater salary than male novices.

Sweden.

Aftonbladet of Stockholm recently printed an interview with Premier Gunnar Knudsen of Norway as to the possibility of a defensive alliance between Sweden and Norway.

It is estimated that the proposed concrete bridge across Oresund, from Sweden to Denmark, would cost about eight million dollars.

Three hundred men quit work in the lumber district of Norrland recently, and it is feared that this strike is merely a forerunner of a general strike in that section.

Reports from the different parts of the country indicate that Sweden will have a rich crop of fruit of different kinds this year.

On a farm at Hornsborg, Hamedna parish, Smaland, a cow gave birth to five well-developed calves at the same time.

Dr. Thulin, the aviator, made a successful flight from Malmo to Stockholm, without stopping on the way, which is regarded as quite an achievement.

Nathan Soderblom, a theological professor in the University of Upsala, has been chosen archbishop of Sweden.

Norway. The defense question continues to be the most important, most interesting topic of discussion in Norway.

The Norwegian parliament, says the correspondent, has recently been popularly criticized for its ardent faith in peace treaties.

The people of the Scandinavian peninsula—whether they be Norwegians or Swedes—have no thoughts of expansion, but want to be kept out of the political turmoil which during the last few years has agitated Europe.

Five months ago the battleship New Jersey was sent to Vera Cruz and her officers were detailed immediately for a military survey of the city.

In a seventeenth century Spanish city such as this straight streets are the exception. Many streets are curved and more have jogs every few blocks.

The buildings whose commanding roofs would sweep these streets were listed. The dozen or more high parapets and stone towers which overlooked various parts of the city were known even to the location of stairways.

The developments of the day showed that the precautions were wisely taken. The capture of Vera Cruz in the warless war was a fight over the housetops.

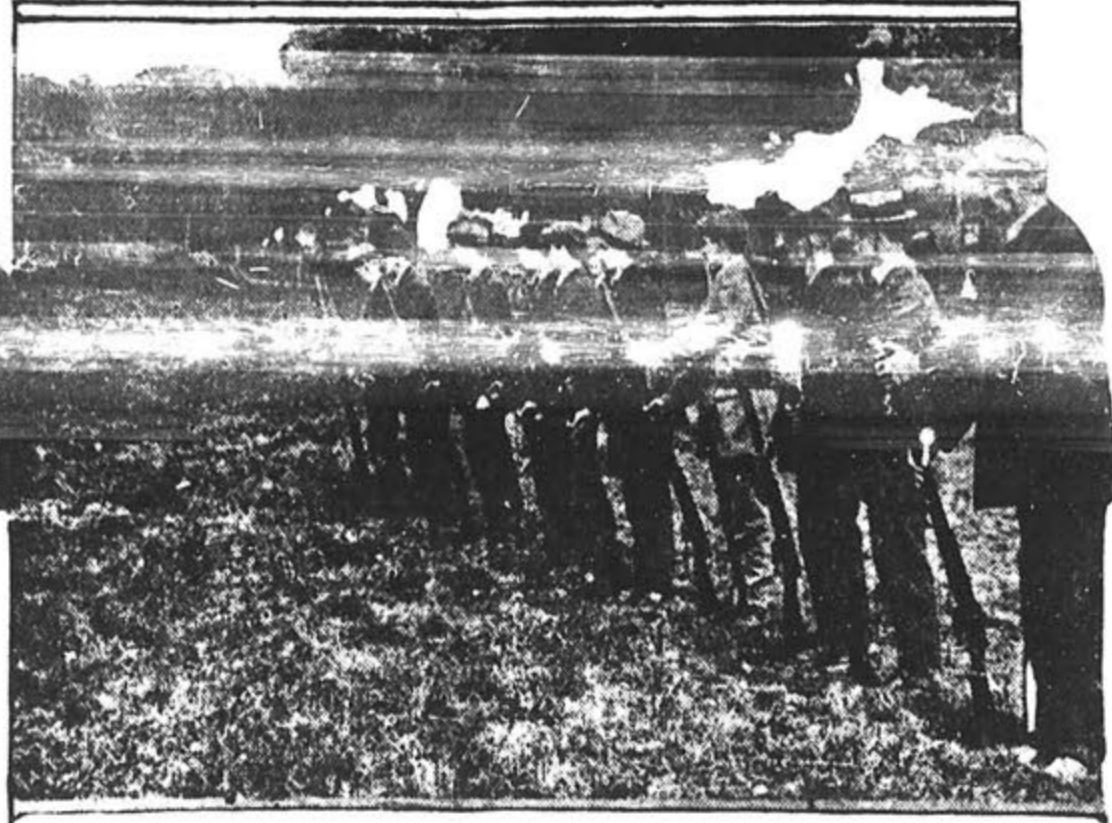

A cablegram from Christiania says that Roald Amundsen had a narrow escape from death a few days ago during tests in an aeroplane by which he procured an aviator's pilot certificate.

A dispatch from Norway's capital says that the storting adopted on June 10 a resolution prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquor by officers in the army and navy during their period of service.

The population of the city of Porsgrund will be increased from 5,000 to 8,000 by the annexation of parts of the parishes of Solum, Gjerpem and Eldanger.

The Klabo school for the blind is to be changed into a home for imbeciles, and the national government is expected to contribute $14,000 to the fund for making the necessary alterations.

ULSTERMEN DRILLING WITH CONTRABAND ARMS

In anticipation of the trouble that is certain to follow the enforcement of the home rule bill, Ulstermen in every hamlet of the county are drilling, generally with rifles that were smuggled into Belfast.

STORIES OF U. S. FLEET ON DUTY AT THE PORT OF VERA CRUZ

Vera Cruz, Mexico.—Months before the landing of the American naval forces at Vera Cruz and the capture of the Mexican port plans had been worked out for the occupation of the city.

Each sailor boy looked straight ahead. Thoughts flew to homes far away as war's realities were realized. The lesson had been learned.

Tension at Snapping Point. In the weeks the fleet was assembling at Vera Cruz awaiting word from Washington or a chance which might unloose the flood of war, tension was at the snapping point.

Five months ago the battleship New Jersey was sent to Vera Cruz and her officers were detailed immediately for a military survey of the city.

Streets Very Crooked. In a seventeenth century Spanish city such as this straight streets are the exception. Many streets are curved and more have jogs every few blocks.

The buildings whose commanding roofs would sweep these streets were listed. The dozen or more high parapets and stone towers which overlooked various parts of the city were known even to the location of stairways.

The developments of the day showed that the precautions were wisely taken. The capture of Vera Cruz in the warless war was a fight over the housetops.

A cablegram from Christiania says that Roald Amundsen had a narrow escape from death a few days ago during tests in an aeroplane by which he procured an aviator's pilot certificate.

A dispatch from Norway's capital says that the storting adopted on June 10 a resolution prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquor by officers in the army and navy during their period of service.

The population of the city of Porsgrund will be increased from 5,000 to 8,000 by the annexation of parts of the parishes of Solum, Gjerpem and Eldanger.

"Probably some native trying to become a hero to his seniors by getting his coat full of bullet holes," was the lieutenant's explanation of the strange performance.

Those who form their ideas of the navy from comic operas may believe there was such a ridiculous person as the "admiral of the king's navy."

Captain Boards Wrong Ship. Late one night when the fleet was off Vera Cruz a certain captain stepped into his launch and started for his ship.

"Tell the boat to cast off," he said to the officer who saluted him at the top of the ladder.

The officer of the deck did so. He knew it was not his captain, but discipline laid down its rules. The captain stroled across the afterdeck.

"I thought it was my ship," said the captain.

USED BANK'S FUNDS

Youngster Evidently Destined to Be a Financier.

Had Early in Life Discovered a Method of Fooling the Examiners, But Act Did Not Appeal to

A Bronx man brought his year-old son a toy bank about a month ago, the New York Evening Sun states. It was called a toy, but it had a regular registration dial.

Every night upon his arrival home the Bronx man called for his son's bank. Then he would give the boy a few pennies to deposit and feel good with himself to think how he was encouraging his son in thrift.

For three or four nights when he gave his son pennies he worked the lever himself and watched the dial figures turn round. Then followed several nights when he just tossed the little fellow the pennies and listened for the bell to ring without looking at the dial.

"I'll take that bank back where I bought it," said the irritated Bronx man. He hated to have his illustration in thrift come down to such a ridiculous ending.

"Did what?" asked the Bronx man.

"Oh, the inquiring little chap has found a way to wreck a bank. First, he borrowed enough pennies to run the amount up to three dollars, so he could take out his own deposits.

"Then, one day, I discovered my formula. I assumed the name of Doctor Froisic, and published my discovery to the world, though I kept its ingredients secret.

"I've been waiting for you. Here you are—yep, with all your wealth. Here I have you, in Doctor Froisic's little secluded office, with the door locked, to tell you all this. I can cure you of that which my skill tells me will kill you within a year. I alone can cure you, and—"

Clergyman's Little Mistake.

A certain clergyman was the guest of Rev. Edward Everett Hale overnight. In the morning he came downstairs with a look of pleased surprise on his face.

His host and hostess looked at him in silence, wondering if he had taken leave of his senses or was describing a very vivid dream.

"Yes," continued the guest, "I got up and leaned out of the window to listen. It was a pretty air they played, although I did not recognize it."

"This," said Doctor Hale, telling the story afterwards, "was the first time I ever heard of a fire alarm being taken for a symphony."

Owls' Strange Home.

A pair of little brown owls have made their home in a remarkable place on one of the farms of Messrs. Chivers & Sons, the well-known fruit growers of Histon, Cambridge, England.

VENGEANCE

By BURKE KEVINE.

I was a man of extremes. I loved or I hated. Middle ground I knew none. It was hate, therefore, which I treated down the steps of her porch. I had just quitted. I had just quitted.

Two weeks thereafter their engagement was announced; and, prompt to the announcement, the wedding occurred.

I laid my plan, and sailed for Paris to study.

I had located my office in a little back garden among shrubbery, well hidden from the Rue de Tolgne. It suited my purpose nicely, and the walls were thick.

"Yes," I asserted.

He gave his name, and I bowed.

"I suppose that my personal appearance tells its own story," he explained. "I, like the rest of the world, have heard of your wonderful cure. I desire to place myself under your treatment."

"Well, sir," said I, adopting a businesslike tone, "I'll begin right away. Kindly remove your coat."

I rose, and, going to the door, locked it. He manifested no concern.

"I returned to him as he lay back awaiting my examination. Of a sudden I whipped the glare of the light upon my own face, and, bending close over him, I cried:

"Now, do you know me?"

He made to rise, then sank back with what could have been taken for a smile.

"Yes—Guy Whitman?"

"Yes—Guy Whitman," I said, "the poor medical student at that time. But rich—yes, rich in the love of a woman; rich in a love to which ambition and a name would have been quickly added by its own inspiration. You came on the scene. Your inherited wealth and your infernal knowledge of how to wield it threw the cogs of my happiness out of mesh. The girl was young. The glitter told. Her mother avowed the decision by her word standards. She married you. She loved me.

"Revenge sank deep in me, and it has been the motive. The profession had striven years in vain for a weapon to down tuberculosis. I studied. Hard? Oh, yes—hard. I perfected myself."

He sat up and gazed at me in something of a quickened interest, though apparently little moved by my words. I continued:

"Then, one day, I discovered my formula. I assumed the name of Doctor Froisic, and published my discovery to the world, though I kept its ingredients secret.

"I've been waiting for you. Here you are—yep, with all your wealth. Here I have you, in Doctor Froisic's little secluded office, with the door locked, to tell you all this. I can cure you of that which my skill tells me will kill you within a year. I alone can cure you, and—"

"I bent to his face."

"I won't."

He raised himself to his elbow and regarded me intently. Then he asked quietly: "You still love her?"

DIAMOND DUST

Gladstone failed to get her scheduled start, but anyway Negaunee knew there had been a game.

Guess maybe that 11 to 6 beating of yesterday won't set that Ishpeming crew back just about where they belong. It would be heartless though for Escanaba to cop the game today for rumors of league disruption would surely follow.

"Dreamy" Scanlon won his ninth straight game on Friday trimming Rockford 6 to 3.

The Michigan state league is saved. Eddie Scott is back in old time form with the Flint aggregation and on Thursday hurled his team to a 6 to 1 victory over Jackson, holding the opposing team to four hits.

While baseball scribes of the Wisconsin-Illinois league are wondering about the whereabouts of "Dutch" Lippold, who jumped the Twin City team two weeks ago, a glance at the lineup of the Manistee team of the Southern Michigan league, might solve the absorbing mystery. The Big Dutchman is holding down third for the Manistee aggregation and is hitting at about the same feeble gait that characterized his work in the Wisconsin-Illinois league this season.

On Friday the Cadillac team of the Southern Michigan league was able to get only two hits off Manny of Manistee and Raleigh Baum of Escanaba drew one of those blows.

Gladstone's start in the percentage column was just postponed until today.

It's just about time that we started to dub that pitcher Van Effen, just plain Van.

Miss Bacon of Chicago has returned to her home after a visit in the city at the home of her brother, W. L. Bacon.

Ralph Hammond returned to Marquette yesterday afternoon, following a weeks visit with his parents at Wells.

CARTON OPPOSES JAP INVASION OF STATE

Detroit, Mich., July 11.—"While I am anxious to see the thirteen million acres of waste lands in Michigan put to use, I am against permitted Japanese to be the ones to settle on any of it," said State Land Commissioner A. C. Carton, when asked what he thought of the threatened invasion of the state by a colony of 400 Japanese.

It is not because of race prejudice that I oppose their immigration, but because they would tend to lower the standard of living. You will find the cost of living in the average American home rather high, because our list of what we call necessities is constantly growing. That is a healthy sign, when the great body of the people are cultivating a wholesome taste and desire for better things, and are raising their standard of living.

"With the Japs and Chinese, however, the standard living is low, far below that of the average American and the tendency is for them to keep it there. No, I would not like to see the Japs settle here. There are a half million persons in the state, however, who should turn to the soil, and these are the ones I should like to see settle on what are now waste lands.

The big demand nowadays is for young men, and when the older men are incapacitated or displaced, they wonder what to do. They should turn to farming. It's a healthy life, and we need more producers instead of more consumers. I should like very much to see the drift of population back from the city to the country, instead of the other way, which condition prevails at present."

William Shepeck is spending the week-end with friends at Little Lake. Bert Kernhan of Minneapolis, who is visiting in the city, has returned from a short visit at Iron Mountain.

SCORES HELME ON MEAT RULINGS

Ann Arbor, July 11.—Dr. John Westinger, city health officer of Ann Arbor, sharply criticised State Dairy and Food Commissioner Helme Tuesday in regard to his recent ruling that an animal suffering from "lumpy jaw" where the infection was confined to the head of the animal, was fit for food.

"That is all bunk," said Dr. Westinger. "If a creature is sick I don't care whether in its head or its tail. It's not fit for food and the state dairy and food commissioner ought to know it."

"There are 184 cities in the United States," said the doctor, "that expend annually 33 cents per capita for the conservation of health. These same cities expend 59 cents per capita annually for recreation; $5.95 for municipal government; $2.01 for highway improvement; $2.15 for police protection and $4.89 for education. Criminology statistics in these same cities show crime has increased seven-fold faster than has the population within sixty years."

Last night Dr. W. R. Parker of Detroit, a member of the University of Michigan medical faculty, spoke on "Conservation of Vision" and he announced that a committee had been appointed by the American Medical Association to work for the conservation of vision of every citizen in every state. This committee is made up of one member for each state and Dr. Parker is the Michigan member.

"There are in the United States about 64,000 persons who are totally blind," said Dr. Parker. "Fully 7,000 of these could have been saved a life of blindness if a drop of 2 per cent solution of nitrate of silver had been dropped into their eyes immediately after birth."

Notice to Democrats of Delta County.
 A meeting called by the Democratic county committee for all Democrats of Delta county will be held at Perow's hall in the city of Escanaba on Monday evening, July 13, 1914, for the purpose of extending the county organization throughout the county and other important matters for the success of the ticket.

WEDDING TWICE, PART TWICE, 28 MONTHS

Saginaw, Mich., July 11.—From March 6, 1912 to July 6, 1914, a good deal of the unusual side of married life entered into the experience of Helen Knollinger and her husband, August Knollinger.

Two marriages, two divorces, and the beginning of divorce proceedings and a jail term for the wife is all that was crowded into the 28 months. Mr. and Mrs. Knollinger were married the first time, March 6, 1912. In a few weeks she sued for divorce, alleging extreme cruelty. Later the suit was discontinued. In the fall Mrs. Knollinger and Henry Otto were arrested charged with a statutory offense. They pleaded guilty. She was sentenced to serve a year in the Detroit house of correction and Otto was given a year and a half in Ionia.

Knollinger sued for divorce before his wife was taken away and it was granted December 2, 1912. The following December Mrs. Knollinger was released and returned to Saginaw January 1914, she and Knollinger were remarried. Then Knollinger found some letters which he charged his wife had written to Otto while he was still serving time, and he wanted another divorce. Before he could be granted the decree the wife was brought in and substantiated her husband's story.

Now it is reported that Otto, having finished his term, will marry Mrs. Knollinger.

BEGIN FIGHT TO FREE MRS. FLORENCE CARMAN

Mineola, N. Y., July 10.—The battle to free Mrs. Florence Carman, locked up in the Nassau county jail here, accused of the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, was started today by George Levy, her attorney.

Mr. Levy began by having District Attorney Smith informed that he had procured an affidavit from the witness George Golder, in which he repudiated a part of his testimony of Elwood T. Bardes, the insurance agent, whose story of seeing outside Dr. Carman's office window a tall, well-built woman, dressed in a dark skirt and a white short waist, was directly responsible for Mrs. Carman's arrest. Both these efforts were anticipated by the district attorney, and tonight he issued the following statement:

"I heard the story of Golder before he appeared on the witness stand. He told me the same story he told at the inquest, which, in brief, was that when he called at the Carman home the night of the murder he saw a woman dressed in white sitting on the porch and that he later saw this woman in Dr. Carman's office. He told me he was sure he knew Mrs. Carman when he saw her. I told Golder he was mistaken. I knew he was then, and I know he is now. It was Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Carman's sister, who was on the porch and in the office."

"As for Bardes, his story stands up well. I believe he is telling the truth. It has come to my attention that a young woman in Freeport has stated that soon after half-past eight the night of the murder Bardes was in her home, which is but a few blocks from the Carman home, and that the distance was such that he could not possibly have been at Dr. Carman's residence in time to see the woman he described. I have had men out today investigating this story, and I find it perfectly correct. Bardes was at the young woman's house, but he went there directly after seeing the fleeing murderer. For at the time he attached no importance to what he had witnessed."

Mrs. Carman broke down today and the jail physician had to be summoned.

THUMB DISTRICT IS FOR GROESBECK

Port Huron, Mich., July 11.—"Groesbeck by 100,000 in the Thumb" is the slogan of Republicans in this section of the state who are working for the nomination of Alex J. Groesbeck of Detroit as the Republican candidate for governor.

The territory actually covered in which it is the declaration that Mr. Groesbeck will have 10,000 plurality embraces slightly more than the "Thumb" district as Macomb county is included.

The counties in which this organization is working takes in Macomb, St. Clair, Huron and Sanilac. Mr. Groesbeck was born in Macomb county and his old friends there promise him the greatest vote ever given a candidate for governor. He studied law in Port Huron and it is conceded even by those who are supporting the other candidates for governor that he will carry St. Clair county by a handsome vote. This influence extends into the counties immediately to the north and both Huron and Sanilac are sure to give Mr. Groesbeck the greatest number of votes.

The general market acted remarkably well in the face of weakness in New Haven, Mo. Pac. and Telephone and several other issues of minor importance.
