

GRIEVANCES PRESENTED

ENGINEERS AND FIREMEN STATE CASE TO PUBLIC OF CAUSES THAT MAY LEAD TO STRIKE

The threatened strike of engineers and firemen on western railroads, which includes all such employees of the Northwestern system is holding the intense interest of residents of Escanaba as a strike, would seriously effect this city.

On the Northwestern system there are 4300 engineers and firemen who would be effected while on the Peninsula division of that system there are approximately 300 men who would be forced to quit work should a strike be ordered.

Mediators are now reviewing the grievances of the employees of the companies, in Chicago in an effort to bring about an arbitration agreement, which course is, however, strenuously opposed by the engineers and firemen because of the fact that the railway companies are only morally bound to comply with arbitration awards and in the past the companies have repudiated the awards made and have not complied with agreements entered into with the men. The vital points in the contentions of the engineers and firemen are now presented to the railway companies as the following:

An eight hour day, such as is granted to other union men.

Time and a half for all overtime. Straight time for all time held away from their homes beyond the regular 15 hour limit.

Pay for time used in preparing for a run.

Under the present arrangement railway employes are paid either under a mileage or hour system, under a limit of 16 hours of continuous service as fixed by the government.

Employes now receive no overtime. Under present conditions employes receive no pay for time kept away from home after the expiration of the legal continuous working period.

At the present time the employes receive no pay for preparing their engines for a run.

According to the contentions of the men in 1890, an engine hauled 26-20 tons cars.

At the present time one engine hauls 100 eighty ton cars.

The work accomplished by one train crew since 1890 has been increased 1000 per cent.

The wage increases of the men since 1890 has been but 33 per cent while in that time the cost of living has increased 50 per cent.

W. S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has issued a pamphlet dealing with the grievances of the members of his organization in the impending strike and he says:

Anticipating a strike of all Locomotive Engineers, Firemen and Hostlers on practically all Western Railroads, this pamphlet is issued by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen for the express purpose of placing before the public information concerning the causes of the strike, should it occur. Briefly stated, the facts are as follows:

(1) In October of 1913, committees representing all Locomotive Engineers, Firemen and Hostlers on Western Railroads presented a request to their respective managements for an increase in wages and improved working conditions, accompanying such request with the usual notice, required by existing schedules, that within thirty days the schedules would be opened for these revisions.

(2) Immediately the Railroad Managements served notice on the Enginemen's Committees that all existing schedules would be terminated within thirty days, thus, for the first time in the history of railway wage negotiations, taking from railway employes schedules that had required more than thirty years, in many instances, to build up.

(3) The Railroads then proposed that a "service period" be substituted for the mileage basis to pay, a basic long in effect on practically all railroads. Negotiations between committees representing the railroads and enginemen culminated in both of these committees submitting revised propositions, the railroads insisting upon a modified form of their "service period" and the enginemen insisting upon retaining the mileage

BILLED FOR CHAUTAUQUA

A. J. Bowden, advertising advance man for the Redpath Chautauqua which appears here from Aug. 8 to 12, inclusive, has completed billing the city proper with Chautauqua advertising matter and has moved on to the next chautauqua stop.

Seven days before the Chautauqua opens another advertising man will come who will spread streamers across the streets, furnish autoists with pennants, children with hats and many other novel means of advertising matter, for the seven days preceding the big show in the Chautauqua tent. When the seven day man has completed his billing of this section of the country, about every person in this section of the peninsula will know that there is going to be a chautauqua in Escanaba.

This is the first time that a chautauqua has ever been brought to Escanaba. The proceeds of the ticket sale will go for the up-building of the Escanaba Military band. There will be an excellent array of talent embodied in the five day program. The main feature will be the appearance of ex-Governor Folk here. Should Folk's duties demand him to remain in Washington either John Lind, President Wilson's envoy to Mexico City, or Gov. Eberhardt of Minnesota will appear on the program. There is also a possibility that W. J. Bryan may come.

The five day program is one that every person in the city, old and young alike, should see and hear. Every morning there will be a free story telling hour for children. Dante and his band will be here for one day in fact, the talent that doesn't appear on the local program, will not be worth seeing.

basis of pay and allowance for extra work as in the past.

(4) Upon submitting the matter to the Engineers, Firemen and Hostlers employed on Western Railroads it was learned that by an almost unanimous vote the proposition of the managers was rejected and a strike approved.

BUSINESS IS INTERRUPTED

WILLY SENIOR ALDERMAN FROM SIXTH PREVENTS DISCUSSION OF PLANS FOR MUCH NEEDED SEWER.

A motion to adjourn foisted upon the council in an evident effort to prevent the consideration of important matters that were scheduled for action, made last night's meeting of the aldermen an eminently tame affair.

A proposition to devise some means of providing residents in the southern portion of the city with a sewerage service of some manner, was choked off by the senior alderman from the Sixth ward who evidently had some unannounced reason for desiring to cut off a discussion of that matter and introduced a motion to adjourn. The senior alderman from the Sixth was ably supported in his desire to cut off the discussion of plans for carrying through a sewerage project that has been before the aldermen for year by Ald. Johnson, of the Seventh ward, who seconded the precipitate adjournment motion and thus brought the proceedings of the session to a close.

Also no action was permitted by the council on bills of the Escanaba Military band for furnishing concerts at the city park and which have been endorsed and recommended for payment by the members of the board of park commissioners.

Among the matters to receive action by the council last night were the following: Received a report from the North Michigan Water Co. that water mains have been extended on Ruth street and McDonald avenue as directed by the council.

Referred a request of Mrs. Elizabeth Young for a rebate of her tax to the council finance committee.

Gave to John S. Lindsay permission to use one third of the street in front of the addition that is being constructed by him to the Fair store.

Referred to the street committee a request for an arc light at First and Pennie streets.

Instructed the street committee to have plans and specifications and estimates of cost prepared for a concrete pavement on Stephenson avenue from Hartnett avenue to the J. Stephenson Company's addition to North Escanaba.

Referred the bill of George Hogan for completing work on two sanitary sewers in the southwest portion of the city, amounting to $100 to the sewer committee.

Received the report of City Treasurer Carl E. Anderson, showing that there was a total of $1,278.72 in the city treasury on July 1.

Instructed the proper officials to notify the Barber Asphalt Company that immediate repairs must be made to the Ludington street pavement in compliance with a guarantee of ten years on the pavement and which guarantee is supported by a bond.

Approved of the drug bonds of C. H. Blisdee and A. Ellsworth and the liquor bond of Peter Kline.

DAHLGREN REACHES END

"Cy" Dahlgren, former local league hurler, has been given his unconditional release by the management of the Superior team of the Superior league of the Northern league. As a final opportunity to make good in that league, the hurler, who three years ago burned up that circuit with his remarkable twirling, is to be given a chance today to pitch for Virginia against Superior. If he makes good he will win a berth with the Virginia team.

Never a hitter, Dahlgren has been at his worst this season, getting but a single hit in 24 times to bat in nine games in which he has participated. Persch, former center gardner for the locals, now with Superior is hitting at a clip of .299; Metcfe, formerly of Gladstone is hitting for an average of .256; Ray Cullis, formerly with Ne-gaunee in the local league is hitting at a .229 gait.

DID VISIONS CAUSE SUSPECT TO KILL

Crystal Falls, July 21.—Did John Enquist, who hanged himself in his cell in the jail here May 29 while awaiting trial on the charge of murdering his partner, Vino Pudas, brood over a murder he said he committed in Finland until he decided to kill himself by the same manner he asserted the murder was committed in the old country?

Enquist, while intoxicated, once confided to a friend that he murdered an old maid in Finland for the purpose of robbery. He said the body was left hanging by a strap. He also said he threw a sailor overboard while he was a sailor making a voyage.

Old Country Murder Recalled. These stories were not considered seriously by the Finnish people until after the mysterious disappearance of Vino Pudas and Enquist was discovered burning the suit case and belongings of his partner. The stories of the old country murders were then recalled and suspicion attached to Enquist.

After a searching party had been directed to the spot where Pudas' body lay in the woods, by a fortune teller, and the subsequent arrest of Enquist on a charge of murder, Prosecuting Attorney Waffan heard the story of the murders in the old country and wrote to the officials of Helsinki, Finland, through the American consular offices, for information concerning these crimes. A photograph of Enquist was inclosed.

The information, if material, was to have been used at the trial, but it did not reach Prosecuting Attorney Waffan until a few days ago.

Murder Told in Detail. The police officials of Helsinki wrote that they had located Enquist's father and the latter had identified the photograph as that of his son. The letter said Enquist left Finland without a passport. It also said a murder identical to the one Enquist said he committed in the old country had occurred in a small town near Enquist's home and the murder had never been captured.

Referring directly to this murder the letter says: "There was a murder committed shortly before he left. It occurred in a small town near here. The woman was an old maid and was sort of crazy. She was found hanging, it was found that she was murdered, for there were bruises on her body and arms. No one was arrested for this but it is just possible that this fellow did it. This occurred at Kardolia Loogo, September, 1913. His leaving without a passport is the result of this opinion."

Miss Naomi Syverson has left for a visit in Toledo, Niagara Falls and points in the east.

The Misses Ruth and June Traude have left for a visit in Sheboygan.

Mrs. A. Kitchen of Chicago, is the guest of her son, Dr. A. S. Kitchen.

Thomas Foulkes of South Pekin, Ill., formerly of Escanaba, is visiting with friends in the city for a few days.

PROSECUTE NEW HAVEN

ADMINISTRATION SHOWS HAND IN DEALING WITH TRANSPORTATION COMPANY.

(Special to the Press.)
Washington, D. C., July 21.—Criminal proceedings before the grand jury to punish the directors of the New Haven and a civil suit to dissolve the railroad combine will be brought immediately by the department of justice with the sanction of President Wilson.

The position of the president and the attorney general was made public tonight in three letters, one from the attorney general to President Hustis of the New Haven, dated July 9, one to President Wilson from the attorney general, date today and the president's reply, written tonight.

The concluding paragraph of the president's letter follows: "In the circumstances the course you propose is the only one the government can pursue. I therefore request and direct that a proceeding in equity be filed, seeking the dissolution of the unlawful monopoly of the unlawful monopoly of transportation facilities in New England now sought to be maintained by the New Haven and that the criminal aspects of the case be laid before the grand jury."

In his letter to the president, Mr. Reynolds says: "The criminal aspects of the case have been kept constantly in mind; much data bearing thereon was collected some months ago and care has been exercised to permit nothing which might interfere with proper prosecutions at the appropriate time. We have not held out the slightest hope that parties guilty of criminal violations of the law would escape."

BODY FOUND NOT THE WINTERS GIRL

Chicago, July 21.—Another supposed solution to the mysterious disappearance of Catherine Winters, 9-year-old daughter of Dr. W. A. Winters of New Castle, Ind., apparently failed today when a body exhumed in the potters' field at Urbana, Ill., was identified by Nicholas Larry as his child.

Detectives had asserted that the body was that of the missing Winters girl, who disappeared from home in March, 1913. Dr. Winters, at New Castle, after receiving a description of the exhumed body, declared that it could not be his daughter, as her hair was brown and that of the girl taken from the grave was blonde.

The sexton of the Urbana cemetery went to New Castle to see if he could identify any one there as the man who had the body left in the receptacle thirteen months ago. While he and the detectives were absent, Guy Stewart, an undertaker, said that Larry was the man who had the child placed in the vault. The body lay in the vault for a year and then was buried in the potters' field because no one claimed it.

Larry saw the body today and declared that it was that of his daughter. She was two years old he said, and died in Jacksonville, Fla.

The detectives had asserted that they had traced the body from New Castle to Florida and thence to Urbana.

"I do not believe the body exhumed at Urbana, Ill., is that of my daughter."

This assertion was made today over the telephone from New Castle, Ind., by Dr. William A. Winters, father of the missing Katherine Winters, whose body was reported found in the potters' field at Urbana.

"My daughter had brown hair," Dr. Winters said, "while the little girl whose body they exhumed had very light blonde hair. I don't believe it's she."

"I've been treated so badly by these little star detectives that I have very little faith in their discoveries any more. There's no use of me going to Urbana, but I've sent an officer over there just to make sure," Dr. Winters added.

"It's another plot to ruin my character," Dr. Winters said. "Why these detectives even went around town this morning trying to get the neighbors to swear that my little girl had blonde hair. Everybody who knew her know that she had brown hair."

STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

(Special to the Press.)
New York, July 21. There will be no strike of ball players in the two major leagues tomorrow. The Kraft case, the basis of the strike order issued yesterday by the baseball players' fraternity, was settled today. The management of the Newark International League team agreed to buy the interest of Nashville in Kraft and thus satisfactorily disposed of the disputed point.

Owners and representatives of eight American League clubs met here today in extraordinary session and the solution was finally reached after a conference of several hours. Previous to the meeting, President Johnson insisted that there would be no compromise made while President Fultz of the players or organization was equally as possible that the strike would be called off if the case at point was not satisfactorily settled.

WOULD BE SLAYER FOUND TO BE SANE

At the completion of their examination of John Judalski, awaiting trial at the county jail for an attempt to take the life of Waldo Roberts several weeks ago, three physicians, Dr. Groos, Dr. Fenelon and Dr. Cotton, stated that they believed the man mentally sane.

Several times during the past few weeks the man has gone apparently insane. He has done about everything that a crazy man would do, but when he was examined as to his sanity yesterday, the doctors decided that it was probably only a bluff.

Attorney Joseph F. Cuddy was yesterday named by Judge R. C. Flannigan to defend the man when his case is tried.

FIRST GUN IS FIRED

AT MEETING LAST NIGHT FOUR TEAMS ARE NAMED IN TICKET SELLING CONTEST.

Last night at the office of Charles F. Jacobson, secretary of the Escanaba Business Men's association, the Chautauqua committee met at which time final plans were laid for the sale of the season ticket for the big intellectual show which is to be staged in this city from August 8 to 12, inclusive.

At the session last night attended by a score of local citizens four teams were named, the captains of each team being Attorney M. D. Mead, Rev. C. A. Lund, George Haggerson and George B. Norton. Each captain was allowed to select four assistants for his team to "make up a total of five. The selections were made last night, but on account of the fact that it was not certain that all would consent to serve, the names are withheld until tonight. The contest will start on next Monday evening at 8 o'clock when the Escanaba Military band, to whom the proceeds of the Chautauqua go will render a concert before the office of Charles F. Jacobson.

At that time the public in general will be invited to the concert and auto parties will be a specialty. Every owner of a car in the city will be asked to bring their friends and neighbors to the concert.

At the stroke of eight, when the last musical number has been played, the members of the four teams, wearing red and green hats will dash into the crowd selling season tickets. Each person in attendance will be asked to purchase a season ticket and to have the $2 in change, so that rapid time may be made by the teams. All season tickets will be sold until the day before the opening day of the Chautauqua for the small sum of $2, after that date no season ticket may be purchased for less than $4.35.

The ticket sale contest will close on Friday evening of next week at 8 o'clock when the winning team will be given a four course banquet at a local hotel. The team finishing in second place will be served with the last three courses of the banquet, the team in third position the last two courses of the banquet and the team finishing last will be compelled to sit at the table throughout the banquet but be allowed to eat only the final course of the banquet.

Tags with "I have purchased a Chautauqua ticket" will be distributed to each person buying a season ticket in order that he may not again be pestered with the members of any team.

No promises to purchase a ticket of any friend will hold good. The first person to present a ticket for sale, be shown the card designating the purchase, or the victim will be compelled to purchase of the agent.

Matt Peterson last night consented to give his time for a whole day to the distribution of Chautauqua programs about the city. Each program will be accompanied by a post card giving a picture of some feature of the Chautauqua which the receiver is requested to mail to some outside friend to come to Escanaba for the big week in August.

Intense interest was aroused among the team members last night and it is now believed that the five day contest sale will far surpass the

THE RATE DECISION.

The rate decision which will be handed down by the Interstate Commerce Commission this week should receive the approval of the public.

The commission is the public's representative, it stands as the public's protector against possible extortion by the railroads.

Perhaps the most important part of the decision is the excellent advice which accompanies it.

The abolition of free services would, in the commission's judgment, be amply sufficient to net the companies $25,000,000 a year, which would go far toward bettering conditions of which the railroad officials have complained.

The free services, which the railroads so generously render, amount, it is claimed, to a species of rebate. They place the big shipper on a favored basis.

To do away with these favors would be a step in the direction of abolition of special privilege, and any step in this direction is always for the benefit of the general public.

Aside from ordering an increase in the rate for class freight, which it considers just, the commission practically directs the railroads to seek by sound economy and better business methods the advantages which they desired to gain by taxing the shippers and thus indirectly the people of the United States.

The railroads will doubtless be disappointed at the refusal to allow an increase in the commodity rates. But they will have little leisure to cry calamity.

Throughout the country a general stimulation of industry is reported, while the record breaking crops will of themselves give the carriers an immense business.

The decision means that before the railroads can expect rate favors they must prove beyond doubt that their management makes for the strictest economy. Then, and only then, may they hope for aid from the commission.

Concerning the ability of the railway companies to grant the concessions asked by the men Mr. Stone says:

The statements issued by railroad officials showing how the outlay for labor has increased, have become commonplace. To the reader of the daily press who does not stop to consider the matter, they create the impression, as those who issue them wish to create, that a large part of the financial woes of the transportation companies at the present time is due to the demands of railroad employees for higher rates of pay. A few moment's examination of the facts, however, soon shows how unwarranted these statements are. An analysis of the operating performance of the carriers at once discloses the fact that the railroads by using larger engines, heavier equipment and by adding to train loads have developed a remarkable increase in efficiency of employees, and while adding to the labor of the wage-earner have reduced to a striking degree the labor cost of conducting transportation. An examination of the annual reports of 53 Western railroads to the Interstate Commerce Commission shows, that for 1,000 traffic units handled in 1890 the cost of engineers and firemen was 86 cents as contrasted with only 59 cents in 1913. In other words, these representative Western roads were enabled to transport 1,000 passenger and ton miles 27 cents cheaper last year than in 1890, or, to reduce their engineer and fireman cost of handling traffic 31 per cent. In the light of these facts, the sham of the claim of the railroads that increased operating costs have been due to added outlays for engineers and firemen is apparent.

An extract from the pamphlet under the caption, "Why Engineers, Firemen and Hostlers Decline to Arbitrate" says:

W. S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, says:

"The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in the past has favored arbitration for the settlement of all disputes between labor and capital, and, in fact, has been instrumental in as-

Providence Seems to Have Provided Temperate Zone for the Feathered Friends of Man.

Up in the far country where the timber falls, the calendar is respected. There is no summer before the official day set for it. The ground is held fast by frost until June is well started. There are furies of snow, wild, bitter winds, a sky that has no mercy. And then, suddenly, the wind shifts and comes out of the south. It is summer then with a leap.

The interest of the temperate zone in the northland is that it is there that have gone a great many of the migrating birds which paid us a few days' visit and passed on. For all its inhospitality to man, that country in summer is a paradise for birds. Its marshes are safe refuges from two and four-footed enemies. There is exhaustless material for nests. And out of the pools come myriads of insects, food that does not fall until the time for the southward bird movement arrives.

Some man has said that there is no God north of latitude 59. He did not inquire as to what the birds might have thought of that—Toledo Blade.

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

R. F. D. No. 2, Seymour, Mo.—"My scalp broke out with fine pimples at the start. They itched and burned so much that I was compelled to scratch them and they would fester and come to a head and break out again. The trouble was attended by such burning and itching I could not sleep, also when I sweat it burned the same. My hair fell out gradually and the scalp kept rough and dry with itching and burning. After about two years the pimples broke out between my shoulders. My clothing irritated them. I was troubled with that eczema five or six years.

On many farms in Western Canada in 1913, some yields were reported as high as 35 bushels per acre. As high as 100 bushels were reported in some districts for oats. 50 bushels for barley and from 10 to 20 for flax.

J. Keys arrived in the country 4 years ago from Denmark with very little means. He homesteaded, worked hard, is now the owner of 350 acres of land in 1913 had a crop of 300 acres, which will realize him about $4,000. His wheat weighed 66 lbs. to the bushel and averaged over 35 bushels to the acre.

Thousands of similar instances might be related of the successful farmers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The crop of 1913 was an abundant one everywhere in Western Canada.

BLUE NOW MOST POPULAR COLOR

Leading Paris Dressmakers Are Emphasizing the Success of Their Creations.

COLORED HAIR STIKING FAD

Ridicule Seemingly Has Had Little Effect on This Remarkable Style—Rucked Sleeves a Charming Idea—Effective Coiffure Easy to Copy.

PARIS—Now that the Concours Hippique is preparing to open its doors, the spring season may be said to have commenced officially. Already people are coming back from the Riviera, already the fashionable theaters are thronged every night. But it is at the opera—especially on Monday nights—that one finds the ultra-smart Parisiennes. The boxes are filled with well-known society women and the gowns seen in the foyer represent the latest creations of the Rue de la Paix dressmakers.

I notice that a great number of blue toilettes are worn at the opera, blue in every possible shade, from palest pastel to the splendid color known as Egyptian blue. All the rich, rather dark shades of blue are fashionable this season, and I notice that both Worth and Paquin are using materials in the peacock tint.

A great deal of glittering embroidery, mingled with deep fringes, appears on the new models and in many cases these blue gowns are accompanied by dark blue transformations, or wigs.

It is astonishing to find that this fashion of blue, green and orange hair has really "caught on." It seems so very eccentric that one would have supposed that it would have been left to "variety" actresses or to those much photographed beauties whose names are familiar to the throng on the boulevards. But no. It is really true that, in certain circumstances, the most notable of our Parisian society leaders adopt transformations of blue and green tints.

Beauty in Colored Wigs.
At a recent ball given by the Duchesse d'Uzes all the women present wore colored wigs, and the effect was excellent.

Mlle. d'Alcedo, who is famous as a beauty in Biarritz circles, looked quite lovely in a transformation of dark electric-blue hair. It was dressed high at the back, and on the forehead there was a soft curl right in the center. Her gown was composed of creamy lace and it was finished off with a wide sash of electric-blue velvet ribbon.

At the same ball the Marquise della Torre wore an emerald green transformation and Mlle. de Yturbe, the beautiful mother, wore hair in a peculiar shade of tangerine orange, a large rose of the same color being thrust into her waist belt.

At the opera a lovely Russian woman wore a dark blue transformation with an embroidered gown in the same shade. This gown was made like a sheath, and it was covered with paillettes and beads in various tones of dark blue.

There was a scarf drapery of fine black lace thrown over the gown and the white shoulders and arms gleamed like marble under the fine meshes of the Chantilly. The blue hair was parted at the left side and drawn back from the forehead. At the back it was held close to the head by a flat comb set with sapphires.

Red Chiffon and Gold.
Another beautiful woman appeared in the foyer in a wonderful robe composed of cardinal red chiffon and gold embroidery. The corsage was very decollete and there were no sleeves, the sides of the bodice being held up by strings of diamonds. With this gown a wig in a rich shade of leaf-green was worn and a large black parade mount drooped over the hair, and neck, at one side.

I saw this week an ideal evening gown which was created by Laferriere. It was worn at the opera and it attracted a great deal of attention by reason of its elegant simplicity.

The material was shell-pink chiffon and dull silver lace. The skirt was slightly trained and mounted over an underdress of shell-pink Indian silk. The silver lace tulle was caught in at the sides and at the back of the beautifully draped corsage there was an immense Japanese bow.

A notable point connected with this gown was the long, rucked sleeve. These sleeves were, of course, transparent and they were extremely becoming to the arms. In fact, the whole corsage was so dainty and fairy-like that it seemed like a cloud of pale pink vapor.

These long rucked sleeves for evening gowns are a new idea and a charming one. Only the most transparent and fragile materials are used for them, and they have a mysterious charm of their own, because they seem to veil the skin without really covering it. The outline shown in this sketch is new. It is worthy of attention because it represents the "outline" of tomorrow.

Wait Line Has Disappeared.
All the leading Parisian dressmakers are adopting this vague, picturesque style. It becomes more and

REAL LIFE IN THE COUNTRY

Fact is Shown by Man's Eagerness to Escape From Congestion of the Crowded City.

Why is it that railway magnates, presidents of banks and heads of great enterprises who must perform so much business in cities, almost all try to have homes on farms in the country, where they develop soils, plant crops and breed animals? It is because there is something in the country that is missing in the city. There is a certain freshness in the air, a certain freedom in the movement of the body, a certain peace of mind that is missing in the city.

These things man has made, and they are useful, but they are not life, much as the farm boy may imagine them to be. Life is in the open country. Life is in the growing grass, the waving fields of wheat, the springing corn. Life is in the trees and birds, life is in the developing animals of the farm.

Any man who works with the land, who feeds a field and watches the result, gains a real fundamental knowledge of the underlying foundation on which rests all our civilization. It makes him a sober man, a thoughtful man, a reverent man, and if he experiments wisely a hopeful optimist. Life is where things are born and live and grow. On the farm is real life—Breeder's Gazette.

The American Farmer.
All things recalled, wouldn't it be the part of statesmanship to do conscientiously for the American farmer? He's one-fourth of your population, and the nation's best hope. The American merchant borrows at five per cent. The American stock gambler, producing nothing, accomplishing nothing, a mere leech living by the toll of others, borrows for even less. The American farmer, with all that can be said to his good and solvent advantage, must and does pay 8 1/2 per cent.

And all the time the savings and postal banks are bulging with billions. If the government would make two blades of grass grow where but one has grown before—and publicly it would pay—the wide-fungus chance lies open. Let it model action on French or German lines, and place the farmer on a borrowing par with the merchant, the manufacturer and the stock jobber. Let it evolve a system of farm loans which shall put those savings and postal bank billions at a per cent within the farmer's borrowing reach.—Hearst's Magazine.

It is now very much the fashion to wear tulle scarfs in the evening, drawn lightly over the shoulders and arms, or the fine black lace scarf-draperies which I have just described.

Flesh-Pink Evening Corsages.
In this way the shoulders and arms are lightly covered and the ensemble is in almost all cases admirable. The Parisian dressmakers continue to use a great deal of flesh-pink tulle for their evening corsages, for the upper part of these, that is to say.

One rarely finds dark colored chiffon or satin introduced in the upper part of an evening corsage. Very beautiful gold or silver embroidery is often used, or fragile tulle covered with a tracery of diamond sparks. Paste shoulder straps are almost always introduced and when no sleeves are worn the arms are covered with long mousquetaire gloves.

High mediceal collars or collars appear on many of the new evening dresses and these collars either frame the face or the shoulders, that is to say they are attached to a semihigh transparent bodice or to one which merely outlines the shoulders.—Idalia de Villiers in the Boston Globe.

Kilted Skirts.
The kilted skirt is also in evidence once more, and doubtless has come to stay. At present the kilts are usually stitched to within a few inches of the hem, as in the charming frocks worn at L'Athenes, one of cerise crepe de chine which has a tiny basque of finer kitting, and is worn with a perfectly simple blouse, finished with a soft neck frill of tulle, and a soft sash falling in long ends in front; another with the plisse skirt of white silk bordered with yellow, the color of the quaint Saxon tunic of embroidered linen.

Minaret Parasol With its Abrupt Top.
It is something new to see a parasol that does not taper conventionally to its ferule end. This oddly sliced off parasol is called the minaret because it looks like a minaret tunic. The model pictured is of white silk ruffled in pale green and it accompanies a frock of white indestructible voile piped with green pussy willow tulle and having a sash of the same silk.

Eldon, Mo. — "I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertised itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

KILLED WHILE RIDING ON TOP OF A TRAIN

Green Bay, July 21.—A ride on top of a coach of a Chicago & Northwestern road train, which John Paulson of Minneapolis started at Milwaukee terminated fatally at Green Bay. The man's dead body was discovered on top of the train when it pulled into the depot at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Paulson's skull was crushed, and it is believed he was struck at a bridge crossing.

Three other men, who were riding on top of cars of the same train with Paulson, were taken into custody by officers and lodged in the county jail while an investigation into the cause of Paulson's death was made.

That Paulson was struck by a low bridge is the opinion expressed today by Dan Kosky, a boy who was riding on a car in the rear of the train. Kosky talked to District Attorney M. E. Davis and told him he had been in the Kansas wheat fields and was going to his home at Hermansville, Mich. He said he saw Paulson and another man climb onto the coach back of the engine of the train in the Milwaukee yards. Both men were intoxicated, the youth said.

The companion of Paulson is Frank Bock, who had worked as baggage porter at the Wisconsin hotel, Milwaukee. Bock could recall little of the night's events when asked to explain by the district attorney. He said he drank freely during the day and was intoxicated when he got onto the coach at Milwaukee to "beat his way north."

Paulson was identified by a card found in his pocket. It was mailed at Minneapolis and signed "Annie." Annie is Paulson's sister. The man's brother is expected to arrive this evening to take charge of the body.

TWO MINE GUARDS DECLARED EXECUTED

Fort Smith, Ark., July 21.—The finding of the charred fragments of the bodies of two men in the ruins of a log cabin and reports of an attempt to destroy the surface workings of another mine, this one owned by the Bache-Denman Coal Company, were today's developments in the conflict between strikers and non-union coal miners and other company employes in the Hartford Valley coal fields.

The discovery of parts of two skulls and human bones, raked from the embers of the log cabin, explains, it is believed, the disappearance of J. W. Sylesberry and John Baskins, mine guards, after Friday's battle at Prairie Creek, and tends to confirm a statement sworn to by Sam C. Thomas, a company employe, that he witnessed the execution of Sylesberry and Baskins.

According to Thomas, he and six other men were taken prisoners after six hours battle at Prairie Creek after escorted to a hut at the head of gulch on Sugar Loaf mountain. About ten feet from the hut, Thomas declares, a man opened fire with a rifle, killing Sylesberry and Baskins. The statement declares the man also attempted to kill Thomas, but that other members of the party interfered. The five other captives were set at liberty, according to Thomas' narrative, and the bodies then were placed in the cabin and the torch applied.

A grand jury will begin an investigation at once at Greenwood, the county seat.

PATMONT TURNS UP IN BADGER STATE

Milwaukee, Wis., July 21.—A telegram received here from a minister named Stone at Rib Lake, Wis., says Rev. Louis R. Patmont is at Mr. Stone's home. The minister says that a temporary worker has been visiting him since his disappearance from Detroit on June 12. The message was received by James O. Clarke, of this city. C. L. Milton, Jr., a son of Rev. C. L. Milton of this city, a fellow worker of Patmont, confirms the statement that Patmont is at Rib Lake. Rev. Mr. Milton is at Rib Lake with Mr. Patmont.

Patmont disappeared first from the vicinity of Westville, Ill., and was found in a destitute condition near Columbia, Ill. He moved to Detroit and on the eve of his departure for St. Louis to attempt the identification of his purported abductors he disappeared a second time. Charges have been made that Patmont's disappearance were plots of alleged liquor interests to remove him from his activities in prohibition campaigns.

Seems in Constant Fear. Rugby Junction, Wis., July 21.—Gordon Klapp of Milwaukee, who went into Rib Lake to verify the identification of Patmont, passed through here tonight on his way home. Mr. Klapp said he talked with the minister this morning and, while the clergyman is a changed man in every way, there is no doubt as to his identity.

According to Mr. Klapp, Patmont told a rambling story. He said a strong man had warned him that if he did not leave Detroit he surely would be killed. After visiting Kansas City, Minneapolis and other cities, and suffering intense mental agony, he finally reached the lumber region of northern Wisconsin. Mr. Klapp said Patmont's nerves seemed badly shattered. He is in constant fear someone is following him and is threatening his life, and at times appears to be in a state of mental coma.

THIN FOLKS MADE FAT.

The Way Samose Works Its Wonders—Guarantee by West End Drug Store.

More than half the readers of The Press would give almost anything to be plump and rosy instead of thin and scrawny.

Physicians and chemists for years have studied the problem of making a fish-forming food, but it is only within the last few months that a bright man discovered the prescription that taken with the daily meals gave a positive increase in flesh. In fact it was so certain in its action that a guarantee was attached to each package stating that if weight did not increase as a result of using it the purchase price would be refunded.

This preparation is now put up in convenient form for use under the name of Samose.

The West End Drug Store has secured the agency in Escanaba for Samose, and as the percentage of satisfactory results from the use of this prescription is so nearly one hundred per cent they feel there is no risk in offering to refund the money if Samose does not do all that is claimed for it.

Everybody that is thin and out of health should begin today the use of Samose with a guarantee like this.

SUFFRAGISTS ARE ENTHUSED OVER STAND OF BRYAN

Bryan's formal statement in support of equal suffrage for women, was being widely discussed here today. Women suffrage workers were enthusiastic over the encouragement given their cause by the secretary, who in a formal statement came out for equal suffrage and asserted he would ask no political rights for himself that he was not willing to grant his wife. He says he finds objections to granting the ballot to women are not well founded and arguments in favor of it are convincing.

The question of equal suffrage will be voted on in Nebraska in November and women suffragists here today professed to believe in Secretary Bryan's announced position on the subject will materially assist them in their campaign.

Women, Mr. Bryan said, had proved herself equal to every responsibility imposed upon her, and would not fall society in its emergency. Above all other arguments in favor of giving her the ballot he placed the right of the mother to a voice in the moulding of the environment of her children. "The mother," the secretary said, "can justly claim the right to employ every weapon which can be made effective for the protection of those whose interests she guards and the ballot will put within her reach all of the instrumentalities of government."

MURDER THEORY PARTLY CLEARED

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 21.—The finding of the body of a man about 32 years old along the shores of Lake Michigan, two miles north of here,

Chicago, in a rowboat Sunday. All marks of identification on the clothing had been removed.

In the hip pocket of the man's trousers was found a .33-calibre revolver, with five loaded shells. Sheriff Franz believes the man killed his companion and then committed suicide by drowning. The beach is being watched for the body of the woman, which is expected to come up soon.

BILL NEVER PASSED BY THE LEGISLATURE

Indianapolis, July 21.—Who ever perpetrated the fraud is a consummate scoundrel and should go to the penitentiary," declared Governor Samuel M. Hulse on Friday, in discussing the Lake county Recorders salary increase bill, which was indefinitely postponed in the last session of the legislature, yet was handed to the governor as having been passed by both houses and now appears on the statute books as a law. "It is evident," he continued, "that a fraud has been perpetrated, not only on me, but on the state, and I shall do my best to send the perpetrator to the penitentiary if he becomes known." It became known that Governor Hulse has been conducting an inner investigation of his own into the manner in which the bill became a law and Bert Winters, deputy state examiner has been in lake county several days on orders direct from the governor. W. Winters on his return declined to discuss his mission. Although it appears the bill was never passed by either house, the supreme court has held that the court cannot go behind the signatures of the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker of the house in deciding whether a bill is legal and the measure probably will continue a law unless it is repealed at the next session of the legislature next January.

BRYAN IS LIVING A CHEAP LIFE

Washington, July 21.—Secretary of State Bryan displayed his thrifty spirit in a haberdasher's shop last week, when he refused to pay 10 cents apiece for collar buttons. The clerk offered a set of three for a quarters. "I want only one," said Secretary Bryan. "That will be 10 cents then," replied the clerk. "No indeed," said the secretary hastily. "I won't pay 10 cents for a single collar button. I know where I can get them down the street for 5 cents." He departed in search of the nickel button.

FAMILY QUARREL ENDS IN MURDER

Iron River, July 21.—A family quarrel last Monday has resulted in murder, Stephen Mraz, married, dying in Rundstrom's hospital from injuries received in the scrap. This brother, Andrew, 22 years old, and Axel Westcott, porter in a barber shop here, are charged with the killing. The brother is in jail but Westcott disappeared as soon as Mraz' death became known. Steve and Andrew got into a fight over a charge by the former that the latter took money out of his till. Andrew was apparently getting the worst of it and called for help. Westcott responded. One of the men hit Steve behind the ear, knocking him down. His head struck the pavement and his skull was fractured in two places. Eye witnesses say Westcott struck the blow that knocked Mraz down but Andrew says it was his own blow that sent his brother down. Officers are looking for Westcott.

RIVER OF WONDERS

Ship Captains Tell of Strange Experiences on Amazon.

Peets Assail Travelers on 2,160-Mile Journey to Iquitos—Ravages of Vulture Bat and Fish That Are Dangerous.

Chicago.—The emergence of Colonel Roosevelt from the interior of Brazil directed public attention more than ever to a journey probably the most weird and picturesque in the world, says the New York World.

It is 2,160 miles from the mouth of the Amazon to Iquitos, where the government of Peru maintains a large dockyard, barracks, iron works, machine shops, etc., and an inland navy consisting of two gunboats.

If one wishes to travel from the Pacific side of Peru to Iquitos, only five hundred miles apart, he ascends the west coast in a steamer, crosses the Isthmus of Panama, embarks at Colon for New York and transship here for Iquitos up the Amazon.

Few have any idea of the tremendous volume and coloring of the Amazon current, its influence upon the Atlantic, the immense distance it carries nearly fresh water into the brine of the ocean, its serpentine windings, its overhanging vegetation, its rapids, its wild life, its pests, perils, pleasures and all sorts of strange sights. Some of the tributaries of the Amazon are siltier than the Mississippi.

Two Booth line skippers, Capt. O. J. Beck and Capt. J. W. Couch (the Booths relieve their master mariners by sending them on leave to England after a certain number of trips into the South American interior), gave a sort of duet in the narration of the wonders of the Amazon on board of their ships, their peculiar cargoes, their eligibility to fly the American flag if they chose, and their adventures on the river of rivers. They characterized Alexander P. Rogers' description of the country as faithful and sincere.

While they were talking in the cabin of the Denis longhoremeop were shoveling out of the holds 1,600 tons of Brazil nuts at the old Robert pier in Brooklyn. Only 1,600 tons of the nuts were imported during the year 1913. Captain Beck, who was just packing up to catch the Conarder for Liverpool, denied that the mosquito was a pest or peril on the Amazon. He said that for about three days in the navigation of the river it was necessary to shut up the passengers and use the mosquito ports, but this was the only stretch in the long journey out and back for nine weeks in which there was any mosquito fighting.

"There is something worse than the mosquito," said Capt. Couch. "I refer to the vulture bat, which always attacks either your bald head or the soles of your feet. It always bites you in the tenderest spots and draws blood."

Capt. Couch did not say how the vulture bat was circumvented. "Yes," said Capt. Beck, continuing the dialogue, "there's another pleasant little habit of the Amazon, the 'smell bug.' If you smell him once you never forget him. He's brown, less than an inch long and half dead when he comes aboard on feeble wing. I've seen them cover the deck seven inches deep, and we had to shovel them overboard."

Everybody took a fresh swallow of claret after this story and Capt. Couch turned to again. "It's against the rules of the company for any man to go overboard for a swim in the Amazon. One of our men disobeyed this rule once, and was never seen after he dropped over the side. We lay at anchor at the time."

"It was probably a small fish that got him," remarked Capt. Beck. "A small fish in the Amazon, about six or seven inches long, attends school in thousands. They dart at a man under the surface and bite him in hundreds of places and he never rises." "A bacu" got him, I think," rejoined Capt. Couch. "A bacu is a black fish, about six or seven feet long, with no teeth, but with rows of suckers in each long jaw. The bacu scoops men alive."

The talk turned to natural phenomena, and Capt. Beck said the difference between high and low water at Manaos was about 42 feet. There is an old story about a crew that was dying of thirst when its ship anchored in the mouth of the Amazon and the skipper didn't know it, and another captain, anchored near by, belted through his trumpet, "Let down your buckets; you're in the mouth of the Amazon."

"Is that story true?" Capt. Couch was asked. "It is," he replied. "I learned at school that the Amazon carried fresh water seaward, and I put it to the test once. I was 187 miles from the mouth of the Amazon. I noticed that the water was discolored around the ship. I dipped some up and tested it in the hydrometer. That water dipped from the ocean was three-fourths fresh."

Philadelphia.—Tragedy by fire was capped with gruesome horror when the body of Mrs. Yetta Siegal, of 1312 South Seventh street, who was burned to death last week, was precipitated with 50 of her mourners into the cellar of her home by the collapse of the floor. While only minor injuries were suffered among the funeral party, the body of the dead woman was thrown from the coffin and trampled upon by the panic-stricken men and women. With the assistance of the police and the undertaker, the corpse was replaced in the coffin and taken to the cemetery.

Several houses have collapsed in the neighborhood recently, and the funeral party became panic-stricken in the belief that they were about to be buried under tons of brick and plaster. Their terror was increased by a flow of gas which was liberated by the falling floor. The policeman and the barber called to the struggling men and women that the danger was over, and helped them to climb out.

When nearly all the mourners had been lifted from the cellar, Katie Siegal was found stretched upon the body of her mother in a faint. The girl was carried to the yard and revived, while the undertaker lifted the body back into the coffin.

Part of Buchanan's Service Presented to President's Wife at White House.

Washington.—Another addition has been made to the White House collection of presidential ware in the form of a handsome Sevres dinner plate from a set which belonged to President Buchanan. The gift has just been received by Mrs. Wilson from James Buchanan Henry of Annapolis, Md., a nephew and ward of President Buchanan, who served as his private secretary during Mr. Buchanan's occupancy of the White House.

The plate has an interesting history. It belonged to an exquisite set of pink banded Sevres, each piece of which was elaborately decorated, which Mr. Buchanan purchased at the sale of household belongings of the French minister at Washington during the time Mr. Buchanan was serving as secretary of state under President Polk in 1845-49.

Mr. Buchanan prized the china highly and it was used by him in the White House and subsequently in his home at Wheatland, near Lancaster, Pa. Upon his death the china came into Mr. Henry's possession.

Music Lightens Labor and Awakens Patriotism: By LOUIS C. ELSON, Boston, Mass.

What influence has music had on human progress? Perhaps only as medicine has been a remarkable specific in certain cases. Unlike a medical specialist, music has worked beneficially in many diverse cases. Pythagoras used to employ music at the beginning of the day to fortify himself for the labors to come, and at the end of the day to soothe his mind after those labors. In defensive wars music has been a direct stimulant to deeds of daring. When the German writer, Klopstock, was introduced to Rouget de L'Isle, the author and composer of the "Marseillaise," he refused to shake hands with him and exclaimed, "Monsieur! Your music has killed 50,000 Germans!"

In such a case a Frenchman might be pardoned for thinking that music had helped human progress. Diddin's sailor songs were said to have been worth 10,000 seamen to the cause of England (this in offensive wars), so thoroughly did they awaken the pride of the British mariners. Diddin received a pension from the English government and certainly deserved it.

Music is a direct aid in certain kinds of labor, and this is certainly a material and definite example of a practical advantage in the art. The sailor gives the most universal example of this, for he has often pulled the ropes in rhythmic swing with the tones of the "Shanty." This direct aid to labor is not only employed by American sailors, but by the seamen of every nation. There are French "shanty-songs" and Russian and Spanish; yes, even Chinese. In the Mahogany forests of Honduras, when they drag the heavy logs to the seacoast, at the head of the tugging crowd there marches the singer, warbling his rhythmic melody and uniting the efforts of the men. On the southern levees, say at Mobile or New Orleans, one often heard a similar song as the cotton bales were pulled and hauled—and whatever aids labor certainly aids human progress.

Summing up, I would say that since music has always been used in awakening patriotism, stimulating courage, lightening labor, it certainly has been an aid to human progress, even though it would be difficult to cite specific instances.

Good and bad way of looking at One's Surroundings.

TWO VIEWS OF LIFE

Good and bad way of looking at One's Surroundings.

possess, by One's Method, Altogether to Do Away With Boredom, While the Other One Invites the Dreaded Affliction.

There is a flat, unadventurous way of looking at life which glosses everything over with an uninteresting uniformity. It is the outcome of that spirit of a tired old age which is just as characteristic of certain youths and maidens as of the people whose actual days have been long in the land.

There is a manner of viewing life which imparts fresh tints to the familiar, which means a never-ending succession of exquisite and vitally interesting pictures, and which altogether scotches that bugbear boredom, if it does not indeed deny existence to the dull creature.

This is an attribute of eternal youth, which is just as much at home with gray hairs and trembling limbs as with rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes. You are free to make your own choice between one attitude and the other—but always the direction of the business must come from your own heart.

After all, what are boredom, pessimism, cynicism and the rest of the bogey train with which men frighten themselves into misery, but the result of concentration on one poor, puny, petty personality and that one your own?

Like mice on a treadmill, we solemnly work day by day in a fatuous, never-ending circle, sick with familiarity of the procedure, drugged with the stupidity of the affair. But, unlike the mice, we are inhabitants of no confining cage, but are free to griddle the very earth with our footsteps if we put effort and concentration into the task.

For no man is there a space allotted where solely his interest must expend itself. Circumstances may seem to confine certain people to limited surroundings, or perhaps it would be more just to say that certain people have not sufficient strength of mind and of will to evade certain circumstances. But, even so, there is sufficient material in any street of any small country town to keep a real observer interested for the space of his natural life.

One man's eyes will find perpetual interest and stimulant in contemplation of the varying shadows, which chase one another across a field, in the study of the shading lights which each hour brings, in observation of effects and contrasts.

Another man will know only that the hedges bounding the field have been familiar to him all his life, that he has trod the pathway which cuts across from stile to stile, since toddling days. Therefore, he will tell you, beauty cannot possibly dwell there, so far as he is concerned. His soul sighs for the remote Bermudas, the farthest Andes, and he is convinced of being able to track beauty to her lair in any other spot but the exact one on which destiny has cruelly placed him.

As he is wilfully closing his eyes, what matters it that spring comes dancing with her faintest gifts; that summer wraps the land in her warm embrace; that autumn brings her ruddy dyes for wondrous transformations, or that winter sets all a-sparkling with her white magic?

It is all one to him, for he is suffering from self-imposed blindness. The habit of self-interest may have absorbed all available thought, until life refuses to express itself in terms other than those of the first person.

Whatever the reason, the disease is a deadly one which confines interest to an ever-narrowing circle.—Irene Weston in the Chicago American.

Motor-Car Window Opener. The cumbersome method of raising and lowering the windows of motor-cars and other carriages by means of a strap will soon be superseded by a German invention. By the new device the inmate of the carriage presses upwards or downwards a handle, and the window rises or falls accordingly.

Moreover the window can be raised or lowered to any required height, and will automatically stay where placed. The ingenious device has been brought before the notice of the motor-car body builders and its practical use demonstrated by means of a working model.

Fresh Butter. A firkin of fresh butter, which must have been made generations ago, has been dug up in swampy ground, at Ballinshelve by workmen employed by Mr. R. H. Mitchell of Desertrin, Ireland.

The firkin is about two feet in height, with a circumference of about ten inches. It appears to have been scooped out of a tree trunk, and on its sides are a couple of handles with holes through them—probably for the purpose of holding cords, so that the firkin could be carried on the back. It contains 28 pounds of butter, which is in a fair state of preservation.

Force of Habit. "My neighbor used to be a farmer, but now he wants to go into Wall Street." "Then the first thing he will proceed to do will be to water his stock."

Catching Cold Is House-Cleaning Operation By ALEXANDER LANE, New York

Ask the average person where he got his cold and he will say that he must have sat in a draft or got his feet wet. If you suggest that he got his cold at the table he will consider such a statement too ridiculous for a moment's serious consideration.

A cold in foreign countries is usually called a fever, which is the correct term, as the ordinary cold is a mild form of fever caused by nature in her efforts to cast out impurities. The impetus to this healing operation is usually supplied by an extra amount of cold air. A cold is to be welcomed and not to be suppressed, as these impurities if retained in the system would poison every part of the body. Catching cold is a life-saving process—a house-cleaning operation—on the part of nature. It shows that the body has become so clogged with impurities that it rebels and attempts to get rid of the filth. The impurities thrown off in the cleaning process are the surplus accumulated filth which must be eliminated before it decays and poisons the whole system. Any discharge from any part of the body relates to matter which nature cannot use. When there is no surplus matter in the system a cold is an impossibility.

How did this filth or surplus matter get into the body? There is one way, and that is through the mouth. Those who do not eat more than is necessary for the growth and repair of the body never have colds or catarrh and very seldom any other form of sickness. About ninety per cent of all diseases come from overeating, which causes more deaths than alcohol and war combined.

United States Lagging Behind in Aviation By H. A. VELLCHEN, New York

It is sad for the American to contemplate, particularly the American traveling abroad, the lack of progress in world-wide movements of the American nation. Here we are at the birthplace of the aeroplane, the conqueror of the air, and yet we are far behind the march of progress in aviation.

Germany is setting a hard pace in airship development, as Mr. Churchill recently pointed out in a speech in the house of commons. The British program is modest in comparison with what is being done in France and Germany, and the United States is not to be mentioned when it comes to reciting the accomplishments of the war divisions of the European nations. The German chancellor not long ago made the claim that Germany possesses superior airships to those of any other power, and the British had to admit that the claim was correct.—Germany has shown that an airship dare take the field that cannot defend itself against aeroplane attacks by means of guns on the top of its gas container.

The British navy has recently taken over the aeroplane airship department of the national defense from the army. Great Britain has ordered eight airships to cost approximately $2,500,000, the cost of each ship varying in price from $100,000 to $250,000. Germany has 17 first-class rigid airships and two others on the point of being delivered. The "first-class" airships are those capable of a speed of 45 miles an hour or more. What have we to show in the way of an airship or aeroplane fleet?

Poor "Plain Man" Described as Myth By J. JOHN KELLEY, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Not long ago a clever essayist attempted to prove that "the plain man" is a myth. He who humbly speaks of himself as a plain man does not expect you to take him literally; he wants you to protest by word or manner and intimate that he is decidedly superior in at least one way. The all-round plain man is a literary invention, like the "economic man" of the classical scholar, according to the essayist.

But John Galsworthy evidently believes that the plain man is always with us, and that he is a poor creature from every point of view. Galsworthy has drawn his portrait with merciless irony. The plain man is dull, ignorant, parrot-like in his cant phrases about art, society, morals and the higher life. There is no beauty or genuine emotion in him; all progress takes place in spite of him. He is absurd without knowing it, and the superior man must try to forget his very existence.

Now some are coming to the defense of the plain man by reciting his modest virtues and pleading his lack of opportunity. The plain man does the work of the world; he toils and pays the freight; he serves and supports the institutions we call civilization. Why kill at him?

The ANTI-MARKER HENRY HONNAND

A LAMENT

I love a lady who is fair To see Her glad smile lit up from despair To grieve: But though she says her heart is mine, In loneliness I must repine: For she, though willing to entrance, Is not inclined to take a chance With me.

What care I for her father's gold? This dross! He's wealthy, but dyspeptic, old, And cross; He takes her South

In winter time, In summer to some northern clime; O, that his wealth might melt away! My love would more than thrice repay Her loss.

Of all fair maids she is most fair, Her love my guide is everywhere I go. With her to share my lot I'd claim, The highest honors, widest fame For both herself and me—I grieve To say that she will not believe It, though.

Away With the Men! "So you think the world would go on very successfully if there were no men?"

"I can't see why it shouldn't. Women have shown that they are capable of doing everything the men have pretended that they only were able to do. By the way, do you know of any man I could get to trim that big elm tree in the front yard? It seems to me some of the upper limbs ought to be cut off."

Woman's Influence. Some men strive to gain success, To win firm footholds on the height, Because within them selfishness Is ever yuging, day and night.

Some men press on as best they may With pick or spade or sword or pen, Because their wish is, day by day, To benefit their fellow men.

One in ten thousand, glad to claim The world's approval, nobly strives; But most men who win wealth or fame Do so to satisfy their wives.

SHE WENT TOO FAR. "John," she complained, "you used to say that you would always think of me as your little girl."

"Well," he snarled, "I did as long as you kept your weight under 170 pounds."

Couldn't Quite See. "Do you care if I paint your barn?" asked the summer boarder with the peaches and cream complexion, as she put down her palette and began arranging her color tubes.

"No," replied Uncle Jasper; "go right ahead. It needs paintin' all right, but I don't see how you expect to get much done with them little bits of brushes."

Ridiculous. We were compelled a few evenings ago to keep from laughing while a young man with a receding chin and a very thin tenor voice sang:

"I am the master of my fate, I am the captain of my soul." What was the most ridiculous thing you ever heard?

Learn to Live. It is well to live and learn, To gain new knowledge day by day, To find some good at every turn, To cling to courage on the way.

It is well to justly earn Rewards the world may care to give; It is well to live and learn, But don't neglect to learn to live.

Sinner's Idea. "Pa, is retribution the worst thing a man can have?" "No, it isn't half as bad as the feeling a man is likely to have after he has confessed and then become convinced that he would not have been found out if he had kept quiet."

Ready to Listen. "Is there any last wish that you would like to make known?" asked his best friend. "Any last wish? What do you mean?" "You're about to be married, you know."

"Mebby." "Willie," the Sunday school teacher asked, "can you tell me why Rachel wept for her children?" "Mebby it was because the preacher came before she had a chance to get them cleaned up."

Old Age. "Age is a curious thing." "What's the answer?" "A man is old at eighty, a horse at twenty, a hen at two years, and an automobile is old in about three months."

BALL PLAYERS MAKE THREAT TO STOP WORK

New York, July 21.—Organized baseball and the Baseball Players' fraternity appear to be on the verge of an open break. The trouble is in regard to the status and disposition of Player Clarence O. Kraft, who recently declined to obey an order by the national commission to report from the Newark International league club to the Nashville club of the Southern association and was suspended. Kraft maintained that by going to the Nashville club he would receive $150 a month less than was paid him by the Newark club.
Men's Union Issues Ultimatum.
The disposition of this player has been the source recently of both correspondence and personal interviews between the representatives of the National league and the Players' fraternity, and at a meeting of the board of directors of the Players' federation yesterday President David D. Fultz, of that organization, was instructed to prepare a letter which is generally termed in baseball circles an ultimatum from the fraternity to organized baseball.
The letter addressed to August Hermann, chairman of the national commission, said that unless the demands of the federation in the case of Kraft were agreed to, the members of the federation on and after Wednesday would no longer consider themselves under contract.
Meeting of Magnates Called.
President Ban Johnson of the American league today called a meeting of the American club owners to be held here tomorrow morning.
In an interview this afternoon Mr. Johnson stated that an order calling for a strike of the American league players, if carried out, would cause the immediate closing of all American league baseball parks until such time as the players agreed to return under such conditions and penalties as might be imposed by the league.
President Tener of the National league was absent from the city today.
One baseball authority expressed the belief that the closing of the ball parks of the entire American league circuit would, from a financial standpoint, prove more disastrous to the ball players than to the baseball magnates. According to this authority, the receipts have not been up to the standards of other seasons.
President Fultz of the federation tonight issued a length statement defending the stand of the Players' fraternity.
Chance For Settlement Is Seen.
It appeared to be the belief of the followers of baseball that the Kraft case would be settled by the acquisition of Kraft through purchase by one of the major league clubs or by submitting the case to a board of arbitration.

Cincinnati, O., July 21.—After the Giants had tied up the count 5 and 5 in the eighth the two teams battled to the thirteenth before the leaders were able to push the winning run across the plate winning 6 to 5. Demaree pitched great ball allowing but eight hits in the 13 innings.

ORE WILL MOVE FAST AT END

"Business is picking up a little and there is a better feeling all around," was the statement of a Cleveland steel man, who is an ore shipper, to the Detroit Free Press Thursday. "Prices are very low but more orders are coming out and I think the upward movement has started."
"It may be a month or more before the improvement is felt in the lake trade, but I think the late movement of ore will be heavier than is expected."
The demand for grain tonnage for prompt loading is light. A big Cleveland steamer, ready to load Thursday at the head of the lakes, has been chartered at three-fourths of a cent to Buffalo on wheat. Lake Superior shippers are not bidding ahead for tonnage.
Coal is not coming forward from lower lake port any more freely.
Miss Lillian Barrett and Miss Mabel Salter, representing Van Houten and Co. of Chicago, leave this morning for Norway, for a few days on business.

to the fraternity to the end," Catcher Ed Sweeney of the New York Americans said tonight. Sweeney represents his club on the fraternity board. "I cannot discuss what took place at our meeting last Sunday," he added. "We are bound to secrecy."
Deril Pratt, representing the St. Louis Americans on the fraternity's board, would not discuss the controversy, except to say he would stick with the players.
Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis club, said: "I do not think my boys will strike. I believe they will be loyal to me when the showdown comes."

DOUBLE SQUEEZE MACK'S LATEST

son of 1914 may not be productive of the richest financial results ever enjoyed—but much improvement has been made, especially in base running.

Connie Mack manager of the Athletics, continued to spring new plays, and his world champions are forever attempting something new and startling in the old game.
The Athletics are slowly but surely revolutionizing the sport so far as lightning speed and electrifying plays are concerned, and when he popped his new double-squeeze play, with men on second and third, the wise birds shook their heads, muttering, "it can't be done."
But Mack seldom starts a play that cannot be perfected. In the new squeeze the opposition is often thrown on its balance, so suddenly is the speedy trick sprung. With a man on second and another on third and either none or one out, the signal is tipped and the batter taps off a bunt. On the tip of the signal both base runners dash off like wild, and for a few seconds the spectators are bewildered as everybody seems to be running and jumping about.

The man at bat must not slip up his end of the new squeeze. He must connect for a slow roller, and then—swish—they are off in a bunch. The man on third is speeding for the plate and the pitcher or whoever fields the ball, pegs home to catch the man. Sometimes they catch him and again they fail. But whether or not that man is nipped, there is another runner beating the path behind him, and that man has his orders. He must slide into the plate from which the catcher is working on his team mate, and seldom does this play fail to score at least one of the runs.

ASK SIX COUNTIES BE HELD EXCLUDED

London, July 21.—Conviction grows that the Unionist leaders, having failed last week to rush the government into further concessions, will now show a more reasonable attitude. This is confirmed by this notable admission in today's Times:
"On the whole, there was an impression last night that the situation, though still intensely dangerous, was easier for the obvious anxiety in all quarters to grip it at once."
The activity of the moderate section of Unionists in promoting settlement, is illustrated by a leading article in the Birmingham Daily Post, which admits the impossibility of the government yielding to "clean cut" all or Ulster, since it could not carry either the Nationalists or a majority of the Liberals with it, and calls on the Unionists to modify their terms.
The Post declares the Unionists demand for the exclusion of the whole province ought not to be really final and irrevocable. It questions the wisdom of attempting to separate the counties of Donegal, Cavan and Monaghan, which have a total of 132,525 Nationalist electors to 34,846 Protestants, and return eight Nationalist members and no Unionists to parliament from Nationalist Ireland.
"The exclusion of these three counties would involve the risk of serious difficulties, arising within the excluded area. The Post calls on the leaders of the Unionist party to make a strong effort to induce the Ulster Unionist council to consent to compromise, on a basis of unconditional exclusion of six counties. Thus, the issue is rapidly reducing itself to a difference over two counties, Liberals offering the excluding of four, and Unionists reducing their demand from the whole province to six counties.

BUSY WEEK'S WORK FACES PRESIDENT

Washington, July 21.—President Wilson had completely recovered today from his recent attack of indigestion. He planned to resume his usual rounds of work today and to see several business men, including S. R. Barron, a New York banker, to discuss business conditions and anti-trust legislation.
Expecting a definite outcome of the fight on the nomination of Thomas D. Jones as a member of the federal reserve board this week, Mr. Wilson is preparing to take up the case of Paul Warburg in an effort to get the senate to confirm the nomination. He has been assured that if a compromise can be made on the question of the appearance of Mr. Warburg before the committee, favorable action in the senate will follow.
Mr. Wilson also plans to take a hand this week in trying to straighten out the tangled situation in the senate over the anti-trust bills. He is known to be anxious for the senate to get down to actual work, and he believes the apparent differences are not at all serious.

HAVE A PLAN TO SAVE CHAMPS

London, July 21.—The circumstances surrounding the taking of Willie Ritchie's lightweight title and the defeat of Gunboat Smith have stirred the high class British sportsmen and today indications are that before long a rule will be put into effect in this country which will forbid a referee taking the title from a champion because he is beaten on points, unless the shade is so wide that no other course is open.
Following the censure of Referee Corri for his action in the Smith fight came criticism today because he stripped Willie Ritchie of his title because Freddie Welsh possessed a few points the best of the contest. Prominent clubmen and others voiced their opinion on the decision in the Willie Ritchie-Welsh fight and were a unit in their declaration that for the best interests of the sport and to further cement the splendid international athletic relationship existing between the United States and Great Britain a draw would have been a most just verdict.

LANDS ON TEDDY WITH BOTH FEET

ambition is the grievance which lies back of Colonel Roosevelt's criticisms of the administration, declared Secretary of State Bryan in a signed article in the Commoner about to be issued.

Mr. Wilson's progressiveness, says Mr. Bryan, sealed Roosevelt's fate in 1912 campaign and leaves him no chance of being elected in 1916. He intimates that the Progressive leader is a hard loser.
The articles says in part:
Attacks Colonel's Record.
"Mr. Roosevelt was in the presidency seven and one-half years, and during that time he never made any effort to reduce the tariff."
"Mr. Roosevelt believes in the regulation of monopoly instead of the prevention of it. But the country has seen enough of regulation, and it is most enlightened view was obtained when Mr. Roosevelt was president."
"It was the monopolies that regulated him. More trusts were formed under his administration than in any similar period, and he made no effort to protect the public. And how can he be expected to regulate trusts in the future when he takes one of the most hard-hearted of the monopolists as his campaign manager and offer him to the public as the embodiment of Progressive principles?"

Monopolies Supplied Money.
"Much more than half of Mr. Roosevelt's campaign fund of 1904 was drawn from corporations. While these corporations were not all trusts it is known that a great many of them were beneficiaries of legislation and no one can doubt that they thought they were buying immunity when they contributed. And so with Mr. Roosevelt's campaign fund in 1912; it was drawn almost entirely from a few parties, and they interested parties."
"In the Pittsburgh speech Mr. Roosevelt did not mention the most important measure for which the president stands sponsor—namely, the new currency law."
"Lame on Currency."
Mr. Roosevelt had more than seven years in which to do something on the currency question, but he had no idea upon that subject except those borrowed from the Wall street bankers, and he did not dare to put these in the form of a law.
"When President Wilson came in he was free to take the people's side of the question and at once obtained the passage of an epoch-making law. No wonder Mr. Roosevelt is silent on the subject."

WILL SEEK SOLUTION OF IRISH QUESTION

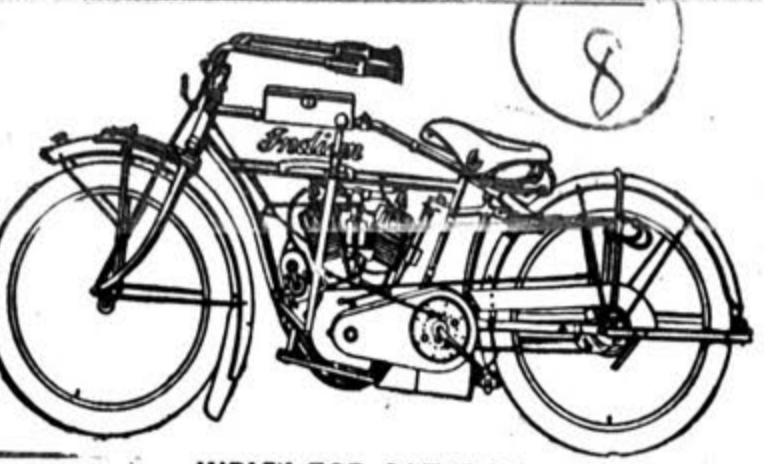

London, Monday, July 21.—The king has called a conference of the leaders of all the parties to seek a solution of the Irish problem. This is the announcement which Premier Asquith is expected to make today when the bill amending the home rule bill come up again for consideration in the house of commons.
The prime minister's speech on this occasion, indicating how the government proposes to deal with the Irish amendments to the amending bill, is awaited with the deepest anxiety, and it is probable the house will immediately adjourn the debate on the amending bill indefinitely to allow the negotiations for a settlement to proceed outside of the parliament.
Premier Asquith has been with the king at Portsmouth for the week-end and the king's anxiety to get the difficulty settled resulted in the decision to call a conference.
At a meeting of the national executive committee of the National Irish Trades Union congress and the leaders of the labor party in Dublin, there were adopted resolution urging work-throughout Ireland, including Ulster to oppose the exclusion of Ulster from home rule and, if a provisional government is set up in Ulster, to resist it will all available means.

GARRANZA IS READY TO DECLARE A TRUCE

Washington, July 21.—General Carranza today informed the United States government that he was ready to declare a suspension of hostilities against the government of Provisional President Carralaj, Huerta's successor, pending negotiations with its representatives for the transfer of authority at Mexico City to the Constitutionalists.
The Constitutional chief expressed his views in most cordial terms to John R. Silliman, personal representative of President Wilson, and Consul General Hanna and Vice Consul Robertson, who interviewed him at Monterey. Not only did he voice his willingness to receive the commission of three appointed by Provisional President Carralaj to discuss peace, but said he would send an escort to meet them and prove safe conduct through Constitutional territory.
General Carranza is insistent, however that the surrender of the Carralaj government should be unconditional. He is willing, it is declared by his representatives here, to grant a limited amnesty, not as a condition of surrender, but as a voluntary act of generosity on the part of the Constitutionalists, after they obtain the reins of government.
It is the intention of the Constitutionalists to give guarantees of safety to the people generally, but to prosecute ring leaders in the plot through which Madero was overthrown. Most of the latter, however, have left Mexico.
